ABSTRACT

The revised Refugee Education and Employment Program (REEP) curriculum, integrating the original 1982 REEP curriculum and the federal Mainstream English Language Training (MELT) project guidelines, provides instructional direction to teachers of adult refugees and immigrants in immediate need of basic survival and social language skills. The guide translates this need into competency-based instructional objectives and language functions, and provides suggestions for materials and teaching techniques. The curriculum provides two tracks of instruction to accommodate differences in educational background and learning ability; this volume contains Track A, for use with semi-literate and educationally disadvantaged students with 5 or fewer years of education in their native countries. Each track consists of four proficiency levels, each containing 9-11 instructional units or topics. For each topic, the guide provides a list of performance objectives and a list of language functions and corresponding structures to be mastered. Each performance objective is also indexed to a competency on the general competency list. Appended materials include a chart of reading and writing enabling skills for each level, a list of cross-cultural questions, pronunciation notes, suggestions for activities and classroom techniques, a resource list, and questions that may be asked of immigrants by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. INTRODUCTION

Background to the Curriculum

The Refugee Education and Employment Program (REEP) is a federally funded program established to help refugees become self-sufficient through English language training and job development. Over the last nine years, we have been involved in projects at both state and national levels. The staff has done extensive training in the area of competency-based English as a Second Language. In 1982, The Reep Curriculum, a functional approach to competency-based ESL, was published.

In late 1983, the Office of Refugee Resettlement funded REEP to be one of seven sites nationwide to participate in a national demonstration project called the Mainstream English Language Training (MELT) Project.¹ The overall goal of the MELT Project was "to identify, examine, and document certain criteria as they relate to the linkage of overseas ESL training and domestic ELT programs. These are criteria pertaining to assessment and testing, student performance levels, and ELT curriculum design" (Federal Register, August 1983). The REEP Curriculum, Revised Edition, is the result of the integration of the MELT Project with the original REEP curriculum.

In this revised edition, we maintain the basic goals, rationale, and organization of the original curriculum. It is a comprehensive system developed for programs teaching ESL to adult immigrants and refugees. As such, it provides instructional direction to teachers of learners in immediate need of basic survival and social language. The revised curriculum translates this need into instructional objectives and language functions (what to teach), and provides suggestions for materials and teaching techniques (how to teach it).

In this curriculum we have established learning objectives to meet our students' immediate language needs. The original curriculum was developed because we had found that an approach which focused primarily on grammatical structure was ineffective with adult immigrant learners. The grammatical approach delayed the satisfaction of students' need to communicate and neglected essential non-grammatical factors in communication such as setting, purpose, and appropriateness of language.

¹The other MELT sites were San Francisco Community College District, San Diego Community College District, Spring Institute of International Studies of Denver, Northwest Educational Cooperative of Illinois, Project Persona of Providence, and International Institute of Boston. RMC Research of New Hampshire, the American Council for Nationalities Service of New York, and the Center for Applied Linguistics of Washington, D. C., were involved in the Project's coordination, data collection, and training.

In order to meet this need, we reconsidered the priority of our teaching goals. Using a functional approach, we developed a system which integrated the teaching of language functions with both grammatical form and the life tasks our students encounter day to day.

The basis for much of this curriculum is the linguistic analysis and process used by the Council of Europe's Modern Language Project (Van Ek, 1980). The council's work, recognized worldwide as an important reference, was initiated to improve and broaden the learning of modern languages. The project determined a "threshold level" of competence defined as the lowest level of general foreign language ability to be sufficient for communication. Until learners attain the threshold level, their communication possibilities are limited. Upon attaining this level, transfer of language learned to new tasks begins, thus enabling learners to adapt to most everyday situations, even if not specifically trained for them. The REEP Curriculum applies this threshold-level theory to competency-based ESL.

The 1982 REEP Curriculum and the Revised Edition

While the revised edition is very similar to the original REEP curriculum, we have made a number of significant additions and refinements. These changes have grown out of both the MELT Project and our own experience using the curriculum.

First among the changes is the addition of this expanded introductory section aimed to provide background and practical teaching information. Five appendices have been added to serve as references and resources for teaching techniques, materials, reading and writing enabling skills, cross-cultural questions, and pronunciation. Also new is the indexing of performance objectives to a list of general competencies. This allows teachers to examine how performance objectives develop from level to level to promote students' mastery of those competencies.

Throughout the curriculum we have placed a greater emphasis on promoting employment and independence. This is most evident in the appearance of the new topics "On the Job" and "Money/Banking," and the new B-Track level, B-IV. We have reassessed the content of the survival competencies in the 1982 curriculum, and rewritten, tested, and refined them to be more specific and measurable performance objectives. We have also refined the process for evaluating and documenting student achievement of these objectives.

In making all these changes, we have aimed to reflect the evolving needs and priorities for curricula of refugee and immigrant ESL programs in the United States.

Organization of the Curriculum

The REEP curriculum is a two-track system of instruction which provides for differences in educational backgrounds and learning abilities. Track A is for use with semi-literate and educationally disadvantaged students with five or fewer years of education in their native country. Track B is for use with students with more than five years of education.

Each track consists of four proficiency levels, and each level provides a maximum of 180 hours of instruction. Completion of Levels A-III or B-II corresponds to a traditional low-intermediate level of oral language proficiency. B-III corresponds to intermediate, and B-IV to high intermediate.

Every level consists of nine to eleven instructional units or topics requiring an average of 12 to 15 hours of instruction each. The topics are organized to develop students' language proficiency while the students perform certain competencies--essential job and life tasks. For every topic there is a performance objective page, which lists the tasks to be performed, and a language page, which lists the language functions and corresponding structures to be mastered to perform those tasks. Each performance objective is indexed to a competency on the list of general competencies, thus identifying the larger lifeskill toward which students are working.

Performance Objective Page

Key Performance Objectives. Objectives preceded by the work "Key" (as in Key 1) are those objectives considered most crucial as lifeskills and most representative of students' linguistic ability. Only key objectives need to be formally evaluated and are, therefore, represented on achievement plans.

Some key objectives are followed by an enabling objective (marked as such by a double asterisk, ). Enabling objectives are subskills vital to the mastery of the task outlined in the key performance objective.

Non-Key Performance Objectives. Following the key performance objectives are unmarked, non-key performance objectives. While not formally evaluated, these objectives represent important lifeskills which students should begin working on at that level. Many of these performance objectives will become key performance objectives at higher levels.

Suggested Resources. For each topic, we have indexed texts containing units and exercises which REEP teachers have found to be most appropriate for our students and curriculum. These materials include the language and vocabulary to be taught and practiced for achievement of the objectives. These are suggested resources. Teachers should select materials based on the needs and abilities of their particular students.

Remember to Address. Each Performance Objective page contains this reminder to regularly address reading and writing skills, cross-cultural questions, and pronunciation. Resources for each of these are found in the appendices.

Language Page

Functions. Functions form the basis of the language taught using this curriculum. Functions are the units of communication that identify the outcome or purpose of an utterance. They are derived from the communication which occurs in a topic area (e.g., Transportation: ask for information, give directions).

Examples. The examples listed to the right of the functions represent how those functions may be expressed. They exemplify the complexity of language expected at that level.

Structure. In the next column we have identified the grammatical forms which are appropriate for the expression of the language function at that level. When no structure is listed, the example is to be viewed as an idiomatic expression and taught accordingly.

Related Items. Suggestions for materials/realia to be used and other information needed for lesson planning are listed in this column

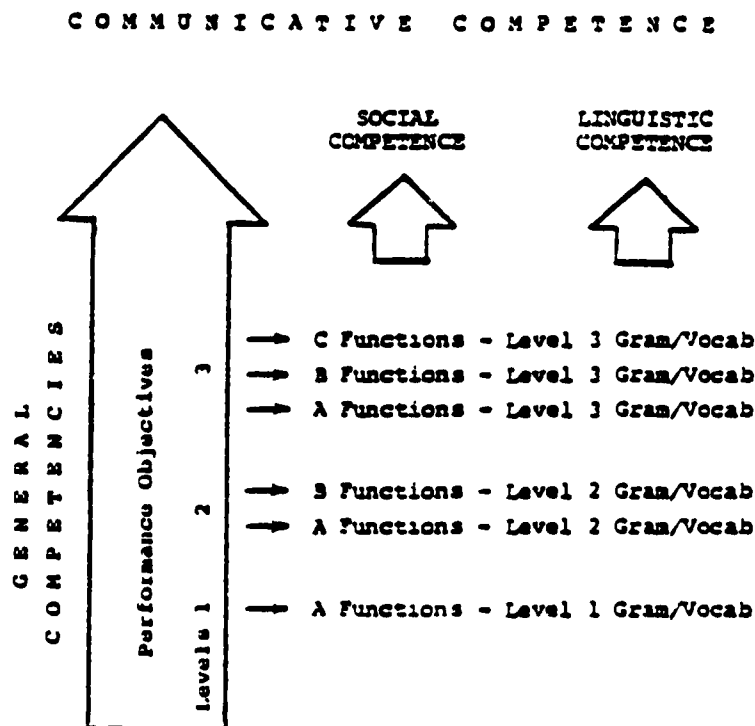

The Functional Approach to Competency-Based ESL

A competency-based education program is made up of the lifeskills needed by an individual to function in the world outside the classroom. A competency-based language program focuses on the linguistic and communication skills needed by the individual to master those lifeskills. In this curriculum we have combined general competencies, performance objectives, functions, and structures to promote that mastery.

As you go through the topics and from level to level (See Figure 1):

- General competencies are developed and evaluated through increasingly more demanding and complex performance objectives.

FIGURE 1

- Performance objectives involve more language use and the use of a greater number of language functions as communication and interaction increase.
- Within each function, the level and complexity of the grammar needed to express that function increases.

An important feature of this curriculum is "recycling." As you move within a level, functions are introduced and in one topic then used again in others. The structures used to express that function are reviewed as new ones are introduced. Recycling of functions and tasks occurs from topic to topic and from level to level.

Using the Curriculum

In this section we discuss how to work with the curriculum while planning lessons and evaluating student performance.

Lesson Planning

Before beginning a unit, look over its performance objective page and language page. The objectives outline the tasks the students will perform, and the functions and structures outline the language students must learn in order to perform those tasks. As you review these two pages, consider the emphasis you will place on each task/function and the order in which you will teach them. Keep in mind, as well, that key objectives will be evaluated and the results will be recorded on achievement plans.

There is not a one-to-one correspondence between lessons and objectives. Several objectives may be covered in one lesson, or one objective may require more than one lesson. Consider how objectives are related and may be combined. Some will involve the same or similar resources, activities, functions, and/or structures.

Once you have a broad unit/topic plan, you can begin to plan your lessons in detail. You might proceed as follows:

- (1) Select the performance objective(s) around which you will organize the lesson.
- (2) Select the language functions, structures, and vocabulary which will be your focus for the performance of the objectives.
- (3) Consult the "Suggested Resources" for texts and the appendices for activities which correspond to the task(s) at hand.
- (4) Consider the particular needs of your students and select reading and writing enabling skills, pronunciation points, and cross-cultural questions which should be addressed.
- (5) If the objectives are marked "Key," also determine an evaluation activity for assessing student achievement of the objective.

Evaluation

Evaluation is an integral part of competency-based education. Through evaluation we certify that our students have mastered the competencies that have been set for them. It provides students with feedback on their progress. This is important because when they see their inventory of skills grow, their confidence and motivation increase as well. Evaluation feedback allows teachers to determine the effectiveness of their instruction. They can then make adjustments to ensure that the needs of students are being met.

Although some kind of evaluation should take place on a daily basis, at this time we are chiefly concerned with the formal (documented) evaluation of key performance objectives. The performance objectives provide the contexts within which students learn and practice language. At the top of each performance objective page, you will find "Students will be evaluated on their ability to perform these tasks using the language outlined on the following page." We evaluate student ability to use the functions and structures taught while completing the tasks stated in the performance objectives. We consider all aspects of the students' ability to use language: what they can achieve through speaking, listening, reading, and writing.

At the same time, we consider the quality of a student's performance by judging its acceptability by native speakers--the ability to get the job done. In a competency-based program, evaluation is criterion-referenced. Each student's performance is rated according to a set standard rather than in relation to the performance of other students in the class. At the beginning of each level you will find the exit characteristics, Student Performance Level (SPL), for students at that level. These SPL's describe how well a student is expected to perform. This description, along with the evaluation criteria included at the end of this section, form the standards for evaluation. Students who meet these criteria can progress to the next level.

In addition to identifying performance (e.g., ask and answer, locate, call), key performance objectives specify how the task is to be performed by stating conditions, the performance situation (e.g., given a simplified map, given newspaper housing ads). By looking at the condition, you know the constraints under which students will be evaluated, and the tools and materials they will need to use. These conditions, together with performance objectives and criteria, guide you in developing evaluation activities.

Although actual performance in a real-life situation is the ideal measure of competency, this is not always possible within the confines of the classroom. However, we can set up the next best thing, which is a simulation of such a situation.

Objectives requiring oral/aural use of language can be evaluated through role plays, cued responses, or demonstration. For example, an objective may require that students be able to make an emergency phone call. Each student could pick a card which describes an emergency situation and then use a telephone trainer to call for appropriate assistance. The teacher could act as operator while evaluating student performance. For objectives requiring performance in a post office, supermarket, department store, or office, the whole classroom could be turned into that setting. Students might be required to perform specific tasks at various "counters" staffed by fellow students or volunteer aides, while the teacher circulates to evaluate individuals on their ability to complete the assigned task. Roles could rotate among the students until all have had a chance to demonstrate their competency. Objectives involving reading and writing skills can be evaluated with pencil and paper tests. For example, students could be asked to complete forms, write checks, take messages, or find numbers in the telephone directory.

After the evaluation activity, it is the teacher's responsibility to record the students' mastery of or inability to perform the task on the achievement plans. This curriculum provides for two distinct achievement plan formats: one for the Literacy, A-I, and A-II levels, and the other for A-III and all B-track levels.

Literacy, A-I, and A-II Achievement Plans list the key performance objectives for each time block and all students' names on one master sheet. The teacher evaluates the students' performance of the task according to the established criteria stated in the curriculum (see evaluation criteria, A-Track).

A-III and B-Track Achievement Plans list the key performance objectives on individual forms to be given to the students at the end of each three-week time block. If the student is able to successfully perform the task using the language taught, the teacher checks the task on the achievement plan. The students are also evaluated on their general language ability expressed in terms of pronunciation, listening, grammar, vocabulary, reading, and writing (see evaluation criteria, B-Track). Achievement plans also provide a space for teacher's comments to the student.

Teachers can give blank achievement plans to the students at the start of a unit of study in order to make objectives known to them. Students can ask questions about the key objectives listed there and so become prepared for the upcoming topic/tasks. At the end of each time block, the plans are returned for students to sign and discuss with their teachers. Students may want a copy of their achievement plans for themselves so that they can monitor their own progress.

EVALUATION CRITERIA

The achievement plans are used for recording student progress. The teacher assesses the students' language ability as they are performing the tasks and evaluates the efficacy of the communication taking place.

LITERACY, A-I, A-II EVALUATION CRITERIA

- 0 Student is unable to perform task; cannot be understood.
- 1 Student communicates message but makes errors; understood if attentive.
- 2 Student conveys a structurally correct message; easily understood.

The A-III and B-Track levels require a two-step evaluation. First, students are evaluated on their ability to use the language taught to perform the task. If successful, they receive a check for the task. At the end of each three-week time block, the teacher also evaluates the students' general language ability. This is a global assessment based on the students' ability for their level. Therefore, students at any level might receive "Good"; they would differ in the complexity of the language taught at the different levels.

GUIDELINES FOR PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

In writing the revised performance objectives, we have adopted the following guidelines and space-saving conventions:

- Role plays and simulated situations are acceptable activities for the demonstration of all objectives.
- All performance objectives are oral unless stated otherwise, with this understanding: "identify" means orally.
- All performance objectives are in person unless stated as "on the phone." Evaluating objectives on the phone may involve the use of a telephone trainer or similar device.
- All materials and forms are real unless stated as simplified or from a level text.
- Mastery of an objective which involves writing is demonstrated by its acceptability outside the classroom.
- Any performance objective stating "ask" includes understanding typical responses as part of the performance.
- Objectives do not specify the vocabulary required for their mastery. This vocabulary can be found in the resources recommended for each topic at each level.

LITERACY

LITERACY: STUDENT PERFORMANCE LEVEL EXIT CHARACTERISTICS (SPL I)

Following is a description of the exit level performance for this instructional level. It should be used as a guideline for evaluating successful use of language in completing a task. At the end of the instructional cycle, the teacher should carefully read the description before deciding to promote or retain a student. If a student's language ability fits the description, the student will be ready for the next instructional level.

General Language Ability	Listening Comprehension	Oral Communication	Reading	Writing
Functions minimally, if at all, in English.	Understands only a few isolated words, and extremely simple learned phrases (What's your name?)	Vocabulary limited to a few isolated words.	Recognizes most letters of the alphabet, and single-digit numbers.	Copies letters of the alphabet, numbers, own name and address; needs assistance.
Can handle only very routine entry-level jobs that do not require oral communication, and in which all tasks can be easily demonstrated.		No control of grammar.
A native English speaker used to dealing with limited English speakers can rarely communicate with a person at this level except through gestures.

READING AND WRITING ENABLING SKILLS

Introduction

The purpose of this section is to point out "enabling skills" which are necessary for the development of the students' proficiency in reading and writing. These skills are not ends in themselves, but rather means which enable the student to perform the objectives in the curriculum which involve reading and writing. The development of these skills is essential for student progression because the degree of reading and writing proficiency required for each level's performance objectives assumes that the student has generally mastered the reading and writing enabling skills at the previous level.

Following is an overview of the reading and writing enabling skills to be developed throughout this track's instructional levels. On each performance objective sheet there is a reminder for teachers to consult the overview in order to determine which skills to develop during the topic. Given the needs of a particular class, we encourage teachers to modify our level recommendations wherever appropriate. We emphasize that all skills should be developed by the end of the instructional level in order for the student to progress to the next level. Developing these skills, then, should comprise a regular component of instruction.

Although we do not formally evaluate the students' mastery of the reading and writing skills as performance objectives, in A-III and the B-Track we do give the students global evaluations of their reading and writing at the end of every three-week time block in the space provided for this on their achievement plan.

APPENDIX B

CROSS-CULTURAL QUESTIONS

Introduction

The purpose of this section is to promote discussion, understanding, and appreciation of cultural similarities and differences. The section should be especially useful for those programs with no bilingual cultural orientation component. The question format is designed to encourage discussions which will reveal a variety of customs and beliefs in both the native cultures and the target American culture.

These cross-cultural questions can serve a number of purposes. First of all, their discussion should increase students' understanding of their own and American cultures. This understanding might ease students' adjustment to their new lives in the United States. Greater cross-cultural understanding is also likely to motivate and enhance language learning. Moreover, the potential for these questions to provide spontaneous conversational practice both in and out of the classroom should not be overlooked.

For the teacher's convenience, all questions in Part One are organized into topics which correspond to the topics in the curriculum. Part Two contains questions which do not correspond directly to curriculum topics but which are nonetheless germane to understanding cross-cultural issues and life in the United States.

The questions presented here can be used to introduce topics or as discussion starters during on-going topics of study. Teachers may select and adapt them as is appropriate for the needs and backgrounds of their students. It is expected that these questions will lead to other questions and further discussion. Discussion may take place among the class as a whole or in small groups. Students should give information about their own cultures and then talk about what they know of life in the United States. Teachers may facilitate or participate in the discussions--addressing the question from one or more American points of view.

APPENDIX C

PRONUNCIATION

This pronunciation appendix includes eleven sections. Each section focuses on one particular pronunciation contrast and supplies a brief listing, by topic area, of topic-related minimal pairs.

Pronunciation is too often neglected, perhaps because it is a difficult activity to integrate smoothly into the rest of the class activities. The purpose of this resource is to provide a format for introducing pronunciation through vocabulary that is relevant to the topic being taught. The minimal pairs constitute topic-related vocabulary that can be introduced in an initial pronunciation lesson at the beginning of a topic (e.g., shoes/choose in Clothing/Consumerism), and which can be relevantly used later in the same topic after the pronunciation lesson itself is over. This allows teachers and students to maintain a pronunciation focus throughout a series of lessons that might otherwise be lost.

This section's lists of minimal pairs are not intended to be comprehensive. (Many extensive listings already exist.) It focuses only on those problems which have most impeded the intelligibility of our particular student population, primarily Indochinese, at the time this resource was made. Teachers with students from different language backgrounds might want to use this same format to focus on some pronunciation contrasts that are not listed here. Other aspects of pronunciation, such as stress and intonation (not addressed in this appendix), should, of course, also receive focus.

APPENDIX D

ACTIVITIES/TECHNIQUES

We have included nine activities which REEP teachers have used successfully in our ESL classes. These instructional activities provide for language practice which can be applied in the real world. In planning instruction, one should keep in mind that "while all language is language practice, not all language practice is language use."¹

We hope the activities included in this section will help teachers prepare lessons that lead to real communication. Teachers may also want to consult the following resource manuals for more ideas:

English as a Second Language Resource Manual, Volume II. The Intensive English as a Second Language and Cultural Orientation Program. Southeast Asia, 1982.

Language Teaching Techniques. Raymond C. Clark. Brattleboro, Vermont: Pro Lingua Associates, 1982.

Communication Starters. Judy Winn-Bell Olsen. San Francisco, California: The Alemany Press, 1981.

¹Christopher Brumfit, Problems and Principles in English Teaching, Pergamon Press, Oxford, 1980, p. 125.

DIALOG CREATION

Purpose

To elicit a dialog through pictures and gestures.
Students generate language at their level.

Directions

Teacher chooses a situation relevant to the topic being studied and defines the roles involved. Instead of presenting a prepared dialog, the teacher uses pictures and gestures to elicit the dialog from the class. The teacher accepts all suggestions from the students and encourages them to work together to provide the correct grammar. It's good to start this technique on the overhead projector and then move to individual handouts.

1. Teacher takes one role and the students take the other role to elicit the entire dialog.
2. Repeat the dialog with each half of class taking one of the roles.
3. Give handouts of pictures for individual pair work.

Can be followed up with substitution drills, discussion of alternative ways to say the same thing, and writing the dialog.

Example

See next page.

Applications

Finding a Job:	Making an appointment for an interview.
Telephone:	Extending/declining an invitation.
Health:	Talking to the doctor about health problems.
Clothing:	Exchanging merchandise.

1) 2BR

2) Yes.

3) util. incl?

4) OK. 72°

5) LEASE ?

6) LEASE Mar. 85 → Mar. 86

7) Rent $400?... Deposit?

8) Deposit = Rent (1 month)

9) When... apt?

10) Now

LINE DIALOG

Purpose

To practice short dialogs numerous times with different partners. Stimulates peer teaching.

Directions

1. Students form two lines facing each other.
2. Students in Line A have cue cards to elicit responses from students in Line B.
3. Line A remains stationary, repeating the same questions while Line B answers and moves to the right. Continues until everyone in Line B has responded to everyone in Line A. All pairs are talking at the same time.
4. Line A gives cue cards to whoever is opposite in Line B. Repeat.

ExampleFoodA₁ A₂ A₃ A₄B₁ → B → B → B

Line A has cue cards of food pictures.

A₁: (holding card) I'm going to the store. Do you need anything?

B₁: Yes. I need some lettuce.

A₁: How much?

B₁: Two heads.

A₂: (holding card) I'm going to

B₁: Yes, I need some milk.

Variations

Low levels may have one simple identification question. Higher levels may have three or four exchanges per cue.

Applications

Personal ID	Picture of globe, ask "Where are you from?"
Clothing	Clothing pictures and prices, ask "What is this? How much is it?"
Health	Visual of sick person, ask "What's the matter with him? What should he do?"
Finding a Job	Visuals of workers, ask "What does he do? Where does he work?"

RESPOND!

(Total Physical Response)

Purpose

To introduce new vocabulary and grammatical structures within the context of a task/process. Reinforces listening skills as students observe the task being performed.

Directions

Select a task/process that can be easily demonstrated with gestures, visuals, and/or props. First, the teacher goes through the process, stating the steps as they are performed. Once the students understand the process, the entire class performs the task as the teacher directs. Finally, the students can give the directions to partners.

Examples

Community Services (Post Office)

1. Fold the letter.
2. Get an envelope and stamp.
3. Put your letter inside the envelope and seal it.
4. Write your name and address in the upper left corner.
5. Write your friend's name and address in the middle.
6. Don't forget the zip code!
7. Lick the stamp and put it in the upper right corner.
8. Go to the mailbox and drop your letter inside.

Variations

1. Students can write their own processes.
2. Follow-up can take the form of questions about the process.

Applications

Health	Taking medicine.
Housing	Performing a household chore/repairing.
Finding a Job	Completing an application.
Food	Preparing food with a recipe.
Telephone	Using a public phone.

ROLE PLAYS

Purpose

To practice speaking and listening skills within real contexts.
Encourages spontaneous speech. Gets teacher out of center.

Directions

Have students work in pairs. Each student has a role and cue of what to say. Students carry on their conversations in their own words using the ideas on their cue cards.

Example

Telephone: taking and leaving messages.

Call and leave a message for friend
to call back.

You don't understand
English very well.
Ask caller to speak
slowly and repeat twice.

Variations

1. No cue given.
2. Cue cards can have visuals to stimulate a dialog/ situation the students have practiced (e.g., an accident picture to role play a 911 emergency call).

Applications

Clothing:	Clerk : You don't want to accept return.	Customer: Ask to return clothing and give reason.
Health:	Patient : Request a doctor's appointment for a checkup.	Receptionist: Offer several different appointment times/dates
Housing:	Tenant : You need something repaired.	Manager: You can't do any work until next week.
Finding a Job:	Friend Working : Tell your unemployed friend about a job opening where you work.	Friend Unemployed : You don't want to work in the same place as your friend. Give other preferences for jobs.

SIMULATIONS

Purpose

To prepare students for real-life tasks by contextualizing language.

Directions

Set up the room with enough props/visuals so that the students understand the setting and situation. Assign different roles to be played in the simulation. Students can be involved in determining the setting and roles as well as in preparing the necessary props.

Example

Money/Banking: Set up a bank with customers and tellers. Customers ask to cash checks. Tellers require identification and ask customers to endorse checks. Teller gives the correct amount.

Applications

Health	Clinic: receptionist, nurse, doctor, patients.
Community	Post Office: postal clerks and customers.
Food	Restaurant: host/ess, waiter/ess, busperson, cashier, cook, customer.
On the Job	Work Setting: supervisor explains tasks to employees.
Clothing	Department Store: clerks and customers exchanging items.
Personal ID	Party: hosts and guests.

MATCHING GAME

Purpose

To reinforce vocabulary and structures taught.

Directions

Prepare sets of 3 x 5 cards with pairs of words or visuals. Cards are put in two stacks on the table. Students pick one card from each stack, hoping to find a pair. If the cards match (a pair), student makes a statement/sentence about the pair. This activity can be done in as many small groups as there are sets of cards available.

Example

Employment: Cards with job titles and corresponding work tasks.

1. Titles (cashier)
2. Tasks (takes money)
- *A cashier takes money.

Variations

1. Use pictures instead of words.
2. Use words and abbreviations.
3. Use three stacks of cards.

Applications

- | | |
|--------------------|---|
| Clothing | <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Weather conditions (cold). 2. Clothes (coat). *It's cold. Wear a coat. |
| Health | <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Sick/injured people (headache). 2. Treatment (aspirin). *I have a headache. Take an aspirin. |
| Finding a Job | <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Want ad abbreviations (F.T.). 2. Full forms of the abbreviations (full-time). *"F.T." means full-time. |
| Community Services | <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Envelopes with incomplete addresses. 2. Missing components of addresses. *What's the zip code? It's 20715. |

INFORMATION GAP

Purpose

To practice asking and answering questions. Reinforces speaking and listening skills as students are forced to understand each other and to make themselves understood. Good to practice asking for clarification.

Directions

Teacher prepares a master handout that can be used to delete different pieces of information on two sets of handouts. Handout "A" will have some information deleted that handout "B" will provide. Handout "B" will have some other pieces of information deleted that handout "A" will provide. Class is divided in pairs, one student with "A" and the other with "B." Students must ask partner questions to get information necessary to fill in missing information.

Example

Food: Have a simple menu prepared with different prices deleted on handouts "A" and "B."

Variations

1. Handouts may be pictures, maps, or charts.
2. Students can go into the community with a questionnaire to gather information from two different places (e.g., two local stores, two banks, two adult education programs).

Applications

Housing	Diagrams of houses/apartments with missing pieces of furniture.
Transportation	Grid maps with buildings missing or unnamed.
On the Job	Schedule of workers' tasks, deleting tasks at different times/days.
Family	Family tree with different relationships/ages not filled in.
Clothing	Department store floor plans with different departments unnamed.

PROBLEM SOLVING

Purpose

To practice skills of persuading, compromising, agreeing, and disagreeing.

Directions

The teacher presents a problem or situation and provides some possible choices or solutions. The students work in small groups to come to a consensus about which solutions/choices are the best. Finally, each group must present its decision and reasoning to the whole class.

Example

Housing: Students are given a visual of a house in disrepair. Tell them that the landlord will only repair three problems this month. Each group must decide which three problems should be corrected first. (Sample problems: broken steps, broken front window, leaking ceiling, broken front door lock, broken toilet, clogged kitchen sink, no bathroom light, broken refrigerator door.)

Variations

Present problem/situation but offer no choices or solutions.

Applications

Finding a Job	Hire one person for a particular job, given a job description. Read five resumes and decide which person should get the job.
Food	Open a new international restaurant in town. Decide name, how to decorate, menu items, and prices.
Housing	Use local housing ads to find a house/apartment for a specified family.
On the Job	Present a cultural misunderstanding that might arise between two employees. Decide how to best handle the situation.

CIRCLE CUES*

Purpose

To practice asking and answering questions. Good for practice in expressing needs and seeking advice.

Directions

Students sit in a circle. Each student has a card with a picture or written cue. The teacher starts by asking one student a question such as, "What would you like to eat?" Student then looks around at the pictures available and says, "I'd like a _____." The student holding that picture must then give it to the student requesting the item. Students then continue asking and answering, and teacher steps outside the circle.

Example

Food: Cards with food pictures.

- A: What would you like to eat?
 B: I'd like a hamburger.
 C: Here's your hamburger. (Here you are.)
 B to C: What would you like?
 C: I'd like a salad.
 B: Here you are.
 etc.

Housing: Cards with apartment needs on one side and apartments available on the other.

- A: I need a two-bedroom apartment.
 B: I have one for $400, no utilities included.
 C: I have a two-bedroom apartment for $400 with utilities.
 A: Thanks, I'll take the $400 apartment with utilities.

Variations

Student A can state need and then have others offer what is on their cue cards. Student A can reject offers until he/she hears one that is acceptable.

*From IESL/CO Resource Manual, Volume II.

CIRCLE CUES (Cont'd)

Applications

Clothing Pictures of clothing with prices.

Health Cards with appointment times and dates.

A: I need a dentist appointment for the 23rd.

B: I have one at 2:00.

A: I can't come then.

C: I have one at 3:00.

A: Thank you. I'll come at 3:00.

Finding a Job Cards with jobs, salaries, and conditions.

A: I'm looking for a job.

B: I have a cleaner job at $3.50/hour.

C: I have a busperson job at $3.35/hour, plus tips.

A: Oh, good. I'll take the busperson job.
