Two manuals provide guidelines for users of the Utah Publications Depository Program. The first, "Guidelines for State Agencies," is designed to assist agencies in complying with the depository law. The program is designed to collect Utah State Governmental publications and to make them available through libraries. State publications include books and other print materials, as well as audiovisual materials produced by state agencies. Depositing these materials provides citizens with ready access to information published by the state at a minimum cost and effort. The responsibilities of the state agency include designating a contact person for communication between the agency and the State Library Division and standardizing title pages so that publications can be entered into a database. Sample title pages and information on how to deposit are included. Five appendixes list the depository libraries and contact persons, and give other details of the depository system. The second guide, "Manual of Guidelines for Depository-Libraries," describes the services and responsibilities of the depository libraries. All depository libraries are expected to loan or provide photocopies of depository materials to other libraries on request. Seven appendixes provide information about the libraries and criteria for their operation, with a copy of the application to become a depository library. (SLD)

INTRODUCTION

By law (Utah Code 37-5-3, as revised, 1989, Depository Libraries), Utah state agencies and state supported colleges and universities are required to deposit sufficient copies of their publications with the State Library Division to be distributed to the depository libraries in the publications depository program.

This Manual of Guidelines is designed to assist agencies in complying with this depository law. It describes the Utah Publications Depository Program and presents guidelines for the deposit of publications with the State Library Division.

The State Library Division requests that each agency designate a publications contact person to serve as a liaison with the State Library Division concerning deposit of publications. This manual is intended primarily for use by these contact persons, and they are urged to review it carefully. Questions or suggestions should be directed to the State Publications Librarian, State Library Division, (801) 466-5888.
THE UTAH PUBLICATIONS DEPOSITORY PROGRAM

The State Library Division is empowered by Utah Code Title 37, Chapter 5 to establish a depository library system. The Utah Publications Depository Program is designed to systematically collect and make Utah state governmental publications available through libraries, and to promote their use. The program's main goals are to provide the citizens ready access to the information published by their state's government at a minimum of cost and effort, and to assist state agencies by maintaining and indexing a collection of state publications. Sixteen libraries, located in various areas, now have the status of depository library. If the State Library Division receives sufficient copies of a publication from an agency, each depository library receives a copy. These publications are then available to walk in patrons and to loan upon request.

State agencies, state supported colleges and universities participate in this Program by depositing copies of their publications with the State Library Division. The publications are the heart of the Program, and therefore, depositing them with the State Library Division is crucial to the Program's success.

The essential components of the Program are the acquisition of the publications from the agencies, the processing of publications and the preparation of finding aids to make them accessible, the distribution of publications to designated libraries around the state, and the retention of publications in a central collection for use by patrons.

The depository system assists state agencies in two major areas: cost savings and accessibility.

1. Cost savings:

   a. Reduced printing costs: Agencies can limit the number of copies produced with the assurance that copies located at libraries in the depository system make the information widely available. Fewer copies can be printed in the initial production run and reprinting can be scheduled with the assurance that the information is available at easily located sites.

   b. Reduced secretarial time: By joining the depository system, the agency need not mail individual copies to the depository libraries. The mailing is done at the State Library Division. When requested, the State Library Division will either supply labels, or mail information from a state agency to all the libraries (and branches) within the state. This eliminates the need, for many agencies, to type address or maintain a mailing list of the libraries.
2. Accessibility:

a. State Library Division

Online cataloging - searching: Most publications are cataloged by Utah State Library Division staff into OCLC, a national database with several retrieval methods -- by author, title, agency which published, or key words. Members of OCLC are able to determine who wrote and published a title, where it is located, and something of the subject covered. Nonmembers of OCLC have access to this information through the State Library Division or another participating library. Access to the publications of other agencies or other states may make it possible to eliminate duplication of research and overlapping of subject information already available.

Circulation - Reference: The State Library Division retains two copies of each publication, one for reference and one for circulation through interlibrary loan. The reference copy is always available to assist any state agency or individual needing immediate access.

Utah Under Cover: Individuals and organizations that do not have access to online systems have available an annual checklist, created and published by Utah State Library Division, of all publications received during a particular fiscal year. This publication, Utah Under Cover, is distributed to libraries, agencies, other state libraries and upon request. Utah Under Cover provides specific information about these publications.

b. Library of Congress: The Library of Congress is sent a publication when sufficient copies are received. A monthly checklist of publications received from all states is issued by the Library of Congress and widely distributed to legislators, states, individuals and institutions.

c. Depository Libraries: The depository libraries maintain their collections according to standards established by the State Library Division and in accordance with Utah Code, Title 37, Chapter 5. The depository system ensures agency publications get wide distribution. The value of the Utah State Publications Depository Program increases as more and more state agencies deposit sufficient copies of their publications for distribution to local areas.

Working together, the State Library Division, depository libraries and all state agencies can insure access to a wealth of information.

What kind of an audience do you want? Help us by sending sufficient copies for all the libraries in the depository system and we will help you reach your intended clientele.
STATE AGENCY RESPONSIBILITIES

Designate a Contact Person

The State Library Division requests that each agency designate a publications contact person to serve as a liaison with the State Library Division concerning deposit of publications. This manual is intended primarily for use by these contact persons, and they are urged to review it carefully. Questions or suggestions should be directed to the State Publications Librarian, State Library Division, (801) 466-5888.

The selection of the contact person or persons is made by the head of each agency or department. The contact person should be someone who has knowledge of the publishing procedures of the agency and kinds of publications that are produced.
Contact Person Responsibilities

The contact person has these responsibilities:

  a) Ensure the State Library Division receives copies of the publications issued by the agency. Number of copies is established (Utah Code, Title 37-5-3 1a) by the number of depository libraries in the state and the agency's desire to make the information readily available;

  b) Ensure the State Library Division receives at least 2 copies (Utah Code, Title 37-5-3 3) of materials produced in other formats (audio-visual, microform and machine readable materials) and information about availability and price;

  c) Compile a list from the Agency Publications List of all publications issued during a fiscal year and forward copies to the State Library Division and the State Archivist;

  d) Supply other relevant information upon request.

  Communication between State Agencies and the State Library Division is a necessity. The State Publications Librarian may ask for more information about a publication, the availability of more copies, the price and the release date of the publication. The contact person may have questions about where to send shipments and whether a certain publication meets the criteria.

  The communication ties between the agencies and the State Library Division will assist both parties reach a common goal: information to the people.
Standardize Title Pages

To ensure the best access to the publications of state agencies, the following information should be included on the front or back of the title page of each publication:

(1) full name of the issuing agency
(2) name of any individual author to be given credit
(3) title
(4) date and place of publication
(5) price

For serial (items published periodically, where the title is intended to continue indefinitely) publications include:

(6) frequency of issue
(7) volume and number of issue
(8) date of issue

Not all serial titles have both a volume/number designation and a date of issue, at least one is needed to distinguish among the various issues.

Publications received and cataloged by the State Library Division are entered into OCLC, a national data base, and becomes accessible to over thousands of members in the system. All entries into the database must meet certain standards established by the Library of Congress. This information distinguishes one publication from other materials. The more complete the information provided by the issuing agency the easier the process of access and retrieval of the publication.

On the following pages are samples of title pages that give the needed information. Some have part of the information on the reverse side of the title page, or in the case of some serials, on the last page of the issue.

Utah State Library Division, State Publications Section makes available information about state agency publications through the use of the bimonthly "Utah Publications Shipping Lists". These lists are cumulated into an annual publication called, "Utah Under Cover" (UUC).

Through the use of the information on the Shipping Lists and the state agencies "Publications Contact Person(s) List" (see appendix C), you can order publications directly from the publishing agency. The publications should be available at the time you receive the Shipping List. By the time the annual cumulation (UUC) is received publications may no longer be available. GENERAL INFORMATION

Purpose of Depository Library Program

The purpose of the depository library program is to make Utah state government publications available to the general public and state agencies.

State government manifests its activities through the information produced by its agencies. This information is disseminated in a wide variety of materials in various formats.

Since state publications are produced with tax dollars, the public is entitled to have access to them. Depository libraries throughout the state have been established to provide the public with cost effective access.

Definition of State Publications

"State Publication" means any book, compilation, document, journal, periodical, magazine, map, monograph, or pamphlet issued or published for distribution by any state agency. The definition includes directories, contracts, grant reports, hearing memorandums, public memorandums, laws, legislative bills, orders, ordinances, proceedings, resolutions, registers, rules, reports, and statutes. Audiovisual materials regardless of format, i.e. film, micrographics, video, tape or disc recordings, are also considered state publications.

"State Publication" does not include any correspondence, internal confidential publications, office memoranda, university press publications, or publications of the state historical society. (See: Utah Code Annotated, Title 9, Chapter 7)
Historical Overview of Utah Governmental Publications

In 1979 Utah Senate Bill 187 was passed by the 43rd Utah Legislature and added to the Utah Code Annotated 1953 as Title 37, Chapter 5, Sections 1-8. This stature was revised in 1989 and again in 1992, becoming Title 9, Chapter 7. The Utah State Library, under this code, has statutory authority to establish a state publications collection, to implement bibliographic control for state publications and to designate depository libraries. (See Appendix A)
SERVICES PROVIDED BY THE UTAH STATE LIBRARY DIVISION

Under the depository law, the State Library provides services to depository libraries, state agencies and to the general public. The State Library works with state agencies: (1) to acquire copies of publications, (2) to maintain a central collection, (3) to provide interlibrary loan and, (4) to assist with reference and information services. The State Library also provides consulting services for depository libraries and state agencies to support this program.

Copies of publications received are distributed to depository libraries. Accompanying each shipment is a list including bibliographic information about each publication to aid the depository library in cataloging the material. This list also cites other publications of potential interest not available in sufficient quantity for distribution.

The bibliographic information provided by the State Library is available to state agencies and to libraries through the OCLC (Online Computer Library Center) and RLIN (Research Libraries Information Network) computer databases.

RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE UTAH STATE LIBRARY DIVISION'S STATE PUBLICATIONS LIBRARIAN

To State Agencies:

1. Establish a procedure to obtain state publications from issuing state agencies.
   a. Establish and maintain list of state agency liaison officers appointed to be responsible for providing publications for distribution.
   b. Notify all state agencies to send publications, and lists of publications, published by state agencies to State Publications Librarian.
   c. Facilitate shipment of publications.
   d. Explain guidelines through meetings, telephone consultations, and office visits.
To Depositories:

1. Distribute publications to depositories.
   a. Send regular shipments of publications.
   b. Discover and identify new publications.

2. Prepare and produce bibliography of Utah State Publications.
   a. Prepare shipping lists for publications received and distributed.

3. Consult and advise publication librarians and those responsible for administration of depositories.
   a. Inspect depositories.
   b. Evaluate applications, make recommendations and prepare contract for establishing depository status.
Designation of Depository Libraries

Utah libraries may apply to the State Library to become an official depository for Utah publications. The library should be willing to provide a facility for storing state publications and to give reasonable service and access at no charge to patrons. A depository library shall receive at least one copy, when available, of state publications issued by state agencies. Applications for depository status will be reviewed by the State Library Director and the State Publications Librarian, and a contract will be established with successful applicants.

A depository library may relinquish its depository status at any time by addressing a letter to the State Librarian.

Public Services

The depository library shall be accessible to the public. (Utah Code Annotated, Title 9, Chapter 7). Circulation policies for use of depository materials are established by each depository library. Depository libraries are encouraged to publicize their collections and promote their use.

Interlibrary Loan Cooperation

All depository libraries are expected to loan or provide photocopies of depository materials to other libraries upon request, subject to existing interlibrary loan agreements.
Staffing Recommendations

One person should be designated by the depository library to coordinate depository activities and to act as liaison with the State Publications Librarian. This individual shall be responsible for receiving, selecting, organizing and maintaining the publications collection, and for assisting other staff members to provide public service by using these materials effectively.

Space Recommendations

Space for depository operations and materials should be of the same general quality as other areas of the library. Collections may be housed separately or integrated with the general collection.

Organization of the Depository Collection

Each depository library should select a method of bibliographical access that will provide for greater usage and will help patrons and staff in locating materials easily.

Microforms for Depository Publications

Depository libraries may substitute microforms for any materials, provided the microforms are indexed. Under these circumstances, microform reading equipment should be available for public use.
Maintenance of the Depository Collection

Depository libraries are encouraged to retain publications received through the depository system, and are expected to maintain the collection in good physical condition. Depository libraries with active binding programs are encouraged to give consideration to binding state publications whenever appropriate.

Suggested guidelines:

1. Keep latest edition/issue
2. Discard items when revised or outdated
   a. Handbooks
   b. Directories
   c. Drafts or proposals
3. Keep current year plus previous year of newsletters
4. Discard pages that are replaced in loose-leaf materials

Depository Shipping Lists

The depository shipping list cites publications received by the State Library for the period covered. Upon receipt of shipment, the items enclosed should be checked against the shipping list, and the shipping list identification number should be checked to guarantee that all previous shipments have been received. Since the shipping list will include titles not automatically distributed to all libraries, depositories may wish to review the shipping list to identify other titles of potential use in their collection. When provided the price will be included on the shipping list. Acquisition information is also supplied.
Limited Distribution Items

Agencies may supply a limited number of copies of a publication for the depository program. Distribution of these copies will be determined by state publications staff.

Claims and Adjustments

A form (Appendix E) can be copied by depository libraries for claiming items missing from the shipping list or not received. Claims for depository materials should be sent within 6 weeks as supplies of most publications are limited. Limited copies of publications marked with an asterisk * on the shipping list should not be claimed from the State Library but directly from the issuing agency.

Correspondence

Correspondence, claims, changes and other requests should be directed to:

State Publications Librarian
Utah State Library Division
2150 South 300 West, Suite 16
Salt Lake City, UT 84115

Depository Inspections

Visits by the State Publications Librarian to depository libraries will be made in order to become familiar with the operations and needs of the depository libraries. The purposes of the on-site visits will be to consult with and advise the depository library on efficient and effective methods of operation in fulfilling their responsibilities of making state publications accessible to their patrons.

The criteria for evaluating the depository libraries are based on the rules, regulations and guidelines for the program.

Termination may occur if a depository library fails to meet general responsibilities and procedures.
