The fifth module in a 17-module self-instructional course on student financial aid administration teaches novice student financial aid administrators and other personnel about Title IV institutional and program eligibility. This introduction to management of federal financial aid programs authorized by the Higher Education Act Title IV, discusses how to recognize eligibility requirements that define eligible institutions and educational programs, recognize standard technical terms and definitions, and recognize situations requiring re-evaluation by the Department of Education for continued institutional eligibility and certification. It provides a pre-test, post-test, glossary, and acronyms. Module 5 contains two sections that cover the following: (1) institutional eligibility and certification (overview, criteria for institutional eligibility, standards for institutional certification, and requirements for continued participation in Title IV programs); and (2) procedures for establishing institutional eligibility and certification to participate in Title IV programs (new participants, change of ownership and control, additional branches and educational programs, additional Title IV programs, other substantive changes, fine, limitation, suspension, and termination, and re-establishment of participation after termination). An appendix offers sample forms. Contains two references. (SM)

Dear Colleague:

We are pleased to present the Second Edition of A Self-Instructional Course in Student Financial Aid Administration. This updated version of the course originally published in 1986 incorporates provisions of the Higher Education Amendments of 1986, with 1987 Technical Amendments and subsequent amendments.

The purpose of the course remains the same. It is designed to provide neophyte financial aid administrators (those with two years or less experience in student aid) and other institutional personnel with a systematic introduction to management of federal financial aid programs authorized by Title IV of the Higher Education Act. Students of the course will gain a fundamental understanding of the roles and responsibilities of participating institutions and of student aid administrators. On completion of the course, they will be prepared to expand this knowledge with the use of training and reference materials, on-site training opportunities, and contacts with other members of the profession.

The materials were revised under a contract with the Washington Consulting Group. The text was reviewed for technical accuracy by many staff members of the Office of Student Financial Assistance (OSFA). Special acknowledgement is due to both project staff and OSFA specialists for accomplishing very wide-ranging modifications of the text during a period when much legislative and regulatory activity affecting student aid was in progress.

Your comments and suggestions regarding any aspect of the materials are welcome. OSFA is particularly interested in learning 1) the level of experience and job responsibilities of personnel at your institution using the modules; 2) the purposes for which they are being used (for example, self-study, training new staff, reference); and 3) whether you feel that this publication is among those that OSFA should continue to update and disseminate annually. You may send your comments to the Training Branch, OSFA/ED, 400 Maryland Avenue S.W., Washington, D.C. 20202.

Sincerely,

Dewey L. Newman
Deputy Assistant Secretary for Student Financial Assistance

MODULE 5
TITLE IV INSTITUTIONAL AND PROGRAM ELIGIBILITY

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

After completing this module, you will be familiar with the general eligibility and certification requirements that institutions and programs must meet to participate in Title IV financial aid programs. In particular, you will be able to:

- recognize general eligibility requirements that define eligible institutions and educational programs;
- identify key definitions used to determine institutional and program eligibility (definitions of public or private nonprofit, proprietary, and postsecondary vocational institutions);
- recognize standard technical terms and definitions used in the administration of Title IV programs;
- describe ongoing administrative requirements and institutional standards that must be met for continued participation in Title IV programs; and
- recognize situations requiring re-evaluation by the Department of Education (ED) for continued institutional eligibility and certification.

INTRODUCTION

This module provides an overview of the two processes by which institutions are approved for the use of Title IV funds: eligibility and certification. All institutions must be found eligible and must be certified before initial participation in the programs. These processes must be repeated every 4 years and, in the interim, when specific changes occur. Changes requiring re-establishment of eligibility and recertification are outlined because they occur frequently enough to merit discussion.

Institutional eligibility is concerned with answers to such questions as:

- Is your institution private or public? Nonprofit or for-profit?
- Does your institution offer a degree or certificate?
- Is your institution accredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency?

The answers will allow you to recognize some important characteristics of your institution that affect its participation in Title IV programs.
Follow this module with particular attention to your school's circumstances, but take note of the diversity described. Eligibility and certification requirements have been established for a wide variety of institutions.

Institutional eligibility regulations (34 CFR 600) and the Student Assistance General Provisions (34 CFR 668) establish general rules that apply to an institution of postsecondary education or a vocational school that participates in any Title IV student assistance programs. The federal regulations provide:

- regulatory definitions;
- procedures for establishing eligibility;
- standards for institutional financial responsibility, administrative capability, audits, and recordkeeping; and
- conditions under which ED may fine, limit, suspend, or terminate the participation of an institution.

Before an institution may participate in Title IV programs, the Department of Education must establish the institution's eligibility and certification. These two procedures will be examined in this module.

5.1 OVERVIEW OF ELIGIBILITY AND CERTIFICATION PROCEDURES

Establishment of institutional eligibility and certification are separate processes within the Department of Education's Division of Eligibility and Certification (DEC). A postsecondary educational institution requests a determination of eligibility and certification by submitting to DEC an Application for Institutional Eligibility and Certification (ED Form E40-34P). DEC reviews the Application for Institutional Eligibility and Certification to determine whether the applicant institution satisfies all statutory and regulatory requirements for designation as an institution eligible to apply for participation in programs authorized by the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended. First, DEC reviews the application to determine if the institution satisfies all requirements for institutional and educational program eligibility. If eligibility is established for at least one of the school's educational programs, ED will issue an official Eligibility Letter. This letter will specify the eligible locations and the eligible educational programs of the institution, and the Title IV programs for which the institution is eligible to apply for participation.

At such time as the school is determined to be an eligible institution, DEC reviews the application for certification to participate in specific Title IV programs. This second review examines the institution's administrative capability and financial stability with regard to administering the financial aid programs. If the school's application is successful, ED will approve a Program Participation Agreement.

An institution must renew its eligibility and certification status every 4 years. In the interim, an institution's eligibility must be re-established if:

The Institutional Eligibility and Certification Process

1. State licensing; accreditation or approved alternative; and other statutory eligibility requirements?
   - if yes

2. Institutional and program eligibility established (re-established) by the Division of Eligibility and Certification?
   - if yes

3. Certification for participation in Title IV approved by the Division of Eligibility and Certification?
   - if yes

4. The institution participates in Title IV programs.

5. Changes within the institution?
   - if yes
it has a change of ownership that results in a change of control;

it changes its name or address;

it changes the level of course offering (for example, changes from an associate in arts degree program to a bachelor's degree program); or it violated its fiduciary duty and was terminated from participation in Title IV programs.

It may* also be necessary to update eligibility if a school:

- makes changes that affect its institutional definition (including a conversion of its method of measuring progress from a clock-hour to a credit-hour system, or vice versa); or

- adds or closes a branch or location.

An institution must be recertified when it changes ownership and this results in a change of control, or when it applies to participate in an additional financial aid program that is not included in the existing Program Participation Agreement. However, other changes that require re-establishment of eligibility (such as a change in a school's address) do not generally demand recertification. In these cases, renewal of eligibility will allow the existing program certification to remain in effect, with the Program Participation Agreement being updated to include new information.

We will look at the circumstances that affect eligibility and certification in more detail later in this module. First, we will examine the criteria for eligibility and the financial and administrative requirements for certification. Keep in mind that your institution must maintain its ability to meet these criteria and requirements. This continuing effort must be made in the financial aid office and other administrative offices of your institution.

5.2 CRITERIA FOR INSTITUTIONAL ELIGIBILITY

5.2.1 Institutional Definitions

Schools must meet one or more of the definitions of an eligible institution before they may apply for

Check with DEC in these cases to determine whether an eligibility update is necessary and to receive instructions for completing the process.
Definitions used by the Division of Eligibility and Certification are based on the following institutional characteristics:

- The location of the school. The institution must be located within the United States, Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa, the Virgin Islands, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, or the Northern Mariana Islands. Foreign schools may be approved by ED on an individual basis and may participate only in the Stafford Loan, SLS, and PLUS programs.

- The qualifications of the students admitted to the educational program(s).

- The legal authorization to provide an educational program beyond secondary level, issued by the state in which the institution is located, or evidence of legal exemption from such authorization.

- The educational program(s) provided by the particular type of institution.

- The accreditation of the school by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association, or an alternative to accreditation which may be established by ED.

- The length of the school's existence.

- The institution's type of control: public, private nonprofit, or private for-profit.

An institution submits the descriptive information outlined above to DEC on the Application for Institutional Eligibility for Programs (ED Form E40-34P). Information reported by the institution on ED Form E40-34P is compared by DEC to the definitions of each type of eligible institution. Definitions that an institution and at least one of its educational programs must meet are specified in the Institutional Eligibility regulations (34 CFR 600).

According to Institutional Eligibility regulations, an eligible institution of postsecondary education must renew its eligibility designation, including all of its educational programs and all its locations, every 4 years. This means that an eligible institution may determine on its own whether a new educational program satisfies the statutory requirements for eligibility for participation in the Title IV programs.

The educational qualifications of all regular students, whether they receive Title IV aid or not, must be kept on file.

Eligibility Criteria

Is the institution or program eligible? The following must be considered:

- Where is it located?

- Are the students seeking a degree or certificate? Do they have a high school diploma or its recognized equivalent; or are they beyond the age of compulsory attendance and have they shown the ability to benefit?

- Is the institution authorized by the state to provide an educational program?

- What types of educational programs are provided?

- Is the institution accredited? If not, has ED approved the institution through an alternative evaluation?

- How long has the institution been in existence?
Title IV programs. Should an institution make an error in determining that an educational program meets the federal regulatory requirements for eligibility, the institution shall be liable to repay to the Department of Education all the student financial assistance and other ED program funds that it or students who were enrolled in the particular ineligible educational program(s) received.

Types of Eligible Institutions

The following general types of institutions are defined in regulations as eligible to participate in the student financial assistance programs authorized by Title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended:

* Institutional Eligibility Regulations (34 CFR 600): *

- a public or private nonprofit institution of higher education (as defined in 34 CFR 600.4)
- a proprietary institution of higher education (34 CFR 600.5)
- a postsecondary vocational institution of higher education (34 CFR 600.6)
- a vocational school (34 CFR 600.7)

* Stafford/SLS*/PLUS Regulations:

- a foreign institution approved by ED to participate only in the Stafford Loan, SLS, and PLUS programs (34 CFR 682.200)

Eligibility to participate in Title IV programs does not necessarily extend to all of an eligible institution's educational programs.

5.2.2 Key Terms

In the next section we will look at a chart showing detailed eligibility requirements for each type of institution. Before examining the chart, you should be familiar with the important terms described below.

Nationally Recognized Accrediting Agency or Association: An accrediting agency or association which the Secretary of Education has recognized as having the ability to accredit or pre-accredit a particular category of Statutory Alternative to Accreditation: One statutory alternative is available to unaccredited public or nonprofit institutions applying for eligibility as institutions of higher education or postsecondary vocational institutions. These institutions may apply for eligibility under the transfer-of-credit method. Under this method, the unaccredited institution may be eligible if at least 4 of its students and credits are accepted upon transfer by at least three accredited institutions. An unaccredited institution that is requesting eligibility to participate in the Title IV programs under the transfer-of-credit alternative to accreditation must include in its institutional eligibility application, for each transfer student, the dates on which each transfer student attended his or her first class at both the applicant (unaccredited) institution and the accredited institution.

For further information on this statutory alternative to accreditation, contact DEC.

Regular Student: A person who is enrolled or accepted for enrollment at an institution for the purpose of obtaining a degree or certificate offered by that institution.

Ability to Benefit: An admissions standard for a person who:

- does not have a high school diploma or GED;
- is beyond the age of compulsory school attendance in the state where the institution is located (unless the person is admitted to a vocational school, in which case he or she must have completed or left elementary or secondary education); and
- is admitted to an eligible institution as a regular student (unless the institution is a public or private nonprofit institution of higher education that participates only in the Stafford Loan, SLS, and PLUS programs).

A student who is admitted on the basis of ability to benefit must meet one of the following conditions:

- receive the general education diploma (GED) prior to the student's certification or graduation from the

|                                | Guided by federal requirements and accrediting agency criteria, school decides upon the standards it will apply and/or methods by which it will judge a student's "ability to benefit." | program of study, or by the end of the first year of the course of study, whichever is earlier; or

- be counseled prior to admission and be enrolled in and successfully complete an institutionally prescribed program of remedial or developmental education not to exceed one academic year or its equivalent; or

- be administered a nationally recognized, standardized, or industry developed test, measuring the applicant's aptitude to successfully complete the program to which he or she has applied. Applicants who are unable to satisfy the testing requirements must be enrolled in and successfully complete an institutionally prescribed program or course of remedial or developmental education. This course may not be longer than one academic year or its equivalent.

An institution must document its determination that a student meets the "ability to benefit" provision. In addition, the institution must keep for at least 5 years a record of the examinations, counseling, or any other method used by the school in its determination of the student's ability to benefit from the training provided.

1-Year Program: A program of at least 24 semester or trimester hours or 36 quarter hours at an institution using credit hours to measure progress; 900 clock hours of supervised training at an institution using clock hours to measure progress; or 900 clock hours of preparation in a correspondence program (34 CFR 600.2).

6-Month Program: A program of at least 16 semester or trimester hours or 24 quarter hours at an institution using credit hours to measure progress; 600 clock hours of supervised training at an institution using clock hours to measure progress; 600 clock hours of preparation in a correspondence program; or an equivalent accredited program (34 CFR 600.2).

Recognized Equivalent of a High School Diploma: This is defined as either a General Education Development Certificate (GED) or a state certificate received after a student has passed a state-authorized examination recognized by the state as the equivalent of a high school diploma (34 CFR 600.2).
5.2.3 Institutional Eligibility Chart

The chart on the following two pages lists each type of institution, its characteristics, and applicable eligibility criteria. Note that some characteristics and criteria are common, whereas others differ from one type of institution to another.

For various reasons such as admissions policy, length of program, accreditation, or control, a school can be determined to be eligible for only one Title IV program, for certain specific Title IV programs, or for all Title IV programs.

As you review the chart, think about your school's characteristics. Which type of institution are you working in? Does it satisfy more than one definition?
5.3 STANDARDS FOR INSTITUTIONAL CERTIFICATION

Once the institution and at least one of its programs are determined to be eligible, it must pass a further review before it is certified to use Title IV program funds. This involves a wider evaluation of the institution, including its financial responsibility and administrative capability.

5.3.1 Financial Responsibility

During the certification process, ED carefully reviews the financial responsibility of an institution. The General Provisions regulations define satisfactory financial responsibility. The institution must:

- provide the services listed in official institutional publications;
- provide administrative resources necessary to comply with the requirements of the General Provisions;
- meet all financial obligations, including:
  - refunds of institutional charges; and
  - repayments to the Secretary of Education for liabilities and debts incurred in programs administered by the Secretary.
- provide bond coverage for employees who are responsible for federal financial aid funds, to protect against fraud (except in public institutions that are bonded by the state).

According to the regulations, an institution may not be considered by ED to be financially responsible if:

- it has a history of operating losses;
- it has a deficit net worth, meaning its liabilities exceed assets for its latest fiscal year;
- it is owned by or employs persons who have committed crimes involving federal funds; or

Once the eligibility of the institution and at least one of its programs has been established by ED, the institution may apply for certification to participate in Title IV programs.

Q. How does the certification process differ from the evaluation that determines an institution's program eligibility?

A. The review to determine eligibility will only determine whether the institution meets the definition of an eligible institution. This definition examines the location, students, programs, accreditation, state approval, and length of existence of the institution. The evaluation for certification reviews the institution's financial responsibility and administrative capability.
under an accrual basis of accounting, it had a ratio of current assets to current liabilities of less than 1:1 at the end of its latest fiscal year.

An institution must provide ED with documents (such as financial statements and records) that are necessary for ED's evaluation when it applies for certification.

5.3.2 Administrative Capability

The term administrative capability covers specific areas in the management of an institution. To demonstrate administrative capability, an institution must:

- establish and maintain the student records and financial records required by regulations;
- designate a capable individual to be responsible for administering the Title IV programs and for coordinating all federal and nonfederal financial aid programs;
- communicate to this administrator all the information received by any institutional office that affects a student's Title IV eligibility;
- employ an adequate number of qualified staff to carry out administrative responsibilities;
- provide adequate checks and balances in the institution's system of internal controls and divide functions so that no office has the responsibility for both authorizing payments and disbursing funds to any particular student who receives Title IV aid;
- establish, publish, and apply reasonable standards for measuring satisfactory academic progress in determining a student's continued eligibility for Title IV aid (this is discussed in more detail in Module 6);
- develop an adequate system to establish the accuracy and consistency of information on documents such as applications, tax returns, verification forms, and institutional records (Module 13 discusses verification);
- provide adequate financial aid counseling to students on sources and amounts of aid, methods by which aid is determined, students' rights and responsibilities; and for Stafford and Perkins Loan recipients, provide counseling on the average indebtedness of students, average anticipated monthly repayments, options for repayment, and debt and management planning for successful repayment; and

- refer any instance of suspected fraud or criminal conduct by a Title IV applicant to the Office of the Inspector General of the Department of Education or, if more appropriate, to state or local authorities.

IMPORTANT: A high student loan default rate or high student withdrawal rate may indicate poor handling of administrative responsibilities. For this reason, a review of administrative capability by certification reviewers will also take these factors into consideration.

5.4 REQUIREMENTS FOR CONTINUED PARTICIPATION IN TITLE IV PROGRAMS

Standards listed under Financial Responsibility and Administrative Capability that are met initially must continue to be met throughout the period of participation in Title IV programs. In addition, the General Provisions regulations require audits of Title IV programs and proper maintenance of records. The following sections describe these additional requirements.

5.4.1 Title IV Audits

Title IV program audits are required at least once every 2 years. If the institution receives campus-based funds, the institution shall submit the audit report to the Secretary and the Inspector General by March 31 of the year following the last award year covered by the audit. If the institution does not receive campus-based funds, the institution shall submit the audit report to the Secretary and the Inspector General by January 31 of the year following the last year covered by the audit. The biennial audit requirement is satisfied if the institution has an audit under the Single Audit Act (under Chapter 75 of Title 31, United States Code).

Auditors must meet criteria that ensure sufficient independence to offer an impartial opinion of the institution's operation. These audits review the fiscal records of the institution as they relate to its use of Title

Examples of fraud or criminal conduct would include false claims of independent student status or citizenship, the use of false identities, the forgery of signatures or certifications, and false statements of income.
IV funds, and test the institution's compliance with Title IV regulations.

After completion of the audit, an audit report is sent to ED. The audit report lists audit exceptions—instances where the institution is not in compliance with Title IV regulations. Program and fiscal records used to prepare the audit report must remain on file and be accessible to the Department of Education for review purposes.

5.4.2 Maintenance of Records

For all recipients of Title IV funds, the institution must establish and maintain records regarding:

- each student's admission to a program, the program and courses enrolled in, and enrollment status;
- sufficient evidence of each student's satisfactory academic progress according to the institution's written standards and practices, in accordance with federal regulations (standards which require an aid recipient to complete an educational program within a time frame established by the institution);
- refunds due or paid to each student;
- each student's placement in a job by the institution, if it has a placement service and the student uses it;
- each student's receipt of financial aid; and
- the verification of student aid application data.

In addition, the institution must establish and maintain records on the educational qualifications of regular students, both aid recipients and those not receiving aid, for all programs eligible to participate in Title IV student financial aid. If Title IV eligibility is limited to specific programs, records on the educational qualifications need be kept only for students in those programs.

Records must be organized and available for review by ED at the geographical location where the students will receive their degrees or certificates.

5.4.3 Student Consumer Information Services Institutions participating in the Title IV programs must publish consumer information for prospective and currently enrolled students. The regulations specify the minimum information that must be provided. This includes information on:

- the institution, including its cost of attendance, educational programs, licensing, accreditation, facilities, and services for the handicapped;

- the financial aid process, including:
  - available financial aid programs (both federal and other);
  - student eligibility requirements;
  - the application process;
  - the institutional policies for distributing financial aid awards;
  - the criteria utilized to determine a student's satisfactory academic progress;
  - the institutional refund policy should a student withdraw or drop out of school before a particular enrollment period has ended;

- the student's rights and responsibilities as a recipient of financial aid, the terms and conditions of any employment that is part of an aid package, and the terms and schedules for the repayment of student loans;

- the institution's drug abuse prevention program, which must be accessible to the institution's officers, employees, and students; and

- employment statistics, graduation statistics, and other information necessary to demonstrate the truthfulness of the institution's advertisements, if the institution advertises job placement rates in its catalogs or other publications. This information must be current (the most recent statistics available) and must be provided to prospective students at the time of application to the institution.

5.4.4 Institutional Refund Policies

When a student officially withdraws, is expelled, or is determined by the institution to have unofficially withdrawn (dropped out), the institution may owe the student a refund. If the student received Title IV financial aid, part or all of that refund may need to be returned to the Title IV programs from which the student was awarded funds.

For more information on refund policies, refer to Module 15, Internal Aid Office Management and Institutional Quality Control.
The institution must:

- implement and maintain a system to ensure that the Title IV funds are returned to federal government accounts in a timely manner. The institution must return the federal financial aid funds within 30 days of the date that the student officially withdraws, is expelled, or is determined to have unofficially withdrawn.

- develop and apply a distribution policy for returning funds to the Title IV program accounts from which a student has been awarded. This distribution policy must be applied consistently to all students who received Title IV funds.

Q. If a student withdraws and is "due a refund," will the student always receive money back?

A. No. In some cases, the full amount of the refund may be returned to Title IV accounts.

More detailed information on institutional refund policies is provided in Module 15.
The following sections describe the circumstances under which institutions will be reviewed for eligibility and certification, and outline the general procedures required. These circumstances are summarized in the chart below.

Institutions are encouraged to contact DEC for specific guidance.

A sample of the Program Participation Agreement is reproduced in the Appendix. You may want to review it when it is mentioned. No sample of the Application for Institutional Eligibility and Certification (ED Form E40-34P) is included, as this form was not available at the time this course went to press.

5.5 NEW PARTICIPANTS

An institution applying to participate in Title IV programs for the first time must begin by establishing its eligibility. Application is made to the Division of Eligibility and Certification (DEC) by completing an Application for Institutional Eligibility and Certification (ED Form E40-34P). Along with this form, the institution must include a copy of its notification of accreditation, issued by a nationally recognized accrediting agency. At the same time, the institution submits to DEC two Program Participation Agreement forms and the institution's latest fiscal year-end financial statement. The financial statement must be prepared and attested to by a certified public accountant or the institution's chief executive officer.

If the institution is not accredited, it must submit with ED Form E40-34P its notification of preaccreditation under a recognized preaccreditation status (for the purpose of demonstrating satisfactory assurance), or the necessary documents for ED to evaluate the institution under the transfer-of-credit alternative to accreditation provision (Sec. 600.8). If the institution is an unaccredited public postsecondary vocational institution, it must submit a copy of its approval by a state agency recognized for the approval of public postsecondary vocational education. DEC will provide guidance on specific items to submit. They are also listed on the checklist contained in ED Form E40-34P.

DEC will evaluate the institution's application according to eligibility requirements and, if the application is approved, will send the institution an Eligibility Letter. The Eligibility Letter is an important document that must be readily available for inspection by auditors and ED staff conducting program reviews. The director of financial aid and the chief executive officer must know at all times where this document is kept.

The Eligibility Letter may establish institutional eligibility to apply for all Title IV programs and may extend that eligibility to all the institution's locations and programs. On the other hand, the Eligibility Letter may state that the institution is eligible to apply only for one or more specific Title IV programs, or that only certain locations or educational programs are eligible to apply for Title IV participation.

Except in the case of an institution eligible under the transfer-of-credit alternative to accreditation, the Eligibility Letter will remain in effect for a period of 4 years, or until the institution ceases to meet one of the statutory eligibility requirements, or until the institution makes a change in:

- its ownership and control;
- its name or address; or
- the level of academic achievement obtainable through a program of study previously eligible for Title IV participation (for example, a change from an associate in arts degree to a bachelor's degree).

However, the Eligibility Letter may not automatically cover the extension of Title IV program awards to students enrolled in new educational programs or students attending new branch campuses or locations.

5.6 CHANGE OF OWNERSHIP AND CONTROL

An institution's eligibility and certification do not automatically remain in effect if the institution changes ownership and control. An institution's Program Participation Agreement expires on the effective date of the change in ownership and control. The institution must notify DEC of the date of the change and submit another Application for Institutional Eligibility and Certification (ED Form E40-34P) together with supporting documentation. The required documentation includes a letter from the accrediting agency stating that accreditation or preaccreditation is continued under the terms of the change. The documentation also includes a copy of the state's legal authorization of the new

Change of Control: An institution making a change such as private to public or proprietorship to corporation is said to have made a change of control. In some cases, a change from proprietary to nonprofit status also constitutes a change of control.

Changes such as new ownership resulting in a change of control, name and address, or level of program offerings will require a review of the institution's eligibility by the Department of Education.
ownership and control (where it applies) and a statement certifying the assumption of liability for the previous owner's administration of federal programs.

To prove financial responsibility of the new owners, the Department of Education requires the institution to submit a profit and loss statement and a balance sheet, or an audit prepared by a certified or licensed public accountant, for the school's latest fiscal year, or any other documents requested by the Secretary.

In the event that the institution has obtained eligibility under the transfer-of-credit alternative to accreditation, the institution must renew its eligibility under that method every 3 years.

The Division of Eligibility and Certification conducts an administrative and financial analysis of the institution as a prerequisite for certification of the institution for participation in Title IV programs. If the results are satisfactory, ED countersigns the new Program Participation Agreement and returns it to the institution.

Funds may not be spent or drawn down (requested from ED) until eligibility and certification have been re-established. Once a new Program Participation Agreement is countersigned by ED and returned to the institution, Title IV aid disbursements may resume.

5.7 ADDITIONAL BRANCHES AND EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS

Eligibility does not always extend automatically to new branches or locations of an institution. Depending upon the circumstances, the institution may need to document with DEC that the new branch or location meets all the requirements for eligibility. If the institution wants to extend its eligibility to new branches or locations, it should contact DEC for instructions on submitting a new ED Form E40-34P. If approved by DEC, a revised Eligibility Letter is returned to the school listing all eligible locations and programs.

New branches and locations of an already certified school do not need recertification.
5.8 ADDITIONAL TITLE IV PROGRAMS

An institution which has been restricted to participation in only a limited number of Title IV programs may apply for expanded eligibility when changes have been made that affect its institutional definition. For instance, changes in the educational programs or educational qualifications of students could provide a basis for extending the school's eligibility to include other Title IV programs. In such cases, the institution must repeat the eligibility and certification processes.

In other cases, an institution may have been eligible for full participation in all Title IV programs but may have chosen to limit its participation. For example, a newly eligible institution may initially decide to participate in only the Pell Grant, Stafford Loan, SLS, and PLUS programs and may later wish to participate in campus-based programs. In this case, eligibility to participate in all Title IV programs has already been established. However, the institution would need to apply for certification to participate in the additional programs. Because the institution wants to extend eligibility to campus-based programs, ED regional office staff will conduct an on-site review. If the review of the institution's application and operations supports an extension of eligibility, ED will return a new, countersigned Program Participation Agreement to include the additional Title IV programs.

5.9 OTHER SUBSTANTIVE CHANGES

An institution must request a review of its eligibility if it:

- has a change of ownership that results in a change of control;
- changes the level of course offering (for example, from an associate in arts degree program to a bachelor's degree program);
- changes the number of its branches or locations;
- changes its name or address; or

Technical terms you should become familiar with:

- administrative capability
- General Provisions regulations
- institutional eligibility
- certification
- statutory definitions
- regular student
- ability to benefit
- maintenance of records
- financial responsibility
converts its system of measuring academic progress from clock hours to credit hours (or vice versa).

In these cases, the institution must send DEC a new Application for Institutional Eligibility and Certification (ED Form E40-34P). DEC will review the application and, if approved, will reconfirm the institution's eligibility by sending it a revised Eligibility Letter.

5.10 FINE, LIMITATION, SUSPENSION, AND TERMINATION

The federal government will take administrative action against any institution that acquires and misappropriates federal funds in a criminal or fraudulent manner. This includes, but is not limited to, violation of the Title IV regulations, the Program Participation Agreement, or any other agreement made under the Title IV regulations. An institution which fails to remain administratively and financially capable in its handling of federal funds risks the loss of its certification. Administrative action may also be taken against any institution which misrepresents its program, financial charges, or the employability of its graduates.

Institutions and individual employees are held responsible for violations. Individuals may be fined and/or imprisoned for misappropriating funds, giving false information, destroying or concealing financial aid records, or paying a lender as an inducement to make Stafford, SLS, or PLUS loans.

5.11 RE-ESTABLISHMENT OF PARTICIPATION AFTER TERMINATION

If an institution's certification to participate in Title IV programs has been terminated, the institution generally cannot begin the process of re-establishing participation until 18 months after the effective date of the termination. At this time, the certification process would be repeated.

Termination from participation does not necessarily affect an institution's eligibility. Eligibility continues to be based on regulatory criteria.

An institution is responsible for notifying ED when it loses accreditation or state licensure, ceases to meet one of the other statutory requirements for eligibility, or closes. See Chapter 2 of the Federal Student Financial Aid Handbook for information on the handling of Title IV funds under these circumstances.

This module has discussed the two steps by which institutions are approved for participation in federal Title IV student aid programs—determination of institutional eligibility and approval for certification. We have described the definitions of eligible institutions and the criteria by which institutions are evaluated for certification.

All institutions must go through these two evaluation procedures when they initially apply for Title IV programs, and again every 4 years for renewal and under specific circumstances. Some events, such as changes in ownership or control, will always require redetermination of eligibility and renewal of certification. Other circumstances do not always require a repetition of these evaluation procedures; specific guidance should be sought from the ED Division of Eligibility and Certification (DEC). Additional requirements that result from other changes vary depending upon the circumstances.

Audit and recordkeeping requirements were also included in the module to introduce you to additional conditions for continued participation in Title IV student financial aid programs. The modules that follow will discuss these further and will describe individual program requirements.

Institutions must continue to meet standards by which they were initially found eligible to participate in Title IV programs. Regular Title IV audits will determine whether these standards continue to be met.

11. To qualify for Title IV programs, an institution must be able to prove (and continue to prove) administrative capability. Which of the following are reviewed in assessing this? (circle all that apply)

   a. the published standards for satisfactory academic progress
   b. the existence of financial aid counseling for students
   c. the student loan default rate and student withdrawal rate

12. A Program Participation Agreement is approved by:

   a. the Division of Eligibility and Certification
   b. the institution's accrediting agency
   c. the regional association of financial aid administrators
1. True. To be eligible for Title IV aid, educational programs must lead to a degree or certificate. There is one exception (see Module 11) in which Stafford, SLS, and PLUS loans may be obtained for a course of study necessary for enrollment in a program leading to a degree or certificate program. (For more information, see Sections 5.2.1, 5.2.2, and 5.2.3.)

2. False. Under certain conditions, institutions participating in Title IV programs may accept students who do not have a high school diploma or its equivalent. If an institution admits as a regular student a person who does not have a high school diploma or its equivalent, the institution must determine at the time of admission whether the person has the ability to benefit from the education or training offered. (5.2.2)

3. a. and d. DEC will review both the financial and administrative management of the institution during the certification process. (5.3)
   Note: The location of the school and its length of existence are considered only in the eligibility evaluation of the institution. (5.2.1)

4. True. Title IV programs must be audited, and an audit report must be prepared, at least every 2 years (unless the institution has an audit under the Single Audit Act). All program and fiscal records must be kept available, should ED wish to review the materials used to prepare the audit. (5.4.1)

5. True. Regulations state that, for each student recipient of Title IV financial aid, an institution will establish and maintain current records regarding the student's admission and enrollment status at the institution. Institutions must also maintain records on the admission of all regular students, whether they receive Title IV aid or not. (5.2.1, 5.4.2)

6. a., b., c., d., e., and f. Institutions must re-establish eligibility in all these cases by filing a new Application for Institutional Eligibility and Certification with the Division of Eligibility and Certification. (5.5, 5.6, 5.9)

7. a. A change of control refers to a change affecting the ownership of a school, such as from private to public or from a proprietorship to a corporation. (5.6)

8. False. An institution that is not accredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association may be approved by ED to participate in Title IV programs under a statutory alternative to accreditation. (5.2.1 - 5.2.3)

9. False. Once a Program Participation Agreement (certification) is no longer in effect, Title IV funds may not be spent or drawn down until the institution is recertified to participate in Title IV programs. (5.6)

10. False. The eligibility of an institution does not automatically include all of its educational programs. Each must meet requirements for eligibility. (5.2.1, 5.5, 5.7)
11. a., b., and c. To participate in the Title IV student financial aid programs, an institution must be judged able to administer those programs. In assessing administrative capability, three of the many items reviewed are: (1) reasonable and published standards for measuring whether a student is maintaining satisfactory academic progress in the course of study; (2) existence of adequate financial aid counseling to all eligible students who apply for Title IV aid; and (3) institutional student loan default and student withdrawal rates. For further detailed explanations, see 34 CFR 668.14 and 668.15. (5.3.2)

12. a. The Division of Eligibility and Certification returns a signed Program Participation Agreement to the institution when certification is approved. (5.1) ability to benefit  An admissions standard for a person who is admitted to an eligible institution (unless the institution is a public or private nonprofit institution of higher education that participates only in the Stafford, SLS, and PLUS programs); does not have a high school diploma or GED; and is beyond the age of compulsory school attendance in the state where the institution is located (unless the person is admitted to a vocational school, in which case he or she must have completed or left elementary or secondary education). A student who is admitted on the basis of ability to benefit must (a) receive a GED by graduation or by the end of the first year of study, whichever is earlier; or (b) be counseled prior to admission; or (c) take a nationally recognized, standardized or industry-developed aptitude test that has been developed according to the standards of an appropriate accrediting agency. (If students fail the test, they must enroll in and successfully complete a remedial program prescribed by the institution that does not exceed the equivalent of one academic year.) An institution must document its determinations of ability to benefit. For further information on these standards, contact your ED regional office.

accredited institution  Any institution or school which meets standards established by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association.

accrediting agency  An agency that sets educational standards, evaluates institutions, and certifies that institutions have met their standards. (See nationally recognized accrediting agency.)

disbursement  The process by which financial aid funds are made available to students.

Division of Eligibility and Certification (DEC)  A unit of ED responsible for determining the eligibility of educational institutions to participate in Title IV programs.

Eligibility Letter  A letter sent to the institution by ED's Division of Eligibility and Certification that allows the institution to apply for participation in Title IV programs.

eligible institution  An educational institution or vocational school which meets all the criteria for participation in the federal student aid programs and has received an Eligibility Letter and countersigned copy of the Program Participation Agreement. According to General Provisions regulations, the following may be eligible institutions: public or private nonprofit institutions of higher education; proprietary institutions; and postsecondary vocational institutions. For Stafford, SLS, and PLUS loans, institutions of higher education, vocational schools, and some foreign institutions may be eligible institutions.
eligible program

A program of education or training which meets the regulatory requirements for participation in the Title IV programs.

General Education Development Certificate (GED)

A nationally recognized equivalent of a high school diploma, granted after a student has passed a standardized examination.

general institutional eligibility requirements

Regulations governing institutional eligibility to apply for participation in Title IV programs. General eligibility requirements are established by statutory definition and refer to location, student admissions policy, authorization to provide a postsecondary educational program, accreditation, types, lengths, and levels of educational programs within the institution, and the type of control and age of the institution.

institution of higher education

A public or private nonprofit educational institution located in a state, which (a) admits as regular students only persons with a high school diploma or its recognized equivalent, or persons beyond the age of compulsory school attendance in the state where the institution is located who have the ability to benefit from the training offered; (b) is legally authorized, in the state where it offers postsecondary education, to provide a postsecondary educational program; (c) provides a program leading to an associate, baccalaureate, graduate, or professional degree, or at least a 2-year program that is acceptable for full credit toward a bachelor's degree, or at least a 1-year training program that leads to a degree or certificate and prepares students for gainful employment in a recognized occupation; (d) is a public institution or a private nonprofit institution to which contributions are tax deductible under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code; and (e) is accredited or preaccredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association, or is a public postsecondary vocational institution approved by a state agency listed by the Department of Education as a reliable authority on the quality of public postsecondary vocational education in that state, or is an institution whose credits the Secretary determines to be accepted on transfer by at least three accredited institutions on the same basis as transfer credits from accredited institutions. Note: An institution of higher education is eligible for all Title IV programs. Note: A student attending an institution of higher education that only participates in the Stafford Loan, SLS, and PLUS programs would not have to demonstrate the ability to benefit. (See definitions for proprietary institution of higher education, vocational school, and postsecondary vocational institution.)

nationally recognized accrediting agency

An accrediting agency or association which the Secretary of Education determines to be a reliable authority on the quality or association of training offered by educational institutions. The agency grants institutions accreditation status. (See accrediting agency.)
A program consisting of at least 24 semester/trimester hours or 36 quarter hours at institutions using credit hours to measure progress; 900 clock hours of supervised training at an institution using clock hours to measure progress; or 900 clock hours of preparation in a correspondence program.

An educational institution providing education beyond the high school level. The term is used to refer to trade and technical schools as well as colleges and universities.

An educational institution that (a) admits as regular students only persons with a high school diploma or its recognized equivalent, or persons beyond the age of compulsory school attendance in the state where the institution is located who have the ability to benefit from the training offered; (b) is legally authorized, by the state where it offers postsecondary education, to provide a postsecondary educational program; (c) provides at least a 6-month program, leading to a degree or certificate, that prepares students for gainful employment in a recognized occupation; (d) is a public institution or a private nonprofit institution to which contributions are tax deductible under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code; (e) is accredited or preaccredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association, or is a public postsecondary vocational institution approved by a state agency listed by the Department of Education as a reliable authority on the quality of public postsecondary vocational education in that state, or is an institution whose credits the Secretary determines to be accepted on transfer by at least three accredited institutions on the same basis as transfer credits from accredited institutions; and (f) has been giving instruction for at least 2 years. (See definition for vocational school.)

A written agreement that institutions and the Secretary of Education must sign. It permits the institution to participate in one or more of the Title IV student assistance programs, other than the State Student Incentive Grant (SSIG) program. This agreement makes the initial and continued eligibility of the institution to participate in the Title IV student assistance programs conditional upon compliance with the provisions of the applicable laws and program regulations.

An educational institution other than a public or private nonprofit institution located in a state which (a) admits as regular students only persons with a high school diploma or its recognized equivalent, or persons beyond the age of compulsory school attendance in the state where the institution is located who have the ability to benefit from the training offered; (b) is legally authorized, by the state where it offers postsecondary education, to provide a postsecondary educational program; (c) provides at least a 6-month program of training, leading to a degree or certificate, that prepares students for gainful employment in a recognized occupation; (d) is accredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association; and (e) has been giving postsecondary instruction (and has been legally authorized to give postsecondary instruction) for at least 2 years. (See also vocational school, postsecondary vocational institution, and institution of higher education.)

regular student

A person who is enrolled or accepted for enrollment at a postsecondary institution for the purpose of obtaining a degree or certificate.

six-month program

A program consisting of at least 16 semester or trimester hours or 24 quarter hours at institutions using credit hours to measure progress; 600 clock hours of supervised training at an institution using clock hours to measure progress; or 600 clock hours of preparation in a correspondence program; or a program that the Secretary determines to be a six-month program if the Secretary agrees with a certification by the institution's nationally recognized accrediting agency or association that the program is equivalent in course content and student workload to the comparable six-month credit hour or clock hour program.

A business or trade school, technical institution, or other technical or vocational school, which may be public, nonprofit, or for profit, in a state, and which (a) admits as regular students only persons who have completed or left elementary or secondary school and who have the ability to benefit from the training offered; (b) is legally authorized, by the state where it offers postsecondary education, to provide a program of postsecondary vocational or technical education; (c) provides a postsecondary educational program that is designed to provide occupational skills more advanced than those generally offered at the high school level, that prepares students for gainful employment in a recognized occupation, and that is no less than 300 clock hours of supervised training at an institution using clock hours to measure progress or 8 semester or trimester or 12 quarter hours at an institution using credit hours to measure progress.
