Drawing from the experiences of three California community colleges, Foothill College, De Anza College, and San Jose City College, this collection of materials provides guidelines and sample forms and instruments to help in the development of a system for evaluating community college administrators. Included in the collection are: (1) general guidelines for beginning the process of evaluation design; (2) a list of priorities for developing an evaluation system; (3) guidelines for writing the policy and procedures governing the evaluation of administrators; (4) a list of legal issues in evaluating administrators; (5) De Anza College's "Administrator Evaluation Process and Procedures" manual, which includes a statement of philosophy and purpose, a theoretical framework, an outline of steps for implementing the committee and supervisor models of evaluation, and administrative review forms; (6) a list of proven, workable solutions for administrative evaluation developed by Foothill College; (7) Foothill's booklet, "The Management Evaluation Process," which includes instruments for a supervisor's evaluation, self-evaluation, peer evaluation, and subordinate evaluation; and (8) a set of materials including a policy statement, list of procedures, employee evaluation survey, and training materials used for administrator evaluation in the San Jose/Evergreen Community College District. EVALUATING ADMINISTRATORS: DESIGNING THE PROCESS IN A SHARED GOVERNANCE ENVIRONMENT

Program Description

Do you have a system for evaluating administrators? Did you inherit it or can you say that it looks like you, looks like you, and reflects your institution's philosophy and culture?

In this session, participants will consider: general guidelines for developing an evaluation system, its philosophical basis, legal issues, strategies for the design, and techniques for resolving issues related to confidentiality while safeguarding the value of diversity in management styles. Board representatives will discuss how the administrator evaluation system has assisted in the implementation of a unique Administrator Achievement Award system.

Abstract

Assessment and evaluation are at the core of the work of any academic institution. The evaluation of administrators is a necessary part of the total assessment process since it greatly affects the teaching and learning which takes place there and ultimately finds its expression in student success.

Creating a system for evaluating administrators is a complex endeavor designed to reflect both the culture and barriers inherent in an institution. Careful planning, as well as commitment to designing a system collaboratively, ensures that the process will work well for a number of years. Foothill College, De Anza College and San Jose City College will present successful systems for the design, as well as the implementation of a successful administrator evaluation process. Leadership for the success is shared throughout the institution—the faculty union, faculty senate, administration, and the board of trustees.

Developing priorities is an important first step in designing an administrator evaluation system. Sharon Miller, Bernadine Fong, Sandra Acebo and Martha Kanter will share helpful guidelines that should assist those who are beginning the journey. Mary Mason will provide information regarding the Board perspective.

When developing an administrator evaluation, the first and most frequently asked questions reflect concern regarding the policy and procedures governing the evaluation of administrators. Martha Kanter and Sharon Miller will offer suggestions for writing the policy and procedures.

As in all evaluation plans, there are many legal issues that must be confronted. All panel participants will present various issues they have confronted, for example, inconsistent treatment, ambiguity in the language, district and personal liability.

Mary Mason will present the perspective of the Board of Trustees in the design and the importance of an effective administrator evaluation process. In addition, she will present a unique program implemented at Foothill-De Anza, the Administrator Achievement Award, and its relationship and reliance on the evaluation process.

In summary, an effective evaluation process assists the individual whose work is assessed, and the College as a whole. It causes individuals involved in the process to consider institutional priorities and values, to discuss the relationship between policies and actions, and to clarify and define leadership attributes. The process should encourage team building and lead to the improvement of the institution as a whole.
SUGGESTIONS AND GUIDELINES FOR DEVELOPING AN ADMINISTRATOR EVALUATION SYSTEM by
D. Sharon Miller, Phd.

Assessment and evaluation are at the core of the work of any academic institution. The evaluation of administrators is a necessary part of the total assessment process since it greatly affects the teaching and learning which takes place there and ultimately finds its expression in student success.

Creating a system for evaluating administrators is a complex endeavor designed to reflect the culture while confronting the barriers inherent in an institution. Careful planning, as well as commitment to designing a system collaboratively, ensures that the process will work well for a number of years.

Developing priorities is an important first step in designing an administrator evaluation system. The following guidelines should assist those who are beginning the journey:

- Determine if there is a genuine need for evaluating administrators
- Formulate a task force that is based on expertise and is representative of the various constituencies
- Conduct a literature search and gather information on current evaluation practices of comparable institutions
- Discuss the value of evaluation with administrators, faculty and staff
- Acquire commitment and support of top administration
- Consult legal representatives throughout the process
- Acknowledge and communicate the limitations of the system
- Determine a theoretical framework and philosophy for evaluation
- Define the purpose for instituting an evaluation system
- Be practical, that is, design a process that can be accomplished
- Conduct a pilot test of the evaluation plan
- Ensure that each administrator to be evaluated has a clearly written position description
- Design the evaluation program to be compatible with the mission and goals of the College
- Plan a time frame for periodically reviewing the evaluation program

When discussing an administrator evaluation system, the first and most frequently asked questions reflect concern regarding the policy and procedures governing the evaluation of administrators. We recommend the following guidelines for writing the policy and procedures:

- Be precise
- Be designed in consideration of the College's mission
• Provide a clearly outlined timetable for all aspects of the evaluation process
• Require that evaluation be continuous rather than periodic
• Insure evaluation process reflects unique aspects of individual administrator's responsibilities
• Convey the confidentiality of evaluation results
• Indicate how evaluation results are to be used
• Provide that administrators be given a copy of their evaluation with an opportunity to respond
• Provide adequate protection for due process, including a means to appeal or grieve the results of the evaluation
• Ensure that the results of the evaluation are used to establish an individual growth and development plan
• Include a requirement for evaluation process to be reviewed and analyzed in terms of fairness and reliability

As in all evaluation plans, there are many legal issues that must be confronted. Careful attention to the following legal issues, as well as, review with appropriate legal counsel should occur.

Examples of legal issues are as follows:
• District and personal liability
• Confidentiality and anonymity
• Ambiguity in the language
• Inconsistent treatment
• Use of anonymous, unverified opinion
• Use of interviewing as an evaluation technique
• Storage of evaluation materials
• Relationship of contract to the evaluation process

In summary, an effective evaluation process assists the individual whose work is assessed, and the College as a whole. It causes individuals involved in the process to consider institutional priorities and values, to discuss the relationship between policies and actions, and to clarify and define leadership attributes. The process should encourage team building and lead to the improvement of the institution as a whole.
DEVELOPING AN EVALUATION SYSTEM: PRIORITIES

- Determine if there is a genuine need for evaluating administrators
- Formulate a task force
- Conduct literature research and gather information on current evaluation practices of comparable institutions
- Discuss the value of evaluation with administrators
- Acquire commitment and support of upper administration
- Obtain broad participation in development of the system to include those who will be evaluated and their supervisors
- Consult legal representatives
- Acknowledge and communicate the limitations of the system
- Conduct a pilot test of the evaluation plan
- Ensure that each administrator to be evaluated has a clearly written position description
- Design the evaluation program to be compatible with the mission and goals of the college
- Plan a time frame for periodically reviewing the evaluation program
GUIDELINES FOR WRITING THE POLICY AND PROCEDURES GOVERNING THE EVALUATION OF ADMINISTRATORS

- Be precise in writing
- Be designed in consideration of the college's mission
- Provide a clearly outlined timetable for all aspects of the evaluation process
- Require that evaluation be continuous rather than periodic
- Insure evaluation process reflects unique aspects of individual manager's responsibilities
- Convey the confidentiality of evaluation results
- Indicate how evaluation results are to be used
- Provide that administrators be given a copy of their evaluation with an opportunity to respond
- Provide adequate protection for due process, including a means to appeal or grieve the results of the evaluation
- Ensure that the results of the evaluation are used to establish an individual growth/development plan
- Include a requirement for evaluation process to be reviewed and analyzed in terms of fairness and reliability
LEGAL ISSUES IN EVALUATING ADMINISTRATORS

- Evaluation and shared governance -- intent
- Privacy -- an "inalienable right"
- Need for confidentiality
  (Consider making a breach of confidentiality the basis for disciplinary action)
- Use of anonymous, unverified opinion
  (as summarized by a liaison)
- Concern about faculty or staff entertaining complaints against administrators
- District and personal liability
- Interviewing issues
- Storing of evaluation materials
- Ambiguity in the language
- Inconsistent treatment
- Existing contracts in relationship to the new procedure
- Workload issues

EVALUATION OF ADMINISTRATORS AT DE ANZA COLLEGE

PHILOSOPHY

Assessment and evaluation are at the core of the work of any academic institution. The evaluation of administrators is a necessary part of the total assessment process since it greatly affects the teaching and learning which takes place there and ultimately finds its expression in student success. The process of evaluation at De Anza College reflects the following philosophical principles and values.

The College evaluates administrative effectiveness in order to recognize and improve the work of its personnel and the total effectiveness of the institution.

The process of evaluation will pave the way for the professional development of the individual administrator. Both the individual being evaluated and those responsible for facilitating the evaluation are to be held accountable in this endeavor. The self evaluation of the administrator and the summary evaluation of the supervisor and committee are, therefore, equally important in fostering good job performance and setting standards for development.

The process of evaluation, as a continued commitment to shared governance, is collegial, and involves the participation of individuals from all groups who work with the administrator.

As institutional needs change and evolve, the skills of the administrator should reflect those changes.

The process of evaluation will support and encourage long-range planning, and will recognize successful performance, administrative skills and abilities. The evaluation process will encourage and support innovation and risk taking that aim to enhance institutional programs and goals.

PURPOSE

The evaluation process at De Anza assists the individual whose work is assessed, and the College as a whole. It causes individuals involved in the process to consider institutional priorities and values, to discuss the relationship between policies and actions, and to clarify and define leadership attributes. The process encourages team building and leads to the improvement of the institution as a whole.

Clear and current position descriptions and role definitions for administrators will be the basis for effective evaluations. Each evaluation process will be tailored to the individual position to the extent possible and conducted for the following primary purposes:

1. to guide professional development for the administrator;
2. to recognize and enhance the effectiveness and productivity of the administrator;
3. to make the administrator and the supervisor aware of the perceptions of those who work directly with the administrator,
4. to develop plans for improvement and innovation;
5. to assist in determination of retention and promotion.
THEORETICAL FRAMEWORK

The proposed administrator evaluation system is based on a conceptual framework which reflects organizational theories proposed by Bolman and Deal in Modern Approaches to Understanding and Managing Organizations, and Roueche and Baker in Access and Excellence and Shared Vision.

Specifically, we drew from approaches to the situational leadership, as well as the transformational leadership, by Roueche and Baker and attended to their basic categories of "Sense of Direction, Structure for Implementation, Sense of Personal Commitment, Vision, Influence Orientation, People Orientation, Motivational Orientation, and Values Orientation".

Bolman and Deal provided us with a different, but related view of the categories for evaluating administrators. We found the four frames included in their system particularly salient and attempted to recognize the value of each to our proposed process, including sections where the evaluation of the structural, human resource, political, and symbolic frames will surface.

More important, we appreciate their reminder that the ideal leader administers her or his work unit by integrating frames effectively and by recognizing the importance of flexibility and adaptability in a leader. The most effective administrators they suggest, draw on whichever frames suit the needs of the administrative "moment."

To some extent, then, this evaluation process should not measure discrete categories. Rather it must focus on an integrated and qualitative assessment of each administrator's values, skills, attitudes, abilities, and attributes, recognizing, as do these theorists, the importance of individuality and adaptability.
PROCESS FOR IMPLEMENTING
ADMINISTRATIVE EVALUATIONS/COMMITTEE MODEL

OVERVIEW:

COMMITTEE PROCESS

1. Administrators needing to be evaluated are identified by De Anza Human Resources Office.
2. Supervisor, in consultation with Administrator to be evaluated, determines evaluation committee.
3. Committee agrees on responsibilities of individuals on committee.
4. Committee meets with administrator and plans process for gathering of information, data, and responses to evaluation instrument.
5. Each representative on the committee explains the process to individuals in his/her target group, distributes questionnaires, gathers and summarizes responses, and interprets the data to whatever extent possible.
6. Simultaneously, the administrator being evaluated prepares a draft of her/his self evaluation.
7. Committee meets without administrator to discuss summary information and a draft of the self-evaluation.
8. Chair of the committee (supervisor) prepares final summary.
11. Both of these items are then sent to the highest level administrator in the service unit's reporting line and from there to be forwarded to the president.
COMMITTEE MODEL:

COMPOSITION OF COMMITTEES

The Evaluation Committee shall be convened and chaired by the individual to whom the administrator reports. The chair, in consultation with the administrator being evaluated, will discuss the appropriateness of the committee composition; a minimum of three levels will be included on the Evaluation Committee, that is, one who supervises the administrator, a peer administrator, and one who is supervised by the administrator. All committees evaluating administrators who are involved in instruction must include a member(s) of the faculty. Faculty members shall be appointed by the Academic Senate, classified members by CSEA, and student representatives by DASB. Where deemed appropriate, the individual being evaluated may also request the inclusion of person(s) outside the campus community. The committee chair shall approve or disapprove the request.

ROLE OF EVALUATION COMMITTEE

The Evaluation Committee shall meet with the administrator to develop a broad-based, sufficiently large and representative group of potential respondents familiar with the work of the administrator. The Committee shall review and analyze the information it has gathered and then meet with the administrator to discuss the draft of the report. If the administrator chooses to re-write a self-evaluation, the Committee may write a response to that self-evaluation.

NATURE OF RESPONDENT GROUPS

The Evaluation Committee shall work with the administrator to develop a broad-based, sufficiently large and representative group of potential responders who are familiar with the work of the administrator. Responses shall be actively sought from students, faculty, and classified staff, as well as other administrators.

RESPONSIBILITY OF PARTICIPANTS

All participants in the process of administrative evaluation are to respect the confidentiality of the process; this respect extends especially to prohibiting the use of any information or evaluation from the administrative review without the consent of the administrator being evaluated. Moreover, all participants are to be informed that the growth and development of the administrator being reviewed is the primary objective of all evaluation.

CONFIDENTIALITY/ANONYMITY

Confidentiality is defined as the right of individuals who provide information and assessment to an Evaluation Committee, not to be required to identify themselves. It is the responsibility of the Committee to ensure that the confidentiality of all respondents is maintained throughout the entire process. Under no circumstances (except legal mandate) will anyone other than members of the review committee be allowed to examine raw data in questionnaires, letters or interviews.

Anonymity is the use of information from sources who do not identify themselves to the Evaluation Committee.
INTERVIEWING PROCEDURES

Interviews may be conducted for the purpose of clarifying information in questionnaires and for obtaining a more in-depth assessment of the performance of the administrator. At least two members of the Committee shall be present at each interview. Members of the Committee shall ensure that fairness is achieved in each interview.

SELF EVALUATIONS

The administrator being reviewed shall prepare a self-evaluation of performance covering each of the evaluation categories (Communication, Leadership, Management Skills, Professional Service and Development, Human Relations and Work Unit Effectiveness) for the review period. The self evaluation shall be written from the perspective of assigned duties and responsibilities.

The development of the self evaluation is an interactive process. The administrator shall meet with the Committee to discuss the written self-evaluation. The administrator shall meet with the Committee at least once more toward the end of the review process to discuss the content of the final report, and after this discussion the administrator shall have the opportunity to re-write a self-evaluation and discuss this revision with the Committee. In any case, the final self evaluation ought to include some definite plan for growth and development that can be evaluated when the administrator is next reviewed.

PRESENTATION OF FINAL REPORT

The final report shall be written by the Committee Chair and shall be shared and discussed with the administrator along with the administrator's final written self evaluation. The final report shall be sent to the highest level administrator in the service unit's reporting line and from there to be forwarded to the president.
PROCESS FOR IMPLEMENTING ADMINISTRATIVE EVALUATIONS/SUPERVISOR MODEL

OVERVIEW:

SUPERVISOR PROCESS

1. Administrators needing to be evaluated are identified by De Anza Human Resources Office.

2. Supervisor, in consultation with Administrator to be evaluated, plan process for gathering or information, data, and responses to evaluation instrument.

3. Supervisor explains the process to individuals in the target groups, distributes questionnaires, gathers and summarizes responses, and interprets the data.

4. Simultaneously, the administrator being evaluated prepares a draft of her/his self-evaluation.

5. Supervisor summarizes information and the self-evaluation draft.

6. Supervisor discusses final report draft with administrator.

7. Supervisor prepares final report; administrator prepares final self-evaluation.

8. Both of these items along with the raw data are then sent to the highest level administrator in the service unit's reporting line and from there to be forwarded to the president.

9. If the evaluation is to be used for consideration of an Administrator Achievement Award, all original questionnaires must accompany the supervisor report and the self evaluation.
SUPERVISOR MODEL

The supervisor in consultation with the administrator being evaluated shall develop a broad-based, sufficiently large and representative group of potential responders who are familiar with the work of the administrator. Responses shall be actively sought, as appropriate, from students, faculty, classified staff and other administrators. The supervisor will be responsible for collecting, interpreting and summarizing responses.

NATURE OF RESPONDENT GROUPS

The supervisor shall work with the administrator to develop a broad-based, sufficiently large and representative group of potential responders who are familiar with the work of the administrator. Responses shall be actively sought from students, faculty, and classified staff, as well as other administrators.

RESPONSIBILITY OF PARTICIPANTS

All participants in the process of an administrative evaluation are to respect the confidentiality of the process; this respect extends especially to prohibiting the use of any information or evaluation from the administrative review without the consent of the administrator being evaluated. Moreover, all participants are to be informed that the growth and development of the administrator being reviewed is the primary objective of all evaluations.

CONFIDENTIALITY/ANONYMITY

Confidentiality is defined as the right of individuals who provide information and assessment to the supervisor, not to be required to identify themselves. It is the responsibility of the supervisor to ensure that the anonymity of all respondents is maintained throughout the entire process.

Anonymity is the use of information from sources who do not identify themselves to the supervisor. Respondents will have the option of signing the questionnaire.

INTERVIEWING PROCEDURES

Interviews may be conducted for the purpose of clarifying information in questionnaires and for obtaining a more in-depth assessment of the performance of the administrator. The supervisor shall ensure that fairness is achieved in each interview.
SELF-EVALUATIONS

The administrator to be reviewed shall prepare a self-evaluation of performance, covering each of the evaluation categories (Communication, Leadership, Management Skills, Professional Service and Development, Human Relations and Work Unit Effectiveness) for the review period. The self evaluation shall be written from the perspective of assigned duties and responsibilities.

The administrator shall meet with the supervisor to discuss the written self-evaluation. The administrator shall meet with the supervisor at least once more toward the end of the review process to discuss the content of the final report, and after this discussion the administrator shall have the opportunity to re-write a self-evaluation and discuss this revision with the supervisor. In any case, the final self evaluation ought to include some definite plan for growth and development that can be evaluated when the administrator is next reviewed.

PRESENTATION OF FINAL REPORT

The final report shall be written by the supervisor and shall be shared and discussed with the administrator. Along with the administrator's final written evaluation, the final report and the accompanying raw data shall be sent to the highest level administrator in the service unit's reporting line and from there to be forwarded to the president.

Dear Colleague:

The evaluation process at De Anza assists the individual whose work is assessed, and the College as a whole. It causes individuals involved in the process to consider institutional priorities and values, to discuss the relationship between policies and actions, and to clarify and define leadership attributes. The process encourages team building and leads to the improvement of the institution as a whole. The purposes of this review are as follows:

2. to recognize and enhance the effectiveness and productivity of the administrator;
3. to make the administrator and the supervisor aware of the perceptions of those who work directly with the administrator;
4. to develop plans for improvement and innovation; and
5. to assist in determination of retention and promotion;

As someone closely associated with the administrator, you have been selected to receive the attached questionnaire. Please read each skill description carefully, then write a narrative evaluation of performance, including examples to support your response and specific recommendations for development. If you are unable to assess the skill in question or have no data upon which to make an assessment, please mark "Not Observed."

Be assured that confidentiality will be observed throughout the process; no individual responses will be shown to the administrator being evaluated. Only the committee (supervisor) will see these data.

The Foothill College Management Evaluation Process was developed over a five-year period beginning in 1987. Many different faculty, staff, and managers participated in this development, which was coordinated by Elizabeth Barkley. Grateful acknowledgement is due to the many different individuals who provided feedback on the eight different drafts of the process, as well as to the Management Evaluation Review Committee, the Academic Senate Management Evaluation Committee, the Classified Senate, and Sharon Miller and Judith Espinola and the people who worked with them in the development of the De Anza Administrative Evaluation Process.

FOOTHILL COLLEGE MANAGEMENT EVALUATION PROCESS

Mission Statement

Evaluations are the primary tool for assessing the effectiveness and excellence of a manager. A management evaluation has six principal goals:

1) to give a manager critical feedback to maximize professional development;
2) to give the institution criteria by which to recognize and enhance the effectiveness and productivity of the manager;
3) to make the manager and the supervisor aware of the perceptions of those who work directly with the manager;
4) to help the manager develop plans for improvement and innovation;
5) to assist in the determination of a manager’s retention and, where appropriate, recommendation for awards and special recognition; and
6) to recognize and commend a manager for good work.

To be most effective, it is very important that Foothill's evaluation process:

1) reflect a commitment to shared governance as demonstrated by participation by all groups of individuals who work for or with the manager;
2) be a responsible and confidential process that protects the rights and privacy of the manager and the evaluation committee as well as the rights and privacy of those providing feedback;
3) result in a constructive and developmental evaluation designed to improve the performance of the manager;
4) demonstrate a commitment to the mission, goals, institutional values, and policies of the District and College;
5) encourage innovation and creativity, and short and long range planning; and
6) provide evidence and recognition of effective leadership; and
7) recognize outstanding performance, productivity and contributions to the College and District.

Overview of Management Evaluation Process

The management evaluation process is two-tiered:

a) Supervisor's Evaluation: Managers shall be evaluated by their immediate supervisor on an annual basis. The evaluation will result in a written summary that will include both an assessment of work performance and a "Development Plan."

b) Comprehensive Evaluation: Managers shall write a self-evaluation and be evaluated by subordinates, peers, and the immediate supervisor on a revolving calendar. Probationary managers shall be evaluated annually for the first two years of service to the College. Continuing managers shall be evaluated every three years and, where possible and appropriate, this evaluation shall coincide with the manager’s application for an Administrative Achievement Award. (The calendar for these evaluations will be published and available in a central location, and every effort will be made to adhere to this calendar.)
Specifics of Management Evaluation Process

SUPERVISOR'S EVALUATION

This evaluation shall be done by the manager's immediate supervisor on an annual basis. It can be fairly brief, but should include a discussion of the specific accomplishments and the performance strengths and weaknesses of the individual during the preceding year.

The Supervisor's Evaluation may address any of the performance qualities identified in the comprehensive evaluation, as well as those characteristics that may be more readily observed from the supervisorial perspective. Examples of performance attributes that may be addressed include, but are not limited to:

* Promptness, thoughtfulness, and accuracy in providing requested information (e.g., FTE requests, budget worksheets, class schedule, etc.).
* Demonstrated ability to work in a positive and effective manner with subordinates, peers, and superiors.
* Demonstrated understanding and ability to responsibly and effectively deal with fiscal matters.
* Willing acceptance of additional assignments.
* Development of both short- and long-range plans.
* Maintenance of productivity, student enrollment, etc.
* Participation in public relations activities (attending ceremonies and special events, serving on community boards, etc.).
* Analysis of the impact of particular changes on the future of his/her area of responsibility.
* Professional and thoughtful selection, orientation, training, and evaluation of area personnel.

In addition to the evaluation of performance, the evaluation shall include a "Development Plan." This plan will be generated by the supervisor and the manager and will include the specific objectives and actions both feel will facilitate growth and help the manager improve performance for the following year. How well these objectives are met will then be the basis for the next annual performance evaluation. The supervisor will discuss the evaluation with the manager, and give the manager an opportunity to respond to the evaluation.

COMPREHENSIVE EVALUATION

Composition of Appraisal Team. This team shall consist of the following:

a) A Chairperson. This shall be the manager's immediate supervisor, although a designee may be appointed by the President.

b) A Peer: This individual shall be selected by the Chairperson in consultation with the manager. (For those management levels in which there are not true "peers," e.g., the President, an appropriate level manager will serve in this capacity.)

c) Subordinates: Two people who report directly to the manager shall serve on the team representing the perspective of the manager's subordinates. Whenever possible, these two people will be selected from people who report directly to the manager, and will consist of one appropriate faculty member and one appropriate classified staff, with care being given to ensuring that the different constituencies are represented. One of the people shall be selected by the Chairperson in consultation with the manager. Faculty representatives shall be confirmed by the Academic Senate, classified representatives shall be confirmed by the Classified Senate.
Evaluation Documents:

a) Manager's Self-Evaluation Survey
b) Peer Evaluation Survey
c) Subordinate Evaluation Survey
d) Job Description

Management Comprehensive Evaluation Process

1) Appraisal Team Appointed by Chairperson in consultation with the manager.

2) Initial meeting of Appraisal Team: At this meeting, committee members agree on responsibilities of individuals on committee and plan process for gathering of information, data, and responses to evaluation surveys.

3) Committee Members Gather Data: Each representative on the committee explains the process to individuals in his/her target group, distributes peer or subordinate surveys, gathers and summarizes responses, and interprets the data to whatever extent possible. The data gathered will be anonymous to ensure frankness and honesty, but it is the responsibility of the committee member gathering the data to ensure the integrity and reliability of the data. It is the Chairperson's responsibility to assess the validity of unsubstantiated and unsigned negative comments and balance negative and positive feedback so that the evaluation is truly accurate, representative, and constructive.

Peer Evaluation Survey: Completed by Peer Representative on the Appraisal Team. The representative may survey all peers the committee feels are appropriate.

Subordinate Evaluation Survey: All contracted staff directly supervised by the manager, or other subordinates selected at the discretion of the committee who may have direct information about the manager's performance (or who can provide an "at-large" perspective) shall be given the opportunity to respond to the survey. Non-contracted staff may be surveyed at the discretion of the committee.

4) Follow-up Meeting of Chairperson and Committee: Committee meets without manager to discuss summary information.

5) Committee Chairperson Meets With Manager: The purpose of this meeting is to review the data gathered by the committee. It is intended to give the Chairperson an opportunity to acquire necessary clarification and give the manager an opportunity to ask questions and to respond to negative feedback with additional information.

6) Manager Prepares Self-Evaluation: The manager being evaluated prepares a draft of her/his self-evaluation and submits it to the Chairperson. The draft of the self-evaluation may be written prior to Step 4 and submitted as one of the data to be discussed in the follow-up meeting of the chairperson and committee.

7) Chairperson Writes Draft Summary Evaluation: The supervisor prepares a draft of the summary evaluation and gives it to the manager being evaluated. The manager may write a response to the evaluation which will be included as part of the evaluation.
8) Supervisor Writes Final Summary Evaluation and Manager Writes Final Self-Evaluation.

9) Summary Evaluation Forwarded: Summary evaluation, along with manager's response, if any, is sent to the highest level administrator in the service unit's reporting line and from there forwarded to the President.

10) Summary Evaluation Placed in Personnel File

Self-evaluation is an important element in the evaluation process because it gives you an opportunity to list accomplishments and identify strengths and weaknesses that may not be included elsewhere in the evaluation. It is also an important component from which to develop goals and objectives for future growth. Please respond to the following questions:

1. In which area of your management responsibilities do you consider yourself strongest?

2. In which area of your management responsibilities do you consider yourself weakest?

3. What are some of the things you would most like to change about your administrative performance? Are there institutional barriers to your making these changes and if so, what are these barriers?

4. Within the constraints (if any) identified above, what can you do to implement each of these changes?

5. What can your institution or supervisor do to help you bring about these changes?

6. Compared to your management peers, how do you assess your performance?

7. What was your most important accomplishment as a manager in the years since your last comprehensive evaluation?

8. Give an over-all list of your accomplishments, activities, committee work, etc. since your last comprehensive evaluation.

Job Specific

At Foothill, different types of managers have distinctly different responsibilities and duties. For example, one of the important duties of an Instructional Division Dean is to review curriculum trends, identify their implications upon the division's goals and objectives, and implement a plan for action. By way of contrast, one of the important duties of a Student Services Division Dean is to supervise student support services. And the responsibilities and duties for both types of Division Deans differ widely from those of the Food Services Manager. This section focuses on the skills, behaviors, and characteristics unique to the level and type of manager being evaluated. Sample questions for the specific positions were developed from various job descriptions and are included as Appendix A, although the managers in each area may wish to develop alternative questions in consultation with their supervisors. Furthermore, the Appraisal Team may develop additional or alternative questions relevant to the specific position at their initial meeting.

Example for Instructional Division Deans:

a. The manager keeps abreast of changes in student/community needs and develops new curriculum and programs to respond to these needs.

| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 |

Optional Individual Specific

A manager may ask for feedback on issues that are relevant to that particular manager at that particular point in time.

Example: In my previous evaluation, several of you commented that I did not speak up frequently enough at management meetings. Since that evaluation, I have attempted to improve in this area. How would you now rate my performance in that area?

| No Improvement | Some Improvement | Substantial Improvement | Now You Talk Too Much |

MEMORANDUM

TO: Leadership 2000 Participants

FROM: Martha Kanter, Vice President of Instruction & Student Services

SUBJECT: Policy & Procedures on Administrator Evaluation of the San Jose/Evergreen Community College District

Attached please find the policy, procedures, employee evaluation survey and training materials used for Administrator Evaluation in the San Jose/Evergreen Community College District. In developing this material, a shared governance process was used, involving faculty, staff and the administration. Major issues in developing this material concerned:

1. The relationship of administrator evaluation to the district and college strategic planning process, with the goal of strengthening the individual performance of administrators while at the same time meeting institutional goals and objectives.

2. Clarification of the roles and responsibilities of each individual participating in the evaluation, including issues of responsibility, authority and confidentiality.

3. Simplicity of the process in order that evaluation remain "doable."

The San Jose/Evergreen Community College District is beginning its second year in using the newly adopted process. The results of first-year implementation were successful, with recommendations to revise further the administrator evaluation survey form and questions, utilizing a generic set of questions rather than questions specific to faculty, staff and the administration.
POLICY
In accordance with Education Code Section 87663, the policy on evaluation of managers, supervisors, and confidential (MSC) employees is designed to recognize excellence in management and supervision, to strengthen performance, to designate areas needing improvement, and to foster the growth and development of MSC employees in meeting the educational needs of faculty, staff and students engaged in the process of teaching and learning. Procedures for the evaluation of MSC employees shall be carried out in accordance with approved district personnel policies and shall observe confidentiality for all employees who participate in the process.

Evaluation of MSC employees shall have as its goal the improvement of district/college instruction and service through the establishment of individual and institutional goals and objectives for MSC employees which are related to approved district/college goals. To ensure the comprehensiveness of MSC employee evaluations, the MSC employee being evaluated and his/her supervisor shall engage in a periodic review and formal evaluation process. Every third year, MSC evaluations shall include a district-approved survey of administrators, faculty and classified staff familiar with the MSC employee’s area(s) of assignment, except for new MSC employees, in which case the survey shall be used during the employee’s first year of employment and every third year thereafter. MSC employee evaluations may also be carried out more frequently if performance warrants.

The immediate supervisor of an MSC employee being evaluated shall be responsible for conducting and completing the evaluation. The Governing Board recognizes the importance of soliciting and incorporating into the evaluation information from constituent groups of faculty, staff, and students concerning an MSC employee’s performance. It shall be the supervisor’s responsibility to solicit written comments from individuals who are directly supervised by or who are indirectly impacted by decisions of the MSC employee being evaluated. Evaluation reports shall be available for review by the Governing Board, Chancellor, and college President for his/her staff.
