TEACHING ABOUT THE AREA OF WESTERN EUROPE

FROM ERIC/ChESS TO YOU ***

This resource packet is provided as a service of ERIC/ChESS. It lists a sampling of current materials and resources designed to help the classroom teacher assist students develop an understanding of the culture, history, and issues confronting governments and people in the nations of Western Europe. This packet is best used as a supplement to the ERIC resource guides "Global Education" and "Resources in Geography", which treat the topic of international education. While an attempt was made to include some European sources, only English language journals are listed. It is our hope that the resources listed in this document will assist you in improving your assessments of student learning. We welcome your interest in hope that ERIC/ChESS may be of further service to you in the future.

ED 286 809 American History and National Security: Supplementary Lessons for High School Courses. John J. Patrick, editor. Ohio State Univ., Columbus. Mershon Center. 1987. 222 pp. EDRS Price - MF01 Plus Postage. PC Not Available from EDRS. Effective citizen participation implies the acquisition of skills and knowledge necessary for discussing and deciding national security issues. This book was developed to provide teachers with resources to design and strengthen national security education. The 30 self-contained lessons supplement and enrich current textbook treatment of national security issues rooted in U.S. history. The text outlines national security topics beginning with the writing of the U.S. Constitution and continuing through contemporary issues. Unit 1 focuses on the powers relating to national security and how they are distributed between the President and Congress. Unit 2 emphasizes the westward expansion of the nation before the Civil War and how national security was affected by that growth. Unit 3 discusses national security problems relating to the Civil War. Unit 4 stresses the problems caused by the nation's development into a world power after the Civil War. Unit 5 focuses on the two World Wars and national security topics related to them. Unit 6 discusses the Cold War era, including the policy of containment, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), the "domino theory," the Cuban Missile Crisis, and the SALT II treaty.

ED 283 775 American Memory: A Report on the Humanities in the Nation's Public Schools. Lynne V. Cheney. 1987. 38pp. Available from National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH), 1100 Pennsylvania Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20506 (single copies free). EDRS Price - MF01/PC02 Plus Postage. An extensive study of humanities education in the nation's public schools, commissioned by the United States Congress, concludes that history, literature, and languages are inadequately taught, and most students fail to learn important knowledge about their shared past and culture. This study points to emphasis on process over content as the fundamental deficiency in humanities education. Curriculum guides and textbooks emphasize practical skills at the expense of knowledge; processes in thinking and doing have a higher priority than subject matter. The content-poor curriculum of elementary and secondary schools is reinforced by teacher... education programs that stress how to teach rather than what shall be taught. Recommendations for strengthening humanities education in public schools pertain to: (1) expansion of time allocated to the study of history, literature, and foreign languages; (2) improvement of textbook content; and (3) reform of teacher education programs to emphasize courses in subject areas of the humanities. There is a critical need to attend to what students learn as well as how they learn. Further, school districts are called upon to invest less in mid-level administrators and more in paraprofessionals and aides who can relieve teachers of burdensome custodial and clerical tasks. The purposes are to provide teachers with more time to study, think, and plan and to enhance their authority and performance in the classroom.

ED 272 439 Materials for Teaching about Europe: An Annotated Bibliography for Educators. Fay Metcalf and Catherine Edwards. 1986. 69pp. Available from Atlantic Council of the United States, 1616 H Street, N.W., Washington, DC 20006 ($4.50). EDRS Price - MF01 Plus Postage. PC Not Available from EDRS. The Atlantic Council, in response to a need expressed by United States teachers for a guide to contemporary resources on Europe, commissioned this annotated bibliography limited to works in English which will serve as a stimulus to reflection by educators on how to more adequately present contemporary Europe and its values to United States students. The materials are placed into ten categories: Contemporary European Society: An Overview, European Politics, European Economics, Atlantic Relations, Europe and the World, European Geography and Travel, National Identity and Ethnic Diversity, European Culture and Communication, European History, and Teachers' Resources which include multimedia materials, periodical publications, and a list of organizations and embassies.

ED 270 372 The Atlantic Alliance at 35. Foreign Policy Association Headline Series, No. 268. Anton W. DePorte. 1984. 69pp. Available from Foreign Policy Association, 205 Lexington Avenue, New York, NY 10016 (1-9 copies, $3.00 ea., discounts on larger quantities). EDRS Price - MF01 Plus Postage. PC Not Available from EDRS. One in a series of booklets whose purpose is to stimulate greater and more effective understanding of world affairs among Americans, this six-chapter report examines the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's (NATO) first 35 years and probes the extent to which the alliance can find common ground on the perennial issues of military doctrine, burden-sharing, global strategy, and international economics. The report includes maps, charts, and suggested readings.

ED 269 293 Conference of American and European Educators on Teaching and Learning about Each Other: The USA and Western Europe. Conference Report (Washington, DC, November 11-15, 1985). The CDCC's Teacher Bursaries Scheme. 1985. 88 pp. EDRS Price - MF01 Plus Postage. PC Not Available from EDRS. Education for international understanding is the theme of this conference report. The introduction discusses the first phase of the Council of Europe's work on education for international understanding devoted to improving communication and understanding among Europeans. The second, present phase, includes teaching about problems of global development and the way in which other parts of the world are taught in secondary schools in Western Europe. Section two, "The Conference in a Nutshell" summarizes the conference proceedings of this five day event. Section three elaborates on the need for.
learning about Europe in the U.S.A. through the development of a rationale, a definition of Europe, and the development of empathy. Also included is a list of goals, justifications, and content suggestions. Section four presents six European approaches for teaching about the U.S.A. in Europe through four strategies, (1) a pupil-centered and cooperative approach, (2) history, geography, and English as a foreign language, (3) a multi-disciplinary approach, and (4) a topic approach. Five countries, the United Kingdom, Denmark, Scotland, Norway, and Portugal contributed in the development of the six approaches. Section five concludes the conference report by listing (1) the general principles, (2) the goals of teaching about the U.S.A. in Europe, (3) the goals of teaching about Europe in the U.S.A., and (4) the directions for future activities. Appendices present the conference program and list the participants in attendance.

ED 266 082 The European Currency Unit: An Economical, Financial, and Political Currency. Pam Strysick. 1985. 8 pp. EDRS Price - MF01/PC01 Plus Postage. Intended to provide a basic understanding of the history and complexity of a relatively new foreign currency measure, this paper briefly describes the history leading to the formation of the European Economic Community (EEC), its objectives, its governance structure, and its development of the European Currency Unit (ECU) as a means of stabilizing Europe's monetary system and strengthening the ties of the EEC's 11 member nations. Described as an intangible, cashless currency much like automated bank transfers, the value of an ECU is based on an average of all participating currencies. Should the ECU become independent of the fluctuating U.S. dollar, it could become a major currency of both account and settlement, creating a regional currency in Western Europe. The recent decisions of Spain and Portugal to join the EEC (often referred to as the Common Market) have enlarged the community market, but the implications of the ECU for Americans in the financial and business community remain to be determined.

ED 262 645 Contemporary Culture: A Model for Teaching a Culture's Heritage. Tom Carr. 1985. 14 pp. EDRS Price - MF01 Plus Postage. PC Not Available from EDRS. Current approaches to teaching culture which have adapted the anthropological model to contemporary life situations can serve as a guide to the organization of traditional civilization course material, from which exercises can be developed. Culture instruction should incorporate a cross-cultural dimension, be authentically contemporary, and be truly comprehensive. These concerns can be adapted for instruction in cultural history, either by using techniques as they are currently used, or by developing relatively new activities. Possible activities include role playing, simulations and reenactments, dialogues among the dead, assimilators (finding culturally appropriate resolutions for a situation in the target culture), and use of films or works of art. Activities and materials that can be used to show how images of the past function in contemporary culture include advertisements, folksongs, and history textbooks. It is important to maintain a balance between current and past culture, sacrificing neither to the other. The examples are taken from French history and civilization classes.

ED 257 694 "Improving the Teaching of Contemporary Europe: A Textbook Study [and] Improving the Teaching of Contemporary Europe: Conference Highlights", Merryfield, Merry and Deborah Hutton. 1983. 11 pp. Social Studies Development
Results of a textbook study to determine what U.S. secondary school students are learning about contemporary Europe, and highlights of the "Conference on Improving the Teaching of Contemporary Europe" at which the study was presented. The report concludes with a list of major recommendations of participants concerning ways to improve the teaching of European history.

ED 256 691 Global Guide to International Education. The International Education Source Book. David S. Hoopes, editor. 1984. 704 pp. Available from: Intercultural Press, Inc., Dept. SP, P.O. Box 768, Yarmouth, ME 04096 (Stock No. 529, $75.00, plus $1.00 shipping, prepaid). Document Not Available from EDRS. This comprehensive sourcebook provides information on over 2,300 programs, organizations, and publications that serve as resources in international studies and global education. The book is divided into three major sections: general programs, organizations, and sources; programs, organizations, and sources focusing on a world region; and programs, organizations, and sources focusing on over 150 countries. Listings are arranged under the following headings: (1) general sources of information on international affairs, cultural relations, and world issues; (2) resources for elementary, secondary, and undergraduate international/intercultural studies and global education; (3) educational exchange organizations; (4) international studies programs and offices, research centers, and organizations; (5) peace and conflict resolution studies; (6) international studies and research in professional education; (7) grants, awards, and fellowships for international studies and research in professional education; (8) study and educational travel abroad; (9) foreign language learning; (10) foreign students and visitors and resources on English as a second language; (11) publishers and distributors of books on world area studies; (12) African area studies; (13) Asian and Pacific area studies; (14) East European area studies; (15) West European area studies; (16) Latin American area studies; (17) Middle East area studies; and (18) academic programs and resources for country studies. Three separate indexes and cross-references are provided.

ED 256 667 Atlas of NATO. Harry F. Young. 1985. 43 pp. Available from: Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington DC 20402 ($1.75). 43 pp. EDRS Price - MF01/PC02 Plus Postage. This atlas provides basic information about the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Formed in response to growing concern for the security of Western Europe after World War II, NATO is a vehicle for Western efforts to reduce East-West tensions and the level of armaments. NATO promotes political and economic collaboration as well as military defense. The atlas consists of displays and narrative that illustrate and discuss the following information concerning NATO: membership and area, the Warsaw Pact, responsibilities, burdensharing, integrated commands and infrastructure, standardization of weapons, military forces, transatlantic deployment and logistics, nuclear forces, naval forces, military presence outside the NATO area, Soviet-bloc military presence in the Third World, military expenditures, West European and North Atlantic economic cooperation, trade, overseas import dependency, and security pacts.

This publication presents parents, teachers, and educational policy-makers with an account of history instruction in Waldorf schools. An introduction outlines the theoretical content of the Waldorf School movement, the school's emphasis on creating a unity of experience, and the evolution of history instruction through the elementary grade curriculum. Chapter 1 outlines the dual task of teaching history: the horizontal surface approach (geography) and the consideration of the changing consciousness of humankind as experienced in the cultures of the past (history). In chapter 2, scope and sequence of geography instruction is presented: local environment and geography and economics in the intermediate grades, cultural geography in the middle grades, geography and spiritual outlook and geography and law in the high school grades. Rationales for and treatment of the history of civilization and culture are presented in chapter 3. Theoretical concepts, strategies, and resources for teaching about Egypt, India, Mesopotamia, and Greece are discussed. Waldorf pedagogy comprises the focus of chapter 4. Chapters 5 through 8 outline the Waldorf method, resources, and grade level sequence for teaching Western civilization from Rome through modern Europe. European religious and cultural history is emphasized.

ED 242 614 World History. Simine Heise (and others). Dade County Public Schools, Miami, Fla. 1983. 54 pp. EDRS Price - MF01/PC03 Plus Postage. A detailed outline summarizes a ninth-grade course in world history adaptable to average and honors classes. Material is divided into five parts. A list of 33 course goals precedes a list of 150 objectives, grouped under appropriate goal headings. The bulk of the document consists of a content outline which cites major and minor topics covered in the course. These include prehistoric man; early civilizations; developments in Asia, the Middle East, and Europe; European history; the Industrial Revolution; modern Europe; "isms;" post-World War II independence movements; Latin America; and future trends. The remainder of the booklet consists of a list of audiovisual materials and a planning calendar.

ED 223 522 People through the Ages. Social Studies Interim Grade Guide for Grade Eight. Manitoba Dept. of Education, Winnipeg. Curriculum Development Branch. 1982. 66pp. EDRS Price - MF01/PC03 Plus Postage. Supplementary units of study help eighth graders in Manitoba explore the ways people lived within selected societies of the past and realize that life today is closely related to developments which have occurred through the ages. Units and subtopics are: (1) Life during Prehistoric and Early Historic Times—prehistoric times, life in early river valleys; (2) Ancient Civilizations—Greek, Roman, Mayan, Inca, Aztec, African, Indian, Chinese; (3) Life in Early Modern Europe—feudal society, Renaissance, Reformation; (4) Life in the Modern World—Western industrial society, communist country, developing nations. Each unit subtopic contains objectives, teaching strategies, learning activities, and discussion questions. An annotated listing of teacher and student print and nonprint resources for each unit is included.
Annotations of articles from journals covered in the ERIC system follow. All annotations appear in the CURRENT INDEX TO JOURNALS IN EDUCATION (CIJE), which is published on a monthly basis and is available at libraries throughout the country. Journal annotations are intended to describe the contents of articles in general terms and the reader is urged to locate the full article in a library. If noted, reprints of articles are available from University Microfilms International (UMI), P.O. Box 1764, Ann Arbor, MI 48106.

EJ 357 355 "The World Revolution of Westernization," Theodore H. Von Laue. HISTORY TEACHER 20:2 (Feb 1987): 263-279. Discusses the history of westernization from a global perspective. Analyzes the reasons for perceived Western "superiority", how these reasons contributed to the buildup of western power, and its attractiveness to non-Western cultures. Indicates the necessity for a trans-national, culturally non-specific view of history to meet this age of global confluence.

EJ 349 197 "Europe in European Curricula," Michael G. Bruce. PHI DELTA KAPPAN 68:7 (Mar 1987): 551-552. In Europe, global interdependence has defeated conventional approaches to studying Europe. "European Studies"—popular during the seventies—became academically colonized and impoverished. "Europe across the curriculum" is presently risking diffuseness. Treatment of Europe in European schools will have to be coherent, sequential, and multidisciplinary.

EJ 347 737 "From Plato to Pareto: The Western Civilization Course Reconsidered," Marie Marmo Mullaney. JOURNAL OF GENERAL EDUCATION 38:1 (1986): 28-40. Discusses the importance of historical study within general education. Reviews the rise and fall of the Western Civilization course as the core of general education in the humanities. Suggests ways a revised version of this course can be restored to a central place in the curriculum.

EJ 345 714 "Higher Education in Europe: A Many Faceted Question," H. J. C. Koster. HIGHER EDUCATION IN EUROPE 11:1 (1986): 28-34. The activities of UNESCO, the Council of Europe, the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, and the European Economic Community to promote academic mobility and international recognition of credits and degrees are outlined, and problems still to be solved are discussed.

EJ 342 676 "The Civilization Course, Then and Now," Quentin M. Hope. CONTEMPORARY FRENCH CIVILIZATION 10:2 (Spr-Sum 1986): 268-277. Courses on French civilization and culture should begin with a presentation of essential information, including historical background, role of the state, and the weight and presence of the past. They should move on through public life - politics, commerce, industry, social structures, the media - to the experiences of day-to-day life.
"The European Economic Community," Kelvin Schuchart. SOCIAL STUDIES 77:1 (Jan-Feb 1986): 19-22. Maintains that social studies students need to realize the relationship of the European Economic Community to the United States in order to understand the trade bonds that exist between us. Briefly reviews the history of the Community, outlines its Common Agricultural Policy, and provides situations for classroom role playing.

"The Council of Europe and Education for International Understanding," Maitland Stobart. SOCIAL STUDIES 77:1 (Jan-Feb 1986): 6-7. Reviews the objectives of the 21-member intergovernmental Council of Europe and its sub-group, the Council for Cultural Cooperation. Explains the prevailing practices and desired outcomes of European history as it is taught in the member countries.

"Civilization as a Unit of World History: Eurasia and Europe's Place in It," Edward L. Farmer. HISTORY TEACHER 18:3 (May 1985): 345-363. As a counter to Eurocentric views, a comparative approach should be used to study the history of European civilization in the premodern period. A framework for considering European history in comparison to that of three other civilizations is presented.

"Today's Western and World Civilization College Texts: A Review," William A. Percy and Pedro J Suarez. HISTORY TEACHER 17:4 (Aug 1984): 567-590. Intended to help college level history teachers choose the texts most appropriate to their teaching methods and student bodies, this article critiques Western and world civilization textbooks.
Long-term globalization of the world’s social structure, the decline of Western dominance of that structure, and the loss of American hegemony within the world necessitate globalization of American education. Americans will need foreign languages, cross-cultural awareness, and an understanding of world history, sociology, and geography.

Reports

This paper demonstrates the commitment of the Council of Chief State School Officers to international education, defines four international dimensions of education, and presents a set of recommendations for action on the international dimensions of education. Recommendations are directed to governments (Federal, State, and Local) as well as to colleges and universities, and educational organizations.

Developed from a summer institute on core curriculum, this report compares the concept of core curriculum in fourteen countries.

The first section of the paper summarizes statistics related to developing a rationale for international studies and foreign language programs. The second section presents brief abstracts of recent national reports which emphasize the importance of international studies. Subsequent sections discuss obstacles to program implementation, describe policy options, outline some policy initiatives, and summarizes reports about research on international studies programs. The material is extensively footnoted. In addition, a 39 item international studies resource list is included.

Discusses challenge of internationalization to U.S. society and educational system, and presents specific recommendations for a coordinated, national effort. While a national Foundation is seen as essential in facilitating an effective interface between government, business, scientific and education community, the report emphasizes that it does not favor a single national policy, but a viable organization to enhance the pluralism of effort previously built up. Available from: Publications Office, Social Science Research Council, 605 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10158.

Papers from the "Symposium on Western European Studies and North American Research Libraries", 8-11 May 1983, University of Minnesota. Discuss issues, subjects, and trends in scholarship in the study of Western Europe at the University level.

A Report to the President from the President's Commission on Foreign Language and International Studies.

This report of the Study Commission on Global Education provides a rationale for global education. It also proposes changes in elementary and secondary curricula to increase the emphasis given world systems, world civilizations, and diverse cultural patterns within and outside the United States.
