A JTPA/FEL (Job Training Partnership Act/Family English Literacy) demonstration project is reported that involves a partnership between the Lao Family Community (LFC) of Minnesota, the City of St. Paul, and St. Paul Public Schools/Adult Basic Education. The goal is to provide workplace literacy instruction to refugees with limited English proficiency to enable them to become economically self-sufficient as quickly as possible. Most of the 50 participants served at any one time are Hmong refugees (60% women) with less than 2 years in the United States. Four levels of English-as-a-Second-Language (ESL) instruction are offered, with each course lasting 11 weeks. The curriculum content includes workplace field trips, use of native language for cultural discussion of appropriate workplace behavior, emphasis on workplace document literacy, simulations and classroom activities, reinforcement of oral language and basic literacy skills taught in other program courses, and curriculum adaptability to different jobs. Seventeen key competencies are identified. Instructional units are included in this report. (Adjunct ERIC Clearinghouse on Literacy Education) (LB)

INTRODUCTION

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Lao Family Community of Minnesota JTPA/FEL (Job Training Partnership Act/Family English Literacy) demonstration project is one of four demonstration projects funded in April 1988 through the U.S. Department of Education and the U.S. Department of Labor. The goal is to provide workplace literacy instruction to refugees with limited English proficiency which enables them to become economically self-sufficient as soon as possible.

The project serves 50 refugees at any point in time. The participant population is primarily Hmong. All clients are considered candidates for employment. About two-thirds of the participants are new arrivals who have been in the U.S. less than 24 months. Their ages range from 18-45 with the majority falling between 25 to 35 years of age. About 60% are women. Approximately 20% have 0 to 6 years of education in their own country. Work experience includes primarily unskilled jobs such as farming, military, or taxi driving. Other work experience includes small business management and grade school teaching.

This project involves a partnership between Lao Family Community (LFC), the City of St. Paul, and St. Paul Public Schools/Adult Basic Education. Staff are either bilingual or have extensive experience in bilingual programs. The average teaching experience is 15 years. In addition to teaching the classes, the teachers' responsibilities include visiting work-sites, discussing individual participants' goals and progress with case managers and job developers, attending training activities, lesson planning, curriculum development, recruiting new participants, and record-keeping.

Four levels of ESL instruction are offered. The JTPA/FEL workplace literacy classes are available to students with MELT Student Performance Levels of IV, V, and VI. The workplace literacy classes are scheduled for one hour a day, four days a week. Each course lasts one quarter. The courses are outlined below:

PROCESS OF CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT

The LFC workplace literacy curriculum is competency-based. In keeping with a competency-based approach, the curriculum development consisted of four steps - needs assessment, identification of learning outcomes, development of instructional units, and evaluation of student learning. The curriculum was developed through the joint efforts of staff from LFC and St. Paul Public Schools/Adult Basic Education and Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC).

The needs assessment phase consisted of reviewing results from workplace literacy surveys conducted in the Minneapolis/St. Paul area, visits to participating employers, and interviews with job developers. The assessment indicated that participants would be placed into four areas - assembly, industrial sewing, food service/production and housekeeping. Literacy needs for the jobs were primarily workplace documents, such as schedules, forms, and signs. Training manuals were used in a few workplaces, however, the training itself was conducted primarily through demonstration with verbal explanations. Prose literacy was minimal.

The curriculum development team met to identify the competencies and establish the format and content of the instructional units. The curriculum and the achievement test were drafted by the NEC Consultant and field-tested by the instructional staff. Upon completion of the field-testing, the team met to revise and finalize the curriculum.

CURRICULUM CONTENT

In order to be effective, a curriculum must meet the unique needs of its students and the community as well as address the special program characteristics. Special features of the LFC curriculum are:

1. Utilization of field-trips to create an awareness of the U.S. workplace.
   The majority of the students have not seen a U.S. workplace. Therefore, it is difficult for teachers to establish a context in the classroom in which to practice the literacy skills. From the students' perspective, it is difficult to transfer the newly acquired skills to the workplace. The program creates this awareness of the workplace by taking participants to a minimum of three worksites and discussing the nature of the workplace, jobs, and language requirements with them.

2. Use of participants' native language for cultural discussion of appropriate workplace behaviors.
   Employers indicate that Southeast Asians often lack a knowledge of appropriate U.S. workplace behavior, such as asking clarification questions and recognizing safety hazards.
   The native language is used to present important information, check that the information is understood, and facilitate discussion. Given the limited English of the participants, this can only be done in the native language.

   The needs assessment indicates the importance of workplace documents. In fact, the literacy requirements of common entry-level jobs are often limited to documents. Because document literacy is often not taught in general ESL courses, there is a great need to teach it.
4. Reinforcement of workplace literacy skills and behavior through simulations and classroom activities.
   Workplace documents are introduced, practiced, and then reinforced throughout the remainder of the course. For example, work schedules may be taught in Week Two. Throughout the remainder of the course, the Class Schedule is then posted weekly.

5. Reinforcement of oral language and basic literacy skills taught in other program courses.
   Each instructional unit identifies basic literacy skills which have been taught in previous courses. These skills are then reviewed and practiced in a workplace context. Instructional units can also be sequenced by the teachers to facilitate coordination of topics among courses and to provide maximum reinforcement.

6. Curriculum adaptability to different jobs.
   The curriculum competencies are applicable to many entry-level jobs. Teachers can easily adapt these competencies to specific jobs by incorporating job specific vocabulary and actual workplace documents into their lesson plans.

The curriculum consists of sixteen literacy-related competencies. In addition, there is one competency which is related specifically to workplace behaviors. This final competency addresses one major problem which faces the target participant population - the lack of appropriate workplace behaviors. While the lack of oral and written English skills can cause problems on the job, the lack of appropriate cultural and behavioral skills can also cause problems.

The last competency addresses the need for social language on the job. A common problem expressed by employers and English speaking co-workers is the lack of social language or inappropriate social language. Given the limited time for the course, the curriculum has included only the most important behavior-directed competency. Additional competencies can be included when the need arises in further classes.

Of the seventeen competencies, seven have been identified as "key". A key competency is one which is considered to be essential for successful employment and is, therefore, tested at the end of the course. On the following page is a complete list of the competencies. The key competencies are indicated by an asterisk and are in bold print.
A. WORKPLACE LITERACY

1. Complete a standard job application without assistance.
2. Read a map and directions to a workplace.
3. Read work schedules and identify days and shifts to be worked.

6. Read an inventory or order form.
7. Compute the number and dollar value of piecework.
8. Compute the amount and value of overtime worked.

10. Read the names of common departments.
11. Read instructions to do a task.
12. Fill out a supply request form.
13. Complete a form to request time off.
14. Read safety signs, instructions, warnings, and cautions.
15. Fill out an accident report form.
16. Identify occupations which are personally interesting.

B. WORKPLACE BEHAVIOR AND COMMUNICATION

17. Identify appropriate topics for social interaction with co-workers.
Workplace Visits

The workplace visits are an important part of the curriculum and program. These visits provide students with the opportunity to see different workplaces where they might be placed in on-the-job training situations or may actually be placed in jobs. These visits provide the context for career and interest exploration as well as a context for language practice.

Three classroom hours are used for each visit. The first is to prepare for the first; the second is for the actual visit, and the third is for a discussion of the visit.

The following chart summarizes some common activities for a visit.

CURRICULUM FORMAT

One instructional unit has been written for each competency. These units identify the language content, recommend resources, and make suggestions for instructional activities. The components of each unit are:

Competency. This is a demonstrable skill which the learner should be able to perform after the lesson is completed.

Prerequisites. These are basic literacy skills which have been taught in other courses and are required if students are to be able to master the workplace literacy competency in the available time. These skills are listed on the following page.
1. Alphabet – names of letters and sequence
2. Numbers
3. Addition, subtraction, multiplication, division with a calculator
4. Fractions (1/2)
5. Analog and digital time
6. Dates (June 10, 1988; 6/10/88)
7. Money

Situations. One or two suggested situations for providing a context for the instructional activities are given.

Textbook References. The references listed are merely suggestions. The teachers should decide which materials are relevant to their particular students. Although a variety of materials for workplace instruction are available, LFC has selected these:

Workplace Resources. These are actual worksite materials which can be used as teacher resources or as student instructional materials. These materials are found in a supplement.

Vocabulary. Categories of vocabulary or actual words are listed.

Grammar. Grammatical structures important to the competency are listed. Because of the limited time of the course, it is assumed that students have studied these structures previously and are now ready to practice them in the context of the workplace. Not all lessons have grammatical structures listed.

Notes. Background information for the teacher has been listed when it is important. Space has been left for staff to include additional notes.

Native Language Discussion. The outline lists basic points of information to be covered in a short lecture format. Questions which check comprehension and which also facilitate discussion are listed. This section is a vital component of almost every instructional unit because it sets a context and provides important concepts for the English instruction.

Workplace Literacy. This component of the lesson presents and practices the literacy skills. Suggested activities for setting the context, introducing the language, practicing the language, and extending the literacy skills are given. As with the native language section, these activities are a guide – each teacher has the option of developing his or her own instructional activities to meet the students’ needs.
INSTRUCTIONAL SEQUENCE

The instructional units can be sequenced in a variety of ways. Because the units are self-contained, teachers have the option of sequencing the competencies according to the students' needs, the difficulty of learning, and the scheduling of the field-trips. During the field-testing, the competencies were taught in the order of their listing on the previous page.

STUDENT EVALUATION

Student evaluation takes place on an ongoing basis using the competency checklist and at the end of the class using the Achievement Test. During the class, the teachers evaluate students' performance in class after an instructional unit is completed. The degree of performance is noted on the checklist. Each student has a checklist which is kept in his or her file and is available for review by the student, job developer, and other staff.

The Achievement Test is a hands-on, individually administered test. It measures a student's performance of the seven competencies which staff identified as being the most important to the types of available jobs. The test, instructions for administration, and passing scores can be found on pages 36 – 37.
INSTRUCTIONAL UNITS
INSTRUCTIONAL UNIT # 1

COMPETENCY: Complete a standard job application without assistance.

PREREQUISITES:

All sections of the application have been taught previously.

SITUATIONS:

1. A job developer/employment counselor takes the student to a worksite to complete an application.
2. A student hears about a job from a friend and goes to apply.

WORKPLACE RESOURCES:

NOTES:

It is important to know the work history of each student: previous jobs held, duties, etc.
Native Language Discussion

OUTLINE

It is possible that students may not be able to say in English which jobs they have had and what skills were involved. Review their work history and determine if they can describe it in English.

There are some questions which applicants need not answer unless the questions are directly related to the job. These questions relate to:

- * age
- * height
- * religion
- * marital status
- * pregnancy
- * criminal record

DISCUSSION

1. In a job interview, personnel asks you what religion you belong to. What can you say?

2. You are applying for a job which requires working with chemicals. The job application asks if the applicant is pregnant or will become pregnant. How can a woman answer this question?

Workplace Literacy

TEACHING SUGGESTIONS

1. Ask background questions.
   - Which jobs have you had?
   - Which jobs would you like?

2. Introduce the general application.
   - Can you fill it out?
   - Do you have any questions?

3. Students fill out the application.

EXTENSION:

After each worksite visit, students fill out an application for that site. (Make sure sts. understand that this is only practice!)

Discussion

OUTLINE

An employer or supervisor may ask a worker to change departments or jobs. It is important for a worker to be flexible. The more flexible a worker is, the better will be the chance for promotion.

While flexibility is important, the worker should speak up if he or she does not want to change the tasks. The worker should explain the reasons for not wanting to change.

DISCUSSION

1. Why would an employer or supervisor ask a worker to change departments?

2. If you operated a machine and your supervisor asked you to work in the painting department and paint fumes give you headaches, what would you do? What would you say?

3. If you worked the day shift and the supervisor asked you to work the night shift, what would you do? What would you say?

Workplace Literacy

TEACHING SUGGESTIONS

1. Background questions. Did any students work in any jobs where their duties changed? How were they changed?

2. Introduce task assignment chart. Write a chart on the blackboard. Ask oral comprehension questions. Who passes out the books? What does do? etc.

Example:

<table>

COMPETENCY: Read an inventory or order form.

PREREQUISITES:

Numbers - Level 1
Addition and subtraction - Level 1
Dates - Level 2

SITUATIONS:

1. A worker counts the number of items produced and writes the number on a form.
2. A worker is in charge of inventory and he or she must total each item at the end of the day.

TEXTBOOK REFERENCES:

Refer to Task Performance activities in Appendix B.

WORKPLACE RESOURCES:

VOCABULARY:

Item, quantity, number (no.), weights (oz., lb), measurements (inches and feet)

NOTES:
Native Language Discussion

OUTLINE

An employer keeps track of the inventory so that he or she does not run out of supplies. The employer does not want too much inventory; neither does he or she want too little.

If the job entails production or is paid by piecework, the amount of production is recorded. Sometimes, a worker’s pay is based on the production of items which meet the quality standards. While speed of production is important, so is the quality.

DISCUSSION

1. Why does an employer keep track of inventory?

2. Would you like to be paid on the amount of work you produce?

Workplace Literacy

TEACHING SUGGESTIONS

1. Background questions.

   Did you ever have a job in which you had to total the amount of work you produced?

   Think about our class. We take attendance every day. Why is the total number of students important to the agency? Why is the total number of hours a student attends important to the agency?

2. Write a basic form on the blackboard. Ask comprehension questions.

   EXAMPLE:

3. Select a task from Appendix B.

EXTENSION:

Maintain an inventory form for all supplies in the class. Assign a student to total the supplies at the end of each week.

Assign a student to total the number of hours each student attended class each week.
COMPETENCY: Compute the number and dollar value of piecework.

PREREQUISITES:

Numbers - Level 1
Multiplication - Level 2
Money - Level 1

SITUATIONS:

1. A sewing machine operator is paid by the number of garments she produces.
2. An agricultural worker is paid by the amount of crops which he harvests.

WORKPLACE RESOURCES:

See Appendix A, 7.

VOCABULARY:

Amount, total, number (#, No.)

NOTES:
The employer sets the value on a product and the worker is paid by the number he or she produces. Often the number of products is recorded by the worker and checked by a supervisor. Sometimes the supervisor does the counting and recording.

A product which is substandard often does not count.

Both speed and quality are important.

DISCUSSION

1. What are the advantages of being paid by the amount produced? The disadvantages?

2. Would you like to be paid by the piece or by the hour? Why?

TEACHING SUGGESTIONS

1. Background questions.
   - Have you ever been paid by the piece? Do you know of anyone who has?

2. Write a basic form on the blackboard and ask comprehension questions.

   Example:

3. Select a task and have students calculate the value of the pieces produced.
INSTRUCTIONAL UNIT #8

COMPETENCY: Compute the value and amount of overtime worked.

PREREQUISITES:

Addition - Level 1
Multiplication - Level 2

SITUATIONS:

1. A worker does a few hours overtime and he computes the amount of money he will get.
2. A worker receives his pay and he computes the value of the overtime to verify that the amount is correct.

TEXTBOOK REFERENCES:

WORKPLACE RESOURCES:

See Appendix A, 8.

VOCABULARY:

overtime, holiday pay
double time, time-and-a-half,

NOTES:
Native Language Discussion

OUTLINE

A standard work week is usually 40 hours. In many places, additional hours are called overtime. A worker receives more money for overtime. Usually it is 1 1/2 times the hourly rate. Sometimes it is twice the hourly rate. This is called double time.

DISCUSSION

1. If you are applying for a job and you want to find out about overtime policy, what do you ask?

2. If you want to work overtime, what do you do?

3. If there is some overtime work and many workers want it, what do you do?

4. How do you think a company makes a decision about who gets overtime? (The decision often depends on who wants it and who has seniority.)

5. If a worker earns $5.00 an hour and he or she works overtime and gets time-and-a-half pay, how much does he earn for four hours? Five hours? Ten hours? Two and a half hours?

Workplace Literacy

TEACHING SUGGESTIONS

1. Background Questions.

   Ask students if they have ever worked overtime? How much was it worth?

2. Prepare a grid on the blackboard.

   Students calculate the value of the overtime.

EXTENSION:

Each week assign an hourly rate to each hour of class time. The class calculates the value of each student’s hours.
INSTRUCTIONAL UNIT # 9

COMPETENCY: Read exemptions on a W-4 form, gross and net pay on a paycheck and identify any errors.

PREREQUISITES:

- Numbers - Level 1
- Dates - Level 2
- Money - Level 1
- Addition, subtraction - Level 1
- Multiplication - Level 2
- Division - Level 3

SITUATIONS:

TEXTBOOK REFERENCES:

- Speaking Up At Work, pp. 50-56, 104-107, 162-164

WORKPLACE RESOURCES: Any actual paycheck stubs.

See Appendix A, 9.

VOCABULARY:

- W-4, gross pay, net pay, take-home pay, deduction, state income tax, federal income tax, FICA, exemptions, dependents

Native Language Discussion

OUTLINE

An employer withholds money from a paycheck for state and federal income taxes. The employer sends this money to the government.

The government gives you exemptions for yourself and the people you support. For each exemption, the government withholds a certain amount of money.

The W-4 form identifies the number of allowances and the amount of deductions. The form is complicated—ask the bilingual worker to help you.

DISCUSSION

1. Why will money be withheld from your paycheck?
2. What does the employer do with your money?
3. How many exemptions should you take?

Workplace Literacy

TEACHING SUGGESTIONS

1. Background questions.
   - What jobs have you had? How many people do you support? What deductions were taken out of your paycheck?

2. Teach key vocabulary words as sight words.

3. Do exercises in the texts.

EXTENSION:

The class sets an hourly rate for attendance for each week. At the end of the week, the class determines the "gross" amount of pay, their number of allowances & deductions, and their "net pay". Students write their own paycheck stubs.

1/88
1988 Form W-4

Department of the Treasury Internal Revenue Service

Purpose. You must complete Form W-4 so that your employer can withhold the correct amount of Federal income tax from your pay.

Exemption From Withholding. To be exempt, you must have owed no Federal income tax last year and must not expect to owe any this year. You may not claim exempt status if you can be claimed as a dependent of another person, have any nonwage income, and expect your total income to be more than $500. If exempt, only complete the certificate at the bottom of this page.

Basic Instructions. Employees who are not exempt should complete the Personal Allowances Worksheet. Additional worksheets are provided on page 2 for employees to adjust their withholding allowances based on itemized deductions, adjustments to income, or two-earner/two-job situations. For accuracy, complete all worksheets that apply to your situation. The worksheets on this form are designed to help you figure the number of withholding allowances you are entitled to claim. However, you may claim fewer allowances than this.

Head of Household. Generally, you may claim head of household filing status on your tax return only if you are unmarried and pay more than 50% of the costs of keeping up a home for yourself and your dependent(s) or other qualifying individuals. Nonwage income. If you have a large amount of nonwage income, from sources such as interest or dividends, you should consider making estimated tax payments using Form 1040-ES. Otherwise, you may find that you owe additional tax at the end of the year.

Two-Earner/Two-Jobs. If you have a working spouse or more than one job, figure the total number of allowances you are entitled to claim on all jobs using worksheets from only one Form W-4. This total should be divided among all jobs. Your withholding will usually be most accurate when all allowances are claimed on the W-4 filed for the highest paying job and zero allowances are claimed for the others.

Advance Earned Income Credit. If you are eligible for this credit, you can receive it added to your paycheck throughout the year. For details, obtain Form W-5 from your employer.

Check Your Withholding. After your W-4 takes effect, you can use Publication 919, Is My Withholding Correct for 1988? to see how the dollar amount you are having withheld compares to your estimated total annual tax. Call 1-800-424-3676 (in Hawaii and Alaska, check your local telephone directory) to obtain this publication.

Personal Allowances Worksheet

A Enter "1" for yourself if no one else can claim you as a dependent.

B Enter "1" if:
1. You are single and have only one job; or
2. You are married, have only one job, and your spouse does not work; or
3. Your wages from a second job or your spouse's wages (or the total of both) are $2,500 or less.

C Enter "1" for your spouse. But, you may choose to enter "0" if you are married and have either a working spouse or more than one job (this may help you avoid having too little tax withheld).

D Enter number of dependents (other than your spouse or yourself) whom you will claim on your tax return.

E Enter "1" if you will file as a head of household on your tax return (see conditions under "Head of Household," above).

F Enter "1" if you have at least $1,500 of child or dependent care expenses for which you plan to claim a credit.

G Add lines A through F and enter total here.

For accuracy, do all worksheets that apply:
- If you plan to itemize or claim adjustments to income and want to reduce your withholding, turn to the Deductions and Adjustments Worksheet on page 2.
- If you are single and have more than one job and your combined earnings from all jobs exceed $25,000 OR if you are married and have a working spouse or more than one job, and the combined earnings from all jobs exceed $40,000, then turn to the Two-Earner/Two-Job Worksheet on page 2 if you want to avoid having too little tax withheld.
- If neither of the above situations applies to you, stop here and enter the number from line G on line 4 of Form W-4 below.

Overtime

Overtime is authorized when production demands require that additional hours be worked. While it is sometimes difficult to do so, employees will be given as much notice as possible, usually a minimum of 24 hours. It will be distributed as evenly as possible, but if an employee is scheduled to work overtime, it is part of the job requirement and must be done. Overtime is paid at a rate of time and one half for all hours worked over eight in one day, or forty hours in one week. No overtime will be permitted without Management authorization.
Health Insurance

Duratec will provide free Medical Insurance for all employees that have completed six months of continuous service with the company.

Coverage for employee dependents (husband, wife, or children), can be arranged, at the employee's cost, through a payroll deduction plan. If you are interested, please contact your supervisor for information.

If you are already receiving Health Insurance coverage from your husband or wife's employer, Duratec will pay $.20 per hour to the employee in lieu of Health Insurance coverage. This compensation will not affect any other earned wage increases.

Signature of employee

______________
Our company produces a wide variety of products under a demanding delivery schedule each week, therefore, more than ordinary importance is placed upon your regular attendance. Our service to our customers would suffer greatly if we had to contend with problems affecting a smooth production and delivery schedule.

It is absolutely necessary for you to call your supervisor as soon as you know you are going to be late or absent, but no later than thirty minutes after the beginning of the work shift.

In order to clarify company policy on absences, the following is an explanation of types of absences:

Excused Absences:

A. Prior Approval: Employee notifies supervisor prior to the day of absence, and has received approval. An approval of this type usually permits the employee to conduct personal business that can be done only during work hours.

B. No Prior Approval: Personal illness, illness in the family, or an emergency is excused provided the employee notifies his supervisor as early as possible before the beginning of the shift. It will be considered an excused absence if an employee reports to work and leaves work with permission.

C. Medical: An extended absence due to illness will be excused if the employee sees a doctor.
Vacations

Duratec Corp. will provide paid vacations to regular full time employees who are scheduled to work at least forty hours per week, and who have completed one year of continuous service with the company. Employees are eligible for two weeks (80 hours) paid vacation after 3 years of continuous service with the company. Vacation pay will be paid at forty hours straight time, based upon the employee’s current pay scale, at the regular pay interval. If a company paid Holiday occurs during an employee’s vacation, it will not be deducted from the amount of vacation time which the employee is entitled. The employee will be paid for that Holiday, in addition to his or her vacation pay, if prior requirements have been met.

When an employee qualifies for a paid vacation, he/she must notify the supervisor at least thirty days before the intended vacation date. Due to work load or prior requests of other employees, first choice may not always be possible. The more notice which is given by the employee, the better chance of receiving the exact vacation date requested. If an employee has to change the vacation date after it has once been made, he/she will be subject to the same thirty day notice as when he/she first applied for vacation time. Final consent of vacation is subject to management approval.

Employees are expected to take their vacations. Employees may not work instead of taking their vacations. Vacation must all be taken during the twelve months following the eligibility date. It is important to realize that vacations are a company benefit not required by law. If an employee is terminated, or quits prior to taking vacation time, he will not be paid for that time.

Holidays

Full time employees are those regularly scheduled to work at least forty hours per week, and who have completed their temporary training period. Each full time regular employee who worked the full scheduled work day before and after a company declared Holiday, will be paid at their straight-time hourly rate, based upon their scheduled work shift. If a Holiday falls during an employee’s vacation period, it will be added to the vacation. The following six holidays are recognized by the company:

- New Years Day
- Memorial Day
- Independence Day
- Labor Day
- Thanksgiving Day
- Christmas Day
Work Safety

A good accident prevention program reflects well on all of us. Only by sharing the responsibility can a safety program be effective. With this in mind, we have listed a few safety rules to protect you while on the job:

1. Long hair must be pulled back or worn up to eliminate the chance of catching it in exposed moving machinery parts.
2. All loose fitting clothing (sweaters, coats, sash belts, hooded shirts, etc.) must be removed before working on any piece of machinery.
3. Do not attempt to adjust or repair your equipment. Notify your supervisor if any repair or adjustment is necessary.
4. Report any injury, no matter how small, to your supervisor.
5. Report unsafe conditions or equipment to your supervisor.

Housekeeping

The company continuously tries to keep working conditions at a high level. Therefore, we ask that all employees contribute to the effort by keeping their individual work areas as clean and neat as possible. All trash and other waste material should be put in the proper receptacles provided and not allowed to accumulate.
