The Creative Business Ownership for Women Project was established at Valencia Community College (Florida) to provide displaced homemakers and single parents with the special help they need to achieve entrepreneurial success. During the course of the project, displaced homemakers, single parents, and rural disadvantaged women interested in owning a small or home-based business were recruited and offered a series of four seminars on how to start a home-based business and four workshops on how to advertise and promote a business. Program participants were offered business skills training in four specialized workshops, and personal counseling, referrals, and follow-up were provided. A 1985-86 survey of female entrepreneurs was updated, and a network for women business owners and for women interested in starting a business was established. (Thirty-four attachments are appended to the nine-page project report. Included among them are a self-assessment for prospective entrepreneurs, a list of community resources that can provide assistance to persons starting businesses, summaries of the seminars on starting a home-based business, ideas for home-based businesses, information on the women's business owners network sponsored by Valencia Community College, workshop follow-up surveys, newspaper articles on successful female business owners, and information on services offered through the Creative Business Ownership for Women Project.) PREFACE

More and more women are entering the job market, not necessarily by choice, but by necessity. The majority tend to enter traditional low-paying, dead-end jobs. Entrepreneurship, a nontraditional option, can provide a way out of this cycle for many women.

Creative Business Ownership for Women recognizes that women need special help to achieve business success. The average woman faces barriers which impede her performance in business ownership: discrimination and stereotyping, including denial of credit; lower expectations and refusal to patronize. Scarcity of role models; underdevelopment of the entrepreneurial profile; and lack of specific business knowledge are other handicaps.

Through personal assessment, seminars and workshops, publication of a women-owned business directory, counseling, referrals, and establishment of a women business owners network, the Creative Business Ownership Project provided women, including displaced homemakers and single parents, with the information and support necessary to make informed decisions about business ownership as well as the opportunity for business management growth for those already managing a young business.

Many agencies and individuals have contributed to the success of this project: The Small Business Development Center, The Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE); Jeanie Linders, owner of The Linders Group; Merriam E. Johnson, owner of Innovative Resource Management; S.M.I.L.E. (Single Mothers in a Learning Environment); and the Community Service Center of South Orange County. Within Valencia Community College, the Institute for Business and Industry, the Council for Continuing Education for Women, N.O.T.E. (Nontraditional Options for Training and Employment), and the HRS and Vocational Education Displaced Homemaker Programs made important contributions.
ABSTRACT

Because displaced homemakers and single parents need special help to achieve entrepreneurial success, The Center for Continuing Education for Women at Valencia Community College established the Creative Business Ownership for Women Project, supported by funding from the Division of Vocational Adult and Community Education, Florida Department of Education.

The project: (1) Actively recruited displaced homemakers, single parents and rural disadvantaged women interested in owning a small or home-based business; (2) Provided a series of four seminars on how to start a home-based business and three seminars to disadvantaged women in two rural areas; (3) Offered four specialized workshops which provided business skills training for program participants; (4) Provided personal counseling, referrals and follow-up for course participants; (5) Updated and expanded the 1985-86 survey of women entrepreneurs; (6) Established a network for women business owners as well as for those interested in starting a business. This network, a highlight of the year, was organized in response to a community need, and provided a base for recruitment, education, training and moral support for women just starting out, thereby reducing the anxieties of "being on one's own." It also offered participants the opportunity to make contacts and patronize other women-owned businesses.

According to the 1986 White House Conference on Small Businesses, the shift from an economy based on manufacturing to one based on services and information will continue through the end of the century and the number of small businesses will continue to grow more rapidly in the next 15 years. The U.S. Census Bureau reports that women own one in four U.S. businesses but they generate only one-tenth of all receipts. Because Florida ranks fourth in the nation's states in women business ownership and the interest among Central Florida women in starting their own small businesses is so high, the need for this project's services and program will be even greater in future years.
INTRODUCTION

Florida has experienced dramatic growth and change in recent years. According to the U. S. Census Bureau, it ranks fourth among our nation's states in the number of women-owned businesses, but half of the women-owned businesses have gross receipts of less than $5,000 a year.

The Orange County Planning Board predicts a 60% increase in population between the years 1980 and 2000 and according to the most recent census figures, of the 14,000 single parent families in Orange County, 12,000 are female-headed. 83% of these households live at or below the poverty level.

The above statistics clearly reveal that women need special help in order to achieve business success or in finding jobs which can support themselves and their families.

Creative Business Ownership for Women recognizes that entrepreneurship can provide a viable means of support for single parents, displaced homemakers and other disadvantaged women of all ages. Additionally, because business ownership is a non-traditional career for women, those already in business for themselves lack many of the skills which help ensure business success. This project has addressed their needs through many educational and networking programs.

The objectives and outcomes of this project were as follows:

1. To recruit 110 displaced homemakers, single parents, and rural women interested in owning a small or home-based business.

   Outcome: 209 displaced homemakers, single parents and rural women were recruited.

2. To provide three or more business ownership seminars for 110 women interested in owning their own businesses with at least one of these geared to rural women and others specifically interested in home-based businesses.

   Outcome: Four "How to Start a Home-Based Business" Seminars were offered to 106 women (partially duplicated figure), of which 17 (unduplicated) were either displaced homemakers or single parents. Three workshops were held in two rural communities. 46 (partially duplicated figure) women attended, of which 12 were single parents or displaced homemakers.

3. To conduct three or more specialized instruction and/or management skills seminars for program participants.

   Outcome: Four workshops were held on "How to Advertise and Promote Your Business." 47 (partially duplicated figure) women attended. Four were single parents or displaced homemakers.
4. To provide counseling and follow-up for course participants.

Outcome: 30 women received personal counseling, of which 14 were either displaced homemakers or single parents. Follow-up was conducted through mail outs of program announcements and a survey which was nailed to seminar participants.

5. To update the 1985-86 survey of women entrepreneurs.

Outcome: The survey was updated and expanded. At least 100 additional owned businesses will be included in the second edition of The Directory of Women Owned Businesses.

A Women Business Owners Network was formed in response to the requests of women business owners and potential business owners. The network has been an overwhelming success, supplying educational information, training and support for women in all stages of business ownership. To date, 315 (partially duplicate figure) women have attended the meetings. 14 were single parents or displaced homemakers.
METHODS

The Creative Business Ownership for Women Project, located within the framework of The Center for Continuing Education for Women (See Appendix A) at Valencia Community College, met its objectives through a variety of activities:

1. (Objective: To recruit 110 displaced homemakers, single parents, and rural women interested in owning a small or home-based business.)

Monthly presentations on business ownership were delivered to both displaced homemakers programs offered through The Center for Continuing Education for Women. A simple self-assessment inventory was administered to determine entrepreneurial attributes (See Appendix B). A general overview of business ownership as a viable option for earning a livelihood was discussed. Students were given information on the activities of Creative Business Ownership for Women as well as a list of community resources (See Appendices C and D). Informational letters were mailed to displaced homemakers and single parents who attended seminars given by The Small Business Development Center and The Women's Business Educational Council (See Appendix E). Outreach presentations on business ownership were delivered to two rural communities.

2. (Objective: To provide three or more business ownership seminars for 110 women interested in owning their own businesses with at least one of these geared to rural women and others specifically interested in home-based businesses.)

A series of four seminars were held on "How to Start a Home-based Business" (See Appendix F). Promotion was conducted through flyers, local newspapers and radio announcements (See Appendices G and H). The seminars were held at the HRS Displaced Homemaker Center on consecutive Tuesday evenings, 7:00 - 9:30 p.m. Participants evaluated each session (See Appendix I). The Small Business Development Center served as a cosponsor, supplying speakers for two topics. The initial seminar included an entrepreneurship self-assessment profile and a brainstorming of ideas for turning hobbies or skills into a business (See Appendices J and K). "How to Write a Business Plan" was covered in the second session, with a home-based service business used as a model. Advertising, marketing and legal issues were included in the third week. Simple recordkeeping, information on the IRS, small business loans and insurance needs were presented at the final seminar. Seven women business owners participated, serving as role models for the students.

Two workshops for low-income women were held in South Orange County. They were coordinated through the Community Service Center of South Orange County and a crafts instructor with the Winter Park Adult Vocational Center. As a result of an awareness program presented to a women's crafts group by N.O.T.E. (Nontraditional Options for Training and Employment) and Creative Business Ownership for Women Coordinators, four women indicated an interest in forming a cooperative effort to market and sell their crafts (See Appendix L). At a second workshop, craft items and target markets were decided upon. Further workshop plans were developed to include crafts instruction and "know how" (See Appendix M).
Through outreach presentations to S.M.I.L.E. (Single Mothers in a Learning Environment), a workshop was established to develop business plans for either a daycare center or commercial cleaning business (See Appendices N and O).

3. (Objective: To conduct three or more specialized instruction and/or management skills seminars for program participants.)

Because marketing and advertising are crucial to business success, four specialized instruction and training workshops were offered to women business owners and potential business owners. Jeanie Linders, owner and President of a local advertising agency volunteered to lead the workshops which were held on Tuesday evenings from 6:30 - 8:00 p.m. Sales literature, brochures, paid advertisement, public relations and promotions were covered during the workshops with emphasis on problem solving (See Appendix P).

4. (Objective: To provide counseling and follow-up for course participants).

Through personal counseling, participants were able to make wise decisions about business ownership. Issues varied - from "how to find a banker" to "I can't sell myself." Referrals were made to other agencies in the area, including the Small Business Development Center and S.C.O.R.E. (Service Corps of Retired Executives) which offered free counseling and seminars for starting and managing a small business. Participants were also directed to Valencia's Institute for Business and Industry for additional business management courses. "How to Start a Homebased Business" participants were mailed a survey three months following the series of seminars (See Appendices Q and R). Of the 13 who responded, four are self-employed; five are working in traditional jobs and four are unemployed. The women who are unemployed are still considering business ownership, but have postponed their plans for these reasons: dissolution of marriage, enrollment in full-time training programs, not ready for commitment, start-up costs.

All project participants received ongoing information about continued services and programs.

5. (Objective: To update the 1985-86 survey of women entrepreneurs).

A reception was held in October, 1986, to introduce the first edition of the Directory of Women Owned Businesses (See Appendix S). The purposes of the directory were: (See Appendix T)

- To focus attention on the scope and number of women-owned businesses in the community.

- To provide directory information to those individuals interested in patronizing women-owned businesses.

- To encourage "networking" among women business owners and those women interested in starting their own businesses.
The 1985-86 survey of women entrepreneurs was updated and expanded to include many additional women-owned businesses. Because the grant did not provide printing funds, a local bank has agreed to sponsor the 1987-88 Directory of Women Owned Businesses (See Appendix U).

A Women Business Owners Network was established in response to a community need and recommendation from the previous year's final report. The network, which was formed in December, 1986, met twice each month (See Appendices V and W). Programs included informal networking and educational presentations which dealt with issues and concerns of business ownership. A questionnaire was designed to determine the profile of members as well as the business subjects of interest to them (See Appendix X).

The project's advisory board met three times during the grant year. They received activity updates and participant evaluations. Their input and support were very helpful. Because the members were either business owners or had extensive business knowledge, their suggestions for speakers and role models were contributing factors to the success of seminars and workshops (See Appendices Y, Z, and AA).

The board included:

1. Joan Milligan, business owner - Homebased crafts and gifts
2. Ann Anderson, business owner - Homebased fashion sales
3. Frances Strawn, business owner - Residential Real Estate Agency
4. June Wallace, business owner - Financial Planner
5. Peggy Melvin, Banker
6. Linda Wells, Attorney

Project activities were publicized in local newspapers, flyers, brochures and radio announcements as well as by word of mouth (See Appendixes BB, CC, and DD). Reports of the project's progress and activities were presented at VCC's Open Campus general staff meetings (See Appendix EE).

Because of support and assistance from others, the Creative Business Ownership for Women Project was able to successfully meet its objectives. Guest speakers volunteered their time to deliver educational presentations at seminars, workshops and network meetings. Two part-time assistants were hired for the months of May and June to assist the coordinator with rural projects. Because their expertise was in small business management and both had previously been displaced homemakers, their contributions to rural activities were very beneficial. Disadvantaged rural women tend to have less education and training, more traditional beliefs concerning gender roles, and are usually isolated from nearby cities. The project's assistants were particularly helpful in giving support and offering training and assistance in developing small-scale enterprises.

A women business owners network quarterly newsletter, The Link, was designed and published through volunteer efforts of three network members (See Appendix FF).

Valencia Community College, through Staff and Program Development funds, sponsored the project coordinator's attendance at the Fourth Annual Entrepreneurship Education Forum at Ohio State University. Valuable information on entrepreneurial education was received, which assisted the coordinator in developing a successful, comprehensive program (See Appendix GG).
RESULTS AND FINDINGS

The five objectives of The Creative Business Ownership for Women Project were met. The women of Central Florida, including displaced homemakers, single parents and disadvantaged rural women have continued to maintain a high level of interest in programs and services which will assist them in making wise decisions about business ownership and business management. The Women Business Owners Network, has been one of the most important components of the project because it was a major vehicle to reach women who were interested in starting a business but lacked sufficient confidence and moral support.

The funding granted by the Florida Division of Vocational Adult and Community Education provided an opportunity for CCEW to expand its services. This funding included support for personnel, travel, printing, materials and supplies. (See Appendix HH)

Eight hundred twenty-eight (partially duplicated figure) people participated in the project. Two hundred nine (non-duplicated) of the participants were either single parents, displaced homemakers or disadvantaged rural women.

The chart on the following page describes in detail the results and findings of this project as they relate to programs and services offered and the number of participants enrolled, including the extent to which the targeted population participated.

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Conclusions:

1. In order to prepare women for the realities of business ownership, personal self-assessment as it relates to entrepreneurial personality characteristics is an important aspect of this project.

2. Community linkages with business owners and other agencies enhanced the quality and number of services which could be offered.

3. It was especially important for displaced homemakers and single parents to understand the realities of business ownership and the importance of writing a business plan.

4. Based on participant evaluations, role models (women business owners) were one of the most valuable components of the homebased business seminars.

5. The Women Business Owners Network was highly successful because it provided:
   - the opportunity for women to network with each other
   - educational programs and training
   - support for women who were interested in starting a business but lacked self-confidence

6. Specialized workshops set up as training practicums were valuable because of "problem solving" for individual businesses.

7. The Directory of Women-Owned Businesses for Orlando and vicinity was a highlight of the year because it encouraged patronage of women-owned businesses and contributed to sex equity in the business world.

8. Personal counseling provided the target population with encouragement and practical information, from where to go for more education to specific problems such as pricing a service or product.

9. Because the United States is rapidly moving towards a more entrepreneurial society, the need for this project will continue to increase.

Recommendations:

1. A 12- to 15-week course on starting a business should be developed for displaced homemakers, single parents and other disadvantaged women. In addition to covering the basics of business ownership, two other components would provide "hands on" experience which would help ensure business success for women who lack business skills:
   a. Each participant would be required to write a business plan during the course of the program.
   b. Job shadowing would provide valuable experience and training for participants.
2. Home-based business start-ups should continue to be encouraged to displaced homemakers and single parents because of lower risks.

3. The Directory of Women Owned Businesses for Orlando and vicinity should continue to be expanded and updated.

4. The possibility of enrolling participants as continuing education students should be considered as a procedure to generate FTE for Valencia Community College.

5. Because of the difficulties experienced in outreach to rural areas, special help and guidance to this population should continue to be a vital part of this project.
Worksheet No. 1

Under each question, check the answer that says what you feel or comes closest to it. Be honest with yourself.

Are you a self-starter?

☐ I do things on my own. Nobody has to tell me to get going.
☐ If someone gets me started, I keep going all right. Easy does it. I don’t put myself out until I have to.

How do you feel about other people?

☐ I like people. I can get along with just about anybody.
☐ I have plenty of friends—I don’t need anyone else.
☐ Most people irritate me.

Can you lead others?

☐ I can get most people to go along when I start something.
☐ I can give the orders if someone tells me what we should do.
☐ I let someone else get things moving. Then I go along if I feel like it.

Can you take responsibility?

☐ I like to take charge of things and see them through.
☐ I’ll take over if I have to, but I’d rather let someone else be responsible.
☐ There’s always some eager beaver around wanting to show how smart he is. I say let him.

How good an organizer are you?

☐ I like to have a plan before I start. I’m usually the one to get things lined up when the group wants to do something.
☐ I do all right unless things get too confused. Then I quit.
☐ You get all set and then something comes along and presents too many problems. So I just take things as they come.

How good a worker are you?

☐ I can keep going as long as I need to. I don’t mind working hard for something I want.
☐ I’ll work hard for a while, but when I’ve had enough, that’s it.
☐ I can’t see that hard work gets you anywhere.

Can you make decisions?

☐ I can make up my mind in a hurry if I have to. It usually turns out O.K., too.
☐ I can if I have plenty of time. If I have to make up my mind fast, I think later I should have decided the other way.
☐ I don’t like to be the one who has to decide things.

Can people trust what you say?

☐ You bet they can. I don’t say things I don’t mean.
☐ I try to be on the level most of the time, but sometimes I just say what’s easiest.
☐ Why bother if the other fellow doesn’t know the difference?

Can you stick with it?

☐ If I make up my mind to do something, I don’t let anything stop me.
☐ I usually finish what I start—if it goes well.
☐ If it doesn’t go right away, I quit. Why beat your brains out?

How good is your health?

☐ I never run down!
☐ I have enough energy for most things I want to do.
☐ I run out of energy sooner than most of my friends seem to.

Now count the checks you made.

How many checks are there beside the first answer to each question?

How many checks are there beside the second answer to each question?

How many checks are there beside the third answer to each question?

If most of your checks are beside the first answer, you probably have what it takes to run a business. If not, you’re likely to have more trouble than you can handle by yourself. Better find a partner who is strong on the points you’re weak on. If many checks are beside the third answer, not even a good partner will be able to shore you up.

Job training program offers placement in 3 fields

Valencia Community College is accepting applications for a free training and placement program that will start Jan. 12 and end Feb. 6, with full-time employment beginning Feb. 9.

The program offers classroom instruction and on-the-job paid training in office skills, hospitality and horticulture.

To be considered eligible, an applicant must be at least 16 years old and must have been unemployed for at least 15 of the past 26 weeks, or the person must be a displaced homemaker. A displaced homemaker is a person who was lost a spouse through death, divorce, separation or disability and must now support the household.

VALENCIA COMMUNITY COLLEGE

Valencia Gallery curator Judith Page has invited artists from throughout the South to submit a wrapped holiday gift package for exhibition at Valencia's East Campus Performing Arts Center Gallery. The packages will be empty, but viewers will be asked to imagine what they might contain from the artists' choices of wrappings, size, shape and mysterious rattles of the packages. The exhibition, titled "Southern Fried ... Presents," will open on Monday and run through Dec. 19 and again from Jan. 5 22, at the gallery, 701 N. Econlockhatchee Trail, just off the East-West Expressway in Orlando.

Participating artists include Michelle Tuggle, Clearwater; Bill Schaf, Gainesville; Fran and Paul Rutkovsky, Tallahassee; Judy McWillie, Athens, Ga., Joel Loguidice, Nashville, Tenn.; Carol Cornelison, Miami; Bill Burke, Coconut Grove; and Grady Kimsey, Henry Sinn, Cheryl Bogdanowitsch, Winter Park.

Copies by mail are available by sending $3 to CCEW, P.O. Box 3028, Orlando, Florida, 32802. The directory also can be obtained at the North Center's new location at the Corporate Square Complex, 1010 N. Orlando Avenue, Winter Park.

Networking

Networking is a method of information exchange perfectly suited to our entrepreneurial era. To the networker, every stranger represents an opportunity, the chance to find prospects, reach targets or make new friends. Networking can change your whole concept about what it takes to succeed.

Networking tip of the month: MEET AS MANY PEOPLE AS YOU CAN! A distinguishing characteristic of self made millionaires is that they network everywhere; all the time: at business conferences, with their neighbors, in airports... at WBON meetings!

The Women Business Owners Network
Sponsored by the Creative Business Ownership for Women Project at the Center for Continuing Education for Women at Valencia Community College
Getting To Know You

The V.B.O.N. (Women Business Owners Network) provides networking opportunities, educational tools, and support for women who own their businesses or who are interested in starting their own business. The meetings are instructional as well as supportive, lending valuable information in an informal atmosphere to those women pursuing an entrepreneurial career.

The V.B.O.N. meets monthly on the first Monday in the evening and the third Wednesday at the lunch hour. There is no fee to become a member or to attend the meetings.

For more information regarding the Women Business Owners Network and related programs offered by Valencia, contact Sherry Barfield, Network Coordinator, at the Valencia North office; telephone: 628-1976.

Showcase is an opportunity for our members to get to know each other in a more in depth fashion. Showcase features are chosen by a random drawing of business cards from those attending the meetings.

Each quarter, two Showcase selections will be made and interviewed for the next quarter's issue of "The Link". Come and submit your business card! You and your business may be featured in our next issue!

Kay Keeling

Can you replenish naturally what daily stress takes away from your body, skin, and mental attitude?

Questions such as this sparked Kay Keeling to research the science of esthetics; the study of beauty. Far from chasing the illusive fountain of youth, Kay found an exciting arena of health related services using natural means to benefit the body.

Kay began studying esthetics thirteen years ago in Houston, Texas. She was working as an occupational therapist and going to flea markets on the weekends selling aloe vera products. In order to learn more about natural herbs and cosmetics, she went to cosmetology school. It was there Kay specialized in facials and became a licensed esthetician.

Kay began her own business early in 1986, after living in Orlando for seven years. At the time, Kay was working for a salon and had built up a steady clientele base. The move from the security of a salon to opening the Skin Therapy Clinic on her own was the realization of a long time goal.

"Having my own business was not something I decided, really, it's just something I've always wanted to do," Kay explains. "I enjoy creativity...so I wanted to create my own environment that would be relaxing for my clients. I had a lot of ideas from the salons I had worked that I felt I could improve on with my own business."

Kay's services include body wraps, facial treatments, non-surgical face lifts, hand treatments, color analysis, and waxing.

The Women Business Owners Network was introduced to Kay by a friend in February of this year. Kay views the Women Business Owners Network as a great support group.
"You can hear what other people are going through and it helps to motivate you and helps you to see the advantages of being in your own business," said Kay.

Kay's personal goals include traveling to Europe to study European skin therapy techniques. She also looks forward to studying more about other health related services and relaxation techniques to enhance her business.

Kathleen Bonnie Attanasi

A classic example of the entrepreneurial spirit, Kathleen Bonnie Attanasi is a musician and owner of Harpthrobs Entertainment, an entertainment agency.

"People would call me for jobs, and I couldn't do them, so I started booking other people," Kathleen said, describing how she became a woman business owner a year and a half ago.

Harpthrobs Entertainment provides any type of music for any occasion, including conventions, weddings, business and social functions. Kathleen reminds network members to remember live music when planning entertainment for that special client.

Five nights a week, Kathleen sings and plays the harp in the Empress Lilly Lounge at the Walt Disney World Village. Her performing experience has taken her to Ireland, Hong Kong, Japan, and Finland. Recently she did a tour on the S.S. Rotterdam in the South Pacific, where she and her husband were married.

Besides running a successful business and being an entertainer herself, Kathleen finds time to teach music appreciation at Valencia. She holds a B.A. in Music from Indiana University, and a Masters in Music from the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. Not content with that, she has completed approximately half of the requirements for an M.B.A. at the University of Central Florida.

Kathleen is pleased with the benefits she has received from the Women Business Owners Network. Besides appreciating the informative speakers, she has done business with other Network members. After all, that's part of what networking is all about.

Dear Sherry:

On behalf of the National Academy for Vocational Education, the National Entrepreneurship Education Consortium, the United States Association for Small Business and Entrepreneurship, and the U.S. Small Business Administration, I thank you for joining us for the Fourth Annual Entrepreneurship Education Forum. Your active participation in the program contributed to the overall success of the Forum. I trust you returned home with a greater number of contacts and resources to assist you as you deal with the current and future demands on entrepreneurship education.

Enclosed is a copy of the final participant list so that the dialogue initiated at the Forum may continue. Next year's Forum will be held June 18-19, 1987 in Washington, D.C. The date and location changes were made to give Forum participants the opportunity to participate in the National Federation of Independent Business' once-every-four-years conference, which starts June 21. The Forum's Call for Presentations should be distributed in early January, 1987. I encourage you to look for that brochure and submit a proposal. If I or anyone here at the National Center can be of assistance to you, don't hesitate to call on us. I hope to see you at the 5th Annual National Entrepreneurship Education Forum.

Sincerely,

Larae Watkins
