In spring 1991, in-class surveys were completed by 1,495 students enrolled in a random sample of courses at the Santa Ana and Orange campuses of Rancho Santiago College (RSC) to determine their attitudes about RSC and its programs and services. Study results included the following: (1) most respondents were "satisfied" or "very satisfied" with the library (86%), admissions and registration (83%), the tutoring center and the recreational/athletic program (82%), and computer services (80%); (2) less than half of the respondents were "satisfied" with the financial aid office (23%), food services (23%), personal counseling (30%), and the health center (31%); (3) on the average, students were least satisfied with parking; (4) Asians and African Americans were more frequently dissatisfied with services than Hispanics and Whites; (5) the most infrequently utilized services were child care (21%) and veteran services (22%); (6) 95% of the respondents said they would recommend RSC to a friend; (7) 24% of the students reported a household income of below $15,000 annually, and of those, 60% were not receiving any financial aid; (8) 74% of the respondents were employed, and 51% were working full-time; (9) 15% of the respondents were unemployed and looking for work; (10) 43% of the respondents lived between one and five miles of campus, and 53% lived with their parents; and (11) the most frequently cited reasons for attending RSC were to take courses needed for transfer (61%), and to obtain an associate degree (28%). Appendixes provide frequency distributions of all survey responses, as well as written responses to open-ended questions. Detailed data tables are included. (PAA)

Student Satisfaction Survey

Summary of Survey Findings

- 1,495 surveys were completed during Spring 1991 by students enrolled in a random sample of courses. The purpose of the study was to determine students' satisfaction with RSC, its programs and services.

- Respondents were most satisfied with the services they received from the Library, Admissions and Records, the Tutoring Center, and the Athletic program. They were, on the average, least satisfied with parking.

- Satisfaction ratings of services differed by ethnic group. Asians and African-Americans were more frequently dissatisfied than Hispanics and whites.

- Student comments were very complimentary toward RSC instructional programs, academic quality and instructors. Ninety-five percent of respondents would recommend RSC to a friend. RSC program managers would find the comments informative about student perceptions of their programs.

- The annual household income for most respondents was reportedly low, the modal category being below $15,000 (for 24%). Sixty percent of those low-income students were not receiving financial aid.

- 74% of the students were employed, 51% full-time. 15% were unemployed and looking for work.

- 48% of the respondents lived within five miles of the campus, and the majority lived with their parents.

Introduction

In Spring 1991, the RSC Research Office surveyed a sample of currently enrolled students in order to learn of their opinions about RSC. Surveys were completed in class by 1495 students who were enrolled in a random sample of courses at the Santa Ana and Orange Campuses. The Research Office hopes to repeat the survey each Spring semester in order to monitor student opinion trends.

The appendix includes the frequency distributions of all responses as well as comments written on the survey form.
Satisfaction With Services

Table 1 shows that respondents were most satisfied with services received from the Library, Admissions and Records, the Tutoring Center, and the Recreational/Athletic Program. Students expressed the most dissatisfaction about parking.

Comments provided on the survey form, which are available in the appendix, confirm these findings. The comments are valuable for program managers to read. Students were generally very complimentary towards RSC teachers and academic quality. Some comments and satisfaction ratings will advise program staff where improvements may be needed.

Dissatisfaction ratings by ethnicity were calculated in order to determine if different perceptions existed, and differences were found (See Table 2). Generally, white and Hispanic students provided the most favorable ratings. Again, program planners would benefit by reviewing these findings. For several departments, Asians, African-Americans, and "others" reported dissatisfaction ratings five percentage points or more often than did white and Hispanic students.

Table 3 shows the percentage of respondents who used each service, and generally, usage of services was great. The most frequently used services (over 80% of respondents) included Admissions and Records, the Bookstore, parking, and the Library. The least used were Child Care, Veterans, EOPS, and college cultural programs.

Respondents were pleased enough with RSC to say that they would recommend the college to a friend (95% of all respondents). Fewer than half had developed an educational plan with a counselor. Seventy-four percent were confident of their study skills; and 68% rejected the statement, "It is very hard for students here to get their concerns known and acted upon." Asian students, however, agreed with this statement more frequently; only 47% rejected the statement.

Fifty-one percent of the respondents are employed full-time and 23% part-time. This finding is consistent with that of other RSC student surveys. Generally, until age 50, the older the respondent, the more likely s/he works full-time; and the younger the respondent, the more likely s/he works part-time. Of interest is the percentage of respondents who are unemployed but would like to work. For 19-year-old respondents, for example, 24% fall into this category. Without trend data, it is impossible to know if this is a recession-related statistic.

Employment status is also broken down, above, by number of units respondents are enrolled in. Students enrolled full-time (over twelve units) are not employed full-time at the same rates as those enrolled part-time. However, 71% of those enrolled in 8 to 11 units and 45% of those enrolled in 12 to 15 units work full-time. And 22% of those enrolled in 16 or more units are unemployed and desiring employment.

Table 7 shows that survey respondents included 50% white students, 20% Hispanic students, and 24% Asian students. Also, the majority of the respondents were under 25 years of age and attending RSC on a full-time basis (enrolled in 12 or more units). The sample includes a higher proportion of ethnic minority, full-time, and young students than does the total RSC credit enrollment.
Graph 2 shows that most, 43%, of the respondents live between one and five miles from the campus; but 49% reside six or more miles away. Fifty-three percent live with their parents; because the survey population is younger than the total college credit enrollment, that the majority of students living at home with their parents is probably not generalizable to all students.
Annual household income of respondents seems low for Orange County cost-of-living with 24% reporting an income below $15,000, and 44% reporting an income below $30,000.

Table 8 shows financial aid status by annual household income and, as expected, the lower the income the higher the rate is of students receiving financial aid; and the higher the income, the higher the rate is of students who report that they do not receive financial aid and will not apply in the future. Forty percent of the students with an annual income below $15,000 currently receive aid. Another 29% of this group do not receive aid but will apply in the future. This indicates that there are enrolled students who may qualify for aid who, for whatever reason, have not applied.
Student Goals

Upon first enrolling, 61% of the respondents wanted to transfer to a university and 28% wanted to earn an A.A. degree. Fewer were interested in vocational programs.

- To complete a vocational/technical program: 5%
- No definite purpose in mind: 4%

Students were also asked to identify their knowledge and skills goals and achievement of each at RSC. "To increase knowledge and understanding in an academic field" was cited as a goal by 72% of the respondents, and 58% had achieved this. "To learn skills that will enrich my life or make me a more complete person" was a goal of 55% of respondents, and 47% had achieved this. Respondents reported that they improved their ability to get along with others and met people more frequently than they cited these achievements as original goals. Discrepancies in rates of identifying a goal and achieving a goal were never great enough to suggest that disappointment existed as a result of respondents' experiences at RSC.

Students were also asked to identify the highest degree to which they aspired; the largest percentage, 40%, wanted a B.A./S. degree, and another 30% wanted a graduate degree. Fifteen percent "didn’t know." Highest degree of aspiration was analyzed according to student grade point average in an attempt to determine if students were appropriately prepared for their goals. Slightly fewer students with g.p.a.'s below 3.0 aspired to graduate degrees. Students with g.p.a.'s below 1.5 more frequently were undecided about their final degree.

Students were asked if they planned to enroll at RSC the next semester, Fall 1991, and this response was broken down by the number of units the respondent had completed. Seventy-nine percent of the respondents planned to return, but this rate was lower for students who had earned greater than 60 units; of these students, only 18% planned to transfer.

The rate of students planning to return is greater than is found in reality in other RSC research studies; perhaps this is because the respondent population differs from the total RSC enrollment in that more respondents are younger, full-time students, and transfer-oriented.

General Comments on Services Provided by RSC...

- I find teachers parked in student parking at least 3 times a week (3)
  RSC needs better parking (19)

- Parking permits cost $14, yet there is no place to park (2)
- Last semester I became aware that security arbitrarily enforced parking regulations.
  This is unfair (2)

- Increase security in parking lots - too many broken windows. I think some security guards are moronic fools and should be exterminated (2)

- Too many cars stolen on this campus - need more security (5)

- Campus security refuses to do anything when it comes to speeding cars and broken windows (7)

- The swap meet should never be allowed on campus when classes are held and especially during finals (1)

- How can RSC students get in contact with ASB "senators"? Where is the information regarding our trusted trustees? (1)

- I feel that RSC is a good school, but could do a little more to make it better (2)
  Overall, RSC is great (23)

- Within the short time I have been attending, every need has been met (1)
- Overall most services are good but may need to be more organized and able to handle a large load (1)

  The books in the bookstore are too expensive and they don’t give you a good price when they are sold back (11)

- The Bookstore is expensive and the ladies are____[unkind] (2)
  The bookstore employees should wear masks when they “hold-up” students.
  Buy-backs are not well run (3)

- EOPS and Financial Aid Office should be more helpful to students and never loose students’ files (2)
- EOPS takes too long to accept students into their program when students might need help sooner (2)
  EOPS needs more organization (1)

- Very nice campus good area quite accessible for many but not all. Rancho has a nice campus (2)
  RSC’s personal and social interests (4)
