This guide was developed for the purpose of providing Nebraska's educational agencies with documentation and a rationale for effectively utilizing paraprofessionals in special education. The guide provides examples of school policies which meet the intent of Nebraska law and may be utilized to improve the productivity and effectiveness of paraprofessional programs. The guide is organized into four major areas of concern: recruitment, selection, and hiring of paraprofessionals; policies for the appropriate utilization of paraprofessionals; training programs for both paraprofessionals and teachers; and policies concerning the supervision and evaluation of paraprofessionals. Appendices accompanying each of the four sections make up the bulk of the document and include such items as sample applications, interview questions, contracts, a list of special education paraprofessional roles and responsibilities, a training planning guide, a needs assessment, an observation checklist, and self-evaluation forms. INTRODUCTION

A survey of Nebraska special education administrators, teachers, and paraprofessionals in 1982 indicated only limited use of recommended administrative procedures in the utilization of paraprofessionals (Vasa, Steckelberg, & Ronning, 1982). Formal selection procedures and criteria, job descriptions, established training programs and systematic evaluation procedures were present only in a minority of educational programs. One of the conclusions of this study was that paraprofessional use in special education programs in Nebraska could be improved through a more systematic and formal approach.

In 1969, the Nebraska Unicameral enacted legislation permitting Nebraska schools to employ non-certified teacher aides. This legislation included significant restrictions in teacher aide use:

1) aides may not be assigned teaching responsibilities, and
2) if assigned responsibility for non-teaching duties, aides must be specifically prepared for these duties.

Legislation passed in 1972 defined teaching. Through this legislation the responsibilities which teacher aides cannot assume was further clarified. In addition, in 1971, the Nebraska Department of Education (NDE) disseminated a position paper clarifying and interpreting the use of teacher aides in Nebraska schools. The Professional Practices Commission has also published documents pertaining to use of teacher aides. A position paper was first published by the Professional Practices Commission in 1971. In 1977 the Commission amended its rules and regulations and published a subsequent position statement. The focus of these actions was to define the role of the teacher and the teacher aide and to provide guidelines for their use and supervision.

The Nebraska State Education Association, in 1970, developed the following set of responsibilities for school administrators for the development of teacher aide programs:

1) the development of effective ways to utilize teacher aides,
2) writing job descriptions for the various categories of aides,
3) the assignment of aides,
4) the supervision of aides,
5) getting the program started,
6) providing information about the proposed program which interprets the objectives of the program to parents, teachers, students, and other interested people in the community,
7) developing criteria for the selection of aides,
8) the recruitment of aides,
9) providing preservice and inservice training programs for aides,
10) providing inservice training for classroom teachers in how to make the best use of aides,

11) evaluating the aide program and changing policies when change is needed,

12) providing a system for evaluation of aides and their contribution to the total school program, and

13) developing career ladder opportunities for aides (Nebraska State Education Association, 1970).

A series of Comprehensive System of Personnel Development (CSPD) projects from the State Department of Education were initiated in 1981. These projects included a survey of the status of the deployment of paraprofessionals in Nebraska; the development of a guide for the effective utilization of paraprofessionals; and the convening of a task force to make recommendations for the appropriate use of paraprofessionals in special education programs in Nebraska. These projects provided the background for the development of this resource guide. Three earlier documents in the series include: A State of the Art Assessment of Paraprofessional Use in Special Education in the State of Nebraska (Vasa, Steckelberg, & Ronning, 1982), Guide for Effective Utilization of Paraprofessionals in Special Education (Vasa, Steckelberg, & Ronning, 1983); and Direction for the Utilization of Paraprofessionals in Special Education in Nebraska (Vasa and Steckelberg, 1985).

This guide was developed for the purpose of providing educational agencies with documentation and a rationale for effectively utilizing paraprofessionals in special education. The guide was made possible through a Nebraska Department of Education Comprehensive System of Personnel Development grant awarded to the Department of Special Education and Communication Disorders at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. One expected outcome of the project was to provide specific products for use by educational service units and local educational agencies serving handicapped students. In particular, the project objectives were developed to impact special education programs in Nebraska by providing:

1. additional resources to ESUs and LEAs seeking to improve services to handicapped students through the use of paraprofessionals,

2. model paraprofessional utilization and training programs as an aid to school districts seeking to establish or improve paraprofessional programs.

3. a training resource for special education teachers who utilize paraprofessionals.

The guide provides both rationale and examples of school policies which meet the intent of Nebraska Law and may be utilized to improve the productivity and effectiveness of paraprofessional programs. The guide is organized into four major areas of concern: recruitment, selection and hiring of paraprofessionals, policies for the appropriate utilization of paraprofessionals, training programs for both paraprofessionals and teachers, and policies concerning the supervision and evaluation of paraprofessionals.
RECRUITMENT, SELECTION, AND HIRING POLICIES

The recruitment and selection of paraprofessionals plays a primary role in establishing effective paraprofessional programs. The appropriate selection of personnel to fill paraprofessional vacancies can improve the educational programs in which they are employed.

The Nebraska Unicameral, in 1969, enacted legislation allowing Nebraska schools to employ non-certified teacher aids. Section 79-1233[2] of the Nebraska Revised Statute reads:

Public, private, denominational, or parochial schools in the state may employ persons who do not hold a valid Nebraska teaching permit issued by the Commissioner of Education to serve as teacher or teachers. Such teacher aides may not assume any teaching responsibilities. A teacher aide may be assigned duties which are non-teaching in nature, if the employing school has assured itself that the aide has been specifically prepared for such duties, including the handling of emergency situations which might arise in the course of his work.

Since 1969 the number of programs which utilize paraprofessionals has continued to increase. The successful use of teacher aides to assist the special education teacher has been demonstrated both in Nebraska and nationally.

The quality of the paraprofessional program is directly affected by the quality of the personnel available to serve as paraprofessionals. Effective recruitment practices should be established by stressing the positive aspects of being a teacher aide. These aspects include assignments which encompass a variety of interesting tasks, relatively high prestige and recognition in many communities, working hours that correspond with their children's school hours, various benefits offered by many districts, high levels of responsibility given to many aides, minimal entry-level skill requirements, and high levels of personal satisfaction from the job.

Commonly used sources for recruitment of potentially good paraprofessionals include: parent teacher associations, senior citizen centers, civic and community organizations, school volunteer programs, employment agencies and newspaper advertisements.

An important component of school policies regarding paraprofessionals' employment is the establishment of minimum qualifications. The establishment of minimum qualifications addresses two important issues. First, minimum qualifications can be established to protect students, parents, and the school system. Secondly, qualifications can be established in an attempt to predict future performance levels. A variety of approaches have been utilized in establishing minimum criteria for the employment of teacher aides. These have included minimum job qualifications, required amounts of training, and licensure.

In Nebraska the responsibility for establishing teacher aide employment policies lies within the domain of the local school board. Section 2 of 79-1233 of Nebraska Revised Statutes requires that:

"teacher aides working with any such program shall have qualifications as the governing body of the school shall prescribe...".
In 1985, a Nebraska task force of teachers, administrators, NDE, and higher education personnel recommended that each service agency employing special education teacher aides establish a verification procedure documenting teacher aide qualifications and competencies (Direction, 1985). According to their report, these procedures should include:

1. Written policies regarding selection and employment criteria which include at least the following components:
   a. experience in working with children (especially handicapped children)
   b. educational level
   c. interpersonal and communication skills
   d. attitude toward school and children
   e. capacity to complete preservice and inservice education requirements

Vasa, Steckelberg, and Ronning (1982) in a survey of Nebraska special education administrators found that the most commonly used criteria for hiring teacher aides were the applicant's attitudes towards handicapped children, references, level of basic skills applicable to the position, interpersonal skills with adults, previous employment, experience with handicapped children, general health, and physical strength.

Other competencies suggested by O'Brien (1977) include:

... an interest in self-improvement
... proficiency in nonjudgmental observing and reporting of behavior
... knowledge of how and when to encourage children to promote favorable behavior
... an understanding of the importance of sound emotional and social conditions within the classroom
... a philosophy of education in keeping with the schools

The interview is often the primary method used to assess the applicant's ability to meet these criteria. The interviewer must gauge the applicant's potential for growth as well as his or her present level of ability. Through this approach the skill, personality, and compatibility of the applicant can be determined before the school year begins. The interview may also serve as a preliminary orientation to the special education programs and personnel. Established school policies regarding paraprofessionals and the paraprofessional job description can be valuable tools in the interview process.

Many times the interview is conducted by the hiring official only. This practice may overlook important considerations. The teacher who will be working with the paraprofessional should also be a part of the interview. The teacher may be able to provide information on the particular instructional setting and match the paraprofessional to the learning situation and teaching style.

A final employment issue addressed by school policies regarding paraprofessionals is the employment agreement and working conditions established by the school. A wide variety of approaches have been taken in Nebraska schools ranging from formal employment contracts to informal verbal agreements. Salaries and benefits for paraprofessionals also vary widely depending on the educational agency.

In addition to salaries and benefits other employment issues often addressed by school policies regarding paraprofessionals include: work schedules, health policies, use of private cars, grievance procedures, leave policies, and emergency procedures.
One aspect of paraprofessionals employment which has received attention has been the career ladder concept. This has been an attempt to provide opportunities for paraprofessionals to increase their level of responsibility and salary based on factors such as experience, demonstrated performance, and training.

Appendix A provides a set of example school policies related to the issues of recruitment, selection and hiring of paraprofessionals in special education programs. Included are general school board policy statements, statements of minimum qualifications, interview guides, employment agreements and sample salary and benefits schedules.
ASSIGNMENT OF PARAPROFESSIONAL DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Paraprofessionals play a significant role in the delivery of educational services. The advantages have been listed by a number of authors (Cruickshank & Haring, 1957; Blessing, 1966). Benefits include more planning time, organizational changes in the classroom, increased individualized attention, improved quality of instruction and additional adult role models.

Early programs utilized paraprofessionals primarily in clerical roles (Cruickshank & Haring, 1957). As the use of paraprofessionals in special education programs has increased, the role has shifted to include additional instructional responsibilities (Esbensen, 1966). The classroom teacher has assumed the role of manager of instruction which includes the supervision of the paraprofessional delivering instructional activities. Consistent with this concept, Nebraska law limits the duties of the paraprofessional to non-teaching duties. Teaching duties are defined as:

(a) The organization and management of the classroom or the physical area in which the learning experiences of pupils take place,

(b) the assessment and diagnosis of the individual educational needs of the pupils,

(c) the planning, selecting, organizing, prescribing and directing of the learning experiences of pupils,

(d) the planning of teaching strategies and the selection of available materials and equipment to be used, and

(e) the evaluation and reporting of student progress (Nebraska Revised Statute, Section 79-101).

Nebraska statutes prohibit the paraprofessional from making pedagogical and management decisions. They are not, however, restricted in participating in instructional tasks designed by the teacher. Considerable latitude in the type and extent of paraprofessional duties and responsibilities are permissible in Nebraska special education programs.

Educational agencies assume the responsibility for clarifying the roles of paraprofessionals in relation to the particular position and the policies of the agency. A clear understanding of the role of the paraprofessional is important in the orientation and training of teachers and paraprofessionals. Well defined roles also serve to facilitate daily communication, supervision, and management, as well as, communicating the purpose of the program to students, parents and members of the community.

Limits are placed on the role of the paraprofessional as a protection for the students and parents in a special education program. Concurrently, one of the assets of the paraprofessionals is the flexibility and adaptability with which they can be deployed in special education programs. The roles in which paraprofessionals may participate should not be defined so narrowly that they are restrictive beyond necessary limits.

The extent of responsibility assigned to a paraprofessional may reflect factors other than minimum legal requirements. Paraprofessionals' duties should be dependent upon their levels of training, experience, skills, and the amount of supervision available while the task is being completed.

A clear delineation of appropriate roles and responsibilities of the paraprofessional and the teacher may also address professional teachers’ concerns about loss of identity and role blurring between the teacher and the paraprofessional. Appendix B contains several listings of teacher and paraprofessional duties and responsibilities as examples.

One administrative method for establishing and clarifying the roles of teachers and paraprofessionals has been the job description. The job description supports the selection and interview process, orientation and training of paraprofessionals, program planning and evaluation, and daily supervision and management of the program.

Direction for the Utilization of Paraprofessionals in Special Education in Nebraska: A Task Force Report (1985), made two recommendations concerning the utilization of paraprofessionals:

1. The service agency shall be required to develop and maintain written policies and procedures pertaining to teacher aides that reflect the following components:
   a. job descriptions
   b. preservice and inservice training
   c. training
   d. evaluation

2. Teacher aide job descriptions developed by the service agency shall include competency requirements which reflect the following specifications as determined by each service agency and approved by the Nebraska Department of Education:
   a. minimum hours of preservice and inservice content
   b. minimum requirements for training content
   c. minimum supervision parameters.

The Nebraska Professional Practices Commission in Teacher Aides: A Position Statement (1977), makes the following statement regarding paraprofessional job descriptions:

The Commission believes the use of a job description for each aide position would do much to dispel the uncertainty and tension surrounding the issue.

As a minimum the job descriptions should include the following components:

Position Title: Serves for classification and identification of positions.

Position Setting: Includes a description of the setting in which the paraprofessional will be working.

Purpose of the Position: Should clarify the rationale and intended outcomes of the job position. Commonly stated purposes include assistance to professional teachers, service to handicapped students, and improvement of instruction and extension of program services.

Qualifications for the Position: Utilized in the recruitment, selection and training of paraprofessionals.
Duties and Responsibilities: Contains a description of the duties and responsibilities typically expected of the paraprofessional. Provides information to establish the role and extent of responsibility.

Training Requirements: Clarifies expected requirements for initial and continued staff development activities.

Supervision and Evaluation: Identifies the person(s) to whom they are responsible. Clarifies role of the administrator and the teacher to whom they are responsible. Provides information on frequency and type of evaluation activities to be conducted.

Time/Hours: Used to describe the number of hours per week required by the job.

Salaries and Benefits: An explanation of the salary and benefits for the position.

Appendix B contains examples of several alternative job description formats.
TRAINING FOR PARAPROFESSIONALS AND TEACHERS

Training is an important element of school policy because of the extensive role that special education paraprofessionals perform. Benefits attributed to training paraprofessionals include: more efficient supervision of paraprofessionals; protection of student's and parent's rights; extention of skill levels; promotion of consistent school policies; transition to job assignment; improvement in the delivery of instruction; and increased job performance and satisfaction.

Nebraska Revised Statute Section 43-625[2] states that "Teacher aides...shall participate in appropriate inservice activities." In addition, 79-1233 states:

A teacher aide may be assigned duties which are non-teaching in nature, if the employing school has assured itself that the aide has been specifically prepared for such duties, including the handling of emergency situations which might arise in the course of his work."

The following recommendations concerning paraprofessional training were included in Direction for the Utilization of Paraprofessionals in Special Education in Nebraska: A Task Force Report (1985):

1. The service agency which employs teacher aides shall establish training guidelines for teacher aides:
   a. the guidelines shall be based on goals and objectives established by the service agency.
   b. training of teacher aides shall be related to expectations described in the job description.
   c. teacher aide job descriptions shall serve as guidelines for preservice and inservice training programs.

2. Teacher aide training model guidelines maintained by service agencies shall include the following training components:
   a. preservice training for teacher aides
   b. inservice training for teacher aides

3. Teacher aides shall be required to complete the following training:
   a. a minimum of 15 hours of preservice training, and thereafter 15 hours of annual inservice training deemed appropriate by the service agency.
   b. preservice training which shall include but not be limited to:
      1) service agency policies and procedures
      2) legal and ethical issues
      3) an overview of special education and handicapped children/youth
      4) job role expectations
      5) the handling of emergencies, including first aid and safety
      6) equipment operation
   c. annual inservice training content which shall include but not be limited to information concerning:
      1) exceptionalities
      2) behavior management techniques
      3) educational materials and strategies
4. In addition to required preservice and inservice training, on-the-job training of teacher aides shall consist of planned activities conducted by supervising personnel, including training in job-specific skills as reflected in the teacher aide job description.

Typical skill areas addressed in a paraprofessional training program are:

- school policies;
- legal and ethical issues;
- role expectations;
- knowledge of special education programs;
- behavior management strategies;
- tutoring and program delivery skills;
- observation skills;
- use of instructional materials;
- use of equipment; and
- first aid and safety procedures.

Rittenhouse (1972), in a description of guidelines and training programs in several states, notes that these areas are also included in some training programs: record keeping procedures, development of the learning atmosphere, human growth and development, child psychology, and problems of the disadvantaged student.

A survey of Nebraska educators found that only 14 percent of the special education teachers who were assigned aides had training in their utilization and supervision. Recommended qualification for supervisors of paraprofessionals included in Direction for the Utilization of Paraprofessionals in Special Education in Nebraska are: "a) preservice or inservice training regarding the supervision of teacher aides; and b) knowledge of statutory and regulatory guidelines concerning qualifications, duties, training, and supervision of teacher aides".

Competencies commonly cited as needed by supervisors of teacher aides are the ability to:

- identify important components of a paraprofessional program;
- identify effects of paraprofessional program on performance, instructional costs, and staffing;
- knowledge of legal and ethical constraints on use of paraprofessionals;
- develop and implement selection criteria for paraprofessionals;
- develop and implement preservice/inservice training programs for paraprofessionals;
- manage paraprofessional training programs;
- employ dependent measures in formative and summative evaluation of paraprofessionals programs;
- describe rationale for use and employment of paraprofessionals; and
- describe effective means of training paraprofessionals.

Many districts also conduct needs assessments in order to define goals and objectives for preservice and/or inservice activities. Local resources are often available for staff development. Staff development includes the use of a variety of resources including: materials, individual learning packets, and formal and informal inservice activities. Teachers in the program are ready resources for development of training at both the preservice and inservice level.

A major component of the training program is on-the-job training. Often, on-the-job training programs are inadequately planned and very casual, leading to inadequate documentation of skill acquisition. Effective on-the-job training needs to be formalized to insure that the paraprofessional has a training program outline and a system is in place to monitor their progress. Appendix C provides sample needs assessment instruments and planning documents to assist in the delivery of training programs.
SUPERVISION AND EVALUATION OF PARAPROFESSIONALS

By definition paraprofessionals assist teachers and are under their supervision. Guidelines for supervision and evaluation provide a vehicle for the improvement of delivery of services to handicapped children and assurance that their rights are protected.

According to Nebraska Revised Statute Section 43-625(2) qualified teachers in special training and educational programs are responsible for the supervision of paraprofessionals:

(3) Each qualified teacher shall be responsible for the direct supervision of teacher aides, whose duties shall be limited to those prescribed in section 79-1233.

In addition, the statute defines a qualified teacher:

As used in this section, qualified teacher shall mean an individual holding a valid State of Nebraska teaching or special services certificate with an endorsement appropriate to the handicaps served. If such teacher is serving children with more than one handicap, qualified teacher shall mean an individual holding a valid State of Nebraska teaching or special services certificate with an endorsement in at least one of the handicaps served.

The Nebraska Professional Practices Commission in Teacher Aides: A Position Statement (1977), makes the following statement regarding paraprofessional supervision:

An aide may assist a teacher in instruction in subject matter or in conducting instructional activities. The teacher shall be continuously aware of the aide's instructional activities, and must be able to control or modify them. It is difficult to conceive of a teacher's being able to do this if the aide mans an instructional station alone, except possibly for very brief periods of time.

The professional practices commission position statement also notes that a teacher aide may not be supervised by a building principal, adjacent classroom teacher, or supervisor.

Direction for the Utilization of Paraprofessionals in Special Education in Nebraska: A Task Force Report (1985) recommended that the employing agency be responsible for designating certificated personnel to directly supervise teacher aides in order to provide supervision at all times, with direct on site supervision to be provided on a part-time basis (Direction, 1985). Specific recommendations were as follows:

1. Teacher aides shall be supervised 100 percent of the time by certificated personnel knowledgeable of the IEP program(s).

2. Supervisors of the teacher aide shall provide at least the following:
   a. direct on site supervision by the certificated special education teacher based on a minimum of 10 percent of the aide's time which shall be designated for planning, observing, evaluating, and training;
   b. supervision by the certificated special education teacher, based upon ongoing monitoring of IEP goals and objectives.

3. Supervisory personnel shall possess the following qualifications:
a. preservice or inservice training regarding the supervision of teacher aides; and
b. knowledge of statutory and regulatory guidelines concerning qualifications, duties, training, and supervision of teacher aides.

From a good practice standpoint, the key element in judging the appropriateness of the supervision of the paraprofessionals is the ability of the teacher to control the learning process. As a minimum, the teacher must be sufficiently aware of the circumstances and results of instructional activities to evaluate the performance of students and make appropriate instructional decisions.

The supervisor's responsibilities to the paraprofessional should include at least the following duties:

1. assessing strengths and weaknesses of teacher aides
2. analyzing job performance
3. training teacher aides to perform specific tasks
4. providing evaluation feedback
5. being responsible for the teacher aide's growth in the job
6. establishing a climate for learning in the classroom
7. establishing on-going communications with the teacher aide.
8. assignment of specific duties and responsibilities.

School policies should address several issues regarding supervision of teacher aides:

1) the role of the teacher as responsible for supervision should be clearly established;
2) minimum levels of adequate supervision should be defined for various programs;
3) training regarding supervision practices should be provided for teachers; and
4) school evaluation policies should be supportive of the teacher's role as supervisor.

Included in Appendix D of the guide are resources to assist in the development of school policies regarding supervision and evaluation of paraprofessionals.

EXAMPLES OF SCHOOL BOARD POLICY STATEMENTS

Minneapolis Board of Education Policy
(adopted 2/28/67)

Personnel
Teacher Aides

The professional teacher is trained and certified to perform certain functions in the education of children. The responsibilities that are reserved for teachers involve (1) analyzing the instructional needs of their pupils, (2) prescribing educational activities to meet the pupil's needs and (3) certain supervisory responsibilities consistent with established school policy and directed by the school principal.

Teacher working with nonprofessional helpers, either in or out of the classroom, must rely upon their own professional judgment when assigning duties to nonprofessional helpers. These duties should not infringe upon the responsibilities reserved for teachers, but nonprofessionals may assist the teacher in meeting their responsibilities.

The school principal retains his traditional responsibility for supervision of the school and the entire staff.

Rule Approved by Minneapolis School Superintendent
(10/10/67)

Personnel
Teacher Aides

1. In the absence of the teacher, for any reason, the nonprofessional may not assume or be assigned the responsibilities reserved for teachers.

2. Nonprofessionals may not be given independent responsibility for classroom management and organization.

3. The nonprofessional may not function in a normal classroom helping role if a certified teacher is not available for direction and guidance.

Exhibit 2

SAMPLE INTERVIEW AND SELECTION QUESTIONS

Instructions: The interview is designed to gather information about the applicant's background, skills, and attitudes. In addition, the interview allows the applicant an opportunity to learn about the program goals and the particular job requirements. Listed below are items that should be included in the interview.

1. Questions should be directly related to the applicant's ability to do the job. Questions concerning marital status, church affiliation, or other factors are inappropriate.

2. Ask about the applicant's previous work experience. The paraprofessional may bring in a variety of skills into the classroom that can benefit both the teacher and the students.

3. Ask about the applicant's hobbies and interests. He or she may have valuable skills in areas the teacher may want to introduce.

4. Ask about the applicant's previous experience with children. Previous experience working with children, for example Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, 4-H, etc., can be a most valuable asset in the classroom.

5. Inquire about the applicant's attitude toward school. The paraprofessional should have a positive regard for learning and school. An applicant who feels that his or her own school experience was largely a waste of time, or was a poor student, may be unsuited for paraprofessional work.

6. Ask the applicant why he or she wants to be a paraprofessional. Negative, self-directed answers such as "I can't go to college and I don't have anything else to do" or "The hours aren't so bad" may reflect selfish and negative attitudes toward the children. The attitude the applicant displays in the interview may be the same one he or she will present in the classroom.

7. Describe the general operation of the classroom.

8. Outline the major duties of a paraprofessional in the program.

SPECIAL EDUCATION PARAPROFESSIONAL ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Instructions: The following guidelines for the roles and responsibilities can be used to help clarify the duties of the paraprofessional. This example compares and contrasts the duties of both the paraprofessional and the teacher. The duties that have been included are samples of appropriate responsibilities. These duties may vary considerably depending on the situation.

ROLE - The special education paraprofessional's role is to assist the teacher and allow more effective utilization of the teacher's abilities and professional knowledge. By fulfilling this role, improved instruction and service for children is facilitated. The roles of the teacher and the paraprofessional require different levels of training and experience.

RESPONSIBILITIES - The responsibilities of paraprofessionals are generally supportive in nature. The supervising teacher assumes primary responsibility for students and classroom.

7. meet with the school nurse to discuss emergency health treatment and learn about the referral system for any health problems.

Small Group Activities

The paraprofessional trainees will:

1. discuss alternative and appropriate responses when given ethically compromising situations;

2. demonstrate and/or discuss appropriate actions when given emergency situations;

3. respond with appropriate behavior management techniques when presented with simulations of inappropriate behavior; and

4. accurately report, in writing, the observable behaviors presented in the simulation in activity 3.
Individual Activities

The paraprofessional trainee will:

1. receive a written job description from the teacher, and have an opportunity to react to and discuss the job description;

2. receive a tour by the supervising teacher of the school facilities directly related to the specific position;

3. receive a written list of the classroom rules and discuss with the teacher the consequences of behavior inconsistent with these rules;

4. receive instruction from the teacher related to materials and instructional materials;

5. receive instruction from the teacher concerning clerical responsibilities; and

6. receive instruction from the teacher concerning ways to give feedback on student learning and behavioral performance.

Evaluation of Trainee's Performance

The paraprofessional trainee will:

1. be evaluated in the following categories -
   a. personal willingness to learn and participate
   b. courtesy and personal behavior habits
   c. attitude response to emergencies and new ideas
   d. relating with children;

2. show an understanding in the areas of behavior management strategies, learning theory, individualized tutoring techniques, and role description;

3. demonstrate an understanding of the ethics and responsibilities of the position; and

4. be able to demonstrate competence in operating audio-visual and duplicating equipment.

PRESERVICE EDUCATION AGENDA
(5-day Workshop)

Instructions: The following outline describes a five day workshop designed to be delivered to paraprofessional prior to the beginning of the school year.

Theme: Paraprofessionals Preservice Workshop
Participants: Paraprofessionals

FIRST DAY

Objectives:
1. Overview - Special Education
2. Define the role of the paraprofessional

8:30-9:30 Opening sessions - Orientation to workshop
9:30-11:00 Discussion work groups - Paraprofessionals, by assigned area of exceptionality, meet with appropriate coordinator. Task is to gain specific knowledge regarding area of exceptionality to which the paraprofessional has been assigned.
11:00-11:45 Summary session - Each group presents any common concerns that might affect the entire group.
1:00-4:00 Role of the paraprofessional - Paraprofessionals participate in small group discussion regarding duties and responsibilities.
4:00-4:45 Summary session - Coordinators present common concerns brought up in the previous session.

SECOND DAY

Objectives:
1. Defining the role of the paraprofessional (continued)
2. Introducing the paraprofessional's responsibilities

8:30-10:00 Role of the paraprofessional (continued) - Small group discussion regarding policies and procedures; job ethics; do's and don'ts; the instructional team; relationship with students, parents, teachers, and administrators.
10:00-12:00 Introduction to classroom responsibilities - Small group discussion regarding behavioral areas; academic areas; child growth and development; lesson planning; classroom management.
1:00-4:00 Visitation to assigned schools or special centers - Individuals visit the sites where they are to be assigned for a general orientation and visit with personnel.
THIRD DAY

Objectives:
1. Information session
2. Assigning buddies

8:30-12:00 General sessions - Personnel matters: licensing, benefits, school calendar; payroll; administrative considerations; school-community relations; in-house communications.

1:00-3:00 Assigning buddies - Each paraprofessional is assigned an experienced buddy for a do's and don'ts session.

3:00-4:00 Summary session - Paraprofessionals share concerns of interest to the entire group.

FOURTH DAY

Objectives:
1. Discussing inter-agency cooperation
2. Identifying community resources

8:30-9:30 General session - Inter-agency cooperation

9:30-12:00 Carousel (round-robin) sessions - Small group sessions conducted by representatives of various community allied agencies, e.g., human resources, natural resources, family and children's services vocational rehabilitation, etc. Paraprofessionals rotate in small groups until all agencies have been covered.

1:00-4:00 Visitation to selected community allied agencies

FIFTH DAY

Objectives:
1. Discussing school system support services
2. Introducing simulation activities
3. Reporting to assigned classroom stations

8:30-9:30 General session - Overview of support services available to children in special education: e.g., physical, occupational, art, music, and speech therapy.

9:30-12:00 Simulation activities - Simulations of typical classroom situations that the paraprofessional might encounter.

1:00-4:00 Reporting to assigned school or center.

COMPETENCY BASED PARAPROFESSIONAL TRAINING PROGRAM

Instructions: Following is a menu-type approach to a comprehensive training program for paraprofessionals in special education. The topics are presented in module form and are adapted from a paraprofessional training program from the Wyandotte County Special Education Cooperative in Kansas City, Kansas.

MODULE I - ORIENTATION

A. JOB EXPECTATIONS AND TRAINING

The paraprofessional will:

1. demonstrate familiarity with the school handbook and their written job description;
2. demonstrate a knowledge of what training expectations are required; and
3. submit a training plan as required.

B. IMPROVING TEACHER/PARAPROFESSIONAL RELATIONSHIPS

The paraprofessional will:

1. demonstrate knowledge of how to improve communication skills;
2. demonstrate an effort to get to know the lead teacher by conducting an interview and documenting responses;
3. along with the lead teacher, correctly respond to simulated situations that depict role conflicts; and
4. along with the lead teacher, discuss behavior management strategies that the lead teacher uses. The paraprofessional will demonstrate knowledge of correct discipline measures through role playing activities.

C. BASIC EMERGENCY PROCEDURES

The paraprofessional will:

1. demonstrate understanding about emergency procedures;
2. demonstrate knowledge of three types of seizures and procedures to follow; and
3. demonstrate knowledge of school disaster and fire drill procedures.

MODULE II - INSTRUCTIONAL TECHNIQUES

A. BASIC SKILLS OF INSTRUCTION

The paraprofessional will:

1. demonstrate good tutoring skills when given a simulated situation; and
2. demonstrate correct reinforcement, correction, and cueing techniques.
B. EFFECTIVELY UTILIZING AUDIO AND VISUAL MEDIA FOR INSTRUCTION

The paraprofessional will:

1. demonstrate the appropriate use of audio visual equipment; and
2. demonstrate knowledge of how to use the instructional media center.

MODULE III - ASSESSMENT RESPONSIBILITIES

A. ASSESSMENT, MONITORING, AND EVALUATION OF THE SPECIAL EDUCATION STUDENT

The paraprofessional will:

1. list those roles of assessment and evaluation that are appropriate for a paraprofessional; and
2. identify and demonstrate informal assessment techniques.

MODULE IV - COMMUNICATION SKILLS

A. WRITTEN AND ORAL COMMUNICATION

The paraprofessional will:

1. demonstrate ability to write observational summaries; and
2. demonstrate an ability to give verbal reports of observations.

B. TECHNIQUES TO IMPROVE COMMUNICATION

The paraprofessional will:

1. list and explain elements of good communication and factors that cause poor communication; and
2. identify important listening skills.

MODULE V - ETHICAL AND LEGAL RESPONSIBILITIES

A. THE PARAPROFESSIONAL ROLE WITH CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION

The paraprofessional will:

1. list types of information that are confidential;
2. correctly respond to simulated situations depicting confidentiality issues; and
3. list the school regulations regarding the storage and use of confidential files.

B. KNOWLEDGE OF STATE AND FEDERAL LAWS REGARDING THE HANDICAPPED

The paraprofessional will:

1. demonstrate an awareness of Federal and state laws that protect the handicapped and their families.
C. PARAPROFESSIONAL'S ROLE IN THE SCHOOL

The paraprofessional will:

1. demonstrate an awareness of state and school guidelines regarding the role of a paraprofessional.

MODULE VI - DISCIPLINE ALTERNATIVES

A. CLASSROOM MANAGEMENT STRATEGIES

The paraprofessional will:

1. demonstrate knowledge of specific behavior management strategies;
2. explain the use of behavior management strategies in simulated activities;
3. demonstrate a knowledge of school policies relating to discipline;
4. demonstrate the ability to recognize danger signals that a student is losing control, when given a simulated situation;
5. demonstrate a knowledge of when it is appropriate to use restraining techniques, when given a simulated situation; and
6. demonstrate appropriate restraining techniques, when given a simulated situation.

B. SELF-CONCEPT

The paraprofessional will:

1. demonstrate knowledge of how self-concept is enhanced; and
2. demonstrate techniques to improve self-concept.

MODULE VII - MEDICAL ASPECTS OF THE EXCEPTIONAL CHILD

A. MEDICATION AND THEIR EFFECTS

The paraprofessional will:

1. demonstrate knowledge of the policies regarding medications; and
2. demonstrate knowledge of side effects of various commonly prescribed medications for special needs students.

TRAINING PROGRAM RECORDING FORM

Instructions: The training program is designed to be used in conjunction with a competency based training program. The form provides a means of record keeping and accountability regarding paraprofessional completion of training competencies. The advantage of this type of form is the opportunity for individualization of training for paraprofessionals with differing background experiences and skills.

SAMPLE REQUIREMENTS FOR SUPERVISORS

Instructions: The following is an example of supervision requirements for speech pathology and audiology not employed in public schools.

71-1, 195.08 Communication aide: supervisor: duties.

(1) When supervising the communication aide, the supervising audiologist or speech-language pathologist shall:

(a) Provide direct onsite supervision for the first treatment session;
(b) Provide direct onsite supervision of at least twenty per cent of all subsequent treatment sessions per quarter;
(c) Provide regular and frequent inservice training, either formal or informal, which is directly related to the particular services provided by the communication aide; and
(d) Prepare semi-annual performance evaluations of the communication aide.

(2) The supervising audiologist or speech-language pathologist shall be responsible for all aspects of patient treatment.

71-1, 195.09. Communication aide supervisor: report required.

The supervising audiologist or speech-language pathologist shall provide the communication aide with an evaluation, supervision, and training, including at least ten hours each year of inservice training in areas related to the services provided by the communication aide pursuant to section 71-1, 195.08. Such training shall be verified by annual reports to the department. The audiologist or speech-language pathologist shall keep accurate records of such evaluation, supervision, and training.

From: 1985 State of Nebraska, Statutes, Rules and Regulations Relating to; Audiology and Speech Pathology, Department of Health, Bureau of Examining Boards
Instructions: The conference planning guide can be utilized to make meetings between the teacher and the paraprofessional more consistent and goal directed. The planning guide also provides accountability and documentation of supervision and training.

A standing daily/weekly conference between the supervising teacher and aide provides for planning and scheduling of upcoming events and objectives. In addition, conferences can be used to evaluate the effectiveness of past activities. Following are elements of a good conference between a teacher and aide:

. . . Determine in advance the purpose and/or content of the conference.

. . . Meeting times should be consistent.

. . . Conferences should be at a site accessible to instructional materials and free of interruptions and distractions.

. . . Conferences should be positive and oriented to problem solving rather than be teacher dominated.

. . . Discussion should be pertinent and efficient and end when the purposes have been met.

While the topics of each conference will vary, Heller and Pickett (1983) list general topics that can be handled well in the weekly conference:

- individual educational plans (IEP's)
- lesson planning (long-and-short-range plans)
- teaching strategies
- pupil progress evaluation
- pupil interest
- parent-teacher conferences
- district philosophy
- ordering supplies
- routine duties
- classroom management
- materials and resources
- pupil records including cumulative records
- paraprofessional/teacher liability
- school-community events
- employment procedures
- organizations and meetings

PARAPROFESSIONAL TIME AND ACTIVITY LOG

Instructkos: The Time and Activity Log is designed to provide a measure of accountability for paraprofessionals as well as a means to determine whether the staff member is meeting the job or role description for a specific position.

The paraprofessional should record the date and length of time each activity was engaged in. Time should be recorded to the nearest 15-minute interval. The time and activity rows should be totaled at the end of each month by placing the total in the total column.

Below is the categorization of activities commonly engaged in by paraprofessionals. The categories can be delimited or expanded dependent upon the needs of the individual.

1. ADMINISTRATOR CONFERENCE - Conference or discussion with the superintendent, principal, director of special education, or curriculum coordinator.
2. BUILDING, CLASSROOM, AND EQUIPMENT MAINTENANCE - Routine activities related to organizing or repairing equipment or furniture in the classroom.
3. CLASSROOM OBSERVATION OF STUDENTS - Observations focused on pupil behavior either collectively or singularly for purpose of assessment or procurement of information.
4. CONFERENCE WITH OTHER PERSONS - Including school counselor, psychologist, therapist, regular class teacher.
5. TUTORING / INDIVIDUAL - Activities which require the paraprofessional to deliver a specific lesson plan in a one to one situation.
6. TUTORING / GROUPS - Delivery of a specific lesson plan to a group of students.
7. DRILL AND PRACTICE ACTIVITIES - Providing ongoing monitoring and assistance to students during drill and practice activities.
8. OTHER INSTRUCTIONAL ACTIVITIES - Other activities which are instructional in nature but are not included under tutoring or drill and practice activities.
9. MEETING OR INSERVICE ATTENDED - All meetings attended, such as building, training or district-wide.
10. PLAYGROUND, LUNCHROOM, RECESS SUPERVISION - Supervision and monitoring of noninstructional student activities.
11. PREPARATION AND PLANNING - Time spent preparing instructional materials, bulletin boards.
12. RECORD KEEPING, REPORT WRITING, AND LETTER WRITING - Reports or records for instructional staff.
13. TYPING AND REPRODUCING MATERIALS - Activities related to preparation of materials, management of correspondence, and report writing.
14. TEACHER CONFERENCES - Conferences with supervising teacher.
15. TESTING AND EVALUATION - Time devoted to testing and reporting student progress on measures given to assess student's entry level skills or progress.
16. OTHER - This category is available for use by the paraprofessional to report other specific assignments. These assignments should be spelled out very specifically.

Exhibit 5

SELF-EVALUATION OF THE INSTRUCTIONAL SESSION

Instructions: The following questions should be answered by the paraprofessional as soon after completing an instructional session as possible. It should be stressed that the purpose of the activity is the improvement of instructional techniques. The supervising teacher can review the completed form with the paraprofessional and use the results for further support and planning. The form also provides important information on the progress of the student.

1. Did I prepare well for the lesson? Yes No
2. Did I introduce the lesson so that the child understood the concept that the lesson attempted to teach? Yes No
3. Was I enthusiastic enough to get the child interested in performing the task? Yes No
4. Did I explain what the child was to do in the practice activity so that he or she understood it? Yes No
5. Did I have all the materials I needed to teach the lesson? Yes No
6. Did I use the appropriate reinforcement techniques? Yes No
7. Did I encourage the student when they were having difficulty? Yes No
8. Was the lesson successful in reaching the behavioral objective for the unit? Yes No

Student Evaluation

1. Was the child able to perform the task required in the lesson? Yes No Comment:
2. Did the child need other experiences before attempting the current lesson plan? Yes No Comment:
3. Was the child willing to try (motivated) to do the exercise? Yes No Comment:
4. Did the student appear interested in the lesson? Yes No Comment:

Exhibit 6

PARENT EVALUATION OF THE PARAPROFESSIONAL PROGRAM

Instructions: The parent evaluation form may be used to gather input from the parents of special education students regarding their reactions to the use of paraprofessionals in the program. The form may also facilitate further communication between the school and the parents regarding their child's program.

1. Is your child more enthusiastic about school?
   Yes 2 3 4 5

2. Has she/he shown greater interest in her/his school work?
   Yes 2 3 4 5

3. Has the teacher been able to give your child more individual help?
   Yes 2 3 4 5

4. Does your child talk more about things that happen at school?
   Yes 2 3 4 5

5. Has your child received individual help from the educational aide?
   Yes 2 3 4 5

6. Have you visited the class or teacher?
   Yes 2 3 4 5

7. Have you talked with the educational aide?
   Yes 2 3 4 5

8. Do you favor the continued use of the educational aide in the classroom?
   Yes 2 3 4 5
