This resource manual is one of the components of "Work Skills," a set of competency-based instructional materials written for low-level readers that prepares students with specific job search and job keeping skills. ("Work Skills" is part of the "Connections" package, which represents a synthesis of significant work on education and employment and presents a coordinated set of resources to assist school administrators, counselors, teachers, and employers in helping students in their school and work transitions.) This resource manual contains an instructor's guide that provides strategies for implementing the "Work Skills" materials and a set of black line masters for all consumable student worksheets. The Instructor's Guide describes the components of "Work Skills": Orientation to the World of Work, Job Search Skills and Work Maturity Skills. Information is provided on the purpose, outcomes, benefits, users, focus, components, use, preparation, distribution, outline, and teacher role for each of the components. Suggestions for teaching each of the modules and supplementary activities are also provided. Student handouts, worksheets, and evaluation checklists are included for duplication/distribution and teacher use. (KC)

FOREWORD

Current labor market trends suggest that improving the school and work transitions of youth is a national priority. Over 25 percent of our nation's youth drop out of high school before they graduate. In large cities, the dropout rates are even higher at approximately 50 percent. Of those who do graduate, about 30 percent make high school graduation the end of their formal education and the starting point for work. These dropouts and recent high school graduates represent an entry-level labor pool that is changing in composition as we move toward the year 2000.

In the next 15 years, the proportion of the labor force in the 16 to 24-year age range is predicted to decline from 30 percent to 16 percent, and the youth who are in this age range are likely to be the kinds that employers have been able to overlook in the past—poorly motivated, lacking basic skills, and unprepared for the responsibilities and demands of work.

For students, their parents, the community, and society as a whole, the costs of inadequately prepared high school graduates and disconnected youth are high, relating to problems that include poverty, alcohol and drug abuse, pregnancy, single parenting, crime, and unemployment. For employers, the costs can make it impossible for their firms to compete in today's world markets—a competition that requires firms to have competent, skilled workers who will be productive and easy to train.

Clearly, schools must become more effective in preparing students to succeed in work that is appropriate and satisfying to them and their employers. And, they must enlist the support, expertise, and wisdom of business, industry, and the community to help them in preparing youth for school and work transitions.

The National Center for Research in Vocational Education has over 20 years of research, development, implementation, and dissemination experience directed at connecting students to work. The CONNECTIONS: SCHOOL AND WORK TRANSITIONS, which represents a synthesis of significant work on education and employment, presents a coordinated set of resources to help school administrators, counselors, teachers, and even employers help students in their school and work transitions. The CONNECTIONS resources include a connector's resource guide, classroom materials including a videotape, a Credentials for Employment document and career folder, and two career information guides/hooks. Two orientation videotapes are also included in the package, a 30-minute documentary entitled "A National Perspective on Youth Employment," and a 10-minute orientation to the package topic and components entitled "Introducing Connections."

Resources

The Connector's Guide contains a set of 7 resources for administrators, counselors, teachers, and employers that offer strategies and techniques for affecting successful youth transitions from school to work. Individual resources in this looseleaf Connector's Guide are as follows:

- Introduction to Connections presents program coordinators with the background information, philosophy, components, and use of the CONNECTIONS materials.
An Action Guide to Youth Employment presents recommendations for effecting positive youth transitions from school to work, strategies for implementing the recommendations, and research findings and data that support the recommendations.

Assessing and Planning with Students outlines the overall processes for assessing students' needs, skills, attitudes, and interests and in developing individual career plans.

Involving the Community in Transitions outlines steps in planning and implementing school-community linkages and the competencies needed by school-community coordinators.

Placing Students in Jobs provides an overview of steps needed in developing, implementing, and evaluating placement programs.

Following Students into the World of Work focuses on steps in planning follow-up studies, data collection, and reporting, as well as developing and delivering follow-through services.

Resources for Connections identifies print materials that support the CONNECTIONS resources.

Curriculum Materials

The Employer's Choice is a research-based, multimedia set of instructional materials to prepare students for job market success. Individual components of The Employer's Choice are as follows:

- Priorities That Count uses data from completed employer questionnaires to illustrate how employers are influenced to hire and retain workers. Through selected activities, students are led to develop a realistic view of employer standards and to make plans for acquiring the skills employers want.

- The Job Search uses a videotape of simulated job interviews together with job applications to present facts about employers' responses to applicants at each stage of the job hiring process. By assessing the videotaped interviews and by role-playing the job application and interview process, students learn to perfect their job search techniques.

- On the Job uses a series of case studies to present the real-life situations and experiences young people encounter in getting a job, becoming the insider, training at the work site, and leaving a job. As students examine the consequences of various behaviors and attitudes, they begin to develop their own strategies for navigating the job search.

- Resource Manual contains an Instructor's Guide that provides strategies for implementing The Employer's Choice materials and a set of black line masters for all consumable student materials.

Work Skills is a set of competency-based instructional materials written for low-level readers, that prepares students with specific job search and job keeping skills. The components of Work Skills are as follows:
Orientation to the World of Work provides practical, thought-provoking activities to help students analyze, plan, research, and decide why and how they will work.

Job Search Skills provides detailed instruction for developing the skills necessary to prepare resumes, find job leads, complete job applications, interview for jobs, and assess job offers.

Work Maturity Skills provides detailed instructions for developing the competencies employers want their employees to have as they work on the job.

Resource Manual contains an Instructor's Guide that provides strategies for implementing the Work Skills materials and a set of black line masters for all consumable student worksheets.

Career Passports is a concise, systematic process for developing experience-based resumes. The components are as follows:

- Student Workbook contains worksheets for recording personal data, work and non-work experience, skills, knowledge, and attitudes gained through these experiences, and other information that would be useful to employers or college admissions persons.

Documentation

Credentials for Employment is a certified record of the student's aptitudes, achievements, job skills, and work habits and behaviors. Completed by teachers, guidance counselors, employers, and community people, this document serves as evidence of the student's preparedness for work.

Supportive Materials

The Career Portfolio is a folder to hold documents that reflect the student's qualifications for work. A list of key documents for students to assemble appears on the front of the folder.

Additional Resources

Career Information in the Classroom is an insert into training resource designed to help K-12 teachers use the Occupational Outlook Handbook to infuse career information into their classroom curriculum.

Dignity in the Workplace: Labor Studies Curriculum Guide for Vocational School Teachers presents background information and a variety of activities for infusing labor studies into the curriculum. Student materials include 8 modules and numerous fact sheets on unions, industries, and the economy.

The National Center wishes to acknowledge the leadership provided to this effort by Dr. Robert E. Taylor, recently retired Executive Director. Appreciation is also extended to the National Institute of Education for funding much of the research and effort that has gone into The Employer's Choice materials, the Department of Labor for similar funding of Work Skills and the National Institute for Work and Learning for their development of the Career Passport.

Additional recognition and appreciation is afforded to the Office of Vocational and Adult Education for funding the synthesis effort that has made this package possible. The significant and comprehensive materials on the topic of youth transitions could not have been assembled and developed into usable package components without their support.

Special recognition is due the following National Center staff who played major individual roles in the development of the CONNECTIONS package: Richard J. Miguel, Associate Director for Applied Research and Development, and Robert D. Bhærman, Project Director, for leadership and direction of the project; Robert D. Bhærman, Research Specialist, and Bettina A. Lankard, Program Associate, for synthesizing and developing the documents; Bob Gordon, Research Specialist, and Gary Dean, Graduate Research Associate, for their assistance in synthesizing information; and Jeanne Thomas, for word processing the documents. Appreciation is extended to the National Center editorial and media services personnel for editorial review, graphics, and production of the documents.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The WORK SKILLS curriculum materials provide individualized, competency-based instruction to help students acquire the skills they need to obtain and retain jobs. Written at the 4th-grade reading level, these materials provide detailed step-by-step instructions for completing a series of tasks related to given competencies. Evaluation checklists are included for use in analyzing and recording if the tasks have been completed according to the standards identified in the performance objectives.

Orientation to the World of Work introduces students to the rationale and benefits associated with meaningful work and helps students analyze, plan, research, and decide why and how they will work.

Job Search Skills and Work Maturity Skills each contain a set of competency books with instructions that lead students to develop the skills required to achieve the competency addressed in each book. The five competency books in Job Search Skills are entitled:

- Prepare for the Job Search
- Search for Available Jobs
- Apply for Jobs
- Interview for Jobs
- Handle Job Offers

The seven competency books in Work Maturity Skills are entitled:

- Present a Positive Image
- Exhibit Positive Work Attitudes
- Practice Good Work Habits
- Practice Ethical Behavior
- Communicate Effectively
- Accept Responsibility
- Cooperate with Others

Work Skills is targeted for use with high school students who have reading limitations, however, it is beneficial to use with any student who requires detailed, specific instruction and a structure for monitoring progress.
Developed for the Department of Labor’s Office on Youth Programs, Work Skills components were reviewed and tested in Fort Wayne, Indiana, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; and various sites in Kentucky.
Orientation to the World of Work

Purpose
Orientation to the World of Work helps students analyze, plan, research, and decide why and how they will work.

Outcomes
Students learn to identify the personal benefits of working, match their needs and wants with the benefits various jobs offer, and use the decision-making process to make career decisions and set career goals.

Benefit
Students will be able to make more informed career decisions and be able to set short-term and long-term career goals that reflect their priorities.

Users
Orientation to the World of Work is for 9th- and 10th-grade students who have little understanding of the value and benefit of working and the priorities that influence a person's career decisions.

Focus
The activities in Orientation to the World of Work lead students to—

- examine the basic needs that motivate people to work,
- identify personal needs that might be satisfied through responsible work,
- learn about ways work can help satisfy their needs (and wants),
- match job facts to personal and work goals, and
- make decisions about the career and job paths they will follow.
Content

Orientation to the World of Work includes two components:

- This Instructor Guide which explains the goals and objectives of Orientation to the World of Work, the organization and content of the student guide and implementation procedures. (Black-line masters of student worksheets included in the Work Skills Resource Manual.)

- The student guide, Orientation to the World of Work, which contains information and activities that help students address the following questions:
  - What motivates you and other people to work?
  - What needs will influence your career choices?
  - What facts will help you match your needs to a career?
  - How can you make good decisions?

Use

Orientation to the World of Work can be used in various high school classroom settings—business, career education, home economics classes for example—and as a guidance tool.

The estimated user time is 10-20 hours (or classroom periods) which can be allocated over a one- to two-week period. Students will need time to think about the concepts presented and to discuss their ideas with you, the counselor, and each other, so time will vary depending upon student characteristics and abilities.

Preparation

Reproduce copies of the black-line masters of student worksheets for Orientation to the World of Work.

Distribution

Distribute to each student one copy of Orientation to the World of Work and the worksheets.

Orientation to the World of Work: A Walk-Through

Students read each section of the Orientation to the World of Work reflecting on and answering the questions presented in the text.

There are opportunities within the sections for group discussions so that students will gain greater perspective about the topics they are exploring. Orchestrate those discussions and present additional questions to stimulate further discussion of the topics.
Your Role

In addition to facilitating each student's use of this component, your primary roles are--

- to create an environment in which reflection and discussion can occur,
- to help the student understand the ways in which meaningful work can be important to all members of society... ways in which it can satisfy personal needs and wants,
- to work directly with students and their counselors for ongoing assessment as it relates to students' Employability Development Plans (EDPs).

Familiarize yourself with the program and instructional materials so you thoroughly understand the concepts as they are presented.

Encourage students to be as honest and candid as possible in their written answers to questions in Orientation to the World of Work. Lead them to understand that their privacy will be respected and maintained.

Provide opportunities for group discussion. Use the questions in Orientation to the World of Work. Supplement with the activities on the next pages of this guide.

In order to provide a nonthreatening atmosphere and to encourage an open exchange of feelings, some group rules should be established.

Have the rules come from the group rather than from you. Some examples of typical group rules for interaction are--

- everyone must participate,
- name calling or other actions demeaning to a person are prohibited, and
- everyone is free to express feelings, thoughts, and opinions without receiving criticism.

The important thing is to demonstrate that many different opinions or viewpoints are accepted on a particular topic. No one opinion or viewpoint is right or wrong.

Supplementary Activities

You can initiate additional types of group activities to supplement those in Orientation to the World of Work.* The use of such group activities has several benefits:

- A variety of group activities stimulates interest in the individual activities.

*The material in the remainder of this section was adapted from Catherine C King-Fitch, Career Planning System, Senior High School Level. (Columbus The National Center for Research in Vocational Education, The Ohio State University, 1977).
Informal discussions can help students to be honest with themselves. For some individuals, the process of examining one's needs, values, and other aspects of the self can be an uncomfortable experience. Interaction with others who are dealing with the same process can make this experience less overwhelming and enable the students to be more realistic in assessing themselves.

Group activities can be carefully chosen to reinforce the learning that is taking place through individual work. Students who are having trouble understanding a concept can resolve the difficulty in the group discussion before proceeding.

If possible, include a counselor in the activities. The presence of the counselor is important for several reasons:

- The perspective of the counselor—who may have more familiarity with career options, educational options, placement, and other topics—is important.
- The presence of two leaders will facilitate simultaneous small-group activity.
- The counselor may have access to resource people, guidance publications and films, testing materials, and other supplementary materials that will be useful in conducting the program.
- It is important that students become acquainted with the counselor as someone who can facilitate effective planning. This is an important outgrowth of this activity and will encourage constructive use of the guidance function during and after participation in the program and particularly during assessment for the EDP (Employability Development Plan).

A variety of group discussion questions are included in Orientation to the World of Work. These questions are keyed to the topics that are presented. Additional types of group activities are included on the next pages of this guide. They are listed under the section titles of Orientation to the World of Work to which they relate.

The abundance and variety of activities will make it easier for you to select appropriate activities for the students. If desirable, two or more activities can be selected and conducted at the same time with small groups of students since not all students will be addressing the same topics at the same time.
GROUP DISCUSSION
QUESTIONS:
What Motivates You and Other People to Work?

1. Discuss the concept of needs. Present these questions.
   a. Do you agree with the explanations of basic needs?
   b. Do your needs exist in the order shown in the activity? If not, how do they differ?
   c. Can you tell what needs motivate you? What about unconscious needs—needs that are triggered by some event or experience in your life but which you rarely attribute to that experience?
   d. Why don't satisfied needs motivate people?

2. Describe situations in your own life when you were motivated by the five needs. Ask students to do the same. Sharing about yourself will help students feel more comfortable with you and the group and also more willing to share.

3. Have students conduct a survey of family, friends, and other significant people in their lives, asking what will be or has been the most motivating need in their lives. Pool the findings and learn which needs are most frequently at the top of the list.
Group Discussion Questions:
What Needs Will influence Your Career Choice?

1. Discuss the topic of values.* Help students understand that identified needs reflect values and that values influence decisions.

   a. Where do values come from? (Values come from society or culture. They are learned from parents, teachers, other significant adults or role models, and, to some extent, from peers.) Parental influence is great.

   b. What are some areas in which we typically draw upon our values?

   - politics
   - religion
   - work
   - leisure time
   - education
   - love, sex
   - culture (music, art, literature)
   - friends
   - material
   - possessions
   - personal tastes
   - money
   - health
   - rules, authority
   - interpersonal
   - relations
   - family

   c. What happens when one person's values are not consistent with the values of society?

   d. Do you think that you have any values that are a hindrance?

*In a discussion of values, students might be apt to voice opinions and answers they think the instructor expects. Therefore, make an effort to accept all statements without judging their worth. Even the most antisocial opinions should be accepted at face value. Nonacceptance can be transmitted in many ways, including body language, facial expression, tone of voice, and eye movement. Statements can be accepted by listening carefully and then simply clarifying what was said ("You said that you felt . . .") or by actually implying some acceptance ("I can understand how you might feel that way.")
2. Discuss any differences between what younger people and older people identify as important personal needs. Ask students to survey a number of people of different age groups—family, friends, neighbors, and so forth.

3. Discuss in what ways careers do and do not satisfy people.

Group Discussion Questions:

What Facts Will Help You Match Your Needs to a Career

1. Discuss reasons why gathering facts is important in any decision-making process.

2. Ask students to talk with each other, family members, friends, and others. Have them find out about situations when lack of information caused someone to make decisions they later regretted. Have the students discuss their findings with the group.

3. Identify and explain sources of information students can use when making career decisions, such as Career Information In the Classroom, Occupational Outlook Handbook, and the Encyclopedia of Careers. Find out what's available for students in your library.
Group Discussion Questions:
How Can You Make Good Decisions?

1. Identify a problem situation that you think is appropriate for the group to examine. Divide the students into small groups. Give each group the problem and ask them to apply the decision-making steps. When they finish, compare the alternatives, sources of information, identified needs, values used, projected consequences, choices, plans, and general approaches of the groups. Discuss how the groups acted differently or similarly. Explain what might have caused the differences. (One example you might present here is the case of a person who is trying to decide between illegal kinds of work and lawful types of employment.)

2. Present the following theory about risk taking in decision making.

Some people feel that there are four basic strategies or approaches to risk taking:

- Wish strategy—Choosing the alternative that might lead to the most desirable result, regardless of risk
- Safe strategy—Choosing the alternative that is most likely to bring success
- Escape strategy—Choosing the alternative that is most likely to avoid the worst result
- Combination strategy—Choosing the alternative that has both high probability (safe strategy) and high desirability (wish strategy)

Discuss the strategies. Sample discussion questions follow.
a. Do you agree that these strategies apply to the way people approach risk?

b. Can you think of any approaches not included here?

c. Have you used any of the strategies? Describe the situations in which you used each kind.

d. Do you think a person uses one kind of strategy or different ones in different situations?

e. Do you think such categories of approach are useful?

f. Do you think a person can control the way he or she approaches risk? What are the implications for career choice if a person can't control it?

3. Ask students to describe a significant choice they have made in which there was risk involved. Ask them to describe the alternatives, the risks, and the choices made.

a. Discuss ways that on-the-job decisions involve weighing consequences and calculating risks.

b. What are some strong motivators in deciding whether or not to take risks?

4. Ask the group to share some of the decisions they have had to make in which they weighed consequences and risks. Have them say if they feel that their final decisions were influenced by their identified needs. Ask them to give specific examples.

5. Present the following theory about decision-making strategies.

A strategy is a plan of action. A decision-making strategy is a plan for making a decision or solving a problem. When you put all the steps together to solve the problem, you are using a strategy.

A strategy is not good or bad or right or wrong. Different strategies are used at different times and in different situations by different people.

These are some kinds of decision-making strategies:

- Planning—Using a plan that will bring satisfying results. Balancing emotion and reason; weighing the facts

- Impulsive—Taking the first alternative; using little thought; not examining the facts; "jumping off the deep end"
- Compliant—Following someone else's plans; letting someone else decide; "I don't care—whatever you want"

- Delaying—Putting off a decision; postponing thinking about it; "I'll cross that bridge when I come to it"

- Paralysis—Knowing you have to decide but being unable to do it; being unable to face up to it

- Fatalistic—Leaving it to chance or fate; what will be, will be; "it's all in the cards;" "let the chips fall where they may"

- Agonizing—Being overwhelmed by all the alternatives; getting lost in the data; "I don't know which way to turn"

- Intuitive—Doing what feels right without examining it; basing a decision on some unexplainable sense; "I don't know why, but it just feels right"

Discuss the decision-making strategies and ask students to describe situations in which they have used some of them. Use these discussion questions:

a. Do you agree with these descriptions?

b. Can you think of any approaches not included here?

c. Have you made decisions that do not fit into any of these categories? What categories would you add?

d. What strategies have been most effective for you?

6. Present the following theory about commitment and how it affects decision making:

One theorist believes that choices are like steps that cannot be retraced. By making choices, one builds commitments. One starts a motion in a certain direction. Then it becomes more and more difficult to change direction. This makes each decision very important to one's future.

Discuss these questions:

a. Do you agree with this theory?

b. How does this theory relate to your experiences? Have you made decisions that have resulted in a sense of commitment? If so, what were they?

c. Are there directions that you feel you could not take at this point because of decisions you made earlier?
Discuss as a group how an individual can examine his or her commitments.

a. How do people know they are truly committed to something?

b. How are commitments related to goals?

c. What do actions say to other people? What do they tell other people about you?

Ask each person to answer the following questions by listing the questions and their answers on a sheet of paper. Ask them to keep the list for reference.

a. To whom and what are you committed at the present time?

b. What commitments are you ready to eliminate?

c. What commitments are you ready to add?
Job Search Skills

Purpose

Job Search Skills helps students develop the specific competencies they need to get jobs.

Outcomes

Students learn how to perform the steps required to—
- prepare themselves to begin the job search,
- search for available jobs,
- apply for jobs,
- interview for jobs, and
- handle job offers.

Benefit

Students will be able to conduct the job search with skill, having mastered each of the steps that lead to competence and having that competence certified by the instructor.

Users

Job Search Skills is for high school students who are low-level readers and who are or will soon be seeking full-time or part-time work. These students can be in-school teenage youth, youth who are in school only part-time, youth who have dropped out and are now reconnecting to school, or youth who are displaced but are returning to school for job counseling.

Background Facts

Job Search Skills was developed for the Department of Labor's Office of Youth Programs to help unemployed youth find jobs. The instructional design, which is individualized and competency-based, is especially useful with students who have limited reading and organizational skills and who lack self-discipline. In addition, the open-entry, open-exit feature of competency-based instruction allows for the flexibility often required in a classroom of students with diverse knowledge, skill, experiences, and behaviors.

Focus

Job Search Skills is organized around five major competencies that employers, placement officers, guidance counselors, and personnel directors have identified as vital for job seekers to possess. These competencies are:

1.0 Prepare for the Job Search
2.0 Search for Available Jobs
3.0 Apply for Jobs
4.0 Interview for Jobs
5.0 Handle Job Offers

Following each competency is a series of tasks that one must successfully perform in order to develop the competency. Each task is broken down into operational units, or parts of tasks. A complete outline of Job Search Skills appears on the next page. The competency statements are preceded by whole numbers; the tasks are numbered with decimals; and the operational units are designated by letter.

For each of the operational units there are criterion-referenced evaluation procedures that call for students to demonstrate understanding and performance of the stated competency. These represent the measurable outcomes of the program. The nonquantifiable outcomes include self-confidence, a network of contacts that could be helpful in other job searches, and an understanding of what it means to prepare for something, whether it be a job search or a job task.

Content

Job Search Skills includes two components:

- This instructor Guide which explains the goals and objectives of Job Search Skills, the organization of the information, and implementation procedures. Black line masters of student worksheets and evaluation checklists are included in the Work Skills Resource Manual.

- Job Search Skills—A set of 5 modules that contain instructional information for developing the five job search competencies.
Job Search Skills Outline

1.0: Prepare for the Job Search

1.01: Choose a Job and Prepare for Employment
   A. Determine the Jobs for Which You Are Qualified
   B. Define the Hiring Practices for the Job

Use

Job Search Skills can be used in various classroom settings such as business, career education, and English classes.

It can also be used as part of a guidance program, presented through the collective efforts of the classroom instructor and the job placement instructor. It should involve representatives from business and industry to function as advisors who can guide students and impress upon them the need for developing effective job search skills.

Job Search Skills is designed for flexibility. Students can work independently, each progressing at his or her own pace, giving more time to the difficult units and less time to those that are easy for him or her.

The program can be presented to an entire classroom of students for a given time each day. However, all students need not begin the program at the same time. Students can enter at any point... and exit with equal ease when they have acquired the competencies they need to find jobs and get hired.

The estimated user time is 40 hours. This time can be divided into four weeks of two-hour days or eight weeks of one-hour days. Students will need time to practice or try out the skills they are developing, so it is best to extend this program over a period of time.

Preparation

Reproduce copies of the black-line masters of student worksheets and evaluation checklists for the five Job Search Skills competencies.

Distribution

Distribute a copy of each Job Search Skills module to each student.

Job Search Skills:
A Walk-Through

The 42 operational units in the student modules are sequenced to follow the 5 job search competencies identified by employers, counselors, placement officers, and personnel directors.

Students begin an operational unit in a module and read the competency, task, and operational unit statements which are listed at the top of the page. See the following example.
Competency 1.0: Prepare for the Job Search

Task 1.01: Choose a Job and Prepare for Employment

Operational Unit 1.01A: Determine the Jobs for Which You are Qualified

The performance objective follows and is the next statement students read. This objective states—

- the conditions under which students begin performance,
- the job-related performance expected of them, and
- the standards of performance.

For example:

- Given instructions for learning about self and jobs,
- you will be able to identify at least one job for which you feel suited
- to the satisfaction of your instructor.

After students complete all the steps and procedures in one competency, they are asked to decide if they are able to demonstrate competence.

If they are in doubt about any part of the unit, they must seek your help and repeat the unit. If they feel they have satisfactorily completed the unit, they will bring their worksheets to you for evaluation.

You must determine the accuracy of answers students give on their worksheets and observe and advise them as they role play the techniques they are attempting to learn.

After your review, rate students against the items on their evaluation checklists. Observe their behaviors in the program, advising them when necessary. The checklists are measures and records of students' competencies. Ongoing assessment throughout the program will allow you to determine and record whether students are using the skills they demonstrate in the evaluation.
If possible, ask employers to visit the class periodically and to rate students on the competencies. Employers will be able to make objective observations of students and will also, through their presence, convince students of the importance of job search skills.

Use the Job Search Skills Competency Record to record each student's progress (see sample on the next page). The completed form will serve as a record for students to show potential employers when they search for jobs. A black-line master of this form is included in the Work Skills Resource Manual.

Your Role

In addition to facilitating each student's use of Job Search Skills, your primary roles are—

1. to create an environment in which reflection, discussion, and practice of skills can occur;

2. to help the student understand the relevance of the competencies, tasks, and operational units and to provide, when possible, opportunities for role playing and simulations with group critique;

3. to involve people from business and industry—personnel directors and other hiring employers—who can observe students' role-playing sessions and offer them advice on ways to improve their job search techniques; and

4. to work directly with students and their counselors for ongoing assessment of students' needs and plans.

Familiarize yourself with the Job Search Skills so you thoroughly understand the concepts as they are presented.

Give special attention to advising students on ways to answer questions presented on applications and in interviews. Instructions in the operational units advise students to refrain from answering questions that might elicit negative responses from employers and to leave the answer spaces blank. If this could be illegal for any reason, please inform students. Tell them when and under what conditions omitting information is illegal.

For example, some applications contain questions that ask applicants to list defects or illnesses that would affect their ability to perform the work under consideration. When this appears, the applicant is usually asked to sign a statement to verify that all facts are complete and accurate. Omission of these facts could result in immediate dismissal.

Advise students to be cautious, not only in what they answer, but also in determining whether or not they have been victims of discrimination. While students should know how to react in such circumstances, too much or inappropriate reaction may prevent them from getting the jobs they seek.

Make the following resources available:
- Dictionaries
- Telephones and telephone books
- Typewriters
- Mirrors
- Additional materials that will help simulate the job environment
- Occupational Outlook Handbooks
- English usage reference books

Supplementary Activities

Resources relating to job search should be incorporated into or coordinated with this program. These resources may include visitors from industry and the community and other relevant books and visual aids. The Employer's Choice materials, which are based on current employer research data, are particularly relevant. Also part of the Connections: School and Work Transitions package, The Employer's Choice materials include The Employer's Choice: Priorities that Count (instructor guide, student guide, employer questionnaire, and worksheets), The Employer's Choice: The Job Search (instructor guide, videotape of interviews with student instructions on use, and worksheets), and The Employer's Choice: On the Job (instructor guide and student book of case studies of young people engaged in getting a job, becoming an insider, training at the worksite, and leaving a job). Skillful coordination of such resources with the Job Search Skills training program can be instrumental in convincing students of the importance of being prepared for the job search.

The Job Search Skills curriculum includes role-playing activities, case studies, group discussions, simulation, and self-examination. Whenever possible, introduce other activities that will improve students' abilities to assess self, work situations, and interpersonal relationships and allow them to practice their job search techniques.
Job Search Skills is written at a low reading level, with the exception of specific occupational and employment terminology. When such terms are used, sufficient instruction is included in the materials to enable students to understand their meanings.

Some students may already have completed the Work Maturity Skills training program. Others, who were not involved in the program, will need to demonstrate such skills as they conduct their job searches.

A list of work maturity competencies is presented in the following section. Use the Work Maturity Skills Competency Record to assess students in these areas as you observe them in the classroom setting. Discuss the concept of work maturity skills and offer advice when necessary. If you determine that a student needs more training in this area, discuss this with the student's counselor and make arrangements to get him or her enrolled in the Work Maturity Skills training program.
Work Maturity Skills

Purpose

Work Maturity Skills helps students develop the competencies they need to retain jobs.

Outcomes

Students learn how to perform the steps required to—

- present a positive image,
- exhibit positive work attitudes,
- practice good work habits,
- practice ethical behavior,
- communicate effectively,
- accept responsibility, and
- cooperate with others.

Benefit

Students will be able to meet employers' standards and will thereby experience greater success and satisfaction on the job.

Users

Work Maturity Skills is for high school students who read at a low level and who are or will soon be seeking full-time or part-time work. These students can be in-school teenage youth, youth who are in school only part-time, youth who have dropped out and are now reconnecting to school, or youth who are displaced but are returning to school for employment counseling.

Background Facts

Work Maturity Skills was developed for the U.S. Department of Labor, Office of Youth Programs to help youth become employable and able to retain jobs. Employers continue to seek workers who are reliable, self-confident, cooperative, ethical, and willing to learn. They want workers who get along well with others, who accept authority, who communicate well, who have good work attitudes and habits, and who assume responsibility for their work. These employers' needs are the basis for the Work Maturity Skills program.

The instructional design of Work Maturity Skills is individualized and competency-based—a design especially useful with students who have limited reading and organizational skills and who are not self-directed. The open-entry, open-exit feature of competency-based instruction allows for the flexibility often required in a classroom of students with diverse knowledge, skill, experience, and behaviors.

Focus

Work Maturity Skills is organized around seven major competencies that employers have identified as vital for on the job success:

1.0 Present a Positive Image
2.0 Exhibit Positive Work Attitudes
3.0 Practice Good Work Habits
4.0 Practice Ethical Behavior
5.0 Communicate Effectively
6.0 Accept Responsibility
7.0 Cooperate with Others

Following each competency is a series of tasks that one must successfully perform in order to develop the competency. Each task is broken down into operational units (parts of tasks).

A complete outline of Work Maturity Skills follows. The competency statements are preceded by whole numbers; the tasks are numbered with decimals; and the operational units are designated by letter.

For each of the operational units there are criterion-referenced evaluation procedures that call for students to demonstrate understanding and performance of the stated competency. These evaluations represent the measurable outcomes of the program. The nonquantifiable outcomes include continuing respect for the workplace, supervisors, and co-workers; willingness to follow the employer's rules and procedures; and commitment to work quality and productivity.

Contents

Work Maturity Skills includes the following components:

- This Instructor Guide which explains the goals and objectives of Work Maturity Skills, the organization of the information, and implementation procedures. Black-line masters of student worksheets and evaluation checklists are included in the Work Skills Resource Manual.

- Work Maturity Skills—A set of seven modules that contain instructional information for developing the seven work maturity competencies

Use

Work Maturity Skills can be used in various classroom settings such as business, career education, and English classes. It can also be used as part of a vocational training program or as part of a guidance program. It should involve representatives from business and industry to function as advisors who can guide students and impress upon them the need for developing work maturity skills.

Work Maturity Skills is designed for flexibility. Students can work independently, each progressing at his or her own pace, giving more time to the difficult units and less time to those that are easy. Although numbered, the competency modules are not sequential.

The program can be presented to an entire classroom of students for a given time each day. However, all students need not begin the program at the same time. Students can enter at any point and exit with equal ease when they have acquired the skills they need to be employable.

One way to determine which units a student needs is to review his or her Employability Development Plan or any such similar plan. Not all students need training in each competency. Some students have already mastered certain skills. If you are unsure of students’ skills, give them the evaluation checklists from the operational units. If they can demonstrate competency in a unit, you can verify that competency on the evaluation checklist and omit that unit from the instruction. However, it is best to conduct ongoing assessment of students in all work maturity areas throughout the program. Make sure students are practicing the competencies they have demonstrated as they perform other tasks in the program.

The estimated user time is 40 hours. This time can be divided into four weeks of two-hour days or eight weeks of one-hour days. Students will need time to practice or try out the skills they are developing, so it is best to extend this program over a period of time.

Preparation
Reproduce copies of the black-line masters of student worksheets and evaluation checklists for the seven work maturity competencies.

Distribution
Distribute the appropriate Work Maturity Skills module or modules to each student.

Work Maturity Skills:
A Walk-Through
The 49 operational units in the student modules are sequenced to follow the 7 work maturity competencies identified by employers. Students begin an operational unit in the module and read the competency, task, and operational unit statements which are listed at the top of the page. See the following example:

 Competency 2.0: Exhibit Positive Work Attitudes

 Task 2.01: Use Basic Social Skills

 Operational Unit 2.01A: Assume Positive Behavior

The performance objective follows and is the next statement students read. This objective states—

- the conditions under which students begin performance,
- the performance expected of them, and
- the standards of performance.

For example:

- Given an assessment sheet,
- you will be able to find out your behavior strengths and weaknesses and follow a plan to improve given behaviors
- to the satisfaction of the instructor.
After students complete all the steps and procedures in one competency, they are asked to decide if they are able to demonstrate competence.

If they are in doubt about any part of the unit, they must seek your help and repeat the unit. If they feel that they have satisfactorily completed the unit, they will bring their worksheets to you for evaluation.

You must determine the accuracy of answers students give on their worksheets. Only one worksheet (Worksheet 6.02A) has a key which is contained at the end of this section. The key is required because Operational Unit 6.02B builds on these specific answers.

After you review the worksheets, rate students against the items on their evaluation checklists. Observe their behaviors in the program, advising them when necessary. These checklists are measures and records of students' competencies. Ongoing assessment throughout the program will allow you to determine and record if students are using the skills they demonstrated in the evaluation.

If possible, ask employers to visit the class periodically and to rate students on the competencies. Employers will be able to make objective observations of students and will also, through their presence, convince students of the importance of work maturity skills.

Use copies of the following Work Maturity Skills Competency Record Form to record each student's progress. The completed form will serve as a record for students to show to potential employers when they search for jobs. A black line master of this form is included in the Work Skills Resource Manual.

Your Role

In addition to facilitating each student's use of this program, your primary roles are—

- to create an environment in which reflection, discussion, and practice of skills can occur;
- to help the student understand the relevance of the competencies, tasks, and units and to provide, when possible, opportunities for work experience and for on-the-job assessment of the student's work maturity skills;
- to work directly with the student and his or her counselor for ongoing assessment of the student as it relates to his or her Employability Development Plan.

Work under Supervision
- Identify and Work within the Organizational Structure
- Cope with Conflict
Familiarize yourself with the program and instructional materials so you thoroughly understand the concepts as they are presented. For example, "Cope with Conflict," Operational Unit 7.02B, relates to coping with conflict over instructions given by supervisors. It is part of Task 7.02, "Work under Supervision." It does not relate to conflicts in interpersonal relationships. These conflicts are covered in "Use Basic Social Skills," Task 2.01.

You will need to provide several resources for students:
- a book on first aid
- a book that lists foods and related calories

The help of community workers and employers can enrich the program:
- Contact qualified persons to demonstrate proper and safe use of equipment to students and to observe and supervise their operation of the equipment if possible.
- Ask a dressmaker or tailor to demonstrate proper sewing techniques for maintaining and repairing clothes.
- Ask employers to speak to the class about the importance of work maturity skills.

Supplementary Activities

Resources relating to work maturity can and should be incorporated into or coordinated with this program. These resources may include other relevant books, audiovisual aids, visitors from industry and the community, field trips, and opportunities for work experience. The Employer's Choice materials, which are based on current employer research data are particularly relevant. Also part of the Connections: School and Work Transitions package. The Employer's Choice materials include Priorities that Count (instructor guide, student guide, employer questionnaire, and worksheets), The Job Search (instructor guide, videotape of interviews with student instructions on use, and worksheets), and On the Job (instructor guide and student book of case studies of young people engaged in getting a job, becoming an insider, training at the worksite, and leaving a job). Skillful coordination of such resources with the Work Maturity Skills training program can be instrumental in convincing participants of the importance of successful work adjustment.

The Work Maturity Skills Curriculum includes role-playing activities, case studies, group discussions, and self-examination. Whenever possible, introduce other activities that will improve students' abilities to assess self, work situations, and interpersonal relationships and allow them to practice their problem-solving techniques.

Work Maturity Skills is written at a low reading level with the exception of specific occupational and employment terminology. When such terms are used, information is provided to help students understand the meanings of these words. Be willing to provide additional help and explanation if necessary.
Worksheet 6.02: Key

Part 1
Problem: Carl is not getting the work done.

Part 2
Feelings: Carl—discouraged, annoyed
Carl’s staff—disgusted, bored

Action: Carl—works hard, speaks sharply, frowns, looks angry
Carl’s staff—doing their work, waste time—play cards

Part 4
Causes of problem:
1. Carl has too much work for one person to do.
2. The other press operator quit.
3. The printing machine is slower than the new models.

Part 5
Effects of the problem:
1. SENTO staff members are not getting their materials.
2. SENTO customers are not receiving their materials.
3. Carl is discouraged.
4. Carl is annoyed with other workers.

Worksheet 1.03A
Types of Resumes

Part 1

Chronological resume:

This type of resume shows education, training, and experiences arranged in order of date of occurrence. (See the sample on page 46.) This resume is best to use if you have no gaps in employment.

Functional resume:

This type of resume shows education, training, and experiences arranged in order of type of activity. (See the sample on page 47.) This resume is best to use if you do have gaps in employment. Use it to highlight specific types of experiences, too.

Part 2

Read the examples below. Check the type of resume to use in each case.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Job Goal: Medical Secretary</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Work Experiences:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1979-1981</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1975-1979</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1971-1975</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Are these work experiences related to the job? Do they reflect regular employment? Yes? Then the chronological resume is the one to use.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Job Goal: Medical Secretary</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Work Experiences:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1979-1981</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1975-1977</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1972-1973</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Are these different, unrelated types of jobs? Are there large gaps in employment? Then the functional resume is the one to use.

Competency 3.0  Apply for Jobs

Task 3.01: Fill Out Applications

Worksheet 3 01A  Evaluation Checklist 3.01A  Application Terms and Questions  Anticipate Questions
Worksheet 3 01B  Evaluation Checklist 3 01B  Sample Applications  Record Information Neatly, Clearly, Completely, and Correctly

Task 3.02: Present the Applications

Evaluation Checklist  Find Out Relevant Facts
Evaluation Checklist 3 02B  Seek an Appointment for an Interview
Worksheet 3.01A
Application Terms and Questions

Part 1

Read the words that follow. Look up these words in the dictionary. Write a definition under each word. Then, turn to the next page. Try to match words and definitions. It is important that you know these meanings. You must understand the words on an application form. Otherwise, you will be unable to answer the questions.

apprentice

aptitude
misdemeanor

bonded personal chronic qualifications

confidential
reference

disability
residence

specify
Match the definitions on the right to the words on the left. Draw a line from each word to its definition.

apprentice
- long-term, continuous, prolonged

aptitude
- any of several crimes, such as murder, rape or burglary; an offense considered more serious than other offenses and punished by a more serious sentence

bonded
- the place in which one lives

chronic
- a person who receives instruction in a trade, art, or business in return for working

confidential
- to state explicitly, to describe

disability
- a disabled state or condition

felony
- guaranteed; bound by agreement

legible
- a minor offense for which punishment might be a fine or imprisonment in a local jail

misdemeanor
- talent, ability, intelligence

personnel
- told in secret, communicated in confidence

qualifications
- a person to whom an employer may refer to for information about an applicant

residence
- employees

reference
- any quality, accomplishment, or ability that suits a person to a specific position or task

specify
- able to read
Part 2

Read the abbreviations of the words on the right. Think about why they are abbreviated in that way. Think about where these words might appear on an application. Which ones appear next to each other? (The letters m and f will be near each other. They stand for male and female.)

When you think you know the words and the definitions, turn the page. Do the matching activity. Test your ability to recognize definitions.

ans.  answer
avg.  average
B.D.  birth date
co.  company
corp.  corporation
dept.  department
depart.
exp. or exper.  experience
f  female
Ill.  Illinois (know the abbreviation of your state's name)
m  male
mo.  month
no.  number
rd.  road
S.S. No.  Social Security Number
soc. sec.  social security
str.  street
tel.  telephone
yr.  year
ZIP  zip code
Match the words on the right to the abbreviations on the left. Draw a line from each word to its abbreviation.

ans. female
avg. social security
B.D. male
co. birth date
corp. corporation
dep. experience
exp. or exper. answer
f telephone
Ill. zip code
m Social Security Number
mo. month
no. average
rd. Illinois
soc. sec. company
S.S. No. road
str. year
tel. number
yr. street
ZIP department
Part 3

There are several terms related to employee benefits. Read these terms. Know their definitions. You should not confuse the terms.

Workers’ compensation:

This is money people receive when they are injured on the job.

Unemployment compensation:

This money people receive through the bureau of employment services when they can’t find work.

Part 4

Be positive when you fill out an application. Be truthful . . . but be positive. Think about how employers will respond to your answers. Will they think better of you? No? Then delay answering the questions if possible. Leave blank the spaces provided for the answers. Discuss the questions in the interview if you are asked.

Some applications demand that you answer each question completely and truthfully. Omitting answers . . . leaving spaces blank . . . could be reason for dismissal. Talk with your instructor. Find out when you must answer all questions. Some questions are not legal for employers to ask.

Guidelines for answering difficult questions follow. Read them as you follow the procedures for the rest of this activity. Discuss them with other participants. Talk with your instructor. Find ways you could answer these questions in a positive way. Are there times when you should refuse to answer them? Are there times when you must answer them? You may comment about what you will answer to each question in the margins of the worksheet.

Now . . . return to Step 3, procedure a, at the beginning of this operational unit, and continue reading.

Part 5

Facts about parents:

What if a parent is unemployed . . . in prison . . . on welfare? Don’t state these facts. They do not give a good impression. And they are not facts about you. When asked for this information, you can—

- leave the space blank. The question is not about you. It does not tell how you will do the job. Discuss it in the interview, if necessary.
- write housewife, housekeeper, etc.
Part 6

Hospital or medical treatment:

Be positive. Don’t let the employer think you are ill. When asked if you have been in the hospital or if you have had any medical treatment, you can—

- leave the space blank. Discuss the topic in the interview.
- list one-time surgeries. Appendix ________ Tonsillectomy ________

Part 7

Disabilities:

Do not mention disabilities on the application. You can and should mention them in the interview. If a disability could interfere with work, you will probably be required to mention it!

Part 8

Crimes or convictions:

Before you decide to apply for a job, think: Will this job put me in a situation similar to the one of my crime? Yes? Then choose another job. For example, have you been convicted of stealing money? Then don’t apply to be a cashier.

When asked if you have any criminal convictions, you can—

- leave this space blank if the crime was minor. This information is hard for employers to get. It must be released by you.
- leave the space blank if you have been convicted of a felony (major crime). Discuss the topic in the interview. If the application states that you must mention the conviction, do so.

Part 9

Transportation:

Your employer may want to know if you can get to work or if you have a car you can use in your job. When asked if you have a car, you can—

- write yes.
- write bus transportation. Or write transportation available to me.
Part 10

Health:
Be positive. Don't turn employers off. They want healthy workers. When asked if you are in good health, you can—
- write excellent. Don't consider common ailments. Many people have colds, toothaches, etc. This is not a medical exam. Don't mention common aches and pains. Think: Am I able to do this job?
- leave the space blank. If you have a serious health problem, discuss it later. Wait until the interview.

Part 11

Mental disorders:
When asked about mental disorders, you can—
- write excellent. Again, many people have headaches. And they get depressed at times. Be positive. Don't think about common ailments.
- leave the space blank. Discuss past disorders in the interview.

Part 12

Dates you can begin work:
Many employers want you to begin work when they are ready for you. If asked when you can begin work, you can—
- write now or immediately. If you have other plans, change them if hired. Don't miss a chance to get a job.
- state the date you will be available if you have no choice about when to begin employment. For example, are you moving to the city or state on a given date?
- state that you must give two weeks notice to your employer if you are presently employed. This will show the prospective employer that you will extend the same courtesy to the prospective company.

Part 13

Starting salary:
To decide on a reasonable starting salary, you must find out what is typical for the job. Call the Bureau of Employment Services. Look in the Occupational Outlook Handbook. Talk to people who work in the same job. But remember, you would be a new employee. Expect a lower rate. Companies give raises over time.
Part 14

Salary requests:

Should you state a salary request? Decide if you want to list a specific figure. If asked the salary you want, you can—

- give a salary range. Put the lowest salary you would accept. Give the highest salary you would expect, too.
- leave this space blank. Let the employer decide what to offer you. Then you can discuss it with him or her.

Certification and statement of understanding

I certify that all of the information furnished in this employment application and its addenda is true and complete to the best of my knowledge. I understand the University might investigate the information I have furnished and I realize that any misrepresentation or false information in this application can lead to withdrawal of any employment offer or termination after employment.

Signature ___________________________ Date ___________________________
You must complete this addendum if you are applying for CLASSIFIED CIVIL SERVICE positions.

1. Are you a citizen of the United States? ................................................................. Yes or No

2. Do you now have or have you had any illnesses, injuries, or surgical procedures which might interfere with or be aggravated by the work you are seeking? (If your answer is "Yes," please give details in COMMENTS section on the reverse side of this addendum.) .................................................................

3. Have you ever been dismissed from a position for delinquency or misconduct? (If you have, be certain to give the job and details in the EXPERIENCE section.) .................................................................

Questions 4 and 5 are asked only with reference to the bona fide requirements of the positions(s) being sought. A "yes" answer will not jeopardize your candidacy unless the question is related to the duties of the position.

4. Are you now or have you been addicted to the use of narcotics or other habit forming drugs or alcohol? (If you have, give details in COMMENTS section.) .................................................................

5. Have you ever been convicted of an offense against the law or forfeited collateral, or are you now under charges for any offense against the law? (You may omit (a) traffic violations for which you paid a fine of $50 or less—except if you are applying for positions involving driving, and (b) any offense committed before your 18th birthday which was finally adjudicated in a juvenile court.) .................................................................

6. If you were in the U.S. military service, were you ever convicted by a general court martial? .................................................................

7. If you are an honorably discharged veteran of U.S. Military Service, do you desire extra credit on your civil service examination? (If you do, you must submit your DD 214 or Honorable Discharge certificate for review before or at the time of examination.) .................................................................

8. If you are applying for a TYPIST, STENOGRAPHER, SECRETARIAL or CLERICAL position:
   a. What is your approximate typing speed? ................................................................. (words per minute)
   b. Do you prefer an electric typewriter? .................................................................

9. If you are applying for a STENOGRAPHER or SECRETARIAL (with shorthand) position:
   a. What is your approximate shorthand speed? ................................................................. (words per minute)

Menu Plan

Part 1
Make a menu plan for three days of the week. Write what you will eat for breakfast, lunch, and dinner. Choose foods from the four main food groups. Do not include junk foods.

Add up the calories. Are they within your limit? Make changes if needed. If you must, add several junk food items. However, make sure your meals are well balanced. Also, make sure you do not plan for more calories than you should eat. Use the chart below.

If you want, ask your instructor for help.

Worksheet 1.02B
Physical Fitness Record

Part 1
Form a discussion group with three or four other students. Answer and discuss the questions listed below.

1. How do you feel when you don’t get enough sleep?
   - Sluggish?
   - Mean?
   - Depressed?
   - Sleepy?
   - Dull?
   - Irritable?

2. How do your feelings affect the way you act with—
   - your family?
   - your friends?
   - other people?

3. How do you feel about yourself when you are tired? Do you like yourself? Do you think you can do things well?

4. How does lack of sleep affect your ability to do things?

Part 2
On the following chart, record how many hours you sleep each night for a week. Also, write two sentences each day telling how you feel. Tell one thing you did well. Or tell one thing that was hard to do. Remember, the sleep you get one night will affect how you feel the next day.

Part 3
Look at the amount of sleep you got the first night. Draw an arrow to the sentences you wrote on the next day. The amount of sleep you got Sunday night had something to do with how you felt on Monday. Draw an arrow from each night to the next day’s feelings.

Read the sentences. What do they tell you about yourself and proper sleep? Think about how tension, physical activity, and other things affected you also. Was it more difficult to deal with such things when you were not well rested? Discuss some of your feelings and ideas with your classmates.

Decide the amount of sleep you think is best for you. Circle the nights on which you got that amount of sleep.

Worksheet 4.01C
Honesty

Part 1
Read the situations below. Circle the statements that are not truthful. Write one or two sentences to make the situations reflect truthful action.

Situation 1:
Avis Leeds is a salesperson. She talks with customers. She advises them about dress sizes. A customer who wears size 14 comes into the store. She likes a dress that is size 12. Avis says—

"We have this dress only in size 12. However, why don't you get the size 12? Tight clothes are very becoming. They make you look thinner. Anyway, you will probably lose a few pounds soon."

Situation 2:
John Solen borrowed a book from his co-worker. Sara was not at her desk when John took the book. A week later, John realized he had lost the book. That same day, Sara asked John if he had seen her book. John said, "No."

Situation 3:
Fred's supervisor asked him to do a task. He asked him to write a report to the JAE Store. Fred said he would do it. But Fred got very busy. Anyway, he hates to write reports. So, Fred did not do the task.

Part 2
Write a paragraph. Describe the benefits of being honest about your mistakes.
Part 3
Describe a mistake you made in your work. (This could be in any kind of work, class work, housekeeping work, office work.) Describe what you did or should have done to deal honestly with the situation.

Part 4
Check the behavior that is called stealing in the list below. Use the key at the end of this worksheet to check your answers.

1. Abe took a pen and some paper home from the office. He used the supplies to write letters to friends.
2. Alice took several pieces of copper tubing from the shop. She needed it to repair some plumbing at home.
3. Adam took a drill home from the supply shed. He had to do some work for a customer who lives next door to him.
4. Bonny took some art supplies from the office. She needed them to make her Christmas decoration.
5. Jud took some carpentry supplies home. He goes to his construction site directly from home.
6. Georgia took several pencils from her office desk. She gave them to her children. The company has many pencils. Georgia believes the company will never miss two pencils.

Part 5

Stealing costs companies many dollars each year. Employees do not always think about this. However, the public pays for these costs. That is because companies have to make enough money to cover their losses. So, they charge people more for their goods and services. Then they can pay for the extra expenses to replace stolen goods.

Estimate the losses several companies could have and then pass along to the public.

- List five items a person could take from a work setting.

3.
4.
5.

- Find out the cost of replacing the items.

- Pretend a person would take the items at least once a month.

- Multiply the replacement cost by 12 (12 months).

- Then, pretend 1,000 workers in town take the same items at the same rate.

- Multiply the losses due to one person by 1,000. The final amount is the amount of loss other people will help pay for.

Stealing can also cost the stealer his or her self-respect. How does stealing fit in with your values? With your parents' values? With your church's values? With values of people you respect?
Describe three ways in which you can behave honestly in your work (or home) situation

3.

Part 6

Laws protect companies from people who steal. These laws can be very strict. They can relate to stealing of "little" items like pens and pencils. Find out the laws at the company where you work or at a company where you would like to work. List the penalties for stealing.

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. High pay</td>
<td>Low costs</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Part 2
Read the following case study. Then list ways the worker loses and ways the company loses when needs are not satisfied.

Case Study: John and the Komo Company

John
John got good grades in high school. When he was hired, the Komo Company put him in a training program. John learned the skills fast. Now he is a skilled worker. He works quickly and his work is done correctly. John loves his work. He likes working with people. He especially likes his co-workers. But, John expects to be paid more than he gets. He knows he can get more money at another company. John needs to make more money, so he has quit. He joins another company that pays more money. John doesn't like the work as well. And he doesn't like the fact that he works alone most of the time.

The Komo Company
The Komo Company wants good workers. So, they hire the best students. They put the new workers in a training program for six weeks. The program costs the company lots of money. But, the workers are skilled when they finish the program. So, the company has workers who are productive. However, the Komo Company doesn't pay their workers as well as other companies. This is how they cut costs to make more money. They are very disappointed when John quits.
Question: What does John lose when he leaves The Komo Company? What does The Komo Company lose when John leaves? Write your answers in the column below.

3

Part 4
Explain why you would like to work for a company that does not have a union

Part 5
Explain why you would like to work for a company that has a union.
Part 6
Answer and discuss the following questions:

1. Were the workers' demands reasonable?

2. Were the company's problems realistic?

3. What worker needs and organization needs were in conflict? Which ones were compatible?

4. Was the compromise good for both the company and the workers? Why?

5. Were the officers for each pleased with the compromise? Why?

Part 7
Answer and discuss the following questions:

1. What could have happened if the company had refused to compromise? What if the workers had refused to compromise?

2. How could a labor union have helped the workers in their negotiation?

3. How could the labor union have made the negotiations more difficult?

(If possible, discuss these questions with union and nonunion workers before discussing them in class.)

Part 1

Julie Gray has a severe earache. She must call her doctor, Dr. Hammond, at 229-1647. She wants an appointment as soon as possible. Julie is calling from her office at Kent Products. Her phone number is 288-1444.

Pretend you are Julie. Place the call.

Part 2

Justin Gray works at the Pizza Palace. He must call Alvo’s Sausage Shop and talk to Herman Pool. He must order 45 pounds of sausage today. He needs delivery in three days. Justin’s phone number is 486-1100.

Herman Pool works at Alvo’s Sausage Shop. He is on vacation today, but will be in the shop tomorrow. Rose Bamonti is answering Herman’s calls.

Ask another student to be Justin. Pretend you are Rose. Take the call from Justin Gray. Give the message to Herman Pool. (The person who plays the role of Justin can be Herman, too.)

Part 3

Read the situations described below. Practice communicating in each situation. Ask another person to work with you. Stop when you think you can relate the information and messages correctly.

Take the evaluation sheet to your instructor. Perform the communication for him or her.

Situation 1:
Mrs. Stone is a personnel manager. She works for the Kiddie Land Toy Company. Jane is Mrs. Stone’s secretary. Mr. Tully enters the office. He has an interview with Mrs. Stone. Pretend you are Jane. Introduce Mr. Tully to Mrs. Stone.

Situation 2:
Karen Thomas is a car mechanic. She repairs and services cars. Karen must call Mr. White at 457-7655. She must tell him his car is repaired. He can pick it up anytime before 6:00 p.m. Pretend you are Karen. Call Mr. White. Give him the message.
Situation 3:
Ask your instructor (or another student) to play the role of the caller. You are the receiver.

Caller:
- Name: Anne Jeffries
- Firm: Art Affairs
- Phone: 214-299-1342

Receiver:
- Name: Susan Anable, Secretary
- Firm: Temple Supplies, Inc

Answer the telephone. Mr. Temple is in a meeting. Role play your conversations with Anne Jeffries. Give the message to Mr. Temple.

Situation 4:
Donna Fisher is a fire fighter. She tells people how to leave a building in case of a fire. Pretend you are Donna Fisher. Give directions on how to leave the building you are in now.

Situation 5:
Chris Clark is a typing teacher. He tells students how to put paper into the typewriter. Pretend you are Chris Clark. Give instructions. Tell the proper way to insert paper into the machine.

Body Language Practice

Part 1
Read the situations below. Choose one to role play. Or think of your own to do.

Situation 1:
You are the host on a game show. Welcome visitors. Describe what will happen on the show today.

Situation 2:
You have just seen a movie. Describe a scene.

Situation 3:
You are on vacation. You have caught a large Northern pike. Describe how you caught the fish and its size.

Situation 4:
You have been asked to meet some visitors from your state. Welcome them to your city. Invite them to this training program. Tell them what you do in the program.

Part 2
Activity:
Pretend you are a basketball player. If you don't know how to play basketball, choose another sport or game. Or choose any activity or hobby you enjoy. Try to interest a group of young children in the game:

1. Greet the group.
2. Invite them to try the game.
3. Tell them why you like the game.
4. Tell them how you first came to play basketball.
5. Tell them how your skill improved over the years.
6. Encourage the children to sign up for the team.

Part 2
Read the family situations described below.

Day 1:
John has planned to do the laundry (2 hours), shop for groceries (1 hour), and read a book (2 hours). He will do this during the 5 hours between 6:00 p.m. and 11:00 p.m. These responsibilities are important. John has no clean clothes. He is having guests for dinner tomorrow. He needs some time to relax.

At 7:00, John’s mother calls. She needs a ride to the emergency room. She has cut her finger. She thinks she will need stitches. John thinks it will take 2 1/2 hours to help his mother.

What were John’s priorities at the beginning of the evening? What do you think they are now?

Beginning priorities
1.
2.
3.

Final Priorities

Day 2:
John has planned to do the following after work today: (1) take the children to the dentist from 6:00 until 7:00, (2) scrub the kitchen floor from 7:00 until 8:00, and (3) have guests to dinner from 8:00 until 11:00.

The dentist’s secretary calls. She changes the children’s appointment to next week. What were John’s priorities at the beginning of the evening? What do you think they are now?

1.
2.

Final priorities
Now:
Compare the priorities from one day to the next. Did the priorities change? Why? Discuss the idea of changing priorities with other students. How does each person decide on priorities? How can you make changes in your schedule?

Discuss John’s final priorities you listed on Day 2. Did you list any priorities from Day 1 in this column? Why? Why not? Can you postpone some responsibilities to another day or time?

Part 3
Explain why it is important to have a schedule.

Explain why you must be able to change your schedule as needed.

Feelings

Part 1
People have a variety of feelings. Some feelings are positive feelings. They make us feel good inside. Some feelings are negative ones. These are not good feelings. Read the positive and negative feelings below. Check the feelings you have experienced. Be honest with yourself. Each of us has many kinds of feelings... about others... and about ourselves.

Part 2
People cannot always change their feelings. But they can change the ways they express (show) their feelings.

Talk with the students in your group. Give examples of times you have had the feelings you checked above.

Describe how you expressed your positive feelings. Then, describe how you expressed your negative feelings. Ask for suggestions from others. Are there other ways you could have expressed each feeling?

Part 3
Getting along with people is very important to job success. Many people lose their jobs because they can’t get along with co-workers and supervisors. They have not learned to express feelings in a positive way.

What is wrong with expressing feelings negatively? Ask yourself, “What will happen if you say...?”

Discuss this topic with people in your group. Add to the list below.

1. You could be fired.
2.
3.
4.
5.
6.

Part 4
State ways you can express feelings in a positive way. List five rules to follow. Ask other students for their ideas. Ask your instructor. Example:

Think about how other people will feel before you speak. Describe how you feel. "I feel angry when . . . ."

2.
3.
4.
5.

Part 5
Situation: You work for Ms. Reid. You type all reports. There are two long reports to be typed every Friday. Each report takes three hours to type. Ms. Reid gives you the first report by 9:00 a.m. She gives you the second report by 2:00 p.m.

This month the schedule has changed. Ms. Reid has been late with the last report. She has given you the report at 3:30 p.m. instead of 2:00 p.m. She has done this for four Fridays in a row.

You are angry. You do not like staying until 6:30 p.m. on Friday night. Everyone else leaves at 5:00 p.m. What can you say to Ms. Reid? How can you express your negative feeling?

Write your statements below. Then, ask another student to read the situation. Ask that student to pretend to be Ms. Reid. Say what you have planned to Ms. Reid. Ask the student (Ms. Reid) to explain how he or she felt in response to your comments.
Part 6
Read the situation below. Then read the different interpretations (understandings) Read how each person sees the situation.

Situation:
Mr. Fisher is an experienced roofer. He is working with two apprentices.
Mr. Fisher compliments Paul every time he does something right. He tells Paul what a good worker he is. He watches how Paul does things. He gives him suggestions.
Mr. Fisher rarely compliments John. He lets John work on his own. He rarely offers John advice.

John's interpretation:
John believes Mr. Fisher favors Paul. He has tried very hard. But Mr. Fisher rarely compliments him. John is upset. He believes Paul is getting all the praise and attention. John thinks this is unfair. He is an apprentice just like Paul. John is angry.
John decides Mr. Fisher does not think he is doing a good job. He believes Mr. Fisher thinks he shows little promise. John is disappointed.

Paul's interpretation:
Paul is grateful to Mr. Fisher. He knows he is not as skilled as John is. He is glad Mr. Fisher is helping him. He is glad Mr. Fisher understands he is trying his best.

Part 7
John decides to talk with Mr. Fisher. Pretend you are John. Complete the sentences below. Tell Mr. Fisher how you feel.

1. I feel upset that

2. I feel angry that

3. I feel disappointed that
Mr. Fisher realizes he should have behaved differently. He explains the facts to John. Then he explains his actions.

Facts:
- Mr. Fisher is knowledgeable about roofing work.
- Mr. Fisher is a caring person.
- John appears self-assured and confident to Mr. Fisher.
- John exhibits good skills.
- John is especially talented.
- John can work alone with little supervision.
- Paul appears to lack confidence.
- Paul has average skill but shows promise.
- Paul needs supervision to do a job well.

Actions:
- Mr. Fisher likes both men. He wants them to do well on the job. He enjoys working with them. Mr. Fisher knows John is an excellent worker already. He is not concerned about John's ability to succeed. But Mr. Fisher is concerned about Paul.

  Paul could be a very good roofer. But he has little confidence in himself. Mr. Fisher wants to change this. He compliments Paul every time he does something right. He tells Paul what a good worker he is. Mr. Fisher hopes the encouragement will inspire Paul to be a better worker, like John.

Now . . . Do you understand Mr. Fisher's motivci...? Have you ever jumped to conclusions yourself? Do you understand why you must have all the facts? Facts help people to understand situations.

Worksheet 7.01B
Job Frustrations

Part 1
Read the problem situation. Then answer the questions.

Situation:
Irene stocks groceries at the Big Guy Supermarket. She must stock the shelves on aisles 7 through 14 today. There are a lot of customers today. The head cashier asks Irene to bag groceries. So Irene bags groceries for three hours. She does not finish stocking aisles 7 through 14.

At quitting time, the store manager sees Irene. He scolds her for not getting her work done. Irene is frustrated.

Analyze the problem:
1. What is the problem?
2. What caused the problem?
3. What is Irene's responsibility?

Part 2
Find two classmates to work with you on this activity. Discuss the questions below. Write your answers in the space provided.

A. List things Irene can do to correct the situation. Example:

    She can kick the shelves to show her anger.

B. List what might happen if Irene does each thing. Example.

    Stair might hurt her foot. She might knock over some cans. She might anger the store manager.
C. Write your choice of what Irene should do. Irene should

Part 3
Write exactly what Irene should do . . . and what she should say. Explain how she should deal with the problem.

Part 4
Read the problem section. Then answer the questions.

Situation:
Mark is one of three proofreaders. He, Alan, and Kay work for Kenton publishers. The three readers review articles and books. They check for grammatical errors. They check for spelling errors. They check for typing errors. Then they send the materials to be printed.

Mark is not careful. He misses some of the errors. He takes long breaks. He doesn't get his work done. So he asks Alan and Kay to help him.

The supervisor speaks to the readers. She tells them their work is sloppy. They are not catching the errors. And they are not completing enough work. Her last words are, "I expect to see some changes."

Alan and Kay are irritated. They are tired of doing Mark's work. They don't like taking the blame for Mark's incompetence.

Analyze the problem:
1. What is the problem?
2. What are Alan's and Kay's feelings?
3. Is Mark aware of the problem? Does he know he is the cause?

Part 5
Find two classmates to work with you on this activity. Discuss the questions below. Write your answers in the space provided.

A. What can Alan and Kay do to solve the problem?
Part 6
Write exactly what Alan and Kay should do . . . and what they should say. Explain how they should deal with the problem.

Part 7
Read the problem situation. Then answer the questions.

Situation:
Jason works as a child care worker. He works with three other people. They work at the Kindness Child Care Center.
Jason is the newest staff member. This is his first job working with children. The other three workers have been at the center for over eight years.
Jason has many opinions. But he doesn't like to hear the opinions of other workers. Jason thinks he knows everything about children. He has read a lot. He has given children and their behavior a lot of thought. He thinks he knows just how to handle children.
Jason's co-workers are finding their work difficult. Jason is causing problems. He thinks he knows what is best. He is acting in good faith. But Jason doesn't have enough experience. His knowledge is limited to what he has read . . . and his own brief experience.
Jason's co-workers have found that a lot of experience is very important . . . especially in their work. It gives them more ways of looking at things. They are better able to understand children . . . and the kind of help they need.
Jason is not aware of this. He is so sure of himself. He doesn't really listen to what his co-workers say. He never hears their suggestions. If he does, he ignores them.
Jason's co-workers must find a way to deal with the problem. The owner of the center is the supervisor. He does not want to be bothered with problems. He expects the workers to solve their own problems.
Analyze the problem:
1. What is the problem?
2. Who is involved?
3. What is the cause of Jason's behavior? Why does he act as he does?

Part 8
Find two classmates to work with you on this activity. Discuss the questions below. Write your answers in the spaces provided.

A. What can Jason's co-workers do to solve the problem?

B. What do they hope to accomplish?

C. Write the action you choose for Jason's co-workers.
   Jason's co-workers should

Part 9
Write exactly what Jason's co-workers should do ... and what they should say. Explain how they should deal with the problem.
Part 10
Read the problem situation. Then answer the questions.

Situation:
Amelia just began her job with Grid Lines, Inc. She is a drafter. And she is the first female drafter ever hired at Grid Lines. On her first day, one of the men told Amelia that making the coffee was her task. Each of the men also have tasks—buying pop, going to the stock room, and getting the mail.

The men talk to each other in low voices when Amelia leaves the room. Amelia can hear them laughing in the hall. Whenever Amelia walks across the room, at least one man whistles at her.

Amelia likes her job. But she resents the attitude of the men. She must do something to change it. She wants them to show her more respect.

Analyze the problem:
1. What is the problem?
2. How does Amelia feel?
3. Why do the men act as they do?
4. Do they know Amelia does not like it?
5. Do they know why?

Part 11
Find two classmates to work with you on this activity. Discuss the questions below. Write your answers in the space provided.

A. List three things Amelia can do to solve the problem.

B. List what might happen if she does each thing.
C. Write your choice of what Amelia should do. Amelia should

Part 12
Write exactly what Amelia should do ... and what she should say. Explain how she should deal with the problem.

Worksheet 7.02A
Organizational Structure

Part 1
The following jobs are found in APX Enterprises. Read the brief description of each job. Then write the job titles in the proper places on the organizational chart that follows.

President—supervises the entire operation.

General Manager—is in charge of operations; supervises the Sales Department.

Purchasing Manager—is in charge of all purchasing, supervises the buying clerk and the stock clerk.

Buying Clerk—orders materials to be used in production; reports to the purchasing manager

Stock Clerk—keeps inventory records; reports to the purchasing manager.

Sales Manager—is in charge of company sales; supervises the sales representative and a secretary.

Secretary—answers phones; types new orders on order forms; reports to the sales manager.

Sales Representative—contacts new accounts; reports to sales manager.

Accounting Manager—is in charge of all accounts; supervises the bookkeepers

Bookkeeper (Accounts Receivable)—sends bills to customers; keeps records of payments received from customers, reports to accounting manager.

Bookkeeper (Accounts Payable)—keeps records of incoming bills; keeps records of payments to suppliers; reports to accounting manager.
Organization Chart
Part 2
You have been hired as the bookkeeper in Accounts Payable. Read the job description. Then make a list of your responsibilities.

Description:
The accounts payable bookkeeper reports to the accounting manager. The accounts payable bookkeeper is responsible for all transactions (exchanges of goods and money) with the suppliers. The bookkeeper receives bills in the mail. He or she keeps records of incoming bills. He or she files the bills in the file cabinet.

The accounts payable bookkeeper keeps records of payments to suppliers. He or she writes entries of payment. This is done in the accounts payable ledger each day.

You are the accounts payable bookkeeper. List your responsibilities below.

Part 3
Explain how your job fits into the structure of the company.

- Who do you report to?
- Who do you get your information from?
- How does your work help the company run smoothly?

Part 4
Read the situation. It describes a procedure that is not on the organizational chart.

Situation:
One of your responsibilities is to record payments to suppliers. You do this in the ledger. However, this has been a busy week for you. You have spent a lot of time on incoming bills.

The accounts receivable bookkeeper has not been busy this week. She records payments received in the accounts receivable ledger. She does this in the same way you record payments made to suppliers. She could help you today. She could record entries in the accounts payable ledger. So you ask her.

The accounts receivable bookkeeper is glad to help. She knows you will return the favor some day.

Protected by Copyright
Identify the informal procedure.

1. What is your job?
2. What is the accounts receivable bookkeeper's job?
3. What did the accounts receivable bookkeeper do that was not her job? What was not formally written in her job description?

Part 5
How do informal procedures help you to complete work? How do they help the organization? Discuss the questions with other people. Then write a paragraph below. Answer the question.

Worksheet 7.02B
Following Instructions

Part 1

Instructions are not always logical.
Example:

Becky's supervisor gives her these instructions:
1. Lock your tool box before you leave work at 5:00 p.m. There have been some robberies in this building.
2. Leave a note for the plumber. He is working from 7:00 p.m. until 10:00 p.m. tonight.
3. Tell the plumber he can use your tools. He is stopping on his way home from a dinner party.

What is confusing about these instructions?
Do you think Becky should follow them?
Why? Why not?
What might happen if she does?

Instructions are not always reasonable to follow:

Example:

Joe can type two 15-page reports in two hours. Joe's supervisor gives him three 10-page reports. He gives them to Joe at 1:00 p.m. He says he wants them on his desk at 2:30 p.m. the same day.

What is unreasonable about these instructions?
Do you think Joe should try to follow them?
Why? Why not?
What might happen if he does?

Part 2

Instructions are sometimes in conflict (disagreement) with each other.

Example:

Sharon works in the hospital lab. Her boss is Mrs. Hale. Mrs. Hale gives Sharon this instruction:

"Take Mrs. Anton's blood pressure in 5 minutes."

Work Skills Resource Manual
Protected by Copyright
Dr. Parks meets Sharon in the hall. He gives her this instruction:

"Do the lab work on these blood samples right now. It should only take you about 15 minutes."

What is conflicting about these instructions?
Which one should Sharon follow?
Why?
What might happen if she does?

Part 3

Instructions sometimes conflict (disagree) with one's moral and ethical values.

Example:

Roger works in the print shop at CDA, Inc. His job is to print company reports. Personal printing is not allowed.

Roger's boss comes into the shop. He asks Roger to print 2,000 copies of a neighborhood flyer. He tells Roger to hide it if anyone comes into the shop.

What is the trouble with these instructions?
Do they conflict (disagree) with company rules?
Do they conflict with your values about what is right?
Should Roger follow his boss's instructions?
Why? Why not?
What might happen if he does? How will he feel?
