In 1991, the Future Teachers Institute designed a Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts degree program with a bilingual option and a career ladder providing various options for teacher assistants and instructional aides. Together with representatives from the Los Angeles Unified School District and California State University, Northridge, Los Angeles Mission College (LAMC) compiled findings from the research and operation of the program into this manual to facilitate program replication by other institutions. The first section of the manual includes a description of its format, the goal of the institute, and a delineation of the project's objectives. The next six sections comprise a "how-to" manual outlining the steps to be taken by each community college, school district, and university participating in the project. The next sections provide details regarding the outcomes of the project, including a summary evaluation, conclusions, long-range plans, and recommendations. Appendixes contain documentation of the entire project, including agendas, minutes, articulation agreements, an outline of the associate degree curriculum, a career ladder, committees involved in the project, a chart correlating curriculum needs with courses offered, explanations of courses and workshops, related documents, evaluation data, and surveys. Category 2 - "How to" Manual

The six subdivisions in the "How To" Manual outline the steps to be taken by each institution. Because it is organized by areas of responsibility rather than chronologically, a project timeline is included for a chronological overview of events.

The first subdivision, entitled "Initiation of the Project," explains the steps the Project Director must take to introduce this program.

The second subdivision, entitled "Community College Leadership Team," explains the steps that must be taken at the Community College level.

The third subdivision, entitled "K-12 Unified School District Leadership Team," explains the steps that must be taken at the K-12 School District level.

The fourth subdivision, entitled "University Leadership Team," explains the steps that must be taken at the University level.

The fifth subdivision, entitled "Cohort Groups," explains the steps that must be taken regarding all aspects relating to the participants in the cohort groups.

The sixth subdivision is a proposed timeline of events.

Category 3 - Results

The four subdivisions in the "Results" category give details of the outcomes of this project.

The first subdivision, entitled "Evaluation," is a summary of the effectiveness of the project as evaluated by the participants, advisory committee and team members.

The second subdivision, entitled "Conclusions," explains the results of the grant project as referenced to the original grant objectives.

The third subdivision, entitled "Long-Range Plans," defines the future objectives of this project.

The fourth subdivision, entitled "Recommendations," explains the compiled recommendations from the suggestions of the participants of Los Angeles Unified School District, Los Angeles Mission College, California State University Northridge, and the Future Teachers Institute Advisory Committee.
EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Senate Bill 156/89 provided funding to create a Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree with an articulated transfer sequence to the University. The intent of the bill was to develop a career ladder which provided for the attainment of short-term goals leading to a teaching credential.

Los Angeles Mission College was awarded a planning grant and established the Future Teachers Institute. Collaborative relationships were formed between Los Angeles Unified School District, California State University Northridge, and Los Angeles Mission College. The major components of the grant project were: to establish a Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree with a bilingual option and a complete career ladder; to identify and recruit teacher assistants for the pilot program; to create classes and/or workshops to meet training needs of teacher assistants employed by the Los Angeles Unified School District; and to formulate articulation agreements between the Community College and the University.

Los Angeles Mission College developed a Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree with a bilingual option. A complete career ladder, starting with a Certificate Program, leading to a Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree and a transfer sequence to the University was developed.

Los Angeles Unified School District (Regions E and F) identified teacher assistants who indicated an interest in pursuing a teaching credential. They were recruited and enrolled in three cohort groups of the Future Teachers Institute at Los Angeles Mission College.

It was determined through a correlation of curriculum needs of the Los Angeles Unified School District and a review of existing course objectives of Los Angeles Mission College that adequate training was lacking in the area of practical job skills needed by teacher assistants to assist in Spanish reading techniques. An experimental class entitled, "Spanish Reading Through Language Arts," was formed to meet this most urgent need. The class proved to be in great demand and was well received by the participants who acknowledged the need for this particular training. Workshops were also developed to inform participants about current issues and job related subjects.

Articulation agreements with California State University Northridge were developed for the transfer sequence to a Liberal Studies Major or a Child Development Major. Future work in this area would be to develop articulation agreements for the Single Subject Majors leading to the Single Subject Teaching Credential Waiver Program.

Evaluation data from teacher assistants, Los Angeles Unified School District, and California State University Northridge indicated that the project was immensely successful in meeting the grant objectives.

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS

Identifying and preparing future teachers for the instruction of children in the twenty-first century requires the joint effort of school districts which will employ these teachers and the institutions which will educate them.

With this goal in mind and with recommendations from the representatives of the Los Angeles Unified School District and California State University Northridge, the Future Teachers Institute developed a Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree program with a bilingual option, and a complete career ladder which will provide various options for Teacher Assistants and Instructional Aides.

Los Angeles Mission College worked closely with these representatives to form a collaborative team which insured the relevance of this program in a practical application.

The intent of this project was to compile all of the findings from the research and operation of the program into a manual so that the program could be easily replicated by other institutions. The success of this project and the following "How To" manual are the result of the work, ideas and input of many dedicated people.
STATEMENT OF PROBLEM

General Problem/Need

According to the National Center for Educational Statistics, it was estimated that in 1980, there were 2.4 million Limited English Proficient (LEP) students between the ages of 5-14 nationwide. The same study found that there were 153,000 teachers nationwide who had local or state bilingual certification. Of these, less than 25% were prepared to teach language arts in a language other than English or any other subject in a foreign language; however, 56,000 of these teachers had to use language other than English for instruction. (Source: TRC, NEWS, Fall 1989).

A Thomas Riverai/USC study projects that the need for bilingual teachers of all languages will increase from a national baseline figure of 126,000 in 1980 to 170,000 by the year 2000 for a high ratio of 35 teachers to one teacher.

In California alone, the census figures which had traditionally shown a 4% increase in LEP students annually, showed in 1989 an amazing 14% increase in LEP students over the previous year.

According to the California Department of Education the need for bilingual teachers in the next ten years will range from 13,000 to 18,000.

Locally, it is estimated that from 1990 to 2000, Los Angeles County will need 50% of the total statewide projected need for bilingual teachers ranging in numbers from 8,000 to 10,000.

The lack of teachers has created a terrible overcrowding problem in the classroom. During the 1989-90 school year, California's pupil-teacher ratio was higher than that of any other state in the nation.

The ratio of minority teachers to minority students is of even greater importance. In the Los Angeles Unified School District, minority students constitute 85.4% of the total enrollment. Of these, 170,000 are LEP. Minority teachers represent 39.4% of the total teaching staff. Latinos, the largest LEP student group, make up 60% of the total enrollment in the District, while just under 10% of the teachers are Latino.

In the feeder high schools of the Los Angeles Mission College service area, the ratio of students to teachers with regard to ethnicity is 22.8% minority teachers to 71.54% minority students. (Source: California Achievement Program, 1989).
GOAL

The goal of the Future Teachers Institute is to develop a Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree program with a bilingual option, and to develop a complete career ladder which provides various options for teacher assistants and instructional aides. These programs will provide a formal and articulated transfer sequence to the University. The participants of the Future Teachers Institute will be organized into cohort groups by their educational goals.
OBJECTIVES

I. Develop a cooperative/collaborative relationship between the Los Angeles Unified School District, Los Angeles Mission College, and California State University, Northridge.

II. Identify, matriculate and counsel participants. Arrange them according to their educational goals into cohort groups. These cohort groups will act as peer support alliances.

III. Develop and implement experimental classes to meet the needs of the teacher assistants' job requirements as developed through a joint effort by Los Angeles Unified School District and Los Angeles Mission College.

IV. Provide a minimum of two workshops to increase the participants' awareness of related issues pertaining to their profession.

V. Develop a Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree with a bilingual option.

VI. Formalize articulation agreements with California State University Northridge to provide a successful transfer sequence for participants of the Future Teachers Institute.

VII. Identify the successes and deficiencies of the program by drawing conclusions from the research and surveys obtained during the grant period.

VIII. Evaluate and refine the career ladder, so that a model program is created with wide applicability and easy replicability.

IX. Prepare a Long-Range Plan identifying the programs and services needed to insure participants' success.

X. Author a "How To" Manual which can be disseminated throughout the Community College system.

XI. Make recommendations to the State Legislature from suggestions of the advisory committee and the data collected during this project.

INITIATION OF PROJECT

Objective: To initiate a program that will identify teacher assistants employed by the K-12 School District and enroll them in the Community College system which has an articulated transfer sequence to the University.

Plan of Action

STEP 1 - Selecting the Leadership Team

Select the leadership team that will manage the project. Begin the process by selecting a project director.

The project director is responsible for the direct supervision of the entire project. An ideal candidate for the position of project director could be a full time faculty member with a background in curriculum issues and transfer sequence requirements. Ideally forty percent release time should be given to the project director. Ten hours of hourly assignment could also be assigned. It is highly recommended to select someone who interfaces well with people.

The project director can then select a part-time coordinator and clerical support to carry out the day-to-day activities.

An ideal candidate for project coordinator could be a consultant that complements the project director by having experience in the K-12 Unified School District. Keeping track of the details of the project is the responsibility of the project coordinator.

The descriptions and responsibilities of each position are as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Responsibility</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Project Director</td>
<td>Full time faculty member on .4 release</td>
<td>Provide direct supervision of project</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Project Coordinator</td>
<td>Consultant 12 hours per week</td>
<td>Coordinate all activities of project and write the &quot;How-To&quot; Manual</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clerical</td>
<td>Clerical support 25 hrs/week</td>
<td>Provide secretarial support for project</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
STEP 2 - Building Collaborative Relationships

Generate interest and secure commitments from your college site, your local school district and a nearby university to establish a Future Teachers Institute. One of your primary jobs will be building collaborative relationships between these institutions.

STEP 3 - Timeline

Establish a timeline of events, stating what needs to be done and by what date. (See the section, entitled "Timeline," page 27 in the "How To Manual" section of this document to study the timeline for this project.) Adjust your timeline to meet your schedule, keeping in mind that this pilot had less than six months for completion as specified in the grant.

STEP 4 - Identify Community College Leadership Team

Identify the leadership team at your college: Project Director, Project Coordinator, Dean of Academic Studies, appropriate department Chairs, Transfer Counselor(s), and Curriculum Committee Chair.

Have the Community College leadership team generate a list of contacts from the University and K-12 Unified School District with which to make necessary introductions to launch the program.

STEP 5 - Identify University and K-12 School District Leadership Team

Contact the K-12 Unified School District and the University and ask them to establish their leadership team. If necessary, offer suggestions modeled after this pilot program. (See the appendix, entitled "Committees" subsection "K-12 Unified School District Leadership Team," for the leadership teams of the Future Teachers Institute.

STEP 6 - Schedule Meetings

Schedule separate meetings with the University and the K-12 Unified School District teams. (See the appendix, entitled "Agenda/Minutes" for minutes of meetings.)

The primary goal of the meeting with the University is to review existing articulation agreements or to develop and formalize new agreements between the Community College and the University.
The primary goal of meeting with the K-12 Unified School District is to determine their curriculum needs and to address those needs in the existing Community College curriculum, or in the creation of new courses or workshops. The project coordinator will be responsible for developing a correlation chart (Appendix - Correlation Chart) of curriculum needs and existing courses from information acquired at the meetings. Additionally, the coordinator will produce a list of proposed workshops or new courses that need to be designed from the identified curriculum needs of the K-12 Unified School Districts. This list will include proposed topics, speakers, dates, times and locations. (See the appendix, entitled "Courses/Workshops," for titles of the workshops that were provided to the participants during this pilot program.)

STEP 7 - Advisory Committee

Establish an advisory committee that is a cross-section of the community and educational institutions. Invite people who will represent the University, the Community College, and the K-12 Unified School District including the administrators, parents, students, paraprofessional organizations and teacher organizations. (See the appendix, entitled "Committee" under the subsection "Advisory Committee," for a listing of the organizations that were represented.)

STEP 8 - Evaluation/Planning

Evaluate the program through multiple means such as, surveys to participants, open discussions with leadership teams, letters of support and evaluation surveys. Evaluate the responses to the survey and draw conclusions, which will be used to develop short and long-term planning goals. (See the appendix, entitled "Evaluation Data," for letters of support, statistical data regarding participants, and participant concerns; See the appendix, entitled "Surveys" under the subsections: "Survey 1 - Interest Survey;" "Survey 2 - Education Survey;" "Survey 3 - Job Survey;" "Survey 4 - Evaluation Survey" for detailed results of our pilot program. See the "Long-Range Plans" page 39 in the "Results" section of this document for a list and description of our future plans.)
COMMUNITY COLLEGE LEADERSHIP TEAM

Objective: To develop and/or refine an Educational Aide/Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree and present it to the curriculum council for approval and implementation.

Plan of Action

STEP 1 - Establish Leadership Team

Establish a leadership team consisting of the Dean of Academic Affairs, Cluster Chairs, Transfer Counselor, Curriculum Chair, and faculty representing Bilingual/Bicultural programs, Child Development programs, and Single Subject programs qualified for teaching credentials. (See the appendix, entitled "Committees" under the subsection "Community College Leadership Team," for a listing of the leadership in this pilot program.)

STEP 2 - Examine Existing Courses

Meet to determine if a completely new Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree needs to be created or if options can be added to an existing degree program.

STEP 3 - Determine Curriculum Needs

Meet with K-12 Unified School District to seek input into what their curricular needs are for the participants.

STEP 4 - Develop Courses and Plan Workshops

Develop new courses from suggestions of the K-12 Unified School District to meet the immediate job training needs for teacher assistants. Plan and schedule workshops to address job training needs not addressed by the courses that will be formed.
STEP 5 - Configure courses for Certificate and Associate in Arts Degree

Examine current and approved course offerings and begin to build the cache of courses that will form the Certificate Programs and the Associate in Arts Degree.

STEP 6 - Approval of New Courses

Obtain curriculum committee approval on any new courses developed by the Community College Team which meet the immediate job training needs of employed teacher assistants. (See the appendix, entitled "Courses/Workshops," which were approved for this pilot program.)

STEP 7 - Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree

Review and develop and/or redefine a Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree program with a bilingual and child development option that will be presented to the University for formal articulation agreements. In developing the options, meet with the appropriate departments and determine the proposed courses that will be included. Develop each option, taking into account general education requirements and transfer criteria.

STEP 8 - Approval of Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree

Present the cache of courses for the Certificate and the Associate in Arts Degree program to the curriculum council for approval.

STEP 9 - College Catalog

Publish the completed version of the Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree in the college catalog. List the complete program of courses under the title Future Teachers Institute. Allow ample time for revisions in order to meet the publication deadlines. (See appendix, entitled "Associate in Arts Degree," for the Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree with options that was developed and articulated with the University.)
STEP 10 - Evaluation and Planning

Develop and distribute evaluation surveys to the participants and the leadership team. Include the following evaluation tools: assessment scores of participants, a list of concerns from weekly teacher/participant dialogues, statistical data from college applications, free form evaluations, surveys and letters of support. Evaluate the data and correlate the conclusions with the data. (See the appendix, entitled "Evaluation Data," and the appendix, entitled "Surveys," for the tools of evaluation used in the pilot program.)
K-12 UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT
LEADERSHIP TEAM

Objective: To recruit participants who are interested in obtaining their teaching credentials from teacher assistants employed by the district; to form cohort groups of these participants; and to participate in establishing curriculum which meets teacher assistant job training specifications; to provide support to the cohort groups; and to work collaboratively with the educational institutions' leadership teams.

Plan of Action

STEP 1 - Superintendents Meet with Project Director

Determine if there is sufficient interest and an explicit need for a joint effort in establishing curriculum and practical training for teacher assistants. Superintendent of the K-12 Unified School District meets with a representative of the Community College to form a collaborative relationship.

Secure written commitments. Schedule the first meeting of the K-12 Unified School District/Community College Team.

STEP 2 - Identify K-12 Unified School District Leadership Team

The superintendent will establish the leadership team in the K-12 Unified School District. Suggestions for the leadership team include: superintendent, representative of the superintendent, curriculum advisers, and/or school principals. It is imperative to select people with decision making power. (See the appendix, entitled "Committees" under the subsection "K-12 School District Leadership Team," for a listing of members that were established for this pilot program.)

STEP 3 - Meetings

Schedule a series of meetings for initial planning, identification of participants, selection of location/time/date for participant orientation meeting, identification of teacher assistant job training needs, correlation of needs with existing college classes, development of courses to meet district needs, suggestions of people for the advisory committee, scheduling of workshops, and program evaluation.
STEP 4 - Distribute Interest Survey

Distribute interest surveys to the teacher assistants identified by the K-12 Unified School District leadership team. These surveys will identify teacher assistants who are interested in a career ladder with educational milestones culminating in a teaching credential.

Tabulate results in preparation for a meeting with the Community College. (See the appendix, entitled "Surveys" subsection "Survey # 1 - Interest Survey.")

STEP 5 - List of Curriculum Needs

The K-12 Unified School District leadership team will compile a list of their current curriculum needs. This list will be compared with the specific course objectives of the Associate in Arts Degree at the Community College.

STEP 6 - Coordination of Efforts for Teacher Assistant Training

Host classes and workshops; provide for speakers as necessary.

STEP 7 - Evaluation and Planning

Evaluate the program, draw conclusions, and then do short and long-term planning. (See "Long-Range Plans page 39 in the "Results" section of this document. See the appendices "Evaluation Data" and "Surveys" for specific data obtaining during the pilot and Long-Range Planning)
UNIVERSITY LEADERSHIP TEAM

Objective: To develop articulation agreements for all options of the Associate in Arts Degree; to identify support services at the University; and to provide opportunities for the participants to attend workshops on the University campus, thus helping them visualize their educational goals.

Plan of Action

STEP 1 - Dean of School of Education Meets with Project Director

Discuss the planning of the project with the Dean of the School of Education at the University. The plan should include the creation of formal articulation agreements for each option involved in the Future Teachers Institute; special programs in place at the University for future teachers; and arrangement to guarantee a specified number of openings in the School of Education for the participants in this project.

STEP 2 - Identify Leadership Team

Establish a leadership team consisting of the Associate Dean, School of Education; Director, Credential Preparation; Department Chair of Special Education; Director, Operation Chicano Teacher; Department Chair of Liberal Studies; Coordinator, Interdisciplinary Major of Child Development; Articulation Officer for Academic Programs; and Director of Academic Affairs. (See the appendix, entitled "Committees" under the subsection "University Leadership Team".)

STEP 3 - Meeting

Review the proposed Associate in Arts Degree Program and make suggestions relevant to the transfer sequence to specified majors. Compile a list of names from recommendations at this meeting for the Future Teachers Institute Advisory Committee.
STEP 4 - Articulation Agreements

Meet with the University’s articulation officer to determine if formal articulation agreements are ready for adoption. If not, present the Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree and start the process of articulation.

STEP 5 - Support Services

Form a chapter of the University’s Future Teachers Club on campus if one does not exist and network with the chapter formed at the Community College. The Future Teachers Club is an organization independent of the Future Teachers Institute.

Prepare a list of support services for students available at the University and disseminate it to participants of the Future Teachers Institute.

STEP 6 - Evaluation and Planning

Evaluate the existing waiver programs available at the University. Do they meet the needs of the students? Were the articulation agreements finalized with the Community College? Are the support services being used by the students? Correlate their data and the conclusions the University team reached from the evaluations. Outline short-term and long-term planning goals. Share the results of your findings with the project director of the Future Teachers Institute, in an effort to keep the exchange of ideas and dialogue integrated. (See "Long-Range Planning" page 39 in the "Results" section of this document. See the appendices entitled, "Surveys" and "Evaluation Data," for detailed data from the pilot program.)
COHORT GROUPS

Objective: To establish peer support groups that will help to provide the necessary atmosphere to promote achievement of participants' goals.

Plan of Action

STEP 1 - Orientation Meeting

Organize an orientation meeting to disseminate information to interested teacher assistants, regarding the Future Teachers Institute. (See the appendix, entitled "Agenda/Minutes under the subsection "Cohorts Meetings.")

STEP 2 - Matriculation

Determine if you will offer registration at a location selected for the convenience of the participants or have the participants register at the Community College through normal orientation and registration procedures. Select the time, date, and location of registration. All participants must go through the college matriculation process.

Develop application forms for registration in the Future Teachers Institute, include an educational survey on this form. This application is distinct and separate from the college application. The application should contain information specifically selected to the goals and objectives of their pilot program for evaluation purposes. The educational survey has specific information regarding the number of units the participants plan to take each semester, their educational status, and career goals. (See the appendix, entitled "Surveys" under the subsection "Education Survey.")

STEP 3 - Formation of Cohort Groups

Form cohort groups by the participants' current educational status and by the approximate number of units they plan to take each semester. Although we had initially proposed to form the cohort groups by educational levels, we found that including the number of semester units the participants plan to take was an important factor for keeping the cohort groups at the approximate educational status until goal attainment. As the participants continue the their education at their individual pace, the cohort groups will inevitably become a heterogeneous group regarding educational status; but this heterogeneous grouping can provide the benefits of peer counseling, as the more advanced students become mentors for the other students.
STEP 4 - Individual Education Plans and Counseling

Prepare individual folders for each participant. Each folder will include a copy of the application to the Future Teachers Institute, all college course work completed, participants' social security numbers, career objectives, assessment results and individual education plans.

Students meet with counselors to develop an individual education plan, discuss degree options and plan for final certification of general education units. Care must be taken when counseling participants that their goals match appropriate options of the Future Teachers Institute.

Document the participants' questions and concerns that are raised during orientation, courses and workshops. (See the appendix, entitled "Evaluation Data" under the subsection "Issues and Concerns Raised by Students.")

STEP 5 - Participants Enroll

Once students complete the assessment and matriculation process, they enroll in courses designed to meet their career objectives within the framework of the Future Teachers Institute.

STEP 6 - Classes and Workshops

Offer courses to the participants of the Future Teachers Institute that were developed in a collaborative effort in order to meet job skill needs. In addition, offer a wide variety of workshops focusing on the needs described by the K-12 Unified School District leadership team. The following workshop suggestions are presented as ideas for possible offerings: Resource Center - CSUN, Bilingual-ESL Conference, Steps for Success, Effective Communication Strategies, Educational Computing, Children at Risk, The Writing Process, Teaching Credential Options, Behavior Management, The Multicultural Classroom in the American School, Classroom Management and Discipline. (See the appendix, entitled "Courses/Workshops.")

A potluck social could culminate the semester by offering the cohorts the opportunity to socialize outside the classroom setting.
Many college services and resources are available to the participants of the Future Teachers Institute. Make sure the participants are aware of the services through announcements in classes and through pamphlets. By making full use of these services, participants will enhance the quality of their college experience. A sample of services follows:

* Counseling
  Provide advisement during the preparation of individual education plans based on an assessment of participant skills and goals.

* Child Development Center
  Provides child care for student-parents and planned learning experiences for pre-school children.

* Extended Opportunity Program and Services (EOPS)
  Furnishes support service for students who may be handicapped by language, social and/or economic disadvantages, and facilitates their successful participation in the regular educational pursuits of the college.

* Office of Programs and Services for Students with Disabilities
  Extends support services for disabled students pursuing a college education.

* Tutorial Services
  Instruct students in their area of individualized need at the tutoring laboratory located in the Learning Resources Center/Library.

* Financial Aid
  Provides information to students regarding funds made available through federal and state governments and private sources in the form of grants, scholarships, loans and employment.

* Housing
  Acquaints students with information regarding housing, including room and board in exchange for work.

* Extended Support Services
  Informs students about support services outside of Los Angeles Mission College which are available to them.
STEP 8 - Evaluation and Planning

Participants evaluate the program through several methods. The first method would be an on-going dialogue scheduled by reserving a period of a time during classes to raise concerns and issues. Record these concerns and give this list to the project coordinator so that action can be taken on these items where appropriate. The second method would be surveys distributed to participants upon their entrance into the program and annual evaluation surveys. Draw conclusions from these methods of evaluation and report the findings to the project director and to the leadership teams of the appropriate institutions so that short and long-term goal planning can be achieved. (See "Long-Range Planning" page 39 in the "Results" section of this document. See the appendices entitled, "Surveys" and "Evaluation Data," for detailed data from the pilot program.)

EVALUATION

The evaluation tools used in the assessment of this project were: statistical data from the Community College data base, college assessment scores, a weekly participant/teacher dialogue of concerns, surveys, free-form evaluations, and letters of support.

Results of Statistical Data:

One hundred seven teacher assistants enrolled in the program and were divided into three cohort groups as follows: one group of 33, one group of 41 and one group of 33 participants. The following is a statistical breakdown from the "Application for Admission" to Los Angeles Mission College by ethnic identity, primary language, main educational goal, education status, enrollment status, units completed and special services requested. The ethnic identity of the majority (94%) is Hispanic. The primary language of the majority (48%) is Spanish; the majority (30%) were undecided on their main educational goal and many did not specify (21%), but for those who did indicate an educational goal the majority wanted to obtain a Bachelor's Degree after obtaining an Associate's degree; the educational status of the majority (63%) is a high school diploma or equivalency; the enrollment status of the majority (65%) is continuing Los Angeles Mission College students who attended the previous semester, but 18% of the participants were first time college students; the number of college units completed by the majority (44%) is from one-half unit to fifteen and one-half units. (See the appendix, entitled "Evaluation Data" under the subsection statistical data.)

The Future Teacher Institute is committed to increasing the educational success of each participant by offering support services. The participants indicated an interest in the following support services: financial aid, child care, tutoring, transfer assistance, employment assistance, and special services for low income families.

Results of College Assessment

Complete data is not currently available regarding the assessment scores from placement tests, because not all of the participant: have completed placement testing. Since participants of the Future Teachers Institute were identified and enrolled after the start of the semester, the assessment process will be completed during the next semester.
Results of Participant/Teacher Dialogue of Concerns:

Some of the participants of the Futu Teachers Institute were enrolled in Child Development-81. They related issues of concern to their teacher. Some of the participants in this class were concurrently enrolled in "Spanish Reading through Language Arts".

Los Angeles Mission College developed an experimental course entitled, "Spanish Reading Through Language Arts" to meet the immediate needs of employed teacher assistants who were lacking particular job skills as defined by the Los Angeles Unified School District. (See the appendix, entitled "Courses/Workshops," for the course outline.)

Teacher assistants who enrolled in this class were divided by their preference into a Saturday morning session held in Region F and a Wednesday afternoon session held in Region E. The teacher assistants who enrolled in this class were employed as follows: 46% in Region E, 35% in Region F, and 19% did not indicate which region employed them; therefore, the class was offered in both regions for the convenience of the participants. The majority of the participants did attend class in the region in which they were employed. The Saturday class held in Region F had 68% of the students employed in that region, 3% from Region E, and 29% did not indicate a region. The Wednesday class held in Region E had 78% of the students in the class from that region, 10% from Region F, and 12% did not indicate a region. (See the appendix, entitled "Evaluation Data" under the subsection "Statistical Data."

The participants were very vocal in support of the newly developed class. The teacher assistants expressed the fact that the new class was meeting their need of obtaining adequate job skills for assisting the students assigned to them. Part of the class was a dialogue of issues and concerns.

The following issues are some of the concerns raised by the students:

* They felt it was important to be able to get college credit for the classes or workshops that they take.

* Students who did not register during the on-site group registration were frustrated with the enrollment process at the College admissions office. They felt that the College Admissions office was not properly informed about the Future Teachers Institute. This was the case because the grant called for simultaneous planning and implementation during a six month period; therefore, sequential planning steps were not always possible. Steps have been taken to inform the admissions office and counseling staff about the Future Teachers Institute to avoid this confusion.

* Participants also stated that they would like the goals of the Future Teachers Institute defined. In response to this concern, a brochure will be developed outlining the goals, objectives and specific course work of the Future Teachers Institute.

* Another concern raised by the participants was that the amount of time that they work with the students assigned to them should be increased and that events that interfere with this time of assisting students should not be scheduled. (See the appendix, entitled "Evaluation Data" under the subheading "Issues Raised by Students.")

Results of the Surveys:

Four surveys were used to determine (1) interest in the program, (2) participant profiles, (3) job related matters and (4) evaluation of the program.

Results of Interest Survey:

An "Interest Survey" was distributed to all teacher assistants in Regions E and F of the Los Angeles Unified School District. One hundred eighty-one (181) teacher assistants responded to the survey; 86% indicated an interest in the program and 14% were not interested in the program. 37% of the teacher assistants responding to the survey were from Region E, with 50% responding from Region F; 13% did not indicate which region they were from. (See the appendix, entitled "Surveys" under the subsection "Survey #1 - Interest Survey.")

Results of Educational Survey:

The following student profile data was compiled from an "Education Survey" given at the beginning of the Future Teachers Institute to participants attending an enrollment meeting and given to participants as they enrolled in the program. The responses indicated that 57% of the students were employed as teacher assistants and that they wanted to obtain their teaching credential with 15% undecided about their educational goals. The results indicated that 47% would take between three and six units per semester; 50% are employed between one to sixteen hours per week; 52% have a combined family income $20,000 or below; and 26% have no dependent children living at home. The preferred day to attend classes was Wednesday after 4:00 p.m. (See the appendix, entitled "Survey #2 - Education Survey.")

Results of Job Survey:

The "Job Survey" was given to the students in both classes of "Spanish Reading Through Language Arts." Fifty-two participants responded to the survey. 35% of the teacher assistants that responded to the survey indicated that they had effective communication with their teacher; but that the teacher assistants needed a scheduled planning time with their supervising teachers. Only 44% indicated that lesson plans were ready for them each day. 82% indicated that they created their own lessons to use with the students. 88% indicated that they are responsible for developing materials to use with the students. 98% indicated that they could use an inservice on effective communication techniques with their supervising teachers. 92% indicated they would like to become teachers. (See the appendix, entitled "Surveys" under the subsection "Survey #3 - Job Survey," for specific questions and results.)

Results of Evaluation Survey:

The evaluation survey was given to students in "Spanish Reading Through Language Arts" and Child Development 81 at the end of the semester. Sixty-six (66) students completed the survey. 94% of the students responded that the class made their job as a teacher assistant easier; no one responded that it didn't help and 6% did not answer this question. 100% of the class responded that the teacher was supportive and enthusiastic. 80% of students were aware of the support services available to them, but only 71% made use of them. (See the appendix, entitled "Surveys" under the subsection "Survey #4 - Evaluation Survey.")

Results of Free-form Evaluations:

These forms were distributed to the members of the advisory committee. The narrative responses indicated that they support the work of the Future Teachers Institute. Several of the comments on the free-form evaluation are as follow:

* "I would like to see certificates ... in a career ladder."
"The Spanish class (99) that I'm taking is a great help because now I know how to teach Spanish core literature. I think all the teacher assistants should take this class."

Compilation of "Letters of Support"

The entire project was well received by the faculty and staff of the Los Angeles Unified School District, and California State University Northridge.

California State University Northridge and Los Angeles Mission College finalized articulation agreements for the Liberal Studies Major and the Child Development Major. (See the appendix, entitled "Articulation Agreements."

Los Angeles Unified School District was pleased with the response they received from the teacher assistants enrolled in the Future Teachers Institute classes. California State University Northridge and the Los Angeles Unified School District leadership teams were pleased with the concept of the Future Teachers Institute and with the working relationship with Los Angeles Mission College as indicated in the letters of support. (See the appendix, entitled "Evaluation Data" under the subsection "Letters of Support.")
CONCLUSIONS

After reviewing the evaluations of the Future Teachers Institute, it was evident that the pilot program was well received by California State University Northridge, the Los Angeles Unified School District, and the participants. Through analysis of the evaluations of this project, it can be concluded that many benefits accrued for the participants; but a need still exists to continue the Future Teachers Institute.

These conclusions are based on the stated objectives of the Future Teachers Institute.

Objective 1 - Collaborative Relationships

Representatives of California State University Northridge and the Los Angeles Unified School District were willing, not only to work on this project, but enthusiastically collaborated. The joint effort of the participating institutions generated dialogue that benefitted the students attending their institutions.

During the series of meetings that were attended by representatives of the institutions, a greater understanding and appreciation developed for the roles each institution plays in facilitating career goal achievements of the participants. If the educational institutes had thought of themselves as "islands of education unto themselves" it can be inferred that the bridges that were built during the course of this project joined the islands providing a much easier transition for participants of the Future Teachers Institute. The realization was made that these collaborative efforts have a synergistic effect and have mutual benefits to all institutions.

Objective 2 - Cohort Groups/Teacher Assistants

In the past, teacher assistants have had tremendous responsibility with little training. Because of this pilot program and the newly developed two track pay schedule for paraprofessionals employed in the Los Angeles Unified School District, many teacher assistants, who otherwise may not have taken the initiative to take courses toward a credential, have taken the first steps.

Providing financial incentives for teacher assistants as they complete educational milestones is a necessary step in retaining them as they work toward completion of a credential. Often financial responsibilities force teacher assistants to leave their jobs for employment which provides more hours, higher pay, or better benefits. If the school systems want to retain qualified teacher assistants, they must provide financial incentives through a series of pay increases or stipends as the teacher assistants work their way up the career ladder or face the possibility that trained teacher assistants can be forced to find other employment before attainment of the teaching credential.

When counseling participants about their individual education plans, a strong preference was shown by the participants for individual interviews and conferences. Since some of the participants’ goal objectives are not fully formulated, great care should be taken when advising them. The teacher assistants just beginning the program seem to be sensitive to receiving encouraging support. They need to be counseled about the various options that could be chosen and shown how their completed college courses could fit into each option and credential objective.

Objective 3 - Develop and Implement Experimental Classes

It became apparent that specific job skills needed to be addressed immediately. In addition to completing the prescribed coursework, an experimental class, "Spanish Reading Through Language Arts," was developed for this pilot. The class was a tremendous success and will be incorporated into the program in future semesters as a requirement. Since our experimental course was so well received and attended by the participants during the past semester, it was decided to keep the momentum of the pilot program going by scheduling a class through community education this summer. Exemplary programs should be modeled for the cohort groups, so that they can immediately incorporate the ideas in their jobs.

Objective 4 - Workshops

The collaborative spirit of the workshop series that was designed for the cohort groups was enormously successful and every effort will be made to continue the policy of providing participants with a variety of speakers from each of the participating institutions. By participating in the University level classes or workshops early in their educational experience, participants can better visualize goal achievement making the transitions easier. Workshops designed to meet the specific job skill needs of the participants will be offered on an on-going basis as required.
Objective 5 - Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree

It is the conviction of this pilot program that participants should see all their options at the start of their educational experience and make choices based on career objectives. It was determined that it would be to the students' best interest to have the programs in semester blocks, so that the students have a sense of direction at all times. By offering the program in semester blocks of courses, the cohort groups can continue as a group with fewer separations from the basic cohort team. Additionally, the college can better plan for the number of students that will be taking specific courses. (See the appendix, entitled "Associate in Arts Degree," for the complete series of courses making up the degree with the various options.)

Objective 6 - Articulation Agreements

Articulation agreements help reduce the misconceptions on the part of students, advisors, counselors, and faculty regarding the transfer of units from one institution to another. The Future Teachers Institute was most grateful for the meticulous advice and advisement we received from the University regarding the transfer sequence. Articulation Agreements were finalized for the Liberal Studies and the Child Development Majors. Future work in this area is to develop articulation agreements for the Single Subject Waiver Program.

Objective 7 - Results of Surveys

Through the interpretation of the statistical data of the surveys our long-range goals were formed. The evaluations of the program gave us direction for future plans and offered us encouragement that our vision of the Future Teachers Institute was on target. (See the appendix, entitled "Surveys.")

Objective 8 - Career Ladder

The development of the career ladder was a central theme of the Future Teachers Institute. It is extremely important for the participants to see all the options as they begin their career objective. It also shows them how to make adjustments if they change their credential objective. (See the appendix, entitled "Career Ladder.")
Objective 9 - Long-Range Plans

The long-range plans developed by the Future Teachers Institute will be a "road map" for the direction this project will take. Because of the capacity of the institutions providing the teacher assistants with bilingual, child development, single subject, and intern options; because of the willingness of institutions to solve whatever obstacles arise; and because of the proven record of success of the collaborative effort of the institutions, the long-range plans should prove to continue the success of this project. (See "Long-Range Plans" page 39 in the "Results section of this document for the list of long-range plans.)

Objective 10 - Dissemination

The "How-To" Manual was prepared in order to facilitate duplication by any institution that wants to initiate a similar program. With Senator Roberti's Bill (SB 1636) requiring the Commission on Teacher Credentialing to establish at least 12 pilot projects for the recruitment and training of classified employees in teacher credentialing programs, this manual should prove to be an invaluable resource to institutions in the pilot projects. This manual was duplicated and copies sent to offices of the California Community College system for dissemination. (See "How To Manual" beginning of page 12 of this document.)

Objective 11 - Recommendations

These recommendations regarding the credentialing of teacher assistants were compiled during the course of the project from the involved institutions, participants and advisory committee members. They represent a cross-section of opinions expressed during the course of this pilot project. With continued funding of this project, these recommendations can be transformed from suggestions to implemented objectives. (See "Recommendations" page 41 of this document for a full list of recommendations.)
LONG-RANGE PLANS

The long-range plans of the Future Teachers Institute were developed from issues raised in meetings with California State University Northridge, Los Angeles Unified School District, Los Angeles Mission College, the advisory committee and the participants of the Future Teachers Institute. Additionally, by studying the evaluations from the participating institutions, conclusions were drawn and long-range plans were developed.

I. Institutionalize the Future Teachers Institute by securing funding on an on-going basis from the California Community College District.

II. Establish and maintain a permanent core of staff at the Community College similar to the one utilized in this project (director, coordinator, and clerical staff).

III. Develop tracking plans for the cohort groups and the individual participants. A part-time counselor for the Future Teacher Institute should be hired to develop and implement the tracking systems, to conference individually with the participants about educational goals and accomplishments; and to direct the participants to any additional support services necessary to provide for maximum success.

IV. Establish a committee made up of University, Community College and K-12 Unified School District representatives to evaluate the merits of including the Child Development Major in the Teaching Credential Waiver Program.

V. Support changes in the status of Special Education as an option of the Child Development major, developing a rationale and making recommendations to the Commission of Teacher Credentialing and the State Legislature.

VI. Establish a committee (Curriculum Committee) made up of representatives of the Community College, K-12 Unified School District and the University to establish yearly priorities of curriculum needs which will be addressed in courses and workshops. From these identified topics develop a one unit course or workshop at Los Angeles Mission College entitled, "Current Topics In....". This course would deal with changing issues and specific job-skill needs as outlined by the Los Angeles Unified School District.

VII. Form a committee (Salary Committee) of representatives of the Los Angeles Unified School District, Paraprofessional Organizations, Professional Teacher Organization, Community College to address the issue of pay differentials for teacher assistants who complete a Teacher Assistant Certificate Program and/or Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree. A job description for each level or pay differential would have to be established.

VIII. Compile and disseminate information to students about the credential options through information packets, and workshops. Collect data at these workshops establishing the types of credentials which are of interest and determine if this correlates with the credentials that are in most demand.

IX. Conduct a needs assessment regarding joint training of supervising teachers and teacher assistants. Survey teachers regarding their need for this training, survey assistants for the need of their supervising teacher to take training, develop classes and workshops that will be attended by both teacher and teacher assistants to improve communication and planning techniques.

X. Develop plans for a Teacher Assistant Appreciation Day patterned after the Teacher Appreciation Day which is coordinated by the Parent Teachers Association in most school districts.

XI. Form an information network for cohort groups and a telephone tree so that information announcing upcoming workshops or conferences that are scheduled at the various educational institutions can be disseminated to the participants.

XII. Formulate early intervention workshops for preparation for the National Teacher Examination and/or CBEST at the University and the Community College.
RECOMMENDATIONS

RECOMMENDATIONS REGARDING THE COHORT GROUPS

Track the participants of the Future Teachers Institute and obtain statistics establishing the number of participants who obtain a teaching credential. Chart the results by initial educational objective to determine if the attainment of short-term goals for teacher assistants facilitates in the accomplishment of the long-term goal of obtaining a teaching credential. Address the factors that influence the lack of goal attainment: demands of employment, family, or a lack of defined and visualized goals. (See the appendix, entitled "Documents" under the subsection "University Documents," for the California State University Los Angeles Child Development Waiver Program.)

Cohort groups will be grouped, first, by the number of units that they will take each semester and, secondly, by their educational status. Large group activities will provide an atmosphere where the combination of participants at varying stages of the career ladder will promote support and encouragement to each other. The participants that are closer to the completion of their degrees and credentials become mentors for the participants not at their educational level. They become a positive influence and motivating factor for other members of their cohort group.

RECOMMENDATIONS REGARDING THE UNIVERSITY

Recommend that California State University Northridge review its Interdisciplinary Major of Child Development to see what changes would be necessary for it to qualify for a Credential waiver program. This major could be modeled after California State University Los Angeles because it is approved as a waiver program for teaching credentials. Additionally, it is recommended that the Interdisciplinary Major of Child Development be given department status at the University.

Establish Special Education as a major or an option of the Interdisciplinary Major of Child Development rather than a credential specialty. Obtain approval for the special education major/option to meet requirements for qualification as a credential waiver program for teachers, particularly for teachers of elementary school and special education. The Los Angeles Unified School District stated that the students in their district are not the same kind of learner as in the past. There are now many learning disabled students in the regular classroom. Teachers must be trained to effectively meet the special needs of this group of children.
RECOMMENDATIONS REGARDING THE UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT

Establish a Curriculum Advisory Committee that is a joint effort of the Los Angeles Unified School District and Los Angeles Mission College to address the changing curriculum needs of the K-12 Unified School District. This committee would review curriculum and offer suggestions and recommendations for curriculum that prepares teacher assistants. This committee would help ensure that current trends in the K-12 Unified School District are being addressed making teacher assistant training relevant. This concept addresses the Chancellor's request that working professionals need to integrate their jobs into a teaching skills practicum curriculum. Establish a Salary Advisory Committee that will be composed of Los Angeles Unified School District and Los Angeles Mission College staff to address the need for teacher assistants to receive pay differentials for completion of the Certificate Programs and Associate in Arts Degree.

RECOMMENDATIONS REGARDING THE COMMUNITY COLLEGE

Institutionalize the Future Teachers Institute so that the long-range plans and recommendations can be implemented. Establish the Curriculum and Salary Advisory Committees. Develop a course for teacher assistants and their supervising teachers, to be taken as a team which would jointly train them in techniques of communication, classroom management, and instructional planning.

RECOMMENDATIONS FROM MEMBERS OF THE FUTURE TEACHERS INSTITUTE ADVISORY COMMITTEE

1. That the Los Angeles Mission College initial cohort groups (formed of students needing and taking the same class, "Spanish Reading Through Language Arts," should not be reassigned by class standing, but continue as a cohort group and be provided with a series of common workshops and social/networking engagements to keep the original cohort group viable. "Spanish Reading Through the Language Arts" as proposed by Los Angeles Unified School District and developed by Los Angeles Mission College, could be the prescribed class that forms the cohort group.
2. That the Los Angeles Unified School District acknowledge, with pay incentives, the accomplishment of a Certificate Program, and Associate in Arts Degree. This gives financial rewards and added prestige to the accomplishment of these intermediary goals on the way to a teaching credential.

3. That California State University Northridge look into the Child Development curriculum to see what changes would be necessary for Child Development to be accepted as a waiver program. It is accepted as a waiver program at California State University, Los Angeles.

4. That the Los Angeles Unified School District develop plans to address the immediate need of "adequate planning time" between the teacher assistant and the teacher. A specific plan needs to be implemented at each region. Should teacher assistants have additional planning time added to their contracts?

5. That Los Angeles Mission College and California State University Northridge explore the feasibility of offering a one unit course that addresses current issues. These workshops entitled, "Current Issues in...," would offer current topics and practical implementation techniques. The course outline would state that the issues would be changing current topics.

6. That the Los Angeles Unified School District recognize that the teacher assistants will want to implement what they are learning in their college classes. How will the issue be resolved if a supervising teacher ignores the contributions that a trained teacher assistant can offer.

7. That Los Angeles Mission College and California State University Northridge incorporate into their curriculum a class or workshop that prepares teachers to work with paraprofessionals. These courses in continuing education could be offered so that teachers qualify for credits on the pay scale as designed in a joint agreement between the educational institutions that will be offering the class/workshop and the teacher assistants' employer.

8. That the Los Angeles Unified School District recognize the need for the supervising teacher to have training in supervising paraprofessionals.
9. That Los Angeles Mission College and California State University Northridge formulate early intervention classes and workshops to give information and instruction to participants of the Future Teachers Institute regarding passing the National Teacher Examination.

10. That the Los Angeles Unified School District defines the responsibilities of the supervising teacher in regard to their teacher assistant and conducts in-house staff-development sessions to acquaint teachers regarding the law and job descriptions pertaining to teacher assistants.

11. That Los Angeles Mission College and California State University Northridge make recommendations to the State to accept Child Development as a waiver program.

12. That the Los Angeles Unified School District have a teacher assistant appreciation day if they have a teacher appreciation day.

13. That California State University Northridge look into having Child Development have department status at the University.

14. That the Los Angeles Unified School District make written commitments addressing the issue of recognizing the Certificate Program with a pay differential for completion of Teacher Assistant Certificate and/or a Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree. The pay incentives could be patterned after the teacher pay scale or the Basic Bilingual Differential. The two track system now in force at the Los Angeles School District has not been given enough publicity. It is a positive step, but it does not go far enough since it doesn't address the issue of the Certificate and the Associate in Arts Degree. Encouragement must be given to completion of educational programs, not just completion of units. The Los Angeles Unified School District needs to acknowledge that professional advancement of teacher assistants is a shared responsibility of the Teacher Assistant and the Unified School District.

15. That the Los Angeles Mission College track participants of the Future Teachers Institute by having annual personal interviews. At the interviews goals and accomplishments will be discussed. Grades will be reviewed and support services offered.

16. That a consistent term be defined to be used statewide in identifying paraprofessionals in the education field. Some terms already in use include teacher assistant, teacher aide, para-educator and paraprofessional.

17. That the Los Angeles Unified School District keep the teacher assistants on the payroll (as paraprofessionals, for the number of hours they had been working the prior semester or an average of the past several years) when they do their two semesters of student teaching. The participants of the Future Teachers Institute probably cannot afford to be unemployed while they complete their student-teaching requirements, and there may not be emergency or intern positions available when they reach this stage.
RECOMMENDATIONS REGARDING THE OVERALL PROJECT

Request for Continued Funding of the Future Teachers Institute.

Because of the changing student populations in California, the changing curriculum needs of school districts, and the diminishing supply of qualified bilingual teachers, the Future Teachers Institute seeks additional funding to carry out the aims of Senate Bill 156/89. With additional grant funding Los Angeles Mission College - Future Teacher Institute will be able to:

I. Provide the project with a project director, support personnel and supplies which would enable the project to track participants and gather statistics and data and secure written agreements which would define the tracking arrangements with California State University Northridge and Los Angeles Unified School District. The agreements would provide for annual tracking of participants for a specific number of years.

II. Establish the Curriculum and Salary Advisory Committees with Los Angeles Unified School District and Los Angeles Mission College.

III. Make additions and modifications to courses at Los Angeles Mission College incorporating the suggestions of the "Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree Curriculum Committee" that working paraprofessionals need a curriculum that integrates their current jobs into a teaching skills practicum.

IV. Offer workshops and/or classes conducted by California State University Northridge, Los Angeles Unified School District and Los Angeles Mission College faculty and staff.

V. Develop a workshop course, entitled "A Practicum - Working with Paraprofessionals," for teachers and teacher assistants for which a stipend is offered. The course outline would incorporate a panel discussion of paraprofessionals and teachers in the K-12 Unified School District. The course would be open to teams of the supervising teacher and the paraprofessional.

VI. Conduct on-going training sessions for advisors, counselors and other appropriate department chairs at Los Angeles Mission College and California State University Northridge to acquaint them with the concepts and goals of the Future Teachers Institute.
VII. Plan and implement workshops for the participants of the Future Teachers Institute. Suggested topics include: Test Taking Strategies, CBEST Preparation, NTE Preparation, Writing Techniques, Children at Risk, Technology, Steps for Success, Math Manipulatives and Curriculum, Thematic Approach to the Curriculum.

VIII. Coordinate efforts at the University to look into having Special Education as part of the Interdisciplinary Major of Child Development or an independent major; having Child Development as a Credential Waiver Program; and having support services defined and operational.

IX. Offer stipends to participants of the Future Teachers Institute who complete the Certificate Program and meet determined criteria as they continue studies for their Associate in Arts Degree.

X. Provide funds to facilitate the existing cohort groups. The money would provide for staff, speakers, postage, telephone, printing, and supplies to maintain the existing program and to recruit new participants which will allow for expansion of the program. This expanded program will prepare future teachers which helps meet the growing demand for bilingual and special education teachers.

XI. Monitor the progress of the participants of the cohort groups and provide information, counseling, support and motivation to ensure their success by staying in school and achieving their goals.

XII. Implement the recommendations made by the project's advisory committee.

XIII. File the need with the State of California for well trained teacher assistant and future teachers.

California State University, Northridge
18111 Nordhoff St.
Northridge, CA 91330

Dear Dr. Krzywkowski,

As Associate Dean of School of Education at California State University, Northridge, your ideas and suggestions would make an invaluable contribution to our project entitled, Future Teachers Institute. I would like to invite you to participate at our advisory meeting set for Wednesday, May 29, 1991 at 3:30 p.m. at 1437 San Fernando Rd., San Fernando, CA 91340, in the Vocational Arts Building Room 7. Parking for the meeting is available adjacent to the restaurant, "Jungle Style Chicken", located at San Fernando Road and Huntington Street.

The Future Teachers Institute is a planning grant that Los Angeles Mission College received from the State of California as part of Senate Bill 156/89. The Teacher Assistant Associate of Arts Degree program set forth in this bill is intended as an incentive to instructional paraprofessionals to complete education and training that would lead to a teaching credential.

Part of the goal of this project is for Los Angeles Mission College to develop a close working relationship with the Los Angeles Unified School District and California State University, Northridge in the identification of specific needs, concerns and support services essential to the participants in the Future Teachers Institute.

The ideas generated at this advisory meeting will be an integral part of our planning for future semesters and a vital resource as we make recommendations to the State Legislature for implementation and replication of this project. The Future Teachers Institute would be honored with your attendance at this meeting.

Sincerely,

Gayle D. Brosseau, Coordinator

OPEN DISCUSSION

ISSUES FOR CONSIDERATION

Advisory Meeting
May 29, 1991

1. Should cohort groups be heterogeneous groups?

2. How can the level of communication between teacher assistants and their supervising teachers be elevated?

3. Should a Child Development major be included in the waiver program which waives the required passage of the National Teachers Exam?

4. Should Special Education be established as a major or as an option of the Child Development major? (Example: B.A. Communication Disorders)

5. How should participants of Future Teacher Institute be tracked and for how long?

6. What would the value be of creating a standing advisory committee for current curriculum issues that could be incorporated into a course entitled, "Issues In?". Who would serve on this committee?

7. Which comes first? Research in the college institutions showing more effective teaching models, or a evident need in the schools which in turn create seminars and workshops for teachers? Is it a combination of both?

8. Do college students make use of the counseling advisement provided at the colleges?

9. Suggestions for workshops

10. What is the value of teachers and teacher assistants attending workshops as a team?
Minutes

Advisory Committee

May 29, 1991
Los Angeles Mission College
Vocational Arts Building - Room 7

I. Los Angeles Unified School District is decentralizing and restructuring
   A. Regions will have more autonomy

II. Representatives from Region E and F felt a great deal was achieved working with Mission College on this worthwhile project. New perspectives of educational institutions were formed.

III. Homogeneous/Heterogeneous Grouping of Cohort Groups
   A. Experience of the Special Education Department at CSUN shows that there are benefits to a heterogeneous grouping of cohorts.
      1. Experience at CSUN, Special Education Grant Project, shows that homogeneous grouping of cohorts by educational status becomes a heterogeneous group by the end of the first year. This turned out to be an advantage because the advanced members became mentors for the other members of the group. An "If I can do it so can you!" attitude developed. The more advanced students became an inspiration to the newcomers and proved that goals can be accomplished. The heterogeneous group continued to function as a cohort group, offering encouragement and support to the members that were not moving at the same rate. In fact, the heterogeneous group proved to have a positive influence because members offered "internal advisement."
   B. "Cohort groups provide excellent support" was the consensus of the members of the advisory committee who had personal experience with this concept.
   C. The members of the cohorts groups of the Future Teacher Institute are enrolled in the same class, "Spanish Reading through the Language Art", but they have varying educational status. There are 104 initial participants in the Future Teachers Institute divided into three cohort groups: one group of 32, one group of 41, one group of 31.
      1. Individual Education Plans will be developed with each participant of the Future Teachers Institute.
Advisory Committee
Minutes - May 29, 1991

D. Meet the Participants of the Future Teachers Institute.
1. Members of the advisory committee are invited to observe the class, "Spanish Reading through the Language Arts."
2. Members of the advisory committee are invited to the Pot Luck Social, June 10 from 5p.m. to 8p.m. at the home of the project director.

IV. CSUN
A. Is developing plans for a support system for members of the cohort groups.
1. Mentor program
2. Identify teacher candidates as undergraduates get into support system early
3. An additional support group available through the Bilingual/Multicultural advisors
4. Equity Committee Support Group
   a. two meetings per semester:
      social/informational
   b. dinner/speaker
   c. networking opportunities
      (1) meet faculty
5. The support services and the opportunities for students to meet faculty defuses the apprehension of teacher assistants toward college classes.

V. Suggested Resource People
A. Jeanne Ramos - LAUSD - Curriculum Math
B. Elias Ramos - CSUN - Bilingual Issues
C. Richard Masceras - Behavior Management

VI. Discipline/Classroom Management
A. Each school develops their own policy (shared decisions making policy)
B. Some schools do not have a school wide policy
C. Hadden Elementary School has a school wide policy
   1. Uses Cander Discipline Program
   2. Students have consistent discipline
      a. from teachers
      b. from teacher assistants
      c. from lunch room supervisors
      d. from custodians
      e. from principal
   3. Builds respect for rules because consistently they are enforced with the same rewards and consequences
D. Teachers need training on classroom management skills which helps to reduce discipline problems.

E. Behavior Management Workshop - CSUN
   1. Richard Masceras
   2. RSVP to Joyce Hagen, CSUN, Special Education
   3. June 14 (check date) from 4 to 7

VII. Communication and Planning Time between teacher and teacher assistant
   A. Teachers do not have any scheduled planning time with teacher assistants because the teacher assistant is employed between 8:30 a.m. and 11:00 a.m. This is time the teacher is involved with the students. This problem needs to be addressed.
   B. Teachers are now supervisors and need adequate training in working with paraprofessionals
   C. Teachers need to be aware of the techniques and skills that the teacher assistants are learning in the classes they are enrolled in. Time for communication and sharing of ideas needs to be built into planning time.
   D. Teacher Assistants would like to have the teachers give them a weekly plan. The plan is usually for teaching English reading. The teacher needs to have a plan for teaching Spanish reading for the teacher assistant.
   E. What is the possibility for teacher assistants to have paid planning days or hours added to their contracts?
   F. Workshop on June 8th at the home of Nancy Oda, Assistant Principal of Hadden Elementary School. Workshop topic will be teacher and paraprofessionals working together. Open invitation to members of the advisory committee. RSVP to Nancy Oda (818) 899-0244.

VIII. Motions/Recommendations from members of the advisory committee
   1. That the Los Angeles Mission College initial cohort groups (formed of students needing and taking the same class, "Spanish Reading Through the Language Arts," ) should not be reassigned by class standing, but continue as a cohort group and be provided with a series of common workshops and social/networking engagements to keep the original cohort group viable. "Spanish Reading Through the Language Arts" as proposed by Los Angeles Unified School District and developed by Los Angeles Mission College, could be the prescribed class that forms the cohort group.
   2. That the Los Angeles Unified School District acknowledge, with pay incentives, the accomplishment of a certificate program, and Associate of Arts degree. This gives financial rewards and added prestige to the accomplishment of these intermediary goals on the way to a teaching credential.

3. That California State University Northridge look into the Child Development curriculum to see what changes would be necessary for Child Development to be accepted as a waiver program. It is accepted as a waiver program at California State University, Los Angeles.

4. That the Los Angeles Unified School District develop plans to address the immediate need of "adequate planning time" between the teacher assistant and the teacher. A specific plan needs to be implemented at each region. Should teacher assistants have additional planning time added to their contracts?

5. That Los Angeles Mission College and California State University Northridge will explore the feasibility of offering a one unit course that addresses current issues. These workshops entitled, "Current Issues In. . . .," would offer current topics and practical implementation techniques. The course outline would state that the issues would be changing current topics.

6. That the Los Angeles Unified School District recognize that the teacher assistants will want to implement what they are learning in their college classes. How will the issue be resolved if a supervising teacher ignores the contributions that a trained teacher assistant can offer.

7. That Los Angeles Mission College and California State University Northridge incorporate into their curriculum a class or workshop that prepares teachers to work with paraprofessionals. These courses in continuing education could be offered so that teachers qualify for credits on the pay scale as designed in a joint agreement between the educational institutions that will be offering the class/workshop and the teacher assistants employer.

8. That the Los Angeles Unified School District recognize the need for the supervising teacher to have training in supervising paraprofessionals.

9. That Los Angeles Mission College and California State University Northridge would formulate early intervention classes and workshops to give information and instruction to participants of the Future Teacher Institute regarding passing the National Teacher Examination.

10. That the Los Angeles Unified School District defines the responsibilities of the supervising teacher in regard to their teacher assistant and conducts in-house staff development sessions to acquaint teachers regarding the law and job descriptions pertaining to teacher assistants.

11. That Los Angeles Mission College and California State University Northridge make recommendations to the State to accept Child Development as a waiver program.

12. That the Los Angeles Unified School District have a teacher assistant appreciation day if they have a teacher appreciation day.

13. That California State University Northridge look into having Child Development have department status at the University.

14. That the Los Angeles Unified School District make written commitments addressing the issue of recognizing the certificate program with a pay differential for completion of Teacher Assistant Certificate and/or a Teacher Assistant Associate in Arts Degree. The pay incentives could be patterned after the teacher pay scale or the Basic Bilingual Differential. The two track system now in force at the Los Angeles School District has not been given enough publicity. It is a positive step, but it does not go far enough since it doesn't address the issue of the certificate and the Associate in Arts Degree. Encouragement must be given to completion of educational programs, not just completion of units. The Los Angeles Unified School District needs to acknowledge that professional advancement of teacher assistants is a shared responsibility of the Teacher Assistant and the Unified School District.

15. That the Los Angeles Mission College track participants of the Future Teachers Institute by having annual personal interviews. At the interviews goals and accomplishments will be discussed. Grades will be reviewed and support services offered.

16. That a name change from Teacher's Aide Certificate to Para-Educator Certificate and from Exceptional Children's Teacher's Aide Certificate to Special Education Para-Educator Certificate. For some time nationally, the term paraprofessional has been preferred to aide. The statewide paraprofessional task force has agreed on the term para-educator.

17. That the Los Angeles Unified School District keep the teacher assistants on the payroll (as paraprofessionals, for the number of hours they had been working the prior semester or an average of the past several years) when they do their two semesters of student teaching. The participants of the Future Teachers Institute probably can not afford to be unemployed while they complete their student-teaching requirements, and there may not be emergency or intern positions available when they reach this stage.

Subject: Meeting to discuss the necessary changes in the options for the Teacher Assistant program.

After meeting with the articulation officer at CSUN and the faculty in the teacher preparation department at CSUN, L.A. Mission College needs to make a few changes in the requirements of the various options offered in the bilingual/bicultural teacher's assistant program, child development option for transfer, and those options that fit into the transfer liberal studies teacher preparation track program. It is timely since we must also be revising our catalogs for the coming year. I would like to present the draft program changes to the next curriculum meeting on March 28, 1991. In order to accomplish this task we all need to meet to discuss the recommendations given to us on March 22, 1991 at CSUN. If at all possible I would like to hold the meeting in Vocational arts # 7 at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday March 26. I am sorry for the late notice, but this is the only time when all members listed above should be able to attend. If this is impossible for you, an alternative time on Wednesday might be possible in the late afternoon. Please try to make a sacrifice for the Tuesday meeting if possible so we will have time to prepare for the Thursday meeting. Thanks.

Dear Gayle:

I am pleased to invite you to join me at a crucial meeting regarding the Future Teachers Institute, on Tuesday, March 19, 1991 at 3:30 P.M. in the President’s Conference Room (parking permits are enclosed).

As you know, we were chosen to conduct a planning grant (February-June 30, 1991) to establish an Associate of Arts program with a bilingual option for our Teacher Aides and Assistants.

We have started to work on the establishment of the Future Teachers Institute, but we have now reached a point where critical decisions need to be made at the highest levels if we are going to succeed with this project.

I urge you then, to join me on Tuesday, March 19, 1991 at 3:30 P.M.

I look forward to seeing you then.

Sincerely,

Jack Fujimoto
President

Cantrell, Eloise Project Director - Future Teacher Institute
Jaye, Karen Instructional Advisor - Los Angeles Unified
Ponce, Manuel Director - Mexican American Education Commission, Los Angeles Unified School District

Wilson, Emma Principal - Burton Street School Los Angeles Unified School District

I. Class
"Teaching Spanish Language Through the Language Arts"
A. Students excited about classes
B. Need portable blackboard at Burton St. School
C. Need access to telephones at both schools
D. Principals pleased with classes being offered at their sites
E. Students attending particular class site for their convenience, not necessarily attending class in the region where they work
F. Participants at Oxnard St. School
   1. 30 of 48 from Region E
   2. 18 of 48 from Region F
G. Participants at Burton St. School
   1. 27 paid, but 34 attended
   2. Regions to be determined
H. Renee may request a class tutor if she needs additional help
I. Credit class - 3 absences and the student will be dropped
   1. Contact Emma or Karen if any student that is dropped
J. Students need practical application of what they are learning. Do not need another idea book. Students have seen a wealth of materials, but they don't know how to implement them. They need the ideas, but they need to see the ideas modeled and then time to practice the techniques.
K. A few students voiced concern that they are excited about the techniques they are learning, but they don't see how they can be implemented. Some teachers expect quiet in the class because they are teaching a lesson in another part of the room. Teachers do not necessarily use these same techniques and may not approve of their use.

L. Besides inservicing the teachers about the techniques the paraprofessional is learning, a need exists to inservice principals and administrators.
   1. Demonstrate need for inservice of principals
   2. Success of program when all are inserviced

M. 1. Order core literature books for students of this class
   2. New Horizon - Core Literature - Spanish Lesson
   3. 100 copies
      a. Can they be purchased through the school order?
      b. Students can pay for their individual copy.

II. New Program for Paraprofessional
   A. Two tiers
      1. 1st tier (6 units in anything per school year)
      2. 2nd tier (units must apply to degree program)
   B. $.70 an hour difference

III. Los Angeles Unified representatives (Emma Wilson and Karen Jaye) will meet with their superintendents and provide Mission College with a written description of the type of skills they want taught to the paraprofessionals. What type of content do you want to see in the courses taught? What is the official job description of the paraprofessional in the L.A.U.S.D.?
   A. Fulfill requirements as employers
   B. Fulfill requirements for career ladder

Gayle Review Chancellor's letter and compare to our grant/Submit changes ASAP

I. Letter from Chancellor regarding legislation Senate Bill 156
   A. Amend grant to reflect the following:
      1. Mentor and supervising teachers should receive some training on skills needed to maximize coordination of paraprofessionals. A clear definition of roles in the practicum between a mentor Teacher, Supervising Teacher and Teacher Assistant is necessary.
      2. Delineate the college's General Education transfer curriculum and how this will be integrated into the proposed Teacher Assistant Associate of Arts Degree.
      3. Special attention should be given to the fact that many in the program will already be working in paraprofessional positions. Working paraprofessionals should be allowed to integrate their current jobs into teaching skills practicum curriculum.
      4. CPEC has recommended that in developing a system for tracking the student paraprofessionals, the project should secure a written agreement with CSU, Northridge and with each district to ensure annual follow through information for a specified number of years.
      5. As a final product of the project, the Chancellor's Office is requesting a manual which documents the project's methods for achieving its outcomes.

II. CSUN's goal is to build a stable and solid bridge for participants of the Future Teachers Institute.
   A. Shirley Swanson and Bob Hoffpauir, and Mike Newcomb will work on articulation agreements.
   B. CSUN wants to create interest and enthusiasm enabling Northridge to issue as many credentials as possible when students meet all criteria.
   C. Guarantee fast track with articulation agreements.
   D. Guarantee straight line to credential with close interface with Department of Education.
      1. Student must agree to follow established curriculum of the Future Teachers Institute.
   E. CSUN does not offer Saturday classes because of budget cuts, but will look into the issue because of benefits to the cohort group concept.
1. Mission College has $1700 grant money for contracts for speakers which could be used to offer Saturday classes.

2. Mission College guarantees classes will be offered (board signed agreements) even though grant funds will be depleted. Program exists for support.

III. Cohort groups must be grouped according to ability and also by the number of units they plan to take each semester and other like needs.

A. Many teacher aides will be part time.
B. Participants will probably transfer with more than 52 units - will come to CSUN with 60 to 70 units.
C. Probably, 5 cohort groups of 20 participants each
D. Mission College with formulate cohort groups based on matriculation results and student profile.
E. L.A. Unified requested a class "Assisting in Spanish Reading" to help teacher aides with job skills.
F. Class offered at CSUN - Elementary Ed 570 - "ESL Instruction in Multi Lingual Classroom".
   1. Also needed at CSUN - a class for instructing teachers how to train teaching assistants - "How to be a Master Teacher for Teacher Assistants".
G. CSUN will admit participants of cohort group to credential program while they are still at Mission.
   1. Mission will share the responsibility of preparing cohort members for CBEST, since it contains mostly lower division courses.
H. An estimate: 90% of participants will be interested in Child Development option compared to Liberal Arts Major.
I. Will implement Chancellor's concerns by guaranteeing slots at CSUN for members of cohort groups.
J. Will want to certify students that transfer with 39 G.E. requirements and 18 additional units depending on major.
K. Establish major - "Future Teacher Institute"
   1. Put major in catalog
   2. Articulate with CSUN

IV. L.A. Unified now has two pay scales for Teacher Assistants.
A. Track A - TA must take 12 units a year
B. Track B - one class a semester

V. New legislation for new teachers
A. Has two intentions
   1. New teachers need to be supported after they leave college.
   2. New teachers need to be evaluated; being granted a 1 year temporary credential or teaching license.
B. 30 new teacher projects around the state
   1. Supported with grant money
   2. Spring of 1992 reports due to Legislature on how to support and evaluate new teachers
   3. New teachers evaluated by their principal and a university professor

VI. National Teachers Exam
   A. Will be revamped in a few years
      1. video tapes
      2. simulations
      3. computerized test system
   B. Bob Hoffpauir advises students who have a Single Subject Degree already to take 30 units in Liberal Studies in order to pass the NTE.
      1. If missing 30 units would probably not pass 1/3 of NTE
      2. Can't pass what you don't know

VII. Support Services
   A. Future Teachers for a State of Diversity
   B. CTI - Comprehensive Teacher Institute
      1. Articulates between the university/school district/and teacher's union
      2. Bilingual component
      3. Teacher Assistant component
      4. Intern program
      5. 5 year grant in its 3rd year
         a. Budget cuts may terminate program
   C. Equity Committee

VIII. Addresses
   A. Mike Newcomb - Articulation Officer
   B. Bob Hoffpauir - HUMN
   C. New chair of Child Development
   D. Who is the Assistant Director of Curriculum?

I. Overview of Future Teacher Institute
A. Grant received from State
1. Short period to complete the grant
   a. By June: a manual ready for submission to state
   b. Manual will be disseminated for use by other community colleges to establish a similar program
B. 100 teacher assistants at various levels of education are participants of Future Teacher Institute
   1. Goal to become teachers
   2. Group by educational level and goals into cohort groups
3. Enrolled in Spanish 99 - "Spanish Reading Through the Language Arts"
   a. Two classes formed (Wed. class and Sat. class)
   b. Formed to meet the immediate need of teacher assistant
      (1) Recommended by L.A. Unified
      (2) Input from L.A. Unified

C. Transfer to CSUN for BA and enter Credential Program with a specified number (to be determined) of guaranteed slots for members of Future Teachers Institute

II. Goal of this committee
A. Create dialogue between LA Mission and CSUN
   1. Complex situations
   2. Address issues of human factors
B. Create "bridge" for students for easy transition from LAMC and CSUN
C. Develop articulation agreements to help insure success of transition

III. Introductions
A. Dr. Leo Krzywickowski, Associate Dean, School of Education
B. Dr. Joseph Schieffer, Director of Credential Preparation Office
C. Dr. Robert Hoffpauir, Professor/Coordinator New Liberal Studies
D. Dr. Michael Newcomb, Coordinator, Community College Articulation

IV. Success of students in the Future Teacher Institute
A. Give participant options
   1. Option 1 - One-year occupation Certificate
   2. Option 2 - AA Degree with Teacher Assistant Major
   3. Option 3 - Transfer Sequence to CSUN - Liberal Studies Major under Multiple Subjects Waiver Program-Plan E
   4. Option 4 - Transfer Sequence to CSUN with a Child Development Major
   5. Option 5 - Transfer Sequence to CSUN with a Single Subject Major
   6. Option 6 - Intern program of the Los Angeles Unified School District
CSUN/Mission Team
Minutes 03/22/91

B. Concerns
1. Passage of the National Teacher Exam (NTE)
   a. NTE exam is in process of being changed
      (1) will be based on the new Liberal Studies Major
      (2) best major to pass the NTE
      (3) geared to school's frameworks
      (4) multi-cultural perspective
      (5) test for general competency
      (6) better test
   b. The Liberal Studies Major with the Multiple Subjects Waiver Program is the only option that does not require the NTE
   c. Examine the statistics of the number of students who take the NTE and pass
   d. L.A. Unified School district had Intern Program which has room for 100 participants, but this program never fills all positions because graduates can not pass the NTE
      (1) Characteristics : BA/CBEST/NTE/After two years of successful teaching will get clear credential

2. Success of Future Teacher Institute will be judged on the number of participants who successfully complete credential program

3. Simplest index for success is the Multiple Subjects Waiver Program

4. Students must be aware that certain classes needed for AA are not necessary for the BA in Liberal Studies
   a. 124 units needed to graduate with BA in Liberal Studies
      (1) 116 units required/ 7 elective units
      (2) 9 units of the 30 units required for credential can be taken as electives before graduation which leaves no free elective units if a student wants to apply the units in the most efficient manner
   b. Students are taking extra units
      (1) Inform students of extra units (make it clear to them)
         (a) In catalog ( those courses required for AA, but not necessary for the transfer to Liberal Studies Major- these courses will not transfer into Liberal Studies Major- if these are taken will need more than the 124 units required for the BA in Liberal Studies)
(b) In catalog (* those courses required for Liberal Studies Major)
(c) Have counselors require student signature on individual education plan
(2) But, could serve as tutorial background
(3) Extra courses may be required to hold job
(4) Not that many extra units, but would add one extra semester
(5) Employees get pay increases for extra units but must be units over the BA degree
(6) Studies show it takes the average college student 6 1/2 years to complete BA alone (not teaching credential)

c. But, this taking extra units would be offset by the emotional benefits that students get by attaining shorter term goals along the way to a teaching credential
(1) Cultural
(2) Single parents
(3) Language ability
(4) May not realize their potential when they start
(5) Success leads to more success/competent feelings
   (a) Justification of extra units
   (b) Extra units could provide the skills needed to improve self-esteem which helps student realize they can achieve their goal, decision making skills, problem solving skills and the nurturing need

d. Differences in transfer requirements to receiving universities
5. Math 215 is not a CSUN articulated course, but is for other universities
6. Chicano 7 not in catalog/ needs to be certified under Section 40404 of Title V (needs to be approved and articulated to Title V)
7. Child Development AA degree is different than the Bilingual /Bicultural Teacher Assistant AA Degree which incorporates many General Education requirements
   a. Child Development has 12 units of elective
6. Does the State's new requirements of NTE and Liberal Studies Waiver Program and Credential Program really address the needs of college students and the needs of the School District's receiving the new teachers?

a. Sacramento must be made aware of these concerns
b. Many concerns are voiced by new multicultural teachers
c. Differences in community colleges requirements even within same community college district
(1) P.E. required at Mission college, but not at
   (a) Pierce

Suggested putting * by each item that can be transferred into the Liberal Studies Major.

Take out "or" between Chicano 7 and Chicano 37.

Add  to Health 10 and PE

Change wording of paragraph below the "Area's" and add the words "Plan E."

Dr. Robert Hoffpauir

Did Chicano 37 get a prerequisite?

Area 14: History 20 can be added as a choice. It was listed in Mission Catalog and is a transferable course.

Dear Joe,

On behalf of the Future Teachers Institute, I would like to thank you for your assistance in giving us insights into the credential preparation of teacher candidates and facts about the National Teacher Examination (NTE).

Since our grant period is nearing completion, I would like to finalize the report to the State Legislature. During our phone conversation of April 18, you mentioned that you had statistics pertaining to the percentage of students that pass the NTE on the first attempt. You also mentioned you may be able to obtain some statistics on specific areas of the NTE that are the most challenging to the students and the percentage of students who majored in Child Development who passed the NTE on the first try. Could you please send me a copy of these statistics by Thursday, June 6, so that they can be included in our report.

Sincerely,

Gayle D. Brosseau

Dear Blanca,

The orientation meeting of the Future Teachers Institute was a successful overview of the project we are coordinating with the L.A. Unified School District, California State University, Northridge and Los Angeles Mission College. I would like to thank you for your motivational presentation.

Having you there to share your story helped promote the concept of the support services that the participants will receive by being a member of a cohort group. Judging from the response you received, your talk was an inspiration.

Sincerely,

Gayle D. Brosseau,

ARTICULATION AGREEMENTS
Articulation Agreement
1990-1991

Los Angeles Community College District and
ABOUT THIS AGREEMENT

The articulation agreement summarizes decisions about curriculum made by faculty members at California State University, Northridge (Sections I-III) and by the Evaluations Section, Admissions and Records (Section IV), in consultation with community college articulation officers, and is published by the articulation officer at CSUN, in the Office of Academic Programs.

The agreement is intended to provide faculty, counselors, and students with news about how coursework from the community college will apply to requirements at CSUN, both to satisfy lower division major requirements and the Plan C general education requirements.

Students who begin their collegiate studies in 1990-91 and who maintain continuous attendance are subject to the requirements of the articulation agreement and catalog bearing that date. Other students may have the right to pursue coursework using a previous catalog and articulation agreement, depending on when they have established "catalog rights." These are established by enrollment at a California community college or a CSU campus, and by maintaining "continuous attendance" until graduation from CSUN.

With respect to general education, it may be to the student's advantage to pursue coursework outlined in the community college's certification plan, rather than the plan outlined for Plan C students in Part IV of the agreement; consultation with a community college expert on the certification process is recommended.

Counselors, faculty, or students who desire clarification of the rules governing "catalog rights," "continuous attendance," or certification programs are encouraged to contact the community college/district articulation officer, the Admissions and Records Office at CSUN, or the articulation officer at CSUN for more particular information.

The articulation agreement is published annually, and is widely distributed to community college and CSUN faculty and staff; additional copies are available from Academic Programs at CSUN until supplies are exhausted. Readers are welcome to make copies of the document as needs dictate. Because the agreement is a complicated document, risk of error is high; please report errors as they become apparent.

PART IV
DISTRIBUTION OF LOS ANGELES COMMUNITY COLLEGE DISTRICT COURSES IN TERMS OF THE CSUN GENERAL EDUCATION PATTERN, PLAN C

Selection of Pattern: California State University, Northridge defines "continuous attendance" as enrollment at a California community college or CSU campus for at least one semester or two quarters in a calendar year, up to the point of transfer.

Students transferring to CSUN may satisfy general education requirements by following a community college certification plan, or by following requirements in one of three general education plans at CSUN, as appropriate. An individual student will be placed in one of the three CSUN programs on the basis of the pattern of continuous attendance, as follows:

PLAN A ("Old" 40 unit plan): The student began the most recent period of continuous attendance in the academic year 1980-81 or earlier.

PLAN B: The student began the most recent period of continuous attendance in the academic year 1981-82 or 1982-83.

PLAN C: The student began the most recent period of continuous attendance in the academic year 1983-84 or later.

Students following the Plan A or Plan B distribution of general education are advised to contact the Admissions and Records Office, Evaluations section, for particular information about what courses qualify to meet the requirements of those plans. Lists of such courses also appear in previous articulation agreements.

REQUIREMENTS COMMON TO BOTH PLANS B AND C:

UPPER DIVISION REQUIREMENT: The CSUN pattern requires that nine units, selected from three sections lettered A through F, be in upper division courses. To make most effective use of time, community college students should defer taking nine units of the pattern, chosen from three different sections, until after transfer to CSUN, and then choose courses which satisfy both a particular section, and the upper division expectation.

Restrictions:
1. Some courses are listed in more than one section. Such courses may apply in one section only.
2. This list is valid only for courses taken through the summer of 1991. It is subject to amendment annually.
3. Courses in the same discipline as the major may not apply toward general education requirements (exception -- Section A).

4. Courses used to satisfy Title V requirements in U.S. History, U.S. Constitution, and State and Local Government do not apply toward general education. See Part V for courses which satisfy these requirements.

BILINGUAL DIFFERENTIAL/TESTING
ABOUT THE DIFFERENTIAL

As a result of the recently negotiated agreement between the Los Angeles Unified School District and Local 99, Teacher Assistants whose assignments require them to regularly communicate in a language in addition to English, may qualify to receive a differential. To qualify for this basic bilingual proficiency differential, Teacher Assistants must:

- pass the basic bilingual proficiency test which is administered by the Classified Personal Selection Branch

- have written certification from their Region Superintendent that the second language is needed to perform the duties of the job.

SPANISH PROFICIENCY TEST

The Basic Spanish Bilingual Proficiency Examination consists of a multiple-choice written test and an oral interview. Successful completion of both parts of this examination is the first step required of Teacher Assistants to qualify for the differential.

The Basic Spanish Bilingual Proficiency Written Test will be administered during the week April 9 through April 12, 1991 (Spring recess). This schedule will provide all interested candidates with the opportunity to participate while minimizing any disruption to school operations. This test will be administered at:

To register to take the Basic Spanish Bilingual Written Test, candidates should call Ms. Berlitz at (213) 742-7753 or any of the area offices listed on the other side during working hours prior to Friday, March 22, 1991.

To obtain an appointment, Teacher Assistants should be prepared to state testing site preference and their social security number.

Results of the first test part will be provided by Personnel Selection Branch staff at the test site. Successful candidates will then be given appointments for the Oral Interview. The interviews are tentatively scheduled to begin on April 15, 1991.

OTHER LANGUAGE PROFICIENCY TESTS SIGN LANGUAGE PROFICIENCY TESTS

Teacher Assistants interested in registering for the Basic Bilingual Proficiency Examination for languages other than Spanish should call Robyn Wachtel at (213) 765-3341 by March 22, 1991.

Teacher Assistants who routinely use Sign Language in the Course of their work should call Sheryl Carter Negash (213) 765-3333 by March 22, 1991 to register for the Level I or II examination.

-SEE NEXT PAGE-
Candidates who are unsuccessful on either the written test or the oral test of the Basic Bilingual Proficiency examination may repeat the test part in which they were unsuccessful after a four (4) month interval.

Some degree track Teacher Assistants may also be eligible to receive a larger differential for speaking, reading and writing the second language at a higher level of fluency. For purposes of this program, this is referred to as "A" level bilingual proficiency.

"A" level bilingual proficiency testing for all languages other than Signing will be administered by the certificated Personnel Division. To qualify for the "A" level testing, Degree Track Teacher Assistants must have passed the basic language proficiency test. Specific information about "A" level bilingual proficiency testing for qualified Teacher Assistants will be provided by the Personnel Division at a later date.

For specific information concerning the Agreement with the School District, Teacher Assistants are advised to consult their bargaining unit representative.

REDUCTION IN FORCE

Note: Reduction in Force system to be used on and/or after July 1, 1991 is school-based, and based primarily on college units achieved rather than seniority.

Temporary interim procedure until accurate list of college units is compiled (approximately July 1, 1991).

Definition: When a TA position is to be eliminated entirely (as opposed to reduction in hours)

Seniority List
Based on most recent date of hire from existing official records.

Reasons for Reduction in Force
- Loss of budgetary support
- Changes in Educational program
- Changes in services offered to students
- Changes in student population
- Returns from leaves of absence

Order of Layoff
- Possible termination of TAs with less than 1 year of seniority (Discretionary)
- TAs with less than 3 years of seniority - pick and choose until category exhausted
- TAs with less than 5 years of seniority - pick and choose until category exhausted
- TAs with less than 10 years of seniority - pick and choose until category exhausted

Exemptions
- TAs with 90+ units toward degree
- TAs with special skills, qualifications
  Examples: bilingual, computer, music, library

Written Notice
School must provide a written notice to TA at least 10 working days prior to effective date of layoff.

Recall Rights
- TAs with less than one year of service who were terminated (as opposed to laid off) have no recall rights
- Inverse order of layoff for return
- Right to return to the school within 12 months of layoff

Education Aide service can be given credit if it occurred immediately prior to date of hire as TA
Must be based on information provided by TAs at the local site
*Local school should develop and maintain recall list

   - Two copies of notice of TA meeting to Job Steward
   - Copy of seniority list and budget information to Job Steward, if requested. (Charge Union for copies of budget information at regular District rate.)

3. TA Meeting
   - Hold meeting on TA worktime (off-track TAs and other TAs not on duty may voluntarily attend)
   - Local 99 representative may attend only with prior approval by Principal
   - Administrator (or designee) outlines tentative plans
   - Input from TAs; TAs may ask questions, raise objections, offer suggestions and make recommendations

4. Meet with Local 99 Representative (if request is timely)

5. Announce Final Decision

6. Grievance - TA may grieve procedures, not the decision

7. Limited Preference for Additional Hours
   - For one year from reduction -- also, if reduced between January 1, 1990 and date of adoption (February 19, 1991) - preference for one year from date of adoption of Agreement

CALIFORNIA BASIC EDUCATIONAL SKILLS TEST (CBEST)

The California Basic Educational Skills Test (CBEST) requirements are set forth in Assembly Bill 283 of 1982 and California Education Code Sections 44252 and 44830. These statutes require the CBEST for two general purposes: (1) to qualify for issuance of a California credential and, (2) as a prerequisite to employment.

NOTE: Once a passing score on the CBEST has been achieved, persons will not, under current law, be required to repeat the examination for the issuance of a credential or for employment.

INFORMATION FOR THOSE WHO HAVE NOT PASSED THE CBEST

I. REQUIREMENTS FOR THE INITIAL ISSUANCE OF A CREDENTIAL FOR THOSE WHO HAVE NOT PASSED THE CBEST

A. California Education Code Section 44242 provides that an individual applying for the initial issuance of any credential, certificate, or permit must demonstrate proficiency in reading, writing, and mathematics skills by passing the California Basic Educational Skills Test (CBEST) prior to the issuance of a credential.

B. An applicant from out-of-state who is eligible for a credential from another state and qualifies for a California credential may take the District-prepared Mini-CBEST. If successful, the State will issue a One Year Non-Renewable (OYNR) Credential. Prior to the expiration of the OYNR, the teacher must provide verification of having passed the CBEST. Continued employment beyond the expiration date of the OYNR Credential is contingent upon passage of the CBEST.

II. REQUIREMENTS FOR EMPLOYMENT OF PERSONS WHO HOLD A REGULAR CALIFORNIA CREDENTIAL BUT WHO HAVE NOT PASSED THE CBEST.

A. A certificated applicant for employment or reemployment in the Los Angeles Unified School District is not required to take the CBEST if s/he holds a valid, applicable California credential and has been employed in a position requiring certification in a California public school within thirty-nine (39) months prior to the first day of employment on a permanent, temporary, or substitute basis with the Los Angeles Unified School District. Verification of this employment must be submitted on original District letterhead stationery at the time of application.
A certificated applicant for employment or reemployment with the Los Angeles Unified School District who holds a valid, applicable California credential but who has not been employed in a position requiring certification in a California public school within thirty-nine (39) months prior to employment on a permanent, temporary, or substitute basis with the Los Angeles Unified School District, may be employed for one year pending passage of the CBEST.

Continued employment past the one-year date is contingent upon passage of the CBEST. These candidates must: (1) take and pass the District's Mini-CBEST prior to employment and, (2) not have taken and failed the CBEST prior to employment.

III. SUMMARY

A. If you do not hold a California credential, you must have passed the CBEST in order to obtain a credential.

B. If you are an applicant from out-of-state and do not hold a California credential but you were eligible for a credential from another state and you qualify for a regular California credential, you may take the District's Mini-CBEST. If successful, the State will issue an OYNR Credential, but you must ultimately pass the CBEST to continue employment beyond the expiration date of the OYNR Credential.

If you have passed the CBEST, you must provide the original copy of the CBEST results.

C. If you hold a regular California credential and have taught in a California public school within thirty-nine (39) months prior to the first day of employment with the LAUSD, you are not required to take the CBEST. However, you must submit official evidence of that employment in order for the CBEST requirement to be satisfied.

D. If you hold a regular California credential but have not taught in a California public school within thirty-nine (39) months prior to the first day of employment with the LAUSD, you may take the District's Mini-CBEST. If successful, you may be employed for one year, but must pass the CBEST within the year.

The Master's Degree Program

California State L. A. 's interdisciplinary Child Development program includes a Master of Arts degree in Child Development. This course of study focuses on development of infants and toddlers, on the problems of children under stress, and on parent education. Students in this program have a broad choice of courses and faculty because the degree draws upon resources of the entire interdisciplinary program.

Each core course has its own field work component which allows students to apply the knowledge they are acquiring immediately. Program electives are chosen, in consultation with a graduate advisor, to meet specific professional goals. Students may choose to take a comprehensive examination, write a thesis, or complete a project to earn the M.A. degree.

Students completing the master's degree in Child Development may pursue their interests in both academic and applied settings. Graduates of this program have gained entrance to doctoral programs as well as established successful careers. They work in a variety of settings as child development specialists, consultants, directors of hospital children's programs, regional center evaluators, and parent educators, among others.

Careers in Child Development

Recent graduates of the interdisciplinary program in Child Development at California State University, Los Angeles work in the community in a variety of private and public settings. Our students have established careers in hospitals, day care facilities, public and private schools, the delivery of social services, as well as consulting with, designing, and administering child care services. Some work as children's advocates in the legal system. Many of our students work with teachers and parents as well as children to ensure the delivery of high quality child-related services. Some are involved in the development of play materials and equipment, curricular materials, children's literature, and music. Others have accepted the challenges of helping children cope in special settings or with the stresses created by family tensions, handicaps, or crime.

The program offers colloquium and guest lectures to illustrate the kinds of career opportunities currently available to the Child Development major, as well as current trends in employment. Special advisement is available to those in the program who wish to establish private, state-licensed child care services and those who wish to complete the requirements for a Children's Center Permit.

The Interdisciplinary Child Development Program

The interdisciplinary major in Child Development at California State University, Los Angeles offers an integrated course of study leading to a Bachelor of Arts degree in Child Development. The program also provides the opportunity for study at the graduate level, drawing upon the resources of departments in four different schools within the University. The schools of Education, Health & Human Services, Natural & Social Sciences, and Arts & Letters contribute to the undergraduate and graduate degree program in Child Development, providing students with a wide variety of educational, observational, and training opportunities.

Students at both the undergraduate and graduate levels may participate in course work that involves direct contact with children and adolescents in day care settings, schools, recreational, hospital, and therapeutic settings. Students may also select courses offered by departments throughout the University, including Anthropology, English, Family Studies & Consumer Sciences, Communication Studies, Communication Disorders, Psychology, Sociology, Physical Education and Recreation/Leisure Studies, Theatre Arts and Dance, Health Science, Pan-African Studies, Chicano Studies, Music, Art, and several programs within the School of Education.

The University

California State University, Los Angeles is a unique, urban campus that draws students from very walk of life. Students range in age from 16 to over 70. Many have families and full-time jobs. They represent perhaps the broadest range of racial and ethnic backgrounds available on any American campus. For the student of human development, the diversity of the setting, the student body, and the course of study present a unique opportunity to grow in understanding as well as knowledge.

The Program's Unique Features

Few state university campuses present a more cosmopolitan atmosphere than California State University, Los Angeles. In keeping with this setting, the Child Development program offers a range of faculty expertise, subject offerings, and hands-on experiences seldom matched at comparable campuses. Faculty members represent a large number of departments and an even larger number of theoretical perspectives. There are specialists available in every aspect of human development including the biological, psychological, and social, the philosophical, and aesthetic. Because faculty members are drawn from traditional departments, each brings a depth of expertise that can be obtained only under the auspices of an interdisciplinary program.

The program also offers a variety of opportunities for practicum experience in the school setting and the community in recreational, hospital, and therapeutic settings. Opportunity for original research is available to the advanced student.

Courses are offered fall, winter, spring, and summer quarters. A complete selection of course offerings is available in the evening, a particularly attractive feature for students who work during the daytime hours.

For further information, please write to the Child Development Program, California State University, Los Angeles, 5151 State University Drive, Los Angeles, CA 90032, or phone (213) 343-4590.

The Bachelor's Degree Program

The undergraduate Child Development program at Cal State LA allows students to select one of two options. Option I is designed for the individual who plans to enter a career in child and family services that does not require a teaching credential. Option II prepares the student for the Multiple Subject credential leading to a career in teaching at the elementary school level as well as special education and early childhood programs.

A core program of lower and upper division work is required for both options. The courses in the core offer students the opportunity to learn basic child development theory and to observe and participate in children's environments. For Option I, students choose one of two areas of specialization. Specialization "A" prepares students for careers in preschool/day care settings including administration. Specialization "B" prepares students for careers in youth agencies working with older children.

Option II is a program designed for students interested in the Multiple Subject teaching credential program. It meets the Commission on Teacher Credentialing criteria for a diversified major and provides academic preparation for graduate study in the child oriented professions. The option focuses on social and psychological development, child welfare, children's art and literature, and health. Students choosing this option also follow a directed course of general education requirements designed to enhance their educational background. And pursue their interest in child development simultaneously. The professional education courses required for completion of the Multiple Subject credential can be taken as part of the bachelor's program or at a later time. Because Child Development is an approved diversified major, students who complete the professional education courses are exempt from the National Teacher's Examination.

Dear Prospective Student:

We are pleased to find you are interested in the Child Development Program at CSULA. We trust you will find our program attractive and well-suited to your future career goals.

Enclosed you will find a brochure describing our program in more detail. As you will see, the purpose of our program is twofold, to develop a strong understanding of children and families as well as provide the opportunity for you to acquire skills needed to work with them. You will learn how young children develop and grow, what factors affect that development, and how you, as a professional in the field, can help children reach their full potentials.

Our MA program has a core of required courses, and then electives are chosen in consultation with an advisor to meet your professional goals. We will work with you to help you design a program which meets your needs. The program can be coordinated with the Multiple Subjects Credential, Special Education, and/or Specialists Credentials.

We invite you to come by our office to speak with one of our graduate faculty advisors so we can help you plan the coursework best suited to your future needs. We look forward to meeting you.

Sincerely,
The Child Development Faculty and Staff

P.S. If you have further questions or would like to set-up an appointment, please call us at 213-343-4590.

6. To make a change in your program, seek approval of your graduate advisor and submit an application for course substitution (GS 5) prior to the completion of any course affected by the change. Substitution may not be made using coursework already completed.

7. No credit will be granted on a M.A. degree program for coursework completed more than 7 years prior to granting the M.A. degree. Only 13 units of coursework completed at CSULA or another institution prior to submission of the M.A. degree program may be counted on the M.A. degree program.

8. Advancement to Candidacy is a part of the continuing process of review of the student's progress and is not automatic. It is granted by the School Graduate Dean upon completion of the requirements listed below and upon the recommendation of the department. Advancement to Candidacy is the University prerequisite to enrolling for the thesis or project and to taking the comprehensive examination. Advancement to Candidacy requires:
   a. Classified graduate standing
   b. An approved master's degree program
   c. Completion of a minimum of 16 quarter units of the master's degree program with an overall grade point average of 3.0 or above
   d. Meet the Upper Division Writing Requirement (English 306 or 406)
   e. Submission of an Application For Advancement to Candidacy (CDMA 11) and a GS 10 to the Child Development Coordinator.

9. Prior to receiving your M.A. degree, you must successfully complete one of two options:
   a. Comprehensive Examination OR
   b. Thesis/Project

   The choice of which option to follow must be approved by your advisor.

   A. Comprehensive Examination

   1. Students should expect to take the Comprehensive Examination in the quarter in which they complete all coursework on their program or in the following quarter and must comply with School and Department requirements. Students must register to take the Comprehensive Examination and pay the fee.

   2. The Comprehensive Examination consists of five questions drawn from the material covered in the required Child Development M.A. coursework and at least one elective. Students should discuss the examination with their advisor and pick up the forms explaining the Comprehensive Examination.
3. The procedure for registering for the Comprehensive Examination is as follows: during registration:
   a. Student needs to fill out a CAR Form for C.D. 596 and have the Child Development Office stamp over the course.
   b. Register normally
   c. Pay fee in Bung. "D"
   d. Fill out CDMA 15, Work In Progress Form

Late Registration
   a. Can take place any time before deadline to taking Comps.
   b. Student must fill out CAR for C.D. 596 and have Child Development Office stamp over course
   c. Submit an add form to Marilyn Gooding, Admissions & Records, 3rd floor, Administration Building, who will update the student's file
   d. Pay $10 plus $25 late charge in Bung. "D"

B. Thesis or Project
   1. Students choosing to take the thesis/project option must have met the following prerequisites:
      a. Advancement to Candidacy
      b. CHDV 504, EDFM 509, FSCS 577, or PST 411
      c. Consent of instructor to act as thesis advisor
      d. Approval of thesis proposal prior to registration for C.D. 599
   2. Students should register for only 1 unit of C.D. 599 per quarter. If the thesis/project is completed prior to six quarters the student will need to add the number of units necessary to bring the total to 6 units. This is accomplished by a memo from the Child Development Department to the Registrar requesting the additional units. In some cases, this might involve an additional fee.
   3. Differences Between Thesis and Project:
      a. A thesis is the outcome of research involving the gathering and analysis of data related to a specific question in the area of Child Development. It includes the following:
         1. Statement of problem
         2. Review of literature
         3. Methods and procedures
         4. Results
         5. Discussion and conclusions
b. A project is the development of a program including a manual or related material, which is needed in the field of Child Development at a practical level. The project is then summarized in a report which includes the following:

1. Statement of problem
2. Review of literature
3. The product of the project
4. Evaluation
5. Conclusions

4. Quality of work accomplished is a major consideration in judging the acceptability of any thesis or project. The finished product must show evidence of originality, appropriate organization, clarity of purpose, critical analysis, and accuracy and completeness of documentation. Mere description, cataloging, compilation or other superficial procedures are not adequate. Critical thinking and independent thinking should characterize every thesis and every project.

5. The thesis/project advisor and the student will select 2-3 faculty members who are willing to serve on the thesis/project committee. This committee may read, guide, and approve various drafts of the thesis/project. The student must fill out the GS 12 form (obtained from the C.D. Office).

6. Selection of the thesis/project option or the comprehensive examination option is made when the program is made out. A change from one to the other must be made prior to the receipt of a grade (an SP is considered a grade).

10. Miscellaneous:

C.D. 595: Graduate Fieldwork

a. C.D. 595, Graduate Fieldwork, may be taken after a student has completed C.D. 501, 502, 503, and a research methods course. Arrangements for placement, requirements, and supervision must be made with your advisor and/or the faculty member who will supervise your fieldwork assignment. This must be done one quarter prior to registration for C.D. 595.

b. A minimum of 12 hours per week are required for a fieldwork placement for 4 units.

Change of Advisor

a. There are several graduate advisors in Child Development. You are assigned to or may choose one as you enter the program. If at a future date you wish to change advisors:

1. Pick up a change of advisor form (CIMA 5) in the Child Development Office
2. Fill out the form and have it signed by the appropriate faculty members
3. Return it to the Child Development Office
Time and Sequence

a. Students have seven years from the time of entry into the M.A. program to complete all requirements for the degree.

b. It is recommended that core courses be taken in sequence, i.e., C.D. 501, then C.D. 502, then C.D. 503. However, this is not a requirement. Only one core course in this series is offered per quarter.

c. It is highly recommended that a research methods course be taken early in the student's program.

d. Students must complete their comprehensive examination within the seven year period allotted for their M.A. degree.

e. Application for graduation must be made at least one quarter in advance of the date of graduation.
The Master of Arts degree in Child Development is designed to strengthen professional competence and to prepare individuals for a variety of leadership positions as a child development specialist. Students also seeking an Early Childhood Specialist credential should select electives in consultation with a credential adviser and a Child Development graduate adviser.

- Comprehensive Examination or Thesis or Project (0-6 units):
  - Comprehensive Examination (0) or Thesis or Project (6)

A comprehensive examination or a thesis or project is required for the master's degree. Dear Gayle:

It was great to have our telephone conversation today. As you can see in the attached sheet, our Interdisciplinary Program refers to the fact that our students can take their upper division major in various fields and use that information to apply to the Child Development knowledge they obtain in our program.

The students take the majority of their courses in fields other than child development and in so doing are able to acquire knowledge in areas that will apply toward their work with children and youth. We are also able to individualize the curriculum for each student so that she or he can obtain knowledge in the areas that are of most interest and relevance to her and him.

Please stay in touch with me so that we can continue our dialogue together. I appreciate this very much.

Sincerely yours,

Edythe Margolin, Coordinator/Professor

AREAS OF SPECIALIZATION

Child Mental Health Specialist (restricted); other specializations such as working with adolescents, bilingual, multicultural education, and parent education may be developed with the consent of an advisor. Information regarding Art, Chicano Studies, Education, Health Science, Home Economics, Music, Pan African Studies, Physical Education, Psychology, Recreation, Sociology, and other related coursework is available.

CHILD DEVELOPMENT

Child Development is an interdisciplinary major that draws from many fields related to human development. Through a variety of courses, selected fieldwork and laboratory experiences, students will gain an understanding of developmental needs and patterns of behavior. The program includes the study of "normal" development as well as variations and deviations with a focus on positive early intervention strategies.

The program will be of interest to students who wish to enter a variety of professions that call for "child development specialists." Positions include teachers and administrators in preschool and hospital settings, parent education, playground and recreation supervisors, and other positions involving work with children, adolescents and their families.

The Child Mental Health Specialist Program prepares students to work with children and adolescents who have emotional difficulties. Interested students are encouraged to apply to the Child Mental Health Specialist Program early in the second semester of their sophomore year. Information is available in the Child Development Office.

Those wishing to schedule advisement appointments are encouraged to call the Child Development Office.

Credential Programs
SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

MULTIPLE AND SINGLE SUBJECT CREDENTIAL PROGRAMS
California State University, Northridge has developed a series of programs for the professional preparation of teachers in the public schools in the state of California. The University is committed to the concept that continuous screening and evaluation are necessary to ensure that candidates who complete a program are well prepared to be effective members of the teaching profession. Thus, candidates may expect to be evaluated on possession of basic skills, personal qualifications and performance factors in addition to completion of required courses.

ADVISEMENT

The Credential Preparation Office has a staff of advisors who are available to assist any candidate with questions about the credential preparation program. Candidates may see advisors by appointment during regular hours (813) 865-2586. Walk-in advisement and answers to phone questions are also available. Advisement meetings concerning the basic programs are held on Tuesdays at 1:30 p.m. and Fridays at 10:00 a.m. Evening meetings are held on the first Tuesday of each month except in July and August at 6:00 p.m. (By reservation only). These meetings which last approximately two hours present a detailed explanation of the programs. Attendance at one of these meetings is a mandatory admission requirement and should be your first step in gathering information.

ADMISSION TO THE TEACHER EDUCATION PROGRAM

To secure admission, the candidate must submit an application packet containing:

1. A Declaration of Intent to Pursue a Credential and "Institutions Attended" sheet. The Declaration of Intent will be used to establish a file for the candidates. The "Institutions Attended" sheet will permit the Credential Preparation Office to know when all transcripts have been filed.
2. Recommendations from two persons outside the candidate’s family who are knowledgeable about the candidate in a professional academic relationship. These may be from teachers or administrators in the schools, university faculty or employers.
3. Unofficial transcripts from all institutions of higher education attended including California State University, Northridge. These transcripts are required independently of other transcripts which may be required for admission to the University. The grade point average cannot be computed without these transcripts. In addition, after receiving admission, candidates must submit transcripts of all coursework taken at other institutions immediately after the end of each semester’s coursework. Candidates must have a grade point average in the upper half of their academic discipline. A chart showing the required GPA in specific disciplines is available in the Credential Preparation Office. Candidates must maintain an overall 2.75 grade point average for all coursework completed after admission and maintain a 3.00 grade point average for all professional education courses.
4. Proof of freedom from tuberculosis on cards available in the Credential Preparation Office.
5. A Statement of Objectives describing reasons for desiring entry into the teaching profession.
6. A permanent verification card showing passage of the California Basic Educational Skills Test (CBEST).
7. Verification of completion of early field experience - Consult the Credential Preparation Office for a list of acceptable experiences.
8. Verification of successful completion of a required pre-program interview. Consult the application package for interview form and procedures for arranging the interview.
9. Advisement meeting attendance verification form is obtained at meeting described above.

When the file has been completed, the candidate will be reviewed by faculty members of the School of Education, the candidate will be evaluated on the basis of academic achievement, commitment to teaching and ability to communicate. When the Faculty Committee reaches a decision regarding the admission of the candidate, the candidate will be notified in writing by the Credential Preparation Office. If admitted, the candidate will be issued a card indicating admission to the teacher education program. Regulations permit the University to admit a candidate on the basis of some exceptional qualification possessed by the candidate. If you are denied admission on a regular basis, you will be given information concerning admission on an exceptional basis.

As part of the admission process, an evaluation of the candidate’s previous coursework will be made automatically and mailed to the candidate along with the admission letter. This evaluation will be updated as candidates progress through the program.
CONVICTION RECORDS

As part of the preliminary admission process, candidates are advised that CONVICTION RECORDS may prevent a candidate from obtaining a credential. Although a wide variety of convictions will not prevent the issuance of a credential, the Education Code does stipulate that certain conviction records will mandate the denial of a teaching document. Candidates with conviction records must consult with either the Director of the Credential Preparation Office or the Coordinator of the Credentials Unit regarding the nature of the conviction prior to submitting application. Candidates with serious problems will be required to secure a Certificate of Clearance from the Commission on Teacher Credentialing prior to admission.

ENROLLMENT IN REQUIRED COURSES IN THE PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION SEQUENCE IS LIMITED TO PERSONS WHO HAVE BEEN ADMITTED TO THE TEACHER EDUCATION PROGRAM.

CREDENTIAL APPLICATION

Candidates who are completing a credential program at California State University, Northridge should file their credential applications during the final semester in which requirements are being met. Applications may be filed after the first day of classes for their final semester of coursework. The Credential Preparation Office will process the application and indicate by letter the candidate’s status. This letter is required by most school districts for interviewing and contracting purposes.

Upon receipt from the Commission on Teaching Credentialing, the credential will be held by the Credential Preparation Office pending verification of completion of final coursework.

   A. Basic Skills
      1. Freshman Composition (3 units)
         A course introducing students to the process of planning, writing, and revising expository essays and to the process of reading expository prose accurately and critically. The course should cover basic conventions of written English and basic library research skills. The course should also provide instruction and practice in formulating clear central ideas and in organizing and supporting these ideas. The course must meet the University's General Education requirement in written composition.
      2. Critical Reasoning (3-4 units)
         A course examining the relationship between logic and language and introducing students to the concepts essential to the identification, analysis, and evaluation of arguments with attention to deduction, induction, and common fallacies. The course should include instruction on the applications of critical reasoning to effective reading and writing. The course must meet the University's General Education requirement in critical reasoning.
      3. Speech Communication (3 units)
         A course focusing on the principles of rhetoric and communication as applied to public speaking.
         The course should require intensive practice in speaking and the attainment of the ability to present thoughts in a clear, orderly, and cogent manner to a public audience. The course must meet the University's General Education requirement in oral communication.
   B. Literature
      1. Introduction to Literature (3 units) poetry, and drama—with special emphasis on the relationship between form and theme. The course should require intensive analysis of literary works and the writing of several evaluative papers with the goal of developing the student's critical appreciation of literature. The course must carry a freshman composition course as a prerequisite. As long as the course provides the broad coverage described above, it may focus on the literature of a major ethnic minority group in the United States or on a major region of the non-Western world (i.e. Latin America, Africa, or Asia).

      2. Upper Division Literature (6 units)
         Two upper division courses which build upon the knowledge and skills acquired from the introductory literature course and which focus on a particular genre, time period, culture, or point of view. Each course will further develop the student's evaluative and critical approaches to the study of literature, in part through writing papers and essay tests. One of the two courses selected by the student must focus on the literary heritage of African-Americans, Chicanos, or Asian-Americans.
   C. Grammar (3 units)
      An upper division course on the structure of American English with analysis of the basic grammatical elements, including sounds, words, parts of speech, and sentences. The course should include e.g. reading, writing, speaking, literature, spelling, and vocabulary.

   D. Upper Division Composition (3 units)
      An upper division intermediate or advanced course in written composition that extends the skills learned in Freshman Composition. The course should include the development of variety and effectiveness in sentence and paragraph structure, the use of rhetorical modes to organize long papers, the uses of invention for personal writing, and the use of library research methods. The course should include assessment strategies and criteria.
E. Foreign Language (3 units)

For the Non-Credential Option, a focus on either the early history or the modern history is acceptable.

B. United States

[One, but not both, of the two courses selected in this section must focus on a major ethnic minority group (African-American, Asian-American, or Chicano).]

1. History (3 units)
   A historical survey of the major political, social, intellectual, economic, and cultural events of the United States. The course in the Credential Option must cover, but need not be restricted to, the period from pre-Columbian times to the mid-19th century; the course in the Non-Credential Option may cover the entire span of U.S. history or may focus on either the pre-Civil War period or the post-Civil War period. The course should provide equitable and solid coverage of not only the majority but also the significant minority (ethnic/racial/gender) populations during this period. The course must meet the University's Title V Institutions and Ideals requirement in American history.

2. Government (3 units)
   A course analyzing the development, structure, and functioning of the government of the United States and California, emphasizing the roles of not only the majority but also the significant minority (ethnic/racial/gender) populations in the United States and California. The course must meet the University's Title V Institutions and Ideals requirements in the Constitution of the United States and in state and local government.

C. California (3 units)

A lower or upper division course on the history and geography of the state of California. The historical coverage must be from pre-Columbian times to the present, and the geographical coverage must be the entire state. If it is a history course, significant geographical content must be present; if it is a geography course, significant historical content must be present.

D. Integrative Social Science (3 units)

An upper division integrative course that investigates academic issues that transcend individual disciplines. The course should examine the relationships between two or more social science disciplines, compare their differing forms of inquiry, and reveal major social science research methodologies. A substantial research paper should be required of each student.

IV. HUMANITIES AND VISUAL AND PERFORMING ARTS

A. Humanities

1. Philosophy (3 units)
   A lower or upper division course that introduces students to the central philosophical problems of knowledge, truth, and reality. The course should emphasize epistemological issues such as the concepts, structures, and theories of knowledge and the values, attitudes, and methods that guide and influence the acquisition of knowledge.

2. Ethics, Values, and Religion (3 units)
   A lower or upper division course that examines key issues of ethics, values, and religion. The course should incorporate multicultural, gender, and international perspectives and have a wide historical scope. The course should include an examination of ethical systems, how religions have defined what is ultimately important and enduring, and how these ethical and religious values have been expressed through rituals, symbols, and institutions. At the upper division, the course may focus on one of the major religions of the world or on the religious experiences of a particular major ethnic minority group in the United States. At the lower division, the course should be much broader in coverage, and, while a focus on the religions of the Western World or the Eastern World would be acceptable, a narrower focus would not be acceptable.

B. Visual and Performing Arts (6 units)

At least one of the two courses selected in this section must be in the upper division, and no more than one of the courses may focus on the art, music, or theatre of an ethnic minority group or of Mexico.

Lower or upper division courses that introduce students to the basic concepts of perception, history, interpretation, and criticism in the visual and performing arts disciplines of art, music, and theatre. Students should select two courses that together provide coverage of two or more of these disciplines. Each course should have the goals of heightening the student's aesthetic perception and developing the student's aesthetic values. A studio or performance component may be included if it facilitates these goals. As long as the course provides the coverage described above, it may focus on the art, music, or theatre of a major ethnic minority group in the United States or on a major region of the non-Western world (i.e. Latin America, Africa, or Asia).

V. THE CHILD (Credential Option)

A. Visual and Performing Arts and the Child (9 units)

Three upper division courses that emphasize the importance of the visual and performing arts in the life and development of elementary school age children. Each course should aim to enhance the student's (1) aesthetic perception, (2) knowledge of the arts within historical and cultural contexts, (3) artistic skills and creative expression, and (4) aesthetic values and critical judgment. To facilitate these goals, each course should include a studio/laboratory component as well as a lecture/discussion component. Multicultural, gender, and international perspectives should also be provided in each course. The requirement should be structured so that through their selection of three courses, the students will receive intensive instruction in three of the four arts disciplines (art, dance, music, and theatre).

B. Children's Literature (3 units)

An upper division course on literature written for children. The course should aim to develop students' aesthetic, ethical, and cultural insights through study, discussion, and evaluation of works in various genres—fables, fiction, poetry, drama, and biography. The course should reinforce students' understanding of literary concepts such as plot, character, theme, and style by applying them to works read. Though the course may emphasize the literature of a particular culture/ethnic group, a significant part of the course should expose students to the abundant multicultural literature available for and about children from other ethnic and/or national backgrounds.

C. Physical Education for Children (3 units)

An upper division course on physical education that emphasizes physical fitness and movement skills of elementary school age children. The course should include an observation and activity/laboratory component.

D. The Ethnic Child (3 units)

An upper division course that focuses on the social and psychological growth and development of the Chicano, Black, or Asian-American child. This course must meet the University's multicultural requirement for credential candidates, section A.

E. Child Development (3 units)

A lower or upper division course that deals with the study of intellectual, social, physical, moral, and emotional development during childhood, with an emphasis on the elementary school age child.

F. Field Experience in the Public School (2 units)

An upper division practicum-type course that requires prospective teachers to work with and observe children in a public school setting. The course should relate directly to one or more of the academic subjects commonly taught in the elementary schools and focus on how children learn that subject matter. The course should require at least 45 hours of field time (thereby meeting the early field experience requirement for admission to the University's Teacher Education Program), carry a prerequisite of the subject matter course in the major to which it is most closely related, and include on-campus meetings with a university instructor and possibly seminar meetings with the other students enrolled in the course. This two-unit requirement may be met with one enrollment in a 2-unit course, two separate enrollments in the same 1-unit course, or two enrollments in two different 1-unit courses.
V. INTERDISCIPLINARY CONCENTRATION (Non-Credential Option) (12 units)
A 12-unit package of courses that provides an interdisciplinary study of a particular subject, such as a single geographical region, a particular group of people (defined by a common culture, gender, or age-category), a broad category of science, or a particular category of human endeavor or behavior. The courses allowed in each concentration should be prescribed, and, when appropriate, students may be given limited choices of courses. The courses should normally be in the upper division, unless otherwise justified. Where possible, the courses should roughly define the range of content of the subject.

VI. CONCENTRATION (Credential Option) (12 units)
A 12-unit package of prescribed courses that provides the student with a depth of understanding in a particular discipline or subject area that is commonly taught in elementary school. The courses in each package must be coherently related to each other with the aim of defining the range of content, the basic methodological and philosophical structure, and the ethical dimensions of the discipline or subject area. The courses should normally be in the upper division, unless otherwise justified. Each concentration should include a capstone or seminar course which requires the production of a significant research paper or other comparable project.

VI. DISCIPLINARY MINOR (Non-Credential Option) (18-42 units)
A package of courses that requires in-depth study of a category of reality from a single disciplinary perspective, with its prescribed and proven set of methodologies and paradigms. These courses should provide the student with a field of specialization in one of the traditional liberal arts disciplines. The student must complete a University-approved departmental minor from one of the following disciplines: Anthropology, Art, Biology, Chemistry, Classics, Computer Science, Economics, English, French, Geography, Geology, German, History, Italian, Linguistics, Mathematics, Philosophy, Physics, Political Science, Psychology, Religious Studies, Russian, Sociology, Spanish, Speech Communication, and Theatre. Excluded are the professional and technical programs; they fall outside of the liberal arts realm because of their highly specialized and often applied nature designed to meet the specific requirements of technical or professional training.

Foreword

On September 19, 1987, Assembly Bill 1759 was signed into law. This bill by Assemblyman Steve Clute revised the coursework requirement for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. The law also authorized the Commission on Teacher Credentialing to establish and implement standards for the evaluation and approval of these programs. This report describes how the Commission developed the standards, presents the standards and quality indicators adopted by the Commission, and describes the process for approval of Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs.

On March 4, 1988, the Commission adopted the Standards of Program Quality for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs that appear in Section 4 of this report. The Commission also adopted two changes in the Implementation Process that is described in Section 5. The timeline for implementation of the standards was moved back one year. The Commission also added a process for developing and approving alternate standards and quality indicators for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. The Commission decided to hold a public hearing to add the Standards of Program Quality to Title 5 of the California Administrative Code, and, the Commission authorized the dissemination of this report.

Introduction

The initial years of schooling influence the aspirations and achievements of all people. Early encounters with school subjects shape each child's subsequent academic successes and shortcomings. Interactions and relationships with teachers and classmates affect each young person's social growth and development. Communication skills, reasoning ability, physical capabilities, and personal character are also influenced by teaching and learning in elementary schools. The quality and effectiveness of elementary education are, therefore, of paramount importance to the public, and to education policymakers who serve public interests.

In most elementary school classrooms, one teacher is responsible for all (or nearly all) subjects of the curriculum. In some school districts, specialist teachers are still employed to move from classroom to classroom to teach particular subjects such as art, music, or physical education. The number of elementary specialist teachers has been declining in recent years, however, which has broadened the range of subjects that some elementary classroom teachers are responsible to teach. Even where specialist teachers are employed, elementary classroom teachers are expected to teach many subjects daily or weekly.

Classrooms in which one teacher is responsible for all (or nearly all) subjects are called "self-contained classrooms." In kindergarten and grades one through three, self-contained classrooms are universal, and they are extremely widespread in grades four through six. Some school districts continue to utilize self-contained classrooms in grades seven and eight. In September 1985, there were approximately 82,000 self-contained classrooms in California public schools.

The primary reason for the widespread use of self-contained classes is the prevailing assumption that young children need to identify with a single teacher who can nurture all aspects of their development and education. Whether the practice is justified or not, self-contained classroom teachers are expected to teach an enormous range of material, and to achieve a great variety of educational goals. Moreover, people commonly expect elementary school teachers to have an array of virtues and capacities that some "saints" may possess only partially!

The Ryan Act of 1970 established the Multiple Subjects Teaching Credential for prospective teachers of self-contained classrooms. Previous laws required elementary teaching candidates to earn General Elementary Teaching Credentials (prior to 1960) or Standard Elementary Teaching Credentials (prior to 1970). If two-thirds of the 82,000 self-contained classrooms are currently staffed by teachers who hold Multiple Subjects Credentials, then this credential is being used by more public school practitioners than any other credential issued by the Commission.

One of the legal requirements for earning the Multiple Subjects Credential is verification of subject matter knowledge. According to the Ryan Act, candidates can fulfill this requirement in two ways. First, a prospective elementary teacher can verify subject matter knowledge by passing a standardized examination that has been adopted by the Commission, and that encompasses English, social science, fine arts.
general science, and mathematics. Alternatively, a candidate can "waive" the examination and qualify for the Multiple Subjects Credential by successfully completing a "Diversified Liberal Arts Program" that has been approved by the Commission.

To administer the first option of the law, the Commission for many years relied on the "Commons" Section of the National Teacher Examination (NTE). When this examination was replaced by Educational Testing Service in 1983, the Commission appointed an advisory panel to review the General Knowledge Test of the NTE Core Battery for possible adoption by the Commission. Based on their professional judgments regarding what elementary teachers should know, and based on the requirements of the law, the advisory panel judged the new exam to be acceptable for use as a certification requirement for elementary teachers in California. Based on the panel's advice, the Commission adopted the General Knowledge Test of the NTE Core Battery, and adopted a passing score on it. During the four-year period from 1982-83 through 1985-86, the Commission granted Multiple Subjects Credentials to 6,477 candidates who qualified by passing an examination adopted by the Commission.

To administer the second option of the law, the Commission approves "Diversified Liberal Arts Programs" in accredited colleges and universities throughout California. These programs are the primary subject of the present report. Sixty-five institutions currently offer Diversified Liberal Arts Programs. Not all institutions refer to the programs as "Diversified Liberal Arts Programs," however. For this reason, and because completion of an approved program "waives" the subject matter examination, the Commission has traditionally referred to these programs as Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. This term will be used throughout the remainder of the report.

The law requires the Commission to review and approve three categories of preparation programs for prospective teachers. Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs comprise one of these categories. To provide a context in which to consider the role and status of Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs, the three categories of programs are defined below, and the manner in which the Commission reviews programs in each category is described.

Professional Preparation Programs are the first category of teacher education programs. These programs are offered in departments of education, and include student teaching in public schools. Professional preparation programs require no more than one year of full-time study, because of a statutory limitation. To determine the status of professional preparation programs, the Commission has adopted standards of program quality and effectiveness, which have been drafted and developed in consultation with teachers, administrators, teacher educators, school board members, and parents. The Commission implements its standards by appointing teams of teachers, administrators, education professors, and community members to evaluate professional preparation programs on the basis of the standards. For seventeen years the Commission has considered the evaluation and approval of professional preparation programs for teachers to be among its most significant functions.

Single Subject Waiver Programs are the second category of teacher education programs. Completion of a Single Subject Waiver Program "waives" a subject matter examination and qualifies the candidate for a Single Subject Teaching Credential. Single Subject Waiver Programs are similar to undergraduate majors, because they concentrate on the individual subjects that candidates plan to teach in department-talized classrooms, which occur predominantly in secondary schools. The Commission requires each Single Subject Waiver Program to include forty-five semester-units of study in the subject to be taught, or in closely related fields. Forty-five semester-units are equivalent to one-and-one-half years of full-time study.
Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

To determine the status of Single Subject Waiver Programs, the Commission in 1982 adopted program requirements in each subject that were based on statewide data regarding what subjects are commonly taught in departmentalized classes in California schools. The Commission subsequently appointed panels of teachers, professors and curriculum specialists in each subject, whose function was to review all proposed programs on the basis of their professional judgments regarding adequate and appropriate preparation for secondary school teaching. In the course of their reviews of programs, the panels developed criteria for program approval which the Commission also adopted. The Commission continues to rely on the professional judgments of these panels, and considers the approval of Single Subject Waiver Programs to be one of its most important responsibilities under the law.

Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs are the third category of teacher education programs, and are the subject of this report. These programs are expected to provide collegiate instruction in the subjects that are commonly taught in California elementary schools. Completion of a Multiple Subjects Waiver Program waives the subject matter examination, and usually occurs before the candidate enters a professional preparation program. Waiver programs are designed to provide content knowledge of the subjects to be taught, while professional programs are expected to introduce candidates to the functions of schooling, and to provide entry-level teaching skills.

Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs include 84 semester-units of study, which is equivalent to nearly three years of full-time study. The majority of prospective elementary teachers complete Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs at California State University campuses. For example, in 1985-86, 3,972 persons demonstrated their subject matter competence by completing waiver programs. Seventy-one percent (2,803) of these students completed waiver programs at California State University campuses; 24% (986) completed programs at private or independent colleges or universities; and less than five percent (183) completed programs at University of California campuses.

During the four-year period from 1982-83 through 1985-86, the Commission granted Multiple Subjects Credentials to 14,636 candidates who qualified for their credentials by completing waiver programs. This means that 70% of the prospective elementary teachers who attended college in California verified their subject matter knowledge by completing the Commission's approved programs of subject matter study, which represented almost three-quarters of their undergraduate preparation. Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs are thus among the most important programs that the Commission reviews. Moreover, the bases on which the Commission approves these programs are among the most significant policies that the Commission adopts. Despite the significance of Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs, for seventeen years the Commission has reviewed this category of programs much less systematically than professional preparation programs or Single Subject Waiver Programs. Prior to the enactment of AB 1759 (Clute), the Commission required that colleges and universities submit lists of the courses to be included in the programs, along with short "catalog" descriptions of the courses. The Commission's staff reviewed the course lists and descriptions to verify that the proposed programs complied with the requirements of state law. Prior to 1988, the Commission had not adopted standards related to the quality of Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. Nor had the Commission appointed professional teachers, professors or curriculum specialists to review the programs or make recommendations to the Commission. The agency has never determined the status of Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs on the basis of educational standards or professional judgments. Instead, the agency has essentially neglected programs that are among the most important teacher preparation programs in California.

The present report culminates an effort by the Commission to adopt standards of program quality for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs, and to initiate a professional review process for these programs in the future. The following section describes this reform effort by the Commission.

Reform of Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

In 1981, the Commission staff reviewed the content of approved Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. Staff analyzed the 112 programs that existed at 62 colleges and universities at that time. Two primary conclusions about subject matter programs for elementary teachers emerged from that review.

(1) There is some congruence between the titles of courses in approved programs and the legally required distribution of studies in those programs, but the congruence might be more apparent than actual because course descriptions are sketchy.

(2) The Commission has no evidence that the content of approved subject matter programs is congruent with the subjects that are commonly included in the elementary curriculum, or with the content of the Commission-adopted subject matter exam, or with the knowledge that elementary educators consider essential for prospective classroom teachers to possess.

Disturbed by these findings, the Commission directed the staff to complete a study of subjects that are commonly taught in elementary schools. To determine the degree of congruence between the approved programs, the adopted examination, and the subjects that elementary classroom teachers commonly teach, the staff surveyed 2,000 teachers who were selected randomly from all self-contained classroom teachers in California. The report of this research was entitled Subjects Commonly Taught in California Schools: Implications for Teacher Preparation and Certification. One of its principal conclusions was that improvements in the subject matter preparation of elementary teachers must occur if the effectiveness of the elementary school curriculum is to improve. In September 1985, the Commission discussed and adopted this report and authorized the appointment of an advisory panel to examine the subject matter preparation of elementary teachers and to recommend improvements in that preparation to the Commission.
The Advisory Panel, whose names appear on Page 6, discussed the Commission's research, examined the curriculum frameworks and model curriculum standards of the State Department of Education, met with several leading educators, including the Superintendent of Public Instruction, read several reports on elementary curriculum, and discussed official statements by several professional organizations representing teachers of particular subjects. As a result of their deliberations, the Panel submitted a Report of the Advisory Panel on the Subject Matter Preparation of Elementary Teachers. In the report the Panel presented its vision of "the well educated person," offered a set of standards of program quality, recommended several special features for subject matter programs, developed guidelines regarding each subject of preparation, offered one prototype of a model program, and proposed changes in law and regulations related to the subject matter preparation of elementary teachers. In September 1986, the Commission accepted the Panel's report, authorized its distribution, and invited subject matter organizations, professional organizations, school districts, colleges and universities to discuss its contents and express their views to the Commission.

From October 1986, through February 1987, the Commission's staff met with 235 persons who were interested in discussing the Advisory Panel's report. The staff also presented the Panel's recommendations to several organizations whose conferences were attended by 219 persons. All of the discussions and comments regarding the Panel's report were recorded by the staff in a third report to the Commission, entitled The Subject Matter Preparation of Elementary Teachers: Report of Meetings to Discuss The Advisory Panel Report.

The Commission discussed this third report in April 1987, and directed the staff to (1) conduct a survey of existing waiver programs for prospective elementary teachers, and (2) distribute the report to more than 600 individuals, including:

- Members of the Commission's Advisory Panel
- The Superintendent of Public Instruction
- The Office of the California State University Chancellor
- The Office of the University of California President
- Academic Senate Officers in the Public University Systems
- Academic Vice Presidents in the Three University Systems
- All Deans of Education and Directors of Teacher Education
- County and School District Superintendents
- Director, California Postsecondary Education Commission
- Managers of State Department of Education Curriculum Units
- All persons who attended one of the regional meetings
- All persons who requested a copy of the report

From April to July of 1987, the staff continued to confer with the Advisory Panel, as well as many interested constituents. They suggested changes in the standards, examples, and quality indicators, and commented on the proposed plan to implement the standards. Based on these recommendations, the staff prepared a fourth report, Elementary Subject Matter Preparation: Survey Results, Revised Standards and Proposed Implementation Plan. This report contained an updated analysis of the 109 approved programs at 65 colleges and universities, presented a revised set of standards along with proposed quality indicators for each standard, and offered a proposed implementation plan.

On September 4, 1987, the Commission adopted the implementation plan and authorized distribution of the standards and quality indicators for further discussion. In September 1987, the staff distributed 800 copies of the fourth report to interested constituents. The Commission also held two regional meetings, which 100 persons attended, to discuss the implementation plan, standards and quality indicators. In response to the fourth report, the Commission's office received 92 letters, which were presented to the Commission on March 3, 1988, and are available from the Commission office upon request.

The staff also met three times with an Advisory Committee that was assembled by the California State University Chancellor's Office, twice with representatives of the University of California President's office, and twice with representatives of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

On December 8, a review committee assembled in Sacramento to try to reach consensus on the proposed standards and quality indicators. This committee included the following persons.

Many points of agreement were reached at this day-long meeting. The standards and quality indicators were amended by the review committee; a record of their deliberation is available from the Commission's office. The proposed standards in Section 4 of this document reflect the consensus of the review committee, as well as many recommendations by the CSU Chancellor's Advisory Committee, the UC President's Office, and the Superintendent's staff.

In summary, the proposed Standards of Program Quality for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs underwent 14 printed revisions. Hundreds of interested persons contributed to the development of the standards during 1986-87 and 1987-88. The standards were the subject of much discussion and compromise. The level of commitment by all participants speaks to the importance that these people attached to the subject matter preparation of elementary teachers.
Revision of the Laws Related to Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

Section 44314 of the Education Code was originally enacted in 1968 to govern the approval of Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. By 1987, this statute had become out-of-date. Section 44314 also did not allow sufficient flexibility to colleges and universities to design imaginative programs, and did not authorize the Commission to review programs based on standards of quality.

The 1968 law required programs to consist of exactly 84 semester units (or equivalent quarter units), which were equally divided into four subject areas. The statute also had become out-of-date in relating to the elementary school curriculum. It omitted some subjects like physical education and earth science that elementary teachers often teach.

As a result of the perceived shortcomings in this statute, the Commission sponsored AB 1759 (Clute) in 1987. With the support of several subject matter organizations, this bill was passed by the Assembly and Senate (including four committees) without one negative vote. On September 19, 1987, Governor Deukmejian signed AB 1759, which became Chapter 832 of the Statutes of 1987.

Education Code Section 44314, as amended in 1987, states:

44314. A "diversified" or "liberal arts" program is any program that has been approved by the commission on the basis of standards adopted by the commission.

(a) An approved program shall consist of a minimum of eighty-four (84) semester-units, or equivalent quarter-units, including, but not limited to, language studies, literature, mathematics, science, social science, history, humanities, the arts, physical education, and human development.

(b) The commission shall establish standards for "diversified" or "liberal arts" programs, or equivalent programs that waive the subject matter examination for multiple subjects instruction.

AB 1759 also requires that the Commission "shall adopt standards and promulgate regulations to implement this act on or before July 1, 1988, after which the Commission shall begin to review and approve diversified or liberal arts programs on the basis of the standards and regulations." The Standards of Program Quality in Section 4 of this report are designed to fulfill the mandate of AB 1759. The complete text of AB 1759 may be found in the Appendix at the end of this report.

Section 4 of this report was approved by the Commission on March 4, 1988. The staff has begun the process of adding the Standards of Program Quality to the California Administrative Code, Title 5. Regulations will be brought to the Commission for approval at a public hearing in the Summer of 1988.
Section 2
Review of Related Studies

During the 1980's, many reports have called for reform of schooling in general and teacher preparation in particular. The Commission's staff has kept abreast of the proposals emanating from the various reform efforts, and has incorporated many of their recommendations in the Multiple Subjects Waiver Program Standards. To provide a context for the standards in Section 4, the following pages review the recommendations in selected reports that pertain to the subject matter preparation of prospective teachers.

California Reports

In 1986, Chancellor Anne Reynolds of the California State University initiated a process to improve the education of prospective teachers within the CSU system. One purpose of this initiative was to make teacher preparation an all-university responsibility rather than resting solely with schools of education. Chancellor Reynolds pointed out "that most (80%) of the postsecondary education of prospective teachers takes place in schools and departments of the university other than the School of Education."

In the past two years, Chancellor Reynolds has issued a series of executive orders and initiatives to support and encourage the improvement of teacher preparation programs. One example is an executive order which requires each CSU campus to assess the subject matter competence of prospective teachers. Another is a requirement for early field experiences for prospective teachers. These initiatives served as a source of ideas for the Commission's staff as the Standards of Program Quality were being developed. In Section 4, the Commission has included standards that complement the work of the Chancellor's office.

In June 1986, the University of California Task Force on Lower Division Education issued its report on Lower Division Education in the University of California. The Task Force, chaired by Professor Neil Smelzer, pointed out the dangers of the "spiral of knowledge that is increasingly technical, specialized, and fragmented. These developments have raised questions if not posed threats to the general mission of the University by tilting it in the direction of vocationalism, specialization, and science at the expense of the liberal arts and humanistic learning."

The Task Force suggested several ways to confront these challenges, including:

- Campuses should develop and offer general education courses of an integrative or synthetic character in both their lower and upper divisions.

- Campuses should develop curricular changes and other policies that enhance the international, multicultural, and global learning experiences of students.
Departments should assign their most brilliant and effective teaching faculty, regardless of title and rank, to large, introductory lower division courses.

In July 1987, the Commission for the Review of the Master Plan for Higher Education issued The Master Plan Reviewed: Unity, Equity, Quality, and Efficiency in California Postsecondary Education. The recommendations of the Master Plan Commission, particularly Recommendation 13--The Mission of the Undergraduate Curriculum, and Recommendation 4--Transfer from Community Colleges, are consistent with several of the Standards of Program Quality for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs, specifically those standards related to the Content of the Program and Essential Features of the Program (Pages 24-33). Among the Master Plan Commission's statements and recommendations were the following:

- The undergraduate curriculum, particularly at the lower division level, is frequently fragmented and incoherent. General liberal arts and sciences education has been lost in this era of undergraduate specialization. Teaching is often neglected, and faculty and teaching assistants are not trained to teach.

- General education has been neglected in the undergraduate curriculum. The purpose of undergraduate education is to prepare students to lead full, productive, and useful lives and the flexibility to adapt to changing economic and social conditions, new work-force needs, and demands of a multicultural society. General education must, therefore, help students to develop critical thinking, creativity, adaptability, and intellectual flexibility. The experience must draw not only on western historical and philosophical traditions, but also on the traditions of the broader world community and California's new citizens. It must provide the foundations of scientific theory and methods and the ideas, issues, and controversies of technology. Ultimately, it should create common cultural frames of reference that are civilizing influences on society as a whole. It should include language study and instruction in the thought and history of other cultures. And it should teach the value and importance of public service.

Because as many as 70% of the students who complete a Multiple Subjects Waiver Program begin their college education in a community college, links between community colleges and four-year institutions need to be strong. Standard 11 in Section 4 of this report relates to the need to facilitate transfers from community colleges to four-year institutions. In Recommendation 4--Transfer from Community Colleges, The Master Plan Commission made the following recommendation.

- The University of California and the California State University shall require students who are not regularly eligible for admission as freshmen (other than those admitted under special provisions) to complete the intersegmentally developed transfer core curriculum at a Community College. Those who complete the required courses with the requisite grade point average shall then be assured access to the California State University system or the University of California system as transfer students with full degree credit for that coursework.
Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

The Board of Governors of the California Community Colleges shall have the authority and responsibility to guarantee that all Community College students have access to courses that meet the lower-division baccalaureate degree requirements of California public universities. The Board, with the cooperation of the University of California Regents and the California State University Trustees, shall make sure that students are clearly and fully informed as to which Community College courses and units are transferable and that requirements in the Community Colleges correspond to the requirements for, entry to, and success in, upper-division coursework.

The governing boards of the University of California, the California State University, the California Community Colleges, and the Association of Independent California Colleges and Universities and the State Board of Education shall be accountable for the implementation of formal systemwide articulation agreements and comparable course numbering systems within and among the segments as developed through the articulation mechanism to be established by the California Education Round Table.

The Governor and Legislature shall provide the financial support necessary for the Community Colleges to offer comprehensive transfer programs and supporting services essential to an effective transfer function.

National Reports

Several of the national reports on educational reform have recently made a strong case for the importance of teachers to be well-educated with extensive subject matter preparation. A Nation at Risk by the National Commission on Excellence in Education emphasized the importance of a liberal education.

Knowledge of the humanities ... must be harnessed to science and technology if the latter are to remain creative and humane just as the humanities need to be informed by science and technology if they are to remain relevant to the human condition.

In a world of ever-accelerating competition and change in the conditions of the workplace, of ever-greater danger, and of ever-larger opportunities for those prepared to meet them, educational reform should focus on the goal of creating a Learning Society. At the heart of such a society is the commitment to a set of values and to a system of education affords all members the opportunity to stretch their minds to full capacity, from early childhood through adulthood, learning more as the world itself changes. Such a society has as a basic foundation the idea that education is important not only because of what it contributes to one's career goals but also because of the value it adds to the general quality of one's life. Also at the heart of the Learning Society are educational opportunities extending far beyond the traditional institutions of learning, our schools and colleges. They extend into home and workplaces; into libraries, art galleries, museums, science centers; indeed, into every place where the individual can develop and mature in work and life. In our view, formal schooling in youth is the essential foundation for learning throughout one's life. But without life-long learning, one's skills will become rapidly dated.

The Holmes Group, a consortium of education deans and academic officers from major research universities across the nation, stressed the importance of strong undergraduate education in teacher preparation. The Carnegie Forum on Education and the Economy emphasized the importance of subject matter knowledge and recommended that subject matter competence be assessed.

American Memory, a report sponsored by the National Endowment for the Humanities, also underscored the importance of content knowledge for future teachers. The Report referred to teachers as the transmitters of our culture, and offered this observation on the training of teachers.

Securing and sustaining good teachers will require commitment from humanities faculties at colleges and universities. Future teachers must be of concern to them in a way they have not always been in the past. Observed Iowa teacher Richard Peters, "In college I was taught in very fine manner by my history teachers, but none of them felt that what I was going to do was important. They wanted to prepare me for graduate school, which was fine, but I wanted to be a high school teacher."

The ongoing intellectual lives of teachers must also be of concern to institutions of higher education. Faculty at many colleges and universities have taken part in programs that bring them together with teachers in classrooms, seminars, and institutes. Reports of these experiences are almost universally positive: Teachers profit from time spent studying the Odyssey or Othello; faculty members profit from time spent with intelligent, committed students who are also dedicated teachers.
Section 3
Goals and Potential Impact of this Reform Effort

In 1986, the Commission adopted a set of goals and objectives for the next five years. Goal 1, Objective 2 reads as follows.

Goal One: Standards of Competence and Quality

By 1990, the Commission on Teacher Credentialing will adopt and implement new standards of individual competence and program quality in each credential category. The standards will be consistent with the results of research and the advice of experts and practitioners, will encourage diversity and experimentation while fostering excellence, and will be used as a basis for certification and program eligibility.

Objective 2.

The Commission will adopt a new set of standards of program quality to serve as a basis for evaluating programs of subject matter preparation for the Multiple Subjects and Single Subject Teaching Credentials.

When the Commission adopted the Standards of Program Quality for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs on March 4, 1988, the Commission achieved a major objective that it set for itself in 1986. Moreover, the Commission's standards were drafted with the goals of elementary education in mind. This section of the report describes the educational goals that the standards in Section 4 are designed to achieve in the elementary schools of California. Section 3 concludes with an analysis of the impact, including the potential fiscal impact, of the standards in Section 4.

In its report on the Subject Matter Preparation of Elementary Teachers, the Commission's Advisory Panel offered its thoughts on the quality of education that should be available to California's youth. The Panel also described the kind of education that will enable prospective elementary teachers to produce high quality learning opportunities for students. Their recommendations served as the foundation for the Standards of Program Quality in Section 4, as well as the provisions of AB 1759. The Panel's recommendations are quoted below.

A Vision of Elementary Education

The preparation and assessment of elementary teachers should be governed by a vision of the quality of life in elementary schools and classrooms. Above all, these schools and classrooms must be interesting environments that tap children's curiosity and whet their appetite to learn and grow. They must be settings in which teachers and students participate in all aspects of learning: where teachers continue to learn along with their students.
The elementary school experience should be the outset of a lifetime of learning for each child. For this reason, the elementary curriculum must be broad in scope and multidisciplinary in nature. Each subject of this curriculum should contribute to the fundamental education of young children. Relationships among the subjects should be clearly identified and defined so the education of children is complete and cohesive.

In elementary classrooms, children should experience the best writers and writing. The curriculum should include great literature by and about men, women, boys and girls of many cultures, occupations and regions. Meanwhile, children should experience opportunities to express ideas in writing. Indeed, opportunities to read and write should occur throughout the curriculum.

Young children should come to realize what mathematics is and how it can be used. They need opportunities to manipulate objects, solve problems, and draw on their own experiences as they learn to count, sort, and compute. The curriculum should emphasize conceptual understanding and the mastery of rules and operations. Above all, mathematics should be engaging, challenging and enjoyable in elementary schools.

Elementary students should also develop an understanding of how the human world fits together. They need to investigate fundamental processes of human society, government, history, and economics. Future citizens of a democratic republic must master fundamental activities such as observing, explaining, and applying concepts and information. Moreover, personal values develop in the schools of any community; elementary schools should have an explicit role in shaping the character and ethics of all young people.

Exploration and discovery should also occur as children experience their natural environment and the scientific study of it. During the years in which children wonder why things are as they are, they should use their senses and minds to frame questions and conceive explanations for physical and biological events. Relationships between humans and the surrounding universe must also be examined and understood.

Elementary schools should provide many opportunities for all children to express themselves in music, drama, dance and the visual arts. Equally important are experiences that shape each child's aesthetic knowledge, awareness and appreciation. The elementary arts curriculum should initiate a lifelong critical sensitivity to aesthetic elements of the general environment such as color, tone, role, movement, and composition.

During the years of energetic growth, children must experience physical activities that sustain and foster their fitness and wellness. They should explore and extend the limits of their strength, agility and stamina. In the course of their physical education, they must learn to cooperate and compete, negotiate rules and disputes, and enjoy the results of physical effort.

Individually and collectively, all elements of the elementary curriculum must be educational in the most fundamental sense. Each school's curriculum must be designed and constructed to enable children to become educated adults, literate citizens and productive members of their communities. Different curricula can be effective but each curriculum must reflect an image of how children become educated persons.
Different schools can be effective, but the teachers in each school must be educated adults whose preparation itself reflects a vision of what elementary schools and classrooms are for.

Subject Matter Preparation: The Well-Educated Teacher

The Advisory Panel stressed that the ultimate goal of a Multiple Subjects Waiver program is to develop a broad understanding of the world and its structure and dynamics. Prospective elementary teachers need solid subject knowledge as a foundation for their teaching. Their education needs to stress the importance of ideas and discover how the many forms of human inquiry coexist and cohere with each other to yield the rich fabric of human knowledge.

Research on effective schools and teachers has made a very strong case for the importance of a strong sense of efficacy in teachers. The belief by the teacher that he or she can make a difference even with the most difficult or unmotivated students has been highly correlated with the improved student performance (Berman, McLaughlin). The Advisory Panel believed that a sense of efficacy begins with a belief by the teacher that they have a strong background in the subjects they are asked to teach.

In addition to content knowledge, the candidates in a Multiple Subjects Waiver program need to understand the ethical dimensions of human life. They examine their own lives and values and ponder the world in which they live. More than being knowledgeable about any particular subject, well-educated teachers possess characteristics such as compassion, empathy, enthusiasm, curiosity, patience, and humor. Being reflective, contemplative and willing to wrestle with ideas may be more important than being unusually intelligent.

The Advisory Panel felt that candidates must know and understand the subjects of the elementary curriculum with considerable breadth and depth. A solid base of subject matter knowledge is necessary as they make professional decisions about how to transform their own knowledge and make it understandable to children.

Well-educated teachers exercise professional judgment as they analyze situations, make decisions and resolve problems. They assess circumstances and issues confidently, but are willing to consider alternative perspectives. They skillfully make sense out of complexity, and are able to accommodate old ideas in the face of new information.

Finally, the Advisory Panel cited the importance of being eager, involved, and lifelong learners. It felt that perhaps the most crucial ingredient in an educated teacher's character is excitement about knowledge. In January 1985, Albert Shanker expressed this realization in an address to the National Press Club entitled A Call for Professionalism.

... even at the earliest grades, the motivation of a teacher to teach a child to read could not be very great if the teacher has not personally experienced the joy of reading great books. Motivation in teaching the elements of arithmetic could not be very great if at some point the teacher has not experienced the power of that knowledge.
Potential Impact of This Reform Effort

When the Commission initiated the present reform effort, one of the most important goals was to achieve a better alignment among the components of elementary education. Among these components are:

1. The statutes related to the subjects of study in elementary schools;
2. The subjects actually taught in elementary schools;
3. The assessment of student competence in public schools;
4. The university curriculum for prospective teachers;
5. The examination of teachers' subject matter competence; and
6. The expectations of policy makers for teachers and students.

One of the anticipated outcomes of this effort is closer alignment between the curriculum of elementary schools and the subject matter preparation of elementary teachers. An objective of the Commission in the near future is to bring the subject matter examination into congruence with the Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. One of the first steps in achieving alignment between the program option and the examination option is to set standards that clearly establish the knowledge that candidates are expected to possess.

In the attempt to achieve a better congruence among the components of elementary education, the Commission's staff requested the advice and solicited the cooperation of those who have a stake in the education of children and adolescents. Besides continued consultation with all branches of postsecondary education, the State Department of Education and several subject matter organizations were deeply involved in the deliberations.

The process of setting standards was a constant tug between opposing forces. For example, organizations representing the visual and performing arts wanted the laws and regulations regarding subject matter preparation to require that visual arts, music, and either dance or drama be included in every candidate's multiple subjects waiver program. On the other hand, university faculty and administrators argued for maximum flexibility in designing programs so they can build high quality programs and place students into courses where exemplary instruction occurs. In the development of the Standards of Program Quality, the Commission's staff attempted to include standards and quality indicators that would appeal to university administrators and faculty, and others that would appeal to advocates of particular subjects. For example, Standard 3 includes elements that were advocated by several groups. Quality Indicator 3.1 states that one of the criteria to be used by review teams will be the extent to which each program reflects the state curriculum frameworks, and Quality Indicator 3.7 refers to elements that are in the Visual and Performing Arts Framework. On the other hand, proposed Standard 3 does not require that specific courses or specific subjects be included, to enable universities to design programs based on their vision of the well-educated person and the strengths of their faculty.
Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

Having adopted the Standards of Program Quality in Section 4, the Commission must assure that Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs include coursework in the arts, as required by Education Code 44314, and ensure that each program meets the twelve standards. How an institution meets those standards, and which specific courses are selected either as requirements or as electives, are the prerogatives of the university.

The visual and performing arts are very important subjects. So are the subjects advocated by organizations that represent science, mathematics, reading, social studies, physical education and foreign language teachers. However, if the Commission prescribes the courses that are proposed by the subject matter organizations, there would be little room for electives in each candidate's program, and little flexibility for an institution to select the most challenging curriculum for its candidates. In fact, if the Commission adopted, carte blanche, the recommendations of all of the national subject matter organizations, a Multiple Subjects Waiver Program would be nearly six years long.

Potential Fiscal Impact of this Effort

The standards in Section 4 will require the faculties of most institutions to make at least minor changes in their Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. In some cases the programs will need to make major changes. The coursework requirements in AB 1759 will require most institutions to add new courses or adapt existing courses. For example, information that was gathered during the Spring of 1987 indicates that less than 20% of the current programs have a physical education requirement. Only 25% of the programs have a humanities requirement. Coursework in both of these subjects is now required by Education Code 44314. Although some universities may have to add or revise some courses to meet the requirements of AB 1759 and the Proposed Standards of Program Quality, it is expected that enrollments in these courses, and the payment of tuition by candidates, will cover the costs of these courses.

Based on the recommendations of hundreds of persons who have assisted the Commission in this effort, the proposed Standards of Program Quality require certain elements to be included in every program: careful advisement, effective coordination, early field experiences, and systematic assessment of candidates. Many quality programs already include some or all of these elements. In other programs, these elements will need to be improved or developed. For example, Standard 7 requires field experiences for all Multiple Subjects Waiver Program candidates. The placement of candidates and the coordination of field activities will require added staff time in many cases. Standard 11 requires more candidate advisement than some programs have been offering. Standard 12 requires an assessment of the subject matter competence of all candidates. Finally, Standard 10 requires effective coordination of all aspects of the program. These standards are likely to increase faculty work load. The process of developing or revising programs, writing program documents and undergoing program review will also constitute additional expenses for institutions.
Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

The extent to which institutions have to allocate new resources to meet the requirements of AB 1759 and the Standards of Program Quality will require careful study. This study will be similar to that conducted by the Commission when it recently implemented new computer education coursework requirements, faculty participation requirements, and pupil personnel services program requirements. During the process of adopting regulations, this fiscal review routinely occurs after the Commission conducts a public hearing. At that time the Commission will develop a detailed account of the fiscal impact of the proposed standards, in consultation with the Department of Finance and appropriate representatives of the CSU Chancellor’s office and the UC President’s office.

It is likely that the public university systems will request additional funds from the Legislature to meet the added costs of the standards. The Commission’s staff believes that good programs cost money, and the Commission should support requests by the California State University and the University of California to defray the additional costs of operating redesigned programs.

The approval of Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs is one of the most important functions of the Commission. The importance of this function was re-emphasized by AB 1759, which the Commission sponsored. Additional staff time and travel will be required for the approval of Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. During the next three years, approximately one-quarter to one-third of a consultant position will be required to implement the proposed standards for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. This time includes:

1. Developing Title 5 Regulations;
2. Assisting program developers;
3. Training review teams;
4. Coordinating program review team activities; and
5. Presenting approval recommendations to the Commission.
Section 4

Standards of Program Quality
for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

Preamble

Candidates for the Multiple Subjects Teaching Credential can verify their subject matter competence in two ways. Under state laws, they can pass a subject matter examination that has been adopted by the Commission on Teacher Credentialing. Alternatively, they can waive this exam by completing a subject matter preparation program that has been approved by the Commission. To be approved by the Commission, a subject matter preparation program must satisfy each standard of program quality in this section. To receive initial program approval by the Commission, each institution must present an explanation of how each standard will be met. On a periodic basis, the Commission will review each approved program to evaluate the evidence provided by the institution that each standard is being achieved.

Upon completion of a Multiple Subjects Waiver Program, candidates should know the subjects that are commonly taught in public elementary schools, as those subjects are reflected in the state's Curriculum Frameworks (Grades K-12), Model Curriculum Guides (K-8), and Model Curriculum Standards (9-12). The standards for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs do not include a specific number of required credits or units in any discipline. The standards do identify certain themes and subjects that must be included in every program. The specific courses, their content, and their unit values are determined by each institution of higher education.

Because prospective elementary teachers must possess a working knowledge of a broad range of subjects, coursework in Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs must be wide-ranging. Prospective elementary teachers also benefit from depth of knowledge. As a result of the need for breadth and depth, a Waiver Program may consume most of the credit hours in an undergraduate education. Education Code Section 44314, as amended in 1987, requires that each program consist of a minimum of 84 semester units or the equivalent. Given this legal minimum, the numbers of credit units may vary considerably from one program to another. Regardless of their length, programs that satisfy the legal requirements and the Commission's standards of program quality will be approved.

At some institutions, general education courses have not been included in Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs in the past. The Commission believes that courses that meet an institution's general education requirement for baccalaureate degrees may be appropriate for inclusion in Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs, if the courses are consistent with the standards of program quality.
Moreover, the content and quality of the courses in a program are more important than the placement of those courses in various departments at the institution. The Commission approves Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs on the basis of the standards of program quality. Approved programs may include coursework in any college, school, department or unit, including (but not limited to) arts and sciences, behavioral sciences, education, engineering, humanities, and letters and sciences.

The statutory authority of the Commission relates to programs that waive the subject matter examination that is required for teacher certification. Colleges and universities govern academic degree programs, including undergraduate majors. Each institution decides whether to grant baccalaureate degrees to students who complete its approved waiver programs.

Although approved Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs meet the requirements for the subject matter preparation of elementary teachers, in general the coursework in these programs should not be designed specifically for prospective teachers. Students who are preparing for a variety of careers enrich the education of all who enroll in programs of subject matter preparation for teachers. A diverse student body fosters openness to different perspectives and respect for human similarities and differences. For these reasons, the Commission encourages institutions to design Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs so students with other professional goals may be interested in pursuing them, along with future elementary teachers.

All coursework in a Multiple Subjects Waiver Program must predominantly be explorations of specific subject matter. Professional education courses should not be included as part of waiver programs, but may be offered concurrently with coursework in waiver programs. Based on Education Code Section 44203(d), the Commission defines professional education courses as courses in which:

(a) candidates predominantly study and practice ways of teaching classes and organizing curricula in elementary and secondary schools, or

(b) candidates predominantly study concepts, information or principles that are presented as bases for effective school practices and that are presented especially for candidates to learn as prospective teachers.

In some subjects, such as visual arts, performing arts, and physical education, how candidates learn to do particular activities or skills are critical elements in learning the subject, and are therefore considered to be aspects of subject matter preparation instead of professional preparation.

Courses in professional education, as defined above, must be included within the legal maximum of twelve semester units of professional preparation courses prior to student teaching, regardless of what departments are responsible for the courses. Courses in professional education should be included in professional preparation programs when institutions propose such programs for initial approval, and when evaluation teams visit such programs for continued approval by the Commission.
Finally, institutions need not organize their Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs along traditional disciplinary lines. The courses in an approved program could be grouped under headings such as "The Individual and Society," or "The Natural World." Similarly, an entire program could have an underlying theme such as environmental studies or Latin American studies.

Definitions of Key Terms

Program Review

Program review is the process that is used by the Commission to confirm that academic programs in postsecondary institutions satisfy the standards of the Commission. The review process has two components: initial program approval and periodic program evaluation.

Initial Program Approval

Initial program approval occurs when the Commission examines new or revised programs, and determines that they meet Commission standards. Initial reviews of subject matter waiver programs are conducted by teams that examine proposals presented by colleges and universities. Review teams consist of elementary teachers and administrators, curriculum specialists and university professors. One review team considers programs proposed by institutions in northern California, while a second team examines proposals by universities in southern California. Both teams meet away from the colleges and universities whose programs are being reviewed.

Periodic Program Evaluation

Program evaluation occurs on a periodic basis to ensure that approved programs continue to fulfill the standards of the Commission. Each subject matter waiver program is evaluated by a team that visits the institution and collects information from program participants. Evaluation teams consist of elementary teachers and administrators, curriculum specialists and university professors.

Professional Preparation Programs

Professional preparation programs provide skills and knowledge in professional education that are needed by candidates for teaching or services credentials. These programs include coursework in pedagogy, methodology and educational foundations, as well as field experiences in which candidates perform the major responsibilities that are authorized by credentials. Instruction and field experiences in professional preparation programs should provide a theoretical background, a conceptual framework, skills and knowledge, along with opportunities to apply and practice the skills and knowledge in public schools. The Commission has published its standards for professional preparation programs in other documents. The present document relates to subject matter preparation programs, which are defined next.
Subject Matter Preparation Programs

Subject matter preparation programs educate candidates in the subjects that are commonly taught in California schools. Completion of these programs waives the standardized subject matter examination that the Commission has adopted. For this reason, these programs are often called "waiver" programs. There are two kinds of subject matter waiver programs: Single Subject Waiver Programs and Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. The former are for candidates for single subject teaching credentials, which authorize teaching in departmentalized classes. Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs are for candidates for multiple subjects teaching credentials, which authorize instruction in self-contained classes. The Commission has published its standards for Single Subject Waiver Programs in other documents. The present document relates to Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs, which are defined more fully below.

Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs are subject matter preparation programs that waive the standardized examination that the Commission has adopted for candidates for Multiple Subjects Credentials. Education Code Section 44314, as amended in 1987, requires that Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs (1) meet the Commission's standards of program quality, (2) be at least 84 semester units (or equivalent quarter units), and (3) include coursework in language, literature, mathematics, science, social science, history, the arts, humanities, physical education and human development.

The Education Code refers to Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs as Diversified Liberal Arts Programs. Some institutions have adopted this title for their programs. Other institutions have adopted other titles. The titles of programs are determined by post-secondary institutions. The Commission determines whether programs waive the subject matter examination on the basis of the Commission's standards, regardless of the programs' titles.

Candidate

A candidate is a graduate or undergraduate student who is preparing for certification as a teacher or other professional educator. In this document, the term "candidates" refers to prospective elementary school teachers who are enrolled in approved Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs.

Concentration

A concentration is a sequence of courses that adds depth to a candidate's preparation in one subject of study. Concentrations are the subject of Standard 4 in this document. The courses that comprise a candidate's concentration must be coherently related to each other, but need not be in the same academic department.
Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

Standard

A standard is a statement of program quality that must be fulfilled for initial or continued approval of the program by the Commission. The Commission determines whether a program satisfies a standard on the basis of a consideration by the review or evaluation team of all available information related to the standard.

Rationale

For each standard of program quality, the Commission provides a rationale, which states the reasons for adopting the standard, and suggests the scope of the standard.

Quality Indicators

Quality indicators are criteria that the Commission uses to judge whether each standard is met. Within the scope of a standard, each indicator defines a dimension along which programs vary in quality. To emphasize this fact, each quality indicator begins with the phrase, "The extent to which ..."

The purposes of quality indicators are to identify the aspects of standards that the Commission considers to be most critical, and to guide the review or evaluation team in examining the quality of a program.

The quality indicators in this document were adopted by the Commission on March 4, 1988. To enable a review team to understand a program fully, a college or university may identify additional quality indicators, and may describe how the program responds to these quality indicators. Colleges and universities may also submit alternative quality indicators and/or alternative standards which may be approved by the Commission in place of the standards and/or quality indicators in this document. This process is described in Section 5.

The Commission expects the review or evaluation team to consider all of the quality indicators related to a standard in conjunction with each other, in order to determine holistically whether a program meets the standard. In considering the several quality indicators for a standard, excellence in relation to one indicator compensates for less attention to another. Although the Commission expects a college or university to respond to all of the quality indicators for each standard, if an institution determines that a particular quality indicator is not consistent with its conception of a well-educated person or its educational priorities, then the institution may state why that quality indicator is not a good basis for evaluating that program.

Examples

Examples are provided by the Commission to illustrate and describe different ways in which programs could satisfy a standard, or respond to a quality indicator. (Examples are not included in this draft of the document because they are still under development.)
Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

Standards of Program Quality

Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

Category I. Content of the Program.

Standard 1. Philosophy and Focus.

Each program is based on a conception of a well-educated person. Throughout the program, there is a focus on significant ideas, structures and values within the various disciplines. Ethical, moral and practical implications of significant ideas are also examined.

Rationale for Standard 1

A program that is based explicitly on a vision of a well-educated person is most likely to be effective in achieving that vision. The knowledge that is most worth learning and knowing consists of the ideas, structures and values that are most significant to the disciplines of collegiate study. By giving emphasis to the ethical, moral and practical implications of ideas, programs are most vital and interesting to contemporary students.

Quality Indicators for Standard 1

1.1 The extent to which the institution articulates and the program represents a philosophy or a vision of the kind of education that each candidate is expected to experience.

1.2 The extent to which coursework throughout the program emphasizes the study of broad concepts and principles that encompass and illuminate extensive domains of human learning.

1.3 The extent to which the coursework in the program reflects an "intellectual scaffolding" and contains the critical structures, intellectual foundations, ideas, and elements of the disciplines being investigated.

1.4 The extent to which, throughout the program, candidates encounter and learn to recognize the values and attitudes that drive the disciplines being studied. (Examples of such values and attitudes include respect for evidence, openness to alternatives, tolerance for divergence, and recognition of the intrinsic importance of knowledge.)

1.5 The extent to which, throughout the program, candidates study and confront ethical and moral issues related to the subjects of study, and attempt to resolve such issues.
Standard 2. Character of Content.

Each program is academically rigorous and intellectually stimulating. Throughout the program, candidates are required to read major works; analyze, evaluate and apply ideas; express themselves skillfully; and utilize processes of inquiry.

Rationale for Standard 2

The goal of each program is to produce well-educated persons who exercise sound judgement as they analyze situations, make decisions, and resolve problems. The quality and effectiveness of the program depends on opportunities for candidates to be challenged intellectually, to experience the range of human knowledge, and to utilize effective communication skills, to make sense out of complexity.

Quality Indicators for Standard 2

2.1 The extent to which, throughout the program, candidates are required to engage in rigorous studies, and are expected to master content that challenges their intellectual capacities.

2.2 The extent to which candidates encounter academic tasks and cognitive activities that are designed to motivate candidates and stimulate their interest in the subjects to be learned.

2.3 The extent to which candidates are expected to study writings that have had a substantial impact in one or more disciplines.

2.4 The extent to which, throughout the program, candidates are required to write or speak articulately and (in appropriate areas) to express themselves creatively through non-verbal means.

2.5 The extent to which candidates have opportunities to generalize, infer, compare and contrast, make hypotheses, organize information and interpret its implications, write analytically, and use research evidence, intellectual reasoning, and personal judgment.

2.6 The extent to which, throughout the program, candidates examine the actual consequences of ideas that have changed the human condition.

Standard 3. Required Subjects of Study.

Each program fosters knowledge and understanding of the subjects that are commonly taught in elementary schools. Each program includes study of each subject that is required by Education Code Section 44314: language, literature, mathematics, science, social science, history, humanities, the arts, physical education, and human development.

Rationale for Standard 3

The dominant pattern of instruction in California elementary schools is the self-contained classroom in which one teacher is responsible for instruction in all or nearly all of the subjects of the curriculum. In an elementary classroom, the progress of students in learning the subjects of the curriculum depends greatly on the teacher's knowledge of those subjects. The curriculum of elementary education in California is best reflected by the state Curriculum Frameworks and Model Curriculum Guides that have been adopted by the State Board of Education and published by the State Department of Education. Although the waiver program curriculum must encompass the subjects that are commonly taught in elementary schools, the collegiate curriculum examines those subjects at levels of greater depth and complexity.

The subjects identified in the Quality Indicators for Standard 3 (below) are provided as a guide to teams that review or evaluate Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. The coursework in each individual candidate's program must include all of the subjects identified in Education Code Section 44314. Although all candidates should study the subjects that are commonly taught in elementary schools, a program should also be based on the institution's conception of a well-educated person. Each institution therefore has great latitude in determining which studies are necessary to realize the vision of a well-educated person.

Although Quality Indicator 3.1 anticipates that the program's curriculum reflects or builds upon the State Curriculum Frameworks and Model Curriculum Guides, the program curriculum is not expected to be aligned with all aspects of the state frameworks and guides. The term "major themes and emphases" in Quality Indicator 3.1 is intended to be a generic reference to the major organizers of the state frameworks and guides, rather than a reference to any particular themes or curricular headings.

In Quality Indicators 3.2 through 3.9, the Commission has grouped the subjects of study in categories that are identified in Education Code Section 44314. These categories may be modified at the discretion of each postsecondary institution. For example, health could be studied as part of science or human development, instead of within physical education; drama could be part of language studies instead of the arts; and foreign language could be studied as part of the humanities instead of language studies. Similarly, an institution might choose to add a quality indicator that separates the study of history from the social sciences, instead of combining them as the Commission has done in Quality Indicator 3.5. In all cases, the organization of a program's curriculum must be based on the institution's vision of a well-educated person.

3.1 The extent to which the program’s curriculum reflects or builds on the major themes and emphases of all adopted State Curriculum Frameworks and Model Curriculum Guides for elementary schools.

3.2 The extent to which the study of language includes such areas as literature, composition, foreign language, language acquisition, and/or speech, and is conceived as an integrated process for developing and mastering communication skills.

3.3 The extent to which the study of mathematics develops or builds upon knowledge of fundamental mathematical concepts and relationships, and problem solving abilities.

3.4 The extent to which the study of science includes such areas as biological science, earth and space science, and/or physical science, and includes examination and use of scientific methods.

3.5 The extent to which the study of history and the social sciences includes such areas as United States history and government, world history and culture, geography, economics, political science, psychology, sociology, and/or anthropology.

3.6 The extent to which the study of humanities includes such areas as philosophy, ethics, logic, classics, comparative literature, and/or comparative arts.

3.7 The extent to which the study of the visual and performing arts includes such areas as art, music, drama and/or dance, and includes production, history, aesthetics, and criticism.

3.8 The extent to which the study of physical education includes such areas as health and wellness, physical fitness, and/or movement skills.

3.9 The extent to which the study of human development includes such areas as intellectual, social, physical, emotional and/or moral development during childhood and adolescence.
Standard 4. Depth of Study.

In order to add depth to his or her knowledge of a subject, each candidate completes a concentration or a major in a discipline or an area of study. Each program offers a set of concentrations and/or majors, from which candidates choose. Each concentration or major relates to a subject area that is commonly taught in elementary schools (as identified in Standard 3) or a closely related area of study. Each concentration consists of a minimum of twelve semester units in courses that are coherently related to each other. Unless otherwise justified, the courses in a concentration are upper division courses. No course that is required of all candidates in the program may be included in any candidate's concentration.

Rationale for Standard 4

California elementary schools will be well served if each prospective teacher achieves a depth of understanding in a particular area or discipline. If each elementary school includes teachers who have completed extensive studies in particular areas, the schools could draw on distinct individual strengths as teachers plan curriculum, participate in staff development, and organize themselves to provide an effective educational program.

Quality Indicators for Standard 4

4.1 The extent to which the program offers concentrations or majors that relate to the major subjects of the elementary school curriculum (as these are identified in Standard 3).

4.2 The extent to which each concentration fosters understanding of the structure of knowledge and how it is generated in the area of concentration.

4.3 The extent to which each candidate who has a concentration completes a significant activity such as an independent study, production, performance, or project.
Category II. Essential Features of Program Quality.

Standard 5. Varied Teaching Strategies.

Each program includes coursework that utilizes a variety of teaching strategies. In the course of the program, each candidate applies academic learning to specific situations, problems and issues.

Rationale for Standard 5

Among the most powerful models of teaching for prospective elementary teachers are the professors they encounter in college classrooms. Course instructors who use varied teaching strategies that involve and challenge their students make coursework more interesting and understandable, and serve as examples to prospective teachers. Among the most effective teaching styles that candidates encounter are ones that lead them to utilize academic content knowledge in specific situations, to apply it to actual problems, and to relate it to significant issues.

Quality Indicators of Standard 5

5.1 The extent to which candidates participate in demonstrations, discussions, simulations, lectures and other effective and appropriate approaches to teaching, during coursework in the program.

5.2 The extent to which candidates encounter many kinds of out-of-class assignments during the program's coursework.

5.3 The extent to which practical applications of academic content are significant elements of courses in several disciplines.

5.4 The extent to which the program includes coursework that utilizes varied approaches to the measurement and evaluation of student attainments and achievements.
Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

Standard 6. Integrative Study.

Each program includes integrative study of two or more disciplines. Students examine relationships between the disciplines, synthesize their major themes, and compare their forms of inquiry.

Rationale for Standard 6

In a program that includes many different areas of study, students should confront intellectual issues that transcend individual disciplines. To become well-educated persons, candidates should examine relationships, similarities and differences among subjects. Integrative courses or other experiences enable candidates to synthesize the seemingly disparate threads of previously completed courses. Knowledge of relationships among disciplines is especially important for elementary teachers, who must be able to integrate several subjects in order to teach a comprehensive curriculum in each elementary school classroom.

Quality Indicators for Standard 6

6.1 The extent to which candidates have opportunities for integrative study that encompasses more than one of the subjects that are commonly taught in self-contained classrooms.

6.2 The extent to which several options for integrative study are available to candidates in the program.

6.3 The extent to which candidates analyze and compare the most significant themes, concepts, structures, ethical principles and forms of inquiry from the disciplines that are studied integratively.
Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

Standard 7. Field Experiences.

Each program offers opportunities for field experiences in schools and other public service agencies and institutions. During the program, each prospective teacher completes at least one significant experience in a school setting. Each experience is accompanied by discussions in which candidates analyze, compare and evaluate what they observe and learn in relation to their academic studies in the program.

Rationale for Standard 7

Students need a variety of contemporary experiences to link theory and practice, knowledge and application. The purpose of field experiences in Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs is to lead all students in the program to explore ways in which content knowledge is used in varied institutional settings. Prospective elementary teachers should work with children and youth in specific content areas. In addition to schools, other public service agencies and institutions are good settings for experiential learning that should be integrated with the rest of the Multiple Subjects Waiver Program.

Field experiences are beneficial as ways of making collegiate instruction more practical as well as academic. Field experiences help candidates to determine whether public service careers are suitable for them before they expend time and money in pursuit of any particular career.

Quality Indicators for Standard 7

7.1 The extent to which the program offers opportunities for significant experiences in a variety of school settings and other public service agencies and institutions.

7.2 The extent to which the accompanying discussions relate each candidate's field experience(s) to academic coursework in the program.

7.3 The extent to which candidates analyze, evaluate and compare their experiences with those of other students in the program.

7.4 The extent to which candidates learn about a variety of settings through visitations or discussions or both.
Standard 8. Ethnic, Gender, Cultural and Handicapped Perspectives.

The program coursework incorporates diverse ethnic, gender, cultural, and handicapped perspectives.

Rationale for Standard 8

Prospective elementary teachers must have a thorough understanding of the ethnic, gender cultural, and handicapped groups in California, and the ways in which racism, sexism, and handicapism affect our society. As citizens in a multicultural nation, all candidates in Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs must develop openness to different perspectives, and respect for human similarities and differences.

Quality Indicators for Standard 8

8.1 The extent to which issues related to ethnicity, gender, culture, and handicaps are examined in program courses such as courses in history, social science, language, humanities, literature, science, the arts, physical education, and human development.

8.2 The extent to which the contributions and perspectives of diverse ethnic, gender, cultural, and handicapped groups are included in the program.

8.3 The extent to which the program addresses ways in which the study and teaching of various disciplines affect different ethnic, gender, cultural, and handicapped groups.

8.4 The extent to which students in the program examine how racism, sexism, and handicapism affect our society.

8.5 The extent to which studies of different ethnic, gender, cultural, and handicapped groups are designed, planned and evaluated as key course elements by course instructors.

Each program includes examination and utilization of technology that is appropriate to disciplines in the program.

Rationale for Standard 9

Technology plays an increasingly significant role in communications, transportation, commerce, the arts and recreation. In schools, many forms of technology have become the subjects and tools of instruction. In their professional pursuits, prospective elementary teachers must be able to use several forms of technology without anxiety or fear. Candidates need to understand what forms of technology are appropriate, how different technologies can and should be used, and the social implications of various technologies in the contemporary world.

Quality Indicators for Standard 9

9.1 The extent to which computers and other technologies are used as tools of instruction in the program.

9.2 The extent to which uses of appropriate technologies are planned and evaluated as significant elements of coursework in the program.

9.3 The extent to which experiences with technological tools are designed to contribute to candidates' sense of efficacy regarding those tools.

9.4 The extent to which the program includes study of the roles of technology in society, and of ethical issues surrounding the impact of technology on society.
Category III. Coordination and Assessment of the Program.

Standard 10. Coordination of the Program.

Each program is coordinated effectively by one or more persons who administer(s) the ongoing operation of the program.

Rationale for Standard 10

A Multiple Subjects Waiver Program brings together many disciplines and departments. The success of the program depends partly on the quality and effectiveness of its leadership. It is important that a specific person or persons be responsible for developing and coordinating the elements of the program, including advisement, field experiences, and the assessment of individual candidates.

Quality Indicators for Standard 10

The extent to which the program is coordinated in order to implement each of the following.

10.1 A conception and description of the program, including its vision of the well-educated person.

10.2 A system for selecting courses that contribute to the quality of the program, and that enable the program to fulfill the standards in Categories I and II.

10.3 Effective communication between departments that participate in the program, and effective communication with schools and agencies that offer field experiences to candidates.

10.4 A process for selecting appropriate concentrations and/or majors for candidates in the program.

10.6 Articulation with "feeder" community colleges.

10.7 A process for assessing the subject matter competence of each candidate.

10.8 Periodic evaluations of the program that lead to modifications in its design and content as needed.

Each program has an effective system of candidate advisement, and facilitates advisement at postsecondary feeder institutions. Designated members of the faculty or staff inform students of the program's requirements, standards, and procedures; advise them regularly regarding their academic development and career plans; and facilitate their transition to and from other institutions, including community colleges.

Rationale for Standard 11

It is important that each candidate have access to information about all the options that are available in a program. One element of effective advisement is assuring that candidates understand the subject matter requirements early in their college years. Since as many as seventy percent of the candidates in some Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs have transferred from community colleges, it is important that community college students and advisors know which courses are equivalent to the courses in approved waiver programs.

Quality Indicators for Standard 11

11.1 The extent to which candidates in the program have access to (a) clear information about the program's requirements, standards, options, and procedures; (b) current information about the field experiences, concentrations and/or majors that they may pursue in the program; and (c) advice regarding their academic progress and career plans.

11.2 The extent to which the institution develops articulation agreements with selected community colleges which facilitate advisement by feeder colleges as well as transfer to the four-year institution.

11.3 The extent to which the institution gives time and support to faculty members who advise candidates in the program.

11.4 The extent to which advisor availability in the program compares with advisor availability in other academic departments on campus.

The program includes a summative assessment of the subject matter competence of each candidate in language, literature, mathematics, science, social science, history, humanities, the arts, physical education, and human development.

Rationale for Standard 12

Prior to admission into student teaching in a professional preparation program, individuals who are responsible for a Multiple Subjects Waiver Program should verify that each candidate possesses college-level knowledge and competence in the subjects that are commonly taught in elementary schools. Information about candidate knowledge and competence that is generated by the assessment of candidates in courses may be considered as part of the summative assessment that occurs at the conclusion of the program.

Quality Indicators for Standard 12

12.1 The extent to which the summative assessment is aligned with the required subjects in the program.

12.2 The extent to which the assessment uses a variety of assessment methods such as:

- Candidate performances;
- Candidate presentations;
- Candidate projects;
- Field experience logs or journals;
- Samples of candidates' work;
- Interviews with candidates;
- Oral examinations; and
- Written examinations.

12.3 The extent to which the program staff makes and retains thorough records regarding each candidate's performance in the assessment.

12.4 The extent to which there is a systematic procedure for the assessment of candidates, including an appeal process.

12.5 The extent to which the program staff periodically evaluates the quality, fairness and effectiveness of its assessment process, including its consistency with the program's vision of a well-educated person.
Section 5
Implementation Process

In September 1987, the Commission approved an implementation plan and time line for the development and approval of Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. Because the subsequent development of the standards took longer than expected, in March 1988, the Commission approved the staff recommendation that the dates in the time line be moved back one year to allow more time for program development (see Page 38). For example, the last date for the admission of candidates into "old" programs was moved back to September 1, 1991, and the final date for the completion of old programs was moved to September 1, 1994. The Commission also approved a process for approving alternative standards and quality indicators for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs, which is described on Pages 42-43.

Overview of the Implementation Plan

Each California institution of higher education that is regionally accredited and that wishes to develop or continue a Multiple Subjects Waiver Program may present a proposal to the Commission. To be approved by the Commission, a program must satisfy the Standards of Program Quality in Section 4 of this document.

The process for the initial review of Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs is similar to the process that has been used for the last three years to review Single Subject Waiver Programs. The major differences between the Multiple and Single Subject(s) waiver reviews are (1) that the review teams will be larger because of the "multiple subjects" expertise that is necessary; (2) the Multiple Subjects waiver teams will have more extensive training; and (3) the teams will have specific criteria (standards and quality indicators) to guide them.

The university segments have expressed a concern about the costs of the review process. The Commission hopes to limit the costs incurred by this new process in three ways. First, the Commission will sponsor a conference in which institutions that are developing programs will share information and exemplary practices. Many programs are doing an effective and efficient job of implementing particular standards. The coordinators of these programs will be asked to share their successes with other institutions. By sharing and borrowing expertise, program developers will be able to develop programs more efficiently. Second, the Commission's staff will be available to work with the program coordinators and faculty as they develop new programs. This can be done either at the campus or through correspondence. The Commission and its staff are eager to see the institutions develop exciting, innovative and challenging programs, and will assist in any feasible way. The agency wants to make the process as uncomplicated as possible. Finally, the review panels will operate in a Northern California location and a Southern California location to reduce the costs to institutions that have submitted programs. The location of one of the review panels should be within reasonable driving distance of any campus in case the program coordinator needs to confer with the review team.
Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

Time Line for Implementing the Waiver Program Standards

- March 1988: Commission staff presents Standards of Program Quality for approval by the Commission.
- April 1988: Disseminate the Standards of Program Quality for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs to all interested parties.
- April-August 1988: Develop examples of ways to meet the standards and quality indicators in cooperation with college and university faculty and the State Department of Education.
- July 1988: Commission holds a public hearing on the Standards of Program Quality.
- Fall 1988: Staff consultants hold regional meetings to explain the standards and assist the program coordinators. Institutions begin to turn in programs that respond to the standards.
- Spring 1989: First Program Review Team meetings. Northern and Southern Panels meet to review programs that have been submitted for approval (estimated to be approximately fifteen programs in each region).
- June 1989: Programs recommended by the Review Team are added to the Commission's agenda by the staff, and are discussed by the Commission with institutional representatives.
- Fall 1989-Spring 1994: Additional meetings of the Review Team as directed by the Executive Secretary on the basis of program submissions and fiscal considerations.
- September 1, 1991: After this date, no institution can admit any new students into "old" Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs that have not been approved on the basis of the "new" standards.
- September 1, 1994: Candidates who do not complete programs that have been approved on the basis of the standards by September 1, 1994, must pass a standardized assessment of subject matter competence.
Development of Examples

The August 1987 report to the Commission included examples of ways in which programs could meet each standard. During meetings with representatives of the CSU Chancellor, it was agreed that examples would not be included in the current document, and would be deferred until greater development could occur. The State Department of Education has emphasized the importance of the examples, and has volunteered to assist in their development. The Commission's staff hopes to work closely with the State Department of Education and interested administrators and faculty members from all three university segments in the development of examples between April and August, 1988.

In their comments about the August 1987 report, the CSU Chancellor's Advisory Committee made the following recommendations regarding examples.

Each example should describe one way in which a standard can be met and should represent an acceptable response to the standard and its quality indicators. Alternatively, an example may describe how a specific quality indicator can be met; in such cases, the example should indicate clearly which quality indicator it addresses. Each example should be discrete and numbered. Examples should not include philosophy, curricular recommendations, or instructions to institutions.

In further discussions the Chancellor's Advisory Committee recommended that each standard should be illustrated by several examples of equally suitable ways that the standard might be met. There is a danger in presenting only one example because of the tendency to regard the example as the only way to meet the standard.

Multiple Subjects Waiver Program Conference

The Commission will sponsor a two-day conference for Multiple Subjects Waiver Program Coordinators and other interested persons in the Fall of 1988. The Commission hopes that the three higher education segments will agree to cosponsor this conference. The agenda for the conference will include:

- An explanation of the implementation plan adopted by the Commission.
- Working sessions to review the program standards, quality indicators and examples.
- Brief presentations and group activities by Advisory Panel Members and others with experience with particular program elements such as concentrations and majors; race, cultural, gender, and handicapped perspectives; early field experiences; advisement; and developing articulation agreements with community colleges.
Additional presentations by:

- CSU representatives on subject matter assessment
- State Department representatives on the curriculum frameworks
- Subject matter organizations

The costs of the meeting facility and materials will be assumed by the Commission; the costs for participants can not be assumed by the Commission.

Review Team Membership, Training, and Decisions

All proposals for the initial approval of Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs will be reviewed by a Review Team, which will be selected in accordance with Commission policies. The Review Team will meet periodically to review all programs presented to the Commission in a given time period. To minimize travel, the team will be divided into a Northern and a Southern Panel. Each Panel will consist of a minimum of nine members.

Nominations of Review Team members will be solicited from Commissioners, institutions of higher education, professional organizations, subject matter organizations, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction. The members of the team will be selected to provide a balance between gender and ethnic groups, and between practitioners and IHE faculty members.

Each team member will possess particular subject matter expertise so the subjects that are commonly taught in elementary schools are represented on each panel. In the first round of reviews, the panels will include persons who were involved in the development of the standards, either as members of the Advisory Panel or as individuals who contributed to the development of the standards.

Reviews of Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs will usually take three days, as follows:

- One day of orientation, training and preliminary review of programs.
- One day to review programs and prepare initial recommendations to the Commission and/or the institutions.
- One day to meet with representatives of each institution to clarify program intent, discuss the initial recommendations and negotiate any possible changes.

The training and orientation of team members will include:

- An explanation of the role of the panel, the functions of subject matter preparation programs, and the Commission's responsibilities in program review.
- A thorough review of each standard, its rationale and intent, and alternative ways in which the standard could be met.
- A review of imaginary programs, including acceptable and unacceptable examples.
Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

Depending on the number of programs to be received during a particular meeting, the panel may be divided into subcommittees for particular phases of the review.

If the Review Team concludes that a proposed program will fulfill all of the standards, the Commission's staff will add the proposal to the agenda for the next monthly meeting of the Commission. During this meeting, institutional representatives will respond to Commissioners' questions about the proposed program. Following approval of a Multiple Subjects Waiver Program by the Commission, the institution will be expected to admit no additional students to programs that were approved prior to the adoption of the standards. Minor or technical changes that are agreed to by the team and the program coordinator may subsequently be reviewed by the CTC consultant and recommended to the Commission for approval, without being reexamined by the team.

If the Review Team decides that a proposed program does not satisfy one or more standards, the Commission's staff will return the proposal to the institution with an explanation of the team's findings. If substantive changes are subsequently made in the institution's proposal, the amended proposal will be resubmitted to the Review Team. A staff consultant and one or more members of the team will be available to assist each institution and answer questions about programs that have not been recommended for approval.

Program Documents Prepared by Institutions

The Review Team will examine each program on the basis of each standard, rather than in comparison with other programs. It will be the responsibility of the staff consultant to assure consistency in interpreting the standards.

Each program proposal should include the following elements.

1. A statement of the program's philosophy, including the purpose of the program and a vision of a well-educated person. The purpose of this statement will be to help the panel understand the orientation of the program, not for the panel to recommend changes in program philosophy.

2. A listing of each standard and a narrative explanation of how the program will meet each standard. Institutions will be expected to respond to each quality indicator, and should provide examples to show how the standard will be addressed. Members of the panel will be familiar with how college programs are structured and the subjects that are commonly taught in elementary schools. Therefore, explanations can be directed to persons who have considerable expertise in the area.

3. The list of courses that would be available to program candidates. There should be a clear indication of whether each course is required or elective. Course descriptions and syllabi should also be provided.

Institutions will be encouraged to assemble the following kinds of information for the Review Team to examine for the initial approval of a Multiple Subjects Waiver Program.
Alternative Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

On March 4, 1988, the Commission approved the use of its Standards for Approving Alternative Programs as the basis for approving and disapproving alternative standards and/or alternative quality indicators for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs. These Alternative Standards were adopted as part of New Designs for Professional Preparation, the Commission's plan to redesign the evaluation and approval of college and university programs for prospective teachers and other school professionals.

The Commission's adopted policies related to alternative programs authorize colleges and universities to propose alternative standards for the evaluation and approval of professional preparation programs and subject matter preparation (waiver) programs on their campuses. Three broad standards serve as bases for determining whether to approve the alternative standards submitted by a college or university. These are described below.

Standards for Approving Alternative Standards for Waiver Programs

Standard 1 In each essential domain of subject matter preparation, the alternative program of subject matter preparation is represented by a set of standards and quality indicators that characterize the program as one of high educational merit and quality.

Rationale. To be approved as an alternative Multiple Subjects Waiver Program, the program must address the subjects commonly taught in elementary schools, and must be represented by a set of high standards of educational merit and quality.

Standard 2 In each essential domain of subject matter competence, the alternative program of subject matter preparation assesses each candidate on the basis of standards and quality indicators that are directly related to the goals and mission of the program.

Rationale. An alternative program must address the essential domains of subject matter competence. Its standards of competence and verification must be directly related to the overall mission of the program, in order to assure an effective use of the state's educational resources. "Essential domains of subject matter competence" are the categories of skills and knowledge in which well educated persons are expected to be proficient.
Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

Standard 3 Alternative programs should be distinct departures from "conventional" Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs.

Rationale. The alternative program's goals, standards, quality indicators and/or curriculum delivery process should be substantially different than those in a traditional program. For example, an alternative program might integrate the delivery of subject matter preparation with the delivery of pedagogical preparation over the entire period of the candidate's initial preparation as a teacher.

Institutions that would like to establish Alternative Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs should take the following steps.

1. Submit a proposed set of alternative standards and/or alternative quality indicators to the Executive Secretary of the Commission. The institution should clearly label the document as a proposal for an Alternative Multiple Subjects Waiver Program. On the basis of a staff review of the document in relation to the three standards that are stated above, the Commission will approve or disapprove the alternative standards and/or alternative quality indicators.

2. Upon approval of the alternative standards and/or quality indicators, the college or university will present a program proposal which describes how each alternative standard and/or quality indicator will be met. This program proposal takes the place of a document that responds to the Commission's "regular" standards or quality indicators.

3. The description of the proposed alternative program will be submitted to a Review Team for approval on the basis of the approved alternative standards and/or alternative quality indicators.

Evaluation of Programs for Continued Approval

After initial approval, Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs will be reviewed on the same cycle as professional preparation programs, by evaluation teams of approximately five members. Team members will interview program coordinators, subject matter professors, persons responsible for field experiences, persons responsible for assessment, advisors, candidates and recent graduates of the program. Evaluators will also review program documents, course syllabi, assessment instruments, advisement sheets, examples of student work and other documents that are provided by institutions as evidence that the standards of program quality have been met.

Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs that have been approved on the basis of the standards in Section 4 will be evaluated on the basis of the same standards. Alternative programs will be evaluated on the basis of the approved alternative standards and/or quality indicators, using the information sources that are identified above.
Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs

Long Range Plan for the Use of Program Standards in Development of a New Assessment System

As was mentioned in the first section of this report, there are two ways in which a prospective elementary teacher can demonstrate subject matter competence in California. The first option is the subject of this report, the Multiple Subjects Waiver Program. The second is passage of a Commission approved standardized, statewide assessment of subject matter competence and knowledge. The statewide assessment option needs to be available to a variety of persons who want to become elementary teachers in California: persons who are educated in other states, but want to teach in California; persons who pursue other degree programs or matriculate from institutions that do not have approved Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs; and students who decide to become teachers relatively "late" in their college years.

The content of the assessment of subject matter competence should include those subjects that are required by Education Code 44314. The subject matter requirements (Standard 3), as well as the standards related to ethnic, gender, and cultural perspectives (Standard 8), and technology (Standard 9) should become the basis for the specifications and scope-and-sequence-statements for the statewide standardized assessment. The assessment should be based on the same tenets that are expressed in Standards 1 and 2, and should reflect what is expected of a person who matriculates from an academically rigorous and intellectually stimulating program. The congruence between the two methods of demonstrating subject matter competence is very important, and the Commission should take great care in assuring their alignment. For this reason, the Commission plans to develop a comprehensive assessment of subject matter knowledge and competence that represents the best possible alignment with the adopted Standards of Program Quality for Multiple Subjects Waiver Programs.
SECTION 1. The Legislature hereby finds and declares that the breadth and depth of the academic preparation of candidates for multiple subject instruction in elementary schools is the primary basis for the quality of the elementary school curriculum for young children. The Legislature recognizes that most young children learn the subjects of the school curriculum for the first time in elementary schools and classrooms. These early encounters shape each child's subsequent academic successes and failures. Communication skills, reasoning abilities, physical capacities, and personal values also develop as a consequence of early instruction in language arts, mathematics, science, social studies, art, music, health, and physical education.

The Legislature also recognizes that three out of four of the elementary teachers who are prepared in California qualify for their credentials by completing programs of subject matter preparation, which constitute two-thirds of the collegiate education of these candidates.

SECTION 2. Section 44314 of the Education Code is amended to read:

44314. A "diversified" or "liberal arts" program is any program that has been approved by the commission on the basis of standards adopted by the commission.

(a) An approved program shall consist of a minimum of 84 semester units, or equivalent quarter units, including, but not limited to, language studies, literature, mathematics, science, social science, history, humanities, the arts, physical education and human development.

(b) The commission shall establish standards for "diversified" or "liberal arts" programs, or equivalent programs that waive the subject matter examination for multiple subjects instruction.

SECTION 3. The commission shall adopt standards and promulgate regulations to implement this act on or before July 1, 1988, after which the commission shall begin to review and approve "diversified" or "liberal arts" programs on the basis of the standards and regulations. If the commission finds that the criteria and procedures utilized by a nongovernmental accreditation agency represent a higher standard for "diversified" or "liberal arts" programs than the commission's criteria and procedures for program approval, the commission may approve programs that have been accredited by the nongovernmental agency without separately reviewing the accredited programs.

National Teacher Exam
TO: Concerned Persons

SUBJECT: Passing Rate on NTE Core Battery General Knowledge Test by Child Development Majors at CSUN

Since the CSUN Child Development major is not an approved subject matter waiver program for the Multiple Subject credential, teacher candidates from this major pursuing that credential must pass the General Knowledge portion of the NTE Core Battery. This study attempted to ascertain the pass rate for these students.

Two steps were followed. First, names were secured from the database in the Credential Preparation Office for Child Development majors admitted to the credential program. Second, files of these admittees were reviewed to determine their NTE results.

Four separate groups were reviewed. The results were as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>No Score</th>
<th>Pass</th>
<th>Fail</th>
<th>Percentage of Pass of Those with Scores</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Spring 1991</td>

A review of the data shows that the vast majority of Child Development majors have not reported any NTE scores. One hypothesis for this is that these are undergraduates who are not yet ready for the NTE. The other hypothesis is that many do not take the NTE preferring to complete the equivalence of the Liberal Studies major. The third hypothesis is that these candidates especially those from 1988-89 have dropped from the program.

A review of those candidates who reported scores on the NTE shows over two-thirds passing the exam.

IssuesRaised by Students
Issues Raised by Cohorts During On-going Program Evaluation

I. Students are having trouble with enrollment process when they go directly to the admissions office.

Students have been told at the admissions office
1. Class is not valid
2. Class won’t transfer
3. Students will not get credit for class

The students did not know the name of the person in Admission who gave them this information.

Action: Better communication with Admissions office.
- Inservice counselors/admissions personnel

II. Students grade counts 50% from attendance from class so students will be able to make up missed classes by attending the workshops offered by Future Teachers Institute and the Bilingual Expressway.
A. Workshops 1-4

III. There will be class on 4/27 as usual
A. Can attend Bilingual ESL workshop put on by the Los Angeles Unified School District in afternoon.

IV. Students feel unclear about the goals of the Future Teachers Institute.
A. One student didn’t even realize she was a student at Mission College in this program.
B. When will they have an appointment with counseling?
C. When will the students have an appointment with Eloise?

Action: Make an information brochure for students. Hire a part time counselor for the Future Teacher Institute. Conduct inservice meetings for the attendance and counseling staff to inform them about the details and objectives of this program.

V. Students want to know more about the cohort tracking system.

Action: Develop tracking plan and promote the regular interaction of members of each cohort group.
VI. Students want to know the procedures about transferring from Valley College to Mission College.

Action: Have students make an appointment with the counseling and admissions office.

VII. About 20 students attended the Future Teacher Club (Grant High School). Students expressed that they were happy with the Future Teachers Club.

VIII. Students want to purchase the textbooks for "Spanish Reading Through Language Arts."

Action: Purchase the book through the Los Angeles Unified School District

A. Book cost $8.50 plus tax

B. Only 8 people ordered the book, Enbusca de Nuevos Horizontes through Renee

C. Renee returned money and will have students order directly from Los Angeles Unified School District

   Andy Kubirn
   450 N. Grand Ave.
   Los Angeles, CA 90012
   (213) 625-6432

IX. Students raised concerns about decoding skills.

A. Students were persistent about the value of learning decoding as a system

1. Teacher Assistants feel their supervising teachers teach Spanish reading like English reading and the teacher assistants feel this is not the most effective way to teach Spanish reading.

2. Teacher Assistants feel that the combination of core literature and a system for decoding is the best way to teach Spanish reading.

3. As parents on the advisory board of the Los Angeles School District and as teacher assistants, they feel qualified to give their input about the value of teaching decoding as a system.

Action: Inform the Los Angeles Unified School District about these teacher assistant concerns. Discuss the value teaching decoding skills as an entity.

X. Teacher assistants object to the amount of time with a student (about 20 minutes). They feel more time is needed with the individual students.

Action: Determine the grade level and discuss or hold workshops for teacher assistants on child growth and development. The workshop could deal with activities which make the best use of this time.

XI. Teacher Assistants feel that the time they spend with the students that are assigned to them should not be interrupted by scheduling "school programs" during that time.
Letters of Support
June 11, 1991

Dear Ms. Brosseau:

It has been a pleasure for Region E to participate in the Future Teachers Institute with Mission College. During this semester we have had an opportunity to work together to create a program that would enhance the educational experience of the students in the Los Angeles Unified School District and motivate paraprofessionals to work toward a Teaching Credential. In addition, there have been many opportunities to expose paraprofessionals to new vistas in education.

Feedback received from program participants has been overwhelmingly positive and students express a desire for continued experiences in the field of education. Specific classes relating to child development, problem solving strategies, and effective discipline techniques are of interest to those students participating in the Future Teachers Institute.

The Cohort nature of the program gives the paraprofessionals a system whereby they can network with others. This encourages them to share ideas and validate the positive practices they are able to see each day at the school sites where they are presently employed.

It is our hope that we may continue to work together and with a spirit of cooperation and commitment offer support and encouragement to these interested and enthusiastic students.

We look forward to continued success in this endeavor.

Sincerely,

Gabriel Cortina, Superintendent
Administrative Region E
Dear Gayle,

It has been a pleasure to collaborate with you on the Future Teachers Institute Project, and I fully support the proposal for the continuation of the project.

Recruitment of classroom paraprofessionals into teacher education taps a pool of committed people, who have already learned a lot about children. It opens a door to professional preparation for people who never thought a college education would be available to them. This project benefits the trainees and the children in the classrooms where they work. In addition, it benefits the community by bringing people from the school communities into the teaching profession. Such a project requires a long-term commitment of funding, because many trainees have families as well as jobs, and may take four or more years to complete an A.A. Degree program. However, my own experience with paraprofessionals has shown that with encouragement and support they are able to maintain their motivation over a long stretch of time, until they finally achieve their goal.

Prior collaboration between Los Angeles Mission College, the CSUN Department of Special Education, and Los Angeles Unified School District on federally funded paraprofessional training projects has established a career ladder concept on our campuses, and has provided a climate and a set of relationships in which the present project can flourish. I believe it would be hard to find a more extensive history of prior collaboration between a Community College, a teacher training institution, and a school district, anywhere in California. The trainee population is clearly here, and clearly interested. The collaborative arrangements are in place. I sincerely hope that continued funding is approved so that the program can proceed.

Sincerely,

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

EVALUATION OF FUTURE TEACHERS INSTITUTE

I'm pleased to comment on progress made so far by the Future Teachers Institute at Los Angeles Mission College.

From my perspective as an articulation officer at California State University, Northridge, the work done on behalf of the Institute to explain the complex relationships between certificate, Associate of Arts, transfer, and credential programs is nothing short of superlative. For years I have asked my community college colleagues to construct a chart summarizing relationships between certificate, AA or A3, and transfer programs, and until the success of the Future Teachers Institute in mapping out requirements, no one was up to the challenge.

If the ability to explain complex program requirements demonstrated by my colleagues at Mission can be relayed to others, it will be a great service. Many students pursuing certificate and AA programs are inspired to change educational objectives, and if we can do a better job providing early, basic information about loftier goals, it facilitates effective student progress toward those ends.

I feel obliged to comment (even though I'm an outsider who does not routinely meet the students participating in classes associated with the Institute) that it appears many students at Mission who aspired first to careers as teacher aides have subsequently been inspired to pursue teaching careers as a direct result of their classwork at Mission. This is indirect evidence of some very strong teaching in key courses at Mission.

I will use the Future Teachers Institute's example to illustrate how certificate and AA degree programs may be explained to students in such a way as to inform intelligent course selections, acknowledging a change in plans, moving in the direction of transfer to CSUN. In my twenty years doing articulation work, only the Future Teachers Institute has been able to set this articulation example.

The Future Teachers Institute has my most enthusiastic endorsement for its work in articulating and communicating course requirements. Please call on me for elaboration on any of the comments above (818-885-4943).

Dear Eloise:

It is always exciting for those of us in the Los Angeles Unified School District and specifically Region F to facilitate a communication between our Region and the local Community College. We at the neighborhood school often realize first hand the needs of our teacher assistants and often those needs exceed what we can do alone at the local school.

I want to take this opportunity to express thanks for the excellent professional service you are providing our teacher assistants attending Mission College and the Future Teacher Institute. You have consistently operated within the limits of your integrity, incorporating our input to give teacher assistants the best possible program. The overall benefit to children will have a rewarding payoff in the years to come.

Subject: Comments and Evaluations of the Future Teachers Institute

It is a pleasure to be involved in such a meaningful and well planned program as the Future Teachers Institute.

The benefits to all parties involved are many. The programs continuity as a career ladder model is easy to follow and promises the student the opportunity to meet goals. The intersegmental planning between Los Angeles Mission College (LAMC) and California State University, Northridge (CSUN) insures an easy transition to the upper division program. The courses that are designed with Los Angeles Unified School District (LAUSD) provide the students the on hands experience and information to succeed at working in the classroom setting.

Through much effort on the part of the coordinating committee the Future Teachers Institute will be a vital program on our campus.

I would like to recommend a special orientation/assessment be implemented for the students of this programs to facilitate early placement results in English and Math. This would allow for more effective advisement and program planning. This would also provide the opportunity for referral to other support services such as Financial Aid, Transfer services, and tutoring.

I feel if the Child Development major can be modified to become a waiver program for a teaching credential, we would see more students taking the Child Development program. This would be very beneficial to those with special interest in early childhood education.

I look forward to being a part of the continuation and growth of the Future Teachers Institute.

Dear Ms. Brosseau:

I very much wanted to be with your planning group the next time you met. At the time your meeting is taking place, I will be lining up with distinguished colleagues and students for the graduation processional. I am so sorry that I cannot be with you at this crucial time.

I think your project is an excellent one as are the people working on it! I wish I could be with you. Please let me know what happens at the meeting.

Perhaps I can provide contributions after I see what your group suggests at this May 29th meeting. I realize that it is essential that our institutions work closely together so that your Future Teachers Institute can become the outstanding project we all know it will be.

Sincerely yours,

Edythe Margolin, Coordinator/Professor
Dear Victoria,

Thanks you for the time you shared with us on Wednesday discussing activities you have implemented to support your project: Future Teachers Institute. It is obvious that Eloise and Gail have invested a great deal of thought, energy and time to the project. Each of you are to be commended for the success of this project.

I think we might be able to collaborate to; 1. build the partnership between the aide and teacher, 2. disseminate the project on a “how to” format to other community colleges interested in a Future Teacher Institute. The idea might be a pilot project relating to “pre-certification” of instructional aides through allocation of specific a.d.a. and a contract format. I look forward to hearing from you if you think this might be a viable option.

Thank you for sharing and accolades for a project with excellence, thoughtfully done.

San Fernando, California 91340-3294

Dear Ms. Brosseau:

I really enjoyed your advisory group meeting yesterday and appreciate being asked to join. Driving home from the meeting, I thought of a few more possible recommendations that you may want to consider:

1. This might be a good time to try for a change in the names of your occupational certificates: From Teacher's Aide Certificate to Para-Educator Certificate and from Exceptional Children's Teacher's Aide Certificate to Special Education Para-Educator Certificate.

Rationale: For some time nationally, the term paraprofessional has been preferred to aide. The statewide paraprofessional task force has agreed on the term para-educator. The existence of your pilot program might be sufficient excuse for bringing in more current professional terminology.

2. The development of a Special Education track for trainees should probably begin with the ECTA Certificate - renamed, I hope, as indicated above. A Special Education Para-Educator A.A. program could be build around it, with agreement to transfer as electives into the California State University, Northridge Child Development program. The program should include - at either the Certificate or A.A. level - understanding and implementing community based instruction and job coaching, which have major roles for paraprofessionals. These should probably be taught through a course attached to supervised field-work. A course on understanding and implementing the teacher's behavior management program would also be important in the special education track, and may be desired by students in other tracks - again, a course with a field-work component would be my suggestion.

Then we should work with the CSUN Child Development major to build a Special Education track into the major. They have ways of differentiating the experience for students who wish to specialize in Special Education, but developing this into a formal track would be an important step forward. I will talk to Child Development faculty and see if they are open to this kind of an effort.
3. In connection with the discussion on the need for teachers to understand their responsibility as supervisors, two approaches - not necessarily mutually exclusive - occur to me.

A. District in-service: LAUSD could offer an in-service workshop for teachers - titled something like Teachers as Supervisors, that provides the necessary orientation and training for carrying some responsibility for another person's professional development.

B. University course: CSUN School of Education faculty could offer a course on supervision through extension for possible district unit credit. There are regular three-unit graduate course offerings on supervision in regular and special education that relate to the supervision of student teachers, but I think something different is indicated here.

Special Education has an existing one-unit graduate level course on supervising paraprofessionals that could be offered through extension to the special education teachers supervising FTI trainees. It may also be appropriate for the regular education teachers, or could be tailored that way, if needed.

4. It would be good to get a commitment from the Los Angeles Unified School District to keep the trainees on the payroll (as paraprofessionals, for the number of hours they had been working the prior semester) when they do their two semesters of student teaching, if they have not obtained positions as interns.

Rationale: Your trainees can probably not afford to be unemployed while they complete their student-teaching requirements, and there may not be emergency or intern positions available when they reach this stage. In Special Education, intern positions will be available for a long time into the future, but interns must have completed their basic Multiple Subjects or Single Subjects credential to qualify. I think it would be important for your pilot to establish this employer responsibility now.

Precedent: In San Francisco, the union contract provides that paraprofessionals in teacher training, who have been employed by the district, will remain on the payroll as paraprofessionals while they complete their student teaching.

This is probably more advice than anyone needs! I hope some of it is useful for your program. Thank you for asking!

Sincerely,

"Mission" is a common word in California, a reminder of the Spanish Colonial Period in American history. Los Angeles Mission College (LAMC) is named, in fact, after the San Fernando Mission, an early Spanish outpost which sought to activate the potential of the people it served. In fact, the aims of those early Spanish missionaries have become the goals of LAMC. For both were created to develop human potential through education in an area which needs it as much, if not more, than any other in the country.

The San Diego Freeway divides the San Fernando Valley into two distinct parts. The west fits the "golden" image of California. Rich in resources, it has high fashion malls, luxurious homes and thriving high tech industries; its citizens are comfortable and middle class. The east - the side served by Mission College - is blighted. Its resources are meager, its malls modest, its homes humble. Its citizens are the economically and educationally depressed, or the culturally displaced. This is an area where Los Angeles newest immigrants live. Often, they are disadvantaged. It is the hope of Mission College and the California State University, Northridge (CSUN) to activate the great potential they have and bring them into the mainstream of American life.

In order to accomplish this task, LAMC has designed two special programs: 1) the Bilingual Professional Expressway Project (BPFP), and 2) the Future Teachers' Institute. The School of Education is a proud partner in both.

The Bilingual Professional Expressway Project was devised to create an identification, matriculation, transfer and placement process for Hispanic professionals new to the United States. It is estimated that thousands of under-employed professionals are residing in the greater Los Angeles area. They are the victims of crisis-torn Central America or immigrants from South America. They are people in search of the better life the United States has to offer. Most cannot practice the professions for which they have been trained because of language barriers, and because they do not know how to have their degrees certified. Many work in low-paying jobs with little possibility for advancement. Their professional skills unused; their talents wasted. The failure to utilize their skills in our economic development is an irremediable loss to society.

The Bilingual Professional Expressway Project is designed to remedy that problem. It is a non-traditional program that enables the culturally and economically displaced - Later professionally educated - to enter the American job market. The Expressway does three things in an attempt to increase the number of minority students obtaining American professional degree certification:

- It identifies Hispanic professionals.
- It provides them specialized counseling.
- It furnishes instruction and articulation between them and CSUN.

In addition, by focusing special attention on minority school teachers, the program will assist the transition of bilingual teachers into classrooms where they are desperately needed. The project will be conducted over a three year period funded by a federal grant of $100,000. It began in September 1990.

Just as important is the newly established Mission College Future Teacher Institute. Funded by a $25,000 planning grant received in January 1991, it intends to develop a professional career ladder to advance bilingual students from a Teacher's Assistant Certificate, to an Associate of Arts degree, through a Bachelor's degree and ultimately to the California Teacher Credential.

The program's initial strategy is to establish cohort groups of students who, while taking classes together, earn their teaching licenses at LAMC and CSUN, work as aides in the Los Angeles Unified School District. We will have more to report as the program progresses.

THE URBAN CLASSROOM
TEACHER CERTIFICATE PROGRAM

Dudley Blake, Ed.D.

The Urban Classroom Teacher Certificate Program (UCTCP) is a new program that is being organized by a number of departments at California State University, Northridge (CSUN). Originally the Los Angeles Unified School District (LAUSD) approached California State University, Los Angeles and California State University, Dominguez Hills and CSUN to provide additional preparation for urban teachers who might be interested in enrolling in a program that would improve their teaching skills and might also increase their salaries.

At the present time it is not certain if the LAUSD will be able to pursue their interest in the UCTCP because of their serious financial and budgetary constraints. We here at CSUN are, however, committed to this program and will go forward with it whether or not the LAUSD participates.

Our proposal is unique because it involves departments from a variety of disciplines, including many from outside of the School of Education.

This survey was taken to determine if there was sufficient interest for the pilot program, the Future Teachers Institute. It was distributed to the teacher assistants in Region E and F of the Los Angeles Unified School District.

Question:

One hundred eighty-one teacher assistants responded to the survey. Twenty-six (15%) teacher assistants were not interested; while, one hundred fifty-five (86%) showed a desire to enroll in the program.

Question:

Sixty-seven teacher assistants (37%) indicating an interest were from Region E, ninety-one (50%) were from Region F, and twenty-three (13%) did not respond.

0 I am already in the credential program at CSUN.
6 I have B.A. (140 units) of Public and Business Administration and 15 units of Child Development.
10 Could you please explain more about this program? I would like more information. Thank you Diane Miceli.
15 I would like to know how long this career would take.
6 I like my job very much but I don't want to be a teacher.
15 You have a number of older reliable people that are working as Teacher Assistants that you can depend on, that have no desires to become teachers. Please show them some consideration in this area.
0 I have been a district employee for 14 years and feel I have contributed to the education of many children. I have no interest in becoming a teacher but will continue as a support person as long as I can. I enjoy my work with the children very much.
6 I have been working as an Ed Aide, T.A., Instructional Aide for 12 years. I enjoy my work but do not desire to become a teacher. I take classes as are needed for the T.A. position.

I am currently attending Pierce College with hopes of transferring to CSUN. Will the credits I have achieved at Pierce go until now be transferred or will it be ignored? It will be very convenient for me to take the classes I need at Mission College. I need a location in Woodland Hills or Canoga Park because I live in Topanga and have one child at Parkman and one at Neby Way. I work at Parkman as an "Aid" and as PTA President. I have a B.A. from UCLA in Sociology. I'm in the Pace program & I'm taking Cooperative Work Education at Mission College. To answer: 2, 3, 4. I can't answer them until I know what date & hours I'll have to attend the Pace program for next year. I'm interested in pursuing a career in teaching. If classes can be taken at night I will be able to attend every other day from 6:30 to 9:30 P.M. (Mon., Wed., Fri.). I am three units away from an AA degree. I am very interested in this program. My address is 11193 Osborne St., L.U.T., 91342, Calif. Phone #: (818) 637-4375 I am an office manager and I don't see why this is only for T.A.'s or Ed. Aides. I am also interested.

Comments:

1. Since I was in the 10th grade, I wanted to be a teacher because I like children. Thank you for your help.
2. I feel the necessity for more in-service for T.A.'s. I also feel a first aid and CPR course would benefit all. Is there the possibility of vocational classes for a TA course.
3. CPR would be very valuable to all aids!
4. We need more in-service classes to help us with children. Also ready would like to have a first-aid class, C.P.R. with earthquake awareness & etc. Each aide know CPR & etc.
5. Can the district help with classes beyond the first two years of the B.A.? I've completed 70 transferable units already at Pierce College.
6. I would prefer not being required to take classes to work as a Teacher Assistant.
7. I would like to know if I can take the same classes at Valley. Mission is too far for me. I plan to transfer to CSUN as a Liberal Arts major other input that you can give me would be appreciated. Thank you.
8. Requesting classes be offered in Van Nuys Area or have a PACE program at L.A. Valley College or Van Nuys Area.
