A Collection of Proverbs, Sayings and Quotations

Adult ESL Class - West Chester, Pennsylvania
Spring 1991

Funding for this project was received in whole through the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

FOREWORD

There are universal beliefs that unite people from every part of the world. Common sayings, stories, proverbs and quotations are passed on through the generations and become part of the beliefs and values of each culture. The power of the ideas spans the centuries, sometimes becoming stronger over time.

Students from several countries with very different backgrounds and life experiences have studied English in our ESL classes in West Chester, Pennsylvania. Coming from four continents, they represent the new immigrant population in the United States.

During class discussions the students talk about their families, countries, and customs. Occasionally they share traditional foods and recipes. This international exchange has expanded our curriculum -- even the ESL beginner can participate in discussions of food. A favorite question is, "What did you prepare for dinner?"

Recently the class has shared sayings and proverbs from their countries, some of which were easy to translate into several languages. In other cases the thought would be expressed with different nouns, i.e. "It's raining cats and dogs." In Spanish this is translated into English, "It's raining into the water jugs," and in French, "It's raining brown." Sometimes they were expressing the same principle in different settings.

One day three of the men from Mexico asked if they could sing "Las Mañanitas" to a young woman from Morocco who was celebrating a birthday. It's a tradition in Latin America to waken the birthday person at sunrise with this song, accompanied sometimes by guitar. A week later they surprised a Vietnamese woman with the same song. In Viet Nam all birthdays are celebrated at the New Year, which date changes each year with the Chinese calendar.

We learned that all of our cultures teach language to babies and toddlers through little rhymes or tunes. We compared our different versions of singing the alphabet, learning how to count, a song about the weather or a lullaby to sleep. Certain fairy tales and parables are universal, using different characters and settings appropriate to each country.

This project encouraged the class to improve their communication skills. As they spoke about their childhood and recalled specific ideas, they were building vocabulary and increasing their knowledge of grammar. Perhaps as important has been the growth of friendship and trust while working together.

An excerpt from Walt Whitman's Leaves of Grass sums up what we are trying to express:

"These are really the thoughts of all men in all ages and lands,
they are not original with me,

If they are not yours as much as mine they are nothing,
or next to nothing,

If they are not the riddle and the untying of the riddle
they are nothing,

If they are not just as close as they are distant
they are nothing.

This is the grass that grows wherever the land is
and the water is,

This is the common air that bathes the globe."

We extend our appreciation to La Comunidad Hispana, our sponsoring agency, which is part of the Chester County Adult Literacy Consortium administered by the Chester County Intermediate Unit. Special thanks go to St. Agnes Church where the classes meet, and to each of the students listed below by country and language. Thanks also to several friends of the class who checked the translations.
