NATIONAL LITERACY ACT OF 1991

MARCH 18, 1991.—Committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union and ordered to be printed

Mr. Ford of Michigan, from the Committee on Education and Labor, submitted the following

REPORT

[To accompany H.R. 751]

[Including cost estimate of the Congressional Budget Office]

The Committee on Education and Labor, to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 751), a bill to enhance the literacy and basic skills of adults, to ensure that all adults in the United States acquire the basic skills necessary to function effectively and achieve the greatest possible opportunity in their work and in their lives, report favorably thereon with an amendment and recommend that the bill as amended do pass.

The amendment strikes all after the enacting clause of the bill and inserts a new text which appears in italic type in the reported bill.

COMMITTEE CONSIDERATION

During the 101st Congress, the Subcommittee on Elementary, Secondary, and Vocational Education held a hearing on H.R. 3123, the Adult Literacy and Employability Act on November 2, 1989. H.R. 3123 was later incorporated into an omnibus education bill, H.R. 5115, the Equity and Excellence in Education Act of 1990. The Committee met in mark-up session on H.R. 5115, which included H.R. 3123, on June 27, 1990, and ordered reported the bill by a recorded vote of 29 to 5, with one member voting present. This legislation passed the House of Representatives on July 20, 1990. The House of Representatives later passed an amended version of the omnibus bill, H.R. 5932, which included the literacy provisions on October 26, 1990.

During the 102nd Congress, the Subcommittee held an oversight hearing on workplace literacy in Flint, Michigan, on February 11, 1991.
1991. Congressman Sawyer introduced the amended literacy legislation as H.R. 751 on February 22, 1991. A Subcommittee mark-up on H.R. 751 was held on March 7, 1991, and the bill was unanimously reported to the full Committee. The Committee on Education and Labor held a mark-up on March 12, 1991, and the legislation was ordered reported by a vote of 34 to 1.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

The National Literacy Act of 1991 is a comprehensive approach for improving the literacy and basic skill levels of adults by coordinating, integrating, and investing in adult and family literacy programs at the federal, state, and local levels. The legislation provides for research and quality program delivery. All sectors including public, community-based, volunteer, business, and industry programs are involved in the provision of literacy services.

Close to 30 million American adults have serious problems with literacy: the ability to read, write, speak English, compute and solve problems effectively. The nation's literacy problems are closely associated with poverty and pose major threats to the economic well-being of the United States. Our future competitiveness and an individual's active participation in the democratic process are severely hampered without an all-out attack on these problems.

Present public and private programs reach only a small portion of the population in need, are underfunded, poorly coordinated, and require greater investments in teacher training. Access to better information about best practices in the field and research to provide better diagnostic and instructional informational materials are also essential tools which are lacking in the field.

This legislative effort has seven titles that will address these issues: by providing an infrastructure for coordination, research, and planning; upgrading the literacy and basic skills training systems; and investing in the programs assisting adults and families with low levels of literacy.

EXPLANATION OF H.R. 751

TITLE I—LITERACY: STRATEGIC PLANNING, RESEARCH, AND COORDINATION

Title I establishes an infrastructure for federal and state leadership, research, planning, and comprehensive quality program delivery. It creates a National Institute for Literacy which shall be administered through an interagency agreement between the Secretaries of Education, Labor, and Health and Human Services. The Institute would be housed outside these departments and would have an advisory board consisting of representatives from state and local governments, the literacy field, and the private sector. The Institute shall not only be a central repository of information and expertise for federal programs, but also should serve Congress, the states, program providers, business and industry. The National Institute for Literacy is authorized at $15 million for each of fiscal years 1992, 1993, 1994, 1995 through section 384 of the Adult Education Act.
The Committee is aware that $5 million has been appropriated for fiscal year 1991 for an Institute on Literacy under the authority of Section 384(a) of the Adult Education Act. It is the Committee's intent that any subsequent funding for such an Institute be carried out through the provisions of section 384(a) as modified by this Act. The Committee does not intend for there to be two Institutes. Further, it is the intent of the Committee that the Department integrate any Institute activities begun with fiscal year 1991 funds into the Institute authorized by this Act in subsequent years. The work of the Institute should be coordinated with the National Center on Adult Literacy, as is stipulated in H.R. 751.

The Committee has deleted its Interagency Task Force from the reported bill. The President has already established such a Task Force that has the goal of coordinating literacy programs. The Committee expects that the President will continue his Task Force and direct it to look vigorously for ways to coordinate agency efforts, and look at ways to create uniform assessment, evaluation, and reporting requirements in the various laws authorizing literacy services.

Title I also establishes State/Regional Literacy Resource Centers to link the National Center to program providers, upgrade the system of diffusion and adoption of state of the art teaching methods, assist in coordinating the literacy system, provide technical assistance to states and local government, and provide training to literacy instructors. This is a declining federal-state matching grant program, which requires the states to increase their investment in the formation and continued operation of the Literacy Resource Centers. This section authorizes $25 million for each of the fiscal years 1992, 1993, 1994, 1995.

TITLE II—WORKFORCE LITERACY

A National Workforce Literacy Collaborative is established in the Department of Labor to improve the basic skills of the currently employed, especially those workers who are marginally employed with low basic skills. Also, the Collaborative will assist small and medium-sized businesses, business associations, and labor organizations to develop and implement literacy programs tailored to the needs of the workforce. The Collaborative's major activities focus on providing small and medium-sized businesses with the technical assistance required to address the literacy needs of the workforce. The Collaborative is authorized at $5 million for each of the fiscal years 1992, 1993, 1994, and 1995.

Title II establishes a grant program for National Workforce Literacy Strategies as part of the Adult Education Act. This grant program will develop, test, and evaluate replicable large-scale national strategies based on local, regional, statewide and industry-wide partnerships between the public and private sectors. These models will demonstrate effective approaches to improving workforce literacy that can be implemented in the near term and are cost effective for individual employers and the nation as a whole. The Secretary is to reserve $5 million for the program when the appropriation for existing business-education partnerships for workplace literacy exceed $25 million in any one year. This section also authorizes $60 million in fiscal year 1992 and “such sums” in fiscal years 1993, 1994, and 1995 for section 371 of the Adult Education Act including both workplace partnerships and the national strategies grant program.

TITLE III—INVESTMENT IN LITERACY

Title III assists states and local programs in providing essential education and training by investing in quality programs, program expansion, coordination, and staff training. The Adult Education Act basic grant program authorization is increased to $260 million in fiscal year 1992 and “such sums” in fiscal years 1993, 1994, and 1995. Additional provisions require that the state agency receiving Adult Education Act funds provide assurances that all programs which serve the educationally disadvantaged are given direct and equitable access to Adult Education Act funds.

The title provides for state coordination of adult literacy and basic skills programming by redefining the state adult education advisory board and requiring a coordination plan within the state Adult Education Plan. The plan identifies the literacy needs of the state’s citizens and specifies a means for addressing these needs, including statewide goals.

The Committee has rewritten Section 322 of the Adult Education Act. The intent of these changes is to allow all literacy providers to have an equal chance to apply for and receive funding under this Act. This would mean that States could not simply send funds to a single type of provider on a formula basis with no opportunity for other types of providers to compete for the funds at the State or local level. The funds are distributed based on who can best provide services to the individuals targeted by the Act.

The Committee has included several changes to the Even Start Act in H.R. 751. These amendments are both technical and improving amendments that will increase the effectiveness of the program. Some of the more important changes are:

- An expansion of the types of grantees eligible to apply for Even Start (the Committee intends that the Department of Education interpret “in collaboration with” to mean that an applicant involve other appropriate entities to the maximum extent practicable);
- Making the Territories and Indian tribal schools eligible for Even Start grants; and
- Clarifying the Committee’s intent that funds be equitably, not equally, distributed between states and urban and rural areas.

TITLE IV—BUSINESS LEADERSHIP FOR EMPLOYMENT SKILLS

Title IV creates an education program for commercial drivers that would provide commercial drivers with the knowledge and skills necessary to successfully complete the test requirements under the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1986. This provision is authorized at $3 million for each of fiscal years 1991, 1992, and 1993.
TITLE V—BOOKS FOR FAMILIES

The Elementary and Secondary Education Act is amended to place priority on library literacy programs which are delivered in areas of greatest need and that coordinate with other literacy organizations and community-based organizations where new reading motivation programs are established by Reading Is Fundamental.

TITLE VI—LITERACY FOR INCARCERATED INDIVIDUALS

The corrections education portion of the legislation is an important new federal initiative. The legislation requires that within two years, each state will have at least one mandatory functional literacy program. Within five years, each state correctional system and jail or detention center with a population of 150 inmates shall have a mandatory literacy program when funding is available to operate such a program. The Committee intends by this last provision that the elements of the mandatory literacy program be specified in this section only to apply in those instances where funds are available to operate literacy program. However, where a literacy program is available, the requirements of this section apply and are mandatory.

Since the success of any correctional education program depends to a great extent on providing appropriate educational services in a particular institutional setting, "adequate opportunities for appropriate educational services and testing" includes appropriate assessment of English language proficiency and learning disabilities, and opportunities for individual inmates to receive appropriate instruction and assessment (including English as a second language, bilingual or other appropriate instructional programs to achieve functional English language literacy).

The National Institute of Corrections of the U.S. Department of Justice study Making Literacy Programs Work found that "Over half the programs do not have any programs for special education students or non- or limited-English speakers." According to research including a 1939 study prepared for the National Institute of Corrections of the U.S. Department of Justice, the number of inmates with learning disabilities and other handicaps is estimated at between 10-40 percent. However, few adult correctional agencies have begun to implement the federal mandate of P.L. 94-142 and those who have done so usually limit services to the age 21 and under population. Research also indicates that many agencies working with individuals with disabilities are uninvolved with handicapped persons in corrections, or just marginally so. Closer interagency coordination in inmate education and transition to community life is vital.

As noted by the Standards for Adult and Juvenile Correctional Programs of the Correctional Education Association, it is essential that inmate literacy and other educational programs provide for "a system for initial screening, assessment and evaluation to determine the educational needs of each person at intake," (including staff qualified to interpret tests and decide when additional testing is needed, e.g. in order to determine whether an individual suffers from dyslexia or other learning disability as identified under P.L. 94-142, which would require special instructional services). Testing and assessment of inmates under this Act shall be conducted in accordance with guidelines for educational testing developed by major professional associations in education and psychometrics, such as Psychological Association and National Council on Measurement in Education and the Joint Committee on Testing Practices.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE ESTIMATE

The costs of this bill fall in Function 500.

Basis of estimate: H.R. 751 contains specific authorization of appropriations for the following programs: National Institute for Literacy, National Workforce Literacy Assistance Collaborative, Family Literacy Public Broadcasting, and Programs for Commercial Drivers. For the remaining programs CBO has estimated the authorization levels. A discussion of these later programs follows.

This bill establishes an Interagency Task Force on Literacy comprised of the Secretary of Education, the Secretary of Labor, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, and the Director of the ACTION Agency. The Department of Education currently participates in an Intergovernmental Advisory Council on Education and contributed $30,000 to this council in 1991. Adjusting this amount for anticipated inflation and assuming this to be the average contribution of each participating agency, CBO estimates the 1992 authorization to be $124,800. The estimated amounts authorized for 1993-1996 reflect the 1992 level adjusted for projected inflation.

Section 104 authorizes a grant program for the establishment of a network of State literacy resource centers. This program is authorized at $25 million in 1992 and 1993 and such sums as necessary in 1994 and 1995. The estimated amounts authorized for these years represent the 1993 level adjusted for anticipated inflation.

The Adult Education Act is amended to award grants to eligible small- and medium-sized businesses under a program entitled National Workforce Literacy Strategies. These grants would be used to provide literacy and basic skills training to workers. H.R. 751 authorizes $60 million for this grant program in fiscal year 1992, however, it is authorized currently through 1993 at such sums as may be necessary. H.R. 751 further amends the Adult Education Act to increase the authorization for Adult Education Grants to $260 million in 1992. The program is authorized currently at such sums as may be necessary through 1993. In addition, the Even Start program, which is currently authorized at such sums as necessary through 1993 would be authorized at $60 million in 1992 and at such sums as may be necessary in 1993. For these three programs, CBO's estimate of the 1992 authorization represents the difference between the current estimated authorization level, the 1991 appropriation adjusted for projected inflation, and the amount specified in the bill. CBO's estimate of the authorization for 1993 is the difference between the amount specified for 1992, adjusted for expected inflation, and the current estimated authorization level. Both the 1994 and 1995 estimated authorizations represent the amount designated for 1992, adjusted for inflation.

H.R. 751 amends the Domestic Volunteer Service Act of 1973 to include a separate authorization of $2.5 million in 1992 for a new program of Literacy Challenge Grants. The program is authorized at such sums as may be necessary in 1993. Therefore, CBO's estimate of the 1993 authorization is the 1992 authorization adjusted for projected inflation.

Estimated total outlays assume full appropriation of estimated authorizations. In addition, the estimated outlays for the existing programs reflect current spending patterns; estimated outlays for new programs reflect the spending patterns of similar federal programs.

6. Pay-as-you-go considerations: Section 252 of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 sets up pay-as-you-go procedures for legislation affecting direct spending or receipts through 1995. Because this bill does not affect direct spending or receipts, there are no pay-as-you-go implications.

7. Estimated costs to State and local government: The grants for state literacy resource centers, the Workplace Literacy grants, the Adult Education grants, the Even Start grants, the grants for programs for Commercial Drivers, and Literacy Challenge Grants all require grantees to provide some matching funds.

The new grants to states for literacy resource centers would be awarded on a competitive basis. A state receiving a grant must finance 20 percent of the first and second year's total costs. This share increases to 40 percent of the total cost by the fifth year. If a state chooses to use the funds to establish or support a state council, however, it must match federal funds dollar for dollar.

The Workplace Literacy grants also would be awarded on a competitive basis. Federal funds would finance 70 percent of the total cost.

The Adult Education grants are basic grants to states; funding is distributed to states based on a population formula of the number of persons aged 16 and over in a state who do not have high school diplomas and who are not required to be enrolled in school. Grants shall be used to finance a maximum of 75 percent of the total cost.

The Even Start program is a basic grant distributed to state and local governments based on a population formula. The state and local governments are required to fund a minimum of 10 percent of the total cost of the program. By the fourth year, the state and local contribution to the total cost increases to 40 percent.
Federal funds may be used to finance 50 percent of the total cost of any program for Commercial Drivers. The non-Federal share need not come from state funds, however.

Literacy Challenge grants may be awarded to any eligible public agency or private organization to establish or to operate a literacy program or project including the use of full-time or part-time volunteers. The grants would be awarded on a competitive basis. The federal share of a project administered by a nonprofit community-based organization shall not exceed 90 percent of the total cost in the first year. By the third year the federal share must decline to 70 percent of the total cost. Any other nonprofit organization, public agency, or private, for-profit organization receiving federal funds must contribute a minimum of 20 percent in the first year. By the third year, the non-Federal share for such grantees increases to 40 percent of the total project cost.

8. Estimated comparison: None.
9. Previous CBO estimate: None.
