In an effort to support Spanish and English-as-a-Second-Language (ESL) literacy education and to help preserve the dignity and identity of the Hispanic community in Central Pennsylvania, a literacy program was established and staffed by volunteers and paid employees. Beginning with two students and a volunteer tutor, the class has grown into a multilevel and intergenerational group. Program services include outreach, placement, family reading consultation, and transportation assistance. The primary program objectives are to develop an ESL curriculum appropriate for this population, to develop and refine teaching strategies using a holistic, whole-language approach to second language instruction, teach at least 20 Hispanic students to improve their English speech, reading, and writing skills using the curriculum, produce a collection of Hispanic stories in English, and strengthen links between the Hispanic community and community services. The project report presented here includes a summary of program structure, notes on instructional materials used, attendance patterns, the new student orientation process, lesson plan structure, classroom teaching methods (poetry, public speaking, jazz chants, and cooperative work), and anecdotal information. Resulting student work is appended. (MSE) (Adjunct ERIC Clearinghouse on Literacy Education)

Dear Dr. Christopher:

Enclosed please find the final project report for a Special Experimental Demonstration Project under Section 353 of the Adult Education Act as amended 1988, "Holistic Teaching Strategies for Hispanic Students". The State Priority this pre-application addresses is # 1-6, "Development of strategies that address the needs of Hispanics who are not literate in their primary language".

The sponsoring agency and fiscal administrator was the Lebanon County Housing and Redevelopment Authority. The Social Service Coordinator and Hispanic Outreach Coordinator, Mike Barrett and I, as Project Director, worked together on administering this grant. The governing board of the Lancaster-Lebanon Literacy Council and the Lebanon County Library see these needed outreach and educational services to the Hispanic Community as important; the staff of all the above agencies, as well as Lancaster-Lebanon Intermediate Unit 13, cooperated and coordinated services. I believe the goals of the project were realized and that the techniques used might be of interest to other agencies serving Hispanics or Latinos.

The federal funds used for this project were not be used to replace local or federal funds utilized in the past for this purpose.

Sincerely,

Jean Henry, Project Director

ABSTRACT

This project proposed to develop a curriculum and instructional techniques using creative strategies that would address the educational needs of Hispanic students who were not literate in their primary language. By using a creative, whole language approach, Hispanic students who were at different levels of literacy in both English and Spanish learned reading, writing and speaking skills, while enhancing their self-esteem and that of their culture. Using student centered materials, such as stories and poetry, as the basis for learning and published materials as support materials, students learned to read and write English better. Further, positive evaluations and test results by students and agency substantiated the teacher's and project director's belief in this approach to learning.

DESCRIPTION:

In the past few years, Central Pennsylvania has experienced a rapid expansion of Hispanic persons, particularly of Puerto Rican heritage. The Hispanic Task Force estimates there are over 3000 persons of Puerto Rican heritage in Lebanon County. The population has grown even more rapidly in Lancaster County. In many cases, Hispanics are fleeing the cities for what they feel will be a better life. In cities, such as New York, they may have learned to speak English, but not necessarily be literate in either Spanish or English.

Late in 1989, the LVA Lancaster-Lebanon Literacy Council, with funding from the Pennsylvania Department of Education, began a Hispanic family literacy project as part of a 353 Family Literacy Project (#98-001). The Hispanic part of this project was developed with sensitivity to the needs of the students for instruction in Spanish and English, on the one hand, and the feelings of this community about losing their dignity and cultural identity, on the other. It involved co-operation and active assistance from the Lebanon County Hispanic Task Force, the members of the class, Sister Mary Matthew of the Guadalupe Center, where the group was based, a bilingual Hispanic VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) Volunteer and the volunteer tutor.

This project, beginning with two women taught by a volunteer tutor, has grown into a multi-level class, which includes some children as students and class aides. It is currently being administered, with Literacy Council and Community Library support, by the Lebanon County Housing and Redevelopment Authority. The ESL classes are being expanded by the use of volunteers and the family literacy aspect is being strengthened. The social service department of the Lebanon County Housing Authority Social Service staff and the Literacy Council VISTA worker coordinate outreach efforts, refer students, attend Hispanic Task Force meetings, distribute questionnaires and information about adult education programs to the Hispanic community, help arrange transportation and in the evaluation process. Students not appropriate for this class or whose schedules or location preclude their getting to the Guadalupe class are referred to the Literacy Council for one to one tutoring or to Intermediate Unit 13 classes. Of thirty-three (33) students referred by the Literacy Council VISTA Hispanic Outreach Worker, Housing Social Services Social Services and the Bilingual Library, eighteen were served in the Guadalupe Class, this being the most appropriate service for them. The others were referred to Intermediate Unit 13 classes or to the Literacy Council for one-to-one tutoring. The Children's Librarian and the Family Literacy Coordinator at the Lebanon Community Library continue to suggest appropriate books for students and their families to read together, although most materials read by families are the student centered materials described in the body of this grant.

Ideas for stories and poems, as well as drafts and final products, are shared by extended families at home. The Literacy Council was available to train volunteer tutors to help in the classroom. (Only one volunteer was utilized.) The Council also had a workshop, “Catch Some Culture”, to which the teacher, her students and volunteers were invited and in which they participated. Meetings were held once a month by the Project Director, the teacher and the VISTA worker to discuss progress and any concerns. The VISTA, the teacher, the Housing Social Service Director and his staff met when necessary. The Project Director, the VISTA and the Housing Social Service Director attended Hispanic Task Force Meetings. One of the Literacy Council's other teachers started a 4-H program for children of families in the Guadalupe Church. Children of families in this program participated in this 4-H program.

The Hispanic students have varied educational background and language facility in both English and Spanish. This necessitates a flexible, student-as-teacher centered curriculum. Stories or experiences relating to the students' cultural and family heritage are discussed and written, either in Spanish or English. Class members, all of whom are adults, help each other learn English skills. The teacher is the facilitator of the group process. She encourages the group to express themselves in story form and using their stories teaches them to read, write and learn English grammar. These stories are then shared with the group and later with family members. (Please see: STUDENT STORIES, pp. 1A to 12A.)
The teacher and her student aides use a computer to record stories. Volunteers use a typewriter and paper and carbon to assist her. If a story is in Spanish, the class will help translate it into English. Stories are refined by working on such skills as grammatical points. (The current class uses Spanish-English dictionaries and Dixson's, "Graded Exercises in English".) In this holistic approach, specific skills needed are taught as part of the experiential process. Pictures, photographs and student drawings illustrate students' stories kept in notebooks, which can then be read in class and at home. Students work on listening skills by hearing student or commercially published materials read and discussed. Skits or role playing are often introduced here. The students have expressed a high degree of satisfaction with the teacher and this "whole language" approach. The process reinforces their dignity, individuality, and culture, thereby enhancing learning.

This approach works for this population for the following reasons: 1. low-literate or non-literate people usually have a good oral storytelling tradition; 2. student centered materials are less threatening and more pedagogical for this group; 3. group and family dynamics seem to work for Hispanics who are group oriented; 4. the class, being multi-level, uses students as teachers which reinforces learning; 5. the materials, developed by the class, acknowledges their cultural identity; and 6. because of the holistic approach used, a student can miss some sessions and still learn at his own rate of speed when he returns; 7. the family literacy component, where the students share stories and published materials with family members, is essential to retention and speed of learning.

Students are an integral part of the teaching process: They encourage, discuss, teach while they are learning.

...in this class, these students were exposed to education at its best: their teacher treated them with respect and valued their knowledge, insight, and know-how as a starting place for a dialogue of learning; the students' knowledge was extended, connected, and compared as a framework for further discovering and knowing; and the students went away more thoughtful and more powerful than when they arrived.

OBJECTIVES:
1. To develop and refine an English as a Second Language curriculum for Hispanic students who are not literate in Spanish or English.
2. To develop and refine teaching strategies using a holistic approach.
3. To teach at least 20 Hispanic students to improve their spoken English and to improve their reading and writing using this curriculum and strategies.
4. To produce a collection of Hispanic stories in English.
5. To write a final report for the Pennsylvania Department of Education and other clearinghouses.
6. To strengthen "linkages" between the Hispanic Community, the Hispanic Task Force, Lebanon County Housing personnel and the Lancaster-Lebanon Literacy Council.
ADMINISTRATION:
The sponsoring agency was the Lebanon County Housing and Redevelopment Authority. The Project Director, the Lebanon Literacy Coordinator, Jean Henry, administered the project. The Hispanic Outreach Coordinator was Mike Barrett. He worked closely with housing social service staff, both to refer students and to give them tickets for transportation. A bilingual VISTA outreach worker, Carmen Leon, referred and helped evaluate students. Volunteer tutors found by the teacher or the Literacy Council, but trained by the Literacy Council and the teacher, helped in the classroom. Family members, particularly, young teenagers, helped in the classroom and wrote their own stories to share with students and other family members and friends. The Housing Authority Bookkeeper, Louise Heffelfinger, did the projects accounting and final fiscal reports. She also helped purchase materials, other than books, so that the materials could be purchased at bulk rate prices.

LOCATION:
The Project Director directed the project from the Lancaster-Lebanon Literacy Council at 1 Cumberland Street, Lebanon, PA 17042. The Housing Social Service Staff worked out of Housing Social Service Offices at 1012 Brock Drive, Lebanon, PA 17042. Volunteer tutors were trained at the Literacy Council office listed above. The VISTA Hispanic Outreach Worker worked out of the Bilingual and Cultural Library, 129 Van Buren Street, Lebanon, PA 17042. The class was held at the Guadalupe Center, 329 North 8th Street, Lebanon, 17042. The Administrative Offices for the project were at 303 Chestnut Street, Lebanon, PA 17042.

METHODS AND MATERIALS are described in the Teacher's Report, attached.

EVALUATION:
Evaluations by students were positive. Their expectations were generally met and they had a good time. They liked the following aspects the best: 1) using the computer to record stories and poems, 2) reading student produced materials and improving their pronunciation by modeling the teacher's reading of these materials, 3) grammar and verbs. They felt the following areas needed improvement: 1) more spelling, reading and pronunciation, 2) more heat in the room in the winter (The class is held in a center city poor mission church.) and 3) more computers.

Test results: Students were pretested according to their entry level using a variety of instruments: the ELOA test (Literacy Volunteers of America), the Donia Ilyin STEL test, and the BEST test. All students posttested showed improvement, some more dramatically than others. Three students were referred to the Intermediate Unit GED classes. Two enrolled in the GED classes and one student passed the GED during the contract year. One student was referred and entered classes at the Lebanon County Vocational-Technical School. Four students moved to New York City.

The coordination and "linkages" between the agencies listed above provided coordinated services and the most appropriate education for the students whether ESL classes, GED classes or one to one tutoring.

ATTENDANCE

The class was started as a morning class with four to six students attending twice weekly from 10:00 am to 11:30 am. In spite of extensive advertising for students, through the Literacy Council and the Housing & Redevelopment Authority, the response anticipated was not forthcoming.

In January, the timeframe for the class was changed to Monday and Thursday, from 5:00 pm to 7:00 pm. The response was great. Even though we did not retain the original morning students, the class quickly grew from four to sixteen students. Several parents brought their children. The children are not counted, but became an invaluable asset to the interaction of the class.

The enthusiasm of the class was high. The average attendance was eleven. (This figure does not represent a true attendance figure because a few students attended only on Mondays, due to other commitments on Thursday, and one or two others attended when their work hours did not conflict.)

Although all students were Hispanic, they represented Mexico, Colombia, El Salvador, Cuba and Puerto Rico. Their ages ranged from 19 to 59. Most of the students tested with little more than a beginning knowledge of English. A few were on an intermediate level. One student, who tested intermediate was actually on an advanced level. One student was illiterate in both English and Spanish.

NOTE: By incorporating new vocabulary and pronunciation skills, using pictures and rhyming words with the blackboard as a focal point, the interest of the higher level students was held and the new reading student learned to read without embarrassment. The interaction of the class was like that of a family as the more advanced students took pride in helping the less fortunate student. (See "Working Together", Page 11)
PROCEDURES

I. NEW STUDENT ORIENTATION

A. Interview and/or Evaluation

1) Referrals

a. Referrals were made through the joint efforts of the Literacy Council VISTA worker, the Social Service Dept. of the Lebanon County Housing Authority and the Hispanic Task Force.

b. Carmen Leon, ESL Vista Worker for the Literacy Council, interviewed, tested, referred and kept records (time, progress, etc.) on students entering class.

c. Diane McKinney, Social Service Dept. of the Housing Authority interviewed and kept records on transportation tickets for students who were eligible.

2) Walk-ins

Walk-ins to the class were quite frequent. These students were referred by friend or a co-worker. They were integrated into the class with as much ease as possible and tested at a later date.

B. Supplies

Each new student received:

- A Conversation Book, Authors. T. Carver and S. Fotinos
- Power English, Author. Dorthy Rubin
- A map of his/her native country.
- English Alphabet (enlarged, with pronunciation)
- One Arco Folder (with fasteners), one lined tablet, one pencil.
C. Experience Story

All students, regardless of level of knowledge of English and/or reading skills, were required to write an experience story for their first assignment. They were asked to bring this with them to their first class. The experience stories were prepared as follows:

1) Written in English - with disregard to grammar, spelling, etc. The new student was encouraged to try to do this.

NOTE: It is important to stress the fact that spelling, grammar, and punctuation are not important at this point in writing. Ideas and emotions of the student are needed if the experience story is to be of value as a teaching tool.

2) Written in Spanish - and then translated orally at the second session with the help of the other students.

3) Written at home and typed in class using the portable computer. This method was the most popular with the students.

a. Students with enough knowledge of English were encouraged to type their story without using notes.

Again, grammar, spelling and punctuation are not important.

b. Beginners and illiterate students answered basic questions, with or without the help of another student acting as an interpreter.

If a more advanced student wanted to learn to use the computer he/she was instructed on the mechanisms of the "experience story." and typed the new student's story into the computer.

c. For walk-ins, the teacher did the interviewing recording the information in the computer with other students acting as interpreters.
NOTE: Standard questions were asked to gain the information for the experience story using phrases that the student might need for survival skills while at the same time, teaching writing skills, i.e., a beginning, middle and a good ending even if the story was only one paragraph long.

D. Follow-up and Integration into Program

Holistic teaching deals with the all over personality of the individual student. From the minute the student enters the room, the aim is to build good self esteem while gently guiding and motivating the student in the direction of goals they have set for themselves.

1) Experience story print out

Using the Publish It Lite desktop publishing program, the new student's experience story is edited, printed and returned to the student at the next session.

(Publish It Lite is an inexpensive desktop program with a great deal of versatility -- see student's stories, poetry, etc., in the Addendum.)

NOTE: Formatting the "print out" is an important step in the holistic teaching process. Depending on the needs of the student (as observed by the teacher during the initial interview), print outs may be formatted several different ways. The ideas and exact wording of the student is the most important factor when rewriting, keeping in mind repetition of helpful phrases, the correct use of verbs and a rhythmic flow to the story.

2) Finished Product

The overall finished product of the student's first writing must be grammatically correct and also pleasing to the eye. A picture (self photo, or family photo), a drawing, or a computer drawing is suitable. Desktop Publishing allows for:
a. use of larger size types, helpful for students with low level reading skills.

b. a variety of fonts and framing give an aesthetic quality to the finished work.

c. pictures to be added to further enhance the finished work.

3) Handout

The new student now has the necessary tools to feel comfortable with the class. (See Sample Experiences Stories, Addendum 1)

II. LESSON PLANS

Although the lesson plan for this class was subject to change to accommodate many different needs and personalities, a general basic structure was adhered to:

A. Recitation of the Students' Experience Stories
   Approximately 15-20 min.

B. Grammar - working in, "Graded Exercises in English, or "Power English"
   Approximately 1/2 hour

C. Survival Skills - working with "Conversation Book"
   Approximately 15-20 min.

D. Listening and Pronunciation Skills - using selected poems from, "Jazz Chants," or improvised exercises using, "Speak English," as a reference
   Approximately 15-20 min.

E. Other - The last half hour was usually reserved for one of the following:

1) Writing poetry and/or stories
2) Public Speaking
3) Basic oral drills (substitution, response, etc., referencing LVA's "Speak English").
4) Idioms using, "101 American English Idioms."
NOTE: The lesson plans were used as a framework and not adhered to in a strict time frame. As the class progressed, the second session of the week was spent on grammar, poetry writing, and drawing. Later, drawing was discontinued and a new teaching strategy was introduced with something for everyone's needs. (See Working Together, Page 11)

III. METHODS

A. The Experience Story as a tool

1) All students must read something they have written in English at each session.

2) At the end of the reading session, there should be a short discussion on vocabulary used in each student's stories, making sure all words are understood by all students.

B. Poetry 1st Method (See Addendum 2, Poetry, Using CX2Nering.)

After the students are comfortable with the experience story approach, they are ready for poetry.

1) Each student is encouraged to either expand on something from their experience story, or to pick a subject they feel strongly about. i.e. a hobby, a child, a pet, their religion, etc.

2) The first draft is the student's handwritten original, preferably written with as many English words as possible.

3) The second draft reflects a rhythm pattern (counted syllables), choice of descriptive adjectives, and phrasing. Where possible, a thesaurus is used.

4) The third draft is usually the final draft. The student is then encouraged to type the poem in the computer.

5) Using Publish it Lite, the completed poem is formatted, printed and returned to the student by the next session. The student may then choose to draw a picture for the poem.

C. Poetry - 2nd Method

(See Addendum 3, Poetry, Using Model Poem.)

1) Comparison Poem

A poem is chosen to use as a model. It is read out loud by the teacher and discussed by the class. Rhythm patterns, rhyming, and poetic phrasing are all discussed in both English and Spanish.

2) Drawing - Using the model poem as an inspiration, each student draws a picture.

The model poem we used was entitled, "The Edge of Night." After discussing the meaning the class choose to draw a sunset. (See Addendum 3, Poetry, Using a Model.)

3) Envisioning - To begin the poems, each student is asked to imagine walking somewhere in their native country.

In our model poem, the beginning lines were of someone walking on a beach. (See Addendum 3, Poetry, Using a Model)

4) Each student is asked what they could see, what they could smell, what they could hear, etc. (See example of some of the finished poems.)

D. Public Speaking

Public Speaking is an excellent tool for building self esteem and confidence. Evaluating is an essential part of Public Speaking. These two skills should not be taught until students are comfortable with writing and reading their own material. Above all, it must be fun.

1) Original Material

They may use their own creative writing, or bring something of interest from home.
a. They are introduced by the teacher (in an informal friendly manner) and they are applauded when they are finished.

b. For a new student (or for any student who is nervous about speaking in public, etc.), the teacher may read the story first, for rhythm, pronunciation, and flow of ideas.

c. After the student reads, he/she is evaluated by the teacher, who points out their strong points first, and then gently adds critique regarding rhythm, pronunciation, or any other weak points the student may wish to work on.

2) Evaluating

Evaluating is a skill that must be handled carefully to be effective. Students should not evaluate each other until the teacher is satisfied they fully understand "how to" evaluate. General guidelines are:

a. Always be positive. Point out what was most impressive about the speech, and what you feel are the student's good speaking qualities.

b. Keep criticism general. Such phrases as:

"Pronunciation is good, but rhythm is not quite right." or

"Good eye contact, rhythm was good, but there were a few difficult words that need work." will put student at ease.

c. To finish the evaluation, use words like, "good job," "great," or, "really enjoyed that." or, simply, "Thank you, Carlos/Carmen, that was great."

3) Extemporaneous Speaking

a. Each student is introduced, and speaks on a subject picked by the teacher. The speech may be of any length.

b. Each student is evaluated (in a light hearted manner) for having a beginning, middle, and ending to their speech. Posture and pronunciation are also considered.

c. Reading poetry is acceptable if the student cannot think of a speech.

d. Speeches are recorded on the computer, by the teacher, printed and returned to student at the following session.

E. Jazz Chants

The Chants are written in two-part dialogue and can be used for speaking and listening comprehension as follows:

1) Chanting — The teacher explains the situational context of the chant and gives the reading, stressing the rhythm by clapping, snapping of fingers, or some other means.

   a. The class gives the reading, led by the teacher who gradually increases the pace. The class repeats the chant. The teacher gradually picks up the pace.

   b. The material is discussed with the class making sure everyone understands the concept and the vocabulary.

2) Improvisation

   a. The chant is used for role playing using two groups, or individual students.

   b. The chant is used with the class asking questions and one student giving responses.

F. Working Together

This is the most important aspect of holistic teaching. The students are encouraged to work as a unit without losing their identity. To keep the advanced level from becoming bored, and the beginning level from becoming discouraged the following lesson plan was successful:

1) Alphabet Sheets (See Addendum #5)

As a warm up exercise, the class reviews the English alphabet. This exercise is usually kept to a limit of 5 minutes.

a. they are asked to pronounce each letter,

b. as they sound out each letter, they are encouraged to call out English words beginning with that particular letter.

2) Picture Vocabulary Sheets - Using the blackboard as a focus, picture vocabulary sheets, plus note paper for writing sentences, and alphabet sheets as a reference, the lesson is conducted as follows:

a. Vocabulary

The first picture on the vocabulary sheet is written in both English and Spanish on the line indicated.

The teacher then prints the word on the board, breaking the word into syllables, stressing, underlining, and pronouncing each part of the word as she writes.

b. Sentences

Using the word on the board the class (as a group) is asked to write a good English sentence.

The teacher prints the word on the board. The class copies the sentence on paper, and translates it into Spanish.

(In the experimental class, the student who was learning to read was included in this exercise. With the help of another student, she kept up with the class.)

During this exercise, it is important that the teacher be alert to the reactions of the class. She may unobtrusively check the students' papers, helping those who might not ask, and giving encouragement where she feels it is warranted. and at the same time keeping the spontaneity of the class alive.

3) Phonics and Rhyming words -

When a vocabulary word has letters (or groups of letters) that may be difficult for Hispanics, the teacher improvises. Using the alphabet sheet, the students call out as many rhyming words as they can. The teacher writes the words on the board. Between them, they write a nonsense poem.

This may be used as a diversion to stimulate those students who may be getting bored with the Vocabulary Sheet exercise. It is important for the students to call out their responses as this helps develop their ear and may open a discussion on "sound alike" words.

IV. POSTSCRIPT: FOR TEACHERS AND INTERESTED PARTIES

Teaching ESL with right-brain techniques, you bring an imaginative, holistic analogical approach to your class. It is possible to teach creative writing (English creative writing, i.e.), public speaking (which builds self esteem), throw in spoonfuls (large heaping doses) of grammar, pronunciation, and listening skills and release the pressures that sometimes hinder adult learning in a sterile classroom atmosphere.

This method is effective and pleasant to both the quick, more advanced student and also the slower student because in creative writing you learn to express ideas and in public speaking you learn self esteem. Students are not only learning a language, they are learning to express themselves and feel good about themselves in the process. In this type of atmosphere, the quick student helps the slower student.
and the slower is less frustrated about the learning process.

The class was initiated mid-November as an experiment. We started with two students, we now have 12 to 20 students. Students feel comfortable returning to class even if they have had to miss some sessions.

The class has appeal. The most important feature is that it is geared to build confidence and communication skills. Because of the holistic approach used, a student could miss some sessions and still learn at his own rate of speed when he returns. Many second language users know a great deal more than they think. They need a place to express themselves without feeling intimidated.

Keep in mind that a right brain approach does not rule out using the logical, sequential, rule governing mode of learning. On the logical side, we all have a built-in critic. You know, that inner voice that says things like: "You know you can't do that, Dummy!"

It happens to be your creative right brain that answers: "Oh yeah, just watch me!"
EXPERIENCE STORIES

...WILLIAM

My name is William. . . . . . .

I came to the United States from Colombia. My home is in Cali. Cali is the capital of Valle del Cauca, which is a state in Colombia. I came to this country in search of work.

My wife's name is Aurora. . . . and we have a nine year old son. My son's name is the same as mine, William. They are both still living in Colombia and I miss them very much.

I live with my brother, Manuel and I try to keep myself busy so I will not miss my family. When I am not working, I listen to music and I like to cook.

I hope to go home to see my family sometime this year. Maybe I will be able to go in December.

...MARIA

My name is Maria. . . . . I live in Lebanon, Penna. I came to the United States from Santiago, Cuba. I have been in this country for 10 years and I would like to become a citizen.

My husband's name was Juan. He died in Cuba, nine years ago. We have four children. They are Carlos Manuel, 39, Maritza, 33, Sandra, 26, and Milagros who is 22. I have 10 grandchildren.

I am very happy with my life, but I need to learn English to become a citizen of my adopted country.

...LUCIANO

My name is Luciano. . . . My native country is Mexico. I came from Michocain, Mexico two years ago. I was 16 years old when I came to this country. I came with my cousin, Miguel . . . , who was 21 years old. We both work at Farmer's Pride. My family is in Mexico.

My mother's name is Ebarista, and my Father's name is Gilberto . . . . I have four brothers, Antonio, Juan, Gilberto and Angelito.

I like it here in Lebanon, Pennsylvania. I like the people, I like my job, and I send money to my family in Mexico.
"This is my Son Juan"

He is a very handsome boy. He is 4 years old. He likes to play all the time. He is a very active boy. He likes every kind of toy. He likes cars, balls, etc. He may be crazy because he follows me everywhere.

MY SON JUAN
by Luz Gonzalez

My son, Juan, is 4 years old. He's a very handsome boy, and a very active child.

He likes to play all the time. He likes every kind of toy, especially cars and balls.

My son Juan stays close to me, and he follows me everywhere. Sometimes it makes me crazy.

But, at night when he's in bed, he looks like an angel, my son, Juan...

My Cat
by Johnny Gonzales

My cat is white
He likes to play with
a ball of yarn...
Although he's just a skinny cat
he eats and eats.
Bundy is his name
He's only nine months old
He's so funny... he jumps, and runs, runs, and jumps
and jumps and runs again
Bundy, my funny, skinny, white cat makes me laugh.

MY CAT
by Johnny Gonzales

BUNDY, MY WHITE CAT
LIKES TO PLAY WITH A BALL OF YARN.
THOUGH HE'S JUST A SKINNY OLD CAT
HE SURE CAN EAT.

SILLY KITTEN, HE JUMPS, AND RUNS,
THEN HE RUNS, AND JUMPS
THIS FUNNY,
OLD SKINNY, WHITE CAT
HE MAKES ME LAUGH...

PUERTO RICO

by Luz Gonzales

I walk on the beach in the twilight.

The sun going down turns the ultramarine blue shadows to a soft violet gray.

The rays of the sun dance on the sea, and sparkle on the mountains.

I can feel Jesus by my side.
I am full of love for everyone.

The Edge of Night
by Clay Harrison

Today I walked beside the sea and felt my Savior there with me.
We left no footprints in the sand for the tide erased them from the sand.
The sun began to fill the sky with scarlet ribbons floating high and amber clouds that once were white changed to gold at the edge of night.
The winds caressed me like a prayer because they knew that God was there and in the twilight’s purple haze my heart was filled with joyful praise.
My little town. . .
Where the trees and the grass are green and beautiful, and the people nice and friendly. We like to get together and tell stories about animals, . . .
and about other people.

I still remember. . .
We sat outside on the benches and on the rocks to listen to the birds singing, the wind blowing, and to look at all the flowers around the house, . . .
colorful and beautiful.

Behind my friend’s house. . .
There was a small river where we liked to go swimming, because the water was clean and clear. And every night, we would sit outside and look up. . .
at the stars in the big sky.

My family and I. . .
decided to leave the island and move to a city called New York. But someday, I will go back just to see my little town where I was born, and I will never forget
Las Marias, Puerto Rico.
FLOWERS
by Mary Carmona

Flowers are one of the more beautiful things of this universe.
The color, the perfume are something marvelous.

Where you have flowers, you have love happiness and the presence of God abounds.

All the loveliest moments of my life were accompanied by flowers; my engagement, my wedding, when my son was born, my birthdays, Mother's Day, Valentine's day, and Christmas.

Thank you God for this beautiful miracle that you have given us.

The flowers.
Arely Betsabe, my granddaughter, was born in a hospital, Brigham Woman’s Hospital, in Boston, Mass., called July 21, 1989. Arely is now one year and seven months old. She can walk and she likes to touch everything her tiny hands can reach. Arely is a good eater. She drinks lots of milk, and is very healthy and so beautiful. Arely loves to sing. Arely loves her momma and papa . . . and her big sister also . . . and her grandmother loves baby, Arely Betsabe, very much . . . She likes to go to church and she sings when it is time to sing, cause Arely loves to sing . . .
MY MOTHER

by Gladys Cruz

Her pale face like a soft pink rose
Her hair shining bright,
a silver cascade on the night
My beautiful mother

Beauty, not of her face alone,
But beauty from a heart
That always cared, and was always there to take my part
My mother, my friend.

I thank God for this special gift
This delightful person
Special in her very own way
How much I love her, words cannot say
My beautiful mother.

ROSES IN THE MORNING

by Carmen Maria Santiago

It's a nice beautiful day
the sun shines
the birds fly up in the sky
the wind blows
the violets are blue
all the roses are red and beautiful

The sky is purple and blue like the violets on the ground.
I LOVE

Marvelous, beautiful work of nature
The apple tree
Spreading branches, leaves of bright shining green Sweet as can be
The aroma of this magnificent tree.

LOVE
by Mary Carmona

My name is Mary.
I like what God gave me because everything makes me happy.
My son, and my husband, and my whole family.
It is the best present in my life.
PUERTO RICO
by Iraida Rivera

Puerto Rico is a beautiful island. The lovely landscapes; the beaches, rivers, sparkling lakes and majestic mountains cast their spell on all who live there, as well as those who visit her shores.

There are many different kinds of animals, flowers, trees, vegetables and fruits on the island. There are many historical monuments and grand old churches to visit.

The most popular animal is the coqui, a frog that sounds like a bird which is how it got its name. Coqui is the sound that it makes.

The most popular bird is the Reinita. Some typical dishes are the Sancocho, Mondongo and Asopao of chicken.

Surfing, golfing, and fishing are very popular sports on the island, but one of the things that the people of Puerto Rico are proudest of is a monument to the famous pitcher, Roberto Clemente.

No matter how far we travel, and how good our new life is, our hearts will ever be on our beautiful island of Puerto Rico...

IF I COULD ONLY HAVE ONE WISH
by Carmen Maria Santiago

If I could only have one wish...
I would wish to be on my beautiful island of Puerto Rico
Where the trees are green and the wind blows gently on my face where the sunshines, and the birds sing and the beautiful lakes glisten like flashing stars on the soft night.
