I. INTRODUCTION

H.R. 3033 is a comprehensive package of reform amendments to Title II of the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA, P.L. 97-300), which focuses primarily on services for the disadvantaged. Since JTPA's enactment in 1982, only technical amendments have been made to Title II. The passage of H.R. 3033 would represent the first comprehensive revisions to Title II's adult and youth program, and the summer youth program. H.R. 3033 draws upon two other bills by incorporating provisions from H.R. 2496, the Administration's bill introduced by Representative Goodling of Pennsylvania (the Job Training Partnership Act Amendments of 1991) and H.R. 196, a bill introduced by Representative Owens of New York, to establish a Youth Opportunities Unlimited program.

Since 1982, the Congress has conducted extensive oversight of the program's implementation but has resisted making significant amendments too early in the statute's history. JTPA has now completed eight full years and has generally been viewed as a successful, outcome-oriented, public-private partnership that has trained and placed disadvantaged individuals into permanent unsubsidized jobs.

Recent evidence, however, has revealed a number of fundamental flaws in the Title II program. Over the last few years, the Committee on Education and Labor has conducted a thorough examination of Title II and other programs under JTPA through numerous hearings. Reports have been issued by the Department of Labor's Office of Inspector General, the General Accounting Office, the National Commission for Employment Policy, and a variety of research institutes and commissions. This bill is the product of these hearings and reports, and addresses the vast majority of criticisms leveled at the JTPA program.

The Committee believes that H.R. 3033 will strengthen one of the country's foremost job training programs for disadvantaged individuals and dislocated workers. In addition to its economic benefits, a reformed JTPA has the potential to significantly improve social conditions by giving hope to people who have despaired of finding a decent job, and by helping to reduce crime. It is truly a "last-chance" employment and training program for many Americans.

II. PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

Since the beginning of the 102nd Congress, the Nation has been struggling with one of its worst recessions in recent years. A host of reasons has been given for this latest recession, but one in particular has been America's inability to remain competitive in an increasingly global marketplace. Most economists would agree that the Nation has one of two choices—to become more productive and, therefore, competitive, or to lower wages overall to compete with developing countries.

If we are to improve our economic competitiveness, government must provide the funding and the structure necessary for major training and education efforts. Educators must strive to give current and future workers a solid basic education as well as technical and interpersonal skills. Employers must invest in worker training and provide a workplace that is conducive to cooperation and creativity. Workers must be committed to producing quality goods and services that will maintain America's strong presence in the global marketplace. There is a growing consensus about the need to upgrade and improve the skills of the labor force as the Nation progresses through the 1990's.

Although this consensus is essential to overcoming our problems, there are still many obstacles to surmount. One of the greatest impediments is the lack of basic and technical skills of the American workforce. "Technical workers are known to be especially important to America's competitiveness because they are the lifeblood of industries that produce the lion's share of internationally traded products and services. The continuous integration of new technologies with more highly skilled labor is widely recognized by labor economists as the true source of American competitiveness." [However,] "training in a technical discipline must be preceded by a sound grounding in the basic skills that prepare an individual to understand and acquire the more sophisticated constructs of technical work. This places a premium on the individual who has the basics and is therefore equipped to handle higher-level technical training." ("Training the Technical Workforce," by Anthony Carnevale, Leila Gainer, and Eric Schulz, 1990.)

Greater demands are being placed on employees in the current workforce. Three out of four workers today must have skills through the twelfth grade level, not the fourth grade level typical after World War II. And these standards continue to rise. The Manpower Development Corporation (MDC) reported in 1988 that by the year 2000, most new jobs will require some higher level of education—a median education level of 13.5 years. "That means, on the average, that the workers who fill these jobs will have to have some training beyond high school, not to be the boss, but just to bring home a paycheck." ("America's Shame, America's Hope," by Kenneth Clark, MDC.) As this educational threshold for minimum competency levels continues to rise, much of the current workforce will need some degree of basic skills training or retraining.

Many Americans, particularly high school dropouts, cannot attend college; others have no interest, intention, or means to obtain a four-year academic degree. These non-college bound, persons are an important resource who can be steered toward alternative careers, but often end up on the margins of society. American apprenticeship programs reach only 2 percent of our youth, and generally, only after they have been out of school for several years. In contrast, Germany has a very strong apprenticeship system that reaches two-thirds of that nation's young people while they are still in school. (Education Week, "Demands of Information Age Revive Old Idea of Apprenticeships,” June 5, 1991.) More Americans need to know about the apprenticeship and school-to-work opportunities that are available, and they need assistance accessing these opportunities.

The Committee has focused much of its attention on changes to Title II of JTPA, which targets the economically disadvantaged. Poverty in our country has risen alarmingly in recent years. The same week H.R. 3033 was ordered reported by the Committee on Education and Labor, the Washington Post headlined that “poverty in the United States rose sharply last year for the first time since 1983,” the height of the 1980’s recession. (“U.S. Poverty Rate Up; Median Income Falls”, September 27, 1991.) Another recent report by the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies found that “global labor market changes led to increases in poverty throughout Western industrialized nations in the 1980’s, but the United States stood in ‘ignominious isolation’ in its failure to lift its least well-off citizens out of poverty.” The report explains that the effects of technological advances, increased global trade, and a relative decrease in the manufacturing workforce left many poor and near-poor either jobless or underemployed. It concluded that families with children suffered the most. (“Poverty, Inequality and the Crisis of Social Policy,” September 1991.)

The skills of the disadvantaged must be upgraded and channeled into productive employment with liveable, middle income wages. JTPA, when at its best, can provide the tools necessary to lift people out of poverty and despair. JTPA has been accused of serving the “most likely to succeed” and not those “most in need.” The committee is intent upon having JTPA provide quality services to each individual in need of basic skills and occupational and vocational training programs.

In too many areas of our country, poverty is directly linked with crime and drug abuse. Crime is one of the major social problems facing our Nation. And it is on the increase. It is significant that roughly 80% of prison inmates are high school dropouts and 25% never finish junior high school. (The Correctional Education Association, Laurel, Maryland.) Taxpayers and the American economy pay the price for these failures. Dropouts and low-literate persons are the last hired and first fired in our workforce.

It is no secret that there is a direct correlation between the unemployed, dropouts, and incarceration. The average yearly cost to send a youth through elementary and secondary school is $4,200; the average yearly college cost is $5,000 per student; the average job training program costs $2,700; but the average yearly cost of incarceration is over $14,000. (“Saving the Schools: How Business Can Help,” Fortune, November 7, 1988.) These costs are compounded by extremely high rates of recidivism. It should be obvious to the Congress where to invest tax dollars, but JTPA funding has remained stagnant since its inception. The budget for building new prisons, on the other hand, has skyrocketed.

Unemployed and dislocated workers will benefit from an improved JTPA system. At present, during this recession, our workforce is suffering from an unemployment rate of 6.8 percent. It is likely that among these 8 million jobless Americans are many who want to work but lack the skills necessary to obtain jobs paying liveable wages. JTPA can also assist discouraged workers through basic skills training or upgrading of other skills.

These amendments retain the Federal, State and local partnership, as well as the public/private partnership, that form the basic delivery system for JTPA, and preserve the emphasis on program outcomes through the use of revised performance standards. Overall, this legislation stresses reaching hard-to-serve persons, with barriers to employment in addition to their poverty. Longer, more comprehensive, and more coordinated services are mandated with an assessment and service strategy provided for each participant. Basic skills training is strongly encouraged. The Secretary, in consultation with the Inspector General, would be required to issue detailed procurement standards to address the numerous program integrity abuses reported over the last few years.

Adult and youth programs: H.R. 3033 separates the year-round youth services provided in the existing Title II-A adult and youth program into a new Title II-C youth program. To be eligible for services under Title II-A, individuals must be economically disadvantaged adults age 22 or older, and at least 60 percent of these adults must have at least one prescribed barrier to employment in addition to poverty.

The proposed Title II-C program, for youths aged 16 through 21, will have eligibility requirements similar to those listed above for adults. High school dropouts under the age of 18; however, must return to school or some form of alternative educational program as a part of their participation in JTPA. Of the Title II-C participants, 60 percent must be out-of-school. With limited exceptions, a governor may lower the service delivery area (SDA) requirement to a minimum of 40 percent out-of-school. The education, skill level, and service needs of each Title II-A and II-C participant will be assessed, and a service strategy must be developed.

Funding and State set-asides: The bill includes a declaration of policy that encourages the expansion of the Title II program by increasing funds by at least 10 percent each year to increase the number of youths and adults served, currently only 5 percent of the eligible population. Only technical changes are proposed in the funding formula. The existing 3 percent state set-aside for older worker programs would be replaced with a requirement at the local level that at least 8 percent of an SDA's funds under Title II-A be targeted at participants aged 55 or older.

Cost categories and procurement: This bill proposes that a minimum of 50 percent be spent on direct training activities, a maximum of 20 percent on administration, and the remaining 30 percent or less on support services and training-related services. The Secretary is required to prescribe regulations establishing detailed, uniform procurement standards and cost principles to ensure fiscal accountability and prevent waste, fraud and abuse in these programs.

Documentation and data collection: H.R. 3033 directs the Secretary to provide guidance and technical assistance to states and service delivery areas (SDAs) on minimizing documentation to verify eligibility and demonstrate additional barriers to employment, and conduct assessments to ensure that these requirements do not discourage program participation. The amendments would require improved and expanded data collection, particularly on sex, race, age and occupation. The crosstabulation of various state and SDA produced data will also be required.

On-the-job training: The bill limits on-the-job training (OJT) to 6 months and prohibits SDAs from contracting with employers who have exhibited a pattern of failing to provide OJT participants with continued long-term employment with wages and benefits at the same level as regular employees performing similar work.

Performance standards: H.R. 3033 amends adult and youth performance standards to include employability competencies, such as the attainment of a high school diploma or its equivalent. H.R. 3033 amends the incentive grants to emphasize exceeding performance in services to the hard-to-serve, or those with additional barriers to employment.

Job Corps: The bill amends Job Corps to increase the ceiling on the proportion of nonresidential slots in the program from 10 percent to 90 percent, with a priority given to parents with dependent children. Prohibits private contractors from managing a Civilian Conservation Center.

Youth Opportunities Unlimited: H.R. 3033 creates a new Youth Opportunities Unlimited program under Title IV to provide training grants to high poverty communities in a target area with a population of 25,000.

State Human Resource Investment councils: H.R. 3033 provides for the creation of a voluntary state human resource investment council, as long as an agreement is reached by the state agencies responsible for administering affected programs.

Disaster relief: The bill adds permanent authority to fund public service employment under Title IV of JTPA for disaster relief with an authorization of $15 million.

The Job Training Reform Amendments will strengthen a proven system; but, without appropriate long-term services which require long-term investments, JTPA will not be able to provide a long-term solution to poverty and unemployment. JTPA pulls many different agencies and program services together, encouraging cooperation and the pooling of resources. Now, more than ever, we need the framework and the services that only JTPA can provide. In reporting H.R. 3033, the Committee hopes that funding for the program can be increased to meet the urgent needs of individual citizens and of the Nation as a whole.

III. HISTORY OF LEGISLATION: COMMITTEE ACTION

During the first session of the 102nd Congress, the Subcommittee on Employment Opportunities held several hearings on proposals to strengthen the Job Training Partnership Act. These hearings were held on May 9, and May 21, 1991, in Washington, DC, and on June 17, 1991, in Bellmawr, New Jersey. H.R. 3033, the Job Training Reform Amendments, was introduced by Representative Perkins, Chairman of the Subcommittee on Employment Opportunities, on July 25, 1991. Representative Ford, Chairman of the Education and Labor Committee, and Representatives Goodling and Gunderson, ranking members of the full Committee and the Subcommittee on Employment Opportunities respectively, were original cosponsors. On May 30, 1991, Representative Goodling introduced H.R. 2496, the Job Training Partnership Act Amendments of 1991, which was transmitted to the Congress by the Honorable Lynn Martin, Secretary of Labor.

The Committee on Education and Labor and the Subcommittee on Employment Opportunities also held numerous hearings during the 101st Congress on the Job Training Partnership Act. The committee heard testimony on H.R. 2039, the Job Training Partnership Act Amendments of 1989, introduced by the former Subcommittee Chairman, Representative Martinez. The hearings were held on June 29, 1989, July 7, 1989, September 20, 1989, November 3, 1989, January 12, 1990, and June 6, 1990. The Subcommittee held one hearing on H.R. 3266, the Workforce 2000 Job Training Partnership Act Amendments of 1989, on September 19, 1989. Many hearings were also conducted in the Senate on amendments to the Job Training Partnership Act. H.R. 2039 passed the House by a vote of 416–1. A somewhat similar measure was passed in the Senate by a vote of 95–1. However, a conference was not convened, and the 101st Congress adjourned without taking final action on the JTPA legislation. Representative Martinez introduced the House-passed version of H.R. 2039 as H.R. 740 on January 30, 1991.

During the 102nd Congress, the witnesses who testified before the Subcommittee on Employment Opportunities included: the Honorable Lynn Martin, Secretary of Labor; the Honorable Julian De La Rosa, Inspector General of the Department of Labor; representatives of the General Accounting Office; representatives of the National Association of Counties, National Alliance of Business, National Governors' Association, National Council on Aging, the Commission on the Skills of the American Workforce, the National Commission for Employment Policy, and Operation ABLE. Witnesses for states and local areas included: representatives of state and local education and vocational education offices, the Concentrated Employment Programs, community-based organizations, proprietary schools, a local service delivery area, a local private industry council, a local public welfare agency, a non-profit literacy organization, and a local Board of Realtors. National and local representatives of the AFL-CIO also testified before the Subcommittee.

On July 31, 1991, the Subcommittee unanimously voted to report favorably to the Committee on Education and Labor H.R. 3033 with one technical and clarifying amendment. In Committee mark-up on September 24, 1991, Mr. Perkins offered, and the Committee unanimously adopted, an amendment in the nature of a substitute to H.R. 3033. The Committee also approved four amendments to the substitute, three of which were offered by Representative Williams, and one of which was offered by Representative Martinez. The Committee then proceeded by voice vote to unanimously report H.R. 3033, as amended, to the full House for consideration.

IV. Background and Need

JTPA became the Nation's primary employment training program in 1982, succeeding a series of Federal job training programs dating back to the 1960's. The first post-World War II job training program for unemployed workers began in the early 1960's, with a focus on adults facing potential displacement as a result of automation. By the mid-1960's, however, the emphasis had shifted to the needs of economically disadvantaged individuals, particularly minorities and youth. The primary beneficiaries of Federal training programs since then have remained low-income disadvantaged adults and youth.

In the early 1970's, Congress folded a variety of categorical job training programs into the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), which was intended to transfer greater decision-making authority for training programs from the Federal to the local level.

JTPA was enacted in 1982, replacing CETA but continuing the focus of earlier programs on the needs of economically disadvantaged adults and youth. A key feature of JTPA was the heightened involvement of States and the private sector, along with local governments, in planning and administering the program. In addition, JTPA was established as a performance-based system, with training programs required to meet mandatory standards of performance. Public service employment was extremely limited under JPTA, as were supportive services. The primary services provided are training and related employment services.

Within a few years of JTPA's inception, two major criticisms of the program developed. These criticisms have plagued the program ever since, continually tarnishing its image. These criticisms have primarily revolved around the lack of targeting on those most in need of its services, and the numerous accounts of waste, fraud, and abuse.

TARGETING OF SERVICES

An issue that has remained in question concerning the JTPA program has been whether services are adequately targeted to those members of the eligible population who have the greatest barriers to employment and the greatest need for assistance. Recent Census data reveal that over 33 million people are actually eligible, based on their income, yet the number that the JTPA Title II program is able to serve is only about 1.5 million. Obviously, there are millions of income eligible persons who are not able to participate in the services available from JTPA.

Substantial evidence exists suggesting that "creaming" is occurring in the JTPA delivery system. "Cremaing" is the selection of eligible persons who are most ready to be placed into jobs and who have the fewest training needs. For example, the General Accounting Office (GAO) in its June 1989 report, "JTPA Services and Outcomes for Participants With Differing Needs," found that a larger proportion of high school graduates are enrolled in the JTPA program than exists in the eligible population nationwide. In contrast, high school dropouts are substantially underserved by JTPA even though dropouts are a group particularly prone to difficulties in the labor market. GAO data show, for example, that only 27 percent of adult JTPA participants are school dropouts. In comparison, it is estimated that 38 percent of adults eligible for JTPA are school dropouts.
The JTPA system appears to do an inadequate job of recruiting and enrolling persons who have multiple barriers to employment, such as school dropouts who are receiving AFDC assistance. GAO compiled information for a 1989 study on three groups with specific employment barriers: school dropouts; AFDC recipients; and those with limited recent work experience. GAO data show that JTPA serves less than 2 percent of the total adult eligible population with at least two of the three employment barriers described above. The GAO estimates that 26 percent of the total eligible poverty population is characterized by these multiple barriers to employment.

Furthermore, in 1988, the Department of Labor's Inspector General (IG) also reported that, despite having achieved a 70 percent "entered employment" rate, the JTPA program is not focusing on hard-to-serve individuals, but targets participants who are easy to place. Sixty percent or more of JTPA participants, according to the IG, are high school graduates. The IG concluded that the number of participants on public assistance was only slightly reduced (4.9 percent for adults, no reduction for youth) by the JTPA program.

JTPA is the major Federal employment and training program. Therefore, it is important to ensure that the 5 percent of the eligible low-income persons that the program is able to serve with current funding are those who face multiple barriers to employment. This includes those lacking basic reading and math skills, school dropouts, welfare recipients, individuals with disabilities, and homeless persons. Those who are served should, to the maximum extent practicable, be those who would not be able to find jobs without the direct intervention of this program. It is also necessary to ensure that those served by the JTPA program are provided the comprehensive basis skills and training necessary to improve their long-term employability and their long-term earning potential.

Improving Quality

Another recurring issue regarding JTPA services involves the quality and the type of services provided. For example, short-term job search assistance might result in job placement for some low-skilled individuals, but may not result in job retention. In other words, questions have been raised about whether JTPA services are of sufficient depth and duration to really enhance the long-term employability of disadvantaged workers.

Several recent reports, including the Secretary's Commission on Achieving Necessary Skills (SCANS), have discussed the basic workplace skills today's employers consider essential in their employees. The first priority for employers is attracting workers with basic reading and math skills. They want workers who listen and communicate well, are able to solve problems and think creatively, have self-esteem, and have a sense of personal direction and motivation. Employees want workers who get along with others, are able to work as members of teams, are responsible, and motivate others when necessary.

JTPA is capable of providing this type of basic skills and employability training. However, GAO's research clearly demonstrates that not all participants who need these services are receiving them.

In June 1989, GAO reported that "less job ready" participants (predominantly dropouts, welfare recipients, and minorities) received less intensive JTPA services than more employable participants, even though the "less job ready" participants face greater barriers to employment. For example, while dropouts might be expected to need remedial education to achieve labor market success GAO found that 88 percent of dropouts served by JTPA received no remedial education at all. Nearly one in three JTPA participants who could be considered most in need, by GAO estimates, received only job search assistance and no other form of training or education.

Further, GAO found that the more disadvantaged individuals were less likely to receive occupational training, and less likely to be trained for higher skill occupations. At the same time, GAO found that individuals trained for higher skill occupations tended to find jobs in those occupations. Therefore, this type of training tends to pay off for those few who receive it.

During a House Committee on Government Operations hearing held on July 17, 1991, to examine the preliminary results of a GAO investigation on service disparities, Chairman John Conyers stated:

'* * * JTPA has become an entity without leadership, where the federal partner—the Department of Labor—has not fulfilled its responsibilities in establishing fundamental criteria for the program that would prevent the existence and persistence of differential patterns of service and job placement for minority and women JTPA participants. And despite the vacuum created by its negligence, the Federal role has not been filled by JTPA's remaining partners—the states and localities.

The accomplice, * * * seems to be the Office of Management and Budget. GAO's original plan to survey all the service delivery areas (SDAs) around the country was cancelled because the states are not required to maintain detailed data on the types of services and outcomes generated by JTPA for various population groups. The lack of crucial data prevents SDAs and the Department of Labor from knowing more about their program, its effectiveness and improved performance. During JTPA's first three years of operation, OMB prevented the Labor Department—in direct violation of the law—from collecting information on the post-training experiences of participants. While some improvements have been made in this area, the data is still sorely deficient. The bottom line is, DOL is unable to monitor the program for the type of disparities identified by the GAO investigation.

The appearance of institutionalized patterns of employment discrimination in a Federally mandated program is bad enough; but the Labor Department's "keeper of the flame" of JTPA—the Employment and Training Administration—and its "cop on the beat"—the Directorate of Civil Rights—have maintained passive positions in monitoring and acting to correct the inequities that exist and persist. To date, not one state, not one of the 630 SDAs has been sanctioned for breaking the law.

Women participating in JTPA training programs tend to be trained for traditionally "female" occupations, not for traditionally male occupations, which often provide enhanced pay, benefits and job security.

In testimony presented to the Government Operations Committee concerning its preliminary findings on racial and gender disparities in JTPA services, the GAO stated, "although women were receiving more classroom training than men, program officials told us that women were more likely than men to get training in jobs with lower placement wages." The GAO also testified that, "while participants were more likely to receive classroom and on-the-job training, while black participants were more likely to receive only job search assistance." These findings only serve to underscore the need for improved targeting and service requirements found in H.R. 3033.

In response to the recent GAO report on service disparities, a number of amendments were included in H.R. 3033 to address each of the issues highlighted in the Committee on Government Operations hearing.

ON-THE-JOB TRAINING

One of the more costly, yet costly, types of training services provided through JTPA is on-the-job training (OJT). A contract for OJT is generally made with an employer, and the JTPA program pays a subsidy that equals 50 percent of the wages paid to JTPA participants hired by this employer. The Department of Labor's IG, as well as the GAO, investigated the use of this subsidy by surveying OJT employers. In its 1988 survey, approximately 60 percent of all OJT employers said they would have hired the JTPA participant without the subsidy. Of the employees surveyed, however, only 66 percent of the adults and 48 percent of the youth were retained after the OJT training ended.

The GAO also noted abuses in OJT services and reported that over 40 percent of OJT placements were in lower skill occupations, such as custodial care, housekeeping, dishwashing, car washing, and laundry. While such training may be appropriate for certain individuals, the GAO noted that much of the time spent in OJT "was very likely too long." The Department of labor estimates the training period for most lower skill occupations should be no more than 30 days or 240 hours. In contrast, the average time for 85 percent of the OJT contracts surveyed was about 585 hours—more than double the Department of Labor guidelines.

PERFORMANCE STANDARDS

The performance standards have encouraged practices of serving those most likely to succeed, instead of those likely to benefit the most. Program "success" was primarily measured through performance standards by high placements and low costs. To demonstrate this measure of "success," too many SDAs avoided high-risk clients with multiple problems to overcome before they are ready to take a job. Cost standards promoted efficiency and accountability, but discouraged SDAs from providing the longer term, more intensive and costly training that is needed by the most disadvantaged JTPA clients.

While our objective should be to provide the highest quality training at the lowest cost, incentive payments had previously been directed at SDAs that "beat" the cost standards and under-emphasized quality. This underspending may be reflected in the fact that cost per placement in the JTPA system tends to fall well below the standards set by the Department of Labor. For example, in program year 1987, the average cost per adult successfully entering employment was about $2,750—an amount nearly 43 percent below the $4,374 standard set by the Department of Labor (DOL). The Committee recognizes that underspending is not the only reason for the low cost per placement. Such underspending may also reflect well established coordination with other programs. However, the cost per placement data, along with other indications of short-term intervention, give reason to believe that SDAs gave too much emphasis to cost per placement standards. The present system designed to measure program success is inadequate. H.R. 3033 begins to shift the emphasis away from placement alone.

V. COMMITTEE VIEWS

H.R. 3033 (the Job Training Reform Amendments) amends the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) to make substantial changes designed to reform, restructure and strengthen the Act's services for economically disadvantaged adults and youth.

H.R. 3033 retains the public/private partnership that forms the basic delivery system for JTPA and preserves the emphasis on program outcomes through the use of revised performance standards. Throughout the legislation, an emphasis is placed on serving the hard-to-serve, who face barriers to employment in addition to their poverty. Longer, more comprehensive services are mandated, with an assessment and service strategy to be provided for each participant. Without appropriate long-term services, which require long-term investments, JTPA will not be able to provide a long-term solution to poverty and unemployment.

JTPA TITLE II FUNDING

Throughout this legislation, a concerted effort has been made to address each of the criticisms directed at the Title II program. It is the Committee's intent to address each criticism or problem that has been used as a reason not to increase funding for this program. A comprehensive effort has been made by the Committee to reform the program; and the Committee expects that this will bring about a substantial effect on funding when appropriations are considered in the coming years.

Since the inception of JTPA, the Title II poverty program has received stagnant funding. When inflation is taken into account, this program has lost over 30 percent of its purchasing power. To rectify this, the Committee has included a declaration of policy that strongly encourages the expansion of the Title II program by increasing funds by at least 10 percent each year. Increased funding will be required simply to maintain current service levels, since these amendments require longer, more comprehensive training services. With JTPA serving less than 5 percent of eligible population, it is already seriously underfunded, and the numerous new requirements added in this legislation may dramatically increase costs. In recognition of these changes and of the support of longer, in some instances multi-year services, the Committee strongly urges substantially increased funding for this program.

Subject to the approval of the Governor, service delivery areas (SDAs) are allowed to transfer up to a total of 10 percent in any given program year of their title II-A and II-C funds between Titles II-A and II-C, depending upon local need to serve more adults or more youth. SDAs are encouraged to transfer these funds when necessary, but not as a bookkeeping measure to avoid the recapture of funds.

SEPARATE ADULT AND YOUTH PROGRAMS

JTPA services for economically disadvantaged persons currently are provided through two programs: the Title II-A program for economically disadvantaged youth and adults; and the Title II-B summer employment and training program for youth. Local SDAs receiving funds under Title II-A must spend at least 40 percent of their funds on eligible youth, ages 16 through 21.

H.R. 3033 separates the year round youth services currently provided in the Title II-A program into a new Title II-C youth program. This program was separated from Title II-A to address the specific needs of “at risk” youth. The creation of distinct adult and youth programs is intended to promote a more effective delivery of services and permit greater specialization of these services to meet the different needs of adults and youth. The authorization for this new title is required to be 40 percent of the previous Title II-A funds, thereby protecting current youth funding levels.

To be eligible for services under Title II-A, individuals must be economically disadvantaged adults age 22 or older, and at least 60 percent of these adults must have at least one prescribed barrier to employment in addition to poverty. As in current law, 10 percent of these participants may be non-economically disadvantaged if they face at least one other barrier to employment.

The proposed Title II-C program for youth, aged 16 through 21, will have similar eligibility requirements to those listed above for adults. High school dropouts under the age of 18, however, must return to school or some form of alternative educational program as a part of their participation in JTPA. H.R. 3033 requires that 50 percent of the participants served in Title II-C be out-of-school youth at the time they are enrolled in the program. With limited exceptions, a governor may lower the SDA’s requirement to a minimum of 40 percent.

The Title II-B summer youth program will retain the eligibility requirements in current law. Language is added to this part to encourage the concurrent enrollment or the transfer of summer youth into the Title II-C year round youth program.
OUT-OF-SCHOOL YOUTH

While numerous concerns have been raised about the quality and targeting of services to the eligible population under Title II, particular concerns have been directed at the out-of-school youth and dropouts. In many cases, these are the most disadvantaged and disenfranchised individuals, and the most difficult to reach and to serve.

In creating the new Title II-C program, increased services to dropouts and out-of-school youth are required and the training services have been revised to meet the special needs of youth. Of the Title II-C participants, 60 percent must be out-of-school. A governor may lower the service delivery area (SDA) requirement to a minimum of 40 percent out-of-school youth if the dropout rate is less than 10 percent. SDAs may also exclude from the computation of the 60 percent out-of-school/40 percent in-school ratio, all of the in-school youth served in a schoolwide project (described hereafter).

The requirement that 60 percent of those served must be out-of-school has received considerable attention from many local program operators. While exemptions have been added to this requirement, the Committee's intent is to maintain a primary focus on serving dropouts and out-of-school, non-college bound youth. At the same time, these exemptions provided flexibility to local programs to reduce the 60 percent out-of-school youth requirements.

In order to receive a waiver, a dropout rate of 10 percent or less in a SDA must be shown by an empirical finding that the actual dropout rate for the in-school youth population in a SDA at the time of the request is 10 percent or less, as determined on the basis of objectively reliable standards and methods which are consistently and uniformly applied throughout the State. The Committee intends that in any SDA with a verified dropout rate under 10 percent, the governor's approval of a request to serve less than 60 percent out-of-school youth should be automatic.

The Committee is well aware that JTPA's limited resources are greatly stretched in serving less than 5 percent of the eligible population; however, this is one of the few Federal programs with funds available for school-to-work transition programs. While the Committee recognizes that JTPA funds have been used to support a number of highly successful dropout prevention programs for in-school youth, a priority in this legislation is being placed on youth currently out of any formalized school system, i.e., high school or postsecondary education and training.

Business has increasingly expressed concern over the crisis in America's workforce. This crisis includes low basic skill levels, the poor quality of the workforce, and the ever rising workplace education threshold. The United States is one of few industrialized countries in the world without a systematic approach to ensuring that non-college bound youth are channeled into productive school-to-work programs. The William T. Grant Foundation has estimated that only 30 percent of high school students will eventually get a college degree. Its report on these youth was aptly titled, "The Forgotten Half." U.S. News and World Report has referred to these youth as the "neglected majority," and it quotes Cornell University Professor Stephen Hamilton in calling the U.S. approach "the worst school-to-work system in the Western world.” (“Crafting the Workforce”, August 19, 1991.)

Finally, Federal, State and local governments spent approximately $397 billion in 1990–1991, on all levels of education in the U.S. (in combined public and private resources). While dropout prevention programs have received only a small portion of this money, the Committee knows that, even at a minimum, there are a variety of resources which can be accessed to fund in-school youth programs. There are other programs other than JTPA that are available for out-of-school youth.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT REQUIREMENTS

In addition to emphasizing services to out-of-school youth, any youth who is a dropout under the age of 18 must, as a condition of enrollment, also return to some form of education program. At least two or more education options must be made available to the youth. The Committee expects that these be viable options, since many youth would strongly resist returning to the high school from which they dropped out. As an example, in gang-dominated neighborhoods, a youth may have dropped out of school for his or her own protection. In situations such as these, returning to the same high school must be one of two limited options to be made available. In such instances, different options should be made available, such as an alternative education program, or night school courses.

TARGET GROUPS

In the Title II-A and II-C programs, H.R. 3033 requires at least 60 percent of the participants to have at least one prescribed barrier to employment in addition to their poverty. These additional eligibility requirements were added to address the long-standing criticisms that the Title II program is “creaming” or serving the easiest to serve, instead of those most in need of services, as discussed previously in this report.

In view of the fact that the JTPA program serves less than 5 percent of the eligible population, the Committee supports serving a more targeted group with multiple barriers to employment. While the Committee recognizes that poverty alone may entail a substantial barrier to employment, there is a need to intensify the focus of extremely limited federal funds to those with multiple employment barriers, who would have little chance of employment success on their own. While the prescribed categories do not list all employment barriers, this list represents the majority of individuals considered to be most in need of services.

The Title II-A adult target groups are: basic skills deficient, school dropouts, recipients of cash welfare payments offenders, individuals with disabilities, and the homeless. The barriers for the Title II-C youth target groups include: basic skills deficient, education attainment one or more grade levels below the grade level appropriate to the individual's age, pregnant or parenting, individuals with disabilities (including learning disability), homeless or run-away, school dropouts, or offenders.
The Committee intends that determinations of these barriers be used to effectively target the program and services; and not be a hindrance to recruiting and processing participants, or a stigma to the individuals served.

While a more detailed assessment is required for improved participant services (as described subsequently) it is not the Committee's intent to require a detailed assessment to determine participant eligibility. For example, to determine whether an individual meets the eligibility for the basic skills deficiency target group, it is expected that a simple basic skills test would be applied. A short simple ten minute test should be sufficient for determining basic skills deficiency in the initial eligibility test. (The same is true of the summer youth program's basic skills assessment requirement.) It is only after eligibility has been determined that a more detailed basic skills assessment is required to address any specific deficiencies.

SCHOOLWIDE PROJECTS

Schoolwide projects are authorized under Title II-C in order to target in-school youth in high poverty neighborhoods. SDAs are authorized to provide funds to establish these projects in high schools located in neighborhoods with over 30 percent poverty. This provision would target youth who are reading below grade level or face other barriers to employment, but it would not require each in-school youth served by this project to be income-certified.

High schools in these high poverty areas must demonstrate that 75 percent of their students have barriers to employment other than their poverty. These are the same barriers listed in the youth target groups described above. As long as it can be determined that 75 percent of the student population meets these barriers, then the entire school may be served by a program, without each individual being either income certified or assessed for a specific individual barrier.

In urban and rural areas with a high concentration of poverty, individual eligibility criteria for in-school youth may be unnecessary and potentially counterproductive. Numerous JTPA service providers have testified that the burden of documentation can discourage participation in JTPA programs. While the Committee supports the need to document poverty and certain barriers for eligibility purposes, it also recognizes that, in extreme situations in areas of pervasive poverty, it is more important to target the severely disadvantaged in a manner which does not hinder participation. Also, only a limited number of schools will qualify under the strict criteria established in this legislation although, in some high schools in our country, virtually the entire school has been tested as reading below grade level.

The authorization for these projects would also facilitate successful public-private partnerships, such as those modeled after the Boston Compact, to continue to offer training and employment opportunities to all students. This arrangement would also allow for the leveraging of JTPA funds with private sector contributions aimed at individual schools, such as "adopt-a-school" programs.
This schoolwide project is modeled after Section 1015 of the Chapter 1 program in the Hawkins-Stafford Elementary and Secondary School Improvement Amendments of 1988 (P.L. 100-297). The existing Chapter 1 schoolwide projects program recognizes the diminishing value of targeting based on individual characteristics in areas of high concentrations of poverty.

SUMMER YOUTH PROGRAMS

The Committee supports the continuation of the separate summer youth program currently authorized under Title II-B of JTPA. Summer is a critical period for keeping young people on productive paths. The summer youth program provides remediation, work-study programs, and valuable work experience to large numbers of disadvantaged youth all across the country. Summer jobs are also a source of much needed income for the disadvantaged. Not only have these programs been beneficial, many young people would receive no exposure to the world of work otherwise. The Committee also believes summer youth programs can be a key factor in encouraging participants to complete their schooling or enroll in other supplementary or alternative school programs.

It is the Committee's intent that there be no barriers to participation in either the summer program or the year-round program; SDAs are encouraged to build linkages between these two programs. Eligible individuals may be co-enrolled in the summer programs and in programs under Title II-C; therefore, youth do not have to be terminated from the summer program to participate in the year-round program and vice versa. If youth are co-enrolled, some adjustments may be made with respect to the number of youth competencies to be met for the performance standards in Title II-C. This is to reflect the limited period of participation of youth in the summer program.

Additional, co-enrollment allows the year-round program to build upon accomplishments achieved during the summer months and to provide follow-up services. Similarly, participation in the summer program can enhance the skills learned during the year-round program and limit the amount of academic regression that naturally takes place over the summer months when youth are not normally in school.

A 1982 General Accounting Office (GAO) study concluded the labor market problems of youth are due in large part to a lack of success in school. Another 1982 GAO study concluded that substantial gains in employability for disadvantaged youth are possible through a combination of such services as remedial education, well-structured work experience, and training.

The complex problems of disadvantaged youth demand a more comprehensive approach than currently provided. Year-round and summer services are encouraged to be seamless to assure the benefits of work experience or training in the summer are maintained throughout the year. Research and numerous demonstration projects consistently have shown work experience is most valuable when combined with other forms of training or education.
In addition to increased targeting, H.R. 3033 requires that the education, skill level, and service needs of each Title II-A and II-C participant be assessed, and a service strategy be developed. In these two programs, each participant must be provided, directly or through arrangement, the education, skills training and supportive services necessary, as indicated in the assessment. This is designed to ensure that the training services received by each participant are tied to that individual's abilities, needs, and interests. While the service strategies are not considered to be contracts, the SDAs must make services available to meet the service and employment plans detailed in these service strategies.

As the JTPA Advisory Committee noted in its March 1989 report, "Working Capital":

Only after participants' work history, job and educational skills, interests, health, motivation and life circumstances are reviewed and documented, can they be used to establish the services individuals should receive and their obligations while receiving those services.

The Committee wants to stress that the assessment process should be flexible and has not prescribed the design of the assessment. The Committee does not believe that an assessment has to be a testing or "paper and pencil" exercise.

A thorough "recent" assessment from another program is acceptable. The Committee intends that "recent" be interpreted as roughly one year. Assessments should determine employment barriers such as basic skills deficiencies, learning disabilities, and lack of vocational skills. In order to properly refer a participant to a basic skills or vocational program, the participant's needs, strengths, weaknesses, and interests must be considered.

Without properly addressing the individual needs of participants, the job training system will not succeed in placing individuals into well-paying jobs with long-term retention. While JTPA has traditionally been successful in placing individuals in jobs, it has been less successful with long-term retention rates and with reductions in welfare. Without appropriate long-term services, which require long-term investments, JTPA will not be able to provide long-term solutions to poverty and unemployment.

The Committee intends for the assessment to be a meaningful first step in determining appropriate services for JTPA participants and not a means for screening the hard-to-serve out of the program. Activities related to conducting an assessment and developing a service strategy, once an individual is a participant, are considered direct training for purposes of assigning cost categories. An initial assessment simply to determine a client's eligibility for the program is to be considered as an administrative cost.

The bill requires that an individual service strategy be developed which is based on the assessment and identifies the employment goal, achievement objectives, and the services to be provided to the participant. Basic skills, occupational skills training, and supportive services shall be provided either directly or through arrangement to the participant where the assessment indicates a need.
Core year-round services for youth must also include pre-employment and work maturity skills training and work experience combined with skills training.

There are many approaches an SDA can take to help participants obtain services identified in his or her service strategy and ensure effective participation in JTPA. The choice of approach should be a local decision and this legislation does not require but encourages the use of a recent service strategy developed under another education or training program (such as JOBS).

Participants in the summer youth program must also be provided with an assessment of their basic skill levels and supportive service needs. This review may include a review of occupational skills, prior work experience, employability, interests and aptitudes. The Committee does not intend for the summer youth assessment to be a cumbersome, lengthy or expensive effort. The Committee encourages SDAs, to the extent possible, to obtain needed assessment information on summer youth participants from the school system or other appropriate resources, and not duplicate efforts.

OBJECTIVE ASSESSMENTS

Many service providers perform their own outreach and assessment of potential JTPA clients. This allows the service providers further opportunity to select participants for the training programs they offer, rather than referring them to other appropriate training opportunities. The GAO found that even, when service providers send participants to the SDA itself for eligibility certification, SDA personnel generally return participants to the same provider for training. Further, many participants are only made aware of the training offered by one service provider.

In recognition of these problems it is the committee's intent that participants must be assessed in an independent manner and must be afforded the opportunity to receive career counseling as a part of their service strategy. They must also be offered information on other appropriate providers for specific services.

It would be difficult to mandate that all SDAs use outside entities for independent assessment and service strategy development, because of the cost constraints involved. However, the Committee intends to monitor the relationship of SDAs and providers for the possibility of any collusionary partnerships.

RESTRICING PROGRAM ACCESS

In Title II-A and II-C, language has been included to require that "each participant or applicant who meets the minimum income eligibility criteria be provided information on the full array of applicable or appropriate services available by the service delivery area or other service providers" to meet the applicant's basic skills and training needs. This would include referral to other training and education programs, and it would require the SDA to maintain records of such referrals and reasons for which applicants are referred.

The Committee considered even more stringent provisions designed to ensure that hard-to-serve individuals are not inappropriately denied access to JTPA services by restrictive state or local policies. These proposals were prompted by reports that some SDAs have adopted additional across-the-board eligibility requirements, such as a minimum eighth grade reading level requirement, for entry into all JTPA programs. Surveys of selected SDAs conducted by the Children's Defense Fund provided further confirmation that reading and math skills frequently are used as the basis for restricting access to training programs. Even in instances where entry criteria are necessary, strong referral mechanisms to ensure access to appropriate services for individuals failing to qualify for more advanced training programs typically are lacking.

The Committee deleted the prohibition included in the introduced bill regarding any state and local policies that restrict access to these programs. This was deleted in recognition of the fact that funds only allow for services to less than 5 percent of the eligible population. While the Committee recognizes that certain training programs may require some prior basic skills or vocational training (i.e., a word processing or nursing course), the imposition of across the board additional eligibility requirements is contrary to the legislative intent.

The Committee does not expect states and individual SDAs to establish additional eligibility requirements, beyond those in the statute which have the effect of denying assistance to those most in need of services. The Committee urges the Secretary of Labor to monitor grantees for any such policies in an effort to curtail such counterproductive practices.

PROGRAM DESIGN

A fundamental change from current law is the requirement that job search, job clubs, and work experience activities be accompanied by other services that increase a participant's educational and occupational skills. These activities may be provided on a "stand-alone" basis only if the individuals' service strategy indicates the additional services are not appropriate, and if such activities are not available to the participant through the Employment Service or other public agencies. This change reflects the Committee's belief that quick turnaround placement programs have minimal long-term impact when provided in isolation from other more comprehensive and intensive service.

The Committee intends that the assessment, development of service strategies, and monitoring of the progress of program participants, be part of an individualized case management system. The use of integrated computer systems is strongly encouraged as a means of streamlining this approach and enabling SDAs to track participants as they move through a variety of programs and services. Case management is not to be interpreted to mean that all services required by a participant must be provided by the same provider. The use of a variety of service providers on a concurrent or sequential basis should be encouraged and single providers should not attempt to provide a "smorgasbord" of services to participants merely to comply with the new restrictions on "stand-alone" services.
The Committee has been informed of the unique challenges that the Testing, Assessment and Placement Centers (TAP) program and the Employment Service confront within New York City. Only because of the extremely high levels of severely at-risk populations and the successful placements of these populations should there be Department of Labor directed coordination of services of the respective programs.

DOCUMENTATION

The Secretary is expected to provide guidance and technical assistance to states and SDAs on minimizing and standardizing documentation for verifying eligibility, demonstrating additional barriers to employment, and conducting assessments. The establishment of uniform standards, simplified forms, and automated intake procedures is strongly recommended.

The documentation process for verifying the eligibility of participants for the program should not be an expensive or cumbersome process, nor should the documentation process hinder the participation of eligible individuals.

The Secretary's guidance should address the difficulties associated with independent verification of persons who are homeless, disabled, runaways or dropouts. Client self-certification of these conditions is acceptable, as long as a good faith verification effort has been made by the SDA, if it is the only viable method of the target group certification. The Committee recommends that the guidance address the manner in which eligibility documentation from other related programs (such as Jobs Corps or JOBS) can be used in lieu of requiring new or additional documentation for purposes of establishing JTPA eligibility. A disability assessment conducted by the Vocational Rehabilitation program is sufficient to fulfill the disability determination requirements under the target groups. A determination of learning disabilities, as defined in the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, will suffice for the target group eligibility requirements of this section. A new test or assessment should not be required or be necessary.

Such regulations are expected to be used for evaluating SDA compliance with the target group eligibility criteria, as well as for audits conducted by the IG, other officials in DOL, States, and independent auditors.

RECAPTURE OF UNOBLIGATED FUNDS

The Committee bill contains language providing for the recapturing of funds by the state (and similarly by the Secretary) from those entities that are unable to expend or obligate their funds in a timely manner. To the extent possible, funds available under Title II are to be used for services and activities that reach the target population. Although many states have not previously had problems, there is concern that the increased targeting in these reform amendments may cause some areas to delay utilizing their allocations in a timely manner.

The inclusion of these provisions is not meant to discourage thoughtful and long-term planning on the part of SDAs or States, but rather to ensure that funds reach the target groups and get to other areas of greater relative need, if any State or SDA is unable to meet these requirements for utilizing its allocations.

The Governor is encouraged to develop uniform procedures for the expenditure of funds that will provide guidance to SDAs, and will allow them to maximize the effect of their allocation. If after 2 years, an SDA is unable to expend or obligate at least 85 percent of its allocation, the Governor may recapture such unused funds and allocate them to other SDAs within the State that have met such criteria, and have the highest rates of unemployment and poverty. Similarly, the Secretary may recapture a State’s allotment, if the State is unable to expend or obligate at least 85 percent of its allocation. These requirements are not intended to be punitive, but rather to assure efficient use of funds in meeting the needs of the targeted populations under this program.

Because there is a similar provision for recapture by the State of funds designated for older worker programs at the SDA level, a provision has been included which prevents double counting against an SDA of unspent or unobligated funds. It is not intended, in the case of an SDA which cannot meet the funding requirements for services to older individuals, that the unobligated funds be recaptured twice by the State. Such unobligated funds as are recaptured under section 203(d) will not be counted as part of the unobligated funds under the general recapturing provisions for Title II. As in the general recapturing provisions, the Governor may reallocate any recaptured funds to other SDAs in the State, or may contract with different service providers to assure that services are made available to eligible older individuals within the SDA from which funds were recaptured. The Committee intends that the State will first seek to serve those older individuals located within the particular SDA.

ELIGIBILITY FOR FOOD STAMPS

The Committee bill amends the definition of “economically disadvantaged,” which under current law includes individuals who are receiving food stamps, to include individuals “determined to be eligible to receive” food stamps. The Committee does not intend that the JTPA program would be responsible for applying the eligibility criteria contained in the Food Stamp Act to determine if an individual would be eligible to receive food stamps. This amendment is only intended to apply where an authorized food stamp agency has made a determination is presented to a JTPA program.

FISCAL ACCOUNTABILITY

The Committee has identified several areas of concern with respect to the fiscal accountability of the JTPA program. In order to address these concerns, the Committee bill establishes new requirements relating to procurement standards and the monitoring of compliance with such standards, the sanctions available for substantial violations of Act, the definition and use of program income, the charging of costs and the application of cost limitations, and the title, use, and disposition of property.
The Secretary is required to prescribe regulations establishing detailed, uniform procurement standards and cost principles for states, substate areas, and SDAs to ensure fiscal accountability and prevent waste, fraud and abuse in these programs. In establishing these standards, the Secretary shall consult with the Inspector General and take into consideration the relevant circulars of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) that apply to other Federal grant programs. The standards prescribed shall ensure that procurements are competitive, include an analysis of the reasonableness of costs, provide no excess program income or profit, and involve conflict of interest in the grant selection process.

In every Department of Labor Inspector General's (IG) semiannual report to Congress over the past 3 years, serious problems have been identified with SDA procurement practices. National reviews, along with smaller audits of individual SDAs, have repeatedly disclosed serious procurement problems. These are not isolated instances of noncompliance. The procurement and accounting problems are systemic in nature, and only nationally applied remedies will correct them.

Over the years, the program has shown a serious lack of direction and uniformity and a need for more Federal guidance. Frequently, governors have declined to control this situation, passing the JTPA requirement for establishing procurement controls down to the local level, where controls over procurement of training-type services are at times nonexistent. The need for procurement reform has been the subject of IG audit reports; but the Employment and Training Administration's program reviews conducted over the past year at SDAs across the country, have also disclosed numerous problems. These problems range from poor draftsmanship and definition of contract objectives to no procurement systems at all. The reports also disclosed excessive profits for some service providers.

The new requirements relating to procurement practices are intended to promote integrity, fairness, and accountability in the way goods and services are purchased under the program. In short, they will help to assure that the program gets what it pays for, and that it does not pay more than what is reasonable.

The standards also must ensure that procurements do not provide excess program income for nonprofit or governmental entities or excess profit for private for-profit entities. Procurement transactions between units of State or local governments, and between administrative entities under the Act must be conducted on a cost-reimbursable basis. Finally, grantees and subgrantees are required to maintain constant oversight to ensure compliance with these standards.

The Committee recognizes that unless there is close monitoring of compliance and strong sanction imposed in cases of noncompliance, these standards will not be effective. Therefore, the Commit-teel bill also contains provisions that require the Governor to conduct annual on-site monitoring of each SDA and substate area to ensure compliance with the procurement standards. Where violations are found, the Governor is to require prompt corrective action and impose specified sanctions if such corrective action is not taken. The Governor must biennially certify to the Secretary that the procurement standards have been implemented, that the State has satisfied the monitoring requirements, and that appropriate actions have been taken in instances of noncompliance.

If the Secretary determines that the Governor has not fulfilled the requirements relating to the procurement standards, the Secretary must require prompt corrective action and impose specified sanctions where such corrective action is not taken. These requirements are intended to enhance the oversight of the program and compliance with procurement requirements throughout the JTPA system.

PROCUREMENT SANCTIONS

In addition, the Committee bill significantly enhances the sanctions available to the Governor where substantial violations of the Act, including violations of the procurement standards, are found. Under current law, the only sanction provided is that the Governor may revoke approval of the local job training plan. However, the severity of this sanction limits its usefulness, since even if applied it may result in depriving participants of important services. In order to provide additional enforcement tools and to ensure that sanctions are applied where there is a substantial violation, the legislation requires that if such a violation is found and corrective action is not taken by the SDA, the Governor must either revoke approval of the plan or impose a reorganization plan.

The imposition of a reorganization plan, which is similar to the authority provided to the Governor where there is a continued failure to meet performance standards under section 106, may include: restructuring the PIC, prohibiting the use of certain service providers, selecting an alternative administrative entity, merging the SDA into another existing SDA, or any other appropriate change. If the Governor fails to take either of these actions, then the Secretary must step in and take such actions. These provisions provide a realistic, flexible and effective array of sanctions that are intended to deter violations and to ensure that when violations of the Act do occur, they are quickly and satisfactorily remedied.

PROGRAM INCOME

The Committee has been informed of instances where net income and interest earned by public or nonprofit entities from JTPA funds have been misused. In order to prevent such misuse, the Committee bill revises the existing law's provision to clarify how such funds are to be spent, defines program income for purposes of the Act, and requires records to be maintained to establish compliance. The revised provision only allows program income to be retained by public or nonprofit entities if such income is used to continue to carry out the program as authorized under JTPA. Such continued use is permissible, as under current law, even if financial assistance for the program has expired.

Program income is defined to include receipts from goods or services provided as a result of activities funded under JTPA, funds provided to a service provider which are in excess of costs; and, except as provided by the Cash Management Improvement Act of 1990, interest earned on funds received under JTPA. On the letter point, in case the regulations promulgated by the Treasury Department under the Cash Management Improvement Act are official to the use of interest income (below the State level) to substate public and private non-profit entities, such Act would be the applicable law. Otherwise, this provision of JTPA is to govern the use of such interest income. Finally, this provision requires that each entity maintain records sufficient to determine the amount of income received and the purposes for which such income is used.

ON-THE-JOB TRAINING

The Committee recognizes that on-the-job training (OJT) is an important approach to training JTPA participants, but a number of significant restrictions need to be placed on the use of OJT to curb abuses that have been identified by the GAO and the Department of Labor's IG.

The Committee bill provides that a recognized reference work, such as the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, must be used in establishing the duration of each OJT opportunity, so that a consistent rational method for determining the appropriate duration of training is applied. However, in no instance may training exceed six months. Each training opportunity should be structured to meet the specific training needs of a participant. The duration should reflect both training needs that must be met and the experience and background of the participant. The Committee emphasizes that OJT agreements are to focus on training content and, when appropriate, encourages employers to provide training to participants in the context of the overall training normally provided their work force.

The Committee bill requires that each OJT contract specify the types and duration of training to be developed and other services to be provided in order to assure that proposed costs are reasonable. The Committee fully expects the elimination of the abuses identified by the GAO in which training was approved for longer periods than the occupation required.

The Committee recognizes that the purpose of OJT is to enable employers to provide necessary training for regular jobs and fully expects that participants who successfully complete OJT would normally be retained in permanent employment. Employers who have exhibited any pattern of failing to provide participants with continued long-term employment, or employment in which the wages and benefits are not at the same level as other employees similarly situated, shall not be eligible for additional OJT contracts. Long-term employment, in OJT cases, should be considered a minimum of six months.

The Committee will expect the Department of Labor and the General Accounting Office to follow-up and monitor up for one year after OJT participation the continued employment of individuals who have been OJT participants. The Committee will expect reports on the percentage of such participants who have been retained in employment for both six months and one year.

It is the Committee's intent that the Secretary develop strong regulations regarding OJT related to employer retention of participants and the provision of benefits, by monitoring closely the use of OJT in the JTPA system to ensure that all past abuses have been addressed pursuant to this legislation.

In developing regulations concerning on-the-job training contracts, the Department of Labor is expected to take into account the recommendations submitted by the Department’s Inspector General in 1989.

DEMAND OCCUPATIONS

Training shall only be provided for occupations for which there is a demand in the area where the eligible participants will be seeking employment. Accordingly, when entering into arrangements with training providers, the administrative entity should consider those programs that provide training in occupations and sectors in the economy that have a potential for demand and growth. Understanding local labor market opportunities is must be a crucial factor in selecting training programs in each service delivery area.

DEFINITIONS OF PLACEMENT AND TERMINATION

In the absence of uniform definitions of placement and termination, performance standards fail to accurately measure job placements. H.R. 3033 directs the Secretary of Labor to establish such uniform definitions. The bill also requires that the placement definition be used to determine credit for employment obtained in occupational areas related either to training or training-related services provided by programs operated under this Act.

The creation of such a uniform definition is designed to encourage employment, to the extent practical, in an occupational area at least indirectly related to training or training-related services, but not discourage the provision of basic skills training which has wide applicability to employment.

The Secretary should develop, in consultation with the Governors and SDAs, definitions of the term “practicable” and “job areas related to training” and provide guidance to states and SDAs on the types of placements that will receive placement credits. Further, it is not the legislative intent that the placement standard be used as the basis for an audit exception.

EMPLOYMENT

The Committee does not want to discourage part-time employment—a necessary option for some participants, including older workers, welfare mothers, displaced homemakers and youth. However, in an effort to establish more uniformity in the definition of employment, the bill requires that an individual be employed at least 20 hours per week before a job placement can be credited for purposes of performance standards measurement. This minimum hourly requirement should reduce the occurrence of casual or intermittent employment discouraged in JTPA as not furthering a client’s long-term employability.
PARTICIPATION DEFINITION

The Committee is aware of the practice of some SDAs holding individuals in a pattern in which services are being provided although the eligible individual is not enrolled as a participant. The individual is subsequently “enrolled” as a participant when it is clear that placement in private sector employment has occurred or is imminent, or that the participant is likely to complete a training activity. The Committee strongly objects to any such practices, which seriously undermine the intent of the legislation relating to serving the hard-to-serve and the measuring of performance.

FIXED UNIT PRICE CONTRACTS

The cost accountability issues in JTPA are numerous and complex. As such, they have been the focus of a number of audits performed over the past 4 years. Perhaps the most far-reaching and serious of these issues is the JTPA system’s use of fixed unit price, performance-based contracting (FUPC) to circumvent the current 15 percent statutory limitation on administrative expenditures.

In passing JTPA in 1982, Congress wanted to minimize expenditures for program administration and maximize expenditures for training. To accomplish this, section 108 of the Act limited SDA administrative costs under title II-A to 15 percent and limited the combination of administrative and participant support costs to 30 percent. The Act directed local SDAs to spend at least 70 percent of their funds on training activities.

To comply with these statutory limitations, the Department of Labor (DOL) issued regulations requiring costs to be charged against three categories: training, participant support, and administration. In these regulations, DOL also allowed all costs to be charged to the training cost category under certain conditions. These conditions were that the governing agreement had to (1) be for training; (2) be fixed unit priced; and (3) stipulate that full payment for the full unit price was to be made only upon completion of training by a participant, and upon placement of the participant into unsubsidized employment in the occupation for which training had been provided, at a wage not less than that specified in the agreement. Several key terms in the statute were not clearly defined in these regulations. As a result, numerous states and SDAs came to define all activities in a contract as training (including administrative and overhead activities).

States and SDAs began to operate more and more of their programs through use of FUPCs. The advantage for the SDAs was that they could “convert” additional administrative and support costs in such contracts into training by virtue of these regulations. Service provider contractors also saw an advantage in operating through FUPCs. Generally, FUPC contractors were not required to keep records of their expenditures as a trade-off for assuming the risk of payment only for performance.

Unfortunately, because of the attraction of this method of contracting for the SDAs, the procurement processes established were lax, assumed few contractor risks, and often produced excessive contractor profits. This risk avoidance and ability to profit stemmed largely from the lack of sound procurement systems requiring such basic practices as competitive bidding and analysis of contractor costs and prices before awarding contracts.

In March 1989, DOL issued a policy interpretation for FUPC. However, the IG still contends that some states have decided not to adhere to the interpretation's additional requirements, because the interpretation was issued as a program guidance letter and does not have the force of statutory law. H.R. 3033 codifies this policy interpretation, in addition to addressing each of the abuses cited in recent IG reports.

The Committee does not intend to eliminate FUPCs from the JTPA system and thus lose the benefits the program receives through their performance-based application. With the application of good procurement systems, FUPCs can be effectively used. It is the single unit charging of such contracts that the Congress objects to and seeks to restrict.

H.R. 3033 would effectively eliminate the "single unit charge" to the training cost category for all but very limited circumstances involving tuition charges and off-the-shelf training packages.

CHARGING OF COSTS

H.R. 3033 revises current law relating to JTPA Title II cost limitations to promote the objectives of ensuring most of the program's resources are devoted to the provision of direct training to participants and prevention of excessive administrative expenditures. Under current law, SDAs must spend at least 70 percent of their funds on training activities, with a maximum of 15 percent on administration, and the remainder on support services.

The Committee is concerned that the current cost category of "training" is overly broad and includes many services that do not provide skills training to participants. Under the current limitations, there is no assurance that the program's resources will be primarily devoted to the types of training that are most likely to enhance the long-term employability of participants. To address this concern, the Committee bill revises the categories to include a direct training category, a training-related and supportive services category, and an administrative category. The Committee believes separating direct training from training related services is essential to improving the quality of services that are provided to participants and to identify clearly those costs associated with actual training.

This bill proposes that a minimum of 50 percent be spent on direct training activities, a maximum of 20 percent on administration, and the remaining 30 percent or less on support services and training-related activities. Each of these categories includes a list of services. The new training category includes work experience, counseling, assessment, and case management. However, assessment performed prior to program participation should be charged to the administrative cost category. The support services definition includes financial assistance to individuals.

The increase in the limitation on administrative costs from 15 to 20 percent is in recognition of the increased administrative responsibilities that will result from this bill, including the increased monitoring of compliance with fiscal requirements, the arrangements of linkages with other programs, and the arrangements for the provisions of more comprehensive and intensive services to a harder-to-serve population.

In combining supportive services with training-related services, it is not the Committee's intent to shortchange support services, which is a separate category under current law. The Committee is very serious in its intent to target this program better and recognizes that a critical component in doing so is to encourage the use of supportive services. Without the use of a variety of supportive services, those with multiple barriers to employment will have extreme difficulty in completing long-term, comprehensive training programs. Some of the most important of these services include: financial incentives, transportation, child care, drug and alcohol abuse counseling, and follow-up services. In the legislation, supportive services are emphasized repeatedly, and the Committee strongly urges their use.

The Committee bill requires that the Secretary define each of these cost categories by regulation and that such definitions be consistent with how authorized services are categorized in the revised sections 204 and 274 of the Act. These requirements are intended to promote clarity and consistency in the classification of costs.

The Committee bill requires, with limited prescribed exceptions, what all expenditures under JTPA be charged to the appropriate cost categories. This requirement is intended to address a significant concern of the Committee, as exemplified by the widespread use of fixed unit price, performance-based contracts in the JTPA program. Under such contracts, if certain performance conditions were met, the provider may charge all costs to the training cost category and are not required to identify the proportion of costs attributed to administrative and supportive services. The effect has been to allow providers to avoid the cost limitations and reduce the proportion of funds used for training. Requiring all expenditures to be charged to appropriate categories will restrict this practice, improve program accountability and help ensure adherence to the newly established cost limitations.

Under current law, commercial training packages are the only exception to the prohibition on single unit charges. The Committee bill specifies that tuition charges may also be single unit charges. The Committee recognizes that tuition is a cost normally assessed by an education or training institution as an aggregate sum for all costs incurred without segregation of cost components.

With respect to community-based organizations which agree to use at least 90 percent of program funds for direct training and training-related and supportive services, the funds for administering the program (up to 10 percent) shall not be charged against and subject to the limit on the administrative cost category otherwise applicable to each service delivery area's allocation. Instead, the community-based organization's costs of administering such programs shall be charged against the direct training or training-related and supportive services category ratably based on the proportion of non-administrative funds used for each such category. Service delivery areas must still assure that, from the total allocation for the entire area, at least 50 percent of total allocations will be used for direct training, when all of the SDA's program funds are taken into account.

COST LIMITATIONS

The Committee bill applies cost limitations to funds "allocated for any program year" rather than to "available" funds under current Title II law, or "expended" funds under current Title III law. This change is intended to clarify that the limit applies to funds allocated for a program year and continues to apply to the same year's allocated funds over the subsequent two years during which those funds are authorized to be expended.

Some confusion has arisen over the term "available funds" under Title II as to whether the limitations apply to new funds, consisting of carry-in funds plus the new program year's allocations, available for each year. This is not the Committee's intent, and the new legislative language, complemented by the recordkeeping provision added in section 165 requiring that records be maintained showing program costs in appropriate categories by year of appropriation, should clarify this requirement.

ADVANCE PAYMENT METHOD

The Committee recognizes that nonprofit organizations often lack the financial resources to fulfill the requirements of a contract under JTPA, if the payment for services to the nonprofit contractor does not occur until after services are initiated. Advance payments of up to 20 percent of the contract total should be made available to nonprofit organizations that have demonstrated effectiveness in the performance of the types of services to be provided under the terms of the contracts.

THE SINGLE AUDIT ACT

DOL, along with numerous other Federal agencies, relies heavily on single audits authorized in the Single Audit Act (SAA), because it is the only audit coverage most DOL recipients and subrecipients receive. The Secretary of Labor primarily relies upon single audits when reporting annually to the President and Congress on DOL's systems of internal accounting and administrative controls. Such reporting is required by the Federal Managers' Financial Integrity Act (FMFIA).

In the IG audits on the effectiveness of the SAA in providing coverage to DOL funds, it was found that limitations in the coverage provided by JTPA were caused by incompatibility between the provisions of the SAA and the program's service delivery system. The IG found that the financial information contained in single audit reports was often too consolidated or, at times, inaccurate to benefit Federal report users. For example, 35% ($768 million) of JTPA expenditures either were not audited or received very limited audit coverage.

While the issue of SAA viability is not addressed in the bill, the Committee recommends appropriate legislative review of the single audit requirements to make the SAA more compatible with programs such as JTPA.
PERFORMANCE STANDARDS

Section 106 of JTPA states clearly that Congress recognizes that "job training is an investment in human capital and not an expense." The measurement of the return on this public investment is critical, not only for the overall program, but for the individual participants whose achievements are reflected in that measurement.

The goals which Congress originally established for training programs for adults—increased employment and earnings and reduced welfare dependency—have served the program and its participants well. These program objectives reflect the positive outcomes that Congress envisioned when JTPA was first enacted. The Committee reported bill will refocus the program on serving a more disadvantaged population with a greater need for the services that JTPA offers. The Committee recognizes that this population will require more than just a job placement, more than just job seeking skills, indeed more than training in job-specific skills. Consequently, H.R. 3033 includes a new program design emphasizing the provision of basic skills, including both educational and occupational enhancement.

The Committee believes that the measure of performance for adults should also acknowledge the importance of attaining and enhancing these skills. For this reason, H.R. 3033 modifies current performance standard requirements for the adult program by adding as a basic measure of performance the acquisition of an academic credential (i.e., a high school diploma or its equivalent) and those basic education and occupational skills needed to promote long-term employability, job placement and retention. However, the primary goal of JTPA for adults remains job training, and outcome measures should reflect this goal. Therefore, the Committee bill allows additional credit for those programs that produce an increase in participants' basic education and occupational skills, when such skill enhancements are combined with an increase in employment and earnings or a decrease in welfare dependency.

The measure of performance for youth programs, however, should recognize the full range of service and training options available to enhance a youth's basic educational and occupational skill attainments. For this reason, H.R. 3033 modifies the performance standards requirements for the youth program by adding, as a basic measure of performance, dropout recovery and prevention.

H.R. 3033 amends adult and youth performance standards to include employability competencies, such as the attainment of a high school diploma or its equivalent. The bill mandates that each Governor adjust the standards to reflect economic, geographic, demographic and other different factors in state, and SDAs.

JTPA performance standards must also promote the consistent and routine delivery of effective, higher quality services to a less employable population. The Committee believes that establishing longer-term measures of labor market success such as post-program employment, earnings and job retention should help to accomplish this goal.
H.R. 3033 changes the incentive grants distributed by the States to emphasize exceeding performance in services to the hard-to-serve or those with additional barriers to employment. Another major step in redirecting the JTPA system toward providing more intensive services to harder-to-serve participants is the elimination of costs as a basis for awarding incentive payments to SDAs. Experience shows that basing incentive payments on exceeding cost standards may have rewarded the cheapest, and not the highest quality services.

Additionally, State policies that emphasize exceeding cost standards unintentionally have led SDAs to serve fewer welfare recipients and dropouts and to design short-term, less comprehensive service strategies. The Committee continues to recognize the need for cost effective programs and intends that all levels of the system—federal, state and local—continue to monitor program costs carefully to ensure fiscal accountability and sound program management. However, such criteria should not be the basis on which performance incentives are rewarded.

The Committee believes that incentive payments can be an appropriate and effective tool in inducing the JTPA delivery system to emphasize desirable program goals. Therefore, the bill specifies that incentive grants shall be awarded to SDAs that exceed performance standards, while also exceeding those established for services to hard-to-serve populations. Acknowledging the importance of high wages and employer benefits as a critical factor to a person's self-sufficiency, it is the intent of this Committee to focus rewards on both post-program earnings exceeding standard levels and placements in jobs with employer-assisted benefits, including health benefits.

The Committee acknowledges the role that performance standards can play in supporting State goals and priorities, such as promoting coordination with other human resources, provision of high quality services, and successful service to the target groups. However, in order to ensure that most of the incentive funds are awarded on the basis of the national standards, this bill limits to 25 percent the total amount of incentive grants that can be directed to additional performance standards established by Governors.

Failure to Meet Performance Standards

As rewards help to promote performance which is supportive of program goals, sanctions can help to minimize prolonged underperformance. Although Governors initially were given wide discretion in their authority to impose sanctions, this has been exercised rarely in JTPA. In the absence of any guidance, most Governors are unwilling to impose stringent sanctions. For this reason, the Committee has directed the Secretary of Labor to develop uniform criteria and procedures for States to follow in determining whether an SDA fails to meet its performance standards and under what circumstances and during what time-frame the appropriate remedial action should be taken.

JTPA was one of the first Federal programs to focus on outcomes from the programs conducted under its authority. The system by which these outcomes are measured has been progressively modified and fine-tuned to reflect what has been learned over the course of the eight years since JTPA was enacted.

These amendments make changes in the underlying authorization for the performance standards, and also require that the Secretary establish criteria by which it can be ascertained whether an SDA has failed to meet such performance standards. There are many reasons why performance standards are not met, and the Committee is concerned that appropriate intervention be provided to enable SDAs to obtain satisfactory outcomes from their activities and services.

For this reason, the bill requires several actions on the part of the States. First, the State shall provide for variation in the performance standards applied to the SDAs across the State based on factors reflecting the economic, geographic or demographic environment of the SDA, on the characteristics of the population to be served, or on demonstrated difficulties in providing services to the eligible population. Second, each State is to report to the Secretary the standards applied to, and the performance of, each SDA, and to inform the Secretary as to its plan for providing technical assistance to SDAs that fail to meet performance standards.

WITHHOLDING OF FUNDS

If the State fails to implement its plan for technical assistance, and (as provided for under section 106) an SDA fails to meet its performance standards for two consecutive years and has not received the technical assistance that is required under the Act to be provided by the State, then the Secretary can withhold or recapture up to one percent of the State administrative funds.

The Committee wants to emphasize that States must provide technical assistance in order to help SDAs meet their performance standards. Further, the Committee does not want SDAs to be penalized, or program participants to lose access to services, because the State has failed to provide the necessary technical assistance. For this reason, the funds withheld are from the State administrative monies and not from program funds. Additionally, the Committee intends that the amount of money withheld be in proportion to the amount of technical assistance and other assistance that has to be provided to the affected SDAs, but in no event should this be an amount greater than one-fifth of the 5 percent set-aside for State administration.

Similarly, if the Secretary has to implement a reorganization plan, including the selection of an alternative administrative entity, funds withheld or recaptured from the State administrative funds (as previously described) may be used to provide technical assistance and training in order to assure an effective transition during the reorganization. The importance of these provisions cannot be overstressed. In view of the goals and priorities of the JTPA system to provide high quality services to the most disadvantaged, there must be a way to assure that sufficient assistance is provided to enable SDAs to meet their performance standards; and, if they cannot fulfill that mission, to reorganize the system in such a way that they will be met, and services will be provided in an effective manner.

The Governor is required to notify the Secretary of continued failure (2 program years) along with plans for reorganizing and restructuring the SDA and the private industry council. If the Governor fails to address the SDA's failure to meet performance standards, the Secretary shall withhold one-fifth of the five percent state administration set-aside to provide these services.

STATE SET-ASIDES

Of the funds appropriated for Title II-A and II-C, 19 percent will be set-aside at the state level for the following activities: 6 percent for incentive grants to local SDAs that have exceeded all performance standards while also exceeding performance standards for the hard-to-serve; 5 percent for state administration and monitoring of programs; and 8 percent for state education coordination and grants.

EDUCATION COORDINATION SET-ASIDE

The Committee bill retains the 8 percent State set-aside for education coordination activities authorized in Section 123 of the current law. However, the Committee believes that these funds would be more effectively used if they were targeted to two areas of critical need: school-to-work transition, and literacy and lifelong learning. As the General Accounting Office has testified, while the United States has a worldwide reputation for providing its youth with extensive opportunities to attend college, it falls short in significant respects in employment preparation of non-college youth, most notably in equipping them with necessary literacy skills and providing them an effective transition from school to work. Many adults, too, lack the literacy and updated skills they will need for more complex and demanding jobs.

The Committee has revised the education set-aside program to require that the financial assistance the Governor provides to State education agencies be used for school-to-work transition programs that will encourage graduation from high school and raise achievement levels and literacy and lifelong learning programs that will enhance the knowledge and skills of the workforce. Up to 20 percent of the funds may be used to facilitate coordination of services to participants in such programs, including activities to establish and support a state human resource investment council authorized by Title VII of this legislation.

School-to-work transition programs must provide activities and services to encourage high school graduation and enable students to attain a high level of competency over essential subject matter; incorporate a work-based curriculum that links classroom learning to worksite experience and addresses practical and theoretical aspects of work; and provide opportunities for participants to obtain career-path employment and postsecondary education. Adult literacy and lifelong learning programs are to develop a comprehensive, integrated and coherent adult learning system to provide literacy training and learning opportunities to educationally or economically disadvantaged adults.
The Committee acknowledges that, because of the legislative emphasis on serving out-of-school youth, effective multi-year dropout prevention programs, which are jointly sponsored by PICs and local education agencies may face unintended funding disruptions. H.R. 3033 includes language that such an activity may be granted funding consideration under this State education coordination and grants set-aside.

As in current law, programs are to be conducted pursuant to agreements between the State education agency, other State and local agencies, and alternative service providers. The agreements are to provide for matching funds on a one-to-one basis. The Committee has added a requirement that the Governor's Coordination and Special Services Plan include a description of the programs to be carried out. Services may be targeted to groups whom the Governor determines require special assistance, such as offenders and veterans.

The Committee directs the Secretary to ensure that the governor, in allocating funds to state education agencies, shall not establish any requirements governing the distribution of these funds within the States. Furthermore, the governor shall not establish any additional requirements for the State education agency other than compliance with the provisions of JTPA.

STATE ADMINISTRATION

Governors are encouraged to use funds available under the 5 percent allotted for overall administration and management for "in-service" training and technical assistance to members of the State Job Training Coordinating Council, or the State Human Resource Investment Council, whichever may be appropriate.

OLDER WORKERS

The Committee heard testimony and received communication from across the Nation regarding the special employment and training needs of older individuals. Information has provided to the Committee which traced the history of Federal job training programs for older workers and the background of the current three percent state set-aside in Title II-A.

The bill balances the commitment to drive more JTPA funds to the local level for the delivery of services, with that of targeting funds. In order to assure that every SDA increases its attention to meeting the needs of older workers, the Committee bill requires that a minimum of 8 percent of the Title II-A funds available to each SDA be utilized for persons 55 years of age and older.

Although the funds for services to older workers have been redirected to the local level, the SDAs shall, when selecting services providers, give priority to those national, State and local agencies and organizations that have a record of providing high quality services to older individuals. SDAs are also permitted to pool these funds if they choose to utilize the aforementioned organizations or area agencies on aging to provide services to older individuals.
SELECTION OF SERVICE PROVIDERS

The Committee bill amends Section 107 of JTPA relating to selection of service providers, to specify that the Secretary may establish guidelines for the service delivery area's use in selecting service providers based on the demonstrated effectiveness of the agency or organization in delivering comparable or related services. The Committee intends that such guidance assist SDAs in choosing service providers that will give JTPA participants the types of training and assistance that will significantly improve their prospects for long-term employability. This is in accord with the Committee's intent to upgrade the quality of services provided to JTPA participants by all service providers under the program.

CONTRACTING

The Committee has received testimony stating that some SDAs have delayed the finalization of their contracts for months past the beginning of the program year, when generally the bulk of contracts are completed. In addition to addressing numerous procurement deficiencies, the Secretary should address these contracting delays in the regulations established for procurement reform.

PROHIBITED ACTIVITIES

The legislation prohibits the use of funds for activities such as: employment generating activities, economic development, revolving loan funds, contract bidding resource centers, and other activities that do not result in the direct creation of jobs which JTPA participants are placed. No funds may be expended for job creation activities unless and until they result in the direct placement and retention of JTPA participants. No funds under title II or III are to be used for foreign travel. No funds shall be used to assist or encourage business relocations. If such a violation is alleged, the Secretary shall consult with the appropriate labor, business, and public agencies in making a determination of whether a violation has occurred.

VETERANS

The Committee has increased the funding set-aside for veterans served under JTPA by 40 percent. The Committee believes this substantial increase is warranted by the number of veterans who have recently returned from the war in Iraq. Numerous veterans, who were heralded by many as heroes, returned to long unemployment lines. The Committee contends that special consideration is necessary given the extenuating circumstances of the recent war.

UNIFORM DATA COLLECTION

The amendments would require improved and expanded data collection, particularly on sex, race, age and occupation. The cross-tabulation of various state and SDA produced data will also be required.

In September 1991, GAO completed a comprehensive review of racial and gender disparities in JTPA services. GAO found that State and Federal oversight activities were inadequate to identify and address disparities in the services provided by SDAs to women and minorities, in part, because of the limited amount of data that the Department maintains on program participants.

In the States, the data on JTPA participants vary widely. In fact, for the purposes of its study, GAO found that only 16 states could provide data illustrating the services to specific demographic groups without creating duplicate counts.

GAO also found that data collected by ETA through the JTPA Annual Status Report (JASR) and the Job Training Quarterly Survey do not provide a basis for identifying service disparities. The data in the JASR cannot be used to monitor disparities because each activity is not cross-tabulated to participant demographic groups. The Quarterly Survey cannot be used because the data are available only as a national sample, and mask any disparities at the local level.

H.R. 3033 requires the States, administrative entities, and SDAs to maintain uniform and comparable management information systems in accordance with guidelines prescribed by the Secretary. The Committee understands that the Department is in the process of designing these data system upgrades, and urges the prompt implementation of these comparable data systems.

In developing such guidelines, the Committee expects the Secretary to establish a participant identification and description system to prevent double-counting of program participants. Such a system should provide instructions on determining the demographic characteristics, barriers to employment and the post-termination income of participants. Efforts which result in discouraging individuals from participating in program services under the Act must be avoided. These guidelines should also include the establishment of uniform definitions, and standardized data collection procedures and forms.

The Secretary should seek to ensure that the systems designed do not impose burdensome requirements on SDAs and service providers and where possible eliminate current unnecessary data records. It is not the purpose of these provisions to impose an additional level of reporting requirements on States, SDAs, and service providers. Rather it is the intention of the Committee that data collection procedures will be streamlined and that consideration will be given to collecting only the data that serve a useful purpose for planning, monitoring, and evaluating programs and developing methods that are not cumbersome to those providing data.

To ensure that these procedures are sensitive to such concerns, Section 27 of this legislation requires that such guidelines prescribed by the Secretary be developed in consultation with the State and local government (including SDAs and service providers) as well as the GAO. The Committee expects the Secretary to consult with GAO.

NONDISCRIMINATION REQUIREMENTS

In September 1991, the GAO completed a review of racial and gender disparities in services provided under JTPA. The GAO report found that, despite indication of disparities in the service delivery areas monitored, DOL's Directorate of Civil Rights has been slow to identify the cause of these disparities or determine whether civil rights laws have been violated. According to the GAO, the Directorate has made monitoring visits to 26 state JTPA agencies and an SDA in each state since 1987. Of the 26 SDAs visited, only 16 could provide sufficient data to permit a disparity analysis and all 16 had disparities in at least some services. The Directorate, however, has not completed its analysis of these cases. The Directorate has sent formal letters of its disparity findings in two states; however, both cases are still pending. Moreover, while six states have been notified informally, the remaining eight have not received any notification; and not one of these cases have been resolved.

With regard to the two formal reports issued by the Directorate, GAO found an average of two years had elapsed from the date of the visit to the date of issue. As for the other states for which the Directorate has not yet issued formal reports of its findings, the time elapsed since they were visited by the Directorate staff ranges from one year to over three years.

At its July 17, 1991, hearing, the Committee on Government Operations was informed that the DOL never published or implemented final regulations that establish compliance and enforcement procedures for the nondiscrimination requirements in Section 167 of the Act. Consequently, JTPA administrators at every level have little guidance when discrimination or disparities occur in the field. DOL has had nearly nine years to publish and implement JTPA nondiscrimination regulations, but has failed to do so.

It is unacceptable that none of the discrimination cases investigated since 1987 has been resolved. Further, the period of time taken by the Directorate of Civil Rights to investigate such cases is unreasonably long. Therefore, the Committee expects the Secretary to ensure that the Directorate promptly investigate disparities which might represent violations of civil rights, make violation or non-violation findings promptly, and take immediate steps to enforce appropriate civil rights laws when violations are found.

The Committee recognizes that prompt action on such investigations may be difficult for the Directorate to perform, because the number of personnel assigned to JTPA nondiscrimination administration and enforcement is a fraction of the 60 full-time equivalent staff personnel currently available to the Directorate. For that reason, an amendment to Section 167 of the Act provides an authorization for salaries and expenses for the Directorate of Civil Rights to enable the Directorate to provide for an increase in additional full-time employees to ensure adequate compliance and enforcement of the nondiscrimination requirements in the Act.

Section 21 of H.R. 3033 requires the Directorate to include an annual report on JTPA nondiscrimination activity in the Secretary's annual report to Congress. This legislation requires the Directorate for Civil Rights to identify SDAs and States not in compliance with Section 167 of JTPA and to prepare a report to Congress detailing its efforts in making identifications and the results obtained.

This legislation will require the Employment and Training Administration to produce information in sufficient detail to provide the Directorate for Civil Rights the appropriate information to conduct its assessment and make its recommendations. Current survey information is designed to produce national estimates of participant characteristics, activities, and outcomes and would be inadequate for this purpose. Collection of more standardized participant information, regularly reported, will permit special studies at the State and SDA level and more thorough monitoring of compliance with Section 167. The Committee expects the Secretary to ensure that the management information system used throughout JTPA maintains critical data in a uniform fashion and make it routinely available to those authorized by the Secretary.

In response to the Department's inaction, this legislation amends Section 167 of the Act to require the Secretary to implement final nondiscrimination regulations within 90 days of the enactment of the legislation.

TITLE III AMENDMENTS

The Title III dislocated worker program would be amended to change the cost category calculations to be based on “obligation” of funds, instead of “expenditures", as required under current law. The existing law has created significant planning problems, particularly for unexpected plant closures, since substate areas cannot be certain until the year has ended how much will actually be spent in each category. Therefore, the Committee bill applies the same limitation by program year of allocation to Titles II and III.

These changes strike an appropriate balance by allowing some flexibility in planning expenditures over the three-period JTPA funds may be expended, while clearly and strictly applying the limits to funds that can be tracked by year of allocation.

The Committee notes that at the time the reallocation provision based on expenditure was added to Title III of JTPA, approximately 60 percent of the Title III appropriated funds were being expended. As a result of that provision, Title III expenditures rose to 80 percent. In moving to obligation, instead of expenditure, the Committee expects that good management practices will continue and that the Committee will not again have to respond to a crisis of underexpenditure of Title III funds.

LABOR MARKET INFORMATION

The Committee recognizes the potential that administrative records hold for enhancing the Nation’s Cooperative Labor Market Information Program, for providing more cost effective evaluation data on training and employment programs, and for broadening the scope of knowledge about the employment and earning paths of population groups experiencing employment difficulties.

A longitudinal database using administrative records can provide needed data on the effectiveness of vocational education and occupational training programs and may do so at much less cost than telephone surveys and other follow-up techniques. Administrative records also will enhance the information on dislocation produced by the Permanent Mass Layoffs and Plant Closing program.

To fully explore these possibilities, the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) should do background research and engage in dialogue with the states to determine an acceptable means of operation of a longitudinal database of currently collected administrative records. The Committee directs the Secretary to make available sufficient funds from discretionary accounts under the Act to enable BLS to begin this work, so the progress can be reported to the Congress by the date specified.

The Committee has received the findings of an extensive feasibility study conducted over the last few years by the National Commission for Employment Policy (NCEP) on the use of Unemployment Insurance (UI) wage-record data. This study has encompassed 20 states covering nearly one-half of all terminees from JTPA in 1987 and 1988. The study found that it is feasible and highly cost effective for many states to use the UI wage-record data for the post-program follow-up part of the JTPA performance standards. As a result, NCEP has recommended that states be given the option of replacing the telephone follow-up surveys on JTPA participants with UI wage-records. The Committee urges the Secretary to seriously consider the implementation of these recommendations, as an efficient way of tracking post-program participants.

CAPACITY BUILDING AND DISSEMINATION NETWORK

The Committee provides authority to the Secretary to establish a national computer-enhanced capacity building and information and dissemination network. This network shall be designed to enhance the effectiveness of and to strengthen the caliber of services provided through the various Federal, state, and local employment and training programs, including programs not authorized under this Act. To initiate and maintain this network, the Secretary may, on a competitive basis, coordinate a system of entities with current and specialized employment and training expertise, or award a grant or contract to a single entity.

The Committee recognizes the necessity of utilizing the latest computer-based technologies to implement and maximize the access to this network, instead of maintaining volumes of training materials or program models to collect on the bookshelves of job training personnel. Instead, job training professionals will be able to access such materials by using computer and modem.

The Committee also recognizes that the more than twenty-five years of experience and expertise of the Job Corps should be considered in the development of this network. Staff at Job Corps centers should have access to the network, and, where applicable, the Job Corps education and training materials and systems should be made available through this network.

It is the Committee’s intent for this network to be widely accessible to the staff of related human investment service providers such as community based organizations, welfare/jobs, vocational education, and literacy programs.

COORDINATION WITH OTHER PROGRAMS

Coordination of related programs has been a long-standing goal of Federal employment and training policy; however, this goal has never been fully of consistently realized. JTPA has a number of provisions designed to achieve coordination, including the 8 percent State set-aside for education coordination.
Coordination is needed throughout the JTPA delivery system, at the State and local levels, and with other education and training programs. For example, in recent years Congress enacted major changes in the AFDC program to enhance the self-sufficiency of welfare recipients through increased training and related activities. When fully implemented, the Job Opportunities and Basic Skills Training Program (JOBS) could have significant implications for the JTPA system, which is already engaged in providing employment and training services. It is particularly important that these two programs be coordinated to assure maximum use of public resources on behalf of the AFDC population.

Job training services must also be coordinated with education and vocational education. The JTPA Advisory Committee recommended that the traditional distinctions between school-based education and job training services be blurred so that the two systems, together with employers and social service agencies, can develop comprehensive strategies for both in-school and out-of-school youth. Although this type of coordination was the purpose of the 8 percent set-aside, coordination with other programs and agencies should be a primary goal for the entire JTPA program.

The bill requires SDAs to establish linkages with other human resource programs. A description of such arrangements must be included in the local job training plan; and, if the plan does not comply with the criteria for these linkages, the Governor may disapprove the plan.

It is the Committee's intent that the Governor exercise reasonable judgment in determining whether the SDA made a good faith effort to make the appropriate agreements and arrangements to secure such linkages. These efforts should be taken into account in the governor's review of the plan. If the SDA demonstrates that such an effort has been made, the Committee does not expect that the Governor would disapprove the plan without first considering the local circumstances and the responsiveness of the related agencies to the SDA. Further, the Committee recognizes that in certain situations it would not be feasible to require the SDA to make arrangements with every related entity, and this factor should be considered as part of the SDA's overall effort.

Many of the education and training programs funded by the Federal government, such as the Adult Education Act, JTPA, the Vocational Education Act, and similar programs, play a critical role in ensuring that our Nation has the skilled workforce it needs to compete in the world economy. Increasing numbers of workers, particularly in older industrial areas such as Flint, Michigan, are finding that they need new skills to hold jobs in an increasingly technological workplace. The Secretaries of Education and Labor should support efforts to develop models where workers can access all these programs from a single source area. Such an approach is consistent with the Administration's recommendation in the America 2000 legislation, calling for the creation of skills clinics. Additionally, the Secretary of Labor pointed out the needs for helping the existing workforce acquire updated skills in the recent SCANS Commission report.
STATE HUMAN RESOURCE INVESTMENT COUNCILS

The Committee strongly supports the establishment of coordinated human resource development systems that provide quality services to clients, and believes the creation of State Human Resource Investment Councils will help to accomplish this. The legislation provides States with the option of combining existing advisory bodies into a single policy advisory body.

Much of what has been done in the Job Training Reform Amendments calls for greater coordination of the JTPA program with other human resource programs. The SDAs are being asked to develop linkages with related programs, particularly education, in order to provide more comprehensive and meaningful interventions for the participants in the programs.

With this overarching concern for coordination, the Committee included provisions for the creation of a voluntary State Human Resources Investment Council. The concept of a human resource investment council should not be confined specifically to any one piece of legislation. It is not the Committee's intent that any one legislative authority control the establishment or activities of a state council.

A number of States have already established a State level council to coordinate the activities of related human resource programs. The language in this bill is not intended to supersede such action, but rather to be supportive of it. The authority for a State Human Resource Investment Council is permissive. No State is mandated to establish one. The programs that would be included in the establishment of such a council are not designated in the bill. That decision is to be made at the State level and must be with the agreement of the administering agencies for the programs involved. The Committee does not intend that programs be included in the Council if their administering agency believes that it would to the detriment of that program. However, the Committee expects that such a council would enhance program operations rather than detract from them.

Other than the authority the Council derives from the "parent laws" of the programs included under the Council, the Council is authorized to advise the Governor regarding the methods of coordinating the provisions of the various programs, and to advise on the development of standards and measures relating to the specific programs. No action by the Council can be inconsistent with the applicable laws for the programs covered by the Council.

Language is included specifying the categories of representation among the membership of the single council. The Committee intends that when determining the membership of the Council, the Governor take into account the programs being included in the Council, and include representation from each category stated in the bill.

Finally, the Committee intends that any programs included under a single State council contribute to the financing of such council from funds that are available for such purposes. Funding to support the functions of the Council should not be disproportionately borne by any one program, and if such programs are currently funding a State-level council, the effort made toward the support of that council should be continued under the single State council.

The creation of such Councils should encourage and facilitate efforts to coordinate programs through policies such as: establishing common goals and objectives for human resource development programs, co-location of services, cross-training of staff, the provision of technical services to local human resource development providers, and the development of common administrative and programmatic procedures designed to improve delivery of services to clients.

The initiatives taken thus far by various governors, councils, administrators, state legislatures and civic leaders to establish these councils and the policy planning for workforce development systems are encouraging. This amendment should encourage similar efforts by other states. The Committee wants to encourage Federal agencies to contribute to the development of these councils and the policies that go with it, by providing financial incentives and needed regulatory flexibility.

INDIAN AND NATIVE AMERICANS

The bill retains the special programs in the Act for Native Americans and reaffirms their basic purposes. These programs are intended to permit Indian tribal governments and Indian and other Native American organizations to adapt the employment and training resources in the Act to the unique circumstances and needs of their people.

The Committee believes that a wide variety of needs has been well served by the broad flexibility permitted to Native American grantees in their choice of program services and activities. Grantees have used the resources available to them for many types of training, work experience and supportive services, as well as entrepreneurial training and development.

The provisions of the bill authorizing the Youth Opportunities Unlimited (YOU) program provide eligibility for Indian reservation and Alaskan Native village areas so that services for Native American youth may be strengthened as well.

In order for Native American programs to effectively meet Native American needs, these programs should be administered through a single organizational unit within the Department of Labor. This unit has the principal responsibility for program policy and administration, staffed with personnel with special expertise in Indian Affairs and qualified Indian and Native Alaskan people. It must work closely and cooperatively with the tribal governments and other Indian and Native American organizations that deliver program services.

The Secretary of Labor has established an Advisory Council to serve as a principal means of consultation with the constituency served by Native American programs. The bill provides permanent authorization for such an Advisory Council. This provision will enable the Council to be an active participant in the review of all aspects of Native American programs and their administration by the Department. The bill requires that all segments of the service population be represented on the Council. The Committee expects the Secretary to give priority consideration to persons nominated for membership on the Council who have broad support in the Native American community.

This provision is intended to codify what is already in place with respect to the formation and membership of the Council. It is not the Committee's intent to require the Department to dismantle the existing Council.

MIGRANT AND SEASONAL FARMWORKERS

The Committee recognizes that section 402 of JTPA is the main vehicle for public investments in migrant and seasonal farmworker training. These investments assist farmworkers to secure stable employment both within and outside of agriculture. These programs target services to one of the more hard-to-serve and at-risk populations.

The Committee has been informed that the Department of Labor and the Department of Health and Human Services have inconsistent interpretations of OMB Circular A-122, relative to the use of grant funds to pay for costs associated with legal and other accounting fees during the process of audit resolution. The Committee has included bill language, for the purpose of Section 402 grantees, other small non-profit organizations, and non-reservation tribes and bands, intended to conform the treatment by the Department of Labor in the use of grant funds by such grantees with the interpretation of OMB Circular A-122 by the Department of Health and Human Services. The cost of maintaining such records and submitting such reports and reasonable accounting or legal costs, as may be necessary to reach a decision under Section 166 of JTPA, shall be authorized charges when incurred, and chargeable to any subsequent year's grant for the same purpose or purposes.

Section 402 grantees are currently designated every two years. The Committee has included language intended to ensure that once a Section 402 grantee has performed successfully under the terms of an existing grant agreement and has met the criteria of superior performance established by the Secretary through public comment, the Secretary may waive the requirement for competition for that grantee upon receipt from the grantee of satisfactory program plans for the two succeeding years.

The Committee bills includes language intended to ensure that the procedures used with the Section 402 grantee competitive process are consistent with the government's standard competitive procurement policies and that no entity competing for a grant be awarded points based on any non-competitive criterion. On those occasions where a grant designation is required during the two-year competitive grant period, an expedited process of competition, consistent with standard government procurement policies, should be conducted.

The employment of farmworkers on Christmas and other tree farms, fish farms, and fruit and vegetable processing operations has significantly increased, while other forms of agriculture employment have diminished. The Committee urges the Department to be responsive to these changes and to periodically update the Section 402 regulations to recognize the changing nature of agricultural employment.

JOINT SDA AGREEMENTS

Service delivery areas generally do not serve eligible residents from other SDAs although there are limited exceptions under the current law. Nevertheless, the Committee is concerned about recent reports indicating that inner-city residents who reside in a city SDA may not be served by a county SDA even though the city is situated totally within the boundaries of the county. Often, county citizens who live within an inner city comprise a significant portion of a county’s disadvantaged population.

A county service delivery area should have the flexibility to serve some of its neediest citizens as a supplement to the job training and employment efforts by a city service delivery areas. If there is mutual agreement, it makes little sense for a service delivery area (city or county) to be precluded from serving a substantial portion of its economically disadvantaged population. It may be beneficial for either the city or the county SDA to administer a specific training program and serve all eligible individuals in both SDAs. Therefore, the Committee bill provides for this flexibility.

JOB CORPS

The Committee bill increases the maximum age limitation for eligible Job Corps participants from 22 through 24. The older enrollees will often prove to be good mentors for the younger participants. The Secretary reports excellent results with older enrollees in Job Corps demonstration projects in 14 sites.

The Committee bill clarifies the long standing intent of the law that individuals who are participants in the Job Corps can concurrently or subsequently participate in Title II programs, and Title II participants can concurrently or subsequently participate in the Job Corps.

In increasing the limitations on nonresidential participants from 10 percent to 20 percent, the Committee encourages an increase in the enrollment of eligible participants who are single parents with dependent children. The Committee bill authorizes this increase in non-residential participants, as long as it does not result in a reduction of residential participants below the 1991 program year level.

The Committee bill codifies the language (contained in the Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education Appropriations bills since the mid-1980’s) prohibiting the use of any funds under this Act to execute or carry out any contract with a non-government entity to administer or manage a Civilian Conservation Center of the Jobs Corps on public lands.

The Committee expects the Secretary, to the extent practicable, to make provisions for child care for the children of male or female participants at or near Job Corps centers. Every effort should be made to link with and utilize existing local resources. All enrollees who are dependent on or who have a history of abuse of alcohol or drugs should be provided counseling and referral to services necessary to prevent the continuation or recurrence or that dependency or abuse.
MANAGEMENT FEES

Currently, the U.S. Department of Labor has no consistent policy that establishes criteria for awarding management or administrative fees to nonprofit and for-profit contractors in the Job Corps program. All for-profit contractors receive management fees. A few nonprofit contractors receive small fees. The disparity exists because the determination to award management fees is made on a case by case basis by each individual contracting officer in Job Corps.

Not-for-profit contractors in Job Corps face risks and financial exposure comparable to their for-profit counterparts. As reported in the fiscal 1990 hearings before the Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education of the Committee of Appropriations, the Department of Labor has not treated not-for-profit Job Corps contractors in a consistent manner in their regional and national offices. One percent of the contract amount shall be a floor and not a ceiling for an equitable and negotiated management fee.

YOUTH OPPORTUNITIES UNLIMITED PROGRAM

The Committee recognizes that young Americans residing in communities with high concentrations of poverty often face overwhelming barriers to employment that persist even during periods of broader economic prosperity. The Committee recognizes that those youths most likely to be shut out of the labor market, including but not limited to young minority men in poor neighborhoods, have been bypassed by JTPA programs and recent welfare reform efforts. In response to these concerns, the Youth Opportunities Unlimited (YOU) program seeks to ensure access to education and training for youth in high poverty areas.

The YOU program builds upon the concept of ensuring access that was advanced in the youth entitlement proposals, considered by this Committee in previous Congresses, but places increased emphasis on education and training services and remains within the constraints imposed by the annual appropriations process. The YOU program also draws heavily from recommendations advanced by the William T. Grant Foundation Commission on Work, Family and Citizenship in its "Fair Chance" proposal for expanding the education and employment opportunities of non-college bound youth. By adopting an incremental approach that moves in the direction of guaranteed access, the YOU program begins to respond to the repeated warnings of business leaders and Administration officials that America will be unable to compete in the 21st century unless every young person—including every youth in our poorest communities—is prepared to contribute as a talented and productive worker.

The YOU program addresses several other important national goals. By channeling modest discretionary funds directly to the poorest communities with the most persistent employment problems, the YOU program reinforces and enhances other efforts by the Committee to improve the targeting of scarce JTPA resources. The YOU program also promotes the development of integrated, coordinated service delivery at the local level by requiring communities to draw upon existing resources and providing federal matching funds to fill major gaps in existing services. A core set of education, employment and support services will be provided to youths in participating communities, with an added emphasis on educational activities for those lacking a high school diploma or adequate basic academic skills.

In establishing the YOU program, the Committee intends to preserve the flexibility necessary for diverse communities to respond to their unique problems and needs. The Secretary of Labor also is required to provide technical assistance to participating communities, as well as to communities in need of assistance in preparing applications for YOU grants, in order to ensure that the broadest range of eligible communities are able to participate in the YOU program.

Finally, the Nation’s economic and social well-being depends upon ability to develop mechanisms that ensure that every young person willing to participate in education or training has the opportunity to do so. The YOU program contains provisions for the thorough evaluation of activities undertaken by participating communities including an assessment of the feasibility of extending a guarantee of access to education and training to young people in every community across America.

The Federal grants will pay 35 percent of the cost of each YOU project, with the participating community providing matching funds from other Federal, state, and local or private resources. The Committee wants to encourage increased private, local, and state support for education and training programs in high poverty areas through these provisions.

The Committee accepted an amendment to expand the Youth Opportunities Unlimited Program to include a job guarantee for youth who have met prior school achievement and attendance requirements. This job guarantee should be awarded by a significant number of grantees.

All youth age 16 through 19 residing in the eligible area qualify for a job guarantee regardless of individual family income. Work hours are limited to 15 hours per week during the school year so as not to interfere with homework and extracurricular activities, but could be full-time during the summer. The job guarantee extends through the summer following high school graduation or when a student reaches age 19, whichever comes first.

The job guarantee amendment was developed from the youth incentive entitlement pilot project (YIEPP) in the youth part of CETA. YIEPP proved to be very successful in equalizing the youth unemployment rate for minority youth with that of white youth in poverty areas where YIEPP was implemented.

The Committee notes that we experienced the lowest summer-time expansion in jobs for youth this past summer in 30 years. Youth unemployment is up 3 percent from a year ago. The number of youth looking for jobs was 580,000 higher than a year ago. This legislation will begin to respond to this need in a small way in poverty areas.

The authorization for the YOU program was set at $100 million to include sufficient funds for the job guarantee. The committee reported legislation also provides an additional poverty criterion for eligibility, so that units of general local government whose ratio of the number of food stamp recipients to its population exceeds the state ratio of food stamp recipients to population by 30 percent or more will be eligible to apply. (In Puerto Rico, the food stamp program is known as the nutritional assistance program and that data should be used.) Food stamp data is current and consistently updated, whereas the census data is available every ten years and may be less accurate over time.

DISASTER RELIEF EMPLOYMENT

The Committee adopted the same amendment on disaster relief approved by this Committee last year which was included in H.R.
2039, passed by the House. The purpose of the amendment is to provide permanent authority to fund employment for disaster relief with an authorization of $15 million under Title IV of this Act.

Disaster relief is triggered when there is a determination by the President that an emergency or major disaster has occurred under 42 U.S.C.A. 5122 (1) and (2). The trigger for this program is far more limited than the one used by the previous and the present Secretary under section 323 of JTPA, requiring an agreement between the Secretary and the Governor that an emergency exists.
The previous Secretary spent approximately $23 million on disasters. The current Secretary has spent $2.5 million for this purpose.

The previous Secretary allocated $5 million to South Carolina, $5 million to San Francisco, $3 million to Texas, $2 million to Puerto Rico, $2 million to the Virgin Islands, $800,000 to Florida, $750,000 to Alabama, $300,000 to Colorado, $300,000 to American Samoa, and $68,000 to North Carolina.

The current Secretary allocated $486,000 to Western Long Island, $454,000 to a Farmers Union in Illinois, $499,600 to New York City, $304,000 to a mall business project in Atlanta, $354,000 to a project in Jackson, Mississippi, and $402,000 to a project in Muskegon, Michigan.

In approving the amendment, the Committee believes that this authority should be placed in Title IV and not in Title III, so that the Secretary's Title III discretionary funds would be used to re-pond to plant closings and activities for dislocated workers. In an emergency, if funds have not been appropriated for this part of Title IV, the Committee continued authority for the Secretary by extending the authorization for demonstration programs, including job creation, under Section 324 of JTPA which was to expire at the end of FY 1991, for 5 years.

VI. CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

In compliance with clause 201(3)(C) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the estimate prepared by the Congressional Budget Office pursuant to section 403 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, submitted prior to the filing of this report, is set forth as follows:

Dear Mr. Chairman: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate of H.R. 3033, the Job Training Reform Amendments, as ordered reported by the Committee on Education and Labor on September 24, 1991.

Enactment of H.R. 3033 would not affect direct spending or receipts. Therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures would not apply to this bill.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them.

Sincerely,

Robert D. Reischauer,
Director.

* Less than $500,000

Note: The costs of this bill fall within budget function 500

Basis of Estimate: All outlay estimates assume full appropriation of authorizations at the beginning of each fiscal year. Except where noted, H.R. 3033 authorizes appropriations of specific amounts for fiscal year 1993 and such sums as may be necessary for the succeeding fiscal years. Such sums authorizations have been estimated by increasing the amount specified for 1993 to reflect projected inflation. Estimated outlays reflect spending patterns of current or similar programs.

Youth Opportunities Unlimited: H.R. 3033 would establish a Youth Opportunities Unlimited program in Title IV-National Activities of the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA). This program would increase access to education and job training to youth living in high-poverty areas and provide comprehensive education and training to disadvantaged youth who are undeserved by federal education and job training programs. The Secretary of Labor would award grants for the federal share of such programs to those service delivery areas located in high-poverty areas. This bill authorizes $100 million in fiscal year 1993 and such sums as may be necessary through fiscal year 1997.

Microenterprise Grants: This bill would establish a Microenterprise Grants Program in Title IV of the JTPA. This program would allow the Secretary of Labor to make 10 grants of not more than $500,000 per year. The grants would be used to implement and enhance community-based microenterprise activities. H.R. 3033 would authorize $5 million in fiscal year 1993, 1994, 1995, 1996 and 1997 for this program.

Training Network: H.R. 3033 would establish a Capacity Building and Information and Dissemination Network within the Department of Labor. The Network would enhance the effectiveness and strengthen the caliber of services provided through various Federal, State, and local employment and training programs. The Secretary would award grants or contracts to groups with current and specialized employment and training expertise. This bill authorizes $15 million in fiscal year 1993.

Disaster Relief: This bill would establish a Disaster Relief program in Title IV of the JTPA. The Secretary of Labor would allocate funds to the governor of any state that has suffered a major disaster as defined in the Disaster Relief Act of 1974. The funds would be used exclusively to provide employment on projects that provide food, clothing, shelter, demolition, clean-up, renovation, and other related disaster relief measures. H.R. 3033 would authorize $15 million in fiscal year 1993. The funds would remain available until expended.

Youth Programs: In addition to the creating new programs, H.R. 3033 would establish a youth program to be Part C of Title II—Block Grant of the Job Training Partnership Act. This program would be year-round and targeted at economically disadvantaged in-school and out-of-school youth. There would be no new authorization funds. Currently, Part A of Title II provides year-round programs for both adults and youth. Forty percent of the funds are spent on the youth programs. H.R. 3033 would authorize the transfer of those funds to Part C of Title II. The funds would continue to be spent at the current rate. There would be no increase in authorizations or outlays above the CBO baseline level.

6. Pay-as-you-go considerations: None of the provisions of H.R. 3033 would affect spending or receipts. Therefore, this bill has no pay-as-you-go implications.
7. Estimated cost to State and local government: The Youth Opportunities Unlimited program allows for a maximum of 50 percent of the project to be federally funded. The remaining costs must be assumed by state and local governments, or private entities. The Microenterprise Grant program requires that a state provide an amount equal to 100 percent of the grant from non-federal sources to be eligible to receive a Microenterprise Grant.

8. Estimate comparison: CBO prepared an estimate of S. 543, the Job Training and Basic Skills Act of 1989, as ordered reported by the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources on July 26, 1989. CBO also prepared an estimate of H.R. 2039, the Job Training Partnership Act Amendments of 1990, as ordered reported by the House Committee on Education and Labor on July 31, 1990. The estimates in this bill are similar to those for S. 543 and H.R. 2039.

9. Previous CBO estimate: None.

10. Estimate prepared by: Cory Oltman.

VII. COMMITTEE COST ESTIMATE

With reference to the statement required by clause 7(a)(1) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee accepts the estimate prepared by the Congressional Budget Office.

VIII. INFLATIONARY IMPACT STATEMENT

Pursuant to clause 2(1)(4) of rule XI of the rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee estimates that the enactment of H.R. 3033 will have no inflationary impact on prices and costs in the operation of the national economy. It is the judgment of the Committee that the inflationary impact of this legislation as a component of the Federal budget is negligible.

IX. OVERSIGHT FINDINGS OF THE COMMITTEE

With reference to clause 2(1)(3)(A) of rule XI of the rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee's oversight findings are set forth in the Background and Need for the Legislation section of this report. No additional oversight findings are applicable at this time.

X. OVERSIGHT FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT OPERATIONS

In compliance with clause 2(1)(3)(D) of rule XI of the rules of the House of Representatives, no findings or recommendations by the Committee on Government Operations were submitted to the Committee with reference to the subject matter specifically addressed in H.R. 3033. Note the discussion of hearings of the Committee of the Committee on Government Operations under heading of “Improving Quality” and “Nondiscrimination Requirements.”
XI. SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF H.R. 3033, AS REPORTED

SECTION 1—SHORT TITLE

Cited as "Job Training Reform Amendments."

SECTION 2—TABLE OF CONTENTS

Sets forth table of contacts.

SECTION 3—DECLARATION OF POLICY AND STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

To establish programs to prepare youth and adults facing serious barriers to employment for participation in the labor force by providing job training and other services which will increase earnings, raise skill levels and decrease welfare dependency. To increase available funds by not less than 10 percent each year.

SECTION 4—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS

Authorizes such sums as may be necessary in FY 1993 and succeeding years for parts A, B, and C of Title II. Provides that not less than 7 percent of the amount appropriated for parts A and C of Title II shall be used to carry out national programs in part C, D, E, F, and G of Title IV for FY 1993 and succeeding fiscal years. From such amount, an amount equal to 7 percent thereof shall be reserved for part C, Veterans programs; $2,000,000 shall be reserved for the National Commission on Employment Policy; $6,000,000 shall be reserved for the mass lay-offs statistics program. Further authorizes $100,000,000 in FY 1993 and such sums each year thereafter through 1997 for the Youth Opportunities Unlimited program; $5 million for microenterprise grants in FY 1993-1997; $15 million for a capacity building Network in FY 1993 and each year thereafter; and $15 million for Disaster Relief for FY 1993 and each year thereafter.

SECTION 5—DEFINITIONS

Amends Sec. 4 of JTPA. Changes the definition of "displaced homemaker" to the definition in the Displaced Homemaker Self-Sufficiency Act (P.L. 101-554). Adds the term "basic skills deficient," defined as reading or computing skills at or below the eighth grade level on a generally accepted standard test or equivalent score on a criterion referenced test. The definition of "community-based organization" is amended to include the Association of Farmworker Opportunity Programs, the Center for Employment Training, and organizations serving older workers. The Association of Farmworker Opportunity Programs, the Center for Employment Training, and the definition of "supportive services" is amended to include financial assistance, dependent care, drug and alcohol abuse counseling and referral, and individual and family counseling. Definitions of "participant," "termination," and "school dropout" are included.

SECTION 6—ESTABLISHMENT OF A SERVICE DELIVERY AREA

Technical amendment.
Amends Sec. 102(a) of JPTA by including representatives of local welfare agencies.

SECTION 8—JOB TRAINING PLAN

Amends Sec. 104(b) on the service delivery areas (SDAs). Job training plans for adult and youth programs under parts A and C of Title II will contain: (1) identification of the entity which will administer the program and be the grant recipient, (2) provisions for coordinating service delivery areas and programs if there is more than one provider, (3) a description of methods of complying with the coordination criteria of the Governor's plan, (4) a description of efforts with other services to avoid duplication, (5) goals and objectives, (6) adult and youth program budgets for two years, (7) procedures for identifying and selecting participants, (8) a description of procedures and methods of carrying out Title V, (9) procedures for selecting service providers, (10) control and accounting and audit measures, and (11) procedures for preparing and submitting an annual report to the Governor.

SECTION 9—REVIEW OF PLAN

Technical amendment.

SECTION 10—PERFORMANCE STANDARDS

Amends Sec. 106 to require the Secretary of Labor, in conjunction with the Secretaries of Education and Health and Human Services, to establish performance standards. The standards for adult programs will be based on: (1) placement, (2) retention, (3) increase in earnings, (4) reduction in welfare dependency, and (5) acquisition of basic skills, high school diploma or equivalent. The standards for youth programs will include the same requirements, as well as the attainment of employment competencies; eighth grade, secondary and postsecondary school completion or equivalent; and enrollment in other education, training or employment programs, apprenticeships or enlistment in the Armed Forces. The Secretary of Labor shall ensure that the States and service delivery areas increase their efforts for hard-to-serve individuals.

The private industry councils (PICs), working with educational agencies, the private sector and appropriate community-based organizations, will determine levels for competency standards based on entry level skills and other hiring requirements. The Governor shall award incentive grants based on SDA overall performance, while also exceeding performance in serving the hard to serve using the standards established by the Secretary. Only 25 percent of incentive grants may be awarded based on the Governors additional standards, which must include additional standards targeting the hard to serve.

The Governor shall provide technical assistance to SDAs failing to meet performance standards. If an SDA fails to meet performance standards for 2 years, and the Secretary determines the Governor has not been providing technical assistance to adequately rectify the problems, the Secretary shall withhold up to 1 percent. of the 5 percent state administration funds. An appeals process is provided for the Governor.

SECTION 11—SELECTION OF SERVICE PROVIDERS

Amends Section 107 to provide that the selection of service providers be made on a competitive basis to the extent practicable. The entity administering the job training plan will consider the ability of potential providers to meet program design requirements in accomplishing the goals contained in the Governor's Coordination and Special Services Plan.

SECTION 12—LIMITATION ON CERTAIN COSTS

Amends Sec. 108(a) to establish new cost categories and cost limitations under Title II. Funding under parts A and C of Title II will be charged to one of these categories: administration, training-related and supportive services, or direct training services. This bill proposes a minimum of 50 percent be spent on direct training activities, a maximum of 20 percent on administration, and the remaining 30 percent or less on support services and training related services.

SECTION 13—RECAPTURE AND REALLOTTMENT OF UNOBLIGATED FUNDS

Creates new Sec. 110 for unobligated funds in both SDAs and States. The amount available for reallocations is equal to the amount of unobligated funds in excess of 15 percent of the SDA's balance for the prior program year.

SECTION 14—GOVERNORS COORDINATION AND SPECIAL SERVICES PLAN

Amends Sec. 121(b) with a description of measures to be taken by the State to ensure coordination and avoid duplication between JTPA programs and JOBS in the delivery of services. The plan will describe the State's overall job training plan, detailing specific use of resources to increase capacity and effectiveness and will include the Governor's plans for technical assistance arrangements and, where applicable, research and demonstration projects.

SECTION 15—STATE JOB TRAINING COORDINATING COUNCIL

Adds state agencies primarily responsible for administration of programs for older workers to listing of State agencies represented.

SECTION 16—STATE EDUCATION COORDINATION AND GRANTS

Amends Section 123. The state education agency shall use the 8 percent state set-aside funds to: provide school-to-work transition programs; provide literacy and lifelong learning opportunities; and coordinate education and training services.

The Governor must include a designation developed by the State education agency of the goals to be achieved and services to be provided by the State education agency in the Governor's Coordination and Special Services Plan, such as: activities and services increasing the number of youth attending school; school-to-work based curriculum; integration of service delivery between State and local education agencies (LEAs) and alternative service providers; and linkages with other Federal education and training programs.

The plan will include outlines for literacy and lifelong learning programs receiving assistance including: activities that increase skills and lead to increased employment; proposed integration between these programs and the State plan; the locations where training will be provided; and the linkages to be established with other Federal programs.

A maximum of 20 percent of the funds may be spent on coordination of services, including activities pertaining to a State human resources investment council under Title VII, and a minimum of 80 percent will be used for school-to-work transition and adult learning activities. A minimum of 75 percent of the funds used for participant services will be used for economically disadvantaged individuals.

SECTION 17—ADDITIONAL AMENDMENTS TO PART B OF TITLE I

Replaces Section 124 which currently authorizes training for older workers. The revised adult Title II-A provides that a minimum 8 percent of each SDA’s funds will be spent on individuals 55 or older. (See Sec. 203 relating to older workers). Creates a new Sec. 124 requiring the State and SDAs to identify any imposed requirements, regulations or performance standards relating to the administration and operation of programs.

SECTION 18—AMENDMENTS TO PART C OF TITLE I

Amends Section 141 to add that a breakdown of costs is unnecessary for tuition charges for services by postsecondary institutions if the charges are the same as those to the general public. SDA funds expended by a CBO shall not be subject to the 20 percent administration cap, if the CBO spends at least 90 percent of its funds on either training, training-related, or supportive services. This holds true as long as the SDA, itself, still meets the cost category limitations described in Sec. 108. An SDA may enter an agreement with another SDA to share training costs as long as the agreement is approved by the PIC or a representative.

Amends Section 141(g) to provide that on-the-job training (OJT) be a maximum of six months. OJT contracts shall be entered into only with employers who have demonstrated substantial long-term retention of OJT clients, and employment benefits, including health.

Amends section 141(m) to clarify that net income earned by a nonprofit entity from a JTPA program can only be retained if used for JTPA services, even if financial assistance for the program has expired.

SECTION 19—BENEFITS

Amends Section 142(a) to ensure that the minimum compensation available to trainees in Puerto Rico and American Samoa will be the applicable minimum wage rates under the Fair Labor Standards Act, rather than the higher “mainland rate.”
SECTION 20—FISCAL CONTROLS; SANCTIONS

Amends Section 162. The Secretary, States, and SDAs may advance payments not exceeding 20 percent of the total contract, when contracting with nonprofit organizations of demonstrated effectiveness.

Amends Section 164(a) to require the States to establish fiscal control and finance accounting procedures to account for JTPA funds by using generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP). The Secretary shall prescribe uniform standards to ensure procurements are competitive, and include an analysis of the reasonableness of costs and prices.

Governors must annually conduct on-site monitoring to ensure compliance with procurement standards. The Governor shall biennially certify to the Secretary that the State has implemented the procurement standards established by the Secretary and monitored and insured compliance. If the Governor fails to meet these requirements, the Secretary will require corrective measures, or impose sanctions.

The Governor has authority to revoke all or part of a job training plan or impose a regulation plan where substantial violations have been determined. Unless corrective action is taken, the Governor must either revoke approval of all or part of the plan, impose a reorganization plan which may include restructuring the PIC, prohibit the use of a service provider, or selecting an alternative administrative entity.

The Secretary shall submit a report to the Congress by October 1, 1994, evaluating the effectiveness of these provisions.

SECTION 21—REPORTS, RECORDKEEPING, AND INVESTIGATIONS

Amends Section 165(a) of the Act to require that JTPA recipients maintain and provide to the Secretary records of participants for the purpose of preparing program and financial data. Includes language to ensure public access to records.

Sec. 165(b) is amended to add that the Secretary, IG, or GAO must give advance notice at least 15 working days before an audit. Exceptions are made in cases such as possible criminal activity. In reports resulting from audits, the law or other applicable criteria on any finding must be cited.

Amends Sec. 165(c) by requiring States, administrative entities, and recipients to maintain management information systems designed to facilitate the uniform compilation and analysis of data, and to monitor the performance of service providers. Requires the retention of such records at each administrative level for a minimum of three years following the expiration of the grant.

Amends Sec. 167 by requiring the Directorate for Civil Rights of the Department of Labor to annually prepare a report on the administration and enforcement of this section regarding discrimination. Regulations concerning non-discrimination shall be published within 90 days of enactment of these amendments.
SECTION 22—REVISION OF TITLE II

Amends part A to establish the adult program

Proposed new Sec. 201—Statement of Purpose.—The adult program will establish programs to help prepare adults for participation in the labor force by increasing their occupational and educational skills with the goal of improving their long-term employability and earnings, and reducing their welfare dependency.

Proposed new Sec. 202—Allotment.—Only technical changes are proposed in the funding formula, including the exclusion of college students and individuals in the armed forces. Retains the 90 percent hold harmless for SDA funding and imposes 130 percent cap for SDA funding increases in a given year. The funding formula identifies need based on each SDA, unemployment and poverty, and continues the flow of funds through the states.

This section also includes the reservation of state set-asides which are: 8 percent for education coordination programs described in Sec. 123; 5 percent for state administration; and 6 percent for state incentives to SDAs. If the 6 percent incentive grants are not used for such purposes, the State may use up to 2 percent for capacity building and technical assistance.

Proposed new Sec. 203—Eligibility of Services.—To be considered eligible for the program, an individual must be 22 or older and economically disadvantaged. At least 60 percent of the participants in each SDA must also be included in one or more of these categories: basic skills deficient; school dropout; a welfare recipient; an individual with a disability; offenders; and homeless. A maximum of 10 percent of the participants may be individuals who are not economically disadvantaged if the individuals experience other barriers to employment.

SDAs must make specific efforts to serve eligible economically disadvantaged individuals 55 or older and spend a minimum of 8 percent of funds on these individuals. If an SDA does not spend 8 percent, the Governor shall recapture funds to be distributed to other SDAs to provide services, or to a different service provider within the original SDA. The state job training coordinating councils and the SDAs shall make special efforts to coordinate JTPA services to those 55 and older with services under title V of the Older Americans Act. When selecting service providers for programs for those 55 and older, SDAs should give priority to national, State, and local agencies which have demonstrated effectiveness in training older workers. The SDAs that use the services of area agencies on aging shall be able to combine funds with other SDAs to contract with such area agencies for services.

Proposed new Sec. 204—Program Design.—Each adult program shall include individual assessments, develop service strategies, and review individual progress. Basic skills and occupational skills training, and supportive services shall be provided to participants based on the assessment.

Each SDA shall ensure that applicants meeting the minimum income eligibility criteria are provided information on appropriate services. Assessment, counseling, case management, work experience, and school-to-work transition aid are among the direct training services applicable.
This section limits the use of funds for development of job openings. It also prohibits the use of funds for employment generating activities or economic development activities that do not result in the direct creation of jobs for program participants. There is also one provision for volunteer mentoring opportunities for JTPA alumni.

This minimum percentage may be reduced to a lower requirement (minimum 40 percent) if the Governor approves a request submitted by the SDA specifying an alternative requirement, as long as the SDA has a dropout rate of less than 10 percent. In addition, language has been included exempting students who participate in school-wide projects.

An individual does not need to demonstrate his/her economically disadvantaged eligibility, and may participate in a schoolwide project under this program if he/she is: enrolled in a public school which is located in a high poverty area; served by a local educational agency eligible for Chapter 1 assistance; and not less than 75 percent of the high school’s students meet other barriers to employment described in subsection (b) above.

The Secretary may only award grants to SDAs in which the target area is located, or to section 401 (Indian and Native American Program) or Section 402 (Migrant or Seasonal Farmworker Program) grantees. A maximum of 50 grants may be awarded during the first year of authorization. The one year grants are renewable for each of the two succeeding years if the grant recipient satisfies the grant requirements during the previous year. In awarding grants, the Secretary must consider the quality of the proposed project, the goals to be achieved, the project’s prospects of success, level of community support, and concentration of poverty in the community.

The LEA and the community shall provide appropriate resources. The community shall work to coordinate Federal, State and local programs, attempt to reach unserved or underserved disadvantaged youth, provide assurances that funds will pay only the Federal share, and not permit funds to support paid work programs unless in conjunction with other education and training activities.

Funds provided under this part may be used to provide wage subsidies of up to 50 percent. Employment provided to any such youth shall not exceed 15 hours per week during the school year.

Proposed new Sec. 497—Payments; Federal Share.—Grants will be on the basis of target area size and the extent of poverty. Grants under Sec. 401 and 402 may vary. In most cases, the Federal share will be 50 percent. (Section 401 and 402 grants receive 100 percent). A maximum of 35 percent of the community's share may be from Federal sources other than funds received under this part.

Proposed new Sec. 498—Reporting.—Authorizes the Secretary to establish necessary reporting procedures.

XII. ADDITIONAL VIEWS

The Amendments to JTPA contained in H.R. 3033 represent significant improvements and fine-tuning to a program which has provided more than eight years of much needed service to disadvantaged individuals. These include the separation of adult and youth programs, the improved targeting requirements, the comprehensive program design for participants and the strengthened fiscal and administrative provisions.

H.R. 3033 was prepared on a bipartisan basis. We strongly endorse these amendments and plan to continue to work with the Committee, the Senate and the Department of Labor to produce legislation that will strengthen the effectiveness of this important program. There is, however, one provision—disaster relief employment assistance—that is out of step with the rest of the bill and undermines the importance of training as the basic purpose of JTPA.

DISASTER RELIEF PUBLIC SERVICE EMPLOYMENT

Although the provisions regarding disaster relief employment assistance were limited to the National Programs Title of the Act, we continue to be concerned that inclusion of public service employment in JTPA contradicts the whole emphasis of H.R. 3033. The focus of this legislation is to provide more comprehensive education and job training services to program participants with longer term results that lead to job retention and self-sufficiency. It is unfortunate that public service employment is being incorporated into a bill that in other respects truly strengthens the program.

JTPA has as its major focus the provision of training. By contrast, placing an individual in public service employment without education, skill training and other related services, provides only a short term solution to a more complex problem. What the individuals in the disaster relief area might need is not necessarily public service employment, but other kinds of assistance. Creating an employment program without knowing that the need exists, is putting the cart before the horse.

In addition, this public service employment provision is an unnecessary addition to the bill since the bill extends for five years an existing demonstration program authority to allow the Secretary of Labor to fund programs in areas affected by a disaster. Creating a public service employment program to meet the demand that is currently being addressed is establishing unnecessary bureaucratic requirements that will have to be met before assistance can be provided. This new program has the potential of delaying the responsiveness of the services already offered under the current authority.
CONCLUSION

Notwithstanding this concern, we believe this bill is an important and constructive step to achieving an improved training system that is sensitive to the complex and comprehensive needs of our disadvantaged youth and adults and better prepares them to obtain and retain employment. We will continue to work toward achieving the best possible legislation and reaching our overall goal.
