ABSTRACT

The United States Newspaper Program (USNP) is a national, cooperative effort to locate, catalog, and preserve on microfilm newspapers published in the United States and its territories since the seventeenth century. This list of intended-audience terms was initially developed by the USNP staff at the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, but soon grew to include terms submitted by other national repository projects and later by state projects. The goal in producing the list was to create a thesaurus for the USNP that would allow users of the database to access specialty newspapers by their particular characteristic. The terms on the list were derived from a variety of sources familiar to staff at the State Historical Society of Wisconsin from their earlier bibliographic work. Terms are listed alphabetically under three major subject headings: (1) Ethnic Terms; (2) Religious Terms; and (3) Other Terms. (THC)

The United States Newspaper Program is a national, cooperative effort to locate, catalog, and preserve on microfilm newspapers published in the United States and its territories since the seventeenth century. Funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities, and managed jointly by the Endowment and the Library of Congress, the program is carried out by projects in each state and territory, and within selected individual institutions.

The List of Intended-Audience Terms was initially developed by the United States Newspapers Program staff at the State Historical Society of Wisconsin but soon grew to include terms submitted by other national repository projects and later by state projects. The goal in producing the List was to create a thesaurus for the USNP that would allow users of the data base to access speciality newspapers by their particular characteristic, for example to locate all newspapers produced by and for the Greenback Party.

The terms on the List were derived from a variety of sources familiar to staff at the State Historical Society of Wisconsin from their earlier bibliographic work. For example in producing the subject indexes to Women's Periodicals and Newspapers from the 18th Century to 1981: a union list of holdings of Madison, Wisconsin Libraries (Boston, G.K. Hall, 1982) and Native American Periodicals and Newspapers, 1828-1982: bibliography, publishing record, and holdings (Westport, Connecticut, Greenwood Press, 1984) the staff contacted Sanford Berman of the Hennepin County Library for advice. Berman was selected because of his expertise in providing direct and intelligible subject access to all types of library materials and he identified both appropriate, existing headings in the Hennepin County system as well as aiding in the development of new headings.

Some of the descriptors differ from those found in Library of Congress Subject Headings, 9th edition. For example, LCSH employs BLACK and BLACKS to denote African-descended people outside the U.S. and uses AFRO-AMERICAN and AFRO-AMERICANS to represent U.S. Blacks. The Intended-Audience List uses the term Black to denote U.S. Blacks. Other examples of differences include CHICANO, INUIT, and METIS. Among the six national repositories selected to be the initial participants in the U.S. Newspapers Program, the State Historical Society of Wisconsin was the logical choice to develop the Intended-Audience List for the U.S.N.P. This was based on the Society having completed the two major bibliographic works cited above as well as having done smaller projects on blacks, Asian Americans, and Hispanic Americans.

In developing the List several groups of entries were added from standard sources. For example many participants in the USNP were aware of a large number of religious newspapers in their collections and concern was expressed early on for including names of specific groups. Thus we added the names of U.S. religious bodies as found in the Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches (Nashville, Tennessee: Abingdon Press, 1982). Other terms were derived from the Hennepin County Library authority file. Ethnic entries were checked against and supplemented by The Harvard Encyclopedia of American Ethnic Groups (Cambridge, Mass., The Belknap Press, 1980). Many of the terms related to established political parties or foreign countries do not vary significantly from similar terms in the Library of Congress Subject Headings, 9th edition, though those for some ethnic groups do.

The U.S. Newspapers Program participants offered significant additional terms, terms that could not have been generated by any single project. For example, the Kansas State Historical Society staff encountered many Free Silver newspapers held in their collections and added this term and many others from the numerous political movements that swept the Plains in the nineteenth century.
