This manual is intended to assist in the development of programs in vocational English as a Second Language (VESL) for limited-English-speaking individuals working as school custodians. The manual describes steps in program development, offers methods for needs assessment, specifies instructional objectives, discusses techniques for lesson planning, outlines a curriculum, provides reproducible hands-on classroom activities designed to practice the concept within the curriculum and to trigger teachers' imaginations, and offer general and specific resources. Units in the curriculum are described in detail for the teacher, including dialogues, visual aids, class exercises, and directions for material development and classroom activities. Unit topics include giving and taking directions, making phone calls, interacting with co-workers, reporting emergencies, receiving criticism and praise, and understanding personnel information. A seven-page, partially annotated bibliography of supplementary instructional materials, VESL resources, texts, and other resources is included. Appendices contain publicity materials; needs assessment forms to be completed by workers and supervisors; a language test; and a variety of teacher and student forms, including evaluation questionnaires. ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

A very special thanks goes to Allene Groenet of the Center for Applied Linguistics who assisted us in getting on the right track and staying there; to Amy Chertock for her clear and distinct drawings which make wonderful visuals; to Lee DeTemple, our volunteer typist, who deftly and swiftly typed most of the activities; to Elaine Baush, program specialist for Adult English as a Second Language and Foreign Languages, and Kenneth R. Plum, director of Fairfax County Public School's Office of Adult and Community Education, for their support and able assistance; to FCPS Office of Planning and Organizational Development who provided us the students and space to conduct our classes; and to the custodians and other support services personnel who shared their time with us and allowed us to grow with them.
INTRODUCTION
INTRODUCTION

The recent influx of immigrants and refugees combined with the expansion of jobs in business and industry as well as public institutions has created a swelling workforce of limited English proficient (LEP) adults. However, once the LEP adults do become employed, it is usually at entry level positions. Once on the job, the LEP worker's limited ability to communicate effectively on a day-to-day basis with supervisors, co-workers, and customers has a negative effect on job retention and promotion. Job-related language training for the LEP employees is essential for these newest members of our community to become contributors to society. Job-specific English taught at the workplace is the most effective and efficient solution to this urgent need.

In addition to reaching these adults when and where they need it most, English in the Workplace (EWP) offers an opportunity to combine the resources of adult education programs with those of business and industry to meet this need.

This manual and curriculum guide will describe the steps in the development of an English in the Workplace program for custodian workers, offer methods for needs assessment, outline a curriculum, provide reproducible hands-on classroom activities designed to practice the concepts of the curriculum and to trigger teachers' imaginations, and offer general and specific resources.

We hope you enjoy using these materials as much as we enjoyed preparing them and our students enjoyed communicating with them.
Steps in Setting Up an EWP Program

In setting up an EWP program there is a general progression of tasks to remember; however, each program will be different by virtue of tailoring the program to each employer's needs. The following is a brief outline of the steps to take to ensure a comprehensive program designed specifically to particular worksites.

1. First, of course, there must be the first contact between the educational institution and a representative from the industry. This can be initiated by the industry or by the EWP coordinator from the school. If there are EWP programs already in place or developing, the EWP coordinator can design a flier as a marketing tool and aggressively seek contracts in various business areas. (See Appendix A) On the other hand, because of the quantity of limited English proficient (LEP) adults in the workforce now, many businesses are seeking a means to improve the workers' communication skills. Consequently, they often contact the educational institution for help.

2. Once the contact between the EWP coordinator and management has been initiated, contract negotiations will follow. In preparing a contract the EWP coordinator should consider several things.

   a. There are three time arrangements possible: Classes all on paid work time, all on employees' time, or 1/2 paid time and 1/2 employees' time. Probably the least feasible is conducting classes on employees' time. Child care constraints and family obligations interfere with attendance. But employers often find it too difficult in terms of decreased labor force to release employees 1 1/2 to 2 hours two to three times a week. Therefore, the half-half situation has been a successful option.
b. Classes should be no less than three hours a week, held two times a week. Otherwise value of the instructional contact is decreased.

c. If the business employs a large number of LEP adults, the EWP coordinator should consider the level of the students and suggest two or three classes to accommodate differing levels of language acquisition.

d. Providing cross-cultural training to the managers and supervisors in conjunction with the English classes for the employees gives the managers/supervisors tools to work more effectively with the employees and to understand, follow, and reinforce the language training. The two areas of training complement and enhance each other. Supervisors become more willing to interface with their employees and practice what they are learning. Cross-cultural training can consist of a discussion of cultural interference problems (an employee nodding "yes" when she doesn't understand, different time concepts, telephoning procedures, etc.) and how to deal with those interferences; cultural awareness or sensitivity exercises (See Appendix B); and a general discussion of how to work with different cultures, maintain everyone's dignity, and stress the cultural importance of certain actions.

e. The EWP coordinator needs to include sufficient time in the contract for on-site observations, materials development, and final project evaluation.

3. The manager or industry contact informs all supervisors and employees of the English language training and the cross-cultural training. (See Appendix C)
4. The manager or industry contact finds a suitable room/space for the classes.

5. The EWP instructor and/or coordinator conduct extensive observations at the worksite, prepare needs assessments for the supervisors and the employees, and determine the communication network of the employees. Once all this information is compiled, the instructor and coordinator will have an ethnography of the job site and will be able to design an appropriate curriculum and accompanying lesson plans.

Observation (Ethnography) — Analyses — Interview (Sociological process) — Curriculum

In conducting an ethnography the observers go into the workplace and follow LEP employees as well as native English speaking employees. They write down types of interactions and some of the language. They tape record everything. Take copious notes. They watch non-verbal behavior and note it. They look at the social relationships. They look for the functions of language, grammar, cultural behavior, specific vocabulary. They document all the information about the speakers: age, ethnicity, sex, position. They take note of the environment - is it noisy? cold? etc. The purpose is to capture the general work environment and the people and interactions in it.

After several observations the instructor and coordinator will know the language used in routine social interaction - where, who, and with whom it is used; the language used specifically for the job - responding to instructions, making requests; the language used for inquiring about formal procedures - holidays, unions, calling in, and the language used for mobility - carrying messages, using the phone, initiating conversation.

In conjunction with the observations, the instructor and coordinator conduct oral interviews and written questionnaires of the supervisors at the worksite. They also conduct interviews of the employees, but not on the job.

The instructors ask the supervisors "how" questions so they can distinguish the processes the supervisors use in communication.

i.e.: How do you retell workers when they don't understand?

How do you complain about poor workmanship?

From these "how" questions you get "do" questions. "How" questions are less threatening to supervisors. In addition to the interview, the instructor can ask the supervisor to complete a questionnaire designed to ascertain complaints. (See Appendix D-1)

Simultaneously the instructors can interview the employees, but preferably not on the job. The instructor needs to watch and record on the job. These questions can be asked in a group:

* Do you speak English on the job? About what?
* What do you do if your machine breaks down?
* Who did you speak to today in English on the job? About what?
* What did you read to do your job today? Did you read the same thing yesterday? Last week?

In addition to the oral interview, the instructors can ask the employees to complete a needs-assessment questionnaire. (See Appendix D-2)

Once the instructor and coordinator have gathered all this information, they can prepare a communications network and a grid of the language functions, grammar, vocabulary, and cultural points specific to the employee's job. It must be remembered, also, that the employee has a life outside of the workplace that impacts on his job and his functioning in that job. The English taught, therefore, should be within the context of his adult life as a contributor to the work force, to his family and children, and to society.

The communications network may look like this:

The solid lines indicate crucial communication, those people with whom the employee speaks every day. The dotted lines indicate secondary communication representing occasional interaction.

Synthesizing this information the instructor and coordinator can develop the curriculum, design lesson plans, acquire materials, and initiate classes. The process can be illustrated by the following visual.
6. The instructor and coordinator pre-test the participants to determine their level of language acquisition and their needs. For the Fairfax County Public School project the Bilingual Vocational Oral Proficiency Test (BVOPT) was used, but the project teachers considered it an inappropriate assessment tool. (See Appendix E) It did not test the language and the skills stressed in the curriculum.

7. The industry contact supplies work-related memos, floor plans, manuals, personnel policies, announcements, company organizational chart, forms, tools, and anything else as requested.

8. After compiling the data from the ethnographies, the interviews, the questionnaires, the work-related materials, and the results of the pre-test, the instructor and coordinator, in collaboration with industry personnel, design a curriculum specific to the needs of the particular workers.

9. The instructor and coordinator develop appropriate materials for the class.

10. The instructor begins the classes.
11. The coordinator provides the first cross-cultural training seminar for the supervisors.

12. The instructor maintains regular contact with the supervisors, giving and getting continuous feedback, asking for suggestions. S/he also encourages the supervisors to practice what the students/employees are learning.

13. The instructor and the coordinator do the "paperwork" necessary for the project, including attendance reports and progress reports (See Appendix F).

14. Toward the end of the contract period the coordinator conducts the second cross-cultural training seminar targeting concerns that have arisen during the language training.

15. The instructor and the coordinator post-test the participants and issue a questionnaire to the supervisors and a questionnaire to the students to assess the value and impact of the training. (See Appendix G)

16. Depending on the supervisors and the length of the course, the business and/or educational institution can host a recognition ceremony or a social for the participants. (See Appendix H)

17. The instructor and coordinator write a final report with information solicited from the supervisors, students, and management and ascertained from the post-training evaluations.
RECOGNITION CEREMONY FOR TRAINING PARTICIPANTS
Instructional Objectives

Fairfax County Public Schools (FCPS) Office of Adult and Community Education contracted with FCPS Office of Planning and Organizational Development to provide English as a Second Language training to 75 custodians and other support services personnel whose first language is not English. Based on the project teachers' observations and needs assessment, the following chart of instructional objectives was developed.

Six topic areas were isolated to be developed in the curriculum:
1) giving and taking directions; 2) making phone calls; 3) interacting with co-workers; 4) reporting emergencies; 5) responding to criticism and praise; and 6) understanding company policies.
Topics

Living and Taking Directions
- Clarification questions

Vocabulary
- Please say it again.
- Repeat - I don't understand.
- Could you speak more slowly.
- Instead of ...
- There's a change in plans ...
- Job tasks, tools and supplies.
- Prepositions.
- Parts of the building.
- Alternative ways of giving - directions.

Structure
- Present
- Future
- Continuous
- Prepositions.

Cultural Aspect
- Don't say yes when you don't understand.
- No share in not understanding.
- Employees expected to be flexible.

Techniques
- Speaking Up
- Role Play
- Simulation

Making Phone Calls
- Reporting in sick.
- Reporting in late.
- Reporting in not coming.
- Leave a message.

Rating With Co-Workers
- Asking for help.
- Offering help.
- Joking
- Small talk - inquiring about individuals

Reporting Emergencies
- Recognizing emergencies.
- Handling emergencies.
- Knowing school (work) safety procedures.
- Reporting safety hazards.
- Understanding 911.

Receiving Criticism and Praise
- Accepting a compliment.
- Giving compliments.
- Accepting criticism on the job.
- Responding to criticism and making appropriate corrections.
- Giving criticisms - co-workers.
- Making suggestions.

Understanding Personnel Information
- Understanding forms.
- Being able to complete forms.
- Asking for help and clarification.
- Payroll and insurance problems.

Understanding Forms
- Sign
- Print
- Current address
- Zip code
- Phone number
- Area Code
- Income
- Salary
- Promotion
- Transfer
- Applicant
- Salary benefits
- Emergency contact
- Number of years of school
- Number of years of experience
- Wage
- Dependent

Understanding Personnel Information
- Forms
- Need to fill forms a stranger will understand.
LESSON PLANS
The Lesson Plans

This curriculum is designed for immediate access by EWP teachers. The activities are hands-on communicative activities prepared to be photocopied and cut up for use or taken right out of the curriculum and cut up for use. We have tried to provide samples of various techniques and strategies, hoping to trigger the imaginations of the teachers. This is only a sample, certainly not exhaustive. As we field tested these activities in the ESL classes for custodians, certain key concepts became clear.

1. Students require different types of practice and reinforcement. Material needs to be presented several times in various ways because learners have different learning styles and thresholds. In order to provide the same material through a variety of activities without incurring student boredom, we learn to spiral, presenting a unit on phone calls, then interaction with co-workers, then perhaps back to phone calls. This curriculum, then, is not meant to be followed from page one through 114. We choose activities that suit the needs of the students at that particular time.

2. The needs of our students fluctuate. We must constantly be assessing those needs and responding to them. We have to listen to the students as they enter the class before it begins and during their break to discover what they are talking about on a general basis, how they say it, and what feelings and attitudes they express. Then we must dialogue with them to continually uncover needs, strengths, and weaknesses. And finally, we have to act, to bring the information we have gleaned together and apply it to our task of providing communication skills. The activities in this curriculum were designed to integrate with that task.
3. Continual feedback from students and supervisors as well as networking with other teachers helps us to more accurately apply the curriculum in our own classrooms.

4. Our goal is to encourage the students to develop themselves, to discover their own inner knowledge. These activities don't hand out information, but rather pose problems that the students must solve. We, the teachers, stand by as a guide while the students learn through their own experiences and those of their classmates.

The lesson plans have been developed around six topic areas, as illustrated earlier. The beginning of each unit is uniform. First, there is a photograph, which can be used for illustration, vocabulary elicitation, or discussion. Some questions a teacher might ask to encourage language production and understanding follow:

a. What do you see?
b. What do you feel when you look at this picture?
c. What is that?
d. Is there a problem?
e. What's the problem?
f. Why is there a problem? (The teacher must encourage them to guess, to make it up, to use their imaginations.)
g. Do you know anyone who has experienced this problem? Have you?
   How is it the same? How is it different? How do you feel about it?
h. What can be done about it? What would you do?

All these questions don't apply to all the pictures. The teacher can formulate additional questions and elicit questions about the pictures from the students. Question formation is a vital skill; at every opportunity the teacher should encourage the students to make their own questions and to ask each other.

Secondly, there is a sample dialogue appropriate for each topic. The dialogue can serve as a basis for student-generated dialogues. The teachers should encourage students to formulate their own dialogues so that they will have the language of the students and will illustrate those situations the students experience. The dialogues constructed for the curriculum are taken from student-generated interactions or from what students say. There are suggestions for substitutions and/or additional conversation topics.

The rest of the activities vary for different units. We have tried to provide at least one example of many different activities. Our hope is that the teachers can develop similar activities based on our examples. For instance, the unit on "Understanding Company Policies" has an example of teaching vocabulary and designing vocabulary exercises. The unit on "Receiving Criticism and Praise" has a reading with accompanying comprehension and application questions. These two techniques are not repeated in other units, but we hope teachers will develop them appropriate to their specific classes and topics.

Other communicative activities in the curriculum include role plays, interactive situations, manipulations, scrambled sentences and scrambled stories matching, and games, including a simulation game in the unit on "Interacting with Co-Workers." Following is a brief introduction to these activities. Most of them are further explained in the lesson plans.

a. Role plays: There are situations typed on cards. Distribute the cards randomly to the students, pair them if necessary, and allow them to complete the task or the role play on the card. After the role plays, the teacher can elicit a report of the role play in the past tense; the students can write what they did or saw; they can report on each other's role play; they can discuss other solutions; and they can discuss the language and function used in the interactions.

b. Interactive Situations: Again the situations are typed on cards and can be cut apart. The students follow the directions on the card or solve a problem. These cards get the students up and moving and instantly conversing. Laughter is always a by-product to the process. Follow up activities can be the same as for the role play. It is important to not just do the activity and then drop it. Follow up activities can take a week.

c. Manipulations: In the unit on "Giving and Taking Directions" there are several visuals. One is a drawing of a "storage room." Accompanying it are drawings of the supplies that go in the storage room. The students must give directions to each other placing the "supplies" in the "closets" using appropriate prepositions. The teacher can also use the visuals for other directions, role play, vocabulary, or anything appropriate.

d. Scrambled Sentences and Scrambled Stories: This is a tactile sequencing exercise and a sentence construction exercise. Each student or dyad gets a sentence whose words have been cut apart. They must put the sentence in good grammatical order. Once they have unscrambled all the sentences, they must arrange the sentences in proper sequence. The students can discuss various sequences or different sentence construction. As a follow-up exercise, they can change the tense of the story, the person, or the number and make all the necessary changes.
e. Matching: There are some exercises where the student must match a picture with a warning and/or a name or parts of a sentence or paragraph.

f. Games: Several types of games are included in the curriculum. Most of them have instructions or are self-explanatory. In the unit on "Interacting with Co-Workers" there is a simulation game entitled "The Office Party." The object of the game is to score the most points, and the way to get points is to complete tasks. The students have a list of several tasks to complete and the point values for each task. When a student completes a task, a teacher, aide, or another facilitator initials it and the student gets the point. Everyone is interacting and accruing points at the same time. It is up to the teacher to set up a situation that simulates an office party. Putting up decorations, providing punch and chips, playing soft music all lend to the appropriate atmosphere. There are also facilitators, generally teachers and aides, who play the roles in the game. They cannot accrue points. Sometimes students can play a role, but it's more fun for the students to complete the tasks. When the game begins, students all begin accomplishing the tasks together. After a specific time frame (20-30 minutes), the game is over, the students add up their scores, and the winner receives a prize. It's an enjoyable way to practice structures, negotiate, practice cultural mores, and interact with peers.

In addition to these specific activities, teachers can take the visuals, the photographs, and the dialogues and adapt them to their own techniques and activities. We hope use of this curriculum expands with each activity teachers try.
WORKING WITH EACH OTHER, IN COMMUNITY
GIVING AND TAKING DIRECTIONS
Dialogue

Koung is a new employee. His boss wants him to find the new cleaning supplies. Mrs. Jones knows where the cleaning supplies are located.

Bob:     Kuong, please go ask Mrs. Jones where the new cleaning supplies are.

Kuong:   O.K., but I don't know where Mrs. Jones is. Where is her room?

Bob:     See the exit sign down there? Go down the hall and turn right at the sign. Keep going to room 615. It's on the left.

Kuong:   Thanks. I'll be right back.
Dialogue

A parent is in the school and wants to find the library. She asks a custodian who is working for directions.

Parent: Excuse me, where's the library?

Custodian: It's around the corner.

Parent: Is it far?

Custodian: No, not far. Go down the hall and turn right at the corner.

Parent: Is it on the left or right?

Custodian: It's on the right across from the cafeteria.

Parent: Thanks.

Custodian: You're welcome.
DIRECTIONS AND PREPOSITIONS

I. 1. Make a packet for each student which includes individual pictures of the cleaning supplies.

2. Introduce or review the following prepositions:

   between  below       under next to      beside  on top of
   on the right/left

3. Give the class directions using the prepositions and cleaning supplies, i.e. put the roll of paper towels next to the mop.

   Continue until all the pictures have been used. Have students check with each other to see if the pictures match.

II. 1. Divide students into pairs.

2. Ask one student to arrange his/her pictures.

3. Have the student give his partner directions to make a matching arrangement. Encourage the use of different prepositions.

III. You can expand the exercise by having a student give directions to more than one person.
Objective: To teach the vocabulary of the tasks that custodians perform at work.

Procedure: Brainstorm with the class all the jobs they perform. Put the tasks on the board - include all the suggestions offered. Probe a little - "Do you have to do anything with the lights?" "What happens when it snows?"

Give each student paper and a colored marker. Have students draw 4 - 5 pictures of themselves performing daily activities. Write a sentence under each picture describing the task. Direct students to draw two more pictures showing a job that is done only on a weekly or seasonal basis (removing old wax, shovelling snow, scrubbing lockers).

Students should work in pairs encouraging each other to ask, "What are you doing in this picture?"

Variation: Draw a picture and write a brief description of your most pleasant job and one of your least favorite tasks. ("What's your easiest job?" "Which job do you hate the most?") This is good for lots of laughs and the expression of strong personal opinions.
Use the following page to

1. build vocabulary. Discuss.

2. role play. Students can evolve a dialog around each statement.

3. cloze. White out the words and let students complete the statements.
VOCABULARY

Mr. Lee, when you finish using the scrub machine please clean it up before you put it away.

Mr. there is a dirt and wax buildup in the corners in your classrooms. Would you work on cleaning these areas until all of the rooms on your section are cleaned.

Mr. please don’t forget that the cafeteria needs to be wet mopped daily.

Mrs. will you go outside and help Mrs. Jones trim the grass around the edge of the building.

Mrs. take the wet/dry vac down to the gym and use to pick up the water on the floor from the leaking pipes, instead of a mop and bucket.

Mr. the window sills, file cabinets, TV carts and bookcases should be dusted at least twice a week. The bright work in your toilets need a thorough cleaning and polishing. The floor behind the commodes needs cleaning on a regular basis. The floor drains in all of your toilets need cleaning.

Mr. when you clean your classrooms and empty the trash please make sure that you check the pencil sharpener and empty it also.

Mr. the wall tile in your section needs spot cleaning. Please make sure that you check your wall tile daily.

Mr. you have several lights out in Room #118. Make sure that you get them replaced before you finish up tonight.

Mr. the filters over the ovens in the kitchen need cleaning. Will you take them down tonight so that they can be run through the dishwasher in the morning?

Mr. go out back and stick the oil tank to find out how much oil is in the tank. When you get the reading call the area office at 938-6401 and report it to them.
Exercise

This may be a 1, 2 or 3 part exercise, depending upon student levels.

I. 1. Locate several areas in your building
   A. Draw maps to the locations or
   B. Write directions to the locations.
   C. Do not identify locations.

2. Have students work in pairs. Give each pair a different set of directions.

3. Ask students to follow the directions and identify their destinations.

4. If students answer correctly, exchange directions with another group and continue.

5. If students have difficulty, you may want to send another student along to help.

Once the students have mastered step I, continue.

II. 1. Have students work in pairs and give each pair a destination in or around the building.

2. If site maps are available and/or if no one else is in the building, you may have to provide a site map.

3. Have each pair write directions to their destination.

4. Ask the students to compare their directions to the map and to follow the directions without using a map.
5. Once the students are satisfied, pass the directions to a new pair of students. Have the new group follow the directions and identify the destination.

6. If the destination is not identified correctly, have the four students work together and let them discover the problems and possible solutions.

III. Ask students to follow the same procedure as in II, but have them work individually. The directions may be a simplified map or written directions -- but not the building map.

Suggested destinations for a school:

- Gymnasium
- Library
- Cafeteria
- Custodian's Office
- Principal's Office
- Coke machine
- Parking lot
- Football field
- A specific classroom
- Restrooms
Index Cards and Numbers

Objective: Follow directions
Speaking and listening to numbers
Any level

1. Give each student an index card.
2. Ask him/her to write his/her phone number in the top left corner.
3. Collect cards and pass out the cards to a different student.
4. Students must then ask each other: "Is your phone number _______?"
   Then put "owner's" name below number.
5. Be sure students understand they may not show anyone the number on the card.
   Depending on level of student activity may be continued using:
   1. House numbers (no street)
   2. Social Security number
   3. Birthday (numerical only)
   4. Driver's license number
6. Use different locations for each number, and be sure to switch cards each time.
7. When you've finished, ask students to gather the information about another student and check it with him/her.
Paper and Pencil Activity

Objective: Following directions
Any level

1. Give each student a pencil and paper.

2. Pick out four or five pieces of personal information (ex., Name, Work Location, Phone Number, Age).

3. Give directions for each item in two.
   a. Write your name in the middle of the paper.
   b. Turn your paper over and write your age.
   c. Turn your paper back over and write your phone number in the bottom left corner.
   d. Turn your paper on its left side and write your place of work at the top of the page.

4. This activity is only limited by your imagination.

5. Have students lead the activity when they understand the problem.
DIRECTIONS FOR MESSAGES

Level: All
Time: 30 Minutes +

Supplies:
1. Name Cards: One student's name on each card
2. Direction Cards

Activity:
1. Give each student one name card and one direction card.
2. Put students in pairs.
3. Demonstration
   Name: Kyong
   Directions: Please tell ____ to take off ____ right shoe.
   Please tell Kyong to take off her right shoe.
   Demonstrate male and female.
4. The student who receives the message must find the person who is to be given the message.
   Seung received the message for Kyong. He must find Kyong.
5. Demonstrate how to relay the message.
   Seung: Kyong, take off your right shoe.
6. a. Each student will receive a message from his partner and forward that message to the appropriate person.
   b. Each student will also receive a message directing him/her to do something.
7. Check to see if appropriate messages have been forwarded and received.

Reported Speech:
For reported speech, the process is the same except step 5.
5. Demonstrate reported speech.
   Seung: Tao wants you to take off your right shoe.
   Follow-up this activity discussing misunderstanding, misinterpretation and confusion.

MAKING PHONE CALLS
Dialogue

Calling in Sick

Supervisor: Hello.
Daniel: Hello, Mr. Johnson. This is Daniel. I can't come to work today. I feel very sick.
Supervisor: What's the matter? What's wrong?
Daniel: I have a very bad cold.
Supervisor: Sorry to hear that. Can you come in tomorrow?
Daniel: I'll try.
Supervisor: O.K. Hope you feel better.

Substitutions:

I have the flu.
I have a fever/temperature.
I have a sore throat.
My back hurts.

Will you be able to work ...?
Are you coming to work ...?
When will you be back?
Objective: Using the Telephone to report absences and lateness.

Procedure: Give each pair of students one of the "situations" below, printed on index cards. When reasonably fluent have each pair demonstrate their dialogue while actually using the telephones. Have students sit "back to back" to create a realistic atmosphere.

Materials: Two portable telephones

Custodian/Secretary

Leave a message with the secretary. You're not feeling well. Tell her to give the message to your supervisor. You're pretty sure you'll be at school tomorrow.

Custodian/Supervisor

Tell your supervisor that you're having car problems. He wants to know what's wrong with your car, and asks you when you're going to get it fixed.

Custodian/Principal

The principal answers the phone in the main office. You want to report that you'll be late because your child has a doctor's appointment. You ask him to give your message to your supervisor.

Custodian/Secretary

You're going to be late because you have a dental appointment. You ask the secretary to tell Mr. Johnson, your supervisor. You plan to come to work right after lunch.

Two Custodians

Another custodian answers and says that the supervisor is busy and can't talk now. You ask your co-worker to please tell your boss that you sprained your ankle last night and won't be in for the next two days.
OBJECTIVE: To help students report the essential information when receiving a telephone message.

PROCEDURE: Before beginning this lesson teach the class the basics of handling a telephone call: identifying themselves, taking accurate messages, asking the caller to repeat when not understood, and obtaining additional information when needed. Demonstrate this activity together, separating the essential parts of the message.

Each student is given the accompanying worksheet. (Or this information can be copied from the board - Caller - Person Who is Receiving the Message - Message). The Teacher stands behind the students so they cannot see his facial expressions, lip movements, etc. This is to replicate a phone call as nearly as possible. Students will be encouraged to ask for clarification: "What time? Who is calling, please? I didn't hear that. Please repeat that number. etc."

This is Kyu Cho. Please tell Mr. Davis that I can't come to work today because I have a bad cold.

This is Ruben Colon. Tell my boss that my wife has a doctor's appointment. I'll be at work by 11:30.

I want to talk to Joe. This is Marina calling. My car broke down and I'll be two hours late.

This is Mrs. Lee. I can't remember how much ice I was supposed to buy for the party. Please ask Yong and tell her to call me back. My number is 582-7561.

This is Mr. Johnson, the building supervisor. Tell Won and Rosa that I won't be in till later. Tell them to start cleaning the back hallway first and then do the classrooms on the second floor. If they have any questions, they can call 783-4631.

I want to speak to one of the custodians. This is Mrs. Dawson, the principal. A student just got sick outside the building and I need someone down here with a bucket and mop - fast!

Note* Get the basic info and act!

This is Miss Green, the Secretary in the front office. Send one of the custodians to Rm. 217. One of the lights fell and there's glass all over the floor. Please call me back when the job is finished. Thanks.

INTERACTING WITH CO-WORKERS
Farida, Lupita and HeeSoon are chatting about the Pot Luck party to celebrate the end of the year.

Lupita: Good morning! How are you all this morning?
HeeSoon: Real good. We were just talking about the pot luck lunch next Thursday. What are you going to bring, Lupita?
Lupita: I plan to make some pozole.
Farida: What's that?
Lupita: It's a kind of soup with corn and pork. Sometimes I put avocado in it, too.
HeeSoon: That sounds good.
Farida: Yea, it does. But, you know, I don't eat pork, so I'll have to pass it up. What are you going to bring, HeeSoon?
HeeSoon: Oh, I'll probably make some Kim Chee. Everyone always likes that.
Lupita: I'm sure there will be lots of different kinds of foods here. I know we'll all have plenty to eat. In fact, we'll probably have too much!

SENTENCE CONSTRUCTION CARDS

Cut the following cards along the dotted lines. Distribute randomly to students. Tell students to make a sentence with their words. One student may have "the mop." Another has "is on top of" and a third has "the shelf." The object is for them to make a logical sentence. Some sentences may be funny, but logical. The game must go quickly. The first person who uses all his/her cards wins, but the game must continue until all students have used their cards.

These three sets of cards practice different structures. Students must realize that "is under" cannot start a sentence.

They quickly get into the game of it and are yelling out phrases rapidly and correctly.

CONFLICT CARDS

Cut the cards along the dotted line and distribute to students.

Cards A indicate a situation in conflict with Cards B. The student who has Card A must find his/her partner, present the problem, probably initiate an argument, and then both of them must solve it. After the two act out the conflict and solve it, the entire class can discuss the solution the pair acted out, other possible solutions, and the appropriate language to use.
1-A (Custodian)
Your supervisor tells you to clean the library and to prepare it for an event tonight.

1-B (Librarian)
You decide to have students help you shelve books.

2-A (Custodian who goes to English classes after work)
You ride to English classes with B and you barely make it on time even when you leave directly after work. You don't like to be late.

2-B (Custodian who goes to English classes after work)
You need to talk to a co-worker after work about a problem you had today.
Humor is part of everyone’s life. Limited English proficient employees hear and must respond to humor daily at the workplace. Jokes, puns, and riddles are very difficult for LEP workers to comprehend. The next page has a few riddles and jokes students might understand. Tell one a day.

Have a joke contest. Have them translate jokes from their native languages into English and share them with the rest of the class. Encourage them to watch comedies on television or at the movies.

You can use these jokes in many ways. Have fun with them!
What's the hardest thing about learning to skate?  The ice.

Why is it useless to send a telegram to Washington today?  Because he is dead.

Name a band in which there are no musical instruments?  An elastic band.

An aging lady started to go bald. So she went to the chemist for a hair restorer. "Do you want this little bottle or this tall one?" asked the chemist.  "Make it the small bottle," she told him.  "I don't care for long hair."

A tourist was furious with the tough steak he had been served.  "Waiter," he shouted, "get me the manager. I can't eat this steak!"  "It's no use calling him, sir. He can't eat it either. He's on a diet."

Patient:  Doctor, you've got to help me. Everything is backwards.
Doctor:  What do you mean?
Patient:  My nose runs and my feet smell.

What has four legs, a back, and no body?  A chair.

Knock, knock.  Who's there?  Someone too short for the doorbell.

Nurse:  Doctor, there's an invisible man in the lobby.
Doctor:  Tell him I can't see him.

Customer:  Waiter, why is my donut crushed?  Waiter:  You said you wanted a donut and to step on it.

First man:  Do we have any criminal lawyers in this town?
Second man:  I think so, but we haven't caught him at anything yet.

A fisherman, trying to land a big fish, fell off the end of the pier.  "I can't swim," he shouted, "I can't swim!"

THE "WH" JEOPARDY GAME

Level: All
Time Required: 20-45 minutes, depending on level
Purpose: to practice "wh" question formation, to acquire new information, and to have fun
Materials: Gameboard or note cards and a chalkboard

Process:

Have you ever seen the game show "Jeopardy"? Watch it at least once to get an idea how this game operates. This ESL game concentrates on question formation. The questions are divided into "who," "what," "where," "when," and "how and ordered by difficulty, from 10 points to 50 points. (see illustration). I've had students generate questions and then I rank them. We've had students make the questions even in the beginning class. That way the information shared is the students'. (See attached lists of student-generated questions.) You can also compose questions based on a story you have just read (intermediate-advanced), a unit you have just completed, or on current events.

1. Divide the class into teams. There can be two or three teams.

2. Have a process for deciding which team goes first, i.e.: choose a number between one and ten, roll a die, draw straws.

3. A person from the first team selects a "category" (who, what, where, when, or how) and an amount, i.e.: I'd like "who" for 10 points.

4. Either the teacher or another student can read the answer, i.e.: The President of the United States.

5. A member from either or any team has one minute to provide the question, i.e.: Who is Ronald Reagan?

6. If the student is correct, the team receives 10 points and the answering student must select a category and an amount, i.e.: I'd like "what" for 30 points.

8. If a student generates an incorrect response proceed according to your own judgement. I might give a team a few chances; I might scratch the answer and go on; I might open it up to everyone again; I might deduct half the amount of the question from the score of the team in error and give the other team a chance.

9. The game is over when all the answers have been uncovered or time is up.

Note: Your creative imagination can be the guide for developing this game to suit the needs of your students. You or your students can revamp the rules and in some respects the procedures. As long as the rules are fair, there's an element of risk, and the students are practicing English, do whatever you decide. But most importantly, have fun!
Instructions: Cut along black lines and use for your JEOPARDY game!

These questions are probably best suited for an advanced class, although the questions the beginning class came up with are no easy things.

ADDITIONAL CONVERSATION ACTIVITIES

1. Discuss a current movie or TV show.

2. Watch one hour of TV per night and write in a journal the ideas of the program.

3. Video tape student-generated dialogs.

4. Write a soap opera.

5. Collect humorous language forms: puns, mixed idioms, palindromes, tall tales, chants, limericks, riddles.

6. Organize a joke festival.

7. Select a VIP (Very Important Person) for each class. Let him/her tell about him/herself, his/her country, job, family, etc. The other students can ask any questions they want as long as they are clean.

8. Take candid school photos and let students caption them.

9. Create a box of "hot" topics to discuss. Students can contribute ideas. (ie, Do you think bilingual education is good for immigrants?) When you have five to ten minutes, select a student to pull a card from the box and ask another student the question.

10. Use school issues, industry issues, government issues, or world issues for discussion groups. Small group discussions can lead to further reporting.

11. Share humorous experiences in the workplace that involve English; write stories, dialogues, or plays.

12. Write an advice column about a work-related problem, exchange it, and write a response.

13. Exchange phone numbers and call each other and/or call the teacher. Have certain tasks or questions to ask.

REPORTING EMERGENCIES
Dialogue

Manuel: Oh, no. Look - Fire!

Anh: Should we pull the fire alarm?

Manuel: I don't know where it is. Let's try to put out the fire ourselves. Where's the fire extinguisher?

Anh: Over there - on the wall.

Manuel: Quick - get Mr. Johnson and I'll get the fire extinguisher.

Mr. Johnson: Did you pull the fire alarm?

Manuel: No, not yet. We didn't think we needed to.

Anh: We got the fire extinguisher instead.

Mr. Johnson: Well, you were able to put the fire out this time, but next time be sure to pull the fire alarm.

WORK RELATED EMERGENCIES

The following emergencies can be demonstrated by dramatization.

Emphasize two basic responses:

1. Reporting situations to supervisor immediately or to whoever is in charge, if supervisor is unavailable.

2. Only contact the authorized doctor or medical facility.

Simple first aid procedures can be administered as each situation demands.
A custodian is shovelling snow; he slips on ice and falls. He thinks his leg is broken. What would you do?

Luis was changing a light bulb in one of the classrooms and he fell off the ladder. He's in a lot of pain. What happens now?

Miriam was washing the toilets when some germicide splashed on her face. She says her eyes feel like they're burning. How would you help?

Dong was scrubbing the floors in the bookroom. He had been breathing the fumes for too long and feels very dizzy and sick to his stomach. He needs some help!

Yong was using the buffer in the main hall. When she unplugged it, she received a bad shock. What should she do?

A friend is walking to the cafeteria and he slips and falls. He says it hurts to move. How could you help him?

Elizabeth didn't look good when she arrived at work. Now she says she feels terrible. She's very dizzy, has a headache and is beginning to get a fever. What should she do?

Aroune walks to his car to go home after work and sees a big dent in the side. His car didn't have a dent when he came to work this morning. What should he do?

You hear someone yelling, "Help me! Help me!" but you can't see anyone. What should you do?
DANGER SIGNALS AND PRECAUTIONS

The following three pages contain eight sets of three cards each.
The cards contain the following: a danger signal, a warning about the danger, and a symbol of the danger.
Cut the cards apart and shuffle them. Have students match the dangers with the precautions and the symbols.
SKULL & CROSSBONES

Be careful when working with things that are poisonous (toxic).

FUMES (WAX REMOVER, CAN VAPORS)

Don't breathe these in closed places.

LABELS (BIG)

VOMITING
NO VOMITING
MILK
NO MILK

Read these for antidotes in case of poisoning.

DON'T INDUCE VOMITING
FLUSH WITH COLD WATER

AVOID CONTACT WITH EYES OR SKIN
RUBBER GLOVES

Always wear these when using liquids that burn (caustic)

LADDER

Use this when changing light bulbs; don’t use chairs and desks.

FRAYED CORD

Repair these before using them.
CAN & CIGARETTE

Don't smoke near your cleaning supplies.

OVERFLOWING TRASH AND PAINT CANS

Clean this up when it's too full.
EMERGENCY POSTER

Cut out the following poster, discuss, then post in your room. In addition you can discuss and demonstrate each item in the poster.

GENERAL EMERGENCIFS

1. Teach 911 for Emergencies--police, fire, hospital

2. Review non-emergency telephone numbers--police, fire, hospital

3. Have students obtain a list of county approved physicians plus their telephone numbers.

4. Locate the nearest medical facility for emergency treatment.
EMERGENCIES

1. Call for help.

2. Give first aid.

3. Report who, when, where, what, how.

4. Use authorized doctor or medical facility.
FIRE

These activities will help students become aware of precautions to take in case of fire at their worksite.

1. Know location and how to activate the school's fire alarm.

2. Teach students to respond to fire alarm drill.

3. Find the closest exit to the work station and break area. Discuss the basic procedures of quickly exiting during a drill.

4. Demonstrate how to leave the building from any area by using the school map showing all building exits.

5. Know how to use a fire extinguisher. Where are they located? How do they work?
REPORTING FORM

Students practice leaving messages for their supervisors concerning broken equipment, problems, or potential safety hazards.

Some of the items they can report:

- The door is off its hinges.
- The pipe is leaking.
- The water fountain is stopped.
- The locker is broken.
- The wall plate is missing.
- The faucet is dripping.
- The sink is overflowing.
- The vending machine is out of order.
- The buffer isn't working.
- Something is stuck in the lock.
- Something's wrong with the pay phone.

After they write the messages, they can role play telling their supervisor what is wrong.
RECEIVING CRITICISM AND PRAISE
Dialogue

Supervisor: Won, I want to talk to you.
Won: Sure. What's the problem?
Supervisor: You didn't clean this room well.
Won: I'm sorry. What's wrong with it?
Supervisor: The floor is dirty and you didn't empty the trash can.
Won: I forgot. I'll do it right now.
Supervisor: O.K., but get it done fast because we have a lot more work to do.
Won: I will!

Substitutions:

have
I want to see you. - I need to talk to you for a minute.
need
"Wipe these mirrors. Wash the blackboards. Wax the halls. Buff the floors.
Pick up the trash. Vacuum this rug."

Students will think of similar situations.
PRAISE AND CRITICISM ACTIVITY

Cut the following cards out and distribute to students. Pair the students for a role play; have them think of real life happenings and engage in them as a group.
Supervisor: You're not working fast enough. You'll have to hurry.

Co-Worker: You've been late so that makes more work for me. Please be on time.

Supervisor: These bathrooms look really clean.

Supervisor: The floors don't have a nice shine. Do them again!

Teacher: Thanks for doing such a nice job. My blackboards always look great.

Co-Worker: I've been going a lot of work lately. I need more help from you.

Principal: You forgot to pick up the trash out in the parking lot. Take care of that!

Supervisor: You've been calling in sick too much. You can't keep doing this.

Principal: Everybody tells me how good our school looks. Thanks! Good job!

Co-Worker: We have a lot of fun working together.

Supervisor: The teachers have been complaining to me that the bathrooms are a mess. Clean them up!

Supervisor: You used the wrong cleanser to clean the chalkboards in the rooms.
PARAGRAPH CONSTRUCTION CARDS

This game is played like the sentence construction game in the unit "Interacting with co-workers." Cut the cards out along the dotted lines. Distribute randomly to students. A student must yell out an appropriate beginning sentence. "She had a flat tire," is not an appropriate beginning sentence because we don't know who "she" is. They must construct a three sentence paragraph that makes sense. As with the sentences, any combination, if correctly placed, will be logical.
KY WAS LATE FOR WORK.  HER BOSS YELLED AT HER.  SHE CRIED.

ASSAM WAS VERY SAD.  SHE HAD A FLAT TIRE.  SHE SAID SHE WAS SORRY.

SU-LI RAN ALL THE WAY TO WORK.  THE BABY CRIED ALL NIGHT.  SHE WAS TIRED.

KYUNG DIDN'T CALL TO SAY SHE WOULD BE LATE.  SHE HAD TO STAY LATE TO FINISH HER WORK.  SHE WAS UPSET.
A Custodian Has Problems

What a day! Kyung had car problems so she was 30 minutes late to work. She told her supervisor but he didn't say anything. She had more work to do because the chairs had to be set up in the cafeteria. This afternoon the students in the school will have a concert. It's not easy to set up 650 chairs and still do all your regular work.

Before lunch Mr. Thomas, her supervisor, said in an angry voice, "Did you get the front office vacuumed?" She thought, "How am I going to finish all this work on time?" But she didn't say that to him. She told him, "Sorry, Mr. Thomas, the chairs took a long time. I'll vacuum the office now."

She had lunch with another custodian, Maria. She and Maria were becoming friends. She told Maria what had happened that morning. Maria said, "Don't worry about Mr. Thomas. He knows you're a good worker. You're a great custodian! Everybody gets in trouble sometimes."

It was about 3:30 - time to go home. Kyung was walking out the door and Mr. Thomas said, "Be on time tomorrow!" Kyung hated being late and she hated being criticized by her boss. Then she remembered Maria's kind words: "I am a good worker and I'm a terrific custodian!" When she saw her car in the parking lot she forgot all about her job. She was going to stop at the gas station and get it fixed. "I won't be late tomorrow!"
SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS

1. Why was it a bad day for Kyung?
2. 1) Did Mr. Thomas notice that she was late?
   2) Did he yell at her for being late?
3. Was this a regular day at school for Kyung?
4. Did she have anybody at school to talk to? Who?
5. How do you think she was feeling at lunch?
6. How did her friend help her feel better?
7. How did Kyung feel when Mr. Thomas said, "Don't be late!"
8. Do you think Kyung is a good worker? Why?
9. Was she going to worry about her problems all night?
10. What was she going to do to make sure she'd be on time the next day?

Discussion Questions

1. How do you feel when you're criticized by your boss?
2. Have you ever been criticized by a co-worker?
3. Do you ever tell another custodian what a good job she's doing?
4. Do you give and receive compliments at work?
5. Do you sometimes have to tell a co-worker that there's a problem between you? Is this difficult?

SCRAMBLED STORY

1. Cut each word along the dotted lines. Be sure to keep sentences intact. There is a blank card between each sentence.

2. Paper clip whole sentences together, but scramble the words first.

3. Distribute one sentence to each person or to groups of two.

4. Instruct them to arrange the words into a cohesive sentence.

5. When the person or group finishes one sentence, have them select another. They must unscramble all twelve sentences.

6. When they have unscrambled all the sentences, then they must arrange the sentences into a logical paragraph.

7. Students can also write the sentences on the chalkboard or on newsprint and arrange them in order as a group.

8. As a creative writing exercise or a discussion exercise students can decide what Paul will do next. What will happen? How can he get the letter back? Have you ever felt like Paul? What did you do? What else could Paul do? The problem posing could continue for quite a while.
Paul is mad at Acme Trucking Company for fifteen years and he has worked for the company. He has been sick a day. He is hardworking and loyal to the company. But when the company has a better job they don't promote Paul. Last year they promoted Harvey Boman. He is a good man and he has worked for the company for a long time. But this time they promoted Ed Kell. Harvey is a good man and he has worked for Acme for fifteen years but Ed has worked for only five years. Ed has not been a good worker either. Paul thinks it just isn't fair. So he sits down and drinks six cans of beer and writes a letter to the president of the company. He mails the letter, but then suddenly he thinks...
Paul is mad.

He has worked for the Acme Trucking Company fifteen years and he has never been sick a day.

He is hardworking and loyal to the Company.

But when the company has a better job, they don't promote Paul.

Last year they promoted Harvey Boman.

Harvey is a good man and he has worked for the company for a long time.

But this time they promoted Ed Kell.

Paul has worked for Acme for fifteen years but Ed has worked for only five.

Ed has not been a good worker either.

Paul thinks it just isn't fair.

So he sits down and drinks six cans of beer and writes a letter to the president.

He mails the letter, but then he suddenly changes his mind.
Dialogue

Supervisor and new employee:

Bill Johnson: "Hi, Van. How's it going?"

Van: "Hi, Bill. I just got my first paycheck and I don't understand all these deductions."

Bill Johnson: "Oh. I know the problem! Money was withheld from your paycheck for social security (F.I.C.A.), for federal and state taxes, and for health insurance. See?"

Van: "Yes. But I thought health insurance was a benefit!"

Bill Johnson: "Well, it is: the company pays for your coverage and you pay for your family's coverage, but at a reduced rate."

Van: "I understand now. What about sick leave?"

Bill Johnson: "Sick leave means you will still be paid your salary when you are sick or injured and can't work."

Van: "I see. Thanks a lot for your help, Bill. I think I should keep this pay stub for my records. Right?"

Bill Johnson: "Yes, that's very important, Van. Remember, I'm here to help you anytime you have questions about your job or about our personnel policies."

Van: "Thanks again, B.J. You have been a big help. 'Bye."

II. Comprehension

Word Race

Make up sets of index cards with one new word on each of about 10 cards. These should be words students need to recognize and understand, but don't necessarily need to write. Give one set to each team:

- deductions
- federal
- withheld
- coverage
- personnel
- paystub
- income
- promotion
- benefits
- transfer

Teacher reads a set of statements or questions with a word missing. Teams respond by holding up card with the correct missing word. The first team to display the correct word wins the point.

1) My paycheck has many deductions.
2) Everyone has to pay federal taxes.
3) I want to transfer to a job nearer to my house.
4) It's very important to keep your paystub.
5) Social security payments are withheld from your paycheck.
6) Health insurance and paid vacation time are benefits.
7) I just got married. I need to change my health insurance coverage.
8) Your supervisor can help you with personnel questions.
9) If I work hard maybe after a year I can get a promotion.
10) A higher income usually means higher taxes, too.
Each team chooses a word from the grid and uses it correctly in a sentence. A correct use gets an X or 0 in the square. Incorrect use allows the other team a turn. Continue until one team gets three in a row. Change words in the grid as appropriate.

VESL RESOURCES

Merker, Roberts. VESL for Job Search. San Diego County Department of Social Services, 1985.

Orange County Public Schools. A Handbook of the Job-Site English Project, 1985-86.

This is an excellent text for the student who has intermediate level reading skills. It consists of interesting and informative stories about individuals in basic vocations, followed by useful comprehension activities. The situations cover cultural aspects such as the importance of being on time, accepting criticism wisely, leaving personal problems at home and following directions.

A graded series providing written exercises for manipulation of a grammar structure in a contextual setting. Each exercise is self-contained, enabling the teacher to pick and choose the exercises appropriate to the lesson or to the needs of the student.

Explores what is involved in constructing a functional language course in elementary English both in principle and practice. It provides 200 teaching items which demonstrate the functional approach, and which can be adapted and expanded to meet new situations. An excellent resource for the teacher in an EWP program.

An integrated series designed for aural/oral language proficiency using competency-based and functional contexts for the beginning to intermediate student. Many units apply to EWP, such as "Going to Work (Unit 5 in Getting Started) Who's in Charge" (Unit 1 in Life in the United States), "Keep up the Good Work" (Unit 3 in Life in the United States). Others develop the student's social interaction skills. The workbooks provide the opportunity for writing reinforcement.

A text that provides high beginning and intermediate English as a Second Language students with the necessary language and safety concepts to function safely at work or in the vocational training class. It covers general safety topics, safety clothing, safety procedures, working conditions, and accidents. Contains excellent illustrations and appropriate exercises in an easily readable format.

Many relevant work topics are presented in a clear, easy to understand format accompanied by excellent illustrations. The sections on following directions, reading a floor plan, understanding time schedules and paychecks, learning about personnel benefits and a basic introduction to tax forms were very applicable to our students' lives on the job.

These two texts present skills necessary for the pre and active vocational student. Book 1 has an in-depth unit on personal identification, map reading, time schedules and the interview. Book 2 presents comprehensive activities related to compiling work experience, interpreting bus and train schedules, safety information and reading want ads. Our beginner students found the personal information section beneficial and the instructor found the structural patterns presented in a vocational context effective.
In recent years, many schools, churches, social groups, and corporations have found it desirable to implement programs designed to improve the English communicative abilities of their employees, students, or clients. This report attempts to provide these institutions with a general picture of the ESL situation today and to suggest ways in which they might sensibly assess and respond to the functional, sociocultural, and educational needs of their English speaking members. Two different types of communities of second language speakers are identified. One is the relatively stable, permanent community whose members need to function with near-native proficiency in English. The other is transitory and temporary and their language needs will vary depending on the domains in which they operate. For the former group, educational needs may take precedence while for the latter group sociocultural and functional requirements are preeminent. Topics reviewed include: (1) the needs assessment process including the identification of language-minority communities, determining community goals, and determining the extent of needs; and (2) characteristic assessment practices of some specific communities including public schools, colleges and universities, junior/community colleges, corporate programs, and adult basic education programs.

A video tape and accompanying set of three student workbooks designed to give students practice in dealing with linguistic and cultural differences that they may find as they start work in the United States. Each workbook segment contains four parts: preview, viewing, postview, and applications. The twelve segments are:
- "A Typical Day on the Job"
- "Following Directions"
- "Asking for Clarification"
- "Making Small Talk"
- "Providing Feedback"
- "Reporting Progress and Problems"
- "Responding to Interruption and Criticism"
- "Workplace Forms, Diagrams, and Time Clocks"
- "Greetings and Farewells"
- "Requesting Permission and Apologizing for Mistakes"
- "Requesting and Offering Assistance"
- "Safety on the Job"

Presents a broad range of occupations and functions. Can be a useful supplement.
This monograph offers a process model developed by the Fremont Union High School District (California) for the implementation of Vocational English as a Second Language (VESL) at industry sites for minority employees who have limited English proficiency and are unable to continue classes in a traditional manner. The following areas are covered: (1) employing a project director to coordinate planning between education and industry; (2) finding companies with a large number of limited English proficiency (LEP) employees and a philosophy favorable to VESL; (3) understanding how the industry system operates; (4) making initial contacts with industry; (5) identifying, developing, and adopting suitable curriculum; (6) training supervisors of LEP; (7) considering logistics such as suitable classrooms, length of course, incentives, transportation and student recruitment; (8) dealing with paperwork; (9) preparing teachers; (10) evaluating the program and student progress; (11) determining costs; and (12) finding funding alternatives. Information is given on establishing an advisory committee of industry representatives, educators, and students.
Training has been successful for all levels of employees from entry level to top managers in:

- banking
- hotel services
- food services
- manufacturing
- maintenance services
- government

Do your limited English proficient (LEP) employees say "yes" when they mean "no?"

Can you understand them when they speak to you?

Do they rely on interpreters?

Do they do things incorrectly after you have given them proper instructions?

Do they misunderstand customer's or client's requests?

Is there a communication barrier?

Cultural Coat of Arms
CULTURAL COAT OF ARMS

A. Symbolize an element of dress or clothing you have or admire that represents your culture.

B. Symbolize a favorite food that is part of your cultural identity.

C. Symbolize or summarize in a phrase your cultural group's greatest accomplishment.

D. Symbolize or describe an artifact of your culture you have at home or in your office.

E. Summarize in a phrase a social pattern or generalized cultural value that is reflected in your personal style.
QUESTIONS

Talk about the following questions within your group and record some of the comments/observations you make.

1. What part of the cultural coat of arms did you find the most difficult?

2. What questions came into your mind as you were doing the coat of arms?

3. Identify the primary cultures (American/Chinese/Italian/Greek/etc) which you chose and then identify any subcultures (single/married/women/men/Texan/etc.) which you included as a part of your cultural coat of arms.

4. Did you mix symbols for primary cultures and subcultures?

5. What time frame did you use symbols from—past, present, future?

6. What other comments or observations do you have after reviewing the cultural coat of arms?
Culture Shock and Cultural Adjustment

Interview

Instructions: Interview someone who was born in another country and has moved to the United States within the last five years. Spend about twenty minutes discussing the questions outlined below. These questions are intended to be used as conversation starters and guidelines; feel free to vary the format of the interview. It is important that you ask questions and not give someone this sheet to fill out.

1. What happened on your first day in the United States?

2. Describe your first experiences with:
   a. food in this country
   b. housing in this country
   c. transportation in this country
   d. shopping in this country
   e. employment in this country
   f. parties/making friends in this country

3. What unexpected, surprising, or unusual things have you learned about life in this country?

4. In what ways is life in this country different than life in your country?
REACTION FROM INTERVIEW

1. What was your first reaction to doing an interview?

2. Was it easy or difficult to find someone to interview? How did you select your subject?

3. How did the interview progress?
   Were there lapses of silence?
   How did you react during the periods of silence?
   How did you decide when to wait for the person you interviewed to talk and when to move on?

4. How did the person you interviewed feel about being interviewed?

5. Did the interview questions work well as conversation starters?

6. What did you find out that you hadn't anticipated?

7. In general, what feelings did your subject have about life in the United States?

8. How did you feel when you were finished with your interview?
COMMUNICATIONS SKILLS CLASSES FOR SUPPORT SERVICES PERSONNEL

Do you need to improve your reading, writing, and math skills?
Do you need to improve your ability to speak, read, and write English?
Do you want to prepare for the GED test?

Dear Supervisor,

We offer a Communications Skills Class through the Office of Planning and Organizational Development. Your employee(s) have registered for the English as a Second Language course. In order to better meet the needs of your limited English proficient employees, we are conducting this survey. Please mark all the areas and/or situations where you experience the most difficulties. Thank you for your time.

1. Which language skills are necessary for the performance of the employees job?
   a.  listening (understanding instructions, etc)
   b.  speaking (asking for assistance, etc)
   c.  reading (reading labels, etc)
   d.  writing (writing reports, messages, etc)

2. Which skill is the most important?

3. Where do your employees need the most improvement?
   a.  speaking on the telephone
   b.  writing reports
   c.  understanding directions
   d.  speaking to supervisors
   e.  interacting with co-workers
   f.  carrying out instructions correctly
   g.  asking for clarification instead of saying "yes"
   h.  phoning in when sick or late
   i.  coming to you with problems
   j.  asking for permission to do something
   k.  reporting accidents
1. understanding company policies
m. understanding evaluations
n. responding to criticism or praise
o. speaking clearly and distinctly
p. using appropriate gestures and responses
q. reporting health/family problems
r. other:

4. What is the level of English proficiency of your employees?
   low middle high

5. How many limited English proficient employees do you supervise?

We appreciate your interest in our program.

Yours truly,

Jane Cruz
Coordinator
English in the Workplace

2 Purpose of the Test:
Assessment and Monitoring

Adults of limited-English speaking ability who wish to participate in bilingual vocational training programs have various levels of proficiency in English. Some may speak no English at all. Others may be able to follow simple directions in English but cannot respond in English. Some may be able to understand and produce the basic structures and vocabulary of the English language but cannot process the more-technical language required in the vocational setting. When such persons enroll in a bilingual vocational training program, some estimate of their level of English-speaking ability must be made in order to provide them with appropriate instruction and to determine the amount of improvement in English achieved during the training period.

Currently there are no adequate tests available that allow project directors or instructors to plan for the instructional needs of persons of limited-English-speaking ability. Although instruments have been developed to determine the level of English proficiency of children, these tests are not appropriate for an adult population. Furthermore, most of the English-proficiency tests developed for adults were designed to test the language required for college and university work. There is, then, a need for a test appropriate to adults who wish to participate in a vocational training program.

The BVOPT has a dual purpose:

- to screen people for enrollment in a bilingual vocational training program, and
- to determine the gain in English proficiency achieved during the training period.

Though designed specifically for one kind of program — bilingual vocational training — this Test would be appropriate for any program whose students are adults, limited speakers of English, and involved in learning either vocational or life skills. Manpower programs, adult basic education programs, continuing-education programs, and special education programs of many kinds may use the BVOPT for the purpose of adapting instruction to the special needs of the limited speaker of English.
Choose one of the following to write about. Circle your choice; write as much as you can. Do not use a dictionary. Do not let anyone help you. If you leave the room, give the teacher your paper.

1. Describe your job
2. Tell about your supervisor
3. Write about your country
Choose one of the following to write about. Circle your choice; write as much as you can. Do not use a dictionary. Do not let anyone help you. If you leave the room, give the teacher your paper.

1. What I learned in this class
2. Why taking English classes is important
3. What I do in my job
4. An accomplishment I am proud of
In an effort to clarify the Office of Planning and Organizational Development (OPOD) requirements for the Communications Skills Classes, the following information is provided for instructors. All forms you will need are included in this packet as well as school courier (pony) envelopes for your use. Completed forms/lists/reports are to be sent to Mary Lee Herzing, OPOD, Walnut Hill Center in the school courier (pony). For any additional information, contact Mrs. Herzing at 698-0400.

1. CLASS LISTS

Two copies of the class list including all registrations received by the Office of Planning and Organizational Development are included. Please update the list as necessary and return one to OPOD, Walnut Hill Center, after the third class meeting (January 28, 1987). It is important that OPOD records be up-to-date at all times. Copies of the student registration forms are also attached.

Each student who has not previously registered (not on class list), must complete a registration form, have it signed by his/her principal/program manager, and returned to OPOD immediately.

2. RELEASE OF INFORMATION FORMS

Each student is to sign a Release of Information Form at the first class meeting. They are to be returned to OPOD immediately.

3. ATTENDANCE REPORTS

Because employees are being given released time to attend class, it is important that their principals/program managers be informed on a regular basis regarding their attendance. Submit a Communications Skills Class Attendance Record form to OPOD on a monthly basis.

4. PROGRESS REPORTS

At the end of the session (April 29, 1987), a progress report must be completed for each student and sent directly to OPOD.
COMMUNICATIONS SKILLS CLASS

RELEASE OF INFORMATION

I authorize the Office of Adult and Community Education to release information regarding my attendance and progress in the Communications Skills class for support services employees to the Office of Planning and Organizational Development and to the principal/program manager of the department/office/school to which I am assigned.
