Developed by the Illinois Governor's Planning Council on Developmental Disabilities, this guide is intended to help parents and other laypersons communicate more knowledgeably and effectively with professionals who work with handicapped persons, as well as with handicapped individuals themselves. Section I offers suggestions for interpersonal communication with disabled persons and provides guidelines for writing and speaking about disabled persons in print and visual media. Subsequent sections include a glossary of disability-related terms, brief explanations of relevant federal and state statutes, and information on executive and elective offices, state agencies, and commissions in the state of Illinois. Names and addresses of national and state advocacy and consumer organizations, a glossary of disability-related acronyms, and agency toll-free numbers conclude the document. (JW)
BUILDING BRIDGES FOR COMMUNICATION

INTRODUCTION

"You want to talk or write to or about someone with a disability. You know the person is more important than the disability. You want to build bridges not erect barriers." Often the general public is hesitant to communicate with persons who have disabilities because of fear or embarrassment usually due to lack of knowledge about disabilities in general or misconceptions about these persons due to preconceived notions.

"How do you, a layperson - parent, relative, friend or teacher - find your way through the maze of jargon that confronts you when you talk with professionals? How do you know what all those acronyms stand for - let alone find the good programs they represent? And how do you know what federal and state legislation has been passed to assist people with disabilities?" Language plays a critical role in improving public perception of people with disabilities. This book offers suggestions for appropriate communication for conversation, written or visual portrayal.

Often the jargon used in the field hinders peoples attempts to understand their neighbors who have disabilities. A glossary of terms frequently used in the field with definitions in lay terms follows this section. The reader should note that the usage of terms such as "handicap" "disabled person" are only used when stated as such in law and rule/regulation.

A compendium of relevant federal and state laws affecting persons with disabilities are provided in Section IV. Frequently, reference is made to various laws which provide protection of rights, and/or specific services or entitlements for persons with disabilities.

Finally, the handbook offers a listing of national and state advocacy and consumer organizations for persons with disabilities and a listing of toll free telephone numbers to contact for additional information or assistance.

This book has been designed for you and is not intended to be all encompassing. It will, however, serve as a reference to enhance individual basic awareness about persons with disabilities. We hope you find it useful.
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The Council wishes to thank the numerous persons who contributed to the development of his book in terms of material, comments and suggestions.

In particular, the Council thanks the South Carolina Council on Developmental Disabilities and the New York State Senate Select Committee on the Disabled for the use of their documents entitled Looking At People--Communication With And About People With Disabilities and Coming To Terms With Disabilities. Each of these provided valuable guidance and material for People With Disabilities: A Handbook on Communication, Terms and Laws Relating to Persons With Disabilities. Also, in the Glossary Section, we have included, where referenced, terms and explanations taken from the National Rehabilitation Association's glossary of terms and usage related to disabilities.

We would also like to extend our appreciation to Mari Anna McAnarney, our secretary for the time spent in typing this document.

ILLINOIS GOVERNOR'S PLANNING COUNCIL ON DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES

The members of the Council, appointed by the Governor are representative of consumers with developmental disabilities, parents, guardians or immediate relatives of persons with developmental disabilities, and representatives of governmental and nongovernmental agencies and organizations concerned with services for persons with developmental disabilities. The Council through its role of advocate, is the forum to ensure that Illinois citizens with developmental disabilities receive the care, treatment and other services necessary to enable them to reach their maximum potential.

The mission of the Council is that of a leadership role in shaping policy affecting persons with developmental disabilities and those at risk of developmental disabilities in Illinois. In an advisory capacity, the Council presents to the Governor, the Illinois General Assembly, and state agencies public policy issues and recommendations that set forth a policy stance concerning services for persons with developmental disabilities. The Council generates public policy research that includes a thorough analysis of current practices, national and state priorities, valid data, and programmatic and fiscal impact statements to affect policy shaping and to act as a catalyst through strong interagency collaboration.

COMMUNICATION

Communicating in Person

Many persons without disabilities inadvertently address persons with disabilities as if they are speaking to a nonentity or through a third person. The following are points which should guide communication:

- Give and maintain eye contact.
- Talk to the person, especially if using an interpreter.
- Speak in your usual tone of voice and with your usual voice inflection.
- If you do not understand someone, ask the person to repeat the statement. If you still do not understand, tell them so.
- If appropriate, use gestures and sign language or interpreters.
- When speaking to someone who is developmentally delayed, use clear, concise language and avoid complex sentences. Use simple language, however not childish language.
- Sometimes people with developmental or communicative disabilities may need a little more time to respond. Wait for their answers; do not speak for them.
- When talking with a person who uses a wheelchair, try to sit across from him/her at eye level.
- Ask if assistance is needed, rather than assume it is. If the person does desire assistance, he/she will tell you what would be helpful.
- Acknowledge the natural curiosity and occasional awkwardness that may develop in social situations involving non-disabled individuals and individuals with disabilities. Where appropriate, address positive moments in which curiosity can be satisfied and in which awkwardness can be lessened.
Communicating in Print

The following are points of reference when referring to persons with disabilities.

- Emphasize the uniqueness and worth of all individuals rather than differences between people.
- Do not refer to a disability unless it is crucial to your purpose.
- Keep the individual in perspective; avoid emphasizing the disability to the exclusion of individual qualities and achievements.
- Avoid portraying or addressing persons with disabilities who are successful as superhuman. This implies that it is unusual for persons who are disabled to have talents or unusual gifts.
- Do not sensationalize a disability by saying "afflicted with" or "victim of," etc. Instead, say "person who has multiple sclerosis," "person who had polio," etc.
- Avoid labeling persons into groups, as in "the disabled," "the deaf," "the retarded." Instead say "people who are deaf," "persons with disabilities or retardation."
- Initials are all right to describe a condition but not a person (C.P., M.D., etc.). It is better to say "cerebral palsy," "muscular dystrophy," etc.
- Avoid using emotional descriptors such as "unfortunate" and "pitiful." Emphasize abilities, such as "uses a wheelchair" rather than "confined to a wheelchair."
- Avoid implying disease when discussing disabilities. A disability such as Parkinson's disease may have been caused by an illness, but it is not a disease itself, nor is the person necessarily chronically ill. Persons with disabilities should not be referred to as "patients" or "cases" unless they are under medical care in medical settings.
- Show people with disabilities participating in activities that includes them as part of society and in interaction with non-disabled individuals in mutually beneficial ways.
o Show individuals with a disability doing something independently or for someone else and as participants and decision-makers.

o Do not assume a person has other disabilities when one disability may be obvious.

o If the individual's disability is germane to your story, ask the individual about it directly, rather than asking someone else.

o Information should be provided to the public about prevention and treatment of impairments that lead to disabilities, as well as the availability of services for people with disabilities and their families.

o As with most articles that appear in print, the individuals should be informed of your purpose and plans. Frequently, persons with disabilities and their families are sensitive about their situation. Consent should be obtained where necessary and confidentially respected when requested.

Communicating Visually

The following points provide guidance when presenting information regarding persons with disabilities.

o When using visual material with a project (slides, pictures, tapes, etc.), actual photographs, used with an individual with a disability's permission, are preferable (in most cases) to drawings.

o Avoid stereotyped portrayal of individuals with disabilities such as dark glasses on a person with a visual impairment or antique aids (i.e., cane or wheelchairs in place of state of the art equipment)

o Show pictures or photographs of individuals with disabilities in their usual environment and engaged in common activities.

o Do not present an individual visually in order to portray the disability. Use photographs or drawings to personalize the individual.

SECTION II

GLOSSARY

Able-Bodied
The preferred term for describing persons without disabilities. The word "normal" is often used as a synonym for able-bodied. (National Rehabilitation Association)

Accessibility
Refers to the degree to which persons with disabilities can participate in activities of daily living such as employment, recreation, housing, transportation and education without limitations or denial due to architectural and/or attitudinal barriers. Accessibility is a requirement for all projects receiving federal funds.

Active Treatment
Ensures that services to persons in Intermediate Care Facilities for the Developmentally Disabled (ICFDD) in both the public and private sectors provides active treatment for all residents. Active treatment is defined as "services directed toward: (1) The acquisition of developmental, behavioral, and social skills necessary for the client's maximum possible individual independence; and (2) For dependent clients where no further positive growth is demonstrable, the prevention of regression or loss of current optimal function status."
(Health Care Financing Administration)

Adaptive Behavior
The degree to which a person's developmental level parallels the expected standards for independence and social functioning of his/her age and cultural background.

Advocacy
A system, independent of service providers, to protect persons with developmental disabilities by use of legal, administrative and other remedies. Advocacy can also be one person intervening on the behalf of another, with permission, when the other person is unable to successfully act in their own behalf. Self advocacy is based upon the premise that individuals who have adequate information and skills can be effective spokespersons for themselves.

Affirmative Action
The hiring and promoting of qualified individuals regardless of race, sex, national origin or ancestry, providing the individual can perform at the minimum accepted standards.
Aging-Out

Terminology generally used when referring to secondary special education students exiting public schools to the post-school adult service delivery system.

AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome)

Causes the body to lose its natural defenses against disease leaving it open to illnesses ranging from mild infections to life-threatening conditions.

Alzheimer's Disease

A progressive, degenerative disease that can cause memory loss, confusion, inability to make decisions, difficulty in speech and movement and loss of basic skills.

For more information, contact:

--- Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders
1-800-621-0379
(For additional toll free numbers see Section VII)

Ambulatory

Ability to walk or move independently; also refers to persons who with assistance or adaptive devices are mobile.

Amputee

A term which refers to a person who has had a limb removed or part of a limb removed from the body.

Anti-Convulsant

A chemical agent that arrests or prevents convulsions or seizures.

Aphasia

A term that can apply to expressive and receptive loss of language and speech skills.

Architectural Barriers

Term which refers to a building's design which limits or prohibits access by mobility impaired persons.

Arthritis

Inflammation of a joint which affects muscles, ligaments, tendons, joints and other body parts which have different symptoms, patterns and treatment.
Assessment

Evaluation of an individual's performance or developmental level which can be used in program planning.

Ataxia

The absence or lack of muscular coordination.

Athetoid

The constant, slow, involuntary movement of the extension and flexing of extremities.

At Risk

A term generally used to address an individual who has a high potential to have a developmental disability; most often used in describing infants who due to pre or postnatal factors may be at risk of having a developmental disability.

Attendant/Personal Care Assistant

The assistance provided to an individual in activities of daily living, communication, mobility and management of other activities, as needed.

Audiologist

An individual who by training is licensed and certified to measure types and degrees of hearing loss and who works to prevent hearing disorders.

Autism

A term for describing a condition that may be manifested before a person is 30 months of age, may be caused by physical disorders of the brain, and is characterized by uneven intellectual development and a combination of disturbances in the rates and language, and speech development. This syndrome is further evidenced by abnormal response to sensory stimuli, problems in developing social relationships, and ritualistic and compulsive behavior. (Illinois Revised Statutes, Chapter 91 1/2, Section 1-106 the Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities Code).

Barrier Free

A building or program that is totally accessible to persons with mobility limitations, or persons with hearing and vision impairments. Can also refer to the absence of attitudinal barriers.
Behavioral Disorder

For educational purposes, a child who exhibits an affective disorder and/or adaptive behavior which significantly interferes with his/her learning and/or social abilities.

Behavior Modification

The shaping of an individual's environment through systematic application of principles of learning in shaping behavior to minimize or eliminate undesirable behavior and to emphasize and reinforce positive and appropriate behavior.

Blind

Total loss of vision; the term is not appropriate to describe persons with partial vision or sight.

For more information, contact:

-- National Library for Blind & Physically Handicapped
Washington, D.C.
1-800-424-8567
(For additional toll free numbers see Section VII)

Braille

A tactile approach to reading and writing for persons who are blind or visually impaired. A combination of raised dots on paper is the most widely used method of communication for these individuals.

Case Coordination

Services to persons with developmental disabilities as will assist them in gaining access to needed social, medical, educational, and other services. Such term includes (i) follow-along services which ensure, through a continuing relationship, lifelong if necessary, between an agency or provider and a person with a developmental disability and the person's immediate relatives or guardians, that the changing needs of the persons and the family are recognized and appropriately met; and (ii) coordination services which provide to persons with developmental disabilities support, access to (and coordination of) other services, information on programs and services, and monitoring of the person's progress. (P.L. 98-527)

Cardiovascular Disease

A general category which encompasses a number of different problems of the heart and circulatory system.
Centers for Independent Living

A program federally supported under the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, which provides a wide range of services to persons with disabilities. Services can include: intake counseling; information and referral; advocacy; training in independent living skills; housing and transportation referral and assistance; and training of personal care assistants. Allows persons to live independently of their families and provides assistance in securing employment. The Centers are located in communities and are governed by consumers.

Cerebral Palsy (CP)

An alteration in the movement of the body due to an injury or a disorder of the central nervous system. It is manifested by an unsteady gait and may impair speech. There are three main types: spastic—uncorordinated muscle movement or opposing contractions, athetoid—involuntary, repetitive movements of the extremities, head and may affect speech, and ataxic—loss of movement and occasionally balance.

Child Care Institution (CCI)

Facilities which serve approximately 50-100 children with developmental disabilities. These facilities are licensed by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services and funded through the Illinois Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities.

Chronic Care

Level of care for individuals who require intensive care in terms of facilities, services or skills which only a hospital or other specialized facility can provide.

Client Assistance Program (CAP)

A program to assist people with disabilities in understanding and securing the benefits and programs available under the Rehabilitation Act (Rehabilitation Act Amendments of 1984, P.L. 98-221).

For more information, contact:

-- Client Assistance Program
1-800-641-3929

Communication Disorder

A disorder in one or more of the processes of speech, hearing or language which interferes with the ability to speak, understand or use language. Such disorders may be developmental or acquired, may range from mild to severe, and may or may not be associated with a disabling condition.

Community Living Facility

Community-based living arrangement, housing, on the average 20 adults with disabilities 18 years of age and older. These facilities are licensed by the Illinois Department of Public Health and funded by the Illinois Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities Purchase of Care System.

Community Mental Health Center (CMHC)

A center which provides a full range of mental health services including inpatient and outpatient care; community services including consultation and education; diagnosis; rehabilitation; training; and research evaluation.

Community Residential Alternative (CRA)

A group home for 8 or fewer adults with developmental disabilities who are unable to live independently but are capable of community living if provided with an appropriate level of supervision, assistance and support services. A community residential alternative may provide training and guidance to residents in the skills of daily living and shall provide opportunities for participation in community activities.

Competency Test

An evaluation of an individual to determine whether he/she is legally capable of making choices and legally responsible for his/her actions. Applies to persons with disabilities such as mental illness or mental retardation.

Congenital Disability

The correct term for describing a disability which has existed since birth. The often-used term "birth defect" is considered inappropriate when used to describe human beings. (National Rehabilitation Association)

Convulsion

The involuntary contractions of muscles resulting from abnormal cerebral simulations which may occur with or without loss of consciousness. Types of convulsions are: clonic—alternating contraction and relaxation of muscles; and tonic—sustained rigidity.

Crisis Intervention

A term generally referring to emergency services of an intensive nature to alleviate stressful situations.
Curb Cuts
A term used to describe physical alterations to streetside curbs to enable persons with mobility limitations to ascend and descend from sidewalk to street.

Cystic Fibrosis
A condition in which mucus secretions obstruct body organs especially the lungs and pancreas, -- a common and hereditary condition in childhood which is usually fatal.

For more information, contact:
-- National Cystic Fibrosis Foundation
   1-800-344-4823

Deaf
The term correctly used to describe a person with a total hearing loss. It is not considered appropriate for describing a person with partial hearing. Such persons are more accurately described as having a partial or severe hearing loss or a hearing impairment. (National Rehabilitation Association).

For more information, contact:
-- Center for the Deaf
   1-800-468-9211

Developmental Center
A term generally applied to state operated facilities where persons with developmental disabilities or mental retardation reside.

Developmental Disability
A severe, chronic disability of a person which is attributable to a mental or physical impairment or combination of mental and physical impairments. This condition is manifested before the person attains age twenty-two and is likely to continue indefinitely. It results in substantial functional limitations in three or more of the following areas of major life activity: self-care, receptive and expressive language, learning, mobility, self-direction, capacity for independent living, and economic self-sufficiency. The disability reflects the person's need for a combination and sequence or special interdisciplinary, or generic care, treatment, or other services which are of lifelong or extended duration and are individually planned and coordinated (P.L. 98-527) OR
...a disability which is attributable to: (a) mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy or autism; or to (b) any other condition which results in an impairment similar to that caused by mental retardation and which requires services similar to those required by mentally retarded persons. Such disability must originate before the age of 18 years, be expected to continue indefinitely, and constitute a substantial handicap. (Illinois Revised Statutes, Chapter 91 1/2, Section 1-106, Mental Health and Developmental disabilities Code)

Developmental Training

Focus of this program is upon development of skills for daily living or for independent living through repetitive learning activities in such areas as motor, dressing and grooming, toileting, eating, language, and reducing maladaptive behavior for persons with developmental disabilities. This program is supported by the Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities, and through the Department of Public Aid.

Deinstitutionalization

A term which generally refers to the discharge of persons with developmental disabilities or mental illness from State operated facilities.

Disability

A term generally referring to a physical and/or mental impairment.

Discrimination

The ability to tell the difference or sameness between at least two objects or stimuli. Also frequently used when a person with a disability is denied access to a program or building due to environmental barrier(s).

Down Syndrome

A genetic disorder associated with mental retardation, which results from an excess of chromosomes that alter the ordinary development of the body and brain.

For more information, contact:

-- National Down Syndrome Society
1-800-221-4602
Due Process

A term which describes a principle of law which guarantees an opportunity to protest, to be heard, to be informed and to give consent prior to governmental action. Most often used when referring to special education; this protection of rights would also be applicable in the areas of rehabilitation, employment and others.

Dysfunction

Partial disturbance or an impairment of a body function.

Dyslexia

A term used to describe an impairment of the ability to read due to obvious language difficulties, (commonly referred to as a learning disability). Sometimes characterized by reversal of letters or improper letter sequencing.

For more information, contact:

-- Orton Dyslexia Society
1-800-222-3123

Early Intervention

A wide range of educational and/or medical services delivered to infants and young children with disabilities or at risk of disabilities.

Early Periodic Screening, Diagnosis and Treatment Program (EPSDT)

A program which screens, identifies, and provides health care and related needs of children who are recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Educable

A term used in special education which refers to the classification of a child's intellectual development, mental capacity, academic achievement and adaptive behavior as mild or moderate mental retardation.

Emotionally Disturbed

A term often used in education which refers to the inability to control emotions and behavior within an acceptable range.
Encephalitis

Any condition which causes "inflammation of the brain"—usually due to viral infections causing damage to one or more parts of the brain. Resultant brain dysfunction can cause learning and behavior disorders.

Epilepsy

A neurological condition or disorder of the central nervous system marked by seizures caused by electrical discharges within the brain. The most common types of seizures are petit mal—loss of consciousness for a few seconds; grand mal—lasting one to three minutes and generally affecting the entire body; and psychosomatic—generally characterized by staring or a no-or-confused response. Symptoms vary among individuals. Epilepsy is almost always controllable by medication.

For more information, contact:

-- Epilepsy Foundation of America
1-800-EFA-1000
(For additional toll free numbers see Section VII)

Evaluation

An appraisal of an individual's functioning level in intelligence, education, vocational, physical and behavioral areas.

Exceptional

A term generally used in special education to refer to a student's characteristics which interfere with their ability to learn.

Family Home Maintenance

Direct staff resources to persons who require intensive habilitation or crisis behavior management to prevent extrusion from the home or to secure residence in a less restrictive living arrangement. This service is funded through the Illinois Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities' Purchase of Care System.

Family Support

Services and/or cash assistance provided to families who care for a family member with developmental disabilities in their home. Such assistance is intended to prevent or delay unnecessary out-of-home placement of the individual with developmental disabilities or allow for return home from an alternative residential placement, while enhancing the family's capacity to provide home-based care.

Fine and Gross Motor

Terms used to describe small and large muscle group activity. For example, fine motor activities involve the hands in drawings, writing, whereas gross motor would include activities such as rolling, running or jumping.

Foster Care

Care provided to a child or an adult by non-biological parents, often providing training for the individual. For children, these homes receive financial support from the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services. The Illinois Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities supports this type of residence for adults through the purchase of care program.

Free Appropriate Public Education

Federal Public Law 24-142, the Education of the Handicapped Act, mandates that all children regardless of disability, are entitled to a free appropriate public education. This means that special education and related services are to be provided at public expense and in the least restrictive environment (LRE) for eligible children and must meet the specifications of the individual education plan (IEP).

Genetic Counseling and Testing

The test and assessment of the reproductive risks of inherited or genetically transmitted diseases and syndromes.

Group Home

A small residential living arrangement in the community for persons with mental retardation or with disabilities, generally for eight or fewer persons.

Guardianship

Legal status of a child or an adult who has been adjudicated incompetent by a court of law. Limited guardianship means no finding of legal incompetence, but does restrict specific decisions the individual may make.

Habilitation

An effort directed toward the alleviation of a developmental disability or toward increasing a developmentally disabled person's level of physical, mental, social or economic functioning. Habilitation may include, but is not limited to, diagnosis, evaluation, medical services, residential care, day care, special living arrangements, training, education, sheltered employment, protective services, counseling and other services provided to developmentally disabled persons by developmental disabilities facilities. (Illinois Revised Statutes, Chapter 91 1/2, Section I-III)

Handicap

Often used as a synonym for disability. Use has become less acceptable, and should only be used when citing laws and regulations.

Hard of Hearing

A residual hearing loss that with adaptations or training can still allow for hearing and speech to some degree.

Hearing Impairment

A term used to refer to the entire range of auditory impairment from deaf to hard of hearing.

For more information, contact:

-- Hearing Helpline - Better Hearing Institute
1-800-424-8576
(For additional toll free numbers see Section VII)

Home Individual Program (HIP)

Homes located in the community where no more than two adults or children with disabilities live under the supervision of a couple. Individualized programs in the areas of education, independent living and community utilization skills and others are provided. HIP programs are approved and funded through the Illinois Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities.

Home Services

Services to individuals in their own homes by personal care assistants, chore/housekeepers or homemakers in daily activities to prevent unnecessary institutionalization. This program is supported and provided by the Illinois Department of Rehabilitation Services.

Human Service System

A generic term generally used to describe the network or service system that provides for support, day programs, employment, and residential services for persons with disabilities.
Hydrocephalus

A term which describes a condition where excess fluid in the cranial cavity causes pressure on the brain and results in an enlarged head. This condition can cause mental retardation if medical treatment is not received.

Hyperactivity

A term which describes behavior which is characterized by excessive activity or movement.

Independent Living Skills

A term used to describe practical skills needed to function in society. Sometimes referred to as activities of daily living. Generally means dressing, eating, and use of money skills.

Individual Written Rehabilitation Program (IWRP)

Term used in the field of rehabilitation (Rehabilitation Act) which states that a IWRP shall be developed for persons with disabilities on the basis of a determination of employability designed to achieve the vocational objective of the individual.

Individualized Education Program (IEP)

A term used in education which means a written statement for a school age child that includes the following components: statement of the child’s present levels of educational performance; statement of annual goals, including short term instructional objectives; statement of the specific special education and related services to be provided to the child, and the extent to which the child will be able to participate in regular educational programs; projected dates for initiation of services and the anticipated duration of the services; and appropriate objective criteria and evaluation procedures and schedules for determining, on at least an annual basis, whether the short term instructional objectives are being achieved. (Education of the Handicapped Act, P.L. 94-142)

Individual Habilitation Plan

A term generally used in the field of developmental disabilities that describes the habilitation goals; a projected timetable for their attainment; the services to be provided; the role of the family in the implementation of the plan; and the name of the person responsible for supervising the habilitation program of an individual with a disability or disabilities. (Illinois Revised Statutes, Chapter 91 1/2, Section 4-309)
Institutionalization

A term used to describe placement in a state or private setting of a long term nature; generally housing 100 or more persons.

Integration

Access to all aspects in the community setting through the removal of legal, social or other barriers previously imposing segregation.

Intermediate Care Facility for the Developmentally Disabled (ICFDD)

Residents of these facilities receive specialized programming in areas such as independent living skills, self-care, behavior management and support services. Average facility size is 70-100 adults, 18 years of age and older. Intermediate Care Facility for the Mentally Retarded (ICFMR) a classification at the federal level for these specialized facilities for persons who are mentally retarded or developmentally disabled. Facilities and beds certified as ICFMR allows the state to capture 50% reimbursement of total cost of care for each individual from the federal government. ICFDD are licensed by the Illinois Department of Public Health and funded by Title XIX through the Illinois Department of Public Aid.

Intermediate Care Facility for the Developmentally Disabled 15 Beds or Less (ICFDD<15)

Living arrangements in the community for persons with disabilities, size is generally 8-15 adults, 18 years of age and older. Basic independent living skills and an off site vocational training or day program are emphasized.

International Symbol for Access

The symbol recognized locally, statewide, nationally and throughout the world to designate services, accessibility and accommodations for people with disabilities (i.e. handicapped parking, restrooms, methods of entrance and egress, telephones with amplifying devices).
Interpreter
A person who translates through sign language or other means verbal communication to persons who are deaf or persons who have a partial or severe hearing loss.

Language Disorders
A communication problem in comprehending, or expressing spoken language.

Lead Poisoning
A toxic condition caused by the ingestion of lead causing damage to the central nervous system and mental retardation. Generally occurs from lead based paint.

Specific Learning Disability
A disorder in the ability to learn effectively in respect to one's own potential when presented with an appropriate, regular instructional environment. The term specific learning disability is preferred over the more general term "learning disability" because it emphasizes that the disability affects only one or two areas of learning. (National Rehabilitation Association)

Least Restrictive Environment (LRE)

ILLINOIS EXECUTIVE AND ELECTIVE OFFICES,
STATE AGENCIES, AND COMMISSIONS

BUREAU OF THE BUDGET (BOB)

Created within the Executive Office of the Governor, the Bureau assists the Governor in the annual submission of the state's fiscal year budget to the Illinois General Assembly. The Bureau, with the assistance of all state agencies, commissions, boards and institutions prepares the recommended budgets for each of the preceding, including, anticipated revenue, estimates of receipts, and expenditures for the succeeding fiscal year. The Bureau evaluates programs proposed by state agencies in terms of goals, costs, relative priorities, programs' accomplishments, and the coordination, development and implementation of state programs.

Organizationally, the Bureau is divided into 8 divisions. The Division of Health and Human Services includes the majority of agencies listed in this section.

DEPARTMENT ON AGING (DOA)

The Department on Aging was created by state statute in 1973 for the purpose of improving the quality of life for Illinois' older citizens. It is the single state agency in Illinois authorized to receive and dispense Federal Older Americans Act funds to area agencies on aging, which in turn distribute the funds to community-based service providers. The department works with area agencies in planning a comprehensive system of services that ranges from nutrition, transportation and employment assistance to senior center facilities and information and referral services. The department also administers a state-wide community care program which utilizes state funding to provide homemaker, chore/housekeeping and adult day care services. The program is specifically designed to prevent premature or inappropriate institutionalization. Case management services are provided to clients by over 60 case coordination units serving as health and social service agencies for older people in need of long-term care.
DEPARTMENT OF CHILDREN AND FAMILY SERVICES (DCFS)

The Department of Children and Family Services administers a variety of programs designed to protect children and strengthen family life through eight regional offices and 80 field offices. In response to the Abused and Neglected Child Reporting Act, the department maintains a toll-free, 24-hour hotline at the DCFS computerized State Central Register in Springfield. It is used by concerned citizens and those required by law to report cases of suspected child abuse or neglect to DCFS. The department provides directly, or purchases from private agencies, family counseling, protective services for abused or neglected children, foster family care, help to unwed parents, adoption services, home-maker services, institutional care for disturbed youngsters, and day care. The department operates a network of emergency shelter care facilities in Cook County. DCFS also administers a grant program to encourage organizations to develop community-based networks to serve troubled teens and their families.

DEPARTMENT OF MENTAL HEALTH AND DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES (DMHDD)

The Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities supports a network of 400 community-based programs which provide residential care, day training, support services, outpatient and crisis services for persons who are mentally ill or developmentally disabled. The department currently operates 23 residential settings for persons who are mentally ill and developmentally disabled, and three research and training institutes. The department is emphasizing the expansion of a wide range of community services as alternatives to institutionalization, thus increasing the capacity for persons with disabilities to remain at home or in independent living arrangements. If persons cannot be adequately cared for in these programs, support is provided through community-based or state-operated residential care.

SECTION IV

Relevant Federal Statutes

Title XIX (Medicaid) of the Social Security Act of 1935 is a federally funded medical assistance program providing funding for the care and treatment of persons of low income with serious medical problems.

Title XX of the Social Security Act a federal program providing funding of such services, as day care, special living arrangements, employment programs, counseling, information and referral. (Known as the Social Services Block Grant)

Title XVI Supplementary Security Income (SSI) is a federally administered income assistance program. Recipients of SSI must be 65 or older, or blind, or disabled and have incomes and assets below a certain level regardless of work history. SSI benefits are unrestricted direct cash payments to the individual. There is no limit to the length of time an individual may receive SSI benefits as long as eligibility criteria are met.

PUBLIC LAW (P.L.) 99-643 Employment Opportunities for the Disabled Act makes section 1619 of the Social Security Act permanent. Allows needy individuals who are blind, elderly and disabled who work to retain a portion of their Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and Medicaid eligibility.

PUBLIC LAW (P.L.) 98-527 Developmental Disabilities Act of 1984 provides federal funding for planning, services, and protection and advocacy for persons with severe and chronic disabilities whose needs cannot be met by generic community services. In addition, this Act provides for interdisciplinary training of professionals, research activities, and special project grants designed to enhance service delivery. This is the enabling legislation creating the Governor's Planning Council on Developmental Disabilities and the Protection and Advocacy, Inc.

PUBLIC LAW (P.L.) 94-142 Education of the Handicapped Act guarantees a free, appropriate public education for all handicapped children between the ages of three and twenty-one. It includes provisions for special education, related services, and vocational education. The law contains several safeguards to assure the rights and protection of handicapped students and their parents. One of the most important safeguards is the Individualized Education Program (IEP). The IEP must be developed and updated annually by a team which includes the parent(s), the teacher and other school representative(s). Career development objectives must be included in the IEP.
PUBLIC LAW (P.L.) 99-457, Education of the Handicapped Act Reauthorization Amendments of 1986 continues the Act for the next five years; provides for early intervention services for infants and toddlers birth to two years of age; new preschool grant for three-five year olds; and extends the authority for other discretionary programs. Other discretionary programs could include services for deaf/blind children and youth; regional resources and federal centers; post-secondary education program; and secondary education and transition services.

PUBLIC LAW (P.L.) 89-313 Elementary and Secondary Education Act provides federal funds for more severely handicapped school aged special education children. This funding source provides a higher per child amount for high cost special education children. Students cannot be claimed for both the P.L. 94-142 and P.L. 89-313 funding sources.

PUBLIC LAW (P.L.) 93-112 The Rehabilitation Act of 1973 provides for the availability of grant monies to the State to fund vocational rehabilitation services for persons who are severely disabled. It also guarantees equal opportunity for comprehensive and coordinated programs of vocational rehabilitation and independent living.

Section 503 of the Rehabilitation Act requires that every employer doing business with the federal government, under a contract of $2,500 or more, must take affirmative action to recruit, hire, train and promote handicapped individuals.

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act states that no otherwise qualified handicapped individual in the United States, shall solely be reason of his handicap, be excluded from the participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance.

PUBLIC LAW (P.L.) 99-506, Rehabilitation Act Amendments of 1986 reauthorizes the Act for five years placing a major focus upon supported employment for individuals with severe disabilities. Supported employment is declared an acceptable outcome for employability; the Act also authorizes grants for supported employment and transitional planning services for youth.

PUBLIC LAW (P.L. 95-602) Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of 1978, (as amended by P.L.98-527) assists states in the provision of a comprehensive system of services to insure developmentally disabled persons receive the services necessary to achieve maximum potential as well as services which insure protection of their legal and human rights.
Relevant State Statutes

PUBLIC ACT 80-144 Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities Code provides for the rights of recipients who are mentally ill or developmentally disabled who have received or are receiving treatment or habilitation from any mental health or developmental disabilities facilities, or from a person who provides such services. Also sets forth procedures for the admission, transfer and discharge of persons who are mentally ill or developmentally disabled.

PUBLIC ACT 80-1508 Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities Confidentiality Act protects the confidentiality of records and communication of persons who are recipients of mental health or developmental disability services. Contents of a person's record cannot be shared with others without the written permission of the person.

PUBLIC ACT 82-183 Community Services Act facilitates the establishment of community services for persons who are mentally ill, developmentally disabled, alcohol dependent, or addicted. States that services should be established in all areas of the State in the following service categories -- prevention; client assessment and diagnosis; case coordination; crisis and emergency; treatment, habilitation and support; and community residential alternatives to institutional settings.

PUBLIC ACT 81-223 Nursing Home Care Reform Act of 1979 provides for the rights of residents of nursing homes including skilled nursing and intermediate care facilities. Any resident or his/her representative may file a complaint with the Illinois Department of Public Health who investigates and makes a determination that a facility is or is not in violation of the Act.

The School Code of Illinois governs the establishment, operation and maintenance of public schools, providing for the transportation of and scholarships in institutions of higher learning for students of all schools. Also governs special education and related services and special education facilities for handicapped children.

PUBLIC ACT 84-948 Environmental Barriers Act created to eliminate environmental barriers in public facilities and multi-story housing units. Barrier includes any feature of the environment which restricts access to or use of the environment by a person with a physical, mental or communications disability.
Illinois Election Code provides that any voter who requires assistance to vote by reason of blindness, physical disability or inability to read, write or speak English shall be provided assistance by 2 election judges. Also allows the election authority to conduct voting at the site of a nursing home for persons who have disabilities who are unable to go to polling places.

PUBLIC ACT 84-734 allows the Secretary of State to issue (upon request) special license plates with the international accessibility symbol so as to be easily recognizable as automobiles driven by or for handicapped persons. The individual requesting special plates must submit a statement certified by a licensed physician as to having a physical disability or provide documentation of a disability through issuance of a Illinois Disabled Person Identification Card.

This Act also prohibits unauthorized use of parking places reserved for handicapped persons. Any persons found in violation of this, may be subject to a fine and/or other costs associated with the removal and storage of the vehicle.
