*Circuses; Library Public Services; Summer Vacations

Intended as a companion volume for librarians planning a children's summer reading program, this activity manual provides ideas for games, puzzles, puppet shows, story reading, and more, all based on the theme of "Circus Summer." The manual suggests ways to promote the program, such as visits to schools, and provides directions for registering children. A "Storytime" section gives suggestions for particular books to read aloud, and includes circus-related cutouts to dramatize the books. The program section gives suggestions for circus-related activities such as sing-alongs, followed by a display section that shows ways to decorate the library to give it a circus atmosphere. Sections on games and puzzles, crafts, prizes, and clowns are followed by a section with activities for older children, and a section suggesting ways in which teenaged volunteers can help with the younger children. Lists of resources for librarians are included. (JC)

INTRODUCTION

By the time you receive this Activity Manual and the support materials your own planning, aided by the Planning Manual, should be well underway. Also, you may have attended one of the "Make n' Take" workshops offered by your System, in which case you will have begun to accumulate the specific physical objects that add appeal and diversity to your program. With the arrival of this manual you are ready to integrate the overall plan, direction and schedule, (from the Planning Manual) the "stuff" (Make n'Take programs) and the ideas that will hold everything together. You can also use this manual to: 1) fill in gaps, 2) stimulate your own ideas, 3) generate ideas in later years since many of the ideas (as with all of the best ideas) are generic and readily transformed to fit future themes.

To derive maximum use, consider the two manuals (Planning and Activity) as companion pieces. What can't be found in one can probably be found in the other. A sad exception is the omission of music lists which should have appeared in the Planning Manual. Their absence wasn't discovered until it was too late to put them in here. If anyone wishes to do music programming, please call or write to receive the combined list.

The presence of some new sections in the manual, and the broadening of another are a response to your concerns and requests. "Creative Expressions" is paired with "Crafts" and reflects the validity of writing, speaking and creative dramatics as part of your library program, either as book extender, supplementary or independent activity. "Culminating Activities" offers you a range of choices for that final climactic activity that will make Circus Summer memorable as children grow up. "Older-Age Involvement" is included not only to encourage focus on older children who, despite positive library experiences, grow up and away from the library, but to enable you to simply and easily offer programs and create displays with special appeal for this age group. All of the ideas offered in this section are usable in the winter as well as the summer. In fact, 4-6 graders are more likely to be at loose ends during the winter months, as are young adults who are not heavily involved in extra-curricular activities.

Since clowns are so popular, all clown-related materials are grouped together in a special chapter. If you get drowned in clowns, remember, any of this material can be adapted to other characters and motifs. Flexibility is the first step toward being creative.

A great strength of this theme is its versatility: possibilities for exploring it range from very physical to highly contemplative, from serious to comic; if you can't find many books about the circus, you can concentrate on the animals in other settings. Experiencing them in other settings invites comparison with their lives as circus performers, thus drawing in the circus and encouraging higher-level thinking. Such opportunities for serious thought combined with playfulness and much activity exist in all aspects of the theme.
Many of you who contributed to the manual made remarkable use of this thematic versatility. Activities and materials range from original stories with props to 'real' work experiences for older children. Activities are innovative, clever, clearly described and should be a pleasure to implement.

One long-time contributor whose ideas are particularly original and charming this year is Connie Jelkin, from Holdrege. Connie has resigned as Holdrege children's librarian to be a full-time mother to her own children. Good-bye Connie, and good luck. Your children are lucky but your creativity and originality - and YOU - will be much missed by the rest of us.

Other contributors who fortunately plan to stay around awhile (I couldn't bear another loss) also deserve great tribute. Somehow, maybe because circuses are magic for all ages, you'll feel a silent thank-you waft toward you whenever someone somewhere in Nebraska uses one of your ideas. Thank you all.

PUBLICITY AND PROMOTION

SANDWICH BOARDS

Objective: To promote SRP
Materials: Cardboard or posterboard, paint, markers
Description of Activity:

No circus is complete without sandwich boards for advertising! Make the boards in different colors and circus shapes -- tents, elephants, clowns, magician hats -- and let the schools help you advertise. Media specialists, principals, or classroom teachers could assist by choosing kids to wear the boards during recess and lunch periods the last week or two of school, or the principal and media specialist might wear boards themselves.

An easy way to make sandwich boards is with poster board. Draw the shape, add the message on two 22" x 24" pieces. Laminate them then attach at the shoulders with fat puffy yarn or very soft rope. Punch holes to pass the yarn etc. through. Reinforce the holes with strapping tape. Provide the sandwich board wearers with some kind of pad or cushion so the rope doesn’t cut into their shoulders.

SCHOOL PROMOTION

Objective: To promote the summer reading program
Materials: Costumes
Description of Activity:

Dress up as a circus character or animal when you go to schools to promote the summer reading program. You could be the ringmaster, a dancing bear, a clown, etc. Children will remember your theme and be much more excited if they see your enthusiasm!

This would also be a wonderful idea for the first day (registration) of the program. Staff at the library could dress as various circus characters to get the children enthused about your program. (The Scottsbluff Public Library staff dressed as "pig characters" during GO HOG WILD and the community loved it!)

PROMOTIONAL SLOGANS

Objective: To promote the summer reading program
Description of Activity:

Use these circus phrases for decorating, promoting upcoming events, writing press releases and newsletters, etc.

1. Here's a peek at what's coming up...(tent with person peeking in).
2. Step right up to...
3. Books "in the ring" this week.
4. Come monkey around at the library.
5. Come one, come all...
6. Ladies and Gentlemen, Boys and Girls...
7. The Main Event is... (or Mane)
8. The Library is more fun than a barrel of monkeys.
9. Take a swing through our books.

PRE-REGISTRATION

Objective: To ease registration on the first day
Description of Activity:

For the last several years we have had a pre-registration system for reading club membership. This really helps ease the rush on the first day of reading club. The number of children who pre-register has increased each year as word gets around.

We begin our pre-registration during the middle of May. This is when posters go up around town and advertising begins. We pre-register members until the first Thursday in June, which is when our reading club begins. (Members who register early don't start reading for club until the first day along with everyone else.)

On opening day, each person checks in with their librarian to receive their book bags and material. Everyone receives a name tag. We have three special name tags denoting various things: one is for pre-registered children, one is for new registrants, and one is for children who need to get a library card signed before they can begin.

At check out time, the librarian can tell at a glance the status of each member who is checking out.

Last year 98 of our 150 members were pre-registered. This saved us a lot of time on opening day.

CIRCUS CALENDARS

Objective: To notify kids and parents of upcoming events
Materials: Paper, copy machine
Description of Activity:

Decorate the blank calendars in the Planning Manual with circus items and hand them out to the children on the first day so they know all of the events and programs in advance.

POSTERS

Objective: To make 1987 SRP "famous"!
Materials: Local Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Campfire Kids
Description of Activity:

Contact local leaders and ask their troops to design and make brightly colored posters to publicize SRP. Give them basic details as to theme, place, and beginning and ending dates. Other than these basics, encourage their imaginations to have free reign. I did this last year and it was great!

CIRCUS FILM FESTIVAL

Objective: To lure children into the library
Materials: Colored posterboard, small bags, popcorn, salt, movie, and projector
Description of Activity:

Make tickets to "The Greatest Show of All" -- ask permission to include them in report cards on the last day of school. Tickets are good for admission to a film festival held on the evening of the last day of school, and a small bag of popcorn. Sign kids up for SRP before and after the movie. (It would be great if a movie with a circus theme could be used.)

Cost: Approximately $10.00

ENCOURAGING PARENT INVOLVEMENT

Objective: To involve parents in SRP
Materials: Copy machine
Description of Activity:

Send flyers to parents telling what is happening at Summer Reading Club. Follow up with additional flyers throughout the summer offering tips on reading or children's books. In This Way to Books, by Caroline Feller Bauer, there are activities and suggestions for a preschool parent program on pages 127-139.

Cost: Dollars for paper and copy machine should be available at library

PUBLICITY AND PROMOTION

Would the Shrine Circus, as a promotion for its own circus, sponsor a drawing with the winning child getting a tour of the circus with a performer as the host? Might the Shriners let the library give away tickets to our readers? We will, of course, invite the Shrine Clowns to some of your programs.

Using either marshmallows peanuts or the real thing, fill a jar and let youngsters guess the number.

LITTLE BEAR AND THE PAPAGINI CIRCUS

Target Audience: Preschool to Grade 3
Recommended Size of Group: 10-12
Objective: To bring the story to life by making and manipulating Little Bear
Materials: Paper, crayons, markers
Book: Little Bear and the Papagini Circus, Margaret Greaves

Description of Activity:

Storyline - Little Bear feels left out of the family performance but then gets to join in, in a surprising way.

Use bear shape to make a finger puppet -- either cut out holes or wrap around. Then children can decorate the bear to be in the circus and perform.

CIRCUS POEMS

Book: Circus Circus! poems selected by Lee Bennett Hopkins, Knopf, 1982

Description of Activity:

1. Select poems and let the kids illustrate them. Prizes can be awarded or illustrations could be used for display or placed in booklets with appropriate verses or lines underneath.

2. Copy poems on brightly colored posterboard and place them around appropriate circus animals and stars.

3. Share poetry and then let the kids write their own. For pointers on stimulating kids to write poetry, individually or as a group, refer to Wishes, Lies and Dreams: Teaching Children to Write Poetry, Kenneth Koch et al; Harper Row, 1980; Pb - $3.50, ISBN 0-06080-530-7.

CIRCUS ANIMAL CRACKERS

Recommended Size of Group: 10-15

Books: Cookbooks to tie into the program idea

Description of Activity:

If you have the facilities, make these with the children after reading If I Ran the Circus, Dr. Seuss; Bearymore, Don Freeman, or another circus book featuring animals.

Circus Animal Crackers

1 cup all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 cup freshly grated cheddar cheese (1-1/2 oz.)
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
5 to 6 tablespoons water
1 T. honey
2 T. sugar
1/2 t. vanilla

In a mixing bowl combine flour, salt, baking powder, sugar and cheese. Cut in butter or margarine with a pastry blender or fork until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add honey and vanilla. Add water, 1 tablespoon at a time, until dough holds together. Preheat oven to 300 F. (150 C.). Roll out dough on a lightly floured surface to 1/8-inch thick. Cut into animal shapes with 2-inch cookie cutters. Put on an ungreased baking sheet. Bake until lightly browned and crisp, 12 to 15 minutes. Remove crackers to a cooling rack. Store completely cooled crackers in an airtight container. Makes about 30.

Finish by singing "I Went to the Animal Fair."

ICE CREAM PUPPET SHOW

Target Audience: Preschool, older children with follow-up activities
Recommended Size of Group: 15-20
Theme: "Ice Cream Month"
Materials: Flannel board, magic markers
Book: Original story
Description of Activity:

Make paper puppets on posterboard. Affix small velcro stapled to back of puppets. Carpet piece that can be mounted on board will work as flannel board. (Also use glob of brown construction paper for melted chocolate sauce --- or use brown felt.) (Reverse swimming pool for mountain of ice cream.) (For puppet of Little Girl, use puppet pattern from Booky's Lost Dog.) This could go into a puppet packet for an Ice Cream theme. Follow-up for older children might be a group activity making ice cream the modern (or semi-modern) way -- in a hand turned ice cream bucket. Or inventing new and unusual ice cream flavors. Give kids outlines of ice cream cones on which to picture their new flavor. Label them and mount as poster. You may send it to Baskin Robbins to be hung.

ICE CREAM
by Joan Chesley

Once upon a time very long ago before your mother was born, or even your great-great-great grandmother, there was a small town near a large city and between them was a bridge. On one side of the bridge, the road went to the merry little town of Stonesbridge. The city of Hightowers lay on the other side of the bridge. The people of Stonesbridge loved to go to the city of Hightowers for movies, to shop or to buy pizza. The people of Hightowers were always happy to see the Stonesbridge folk for the Stonesbridge people were so friendly.

Things went along in this fashion for many years until one sad day when a horrible ugly giant decided to make his cabin under the bridge.

The friendly folk from Stonesbridge didn't care if the giant lived under the bridge, until they tried to go to Hightowers for some groceries one day.

The giant hopped up on the bridge screaming in his loud raspy voice, "Stop!
Stop! Tromping over my bridge gives me a headache, and I want you to stop crossing my bridge this minute!"

The Stonesbridge people were very surprised and unhappy, for they had crossed this bridge for years and years, and besides they were out of groceries.

The mayor of Stonesbridge, his voice quivering with fear, said, "Ahem, Mr Giant. We understand about your headache. We get them too sometimes. But if we bring you something to stop your headache, then may we cross the bridge?"

The giant thought for a minute and then he roared, "You'll never ever find what makes my headache go away. It needs to be as tall as a mountain, as cold as ice and as hot as the sun!!"

All the Stonesbridge people thought and thought. Finally the mayor remembered his grandmother's recipe for curing headaches. "Maybe, just maybe," he thought.
"This might be the trick."

The mayor said, "We must feed our cows the best grass so they will give us good rich milk."

So the Stonesbridge people took their cows to the softest, greenest pasture, where the cows ate sweet grass mixed with clover and alfalfa, until those cows just couldn't eat one more blade of grass.

For dessert, the Stonesbridge people gave their cows some corn, some oats, some molasses and sparkling cool water to drink. The cows lay down in their straw and began to chew their cud.

When milking time came that night, the Stonesbridge people were happy to see the good creamy milk the cows gave.
"The next step," said the mayor, "is to find fresh eggs, shiny white sugar and cold sparkling snow."

"Snow!" the Stonesbridge people cried. "Where will we find snow in the middle of summer?"

"I know!" a little girl shouted. "I saw some snow up on the mountain!"

So the girl and several of her friends climbed the mountain to get some snow. In the meantime the Stonesbridge people took the creamy milk and the eggs and the sugar and all the good things they could think of and mixed them all up together. They put the creamy milk mixture into a large swimming pool and piled the snow from the mountains all around the pool.

Then they went to bed. The mayor and the little girl stayed up because they were too excited to sleep and every once in awhile they stirred the creamy mix, and tasted, and added more snow and stirred and tasted some more. After awhile even the mayor and the little girl fell asleep, sitting there stirring and tasting.

When everyone woke up, they ran to look at what was in the pool. They caught their breath and gasped, for the creamy mix was as hard and as cold as ice.

Then the Stonesbridge people took all the candy bars that they had, even those that the mothers had hidden from their children, and the ones in the top cabinets, and candy bars from the lunch pails and the candy bars from the candy machines and even the candy bars from the children's pockets and everywhere else they could think of. They took all these candy bars and melted them over a huge fire until the chocolate was very hot, about as hot as the sun.

"Now, we are ready," said the mayor with a secret smile.

So the Stonesbridge people took the cold creamy mix and piled it in their wagons, and in their pickups, and in anything they could carry. And they took it to the bridge while the giant was sleeping.

Then the Stonesbridge people put the melted candy bars in their wagons, and in their pickups, and in anything they could carry and they hurried so the cold creamy mix wouldn't melt and the hot candy bar mix wouldn't freeze.

The people piled all the cold creamy mix onto a very tall pile about as tall as a mountain.

Then the mayor put up a tall ladder against the mountain of icy cold cream and he began to pour the hot brown chocolate over the top.

"Come, quickly," the Stonesbridge people called to the giant. "See this mountain as cold as ice and as hot as the sun!"

Rubbing his eyes in disbelief, the giant came out from under the bridge. There he saw a white mountain cold as ice covered with brown chocolate sauce as hot as the sun!
The giant took one look at this strange mountain and he began to laugh. He laughed and laughed until tears rolled down from his eyes. He laughed until the mayor and the little girl and all the people from Stonesbridge were laughing with him.

"Go to Hightowers," the giant roared in his laughing way, "and let me eat this strange white mountain that is as cold as ice and as hot as the sun."

It seems the new food seemed to change the giant. From that day on, he didn't seem to look so ugly (maybe because he had a smile?), he didn't get headaches (maybe because now he was happy?) and he let the Stonesbridge people go to Hightowers anytime they needed pizza or groceries or if they wanted to go to a movie.

The giant even thought of a name for the new food. He called the white stuff Ice Cream and we can eat it today.
When cut out, the model will look like the drawing below.

ELMER: THE STORY OF A PATCHWORK ELEPHANT WITH FOLLOW-UP

Recommended Size of Group: 10-12
Objective: To explore whether it is better to feel like everyone else or different Book: Elmer, The Story of a Patchwork Elephant, David McKee

Description of Activity:

Storyline -- Elmer is different from all the other elephants, but finds out it's OK to be yourself.

After sharing the story, each child creates her/his own colorful elephant to make Elmer feel more like a member of a group. The result could be displayed for a week or sent home immediately. If time did not permit coloring could be done instead.

Janie's Birthday

Janie's birthday was really in December, in fact it was the day after Christmas. But Janie's mother always let her and her brother Mike have a Half-Birthday six months after their real birthday.

It was June and Janie's mother said for her Half-Birthday, Janie could have one wish.

Janie went to the Toy Stores and looked and looked at the stuffed animals. She saw the Teddy Ruxpins and thought to herself, "Maybe I'll wish for a Teddy Ruxpin. What a soft cuddly friend he would be, and I could sleep with him and talk to him."

Then Janie saw the Pound Puppies and thought how cute and wrinkly they were. She could wish for a Pound Puppy.

The stuffed giraffes and the dinosaurs would be fun to have in her room. She could have fun with a wish like that. But she just couldn't decide.

Then Janie went to her friend, Patrick's, house. Patrick had a new tree house with a real carpet and a sleeping bag for summer nights. The tree house would be a good hiding place for Janie. But she just couldn't decide.

Janie went to Jennifer's house. Jennifer had a new kitten. Butterball was orange and grey with white and he was very fluffy. Best of all Butterball purred a lot and loved to be petted. Butterball liked to chase a marble across the floor and he made Jennifer and Janie laugh. Butterball bounced up and down the stairs with his catnip mouse. A kitten like Butterball would be a fun wish, but Janie just couldn't decide.

Janie saw her friend Shelly on her new Big Wheel. Rumble Rumble went the Big Wheel down the sidewalk. A Big Wheel would be fun to ride, and it was good and noisy too. A Big Wheel would be a fun wish to have, but Janie just couldn't decide.

Then Janie heard a "Ring Ring". The Ice Cream Wagon was coming her way! The Ice Cream Wagon had 34 flavors, including Bubble Gum and Strawberry Sparkle. An Ice Cream cone would be a tasty wish for Janie, but she just couldn't decide.

Janie waited one day then another and she just couldn't decide what she wanted for her Half-Birthday.

When Janie's Grandmother Smith stopped by, she said, "Janie, I'll buy you a new red dress with ruffles and pretty ribbons for your wish."

Janie thought how pretty she would look in a red dress with ruffles and ribbons, and maybe even some pockets to hold secret surprises. Janie thought a red dress would be a lovely wish but she just couldn't decide.
More days went by, and one day Janie's mother and daddy took Janie on their laps and whispered into her ear that very soon Janie's mother would go to the hospital. When she came home she would bring a new baby.

Janie thought and thought. "Will I be able to talk to the baby?" Janie asked. "Oh, yes," said Janie's mother. "Babies like someone to talk to them."

"Will I be able to cuddle the new baby, and hold the new baby?" Janie wondered.

Janie's daddy thought the baby would need lots of cuddling from a bigger sister. The new baby would also need baths, and food, and soft clean clothes. The new baby will need toys and music, and a bed to sleep in. But most of all, the new baby would need love.

All of a sudden, Janie knew she was getting her best wish! She knew a new baby was what she wanted more than a Teddy Ruxpin or a Pound Puppy, more than a kitten or a tree house, even more than an ice cream cone or a Big Wheel which was really too babyish for a big sister to ride anyway. She wanted a new baby even more than she wanted a new red dress! A new baby was the best wish of all!

One ran away and then there were three:  (hold up three fingers)
Three huge elephants walking like they do:  (bend three fingers up and down)
One stayed behind and then there were two:  (hold up two fingers)
Two huge elephants having such fun:  (move two fingers back and forth)
One got tired and then there was one:  (hold up one finger)
One huge elephant stretched out in the sun:  (lay one finger across other hand)
His trainer came and got him and then there were none:  (make a zero with fingers)

Read or tell story:   HONEY PHANTS AND ELEBEES

Song:   Did You Ever See an Elephant?
Tune:   Did You Ever See a Lassie?

(perform actions as words suggest)

Did you ever see an elephant, elephant, elephant?
Did you ever see an elephant walking like this?

Walk this way and that way and this way and that way.
Did you ever see an elephant walking like this.

Did you ever see an elephant, elephant, elephant?
Did you ever see an elephant, swinging his trunk?

It swings this way and that way and this way and that way.
Did you ever see an elephant swinging his trunk?
Did you ever see an elephant, elephant, elephant?
Did you ever see an elephant waving his ears?

Did you ever see an elephant, elephant, elephant?
Did you ever see an elephant looking for nuts?

Another story or poem if time permits and if not --

CRAFT TIME!!

The elephants and the ears would need to be precut for pre-schoolers but the older children would enjoy cutting their own and with just one dab of glue the ears could be attached and then the feet are stuck into a large gumdrop which serves as a craft project as well as a treat.

POPCORN DAY

Target Audience: K-4
Recommended Size of Group: 15+
Objective: To feature a popular circus snack
Book: Popcorn Day

1) Serve popcorn all day. Many banks or local businesses have popcorn machines they may loan you. Many areas have local popcorn processors who may donate.

2) Popcorn stories -
   - Popcorn & Ma Goodness, Edna Mitchell Preston
   - Popcorn, Frank Asch
   - Popcorn Book, Tomie dePaola
   - I Love Popcorn, Carolyn Hall
   - Popcorn Dragon, Catherine Woolley
   - Mr. Picklepaw's Popcorn, Ruth Adams
   - It Pops! It Pops! from Storytelling with the Flannel Board, Book III, Denison, 1983

3) Popcorn crafts (found in many craft books) if you need specifics -- let me know.
   Example: popcorn pictures on dark paper could be done in a session or all day long

4) Contest -- bring in your best popcorn recipe with sample. Prizes for most tasty, unusual, popcorn ball creations, etc.

   Grand Island Public Library

Have a cooking program and make microwave popcorn and caramel corn cracker jacks. You could do a whole popcorn storyline using popcorn recipes, stories about how we learned about popcorn from the Indians and the book Popcorn by Frank Asch.

Serve traditional circus treats at an end-of-summer circus party -- peanuts, popcorn, cracker jacks, ice cream bars, hot dogs, cotton candy, animal cookies.

CHALKTALK

Target Audience: Preschool, primary
Materials: Chalk and chalkboard or overhead projector and flair or erasable board and markers
Description of Activity:

I remember when the CIRCUS WAGON came to our town. It was a nice, SUNNY day. There may have been a CLOUD or two in the sky, but not even the rain could have kept me from watching. The wagons rolled in carrying all kinds of animals.

Many PEOPLE gathered to watch the trainers unload. First they set up a TENT for the animals to go into. I heard some of the circus people call it the big top and I could see why. The tent was bigger than any I had ever seen! The men and women drove STAKES into the ground. That was so the wind couldn’t blow it over. Then they stretched a WIRE across from one side to the other. After the canvas was put into place the tent was ready for the animals to enter.

The head TRAINER came out of the TENT. They were ready to unload the animals! First they unloaded the camels. I knew what they were from the HUMPS on their backs. Next the lions came out with their great SHAGGY MANES. I was a bit frightened by them. They let out terrible roars and they looked hungry!

Then the last animals came down the ramp and I couldn’t help but SMILE. They were so funny.

Can you guess what animals came last?

What is worse than a circus centipede with sore feet?
- a circus giraffe with a sore throat

What is worse than a circus giraffe with a sore throat?
- a circus turtle with claustrophobia

What is worse than a circus turtle with claustrophobia?
- a circus elephant with hay fever

What happened to the girl who ran away with the circus?
- The police made her bring it back.

Why is it cool inside the circus auditorium?
- because there is a fan in every seat.

When is a trapeze artist all washed up?
- after a bath

What do you call a lion tamer who sticks his right arm down a lion's throat?
- Lefty

How did the girl acrobat feel about her new boyfriend?
- She flipped over him.

When an acrobat falls off a trapeze, what does he fall against?
- his will.

What's the hardest thing about learning to walk a tightrope?
- the floor of the circus tent.

What does a sword swallowing on a diet eat?
- pins and needles

Why is the circus performer who was shot out of a cannon not working anymore?
- because he was fired

Would you rather the circus elephant attacked you or the circus gorilla?
- I'd rather he attacked the gorilla.

Why did the circus band have bad manners?
- because it didn't know how to conduct itself.

Why do the circus lions eat raw meat?
- because they don't know how to cook

Why shouldn't you grab the circus lion's tail?
- It may only be his tail, but it could be your end.

What did the circus leopard say when he swallowed his trainer?
- that hit the spot

What do you get when you cross a circus lion and a parrot?
I don't know, but if it wants a cracker, you'd better give it one.

STORY PROGRAM

Target Audience: K-4
Recommended Size of Group: 15-20
Description of Activity:

Write or draw on their feelings. Get them to write their own ideas down. For the little ones, to draw what they feel. Paper for the play, what they have around and learn to improvise.

Two page short stories that could be read. I have found these in the magazine "Highlights."

"How the Clowns Came to Earth," by William A. Davis (February 1980)
"Kolo, the Unfunny Clown," by Elaine Campbell Smith (October 1978)
"Just Clowning Around" by Meredith Browne (January 1978)
"Cinnamon & Jasper" by Judith A. Enderle (January 1982)
"Learning - Elephant, Mr. Lincoln?" by Jerry Cassidy (February 1982)
"Jumbo King of the Circus" by D.A. Woodliff (June/July 1980)
"Barley, Oats & J. Symington Smyths" by Addie Adam (February 1977)
"Circus Days Under the Big Top" by Richard Glendinning -- book
"Small Clown" by Nancy Faulkner

Action Rhyme
Being in the circus is the wish for the day
Come with me and play for today.

Steady now as you walk the tightrope,
Be a clown; Now don't you frown.

Now bend down and walk like an elephant and turn around.

Jump through hoops one, two, three.
Through the tunnel now you are free.

Writing a Story
Another activity for the older children would be have the children write a story of their own with them being part of the circus that came to their town. They could pretend to be anything pertaining to the life of the circus for a day. If possible, have one or two printed in the newspaper. The little ones could draw a picture pertaining to the circus, what it means to them.
Dramatization
Another idea would be if you pretty much have the same children for story hour, see if a short skit could be enacted. For example, give the children an acting role; the ones who are not shy, perhaps speaking parts as they go. The quiet child may be an animal part. As an example a lion tamer and the lion. Let the lion tamer make up as he goes and hopefully the lion will do th same. Same with clowns, trapeze, tightrope; have a rope on the floor as a prop. This will be different each time they give it. If you can, put this on for their parents and it would be nice for senior citizens. An extra, have a child pretending to sell popcorn through the skit. Have real popcorn.

ORIGINAL STORY: "ANNIE'S MAGIC" WITH PROP

Target Audience: Preschool storytime
Recommended Size of Group: 15-20
Objective: To tell a story exploring the emotion of anger
Materials: Paper plate, magic markers, glue tongue depressor
Description of Activity:

- Joan Chesley
North Bend Public Library
Mrs Sully was tall and skinny. Her brownish hair was kinky and short. The people in Homestead where she lived could never remember seeing Mrs Sully smile. Even Mrs Sully's mouth seemed to forget how to smile.

Mrs Sully was one of those people who was very particular about everything. One of the things Mrs Sully was most particular about was getting up early in the morning.

"Sleeping late is an abomination!" Mrs Sully would say as she set her alarm clock for six o'clock sharp. And at six o'clock sharp, Mrs Sully put her bony feet into her threadbare practical slippers and she began to make her bed.

"Sloppy beds make sloppy people," she would always say.

Then Mrs Sully would pull down all of the shades in her house so the sun would not shine in. "Too much sunlight slows down your work." Mrs Sully would say.

Mrs Sully always started her day by washing her entire kitchen, then scrubbing her windows, then washing her sidewalk all the way to the curb.

"Dirty sidewalks make sloppy kitchens!" Mrs Sully would say.

After she ate her breakfast of dry burnt toast (Buttered toast makes your teeth weak," she would always say) and her hot black coffee, Mrs Sully would clean the rest of her house until it was as clean and as bare and as cheerless as she was.

By eight o'clock Mrs Sully would have her entire house spotless and she hurried outside to keep an eye on the children as they walked to school.

Mrs Sully didn't trust the neighbor children at all. They laughed and chattered entirely too much.

"Too much laughing wastes your day," Mrs Sully was heard to complain.

The neighbors were always chattering and laughing. They even laughed before breakfast although Mrs Sully couldn't imagine why anyone would want to laugh before breakfast!

This particular morning Nina and Annie were hurrying along in their house next to Mrs Sully's. Annie always had one more trick to play on her sister or her little brother Nick.

"Hurry, hurry," warned their mother. "You don't want to be late for school."

But Mrs Sully was watching and waiting. She knew that Nina and Annie would play around until they were almost out of time. Then they would hurry to get to school and they would run across their yard into her yard for a short cut, and they would step on her grass!!
But this morning Mrs Sully was waiting for them.
When chubby little Annie took one step on Mrs Sully's grass, she stomped out with her broom and waved it at Annie.
"Get off my lawn!! I saw you this time!! Git, git git!!" Mrs Sully shrieked.
Annie became so frightened she swung around and ran right over Nina who was behind her. Nina fell down and dropped her new lunch bucket on the grass.
Swat! Swat! Swat! went the broom and Nina jumped up and ran back home, leaving her lunch bucket behind.
Mrs Sully picked up the blue and pink lunch pail. "Hmph!" she snorted.
"What an awful looking disgusting thing to carry food in!"
And she picked up Nina's lunch pail with two fingers and she carried the pail into her house.
Mrs Sully sat in her hard kitchen chair, ("Soft chairs make soft minds," so she would always say) and thought and thought. She didn't have anything to do. She had cleaned her house and scrubbed her dishes and laundered her clothes and clipped her grass until everything that could be done was done, and her house was clean and bare.
Outside she heard the neighbor on the other side of her house whistling as she went to work. Mrs Sully didn't like too much whistling so she didn't like that neighbor either. "Too much whistling makes mushy teeth," she would always say.
The neighbor across the street kissed her children good-by and gave the baby sitter some last minute directions. "You can give the children some ice cream for dessert," she told the sitter.
"Too much ice cream makes a cold tongue," Mrs Sully grunted. Mrs Sully didn't like that neighbor either.
Tap, Tap, Tap. Mrs Sully tapped her foot.
She looked over and saw the only thing in her neat spotless bare house that was out of place. Nina's lunchbox!!
Now Mrs Sully just couldn't stand anything being out of place. "Everything in its place," she always said.
But that blue and pink lunchbox was on her table--the only thing on her spotless bare white table!
"I'll just throw it away," she grumped. "Teach her to leave her lunch box just laying around in other people's yards!"
But when she opened the lunch box with the cute little pink and blue horses all over the lid, she saw a smallish green bottle. A tiny label on the bottle said DRINK THIS.
Now Mrs Sully believed in one thing above everything—and that was FOLLOW THE DIRECTIONS. So without even thinking she picked up the bottle and drank it down in one gasp.

I don't know what was in that green bottle in Nina’s lunchbox, maybe it was another of Annie’s tricks. Or maybe there was just so much happiness in Nina and Annie's house that the happiness got into all of the food they ate.

Whatever it was, Mrs Sully felt tingly, then shaky, then very very strange. She felt her tight lips start to quiver and turn up into a sort of smile. She felt her eye brows relax and come up from over her eyes in their usual frown. Even her teeth stopped their clenching.

Whatever was happening? Mrs Sully couldn't imagine. But she felt like eating peanut butter cookies!!

...and cotton candy!!

...and hot dogs!!

Before she could stop herself she ran outside and cut some lovely roses from a bush and put them on her table in a vase. She opened the windows and smiled at the sun. And then, surprise of all surprises, she found some peanut butter and some flour and some sugar and she made some delicious brown peanut butter cookies.

The wonderful smell of the cookies made her so happy, she danced around the kitchen table and since she didn't have anyone to dance with, she danced with her broom!!

She giggled when she noticed the baby sitter across the street with the little children and she ran over across the street with some fresh cookies.

All afternoon she sang and whistled and laughed at jokes she told herself.

When Nina and Annie came home from school they were very careful not to step on Mrs Sully's grass, but Mrs Sully was waiting for them with a strange look on her face. They had never seen a smile on her face so they didn't know what it looked like.

"Come quick and help me eat my good cookies" she called to them.

Nina and Annie didn't know what happened to their crabby ugly neighbor but from then on, Mrs Sully was the happiest person on the block.

All the children loved her cookies and her stories, and the neighbors said Mrs Sully had more birds singing in her yard and more butterflies fluttering in her flowers than anyone else on the block.

And if you ever ask Annie what she put in Nina's lunchbox that day, she'll smile very mysteriously and wink, but she'll never tell.
Paper Plate Mrs Sully

Need:
1. Paper plate
2. Magic markers
3. Tongue depressor/craft stick
4. Glue

Paint one side of paper plate as crabby Mrs. Sully
- Use paper ribbon curled by scissors for hair.
- Cut out eyes
- Glue on stick

Paint the other side of paper plate as happy Mrs Sully

Reverse the plate as Mrs Sully changes

If you can, find real props for the rest of the story
Lunch box, cookie, green bottle, small broom Target Audience: Preschool
Recommended Size of Group: 15-20
Objective: Theme: "Lost -- To Explore a Universal Children's Fear"
Materials: Velcro for backs of characters, magic markers, flannel board or other board
Book: Original story
Description of Activity:

Use the story with the theme (Lost). Either copy the pictures on poster board or heavy paper. A circle of velcro on the back will affix them to a background of carpet samples stapled to cardboard. (A large cardboard box would probably have the most stability.) Pictures could be colored by children after the story.

LOST
by Joan Chesley

Bocky was a sad clown. His eyes had huge tears and he wailed and cried. Bocky was sad because his dog was missing. Dot-Dot was a funny dog with black spots all over his body. But Dot-Dot did not come when Bocky called.

Bocky walked down the street calling, "Dot-Dot. Dot-Dot. Where are you?" But no one came.

Then Bocky heard a funny noise. He looked up into the tree and saw a furry brown squirrel. The squirrel looked very angry.

"Ch-Ch-Ch-Ch", said the squirrel. "Don't wake my babies! They just want to sleep and if they wake up, I will have to watch them so they don't cross the street." Bocky said in a very quiet voice so the squirrel babies wouldn't wake up, "Have you seen a funny black and white spotted dog named Dot-Dot?"

But the mother squirrel was so nervous she couldn't do anything but chatter and she would not tell Bocky where Dot-Dot was.

So Bocky walked on down the street. He came upon a fat brown bird with an orange apron. The bird was pulling and pulling on a fat worm trying to get the worm out of the ground. The worm was frantically trying to stay in the ground.

Bocky was sure that the robin had seen Dot-Dot. "Have you seen my funny black and white spotted dog with a blue collar?"

The robin did not want to let go of the worm, so all he could say was, "Hm, Hm, Hm." "Hm, Hm, Hm."

"What did you say?" asked Bocky. "Are you trying to tell me that you saw my funny black and white spotted dog with a blue collar?"

But the robin could not answer so Bocky had to walk on down the street.

Shortly Bocky saw a fuzzy white tail bobbing in the bushes. It was White Tail the Rabbit. White Tail hopped all over the neighborhood and he always knew where all the neighborhood dogs were.

Bocky was excited. "White Tail, did you see my funny black and white spotted dog with a blue collar and a curly tail?"

White Tail heard the word DOG and he bounced off into the bushes."I hate dogs!" the frantic rabbit called back.

"Oh, dear," cried Bocky. "I'll never find my Dot-Dot."

Bocky looked up just then and right in front of him was a brown and white dog named Lady. Lady was a good friend to Dot-Dot. The two dogs liked to watch TV together to catch the dog commercials.

Bocky was so happy to see Lady. "Lady, tell me please, did you see my funny black and white spotted dog with a blue collar and a curly tail that answers to the name of Dot-Dot?"
But Lady had spotted a fuzzy white tail bobbing in the bushes and she knew who that fuzzy tail belonged to.

"Arf, Arf, Arf, Arf," she answered as she raced away after White Tail.

Booky trudged along sadly. He just knew Dot-Dot was gone. If only someone would tell him where the little pup had gone.

As Booky walked down the street he saw his good friend, Clara. Clara was bouncing a superball against the side of the garage and catching it with one hand.

Thump. Plop. Thump. Plop. Thump. Plop. Clara was so busy watching her ball she didn't want to look up. But she was a good friend and she didn't like to see her friend feel so sad.

"Oh, Clara, have you seen my funny black and white spotted dog with a blue collar and a curly tail who answers to the name Dot-Dot and always comes when I whistle?" cried Booky.

Clara stopped bouncing her superball and locked Booky right in the eye.

"Booky," she said, "Your silly dog is around the corner barking at a street cleaning machine."

Booky ran right off, but he remembered to yell, "Thank you, Clara!"

Sure enough, there was a big orange monster of a machine with small brown wheels and a dirty brush of a mustache near the curb. And barking and barking next to that street cleaner was a funny black and white dog with a blue collar and a curly tail who answered to the name Dot-Dot and always came when Booky whistled.

Booky put his fingers into his mouth and let go with a loud "Tweeeet." Dot-Dot stopped barking when he heard the whistle. The orange monster with the whiskers didn't look so scary to Dot-Dot anymore. With one happy YIP, Dot-Dot scampered over to Booky who took that naughty black and white dog home to eat his supper.

ORIGINAL STORY
THE THREE CIRCUS GOATS

Target Audience: Preschool-Primary (This story could also be used with older children -- see description)
Objective: To share a humorous original story

Description of Activity:

Flannel characters, at least for the three goats, would work well with this story. As a follow-up activity, children might design the clown costume for their favorite goat. Give them a "paper-doll" goat to draw around and when the costumes are completed, display them on the flannel board characters.

For older children - grades 3-5 - share the story (be sure to tell it, not read it for best effect) stressing that it is a made-up story by a librarian like you. To extend the story experience: 1) stop in the middle, ask children how they would end it; 2) develop a group story about further adventures of the comical goats; 3) write limericks about the goats -- in pairs, small groups or individually. Begin by modelling limerick writing before they write on their own.

Examples:

There once were three goats with ambition
Who felt that the circus tradition
Would suit them quite well
But their acts didn't jell
Still they were a fine comic addition.

or

Once there were three silly goats
Who yearned for pink tights and circus coats
The acts were a mess
In spite of their dress (add last line)

or

There once were three goats from LeMars
Who wanted to be Circus Stars
They failed that day
But folks laughed anyway
Said, "Goat clowns are funnier by far."
Once upon a time there were three goats who wanted to gain their fame by joining the circus. They were talented goats and each had a special thing that they could do better than anyone.

The youngest goat, named Gary, wanted to play the saxophone in the circus band. He was a very good saxophone player because he practiced every chance he had.

The oldest goat, named Gilda, was a marvelous knife thrower. She loved to play darts as a child and out of this love came the incredible skill of accurately hurling a knife and hitting any target she chose to hit.

The middle goat, named Grady, thought she would like to be a lion tamer. She always stood her ground, and although there were no lions where they lived, she felt she would be very good at the profession.

These three goats lived in a cool green meadow where they romped and dreamed of the day when they might have a chance to join with the circus. The day finally came when the distant rumblings of circus wagons, trumpeting elephants and roaring lions could be heard across the grassy plains.

Well, the three goats auditioned for the circus and each got the part that they wished for; They thought their dreams had come true. But on opening night, the three goats were a bundle of nerves. Gary thought the band was so big and good, what if he made a mistake and everyone heard it?! And Gilda had always thrown her knives at leaves and trees, never at balloons around a living animal, what if she missed! And Grady sure did not want to become the main course for those fierce lions.
Grady was the first to perform. She crept into the lions’ cage inch by inch holding her chair in front of her knocking knees. The lions looked at her with interest. Before she knew it the ring master gave her a push, to hurry the act along, and she went flying right into the middle of the big cats. She tripped over her chair and the biggest lion gave a tremendous roar.

Gary let out a honk on his saxophone and ran down to the cage just as Gilda was letting a knife fly through the air. The knife struck Gary’s saxophone, which he promptly dropped on his hoof. The lions turned to watch the commotion and Grady crawled out of the cage to hear the audience laughing as loud as they could.

Well as you can imagine the 3 goats were a hit. Not in the way they had hoped, but as a troupe of clowns!

Maybe one day they will perform in your town, but if they do, do not let them ‘get your goat’ or the joke will be on you!
CIRCUS SING-ALONG

Target Audience: School-aged children
Recommended Size of Group: Any size
Objective: To appreciate traditional circus songs and to create original verses
Materials: Song sheets with words to the songs Book: Crash! Bang! Boom!

Description of Activity:

Have a circus sing-along and use some of the following songs.

I Went to the Animal Fair
The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze
Send in the Clowns
And the Band Played On
B-I-N-G-O

(Substitute "There was a circus had a dog" for "There was a farmer had a dog")

To the tune of "Mary Had a Little Lamb" make up verses about circus performers. For example: list circus characters on a poster, sing about one of them and then have the kids make up verses about the others.

Funny clowns are laughing, laughing, laughing
Funny clowns are laughing at their silly jokes

The strong man is lifting weights, lifting weights, lifting weights
The strong man is lifting weights, Oops he just fell down

Conclude with a calliope record to demonstrate traditional circus music. You might use it for a rousing finale of musical chairs.

PROGRAMS

A lady in our community raises unusual birds: turkeys, peacocks, guinea fowl, silkie, etc. We hope to feature Birds in Our Bigtop but, of course, any combination of animals could be used for such an event.

We hope to sponsor a seminar on juggling so youngsters can learn the principles of this fun skill. They'll need to bring their own supplies, preferably three small, matched balls.

Plan a parade and distribute a kazoo to each child. (See Oriental Trading Co. - 72 for $3.00) "Play" such wonderful circus pieces as "The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze," "Here Come the Clowns," or "Abba Dabba Honeymoon." This would be fun as an entry in your town's Shrine Circus parade. Otherwise, parade at - and through - the library. The older patrons will love it. Also a kazoo would be attractive to take out to schools in the spring to whistle up interest in the program.

PROGRAM

PROGRAM KICKOFF: BALLOON DAY

Book: May correlate with Henri Mouse, the Juggler by George Mendoza or another balloon book. (see list)

Description of Activity:

1. Offer helium-filled balloons to all who register or check out books on this day. (Balloons from SRP)

2. Have a balloon sculpture demonstration and let the kids try making their balloon figures.

3. Balloon craft activities. In various books, eg. paper plate puppet with balloon nose.

4. Stories: The Moon and the Balloon, Mike Thaler

Georgia and the Runaway Balloon, Robert Bright

The Highest Balloon on the Common, Donald Carrick

Red Balloon, Albert Lamorisse

I Don't Care, Marjorie Sharmat

Benjamins Balloon's, Janet Quin Harkin

5. Have a balloon launch. Attach cards with them identified as part of Nebraska Summer Reading Program. Make copies of the Hello! note for children to fill out and insert in their balloons. Children who wish to may write their own notes to send in the balloons.

PROGRAMS

A MISCELLANY OF PROGRAM IDEAS

1. Have a magician do a magic program and teach kids a simple magic trick.

2. Do a clowning program. Make up faces. Have a clown or mime guest and teach kids a routine. Use the face paint recipe so kids can make up.

3. Have an animal training program. Have someone with a trained dog come in and demonstrate and tell the children how to train their dogs.

4. Have a Circus Treats program. Make microwave caramel corn and add peanuts to make cracker jacks. Decorate clown cupcakes or salad. See recipes in Planning Manual. Have someone talk about healthy snacks and how to make sure you are eating the right foods.

5. Have a gymnastics group or an acrobatic dance class come in and demonstrate. For older kids, show the Olga Korbut film from the Library Commission to give some idea how much training it takes to be an acrobat. If you have outdoor space try some easy feats. Let children who are taking gymnastics be the instructors.

6. Do a story and craft program about each circus animal -- monkey, lion, elephant, horses, dogs -- and their trainers. Use play dough, wire and paper mache, paper sculpture, soap, cookie dough or collage to make interesting animals.

CIRCUS DRESS-UP DAY

Recommended Size of Group: 10-100
Objective: To promote the summer reading program and to get children into the library
Description of Activity:

Sponsor a "My Favorite Circus Character" Dress-Up Day. Who are the children's favorite circus characters or circus animals? Set a date and time and invite each child to come to the library dressed as his or her favorite character. Costume examples might include clowns, ringmasters, lion tamers, dancing elephants, trapeze artists, etc. Lead the children on a circus parade around the library, then award prizes. Be sure to give all participants a small prize (balloon, animal cracker, sticker). Invite local T.V. stations or newspapers to cover the event.

CIRCUS FITNESS AND EXERCISE

Target Audience: K-6
Recommended Size of Group: 25 - 30
Objective: To focus on the importance of exercise; tie into training of circus performers; enjoy imitating animals
Book: Albert the Running Bear’s Exercise Book, Barbara Isenberg Never Say Diet Book, Richard Simmons

Description of Activity:

This can be developed into two successive programs for K-6 or have one session for the older group and one for the younger group.

Try to get a volunteer whose specialty is physical fitness, i.e. aerobics or gymnastics instructor. You may like to do-it-yourself.

Have a presentation on the benefits of exercise. Lead into discussion of physical training and practice for circus performers.

The volunteer (or you) may demonstrate simple exercises relating to his/her specialty. If you as presenter need a resource of illustrated exercises, try those in Richard Simmon’s Never Say Diet Book. (You may have your own favorite.)

A second session could review the initial presentation. Focus discussion on the different kinds of animals in the circus. Talk about their distinguishing features/characteristics and how they move.

Demonstrate exercises based on imitation of different animal’s characteristic movements. Ask children to participate.

Optional: Play an adaption of the game "I went hunting and shot a bear."
Assign animal name to each child. Leader starts by saying "I went to the circus and saw a __________ (animal)." When the child’s animal name is called out he/she gets up and moves across the front of the group with appropriate action.

PROGRAMS
SPECIAL POPULATIONS

FOR GIFTED READERS

Target Audience: Gifted children and outstanding readers
Recommended Size of Group: Individual activity
Objective: To challenge gifted students
Description of Activity:
Let longer books count two or three times on reading record folders to encourage children who are able to read longer books and to challenge gifted students. Don't limit number of books they can read. You might also involve children in a puppetry workshop and have them write the script or have them publish a newspaper.

- Susan Walker
   Papillion Public Library

ACTIVITIES FOR HANDICAPPED STUDENTS

Target Audience: Special ed, slow learners or hearing-impaired
Objective: To involve these children in some of the reading program
Description of Activity:
Let slow learners or readers contract for only the number of books they can read. (You might start with one). For special ed groups: Do a special story time for them. They may like puppet stories. For hearing-impaired -- learn a few signs or have their teachers sign while you tell or read. You may integrate this group with hearing children. Ask them to pay special attention to the signing which can be expressive and beautiful. Utilize handicapped people -- i.e.: one librarian had an older mentally handicapped woman read to pre-school storytime.

- Susan Walker
   Papillion Public Library

VISUALLY HANDICAPPED CHILDREN

Target Audience: Physically handicapped
Objective: To involve those with vision problems
Materials: Large print materials or recorded books
Description of Activity:
You need to provide large print materials or talking books if you have a visually impaired child in the summer reading program.

- Susan Walker
   Papillion Public Library
POPCORN DAY

Objective: To present a Popcorn Day

Description of Activity:

Furnish popcorn to eat and use.

1. Create popcorn pictures. Give each child a bowl of popped corn and let them create by gluing on paper. Display with the caption "Popper Pictures."

2. Make popcorn balls.

3. Popcorn Relay. Divide into teams and blow popcorn across floor to line. Other team member blows back.

4. Divide into teams. Place a piece of popcorn on plate on the floor opposite each team. At signal have team member run, kneel and eat corn without using hand and return. Return and continue until all have had a turn.

Song: Pop, pop, pop your corn to "Row, Row, Row Your Boat"
Pop it in the pan
Popcorn for you, popcorn for me
Eat it if you can.

MOVIE NIGHT

Objective: To promote SRP throughout the summer

Materials: Film projector, films, craft materials

Description of Activity:

Reserve an area of the library for an hour one night each week for kids who have just completed the 4th, 5th, or 6th grades. During that hour they can watch a film, read a book, or work on a craft project. (You might want to start this later in the summer to avoid conflict with softball and other sports events.)

SIDE-SHOW MAGIC DAY

Target Audience: Grades 4-6

Book(s): Strega Nona, Tomie dePaola
Strega Nona's Magic Lessons, Tomie dePaola
Anthony and the Big Magic Ring, Tomie dePaola
Liang and the Magic Paintbrush, Demi
Marc the Magnificent, Alexander, Sue
Bremhall Turns to Magic, Delton, Judy
The Magic Pot, Galdone, Paul
Fat Magic, Kroll, Steven

Description of Activity:

1. Highlight of Day - guest magician

2. Set up "magic stations" and let kids try their hands at simple tricks and sleight of hand. Use 793 section of any library for ideas. Once kids master a trick, they might become a teacher, demonstrator or coach for other children.

3. That day or later present a show of children's magic feats to an audience of younger children or parents. Or give them ideas for other places to present.

This could also be a culminating activity.

TRICK DAYS

(Note: this program as well as any of the special programs described could be used as a culminating activity)

Resource Books:
1) Super-Colossal Books of Puzzles, Tricks and Games, Sheila Anne Barry
2) Quizzes, Tricks, Stunts, Puzzles and Brain Teasers, Arkady Lao Keem.
3) Tricks of the Eye and Mind, Larry Kettlekamp
4) The Handbook ... All Kinds of Jokes, Tricks and Games to Do With Your Hands, Blumenthal, Lassor

Description of Activity:

1. Trick N' Treat -- Show us your trick and receive a treat -- cookie, candy, or one of cheap tricks that come in grosses from Oriental Trade Company.

2. Riddles -- Have a bulletin board where kids can put riddles on front side of paper and answers on back.

3. Let kids bring puzzles, tangrams, rubik's cubes, pyramids and circles and set them at tables so other kids can try their tricks.

4. Cover books with paper or drop them in brown paper bags and let the kids choose one without knowing its title. Be sure to choose kid-pleasers!

5. Tell stories or use poems with tricks involved or with surprise endings.
   Examples:
   1. Hurry and the Red Stripes, Christelow, Eileen
   2. Solomon, the Rusty Nail, Steig, William
   3. Tortoise & Hare, Asop
   4. Poem "My Mother Doesn't Want a Dog"

DISPLAY

CREATE A CIRCUS ATMOSPHERE

Objective: To create a festive atmosphere for Reading Club
Materials: Crepe paper and balloons
Description of Activity:

To give the illusion of a circus tent, drape crepe paper streamers in bright colors from the corners of the room to a center point. Attach balloons at the center point for a festive look. Using poster board bars bent for a 3 dimensional look, display large size animals inside the bars. Add end pieces for a parade of circus wagons around the walls.

BOOK PROMOTERS

Objective: To encourage children to read particular books
Book: Set out the books that are mentioned on "clown promoters"
Description of Activity:

Display these clown "mini-reports" to encourage children to read the books. Children can write about books they've read or staff can fill them out. The sign above the display might read, "CLOWN AROUND WITH BOOKS."

- Deb Carlson
  Scottsbluff Public Library
Objective: To promote reading
Materials: Construction paper, markers
Book: Display the books listed on each balloon
Description of Activity:

Make a large red-and-white-striped circus tent shape of either fabric or paper. Mount it on a bulletin board with a blue or white background. Make the banner of fabric also and draw its pole with markers. Make letters of felt, fabric or paper. Staple to the board. Balloons with titles on them may be construction paper or you may use real balloons. You might also attach a packet in which you place the bookmarks, "Reading, the Greatest Show on Earth" as a giveaway. (See Boni Hathaway's bookmarks from PRIZES, FAVORS AND READING INCENTIVES.)

PAPER CIRCUS

Book: Paper Circus by Robin West, Carolrhoda, 1983

Description of Activity:

Excellent ideas and patterns for display and craft sessions.

Patterns can be used in given dimensions for a model circus or enlarged (the opaque projector works well) and transferred to appliance boxes for larger floor displays. All patterns would also make excellent 3-D mobiles.

- Jeanne Saathoff
  Grand Island Public Library

DECORATING THE LIBRARY

Description of Activity:
Use crepe paper, pennants, balloons, and posters to create a "big top" atmosphere. Streamers of colored paper looped across the ceiling help give the illusion of a tent. Pennants cut from colored construction paper or inexpensive material look festive when hung from the ceiling or along walls. Bunch balloons in corners or have stand-up clowns holding them. Circus posters or pictures (even black and white ones from the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus) backed on colorful poster board can be displayed on walls or windows.

- Jeanne Saathoff
  Grand Island Public Library
Materials: Shoe boxes, string of lights, material to fill boxes

Description of Activity:

Collect as many shoe boxes as you wish and cut a peep hole in the front of each. Make a slot about 1/2" wide across the top near the other end. Place an attraction in each box and arrange them along a shelf so that the peep hole will be eye level for a child. String Christmas lights over the slots to illuminate the attractions and label each box to describe the amazing object it contains such as:

- Rare Invisible Fish -- Bowl of clear water
- Toast of Paris -- Piece of French Toast
- Souvenir from Venice -- Bottle of water
- Ancient Instrument of Torture -- Hairbrush
- Swimming Match -- Match floating in water
- Hawaiian Native -- A small coconut
- Peeping Tom -- A small mirror
- Famous Hole in One -- Doughnut
- Ocean Liner -- Sand
- Hairless Dog -- Frankfurter
- Ruins of China -- Broken dish
- An Old Pair of Slippers -- Two banana peels
- The Five Senses -- Five pennies
- Baby Rattler -- Rattle
- Baseball Star -- Pitcher
- A Look at the Future -- Sign saying future
- Tearjerker -- Onion
- Belle of the Ball -- Small bell on a ball
- Peacemaker -- A scissors
- The Tie that Binds -- A necktie
- Strongest Head in the World -- A hammer head

CIRCUS TRAIN

Materials: Boxes of all sizes, milk cartons, construction paper, corrugated paper, heavy poster board, cellophane paper, pipe cleaners, yarn, paper fasteners, straws or wooden dowels, ribbon spools, paper doilies, four very small rubber bands

Description of Activity:

Did you make a train display for the Reading Railroad program? Now is the time to resurrect it! According to the Barnum and Bailey newspaper, a circus train has 42 cars! How about making "circus cars" and interspersing them with the book cars used for the Reading Railroad. (Each book car could carry various circus slogans.)

Patterns for the circus cars are on the following pages, along with drawings and dimensions for the book cars, engine, caboose, and coal car.

This can be used as a display or a group reading incentive, letting each car represent a certain number of books read, with the goal being 42 cars in the train by the end of your program.

- Barb Plank & Carolyn Simmons
  Gothenburg Public Library
WHEELS
Use very heavy poster board.
On Engine use 2 large and 2 small on each side. Hook wheels together on each car with yarn.

Large hat pin holds it in place

Light is construction paper folded to make a box. Holes covered with yellow cellophane (from Easter basket)

Felt face features

Cow catcher (light weight poster board)

These areas are cut out
Same as below but cut paper cone shaped—glue two pieces together.

Laminated construction paper make circle & glue.

Pipe cleaner purchased small bell at store.

Cover first before gluing on construction paper, cut hole for box to fit in to.

Over top of carton fit piece of construction paper or corrugated paper. For roof.

Fruit milk carton.

I used hot glue gun on all of this (If using corrugated or it will not be solid).
This is cut from poster board (side view)

---small box

---small box covered (child's shoe box, etc.)

7 3/4" wide by 5"

---window 2 1/2" long
1" wide

---wheels (same as on book cars)

---Lights are strips of construction paper 5" wide and 2" long. Glue into circles. Put piece of yellow paper inside each circle. They are attached with large head dressmaker pins. We used yellow topped ones.

---Back view (door is just piece of paper glued on to represent door)
Paper will need to be 14" long by 8½" wide. Finished car...each side should be 6½" long with a scored book spine of 1".

We used slogans on each plaque.

Black poster board
2" circles (paper fasteners in center) hook yarn on paper fasteners.

End view of book car showing pages

Inside, we glued 3 sheets of typing paper 8½x5½ fold in half and glue to top. This represented paper in the books.

Brace--
Between front and back cover, we put in a brace. We used a strip of poster board to hold the book open.

COAL CAR

Used quart milk carton cut off so that it is 3½" high. Cover with corrugated or regular construction paper. Fill almost full with paper, then glue a heap of raisins, to represent coal. (could use small bits of briquettes) Hot glue works well for this project.
WAGON CENTERPIECE

Material needed: cardboard shoe box, 2 large plastic straws, 4 cardboard ribbon spools, construction paper, lace paper doily, 4 small rubber bands.

Cover shoe box with blue paper. Cover lid separately, so box can be opened to put animal inside. Cut out sides, leaving at least a ¾-inch margin all around (Fig. 2). Paste two 2-inch squares of paper on bottom of box (folding first as shown in Fig. 2) to hold straws. Wheels are made by covering one side of ribbon spools (they need not be empty) with yellow circle, then with blue trim. Cut out circular design from doily and paste in center of wheels. Insert ends of straw through center of wheels. Cut off excess length. Use rubber bands to hold wheels on. Cut out and paste yellow, red, and blue trim on both sides of box. Cut 14 strips of black to paste on inside of box openings to look like bars. Place one of the place card animals inside cage.

Circus

We used straws, but they bent easily, so we are going to use small wooden dowels.
TIGER AND HIPPO

Material needed: construction paper, chenille wire

Place body of tiger pattern on fold and cut out. Cut out two heads and paste together with a 2-inch length of chenille wire in between. Insert end of chenille wire into hole in body and paste (Fig. 1). Cut out face and ears and paste on head. Draw eyes, nose, mouth, and stripes as shown. Use 4-inch length of chenille wire for tail. Paste in position.

Place body of hippo pattern on fold and cut out. Cut out two heads and paste together with a 2-inch length of chenille wire in between (Fig. 2). Cut out and paste pink ear. Draw eye, nose, and mouth with a black felt-tip marker.

LION

Material needed: construction paper, chenille wire, tan crepe paper

Place body of lion pattern on fold of paper and cut out. Cut out head. Cut out and paste on nose and ears. Draw eyes, nose, and mouth with a black felt-tip marker. Cut out mane by placing pattern on fold of crepe paper. Cut slits around the edge. Paste face on, then paste 2-inch length of chenille wire in between mane. Paste end of chenille wire in hole in body (Fig. 1). Paste 4-inch length of chenille wire in body for tail.

This lion is a good subject to put into the wagon centerpiece.

CHIMP AND PONY

Material needed: construction paper, chenille wire

Cut out chimp. Cut out and paste face. Draw eyes, nose, and mouth with a black felt-tip marker. Chimp will stand up if you pull arms forward (Fig. 1).

Cut out pony and two heads. Paste heads together with plume and a 1½-inch length of chenille wire in between (Fig. 2). Paste other end of chenille wire in hole on pony’s body. Cut out and paste trim on body. Draw eyes and halter.
BEAR ON A UNICYCLE

Material needed: construction paper, paper fastener

Cut out bear. Cut out and paste on face, ears, and paws. Cut out and paste on pants, hat, collar, white ball on hat, and belt. Draw eyes, nose, and mouth with a black felt-tip marker. Draw trim on collar. Punch hole where indicated. Cut out feet and wheel. Paste together. Punch hole in center and fasten to bear with paper fastener. Make the wheel a double thickness of paper so it will turn freely without bending when the bear "rides" the unicycle.

ELEPHANT AND GIRAFFE

Material needed: construction paper, chenille wire

Place body of elephant pattern on fold of paper and cut out. Cut out two heads. Fold ears forward and paste heads together with a 2-inch length of chenille wire in between. (Do not paste ears.) Cut out and paste on ears. Paste end of chenille wire in body (Fig. 1). Draw eye and mouth with a black felt-tip marker. Paste 2-inch chenille wire for tail.

Place body of giraffe pattern on fold and cut out. Cut out two heads and paste together with a 4-inch length of chenille wire in between (Fig. 2). Insert end of chenille wire in body and paste. Cut out and paste on brown spots. Draw eye and mouth. Paste 2-inch chenille wire for tail.

PERFORMING CLOWN

Material needed: construction paper, paper or plastic straw

From Animated Paper Craft for Parties. c1968
Division of Standex International Corporation.
Reprinted by permission.

Cut out clown. Cut out two suits. Paste one on the front and one on the back. Cut out the hair and paste it on the back of the head. Cut out two black hats and four black shoes and paste on front and back of clown. Cut out and paste lips, nose, and black buttons. Draw eyes and mouth with a black felt-tip marker. Fold hands over and paste to a 6-inch straw. Twirl straw to make clown perform.

JUGGLING PIERROT

Target Audience: Upper elementary
Recommended Size of Group: Individual activity
Objective: Learn some circus vocabulary
Materials: Large cut-out of juggling Pierrot (at least 24" tall), colored paper for juggling balls, honor roll, record sheets

Description of Activity:

Put the juggling Pierrot on a bulletin board or other large space. On his juggling balls are circus jargon for which readers discover meanings. Pierrot may start with only a few to juggle but more and more can be added. Readers may come up with their own vocabulary as they read about the circus; these could be added too. Readers might discover meaning of terms and keep a record of those they know the meaning of. Perhaps you can display an honor roll for those who work on this and find ten or fifteen, etc. I have included some jargon as examples. Some of the terms appeared in the November/December 1986 issue of Challenge magazine. Others were taken from the Worldbook.

This may also be a group activity. Divide children into two to four teams. Assign each team a color. Give them several juggling balls of this color and a list of the words or phrases to define. When a team returns with the definition written on the ball, pin up the ball so that Pierrot can juggle it. The team who gives Pierrot the most balls wins.

CIRCUS TOSS

Target Audience: Any age
Recommended Size of Group: One at a time
Description of Activity:

For toss: beanbags or styrofoam ball or popcorn.

A. Make these decisions:
   1. How many points are necessary to win a prize?
   2. How many books must be read for each toss?
   3. Will allowances be made for age, grade or reading level?

Keep score on a "circus ticket" for those who need several library visits to win.

- Joan Chesley

STORY STARTER

Target Audience: 8 on up
Recommended Size of Group: Any number
Objective: To deal imaginatively with disappointment
Materials: Paper and pencils
Description of Activity:

Read story beginning to children. Discuss briefly possible directions for continuing the story. Allow 15-20 minutes for writing.

Finish a Story

There once was a little girl named Virginia, who wanted to be a clown. As she was walking through town with her mother on a sunny afternoon, she noticed a poster in the grocery store window.

CIRCUS COMING TO TOWN SATURDAY
ENTER THE COLORING CONTEST
GRAND PRIZE
BE A CLOWN FOR ONE DAY

"Mom! Mom!," she said, "Could I please enter."

"Yes, you may; but you might not win. Don't get your hopes up or be too disappointed."

Virginia and her mother went in, bought groceries and received a picture to color. After supper that night when dishes were washed, dried and put away, Virginia sat down to color her picture. She spent longer than normal coloring it, and it was the best coloring she had ever done. Virginia knew that she had to finish it that night for it had to be entered at the store the very next day. Could she wait two days more to find out if she won or not? Would she be a clown for one full day?

Please finish this story as you would like. Did she make her dream come true and if so what did she do? If not, did she still go to the circus and see who did win the coloring contest. Did she decide to stay home and brood? YOU DECIDE!

Games

Give each child a picture or word depending on the age group; have them pantomine it or describe the animal or subject. Have the group guess the answer.

SUNSHINE SAYS

Target Audience: K-2+
Recommended Size of Group: 25-30
Objective: Develop listening skill; provides physical activity; fun
Description of Activity:

This is a game. "Sunshine Says" -- a version of "Simon Says."

The leader who is "It" pretends to be Sunshine the clown. The leader says: "Sunshine says: Clap your hands" as he demonstrates the action. Children imitate the action. Other actions might be: Sunshine says: Wiggle your nose," "Stamp your feet" etc. When Sunshine omits saying "Sunshine says," any child who follows the action will be "out" and the leader chooses another child to be Sunshine. Older children will also enjoy this if the actions are more challenging and complex ("Walk like a duck" "Touch your elbow to your nose." "Take off your head and carry it under your arm" ... etc.) This also will give kids a sense of the rudiments of clowning. Instruct them to make the actions comical.

You might have a special clown hat and a red rubber nose that is passed along to each new sunshine.

CIRCUS LIDS

Target Audience: Children who read and recognize parts of speech
Objective: To find humor in the absurdity of the words chosen
Materials: Chalkboard, eraser or large newsprint chart
Description of Activity:

Use a chalkboard to write words down. Children fill in the blanks as you ask for an adverb, number, nonsense word, etc. After all words are chosen, the title of the story is given, and the story is read filling in the blanks. (No hints are given as to what the story is about before it is read.)

STENCILING

Target Audience: Spooning Chimps: 3-5, Stenciling: 6 on up
Recommended Size of Group: 6-8 per instructor
Objective: To extend a story experience with a craft
Materials: Washcloth the children brought from home, stencils, paint brushes, cleaning fluid for brushes
Book: Caps for Sale by Esphyr Slobodkina

Description of Activity:

For stenciling, the librarians furnished their own stencils and stencil crayons. Children brought a washcloth from home. Betty had a lesson on how to do stenciling so she showed them how it was done.

Stencils depends on size. Can make them by-putting poster board between two pieces of contact paper.

  Draw design and cut out with a craft knife. Make sure all edges are smooth. Use an emery board to smooth the edges. You are all set. Have kids share the crayons.

Note: You might also use this activity as an extension of storytime. Tell the story, Caps for Sale, but transform it into a circus story: what can you do with a crowd of naughty monkeys who do everything you do? Become a circus act!

Approximate Cost: Stencil brushes around $1.00 each
  Box of 8 stencil crayons $7.00 each (This would be enough for the groups)
GP-458 SPOONING CHIMPS

Please read all directions before starting.

Your kit contains:
- Wood parts
- Felt
- Bump chenille
- Glue
- Moveable eyes
- Instructions
- Marker

Cut eyes from either color felt and ears and nose from the contrasting color.

1. Using patterns cut out felt shapes for eyes, ears and nose. Glue to wider end of wood piece as shown in illustration. Glue moveable eyes over felt eyes.

2. Cut a piece of chenille two bumps long for the arms. Glue the center of piece to back of stick below mouth. Cut one bump of chenille for legs. Glue center of this piece to back of stick at bottom.

3. Hands and feet are made by bending the ends of chenille up. Use the marker to draw in a mouth, nose and other features.

9.25 per pack of 60.

Reprinted with Permission
1. Glue eight black bars to the back of this car frame.

2. Leave unglued to slip animals in.

3. Glue a 9" x 6" rectangle of red paper to the back of the frame, leaving one end open.

4. Cut out 2 brown wheels, 2 black hubs.

Glue hubs to wheels.

Glue the wheels under the car to the hubs.

Red Frame - Cut out, both inside and outside.

CIRCUS TRAIN

Target Audience: Everyone in program
Recommended Size of Group: No limit Objective:
   a) To get the library in the circus mood
   b) To have a visible, inspiring measure of how many activities done
Materials: Construction paper, scissors, glue, crayons, OPTIONAL: animal pictures

Description of Activity:

1. For younger children, have the train pieces cut out and have the kids glue them together, decorate them, name them.

2. Pin trains up around the library with yarn pieces leading from the front of one train car to the back of another.

3. The trains could be used just as decoration or for:
   a) train-car decorating contest with a prize going to the train-maker with the most student votes or
   b) when a student completes an activity, a book, a report -- anything having an animal theme or circus theme, he slides an animal inside his train cage (write the name of the book or activity on the animal). Give a prize for the fullest train car at the end of the summer.

LION PUPPET

Objective: Craft project for children or story follow-up
Materials: Felt, yarn pom-poms, wiggle eyes (optional)
Books: The Happy Lion by Louise Fatio

Description of Activity:

An easy bear puppet can be found in Fun With Puppets by Georgene Curry, 1982. Published by Current, Inc., Colorado Springs, CO 80941. You may request materials from Barb Plank, Gothenburg Public Library.

For older children you may use lion-puppet making as an occasion for introducing lions in diverse types of literature and with different characteristics. Tell the fable "The Lion and the Mouse," the myth "Androcles and the Lion," an adventure showing the nature of the cowardly lion in Wizard of Oz by Frank Baum and a short segment showing the noble nature of the lion in The Lion, The Witch and The Wardrobe by C.S. Lewis. Conclude the discussion by deciding why humans have described lions so differently and what they stand for.

CRAFTS/CREATIVE EXPRESSION

STORY STARTERS

Target Audience: K-3
Objective: To discuss what makes an ending seem right. To encourage children to use their imaginations and to be creative.

Books: You may use this activity with any book you share. Before finishing the book, ask the children how many ways they think it might end.

Description of Activity:

The leader starts with a paragraph or two and the children finish the story verbally or by writing it down. If children dictate the story to you, be sure to have large sheets of newsprint on which to write (print, of course). Mimeograph finished copies and distribute to the children or send to parents (good P.R.) or bind, make an author card and, with much fanfare, place the card in the card catalog and the book on the shelf. You might also make a giant book by attaching full-size (22 x 28) tagboard covers to the newsprint sheets. Let the children illustrate the cover. Follow-up with a writing center or a taped story starter that individuals may continue on tape.

1. The old elephant stood quietly at the head of the line ready to enter the large circus ring. He was the leader this time and that made him proud. (Finish the story)

2. Little clown was sad. He felt lonely and was about to burst into tears. Why couldn’t he make people laugh the way his friends could? He sat in the corner remembering what had started it a couple of weeks ago. (Finish)

Prime a reluctant or inhibited group by asking questions to make characters more alive -- name, appearance, past history, feelings about the circus, etc. Then lead to a description of the problem -- "what’s wrong?" and solution(s) and who it is that solves the problem.

CIRCUS SCENES

Target Audience:  Could be divided by age if this activity were used as an art contest
Objective:  To create circus pictures
Materials:  Paper, pastels, tempera, ink, markers, paper scraps, wallpaper books, glue Books:  Circus by Brian Wildsmith
Description of Activity:

1. Show pictures in book to motivate.

2. Children then create circus scenes.  Interest in this activity will be intensified by the novelty of the media.  A combination of chalk and marker are similar to the media used in Wildsmith's work.

3. The finished works could be used as a display in the library or, even better, at another site -- gallery, museum, historical site, fast food restaurant, swimming pool, etc.

IF I RAN THE CIRCUS

Target Audience: K - 3rd
Objective: Bring the story alive; key into imagination
Materials: Crayons/paper/markers/eraser
Book: Dr Seuss; If I Ran the Circus, Random, 1956

Description of Activity:

After you share the book children create their own original animal. Then display them in the library. Offer all a prize for some special characteristic. This could also be used as drama - act out a new circus performance with the imaginary animals. Or it might be used as an ongoing project - serve peanuts or popcorn. The last story session could be given to parents.

SPECIAL PROGRAMS

Materials: Jack and Jill Grocery stores have a circus promotion every year in the summer. They have displays, costumes, etc. May be worth contacting.

Description of Activity:

Have face painting -- a good group may be high school art students.

Give a circus acts performance. Line up a juggler, magician, fortune teller, acrobat, etc. Could be used in conjunction with a pet show for the most talented animal.

Conduct a Best Dressed Clown contest.

CLOWN LOOKS

Target Audience: K-6
Recommended Size of Group: 30
Objective: To learn about clowns, their costumes and make-up. Learn how to design various clown faces.
Materials: White construction paper, markers, pencils, crayons
Books: Clowns: The Fun Makers by Mel Boring
        Big Treasure Book of Clowns by Felix Sutton

Description of Activity:

Try to enlist a volunteer who has expertise in either clown or theatrical make-up.

Have the presenter give some historical background on various types of clowns. Discuss costuming and make-up -- emphasizing elements of design for clown faces.

If time allows demonstrate making clown faces on live models.

Give children sheets of white construction paper. Instruct them to each draw a large oval and create an original clown face with crayons or colored markers. Face should include hat or wig.

Arrange to have the clown face creations submitted to the local newspaper for printing on the weekly kids’ page.

Cost: Paper $1.50 - $2.00

Target Audience: 4 years - 12 years
Recommended Size of Group: 10-100 (you will need one adult or junior high volunteer to every 10 kids)
Objective: To enjoy the circus theme and draw children into the library
Materials: Ink pads and fine-line magic markers
Book: Ideas in Ed Emberley’s Great Thumbprint Drawing Book

Description of Activity:

Finger Print Circus Animals or Characters

Let the children create circus animals or characters by using their thumbprints and adding a few simple lines.

Examples:

- Clown
- Dancing Elephant
- Roaring Elephant
- Sad Lion
- Lion Tamer
- Monkey
- Stunt Rider
- Ring Master
TRICK BEAR

Target Audience: Preschool, kindergarten or older

Description of Activity:

Cut out of poster board or oak tag, string with yarn -- pull one end -- he crawls up the yarn, pull the other end -- he crawls down.

Variation - You may use the string tying principle with other animals such as a climbing monkey also.

- Boni Hathaway

PAPER CIRCUS

Target Audience: All ages
Objective: To make a model circus; items could be either pre-made for display or craft project
Materials: Construction paper and other easily salvaged material
Book: Paper Circus by Robin West, Carolrhoda Books, 1983
Description of Activity:

This book gives instructions for building a model circus. Patterns are included and many of the "acts" will work, e.g. trapeze artists will swing. This could be a project which children make for the library and later take home to play with.

Variation: Make the objects larger -- using 22" x 28" tagboard -- for a puppet show; children may write a script inspired by the objects they've created; or smaller, for elves or mice.

LATCHHOOK

I am toying with buying (or asking an artist friend to design) a latchook canvas with the circus motif. For every book a child reads, he/she may add one piece of yarn to the canvas. One would need to project, based on the reading patterns of previous years, how many holes would be needed. I'm not sure what happens if the canvas is not completed; maybe the Volunteers could count their reading. This might even appeal to adults who would want to "help out" by latchhooking one string for each book they were reading.

WELCOME TO THE GREATEST SUMMER ON EARTH, THE SUMMER OF 1987!!!

CIRCUS TRIVIA
The Romans called an open-air arena a "circus". The largest circus was the Circus Maximus which means the "biggest circus". Circus arenas were often round or oval in shape and that's how we get the word "circus" today.

Hi! Meet Bailey Barnum Jones. He is a real circus fan and no wonder! His mother had a high wire act until she fell and broke her wrist. So when her baby was born, she named him after two famous circus people, Phineas Taylor Barnum and James Anthony Bailey.

Bailey Barnum went to see a circus whenever he could. He was a quiet sort of boy and he seemed to notice things that other people did not even see. Sometimes he solved mysteries and helped to answer questions at the circus. Can you help Bailey Barnum solve some circus mysteries? Read next week and try

SAILEY BARNUM AND THE SLIPPED FIFTY MYSTERY

Bailey was standing the ticket line for the grand opening of his favorite thing—the circus. For only 75¢, children under 12 could buy a seat for the Spectacle in the arena. The Spectacle was a grand circus show that started with a parade. Bailey was very excited to see the elephants with their howdahs, the beautiful horses prancing around the arena and all of the other acts of the big show.

All at once a man in front of him cried, "I've been robbed!" Everyone gasped and they looked around for a thief.

The security guard quickly came up to the man to ask some questions.

"I was reaching for my wallet but it was gone! Gone! And I had fifty dollars in it!" yelled the man.

"Can you describe your wallet? You know, color and all that," asked the guard as he stared writing down all the details on a small yellow pad.

"My billfold is brown and it has my picture in it, and a credit card, and fifty dollars in cash! And my ticket for this Show!" the poor man moaned.

"We'll have to question you folks, too," said the guard as he turned to the people standing next to the victim.

"I didn't take anything," said a lady with a baby in her arms. "I have my own ticket and my arms are full with little John here."

"I didn't take anything either," said a short man with a cigar. "I was keeping an eye on those clouds there wondering if the rain would spoil the show."

"Don't blame me!" said a tall man in a brown suit. "I've got my own ticket and besides I can't reach into that guy's jacket pocket anyway."

"Me, neither," said a teenager. "My hands are in my own pockets and besides I'm not dumb enough to steal!"

The guard was beginning to look confused. No one had seen anyone run away so the thief must still be here but who could it be?

Just then Bailey said, "Excuse me sir, but I think I know who that man's wallet."

WHO DID IT????????????????

Read next week's paper to see if you agree with Bailey in solving this mystery.

CIRCUS TRIVIA

Early circuses in Rome had chariot races, horse and rider tricks, wrestling and some gymnastic and acrobatic tricks. Early Roman audiences also enjoyed cruel sports such as wild animals fighting with each other or with human slaves or captives.

ANSWER TO THE SLIPPED FIFTY MYSTERY

Bailey knew the tall man in the brown suit took the wallet because he was the only person who knew which pocket the wallet had been in.

BAILEY BARNUM AND THE SLOPPY PEANUT MYSTERY

Bailey was walking along the menagerie watching the animals being fed and cared for. The bull hand, Pete, was feeding the large elephant big bales of hay. Each of the elephants would wrap their trunk around a tuft of hay and put it into their jaws. It seemed that elephants were always hungry although Pete had told Bailey that a wild bull elephant would eat about 500 pounds of food in a day but the same animal in captivity would eat only about 150 pounds of food each day.

Bailey called Hi to Pete as he passed the elephants and went on to see the Cat and Cage. Bailey wondered if the lion ever got tired of the same four corners of his cage.

Next to the Cat and Cage was the Monkey House. The ten spider monkeys were chattering at each other. One little monkey was throwing scraps of food at the other monkeys.

"That Scamp!" said Bill Travers, the monkey keeper. "I had to chase him around the back yard today. He's always getting away from me. Bailey and Bill laughed at the silly little monkey while Bill told Bailey how many tricks the little pesky monkey had played on him.

Bailey was still laughing when he came to the Bird Cage. Here there was noise with confusion! Green and yellow birds flew around in their roomy cage.

"Hi, there, Thelma," said Therese the lady who fed the birds their special diet. Just then a big green parrot named Poll landed on Bailey's shoulder.

"Poll, did you pick your lock again?" laughed Therese. "That's the third time today!" Just then Bailey heard a loud shout. The man who ordered all the supplies for the animals was waving his arms and yelling at Pete.

"I tell you your elephants ate a bag of peanuts today!" yelled Charlie.

There was a bag all dumped, with shells and peanut hulls making a big mess.
ANSWER TO THE SLOPPY PEANUT MYSTERY

"Just a minute, Rosalee," Bailey said. "If you give me about ten minutes to prove it, I'll convince you that Rolando isn't the thief and I'll show you the real thief!"

WHO IS THE REAL THIEF????

Some elephant jokes and then some more

Rolando: Why 'o elephants paint their toenails?
Bailey: Why?
Rolando: So they can hide in the jelly beans!

Rolando: What do you get when you cross an elephant with a mole?
Bailey: I don't know but you sure will have some big holes in your yard!

Rolando: What's dark gray, comes in a jar and weighs two tons?
Bailey: Instant Elephant!

Rolando: How do you make an Elephant float?
Bailey: Take two scoops of vanilla ice cream, add some root beer and one elephant.

HAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA

Two kinds of elephants are used in circuses.

Asian Elephant
humped back light grey smaller ears

African Elephant swayed back dark grey bigger ears longer trunk longer tusk taller, fiercer

Did you know...................

• Elephants cannot jump?
• Sometimes the tusks on the very old bulls grow so long that the elephant cannot lift his head?
• The trunk of an African elephant has two fingerlike knobs on the tip?
• The elephant gets a stomachache if the temperature gets close to freezing?
• The Asian elephant is called the Indian elephant also?
• Elephants are related to the mammoths and the mastadons?
• An adult elephant is about as tall as it is long?
• When female elephants fight, they usually try to bite off each other's tail?
ANSWER TO THE UNLUCKY LUCKY CHARM MYSTERY

The real thief was Pol, the parrot. Bailey remembered that the window had been open while the lucky charm was on the window sill. Rolando had been in the trailer with Bailey all the time, but Therese had told Bailey that Pol could get out of her cage. When Bailey went to the Bird House, Pol had the charm in her beak. Pol was attracted to the green shine of the newel and just swooped into the window and snatched it.

BARNUM BAILEY AND THE RIGGER'S DILEMNA

When Bailey went to the circus the next day, he heard an argument in one of the trailers.

Harold the Rigger was banging his fist on the side of the trailer as he yelled at Mitch Miles, the equestrian director and general director of the circus.

"But I tell you, Mitch, I can't get that whole rigging strung up in that little time. I need to hang the trapeze, and I mean to hang it safely!"

"What takes you so long?" Mitch yelled back. "You've got ten minutes between those two acts. And you've been hangin' trapeze here for ten years. Don't you know what you're doin'?"

"Mitch, you don't just hang that rigging. You stretch it. You test it. You measure the tension. And that takes more'n 10 minutes. Unless you want your high fliers to be a bloody mess when they fall!" yelled Harold as he stomped off muttering under his breath.

Bailey felt bad when he heard an argument between circus people even though he knew there was lots of tension in the circus because everyone there was a professional.

Just as he passed Clown Alley, Bailey had a great idea, and he went running back to Mitch Miles.

"Mr. Miles," he said. "I think I have the answer to your problem."

WHAT WAS THE ANSWER TO THE RIGGER'S PROBLEM?

MORE CIRCUS TRIVIA

Did you know...

- Lions greet each other by rubbing cheeks?
- The lion has 30 teeth, but no teeth suitable for chewing, so lions must swallow food in chunks?
- Lion cubs are born with spots?
- Lions are built for strength not speed?
- Lions sleep and rest about 20 hours a day?
ANSWER TO THE RIGGER'S DILEMMA

Bailey suggested to Mitch Miles that the audience would enjoy an extra show of the clowns while Harold was rigging. And part of the clown's act could be testing the wires and the guys of the rigging equipment.

BARNUM BAILEY AND THE MISSING MEOW

Dawn was a High School Horse. That was what circus people called a highly trained horse that did skillful tricks with a rider.

But when Bailey went to the Horse Barn, Dawn was nipping her stall mate, Dessert, and kicking at the planks.

"Whoa, stop it, you crazy!" yelled Stan Carter, the stable keeper, as he managed to get between the two horses without any damage to himself.

Beautiful Dessert was confused. Her buddy, Dawn, had turned on him.

"That's a different horse since her pet has been gone," grumbled Stan, and he told Bailey that a small yellow barn cat had been Dawn's pet, and the cat seemed to calm the horse.

"It was real weird seein' them together. Like the big white horse and the little yellow cat, you know. And that horse always was so careful about where his feet went, never stepped on a hair on that cat's body," said Stan as he chewed on a piece of straw and looked at Dawn closely. "We may have to ship her off unless she settles down some."

"But where is that kitten?" asked Bailey.

"That should solve your problem."

"Beats me," said Stan. "Who's got time to be lookin' for an old cat anyway?"

"Well, I do," thought Bailey as he looked through the barn. He thought he'd start by asking a few questions.

"Ya, I saw that cat a lot," said the cook Larry Owens. "Seems that cat was real hungry lately. Then she up and disappeared. Haven't seen her cut here for her dish of food for oh, say, about four days."

Thinking the little yellow cat might have gone to visit her larger cousins in the cat family, Bailey went to the Cat Cages.

Linda Travers was feeding the lions when Bailey came along. She opened a small door and placed a large bowl of some meat in the door.

Then she closed the door and pressed a button so an inner door opened and the lion went over to sniff his dinner.
ANSWER TO THE MISSING MEOW

Bailey saw a small cage nearby, a snake was curled up inside. The two men laughed wickedly and one walked off into the darkness. Bailey thought, "I've got to save that chariot driver from an unfair race. But how can I do it?"

How could I save that race???????

An instrument looking much like an organ that circuses use for their music. To find out write the letter that comes before in the alphabet.

Bailey went back to the stables and began to look in dark corners and good hiding places. Behind the tack, Bailey found what he was looking for. There was the yellow cat, and she had three of her own kittens curled up beside her with their eyes tightly closed and their ears tiny against their heads. Bailey laughed when he thought how surprised Dawn would be to see four yellow cats instead of one.

BAILEY BARNUM AND THE NIGHTMARISH DREAM

Bailey was tossing and turning and dreaming. Where was he? He looked around and saw many thousands of people sitting in a huge sort of circular arena. They were all shouting and pointing to one end of the arena.

When Bailey looked to see what the people were pointing at, he gasped. Three horses were hitched up to a strange wagon. He remembered seeing a picture of a wagon like this in a history book. It was a chariot. The driver stood in the chariot holding the reins of all three horses as he drove them to a large stake in the ground.

The sunshine gleamed off the silver armour the man wore on his chest.

The man also wore a short skirt-like garment that came to his knees, and he laughed as he backed his horses into position with another chariot.

The second chariot was larger and it had sharp spikes on the axles of the wheels. The horses were snorting and jumping, and the driver of the second chariot sneered at the first driver.

"You'll never win!" he shouted. "I'll get your horses plus a thousand lira besides, and then you won't have anything!" And the second chariot driver roared with anticipation and pleasure of winning this race.

Bailey looked at the second driver closely. He had a puffy face and a fat stomach, and he had small mean eyes.

Bailey heard a noise behind him. Two men were talking in a loud whisper. Funny thing, Bailey knew they were speaking another language but he could understand them.

"Wait til he gets around once, then throw out the snake. That'll scare those horses some and Brutus will win!" whispered one man.

Read Ella Fun's massage by starting with the letter X and crossing out every third letter.

Can you tell me.............

What animal has four legs and sleeps with its shoes on? (A horse)

What is gray and has four legs and a trunk? (A mouse going on a trip)
ANSWER TO THE NIGHTMARISH DREAM, OR THE ANSWER TO THE DREAMY NIGHTMARE.
Bailey sneaked quietly to the snake cage. It was so dark in the tunnel of the arena the man didn't even turn around.
Bailey turned the cage until the doorway faced a network of holes in the wall. Then he took his knife and cut the lock of the cage.
The snake seemed to know freedom was at hand because it slithered off into the hole. Bailey hid behind a column. The man came to the cage and carried it out into the sun.
Then the man looked!
The snake was gone!
Now Brutus would lose and race for sure.
The man thought only a moment, and he disappeared as fast as the snake had.
Bailey looked up to see the first chariot race by once, then twice, and then over the finish line about 40 feet ahead of Brutus.
The crowd roared and cheered and something began to ring. Bailey opened one eye and then the other. He was in his own bed!

BAILEY BARNUM AND THE CASE OF THE SINGLE FILE
Bailey seemed to find himself drawn more and more to the elephants. Maybe he liked Pete, or maybe Rollo, the big Asian elephant.
Pete told Bailey a lot about elephants. He told him how wild elephants often travel long distances looking for water or food, moving about 6 miles an hour. But elephants can run as fast as 25 miles per hour for a short distance.
Elephants are excellent swimmers and they love to take long baths.
Bailey thought he would like to handle the gentle monsters some day.
But one day there was trouble in the elephant barn. One elephant was missing!
"How could you lose an elephant?" Mitch asked angrily. "You could lose a mouse, maybe, or even a dog. But an elephant?"
Pete was very worried. He knew an animal on the lose was dangerous to others, and was in danger itself. Even though the elephant was very young, only 4 years old, and quite small, it was still large to everyone else.
ANSWER TO THE MYSTERY OF THE CASE OF THE SINGLE FILE

Bailey remembered that Pete said elephants liked to walk in a line. Pete always said they had the best nose of all the animals.

"Let's let another elephant find the missing elephant," said Bailey.

So Pete brought out Rollo who was his special favorite. Rollo seemed to know just what to do, as Pete walked alongside of him.

Rollo's sharp nose followed the track across the soft, dirt, then he turned to one side and followed his nose. The ground here was stone hard and only Rollo knew where to go.

The trail went on and on, along a highway at one time. Bailey wondered what an elephant would have done if a car would have come along the highway.

Then Rollo led them across the highway into a pasture. There near a haystack was the young elephant eating fresh hay. Rollo walked faster and faster as he got closer to the runaway.

"Things are never dull at the circus!" Bailey said.

CIRCUS TRIVIA

• Charles Hughes was the first person to use the name "The Royal Circus", when he opened his riding school modeled after Philip Astleys.

• The first American circus opened in Philadelphia in 1793, then the capital of the United States.

• President George Washington went to the circus in Philadelphia.

• Horses used to be the favorite animals in the circus. In 1815 a farmer in New York state bought an African elephant and called him Old Bet. He started taking Old Bet around and showing him off, and soon he had enough money to buy his own circus! From that time, elephants became the most popular animal in the circus.

RIDDLES, RIDDLES, RIDDLES AND ALMOST RIDDLES

Try this on a friend, and you will be able to tell him when his birthday is and also how old he is.

Ask your friend to write the number of the month that is his birthday _______
(Don't look at what he writes down!)

Multiply this number by 2 _______

Add 5 _______

Multiply by 50 _______

Add his age _______

Subtract 365 _______

Add 115 _______

Tell your friend to tell you the number he has now. The answer will tell you the month of his birth and how old he is. The first number will be the month, and the last two numbers will be the age. If your friend is younger than 10, the second number will be a zero.

COUNT THEM

If a parade of elephants was marching by and an elephant was in front of an elephant, an elephant was behind an elephant, and an elephant was between two elephants, how many elephants would be in the parade?

The answer is three.

JIM: What would you say if you saw three tigers walking down the street wearing pink sweat shirts?

JOE: I'd say they were on the same team.

JIM: What did the leopard say after he finished eating his dinner?

JOE: That hit the spots.

JIM: Why do elephants have so many wrinkles?

JOE: They don't know how to iron.

JIM: My son thinks he's a horse.

JOE: I could cure him, but it might be very expensive.

JIM: That's OK. We have plenty of money. He just won the Kentucky Derby.
CIRCUS TICKETS

Objective: To encourage kids to read during the summer
Materials: Two tickets to the Shrine Circus
Description of Activity:

After a child has read five books, his/her name is entered in a drawing for two Shrine Circus tickets. Drawing is held during the Awards Ceremony.

Cost: Approximately $10.00

- Toni Reese
LaVista Public Library

FOOTPRINTS

Objective: To encourage children to read more books
Materials: A xerox master for each type footprint, then as many copies as needed
Description of Activity:

For each five books that are read, put a circus animal footprint on the wall. It would be fun to use lots of different animals (lions, elephants, horses, dogs, people, etc.) and then have as a colorful bulletin board a key to explain which print goes with which animal. Our library did this last year with bear tracks and by the end of the summer we had gone all around the library and then some! Really fun and eye-catching for both children and adults.

Copies of various animal tracks can be found in the book, Tracks and Trailcraft, by Ellsworth Jaeger.

AWARDS DAY BAGS

Materials: One-gallon freezer bags
Description of Activity:

On Awards Day we had so much material for the children to take home, we purchased one-gallon freezer bags, put everything in them, and put them in alphabetical order. This saved a lot of time and everything made it out the door.

Cost: One box of 90 bags -- $2.18

GUMMI CIRCUS ANIMALS

Objective: To provide an incentive for reading or a handout at a special program
Materials: Gummi circus animals
Description of Activity:

Since gummi bears were such a wonderful reading incentive or handout at programs last summer, I was thrilled to find GUMMI CIRCUS ANIMALS in the bulk food candy bins at the Scottsbluff Econo-Food Store. They are probably available at all grocery stores which sell candy by bulk.

Cost: Approximately $1.39 lb.
      (perhaps donate)

- Deb Carlson
  Scottsbluff Public Library
OBJECTIVE: To provide a reward for each book read
MATERIALS: White #2 paper sacks, gray construction paper, tan construction paper, papier-mache, gray paint, trim for elephant

DESCRIPTION OF ACTIVITY:

Fold down or cut off white sacks to approximately 5". Decorate with a gray elephant made out of construction paper. Inside each sack, place construction paper peanuts with child's name on each one. (See Connie Jelkin's "Elephant Sacks," - for another pattern.)

Construct a large papier-mache elephant with open mouth, and a trap door near the bottom. Dress elephant in circus garb made out of scraps and trimmings. For each book that a child reads, he or she gets to feed the elephant one peanut.

On Awards Day have a drawing for prizes with the names being drawn out of the papier-mache elephant.

ELEPHANT SACKS

Objective: To chart reading progress
Materials: Paper sacks, construction paper, markers
Description of Activity:

Give the children small paper sacks when they begin the program. Have them cut out and paste an elephant head on their sack for identification; hang the sacks around the room to add to the circus feeling. As they read, they receive tickets which are kept in the sacks. The tickets are worth a pre-arranged prize or treat (e.g. ten tickets could be worth one book bag).

CLOWN DAY

Objective: To experience many aspects of clowning

Description of Activity:

Of course the best part of the day is a visit from a local clown.

Have make-up and people available to help kids create clown faces. Once they've been made up as clowns, have mirrors available so they can practice making funny expressions. When the clown arrives, part of his/her performance can be teaching the children a short clowning routine. You may organize such an activity as follows:

1. Introduction, fingerplay (depending on age) and song
2. Story
3. Follow-up craft
4. Clown make-up
5. Reserve clown
6. Film or another story

Stories:

"A Clown's Best Trick" from Paper Stores by Jean Stange
The Clown Arounds by Joanna Cole
You Think It's Fun to Be A Clown by David Adler
Gogo's Car Breaks Down by Anne Rockwell
Mr. and Mrs. Hay, the Horse by Allan Ahlberg

Crafts:

Pom Pom Clown Hat in Elementary Teacher's Art Ideas Desk Book by Gretchen Sanderson
Clown face from A Date With A Plate by Jean Dawson

Or, you might include and/or adapt the origami clown or adapt a craft found elsewhere

CLOWN MOBILE

Cut two heads (including hat shape), and 3 two-inch threads. When pasting the heads together, position and paste hair and threads between heads. Paste a nose, hat, and ball on tip of hat on both sides of the head; placing a thread in between balls to hand mobile. Paste eye to each side of thread. Paste pink mouths with thread between. Paste one black mouth on each side. One can be a happy one and the other can be a sad one.

CLOWN MOBILE

Cut pieces from appropriate colored construction paper.

Figure 1 - Cut small strips of cardboard, glue them across bow tie, mouth and hair. Cut a octangle of cardboard and glue to hat.

Cut 2 two-inch pieces of thread and put each from an eye to the hair so eyes will dangle less than a half inch below hair. Glue a 20" piece of thread up the center of the mobile. With black felt tip put x on eyes and smile line and accent bow tie.

CREPE PAPER CLOWN

Unroll two contrasting packages of crepe paper full length. Bunch one together lengthwise and tie off a few inches from each end for ruffles. Tie together about one third the way down. Arrange on the wall in a natural position with the short section for the one arm and the longer section for the body and one leg. Repeat with the other piece of crepe paper for the other half of the clown. Add a face made of papier mache or painted cardboard. Trim with ruffles around the neck and a comical hat on his head.

CREPE PAPER RUFFLES

Cut a complete package of crepe paper in half, across width. Use the same amount in a contrasting color, placing colors one on top of the other. Sew through center of both colors, by machine using large stitches so paper will gather for ruffles. Leave enough thread at ends to tie. Use for crafts or make ruffles for the children on a special story time when you are using clowns as a theme.

CLOWN CAKE

Target Audience: Ten-years-old on up or younger with volunteer help -- 2 to 1 ratio

Recommended Size of Group: At most 6 to 8

Objective: To celebrate Circus Summer by making a clown or tiger cake

Book: Discover the fun of cake decorating by Sullivan, Eugene & Marilyn "Betty Crocker's Cake Decorating"

Description of Activity:

Clown Cake

1 baked 8" round cake layer, cooled
1 baked 8" square cake layer, cooled
5-1/3 cups ornamental frosting

Cut a 1" wide piece from round cake. Cut this piece in half (A). Follow diagram in cutting the square cake. Assemble clown, inverting piece E, and using frosting to hold pieces together. Cover completely with frosting. Tint 2/3 cup green, 2/3 cup orange (using red and yellow food coloring), and 2 tablespoons each red, yellow, and blue.

Arrangement of Parts

Let the children frost with tubes of bright circus colors.
CLOWN BOOK MARK

Description of Activity:
On heavy white paper, draw the outline of the clown. Paint scallops around his neck, hat and wrists. Apply dots of bright paint to his suit. Draw or paint in a face. Cut arm along dotted line so that his arm fits over page. This could be enlarged even bigger to be markers on circus books for a display. Enlarge and use to mark the Dewey Decimal (# on) Section (on end of each stack).

DISPLAY TOPICS

Target Audience: Readers of young adult books
Materials: Caption signs and small topical book collections
Books: See list for types
Description of Activity:

A simple and effective way of bringing specific books to the attention of young adults is with a captioned book display, the more provocative and generation-oriented the better. Caution: topics and captions that will have special appeal for young adults because of their iconoclastic, irreverent, silly-joke quality may be offensive to adults. It is important to assess the complexion of your community when designing materials directed at young adults.

Two rules in setting up Young Adult displays are: integrate fiction and non-fiction, serious and less significant books. Display no more than 10-12 books at a time.

Young adult concerns may be divided into the following categories:

1. Topics of Interest
2. Burning Concerns
3. Peer Pressure
4. Classics
5. Curriculum as Springboard
6. Response Activities
7. Haulghurst Developmental Tasks
8. Fads
9. Media
10. Popular Pulp

FREAKS AND FEATS

Target Audience: Young adults 15 to 18
Recommended Size of Group: 5 - 20
Objective: To explore the meaning of circus sideshows and freaks
Description of Activity:

Since many young adults secretly believe that they are freaks, this topic has a drawing power besides the more obvious sensationalism. Let the group look briefly through the books on freaks or make them into slides which you use while delivering a commentary.

Discuss definitions of freaks; stretch the concept to include feelings as well as physical appearance. Read selections from Franny and Zooey, J.D. Salinger, almost anything of Carson McCullers (Francies "we of me" passage in Member of the Wedding, the deaf m'ite's suicide in The Heart is a Lonely Hunter. Discuss hidden freaks as opposed to public -- who is better off? Conclude with related book talks, i.e. -- The Elephant Man, Ashley Montague, Father's Arcane Daughter, E.L. Kanegsburg, other Carson McCullers, etc.

FAIRY CARAVAN

Target Audience: 4th - 6th graders
Recommended Size of Group: 5-15
Objective: To read independently and explore meanings as a group through hands-on projects
Materials: Fabric, paper scraps, art materials as available
Description of Activity:

Three choices of follow-up activities -- let the group come to consensus on which activity all will do:

1. Make up animal costumes that will transform familiar, ordinary animals into more exotic creatures -- may be real or fantasy animals. Exhibit.
2. Make up circus acts that you could do if you became invisible.
3. Create a "human circus" that animals would enjoy.

THE FOUNDLING

Target Audience: Grades 4-6
Recommended Size of Group: 5 - 15
Materials: Paper, pencils (optional)
Book: The Foundling, Hector Mal

Description of Activity:

This book was written in 1896. Perhaps for that reason many scenes would have been fun to read have been only alluded to, not described. Group members find a scene which seems to be omitted that they think would have been fun to read, and recreate it. Their reconstructions may be written or described aloud.

To prime them -- give some examples of places where more detail would have made the book more enjoyable: when Remi learns to read, the monkey's add tricks when he is dressed in the Major's uniform, when Vitalis meets Murat, the king. Help the group make up possible dialogue, action and examples for these situations before they begin work independently or in pairs.

CLOWN SCHOOL

Target Audience: Young adults 13 - 16
Recommended Size of Group: 5 - 15
Objective: To analyze humor, hurt, dumb jokes, wit, possible differences between teenage/adult humor.
Materials: Prepare by covering walls with cartoons/film clips: Laurel and Hardy, The Three Stooges, cartoons, Jerry Lewis, John Belushi Book(s): Any humorist: Will Rogers, Theresa Bloomingdale, Don Kaul, Shirely Leuth, etc.

Description of Activity:

After sampling humor on film and in books and magazines, newspapers, etc. discuss which, if any, was funniest and why. Try to determine the essential elements that make planned jokes, writing, performances funny. Related topics: Do different people laugh at different things? Do people laugh when it isn't funny? Can humor hurt? Who do you know with the best sense of humor? Why do some people laugh less than others? etc.

Conclude by giving poor, dumb c bad jokes to pairs of participants to fix, rewrite. If there is interest, schedule a clown for another program so the group can analyze walk, gesture, facial expression, etc.

Elaboration: Tape record laughter during initial presentation of films and readings. Play back parts to recall and analyze humor.

SPECIAL PROJECT

CARD CATALOG

Target Audience: Grades 4-8
Recommended Size of Group: Small
Objective: To give young volunteers meaningful tasks that are enjoyable and result in learning
Materials: 3 x 5 or other size index cards, pen

Description of Activity:

Unfortunately, our card catalog doesn't include a subject listing of children's books and it's badly needed. The librarians don't have time or funding to take on this project so we have our student volunteers work on it in the summer.

They simply look at every book in the children's section to see if it fits the subject we have given them. (A subject for the coming summer will be "Circus Books") When they find a book that fits the subject, they write down on their index cards: subject, title, author, and all the other "basic" information found on any catalog card.

Our children's card catalog subject file is small but well used. The librarians type up the cards for the "real" card catalog but the kids enjoy "their own" file too.

NOTE: It has worked much better to give the kids a subject to work on rather than have them categorize each book as they come to it on the shelf. It's less confusing for them. This is an activity of particular value for older elementary.

"I DON'T WANT TO BE LEADER/TEACHER TODAY"

Target Group: K-3 as learners, 4-6 as teachers/reporters

1. Ask for student volunteers willing to write up notes for oral reports dealing with animals you might see at the circus (or use the "circus" as their subject).

2. Tell the reporters you only have three guidelines for their reports:
   1) pick out at least 10 facts and or pictures on the animal of their choice; 2) Don't write down word for word what the books say. Just write notes. (Use more than one source, of course.); 3) Present their report to the group like a teacher would present a lesson: speak-up, look at their students, make the students be good listeners, allow questions and be able to answer them.

3. We allowed one class period for research and by the next time we met, the "teachers" were ready.

NOTE: We did this activity last year with BEARS as the subject and the younger kids loved it. They liked having the older kids be teacher.

We had a few kids under 4th grade who volunteered but they became frustrated because their reading/writing level wasn't up to that of most of our reference books. It was great to see the confidence of the fourth graders as they reprimanded their younger peers for not listening!

JELLY'S CIRCUS

Target Audience: Grades 4-6
Recommended Size of Group: 5-12
Objective: See Fairy Caravan follow-up
Materials: Tape, ball, other materials depending on questions
Book: Jelly's Circus, Dean Hughes
Description of Activity:

Jelly is extremely creative but beset by problems, both human and physical as he tried to organize the circus.

1. Design some silly problems that could befall Jelly as he plans the circus. The kids come up with several which they try out. They vote for the best one. Example: If Denny had dressed up as a seal how would he have balanced the ball on his nose? Possible solutions: Use chewing gum, tape, use a balloon -- cut a notch in a nerf ball. Try these or other possibilities to see if they work.

2. Arguments -- Assign or let kids volunteer for roles of book characters. One character at a time is asked questions about behavior and attitudes. Reproaches and arguments are allowed but not abuse or name calling. Example: "Jelly, why doesn't it bother you to be laughed at?" Make sure each kid gets to participate - a questioner and answerer.
A PLAN FOR INVOLVING YOUNG ADULTS AS SRP VOLUNTEENS

Volunteers are a valuable part of our summer reading program and I believe the program plays a valuable part in the reading development of these young adults, too.

We recruit Volunteers in three ways. First, I make a "plea" to all sixth graders in their classrooms (teachers are very cooperative about this), explaining the summer activities and requesting the help of capable, dependable high school students for inclusion in a spring student bulletin. Third, I use one part of the summer reading brochure (1/6 of the brochure, actually) to announce the training date and encourage participation.

I schedule a training session for the Volunteers and ask that everyone attend if at all possible. At the training session my goals are:

1. To set the tone for this group: we are friendly, informal, but always ambassadors for the library and the summer reading program (see sheet 1). I introduce myself, have the kids introduce themselves (I give "strokes" to veteran Volunteers) and then "play" name games to break the ice and get the kids lightly acquainted. Always I am hoping to ease the way for these kids as they face junior high changes and to provide support to them if they need it.

2. To introduce the duties they will have and to demonstrate how those duties are to be completed.

3. To let them choose the hours they will work and the partner with whom they will work.

4. To start them thinking about the final group activity for which they do much of the planning.

If a youngster cannot attend the session, I ask that he/she come to a second training session that evening. Each Volunteer receives a copy of sheets 1 and 2. I post the duty schedule and also the schedule of duties in a spot where both staff and Volunteers have ready access to it.

We are fairly strict about a few rules:

1. Volunteers must advise us in advance if they cannot come as scheduled. After two unexcused absences, their time is given to another Volunteer.

2. Teams can consist of only two Volunteers (for regular two-hour shifts; for special programs and activities, we recruit as many as we need).

3. Volunteers may sign up for only two hours weekly. If, after all Volunteers have had a chance to sign up, a vacancy occurs, we will allow Volunteers to take extra hours.

All adult staff see the training sheets I use and I do introduce the Volunteers (during the tour part of the training session) to the adult staff. I use "Mrs. Boyington," "Mrs. Yost," etc. rather than the more familiar "Mary" or "Dee" because I want some distance in case the staff needs to direct or correct the Volunteer but in other libraries this may not be desired.

As well as the routine tasks, I try to have some varied duties ready so our Volunteers don't get bored (they can prepare the year's storyhour projects, Christmas decorations, etc. if I am just organized enough to plan ahead). However, I do show them the Young Adult area when I take them on the training tour and I tell them they may go to that area to read if they have completed all their shift duties, provided they check back in at the desk at 15-minute intervals to see if we need them. (I like this technique because it encourages their reading and also because it implies that we never want to give busy work; when the Volunteer is doing a job, it is a job we need completed.)

I do believe in positive reinforcement so I try to notice one specific action each shift of each Volunteer. Volunteers are encouraged to generate ideas for better service and we do let them have a great deal of creative latitude in the end-of-the-year activity. At the end of the summer, I write a thank you letter to each Volunteer (see sample), recapping the summer and telling them what book has been added in their honor. I also emphasize that I am happy to write recommendations for Volunteers and that they may consider this a first job experience.

Although we promote this program for students going into 7th, 8th and 9th grades (and we never make an exception allowing younger kids to be Volunteers), we do occasionally have older kids help and I usually give them special duties: withdraw cards, supervise storyhour preliminaries, etc.

The Volunteer program is a lot of work but I believe it is well worth every bit of effort.

VOLUNTEER SCHEDULE OF DUTIES

9 a.m.
1. Check reporting table
   Sharpen pencils
   Realphabetize folders
   Put out additional stickers if needed
2. Stamp date due cards (about 100 of each date)
3. Block shelves, put away puzzles, check floor
4. Read shelves assigned to you

10 a.m.
1. Straighten, reclassify and rotate records
2. Shelve any beginning readers and primary books
3. Read shelves assigned to you

11 a.m.
1. Realphabetize filmstrips
2. Do preliminary filing of the day's circulation
3. Read shelves assigned to you

12 a.m.
1. Check reporting table for supplies (see #1 under 9 a.m. above)
2. Stamp date due cards
3. Read shelves assigned to you

1 p.m.
1. Reorganize paperbacks
2. Read shelves assigned to you
3. Clean up the room, putting away any puzzles, etc.

2 p.m.
1. Reblock all shelves
2. Check displays for loose pieces, etc.
3. Read shelves assigned to you

3 p.m.
1. Shelve primary and beginning reading books
2. Stamp date due cards
3. Do preliminary filing of the day's circulation

4 p.m.
1. Straighten any areas that are messy, check tub for loose books, clean up kit bin, etc.
2. Fill scratch paper trays and sharpen pencils on card catalog
3. Read shelves assigned to you

If you finish everything on your duty list, look around for any books out of order; straighten any "awful" shelves. Then report to the desk; if the librarian does not need a special job done, you may read in the young adult section until you are needed. Check back at the desk every fifteen minutes, please.
LIBRARY VOLUNTEENS

Thank you very much for your interest in this program! Our goal is to make every child who comes to the library feel that someone is glad he/she is here. Your contribution of time will help us greatly in meeting that goal. Please feel free to recommend good books to youngsters and to listen to their concerns and interests. By your attitude, you may be encouraging someone else's love of books and libraries.

Remember, the children we serve are the most important part of our job! Enjoy these interesting people - I know they will enjoy you.

Below are some guidelines to help you as you begin your work.

1. Report to the children's desk when you arrive for work. Sign in and out so we can keep a record of your hours.

2. Put on your volunteer pin so children will know you.

3. SMILE and then look around:
   a. If any children seem lost or puzzled, try to determine what they want and then help them.
   b. Check in with the librarian for any special projects that need doing.
   c. Check the master schedule at the desk for your specific duties for your particular shift.
   d. If you are unable to finish everything assigned for your work shift, write a note in the notebook by your name so you will know where to begin the next week.

4. If you are helping with a special program:
   a. Check in on Monday (you may call in) to see if any special preparations need to be made.
   b. Come about 15 minutes early so you can help the program director prepare.
   c. Plan to stay about 15 minutes after the program to help clean up.

5. If, for any reason, you are unable to come for your assigned time, please notify the library in advance (461-2346). Anyone who misses two times without making previous arrangements will be replaced; we really need our volunteers at the times designated.

6. Everyone will sign up for two-hour shifts weekly. Other than for special programs, no Volunteer will work more than two-hours weekly. We don't want to wear you out.
7. If you have good ideas for ways to serve children better through the library, please share them.

8. At all times act in a mature, dependable manner befitting of a library employee; you are representing the Hastings Public Library in the eyes of a lot of youngsters and they look up to you.

THANK YOU VERY MUCH!
SPECIAL RESPONSIBILITIES

1. Cut out storyhour nametags, prepare bags, alphabetize bags.
2. Cut out bear prints for children who have met their reading goal.
3. Stamp reading folders and write "goal" on them.
5. Design and plan a poetry board; change it weekly.
6. Design and plan a riddle/joke board; change it weekly.
7. Renumber the Toybrary and update the catalog.
8. Realphabetize the puppets.
9. Help with storyhour Wednesday mornings:
   Sort nametags.
   Help children find their nametags
   Accompany the group upstairs, count the children, and sit among them
   Take off the nametags at end of storyhour and store them
10. Help with Tuesday programs:
    Count children attending
    Sit among the children and monitor behavior
    Stand at the stairs and encourage safety and courtesy
11. Assist with special programs (usually from 1-2 p.m.)
   June 12 - Indian Bear Art
   June 19 - Bear Repair Fair at Mary Lanning Hospital
   June 24 - Puppet Pandamonium
   July 10 - Willy Wildlife
   July 24 - Bear Hunt at Hastings Museum (time to be announced)
   July 31 - Bear Bash (at Chautauqua or the library)
12. Plan your game for the Bear Bash. As soon as you have your idea, discuss it with Mrs. Boyington or Mrs. Bonar. Begin to design it as soon as the idea has been approved.
13. If you finish everything on your duty list, look around for any books out of order; straighten any "awful" shelves. Then report to the desk; if the librarian does not need a special job done, you may read in the young adult section until you are needed. Check back every 15 minutes.
Have A Bearable Summer - Read

How very much we at the library appreciated your help with our Bearable Summer - Read program. From Bear Repair Fair to Bear Bash and all the activities in between, I thought it was a great success. The 1986 Volunteer Corps played a big part in that success; you all were extremely dependable and creative.

To help our young readers remember your contribution of time and talent, we are adding to our collection, in your name, the book

I hope you will enjoy seeing your name on the bookplate inside the book. I plan to have these honor books on special display in the Young Adult section of the library during November; feel free to check out the one in your name.

If you are interested in being a Volunteer for next summer's activities, I will be delighted to include you when we begin reorganizing next May. The theme will relate to the circus so do begin thinking Big Top.

Thank you again.

Sincerely yours,

Honey Lou Bonar

Rules and Regulations

1) No volunteer will be allowed to work unless he or she has attended the organizational training session.

2) Volunteers will work on a scheduled basis (which THEY have determined) and will be expected to work when scheduled. Please schedule yourself for only 1 or 2 times a week so that everyone has an opportunity to work.

3) In the event that you cannot work when you are scheduled, please either arrange for a substitute to work in your place (see list of volunteers and their phone numbers) or notify Mrs. Carlson (632-0050) of your intended absence so that all necessary changes can be made.

4) There will be several meetings, planning sessions, and preparation days for Teddy Bear's Picnic. These will be scheduled on later dates. Always check the BEAR ESSENTIALS for dates of upcoming events. We cannot call to remind each of you.

5) We will plan a time and place for your "Thank You" party and notify you at a later date.

Duties and Responsibilities

1) Cutting and preparing the honey pots, balloons, bears, and paw prints which the children get for every five books read.

2) Straightening up the Children's Library.

3) Stamping date due cards to prepare for checking out materials.

4) Helping with special weekly events.

5) Helping with skits or special events which will be performed on Thursday movie days and at Teddy Bear's Picnic.

6) Preparing, organizing, and working at the Teddy Bear's Picnic (summer wrap-up party).

7) Other miscellaneous duties as assigned.

CULMINATING ACTIVITY

JELLY'S CIRCUS

Objective: To involve children in planning and implementation of a culminating activity

Book: Jelly's Circus, Dean Hughes

Description of Activity:

After reading Jelly's Circus to grades 3-6 or having a book project group read it individually, put on your own town circus in the library yard or get permission to and block a street nearby. Prepare acts with the kids -- or let them prepare their own (you will want to preview acts if they do it on their own.) Recruit jr.-sr. high kids, friends of library and parents to help you pull this off.

Local business or restaurants may like to donate prizes or food for this specif- day.

Acts could include: Jugglers, dancers, rope jumpers, yo-yo experts, magicians, singers, clowns, acrobats, stilts walkers, skateboarders, pogo stickers, decorated bicycle and tricycle acts, animal acts -- using real animals or costumed kids.

Think of the fun and headaches this involves!!

CULMINATING ACTIVITY

THE BIGGEST NIGHT ON EARTH

This culminating event can be the perfect ending to a wonderful reading program. It requires lots of staff or volunteer assistance, however. The Scottsbluff Public Library has had wrap-up parties the past three summers, they are huge successes and greatly appreciated by the community. We have them outdoors from about 6:30 to 8:00 p.m. on a Friday night at the end of the program (early August?).

Ideas for entertainment (don't plan too much) might be: magic show, tumbling demonstrations, juggling or clown acts, etc. For refreshments you could serve any of the following: hot dogs, popcorn, cotton candy, suckers or peanuts. Several volunteers could be painting children's faces to look like clowns. This is the perfect occasion to have junior high volunteers perform a "circus of the stars"* or other related show (which they've been working on during the summer).

A balloon launch would be the perfect ending to a fun evening in the park!!

If someone wants to undertake a wrap-up party I'd be glad to send any info or talk with them on the phone.

CULMINATING ACTIVITY

PENNY CIRCUS

Recommended Size of Group: With plenty of volunteers and space - infinite Materials: "real" money, prizes, costumes, acts, equipment, three rings, etc.
Book: The Fairy Caravan, Beatrix Potter

Description of Activity:

The Penny Circus has elements of carnivals and fairs as well; everything costs a penny; there are challenges, acts, games, food, prizes, rides - this is the place for wild and crazy ideas.

Introduce the concept to children by reading excerpts from The Fairy Caravan when the animals pay with peppercorns or when Paddy Pig is disguised as an elephant.

Put up posters saying -

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *
* Do You Know What \( 1c \) will buy? *
* Come to the PENNY CIRCUS *
* and find out *
* etc. *
* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

Start the circus with a penny scramble so everyone has plenty of spending money.

Here is a limited list of possibilities. Your imagination should take you much further.

* Peep show or slide shows, see Glee Nelson's activity in "Display"
* Storytelling contest
* Best animal trick - most talented animal
* 1 cent cups of pop, snocones, tiny hot dogs, popcorn, crackerjacks (small amounts so no one gets sick)
* Meeting the circus animals - costume them exotically
* Circus acts - clever pranks based on word play, write to Mary Jackson, NLC, to receive a copy
* Penny arcade -- borrow a juke box, electronic game...
* Clown alley
* "Trick" pony or elephant rides
* Turn a red wagon into a bucking bronco by attaching one square wheel
* For older kids - bike or skateboard stunts, Trivial Pursuit with prizes etc. etc. etc.
CULMINATING ACTIVITY

CIRCUS UNDER THE STARS

Target Audience: Babies to elderly
Recommended Size of Group: As many as your park or band shell will hold Objective: To give "The Greatest Show of All" a satisfying send-off and involve all segments of the community with the library and circus summer
Book(s): Sing-along booklets with a reproduction of the Summer Reading Program poster on the front and a synopsis of purpose and library activity on the back
Description of Activity:

Early in the spring, contact your community band or orchestra to see if you can arrange an evening of circus music to coincide with the ending of your Summer Reading Program. There are many popular songs that allude to the circus from all eras so there'll be something for everyone. If your band is very proficient, ask them to play Saint Sains' "Carnival of the Animals" -- (carnivals may be stretching it but this is a classical piece with appeal for children -- especially with a commentary.)

To attract your primary audience, award prizes and certificates early in the evening. And be sure to put in a plug for the library and the benefits of the Summer Reading Program.

Ask a civic group to sell cheaply or give away circus treats and inexpensive toys -- balloons, monkeys-on-a-stick (see Oriental Trading Co., in the Resource section) before the concert and during the intermission. Finish the evening with a rousing sing-a-long.

Further elaboration:

1. Work with your media specialist to create slides or find a film that will accompany or enhance the music. These could be circus scenes or other even more fanciful depictions.

2. Intersperse the music with circus "turns" -- a clown performance, ventriloquist, juggling, etc.

3. At the end of the concert say good-bye to Circus Summer 1987 with a lift of lighted balloons.

Cost: Band - free
Refreshments - donation or .75 per person
CULMINATING ACTIVITIES

TALENT CIRCUS

Recommended Size of Group: No more than 50 as performers
Objective: To conclude "The Greatest Show, '87" memorably
Book: Let's Start a Circus, Anders Eneviy
Description of Activity:

The difference between a circus and a talent circus is what you don't have to do -- create the acts, rehearse the acts, locate props, equipment, animals and costumes, prompt kids in and out of the arena. You get to (more or less) sit back and enjoy.

If you don't feel equal to the massive organization and work demanded by a child-produced circus, arrange a talent circus instead. Each child, pair, trio, etc., who wishes to participate is responsible for planning and practicing his/her own act. Encourage them to keep it a secret so it will be a surprise at the performance.

Prime the children by discussing the difference between a circus and other performed events. There's music but it's not a concert; athletics, but it's not a track meet; clown's but it's not a comedy. Encourage children to think of the essential elements of a circus and incorporate them in their acts -- unusual skills and abilities that are seldom useful in everyday life, remarkable appearance, talented animals and feats of daring (but caution -- not too daring). Brainstorm possible acts together then they're on their own.

You schedule the acts, find a space and advertise for an audience. Locate a ringmaster to add drama. You are not responsible for the success of each act. Welcome any adults who wish to participate also.

If the summer hasn't totally exhausted you, you may want to arrange a parade of the circus performers.

Be sure to give a prize for something unique in each act.

CULMINATING ACTIVITIES

Wouldn't it be great to have a giant backyard circus as the culminating activity. Groups of children would sign up the weeks before to plan and present an act. I'm thinking about this.

INSTANT CIRCUS CAPSULES

Description of Activity:

Drop in warm water and watch a circus figure appear. Non-toxic. Manufactured by Instant Products, Inc., Louisville, KY. I purchased at Holiday Service Station. Check at local novelty stores.

Some uses: 1) Magic trick to introduce program, 2) Storytelling - make up or Circus in the Mist by Bruno Munari, 3) 3-D collage objects, 4) A "growing" collage. Submerge in water briefly and pin to a circus scene. Watch it gradually swell and take shape. This activity can stimulate children to story tell and explain, 5) Trace arounds.

An article on circus craft and accessories, "Come One, Come All To the Circus" is available in McCall's Needlework and Crafts, October, 1986, pp. 84-100.

Columbus Public Library subscribes to "Kidstuff." The following issues may be borrowed from us ILL. Each one contains ideas that would work for the Summer Reading theme.

Vol. 2, Number 11, Music This has a song which is sung to the tune of "Here we go round the mulberry bush" There are some cute clown patterns which could be used for bulletin boards or flannel board activity to go along with the song.

Vol. 3, Number 8, Lots of Lions Cute fingerplay activity entitled At the Circus. There are a couple craft activities which involve making a lion from clothes pins and one which uses a paper plate.

Vol. 3, Number 4, Elephants Smellaphants This whole issue would be great. Songs, fingerplays, flannel board story and a draw and tell story.

Vol. 4, Number 2, Monkeyshines Some cute crafts that show how to make a swinging monkey and a bag gorilla.

Vol. 4, Number 1, Grins 'n' Giggles

There may be others but I haven't discovered them.

Columbus Public Library also has a book by Margaret J. Olson "Tell and Draw Stories", Creative Storytime Press, 1961.

This book has draw and tell stories about "The Circus", "Eke & Zeke" (Lion) "Oliver, the Friendly Seal" which would be appropriate for storytime. This book is available for ILL.

CLOWN BEANBAG TOSS

Enlarge clown-face pattern to make a large face approximately 36" x 36". Make hole in the mouth. Trace clown face onto plywood or heavy cardboard. Decorate attractively. Attach an easel-type support to the back for standing.

Equipment: Clown-face target and three beanbags.

Scoring: Two points per bag; player with the highest score wins.

Distance: Three tosses per contestant from a distance of 5-6 feet.

Kathy Bohling, Educational Services Coordinator at Morrill Hall, UNL, has developed Natural History Activity Kits which may serve to draw hard-to-reach older elementary children into the library. Kit topics are:

- Animal Food Habits
- Tracks and Traces
- Birds
- Fossils
- Rocks and Minerals
- Paleoindian

The inquiry approach used to develop the topics permits individual or group use of the kits. One way to use the kits to encourage library visits and use is to reserve them for every two weeks and use them as a basis for a science club. You may use the kits alone or add related games and activities that use library resources.

There is no charge for using the kits except the cost of shipping - $10 to $15. For more information or to reserve the kits call:

HOW TO ORDER:
Use the order blanks located in the back of the catalog. Please state article number, quantity, and how you want merchandise shipped. Correspondence should not be included on the order blank but on separate paper.

HOW TO PAY FOR THE ORDER:
- CASH WITH ORDER: Remittance should be made by cashier check or money order. Remittance made by personal checks will cause unnecessary delays in the processing of your order. To expedite your order, we suggest you use your Mastercard or VISA.

C.O.D. SHIPMENTS, ALL C.O.D. — CASH ON DELIVERY: orders must be accompanied by a deposit of 25% of the total amount of your order. All C.O.D. shipments are subject to a C.O.D. fee collected by the carrier. Checks will be accepted for C.O.D. shipments to firms who furnish us with their bank references. This form may be obtained upon written request.

OPEN ACCOUNT: Open account terms are Net 10 Days and are extended to all firms who furnish us with three open account trade references and a bank reference. Credit applications will be furnished upon written request.

TERMS TO ORGANIZATIONS: We extend open account terms to all recognized Fraternal and Veterans Organizations, Churches, American Legion Posts, Public and Parochial Schools, County Extension Services, Volunteer Fire Departments, U.S. Governmental Agencies and Chambers of Commerce. WE REQUIRE A PURCHASE ORDER OR AUTHORIZED SIGNATURE ON THE ORGANIZATION'S LETTERHEAD FOR ALL ORDERS. PAYMENT IS DUE WITHIN 10 DAYS AFTER EVENT.

MINIMUM ORDER: Our policy does not hold to ordering a minimum quantity; however, due to the increasing costs of handling, packing and shipping, there will be a surcharge of $3.00 on all orders less than $35.00 plus a minimum of $5.00 for shipping costs. Full payment must accompany the order.

SHIPPING: All prices in this catalog are F.O.B. Omaha. We do not assume responsibility for shipping costs. Include with your order approximately 10% for shipping costs. If your shipping costs are more than 10% you will be billed for the difference. If less than 10% you will be refunded. We ship all shipments UPS, unless otherwise specified.

TO HAWAII, ALASKA, PUERTO RICO AND ALL OVERSEAS CUSTOMERS: Please pay careful attention to the following when ordering:
1. Orders shipped via surface Parcel Post must be received two months in advance. Please include 33% to cover approximate postage costs.
2. Orders shipped via Air Parcel or United Parcel Blue Label (if served in your area) must be received two weeks in advance. Please include 50% to cover approximate postage costs.

ACTUAL FREIGHT COSTS will be billed to you on your invoice.

RETURNS: We will not accept returns of merchandise for any reason WITHOUT WRITTEN AUTHORIZATION. You must obtain a return authorization form which must accompany your returns or they will not be accepted. Authorization forms will be furnished upon written request. Return merchandise prepaid via UPS or insured Parcel Post. We cannot accept returns on a C.O.D. or Collect basis. All merchandise is carefully inspected, packed securely and delivered to the transportation company in good condition. Our responsibility for damage cease when your order is accepted and signed for by the carrier. If your shipment appears to have been damaged, have the delivering agent make a notation to that effect on your delivery receipt. Promptly unpack and inspect the contents and notify the DELIVERY AGENT AT ONCE of any damage and file a claim with the agent for the merchandise damaged.

NEBRASKA RETAIL SALES TAX: Merchant sale sold for resale only. Nebraska customers must furnish Resale Tax Number or pay the applicable State and local sales tax.

FAST, FAST, SERVICE!!!: A customer will be happy to know that most of the time their order is shipped from our warehouse within 48-hours after receipt when you provide us with your customer account number. Most orders are shipped UPS although other modes of transportation are available or necessary. Following is a table listing approximate delivery time from Omaha, Nebraska.
