ABSTRACT

This annotated bibliography provides information on Alzheimer's disease and other forms of dementia in older adults. Written for both educators and consumers, citations especially appropriate for family caregivers, friends, neighbors, and other family members are identified with an asterisk (*). A brief introduction discusses the incidence of Alzheimer's disease in this country and recognizes the needs of caregivers. Citations in the bibliography are organized under the categories of: (1) books; (2) brochures; (3) journals on Alzheimer's disease; (4) special editions on dementia; and (5) videos. Also included are lists of sources of additional information and organizations concerned with issues of aging, as well as the name and address of the reviewer who helped in the selection of materials to be included in the bibliography.

Bibliographies in the Quick Bibliography Series of the National Agricultural Library are intended primarily for current awareness, and as the title of the series implies, are not indepth exhaustive bibliographies on any given subject. However, the citations are a substantial resource for recent investigations on a given topic. They also serve the purpose of bringing the literature of agriculture to the interested user who, in many cases, could not access it by any other means. The bibliographies are derived from computerized on-line searches of the AGRICOLA data base. Timeliness of topic and evidence of extensive interest are the selection criteria.

The author/searcher determines the purpose, length, and search strategy of the Quick Bibliography. Information regarding these is available upon request from the author/searcher.

Copies of this bibliography may be made or used for distribution without prior approval. The inclusion or omission of a particular publication or citation may not be construed as endorsement or disapproval.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

BILLIE H. FRAZIER, Certified Family Life Educator, is an Associate Professor and Human Development Specialist for the Cooperative Extension Service, University of Maryland. For 19 years, Dr. Frazier has been responsible for developing, implementing, and evaluating statewide educational programs related to parent education, stress management, and aging.

In recent years, she has pursued a strong interest in gerontology. She also has served as the chairperson of the first national Extension Committee on Policy-sponsored workshop on aging in Dallas in 1976.

This bibliography represents the research conducted by Dr. Frazier during her 6-month sabbatical with the National Agricultural Library, U.S. Department of Agriculture. It is one of 3 publications that provides comprehensive coverage on several topics in gerontology.

GLENN I. KIRKLAND, a retired Johns Hopkins physicist, is a national authority on Alzheimer's Disease and one of the country's leading advocates for caregivers of Alzheimer's Disease victims.

Mr. Kirkland has been a participant in two award winning television programs developed at the University of Maryland Medical School in Baltimore, "Living with Grace," and "Caregiving With Grace." He is the author of several publications related to dementia and Alzheimer's Disease.

Mr. Kirkland recently received a prestigious Senior Citizens "Hall of Fame" certificate of recognition and a Maryland Extension Specialists' Association Award for meritorious service.

KATHLEEN C. HAYES, Certified Home Economist, is a Technical Information Specialist at the National Agricultural Library, U.S. Department of Agriculture. During her five years with the Library, she served as the coordinator of the Family and the Fiber and Textile Information Centers. She also was involved with the formation of the Rural and the Youth Development Information Centers.

Ms. Hayes recently completed a one-year assignment with the Joint Council on Food and Agricultural Sciences. As the Leader of the Reports Staff, she was responsible for the development and distribution of three congressionally mandated reports related to agricultural research, extension, and higher education. Upon her return to the Library, she was appointed coordinator for the Technology Transfer Information Center.

INTRODUCTION.

Alzheimer's Disease is one of the most common causes of dementia in the elderly. It has been labeled the disease of the century, and the "silent epidemic." It is becoming a problem of major proportion for the United States. National organizations and state councils have been established to coordinate and monitor state and community efforts on the disease.

It is currently estimated that more than 4 million people over the age of 65 suffer in various degrees from debilitating mental diseases or dementia. Although the probability of having Alzheimer's at the age of 65 is about one in twenty, the probability appears to be approximately one in three or four at the age of 85.

The social impact of dementia is heightened by the fact that the segment of our population above the age of 80 is growing more rapidly than any other corresponding age bracket.

It is evident that caregivers of Alzheimer's victims are the mainstay of the Nation's efforts to cope with this disease. A major portion of the literature is directed toward the caregivers. In fact, they have provided quite a bit of information on day-to-day experiences with victims in the family situation.

Caregivers need information on a variety of subjects. Information ranges from general background material on legal and financial matters to detailed techniques for dealing with specific behavioral problems of the patient. Primary caregivers need all the assistance they can obtain and deserve accolades for the significant role they play in patient support.

Selected Resources on Dementia and Alzheimer's Disease in the Elderly is divided into the following categories: Books, Brochures, Journals, Special Editions, Videos, Organizations, and Additional Information. Citations marked with an asterisk (*) are especially appropriate for consumers including family caregivers, friends, neighbors, and other family members.

BOOKS

1. Living with Grace, an award winning video presents a series of vignettes taken during five months in the life of Grace, who is afflicted with Alzheimer's Disease. Focus is on the husband's efforts so their life can continue with dignity and meaning. It was videotaped six years after the initial diagnosis (30 minutes).
2. Caregiving with Grace was videotaped ten years after the initial diagnosis. It documents daily care provided by Grace's husband and a foster home caregiver. Both discuss practical and emotional solutions for caregiving with Grace (35 minutes).

These two programs illustrate changes that occur in an Alzheimer's victim over a ten year period.
3. Perspectives on Grace: Medical Implications is designed to be used in conjunction with Living with Grace and Caregiving with Grace. A noted physician comments on medical and social implications of her condition and their impact on the family (20 minutes).
4. Perspectives on Grace: Nursing Care Implications presents an overview of behavioral and emotional symptoms associated with various stages of Alzheimer's disease and dementing illnesses. Commentary is based on the case presentation in the documentaries, Living with Grace and Caregiving with Grace. Specific caregiving strategies are addressed (20 minutes).

5. Nursing Care for Elderly Dementia Patients is a presentation on the cognitive and behavioral manifestations of dementia syndromes. The emphasis is on the use of the nursing process to develop, implement, and evaluate a comprehensive patient care plan (25 minutes).
6. Caregiver Stress includes strategies for stress management, stress reduction, coping with caregiving roles, and improving the general and the mental health of the caregiver. The video is directed toward home caregivers (25 minutes).
7. Depression and Dementia presents a discussion on depression in elderly dementia patients who are residents in long-term care facilities. The physician defines depression, explains how to identify it, and suggests intervention, management, and treatment (20 minutes).
8. What is Dementia? provides discussion on Alzheimer's disease and related dementing illnesses. A physician provides the basic overview of symptoms and describes how a diagnosis is made. This tape serves as an introduction to Alzheimer's disease for health professionals, volunteers and family caregivers (16 minutes).
9. Solutions for Today examines medical and psychosocial interventions and addresses what can be done for dementia patients and their families. A physician provides an overview of practical principles for responsive caregiving, and exploring challenges and rewards (20 minutes).
10. Medication and Dementia describes the use, precautions, and side effects of medications used with patients having Alzheimer's disease and related dementing illnesses (20 minutes).
