This report, prepared for an ongoing assessment on adult literacy and new technologies, profiles 30 major federally funded adult literacy and basic skills programs. The information it contains is based on an analysis of laws and regulations for programs that: (1) have adult literacy or basic skills education as their sole purpose or as one of a limited number of primary purposes; (2) explicitly authorize literacy or basic skills education as a primary means of achieving a related purpose, such as job training or American citizenship; and (3) through departmental directive, have taken the core of the federal role in adult education. The profiles describe programs in terms of the following 15 characteristics: authorizing legislation, federal administering agency, type of literacy program, purpose, authorization and appropriations (fiscal years 1988-1992), literacy-related definitions, target population, administrative structure, agencies delivering services, major activities and services, fiscal and accountability provisions, coordination provisions, technology provisions, private sector provisions, and standards, evaluations, and outcomes. Types of literacy programs described are as follows: adult basic education, adult secondary education, English literacy, workplace literacy, family literacy, volunteer literacy, library literacy, basic skills education, literacy for the incarcerated, and capacity building. Mentioned briefly at the end of the report are 16 other programs that have noteworthy literacy-related components, as well as 6 unfunded programs with primary literacy purposes. (KC)

III. Unfunded Programs with Literacy Missions
INTRODUCTION

Studies of the Federal role in adult literacy that seek to be all-inclusive have found dozens of Federally-funded programs—77 according to the most recent survey—that provide, or permit funds to be used for, adult literacy or basic skills education. Many of the programs cited in these studies do not have literacy as a primary focus; often literacy education is a permissible rather than a required activity, or is of lower priority than a program’s other goals.

The bulk of Federal funding for adult literacy, as well as the most significant Federal policy guidance, comes from a smaller group of programs. For that reason, this report, which profiles major Federally-funded adult literacy and basic skills education programs, takes a narrower approach. This document is based on an analysis of laws and regulations for programs that:

- have adult literacy or basic skills education as their sole purpose or as one of a limited number of primary purposes;
- explicitly authorize literacy or basic skills education as a primary means of achieving a related purpose, such as job training or American citizenship; or
- through Departmental directive, have taken on significant new literacy missions, such as Head Start family literacy programs.

These programs constitute the core of the Federal role in adult education. Together they provide a starting point for understanding the nature, themes, and breadth of the Federal contribution to adult literacy education. The profiles describe programs in terms of the following 15 characteristics:

1. Authorizing legislation
2. Federal administering agency
3. Type of literacy program
4. Purpose
5. Authorization and appropriations (fiscal years 1988 - 1992)
6. Literacy-related definitions
7. Target population
8. Administrative structure
9. Agencies delivering services
10. Major activities and services
11. Fiscal and accountability provisions
12. Coordination provisions
13. Technology provisions
14. Private sector provisions
15. Standards, evaluations, and outcomes

*Judith A. Alamprose and Donna M. Hughes, Study of Federal Funding Sources and Services for Adult Education (Washington, DC: Cosmos Corporation, 1990). This study was a helpful starting point for identifying an initial list of literacy-related programs, from which a subgroup were chosen for further analysis.

Includes statutory and regulatory provisions that deal with the role of business, labor, and private for-profit institutions; does not include references to private nonprofit agencies or volunteer organizations.
Mentioned briefly at the end of the report are other programs that have noteworthy literacy-related components, as well as unfunded authorizations with primary literacy purposes.

NOTES ON METHODOLOGY

1. Purposes, definitions, and other provisions of law are often paraphrased; therefore, users of this document should refer to the statute and regulations for more detailed policy guidance.

2. Public law references generally include only the most recent amendments.

3. Types of literacy programs are categorized as follows:

Adult basic education: Instruction for adults with minimal literacy skills; in grade level equivalencies, grades 0 through 8.9.

Adult secondary education: Instruction for adults who have not achieved proficiency in literacy skills or who lack a high school diploma or equivalent; in grade level equivalencies, grades 9 through 12.9. (See definition below in Adult Education Act Basic Grants profile.)

English literacy: Programs of instruction to help adults with limited English proficiency achieve full competence in the English language.

Workplace literacy: Programs that teach adults literacy skills needed in the workplace.

Family literacy: Programs that combine adult basic skills instruction for parents and other family members with literacy development for children.

Volunteer literacy: Programs that support the development and expansion of literacy efforts conducted by volunteers or with the support of volunteer organizations.

Library literacy: Adult literacy programs located in public libraries or conducted by, or with the assistance of, public libraries.

Basic skills education: Programs to help adults improve their ability to read, write, and comprehend the English language, and to perform basic mathematical computations. As used in this report, basic skills education programs are those in which literacy and basic skills instruction is a means toward achieving another goal, such as job training or economic self-sufficiency.

Literacy for the incarcerated: Programs that serve adult inmates in correctional facilities.

Capacity building: Programs that focus on helping literacy programs, agencies and organizations improve or expand their capacity to offer services, through research, development, dissemination, training, and other activities.

6. LITERACY-RELATED DEFINITIONS:

   Adult: An individual who is at least 16 or beyond the State age of compulsory schooling. (This definition in the AEA is cross-referenced or used in a variety of other Federal laws.)

   Adult education: Services or instruction below the college level for adults:
   (1) who are not enrolled (or required to be enrolled) in secondary school;
   (2) who lack sufficient mastery of basic skills to enable them to function effectively in society or who do not have a high school diploma or its equivalent; and
   (3) whose lack of mastery of basic skills substantially impairs their ability to get and keep employment commensurate with their abilities.

   Adult basic education: Instruction for adults who (1) have minimal competence in reading, writing and computation; or (2) are not sufficiently competent to (a) meet the educational requirements of adult life in the US or (b) speak, read, or write the English language to allow employment commensurate with the adult's real ability. If grade level measures are used, adult basic education includes grades 0 through 8.9.

   Adult secondary education: Instruction for adults who (1) are literate and can function in everyday life but are not proficient; or (2) do not have a certificate of secondary school graduation or its equivalent. If grade levels are used, adult secondary education includes grades 9 through 12.9.
Educationally disadvantaged adult. An adult who (1) demonstrates basic skills equivalent to or below that of students at the 5th grade level; or (2) has been placed in the lowest or beginning level of an adult education program when that program does not use grade equivalencies.

Individual of limited English proficiency. An adult or out-of-school youth who has limited ability in speaking, reading, writing, or understanding the English language and (A) whose native language is a language other than English or (B) who lives in a family or community environment where a language other than English is the dominant language.

English literacy program. A program of instruction designed to help LEP adults or out-of-school youth achieve full competence in the English language.

Literacy. "An individual's ability to read, write, and speak in English, compute, and solve problems, at levels of proficiency necessary to function on the job and in society, to achieve one's goals, and to develop one's knowledge and potential."

7. TARGET POPULATION: Adults with less than a high school education, with preference to educationally disadvantaged adults at or below the 5th grade level. Incarcerated and other institutionalized adults. Public housing residents.

8. ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE: The Secretary distributes formula grants to States based on numbers of adults without a high school diploma.

States distribute funds to local eligible agencies (see item #9 below), based on past effectiveness, degree of coordination with other community services, and commitment to serve adults most in need of literacy services. States must give priority to programs that serve educationally disadvantaged adults.

The 1991 NLA amended the AEA basic grant intrastate distribution provisions to provide "direct and equitable access to all Federal funds" by a variety of local service providers (see item #9 below). SEAs that fail to assure this access are disqualified from funding.

States must also make competitive "Gateway Grants" to public housing authorities for literacy programs and related activities.

9. AGENCIES DELIVERING SERVICES: LEAs, correctional education agencies, CBOs, public or private nonprofit agencies, postsecondary institutions, institutions serving educationally disadvantaged adults, and other institutions able to provide literacy services to adults and families.

Private for-profit agencies may carry out programs (as part of a consortium with public or private nonprofit groups) if they can make a significant contribution.

Public housing authorities carry out Gateway Grant programs.

10. MAJOR ACTIVITIES AND SERVICES: Adult basic education, adult secondary education, bilingual adult education or ESL, and support services (such as child care and transportation).

Basic grants activities are subject to several set-asides and limitations:

*This definition, contained in the AEA regulations in 34 CFR 460.4, does not appear in the AEA itself but is taken from the NLA.
• No more than 20% of a State's basic grant may be used for adult secondary education programs.
• At least 10% must be used for programs for incarcerated or other institutionalized adults.
• At least 15% must be used for training teachers, volunteers, and administrators and for special projects using innovative instructional methods or promoting coordination.

11. FISCAL AND ACCOUNTABILITY PROVISIONS:

Administrative costs. State administrative costs are limited to 5% or $50,000, whichever is greater. Local administrative costs are limited to 5% (subject to negotiation with the SEA).

Matching requirements. The Federal share for FY 1992 and beyond is 75%.

Maintenance of effort. States must maintain fiscal effort per student from State and local funds. (In exceptional circumstances, the Secretary may waive this requirement for one year.)

Supplement not supplant. Federal funds must supplement and not supplant the amount of State and local funding for the purposes of the Act.

Documents. States must submit a four-year State plan, a State application, and an annual report to the Secretary.

12. COORDINATION PROVISIONS:

State plan review. SEAs must submit their adult education State plans to the State vocational education board, the State job training coordinating council, and the State postsecondary board, for review and comment.

Joint planning. State plans must propose methods for joint planning and program coordination with a range of other Federal and State programs (including job training, vocational education, immigration, vocational rehabilitation, special education, Indian education, higher education, and VISTA programs).

Advisory council. The optional State advisory council on adult education and literacy includes representatives from the major State agencies administering literacy-related programs, and is charged with advising on comprehensive State planning, State reporting requirements, and State and local program coordination.

Expansion through service coordination. State plans must describe how the adult education delivery system will be expanded through coordination among a range of local agencies (public schools, businesses, unions, libraries, IHEs, public health authorities, employment and training programs, antipoverty programs, homeless programs, and community and volunteer organizations).

Volunteer coordination. State plans must also describe how they will use volunteers, especially VISTA Literacy Corps volunteers, to supplement the efforts of paid instructors.

LEP program coordination. Programs for LEP adults must be coordinated with bilingual adult programs under the Federal Bilingual Education Act and the Perkins Vocational Education Act.

Incarcerated education. Under the 10% set-aside for inmates and institutionalized adults, the State is encouraged to coordinate educational services with agencies that provide post-release services to criminal offenders. States may also use funds under this set-aside to offer cooperative education and training programs with educational institutions, CBOs, and businesses.

Special projects. Under the 15% set-aside for training and special projects, States may support adult education programs "that have unusual promise in promoting a comprehensive or coordinated approach to the problems of adults with educational deficiencies."

Local coordination. In determining which local projects to support, SEAs must consider the degree to which applicants will coordinate with other literacy and social services in the community. Local applicants must describe the cooperative arrangements they have made with business, industry, voluntary literacy organizations and others to avoid duplication of services. The law particularly mentions coordination with Federal JTPA, vocational education, vocational rehabilitation, special education, Indian education, higher education, and VISTA programs.

Public housing agencies receiving Gateway Grants must consult with other local adult education service providers.

13. TECHNOLOGY PROVISIONS: No special provisions

14. PRIVATE SECTOR PROVISIONS:

State plan input. Representatives of the private sector (as well as the public sector) must help develop the State plan.

State council. The optional State advisory council includes private sector representatives and is charged with advising the Governor and State agencies on public-private partnerships and other private sector initiatives to improve adult education.

15. STANDARDS, EVALUATIONS, AND OUTCOMES:

Secretarial responsibilities. By July 25, 1992, the Secretary must develop indicators of program quality and success in student recruitment, retention, and improvement of literacy skills.

Gateway Grants. At least every two years the Secretary must evaluate the Gateway Grants program and report the results to Congress.

SEA goals and quality indicators. In their State plans, SEAs must set measurable goals for improving literacy levels throughout the State. By July 25, 1993, each State must develop program quality indicators to be used to evaluate local program effectiveness in recruiting, retaining, and improving the literacy skills of participants.

State evaluation responsibilities. States must conduct program reviews and evaluations of all programs funded under the AEA; at least 20% of local programs must be evaluated each year, measuring success against the State's program quality indicators. States must use evaluation findings to identify program that are not meeting their goals.

Advisory council. The optional state advisory council is charged with developing reporting requirements and standards for outcomes, performance measures, and program effectiveness in State adult education programs. These standards must be consistent with those proposed by the Federal Interagency Task Force on Literacy.

8. ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE:

   Appropriations under $50 million. When appropriations for this program are less than $50 million (as they have been since the program's inception), the Secretary makes competitive grants directly to eligible partnerships. Partnerships that include small businesses receive priority.

   $50 million and over. If appropriations equal at least $50 million, the Secretary makes formula grants to States, proportionate to their shares of AEA basic grants; States in turn fund eligible partnerships.

   $25 million and over. If appropriations equal at least $25 million, then the Secretary reserves $5 million for competitive grants to unions and businesses to establish large-scale national strategies in workforce literacy. (This program has not been funded.)
9. AGENCIES DELIVERING SERVICES:

Regular program. Whether the program is operated as a national or a State-administered grant program, eligible partnerships must include at least one partner from each of two groups:
1. business, industry, labor organizations, or private industry councils; and
2. SEAs, LEAs, IHEs, schools, employment and training agencies, or CBOs.

The partnership that receives the grant may also make sub-grants to local partnerships that may include all of the above, plus area vocational schools.

National strategies. If the national strategies program receives funding, priority goes to programs that forge cooperative arrangements with other literacy and basic skills training service providers.

13. TECHNOLOGY PROVISIONS:

- Funds may be used to help update workers’ basic skills to meet changes in technology. The Secretary may give competitive priority to projects in industries retooling with high technology.

- In making grants under the National Strategies program (as yet unfunded), the Secretary may consider whether applications have an interactive video curriculum. National strategies grants may be used to establish "technology-based learning environments"; however, according to the regulations, the Secretary may limit the amount of funds that may be used for this purpose, including amounts for hardware and software.

14. PRIVATE SECTOR PROVISIONS: Business, industry, labor organizations, or private industry councils must have a primary role in developing and implementing these programs.

- CBOs or other nonprofit organizations of demonstrated quality, applying in collaboration with an LEA; or
- Indian tribes and tribal organizations.

Over $50 million. When appropriations exceed $50 million (as they have in FY 1992), the Secretary allocates funds to SEAs using the regular Chapter 1 formula. SEAs in turn make competitive grants to eligible entities within their State, using Federal selection criteria or other criteria described in their State plans.

*Appropriations are for the entire program; specific amounts for adult literacy are not available.
Review panels. Whether the program operates as a national or State competition, grantees are selected by review panels of experts in relevant fields, including adult education professionals and community-based literacy organizations.

Priorities. Federal or State review panels must give priority to applicants in areas of high need and that demonstrate the ability to operate an effective program.

12. COORDINATION PROVISIONS:

     - FY 90: $5,042,000
     - FY 89: $4,940,000
     - FY 88: 0

6. LITERACY-RELATED DEFINITIONS: No special provisions.

7. TARGET POPULATION: Undergraduate students tutor educationally or economically disadvantaged adults and children. Priority for services goes to illiterate parents (especially single parents) of educationally or economically disadvantaged elementary school students. At the elementary/secondary level, priority goes to disadvantaged children in Chapter 1, ESEA programs.

8. ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE: The Secretary makes grants of up to $50,000 for a two-year period to IHEs. The higher education institution arranges with public community agencies (including public schools, Head Start programs, and others) to provide student tutors who will work in a community site.

9. AGENCIES DELIVERING SERVICES: IHEs are eligible for grants if they have conducted community service activities in the past. (The Secretary may waive this requirement in certain situations.) Public community agencies are eligible to work together with IHEs if they are established agencies with established instructional programs.

10. MAJOR ACTIVITIES AND SERVICES:
    - Services students provide: Volunteer tutoring.
    - Services student tutors receive: Student tutors participate in college courses that combine tutoring experience with other academic disciplines, such as social science, economics, and education. To receive credit for these courses, students must perform at least 60 hours voluntary tutoring service per term.
    - Allowable expenditures: IHEs may use grants to cover the costs of participating in the program, pay stipends to student coordinators, provide technical assistance, and disseminate information.
11. FISCAL AND ACCOUNTABILITY PROVISIONS: Tutoring services must be supplementary to existing programs, offered in a structured classroom setting, and implemented under the supervision of qualified personnel.

12. COORDINATION PROVISIONS: The program is based on collaboration between an IHE and a public community agency.

13. TECHNOLOGY PROVISIONS: No special provisions.

14. PRIVATE SECTOR PROVISIONS: No special provisions.

15. STANDARDS, EVALUATIONS, AND OUTCOMES: At his or her discretion, the Secretary may use a portion of the appropriation to evaluate the programs.

- pay stipends to participants; and
- offer a range of supportive services.

11. FISCAL AND ACCOUNTABILITY PROVISIONS: Projects must have a management plan.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES AND BASIC SKILLS TRAINING PROGRAM (JOBS)

1. LEGISLATION: Title II of the Family Support Act of 1988, PL 100-485, which created a new Part F of Title IV of the Social Security Act.

2. FEDERAL ADMINISTERING AGENCY: HHS

3. TYPE OF LITERACY PROGRAM: Adult basic education, adult secondary education, English literacy

4. PURPOSE: To revise the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program to ensure that needy families with children obtain the education, training, and employment they need to avoid long-term welfare dependence.

5. FUNDING LEVELS

Authorization: JOBS is a "capped" entitlement program, with maximum funding of:

- $1 billion for FY 1992
- $1 billion for FY 1993
- $1.1 billion for FY 1994
- $1.3 billion for FY 1995 and
- $1 billion for FY 1996 and each succeeding fiscal year.

Child care funds for JOBS participants are authorized separately, as an open-ended entitlement.

Appropriations:

- FY 92: $1,000,000,000*
- FY 91: $1,000,000,000*
- FY 90: $350,000,000*
- FY 89: $91,400,000* (for predecessor Work Incentive program)
- FY 88: $92,551,000* (for predecessor Work Incentive program)

6. LITERACY-RELATED DEFINITIONS: The regulations include the several relevant definitions:

- Basic literacy level is defined in terms of a minimum grade equivalent level of 8.9. States may set higher basic literacy levels in their JOBS plans.

- Limited English proficiency means limited ability in speaking, reading, writing, or understanding the English language by a person whose native language is a language other than English or by a person who lives in a family or community where a language other than English is the dominant language.

7. TARGET POPULATION: JOBS targets resources to AFDC recipients most at risk for long-term welfare dependence.

*Appropriations are for entire program, excluding separate appropriations for child care; specific amount for basic skills and education services is not available.
Priorities. Priority for JOBS services goes to:

- Custodial parents under 24 who have not completed high school and who have little or no work experience.
- Individuals who have received public assistance for at least 36 of the last 60 months.
- Members of a family who will lose AFDC eligibility within two years because the youngest child will no longer be dependent.

Volunteer participants must be given priority within target groups.

Mandated participation. To the extent that Federal and State resources permit, States must require most custodial parents under 20 who have not completed high school to participate in an educational activity. States may require full-time participation for certain adult and adolescent AFDC clients, if child care is available.

8. ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE:

State agency roles. The State welfare agency administers the program, but must coordinate and consult with other State agencies (see Coordination Provisions below).

Allotments. States receive allotments from the Secretary of HHS, based on their allocations under the predecessor WIN programs, plus their relative proportion of average monthly AFDC recipient counts.

Reductions in allocations. For a State to receive its full amount of available funding, it must:

- be able to meet State matching requirements (see item #11 below);
- expend 55% of its JOBS funding on Federally-established priority groups; and
- increase participation by Federally-mandated percentages (see item #11 below).

Program phase-in. All States must have the JOBS program available Statewide by October 1, 1991.

9. AGENCIES DELIVERING SERVICES: The State welfare agency may carry out programs directly or through arrangements with JTPA administrative entities, SEAs and LEAs, and other public and private agencies and organizations, including CBOs.

10. MAJOR ACTIVITIES AND SERVICES: States have flexibility to determine the mix of education and training services they offer, but they must provide:

- Educational activities, including high school or equivalent education, basic and remedial education to achieve a minimum grade equivalent level of 8.9, and education for LEP individuals;
- Job skills training;
- Job readiness training activities;
- Job development and job placement; and
- At least two of the following—(1) job search, (2) on-the-job training, (3) work supplementation programs, and (4) community work experience.

States may also offer postsecondary education and other education, training, and employment activities.

The Act authorizes a range of supportive services, including child care. States must authorize transitional child care for children under age 13 when necessary for the parent to accept or keep a job.
or to participate in JOBS or other approved education and training. (Requirements and funding authorizations for child care are contained in Title III of the Family Support Act.)

Regulations state that JOBS funds should not be used to cover costs of other services (including adult literacy services) for which welfare recipients are already eligible.

11. FISCAL AND ACCOUNTABILITY PROVISIONS:

Fiscal requirements.

- JOBS funds cannot be used to supplant State and local expenditures or meet the normal costs of public education.
- States must maintain State and local expenditures for similar purposes at the FY 1986 level.
- States must match Federal funds by different rates (generally 50%), depending on type of costs.
- States that do not meet matching, participation and targeting requirements will not receive their full allotment of Federal funds.

Reporting requirements. States must submit monthly caseload data to HHS and comply with uniform reporting requirements established by the Secretary.

Client requirements. Programs must conduct a needs assessment for each participant, develop an individual employability plan, and keep individual case records.

Participation requirements.

- States are required to meet the following rates for satisfactory participation in a JOBS program: 11% of the non-exempt caseload in FY 1992 and FY 1993; 15% in FY 1994; and 20% in FY 1995.
- State allocations and reimbursements to individual programs are based on participation rates, based on the average monthly number of individuals whose combined and average weekly hours of scheduled participation equal or exceed 20 hours.
- An individual is considered to be "satisfactorily participating" if she attends 75% of scheduled activities.

12. COORDINATION PROVISIONS:

Federal. HHS must consult on a continuing basis with DOL and ED to assure maximum coordination of education and training services. HHS, ED, and DOL jointly support and oversee contracts to provide technical assistance to States.

State. State welfare agencies must coordinate JOBS programs with relevant services provided by other State agencies. In particular, States must ensure coordination of JOBS programs with JTPA, the Adult Education Act, and the Perkins Vocational Education Act and must coordinate child care for JOBS clients with a range of preschool and early childhood programs. The Governor must assure programs are coordinated with JTPA and other relevant employment, training, and education programs.
State consultation and plan review. The State welfare agency must consult with the SEA, the State employment service, and the State agencies that administer JTPA, child care, and public housing. The State job training coordination council and the SEA review the State plan for JOBS.

Local program coordination. Coordination with PICs and local education agencies is encouraged. Local welfare agencies must consult with PICs.

13. TECHNOLOGY PROVISIONS: Funding is available for States to design and implement automated data systems that interface with AFDC management systems.

14. PRIVATE SECTOR PROVISIONS: State welfare agencies must use PICs to identify and advise on the types of jobs available in the SDA, and must provide training for those types of jobs.

15. STANDARDS, EVALUATIONS, AND OUTCOMES:

Satisfactory progress. JOBS regulations provide guidance on standards for determining satisfactory progress in a JOBS education or training component (which is not the same as satisfactory participation). To determine whether participants are making satisfactory progress in an education component, an educational institution or program must develop a consistent standard of progress that is:

- based on a written policy approved by the State welfare agency and by the SEA or LEA;
- periodically measured over a period of less than a year;
- includes a qualitative measure (such as a grade point average); and
- includes a quantitative measure (such as a reasonable time limit by which a student is expected to complete her studies).

The standard may provide for a probationary period or make allowance for mitigating circumstances. The regulations include similar requirements for training components.

Use of satisfactory progress standards. Programs must begin using standards for satisfactory progress by October 1, 1992, or earlier if available. Assessments of satisfactory progress are used to determine placements, assignments to self-initiated education or training, approval of education in non-JOBS areas, provision of supportive services, and for other purposes.

Federal performance standards. By October 1, 1993, the Secretary of HHS must submit to Congress outcome-based performance standards that consider such factors as increased earnings and reduced welfare dependence.

National evaluation. HHS and ED are conducting an evaluation of the impact of innovative education approaches on JOBS clients.
STATE LEGALIZATION IMPACT ASSISTANCE GRANTS (SLIAG)

2. FEDERAL ADMINISTERING AGENCY: HHS

3. TYPE OF LITERACY PROGRAM: English literacy, basic skills education, and adult secondary education

4. PURPOSE: Among the significant changes in US immigration policy wrought by IRCA was its provision granting "amnesty"—or lawful resident status—to a large group of aliens who had been living illegally in the US for a certain time period or who were involved in certain types of agricultural work. To help States and localities defray some of the costs of providing public assistance, public health assistance, educational services, and other services to this group, IRCA authorized SLIAG grants.

5. FUNDING LEVELS

Authorization: The $2 billion authorization for SLIAG technically expired at the end of FY 1992, although States have authority to carry over funds through FY 1994.

6. LITERACY-RELATED DEFINITIONS: No special provisions.

7. TARGET POPULATION: "Eligible legalized aliens" (ELAs) are those adults and children granted lawful resident status under IRCA's "amnesty" provisions. ELAs remain eligible for SLIAG services for five years from the date they were granted lawful temporary resident status.

8. ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE: The Secretary of HHS allots funds to States using a formula based on numbers of eligible legalized aliens and the amount of costs a State is likely to incur for reimbursable services. Payments for allowable educational services go to the SEA and may not exceed either the actual cost of services or $500 per participant per year, whichever is less. States determine how to allocate funds to local agencies serving ELAs.

9. AGENCIES DELIVERING SERVICES: SEAs may provide educational services through LEAs and other public or private nonprofit organizations, including CBOs of demonstrated effectiveness.

10. MAJOR ACTIVITIES AND SERVICES: SLIAG covers expenses for public assistance, public health assistance, educational services, outreach, and certain administrative costs. Each State must use at least 10% of its SLIAG funds for each of three categories—public assistance, public health assistance, and education—unless the full 10% is not required.

Reimbursable education services for adults include all the services authorized under the Adult Education Act, such as English language instruction, basic skills instruction, and GED education, as well as citizenship skills instruction and ancillary services. SLIAG also covers basic and supplementary education programs for ELA children in elementary and secondary schools.

11. FISCAL AND ACCOUNTABILITY PROVISIONS: SLIAG does not cover costs already reimbursed or covered by another Federal program. States must designate a single agency of contact for administering the program. SEAs cannot use more than 1.5% of SLIAG education-related funds for administrative costs. States must keep sufficient records for Federal reporting, monitoring and evaluation. States must submit an end-of-year financial report.

12. COORDINATION PROVISIONS: No special provisions.

13. TECHNOLOGY PROVISIONS: No special provisions.

14. PRIVATE SECTOR PROVISIONS: No special provisions.

15. STANDARDS, EVALUATIONS, AND OUTCOMES: Before eligible aliens can become permanent residents, section 245A of the Immigration and Nationality Act requires them to have a minimal understanding of English and a knowledge and understanding of US history and government, or to be making satisfactory progress toward that goal in courses recognized by the Attorney General. The Department has interpreted satisfactory progress to mean fulfillment of 40 hours of adult literacy and citizenship instruction.
REFUGEE RESETTLEMENT PROGRAM

1. LEGISLATION: Immigration and Nationality Act, section 412, as added by the Refugee Act of 1980, PL 96-212 and amended by PL 99-605 and PL 100-525.

2. FEDERAL ADMINISTERING AGENCY: HHS

3. TYPE OF LITERACY PROGRAM: English literacy

4. PURPOSE: To help eligible refugees resettle effectively and achieve economic self-sufficiency, through the provision of public assistance, medical assistance, social and employment services, and English language instruction.

5. FUNDING LEVELS

Authorization: A permanent authorization of such sums as necessary.

6. LITERACY-RELATED DEFINITIONS: No special provisions

7. TARGET POPULATION: Refugees, asylees, Cuban and Haitian entrants, and certain Amerasians from Vietnam as defined by the Immigration and Nationality Act. To receive employment and education services, a refugee must be 16 or older and not enrolled full-time in an elementary or secondary school.

8. ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE: After retaining a portion of the funds for national discretionary activities, the Secretary makes allocations to States based on their relative share of the total number of eligible refugees who have been in the US three years of less. States receive two types of quarterly grants: (a) grants for cash and medical assistance; and (b) grants for social services. (Funds for English language instruction come from this latter pot of money). The Governor designates a single State agency to administer the entire refugee resettlement program.

9. AGENCIES DELIVERING SERVICES: Public and private nonprofit agencies.

10. MAJOR ACTIVITIES AND SERVICES:

Range of services. Social services grants to States may be used for employment services, employability assessment, on-the-job training, English language instruction, vocational training, day care, case management and other social adjustment services. The law gives priority, however, to employment services and English language training. Federal regulations further require that if more than 55% of the eligible refugees in the State are receiving public assistance, then the State must use at least 85% of its refugee social services grant for employability services, which are defined to include English language instruction.

Restrictions on education services. The law and regulations place certain restrictions on the type and times of English language instruction funded under this program. Instruction must emphasize English "as it relates to obtaining and retaining a job" and must be provided outside normal working hours, to the fullest extent feasible, so that it does not interfere with job search and employment.

11. FISCAL AND ACCOUNTABILITY PROVISIONS:

- Federal funds may be used for reasonable administrative costs.
- States must maintain records on eligibility, services, and costs and must transmit performance and financial reports.

12. COORDINATION PROVISIONS: States must designate a program coordinator to ensure coordination of public and private resources. In providing social services, States are discouraged by regulation from duplicating services that a resettlement agency is already required to provide for the refugees it sponsors. Local volunteer agencies are encouraged to cooperate closely with State and local governments.

13. TECHNOLOGY PROVISIONS: No special provisions.

14. PRIVATE SECTOR PROVISIONS: No special provisions.

15. STANDARDS, EVALUATIONS, AND OUTCOMES: States must evaluate program operations at the local level.
HEAD START (FAMILY LITERACY INITIATIVE)

2. FEDERAL ADMINISTERING AGENCY: HHS

3. TYPE OF LITERACY PROGRAM: Family literacy

4. PURPOSE: Head Start provides a wide range of services to low-income children and their families, aimed at breaking the cycle of poverty and preparing children educationally and socially for school. Although families have always been important participants in Head Start, recent Departmental initiatives have placed greater emphasis on family literacy as an integral part of the program.

5. FUNDING LEVELS

Authorization: $4,273,000,000 for FY 1992, $ 5,924,000,000 for FY 1993, and $7,660,000,000 for FY 1994.

6. LITERACY-RELATED DEFINITIONS: No special provisions.

7. TARGET POPULATION: Children aged 3 to 5 and their families. At least 90% of the children served in each Head Start program must be from low-income families. At least 10% must be children with disabilities. Parents of Head Start children are the target of new family literacy initiatives.

8. ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE: HHS determines the total amounts available by State using a poverty-based formula. The Department then makes direct grants to eligible agencies in each State.

9. AGENCIES DELIVERING SERVICES: Community-based nonprofit organizations and local educational agencies receive direct Federal grants and operate programs.

10. MAJOR ACTIVITIES AND SERVICES:

In general. Head Start provides a comprehensive program of education, health, and social services to participating children. Parent involvement has always been a cornerstone of this comprehensive approach. Parents participate in a variety of planned parent activities, including training in child development and learning reinforcement skills, and employment as Head Start staff.

Family literacy. Recently HHS undertook several initiatives aimed at encouraging Head Start programs to give greater attention to the literacy needs of parents.

- The Family Literacy Initiative, implemented in 1991, calls upon every Head Start program to make family literacy efforts a priority. Rather than creating separate literacy components, programs are encouraged to integrate family literacy activities into their regular practices through such means as assigning a staff person responsibility for family literacy, increasing families' access to literacy materials, supporting parents in their roles as children's first teachers, and referring parents to adult education services. To be eligible in the first year, Head Start grantees had to propose plans to promote family literacy; in subsequent years, they do not have to resubmit their plans but will continue to receive additional funding for this priority.

- To achieve the goal of integrating family literacy into every program, the Department provided $9 million in Quality Improvement funding to every Head Start grantee in FY 1991. These funds were to be used to begin implementing the family literacy plans each program was asked to develop under the aforementioned Family Literacy Initiative. For the current year, the additional quality improvement funding will be distributed as part of the regular Head Start grant, with the expectation that projects will continue their family literacy efforts.

- Since FY 1990, HHS has used a portion of the Secretary's discretionary money to fund two cycles of Family Service Center Demonstration grants to a competitively-selected group of Head Start grantees. The purpose of these three-year pilot grants is to demonstrate ways that Head Start agencies, working with other community groups, can deal with the problems of adult illiteracy, substance abuse, and unemployment among Head Start families. Funding for this effort was $10.4 million for FY 1991.

- The Comprehensive Child Development Centers Demonstration Program provides grants to Head Start agencies, CBOs, and other social service agencies for projects that provide comprehensive health, nutrition, child development, child care, and other support services to low-income preschool children and their families. Services for parents and other family members include education in parenting and family literacy and basic skills training referral. FY 1992 funding for this entire program is $24 million.

11. FISCAL AND ACCOUNTABILITY PROVISIONS: The Federal share for Head Start programs is limited to 80% (with waivers in some circumstances). Local administrative costs may not exceed 15%.

12. COORDINATION PROVISIONS: Under the Family Literacy Initiative, Head Start grantees are encouraged to collaborate with existing literacy programs in their communities and to connect existing literacy programs with families who might otherwise be served ineffectively.

The Family Service Center demonstration program likewise aims to develop partnerships between Head Start agencies and existing family service organizations, including literacy providers.

13. TECHNOLOGY PROVISIONS: No special provisions.

14. PRIVATE SECTOR PROVISIONS: No special provisions.
15. STANDARDS, EVALUATIONS, AND OUTCOMES: Head Start programs must meet performance standards in the areas of education, health, social services, and parent involvement. The Secretary regularly evaluates programs.

8. ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE: The Department of Labor establishes the Collaborative in-house.

9. AGENCIES DELIVERING SERVICES: This is not a direct service program. The beneficiaries are businesses and labor organizations.

10. MAJOR ACTIVITIES AND SERVICES: Among other duties, the Collaborative will:

- identify the best practices and successful small-business models in workplace literacy;
- inform businesses and unions of research findings and exemplary curricula, instructional techniques, and training models;
- provide technical assistance to help businesses assess worker needs, implement workforce literacy programs, and evaluate programs; and
- conduct regional and state small business meetings on workforce literacy.

11. FISCAL AND ACCOUNTABILITY PROVISIONS: No special provisions.

*In cooperation with other agencies, DOL is developing a new initiative to provide technical assistance to small and medium-sized businesses to help them cope with a variety of work restructuring issues. This initiative will encompass the functions of the National Workforce Collaborative and several other related functions. For FY 1993, the DOL budget proposes $1.2 million for this and other DOL duties under the NLA.
12. COORDINATION PROVISIONS: The Collaborative will:

- at the Federal level, cooperate with the National Institute for Literacy and other Federal centers.

13. TECHNOLOGY PROVISIONS: The Collaborative will:

- inform businesses and unions about the use of technology as a workplace training tool; and
- produce video materials to support its technical assistance and demonstration efforts.

14. PRIVATE SECTOR PROVISIONS: The private sector is the primary target of all the Collaborative’s activities.

2. FEDERAL ADMINISTERING AGENCY: DOL

3. TYPE OF LITERACY PROGRAM: Basic skills education.

6. LITERACY-RELATED DEFINITIONS: No special provisions.

7. TARGET POPULATION: Economically disadvantaged youth aged 16-21 and adults 22 and over. Economic disadvantage is defined as a family income at or below the higher of the Federal poverty line or 70% of the Bureau of Labor Statistics' lower living standard. With certain exceptions, States must use at least 40% of the funds for youth programs. Up to 10% of the funds may be used for adults or youth who are not economically disadvantaged but have encountered other employment barriers.

8. ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE:

Grants to States. The Secretary of Labor distributes block grants to State Governors using a formula based on unemployment and poverty counts. States retain 22% of the funds for Statewide activities and distribute the remaining 78% to local SDAs.

Governor's 8%. Eight percent of State allocation (which counts toward the 22%) are reserved for the Governor's use for State education programs, as described below.

Role of PICs. Private industry councils (PICs) establish policy for and oversee the programs in the SDAs. In partnership with local government, the PICs select an entity to administer the program locally--either the PIC itself, a general local governmental unit, a private nonprofit organization or corporation, or any other entity they agree on.

9. AGENCIES DELIVERING SERVICES: PICs select agencies or organizations to deliver services, based on their demonstrated performance. Appropriate education agencies in the SDA must be given the opportunity to provide educational services unless alternative organizations would be more effective.

*Appropriations are for the entire program. The amount for basic skills is not available.
10. MAJOR ACTIVITIES AND SERVICES:

Basic program. Title II-A authorizes a range of job training, counseling, job search, work-related, and support services. Funds may also be used for:

- "remedial education and basic skills training"; and
- "literacy training and bilingual training."

Governor's 8%. The Governor provides funds to any State educational agency to:

- serve eligible participants through cooperative agreements with SDAs and LEAs;
- coordinate education and training services; and
- provide literacy training to youth and adults, dropout prevention and re-entry services, or a Statewide school-to-work transition program.

11. FISCAL AND ACCOUNTABILITY PROVISIONS:

All JTPA. The Governors must ensure proper fiscal control, accounting, and recordkeeping for all JTPA programs.

Governor's 8%. The State agency and local educational agencies involved in these programs must match Federal funds dollar-for-dollar.

Local programs. SDAs must submit an annual report to the Governor.

12. COORDINATION PROVISIONS:

Non-duplication. JTPA funds may not be used to duplicate facilities or services already available in an area from Federal, State, or local sources, unless alternative services would be more effective.

Governor's coordination plan. The Governor prepares a plan that establishes criteria for coordinating JTPA programs with State and local education, training, public assistance, rehabilitation, postsecondary, economic development, homeless, and other programs. This plan may include jointly-funded, Statewide services from JTPA and other Federal, State, and local employment programs.

Governor's 8% set-aside. Coordination with education agencies and services is the primary purpose of this set-aside.

State job training coordinating council. The council reviews the plans of all State agencies that provide employment, training and related services and comments annually on the State's vocational education programs.

Local plan. The SDA's job training plan must be reviewed by local educational and other public agencies. The local plan must also describe methods for complying with the coordination criteria in the Governor's plan.

PIC. The PIC includes representatives of all educational agencies in the SDA.

13. TECHNOLOGY PROVISIONS: Title II-A funds may support the "use of advanced learning technology for education, job preparation, and skills training." JTPA permits funds to be used to buy commercially available training packages, including advanced learning technology without a cost breakdown of the components, if they are bought competitively and include performance criteria.

14. PRIVATE SECTOR PROVISIONS:

PIC role. A majority of PIC members must be business representatives. As such, the private sector has major responsibility for administering and overseeing the JTPA programs.

State job training coordinating council. Thirty percent of the members of this State advisory council must represent business and industry.

15. STANDARDS, EVALUATIONS, AND OUTCOMES:

Federal standards. The Secretary of Labor has developed performance standards for Title II of JTPA. For adults, these include placements and retention in unsubsidized employment, increases in earnings, and reductions in welfare dependency. For youth they include the above factors, plus attainment of employment competencies, basic skills improvement, school completion, and enrollment in other training or apprenticeship programs or enlistment in the Armed Forces.

State standards. States may prescribe standards that vary from Federal standards, taking into account economic, geographic and demographic factors, the characteristics of the population served, and the type of services provided.

6. LITERACY-RELATED DEFINITIONS: The Crime Control Act of 1990 defines "functional literacy" as an 8th grade equivalence in reading and math on a nationally-recognized standardized test, or functional competency on a nationally-recognized criterion-referenced test. As noted above, Federal regulations set a higher standard of a high school diploma or GED.

7. TARGET POPULATION:

Literacy program. All inmates in Federal correctional institutions who do not have a high school or equivalent diploma (with exceptions for certain detainees or for good cause) are required to attend an adult literacy program for a minimum of 120 days or until a GED is achieved, whichever comes first.

ESL program. LEP inmates must attend an ESL program until they function at the 8th grade level of competency skills, as measured by a score of 225 on the Comprehensive Adult Student Assessment System (CASAS) test.

*Bureau estimates of amounts expended on literacy and ESL are based on the following assumptions about the percentage of the education budget spent for literacy each year: FY 88 - 25%; FY 89 - 25%; FY 90 - 30%; FY 91 - 40%; FY 92 - 40%. The increasing percentages are due to implementation of mandatory GED and ESL literacy standards.
ESL program. LEP inmates must attend an ESL program until they function at the 8th grade level of competency skills, as measured by a score of 225 on the Comprehensive Adult Student Assessment System (CASAS) test.

8. ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE: The Bureau of Prisons in the Department of Justice oversees education programs in Federal correctional institutions and provides funding for these purposes to every Federal prison.

9. AGENCIES DELIVERING SERVICES: Each Federal prison has an education department under an education supervisor. All institutions are required to employ a reading specialist or special education teacher.

10. MAJOR ACTIVITIES AND SERVICES:

ESL services. ESL programs include two instructional levels: (1) survival ESL with a competency-based curriculum that focuses mainly on oral and listening skills, to help inmates function in the prison environment; and (2) advanced ESL, which encompasses all language skills to help prepare students to function in an English-speaking community.

Incentives and disciplines. Institutions may use monetary awards and other incentives to encourage inmates to meet the mandates. Institutions may also take disciplinary action against inmates who refuse to participate.

Prison work assignments. Inmates who do not meet mandated literacy levels cannot be promoted to prison work assignments above the entry level.

11. FISCAL AND ACCOUNTABILITY PROVISIONS: Correctional institutions must keep records on participation, withdrawals, and completions.

12. COORDINATION PROVISIONS: No special provisions.

13. TECHNOLOGY PROVISIONS: Computer-assisted instruction is authorized and encouraged in Bureau of Prisons directives.

14. PRIVATE SECTOR PROVISIONS: No special provisions.

15. STANDARDS, EVALUATIONS, AND OUTCOMES: Inmates must be tested to determine initial achievement levels. Inmates participating in GED and ESL programs are tested periodically to determine whether they have met the required literacy standards.

2. FEDERAL ADMINISTERING AGENCY: ACTION

3. TYPE OF LITERACY PROGRAM: Volunteer literacy

4. PURPOSE: To strengthen, supplement and expand public and private nonprofit efforts to address the problem of illiteracy, through the assignment of volunteers.

6. LITERACY-RELATED DEFINITIONS: No special provisions

7. TARGET POPULATION: Illiterate or functionally illiterate individuals who are unserved or underserved by literacy education programs. The law places special emphasis on individuals with the highest risk of illiteracy and the lower educational competence.

8. ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE:

Eligible grantees. The following entities can apply for VISTA Literacy Corps grants: public or private nonprofit agencies; local, State and national literacy councils; CBOs; LEAs and SEAs; other local and State agencies that administer adult basic education programs; other educational institutions; libraries; anti-poverty organizations; and government entities administering JTPA programs.

Selecting and funding grantees. ACTION selects grantees that meet the anti-poverty criteria required of all basic VISTA programs and the other criteria relating to need and effectiveness. Each grant supports 10 to 15 VISTA volunteers, who are assigned to projects by ACTION.

Priorities. In assigning VISTA volunteers, the Director gives priority to projects that serve:

- individuals in greatest need of literacy training;
- individuals reading at the 0 to grade 4 levels;
- "high risk populations";
- areas with the highest concentrations of low-income individuals; and
- parents of children aged 2 to 8 who are educationally at risk.

Statewide programs also receive priority.
9. AGENCIES DELIVERING SERVICES: Volunteers deliver services in communities, as part of a program administered by the agency, institution, and organization that receives a grant (see item #8 above).

10. MAJOR ACTIVITIES AND SERVICES: Grantees use VISTA volunteers to carry out literacy projects that:
   - provide comprehensive services to curb intergenerational illiteracy;
   - overcome employment barriers;
   - provide ESL services;
   - focus on preventive education for potential dropouts and other low-income, at-risk young adults; and
   - provide literacy training to incarcerated and formerly incarcerated individuals.

VISTA funds pay a monthly subsistence and readjustment allowance for volunteers.

11. FISCAL AND ACCOUNTABILITY PROVISIONS:
   - Funds for the Literacy Corps must supplement and not supplant the level of literacy services provided by the regular VISTA program before enactment of the Literacy Corps.
   - Grantees must provide a 50% match for a supervisor's salary and must provide matching funds for volunteer transportation, supervision, and training, in cash or in kind.

12. COORDINATION PROVISIONS:
   - The Director of ACTION is charged with coordinating all the agency's volunteer programs with each other, with other community action programs, and with other related Federal, State and local programs. The Director must consult with other Federal, State and local agency heads to encourage greater use of volunteers in their programs.
   - Statewide projects that encourage coordination of intrastate literacy efforts receive priority in assignment of volunteers.

13. TECHNOLOGY PROVISIONS: No special provisions.

14. PRIVATE SECTOR PROVISIONS: Agencies applying for grants must show evidence of local public and private sector support and be designed to generate private sector resources.

15. STANDARDS, EVALUATIONS, AND OUTCOMES: The Director evaluates the impact of the VISTA Literacy Corps at least once every three years. Projects must have a mechanism for self-evaluation.
OTHER PROGRAMS WITH NOTEWORTHY ADULT LITERACY OR BASIC SKILLS COMPONENTS

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Education Act (PL 101-392)

Vocational training for secondary students, postsecondary students, and adults is the primary purpose of the Perkins Act. The Act requires that Federally-funded programs integrate basic and advanced academic education with vocational training and also permits funds to be used for remedial education. In addition, several special programs or set-asides authorized by the Act specifically mention basic skills, academic skills, literacy education or English language instruction as a component of the program. These include the programs for disadvantaged youth (run by CBOs); for consumer and homemaking education; for bilingual vocational training; for single parents, displaced homemakers, and single pregnant women; for criminal offenders; and for school dropouts.

FY 1992 funding: $1,142,500,000 for the entire Act. The amount spent on basic skills for adults is not available.

Rehabilitation Services (Rehabilitation Act of 1973)

The vocational rehabilitation program provides State grants and special projects to help persons with disabilities become gainfully employed. A wide range of assessment, counseling, training, diagnostic and employment services are authorized, including education and vocational training.

FY 1992 funding: $2,077,200,000 for the entire Act; specific amounts for adult education are not available.

Family School Partnership Program (Title III, Part B, Hawkins-Stafford School Improvement Amendments of 1988)

One of two programs authorized by the Fund for the Improvement and Reform of Schools and Teaching (FIRST), the Family School Partnership Program authorizes grants to LEAs to develop programs that will increase parents’ involvement in their children’s education. The emphasis of this program is parenting education, more than literacy education: LEAs may train parents how to fulfill their educational responsibilities to their children and work with their children at home.

FY 1992 funding: $3,755,000 for the entire program; specific amounts for adult education are not available.

College Work Study (Title IV, Part C, Higher Education Act)

A special component of the Federal work-study program encourages higher education institutions to provide income-eligible college students with work and learning opportunities in community service. Literacy training is among the areas of community service specified in the law.

FY 1992 funding: $615 million for entire program; the amount for literacy training is not available.
DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

Comprehensive Child Development Centers (Title VI, Omnibus Budget and Reconciliation Act of 1981)

Authorized through FY 1993, this program provides grants to Head Start agencies, CBOs and other social service agencies for projects that provide comprehensive support services to low-income preschool children and their families. Services for children include health, nutrition, early intervention, child development, and licensed child care. Services for parents and other family members include prenatal care; education in parenting, child development, health and nutrition; and referral to education, employment counseling, and training, as appropriate.

FY 1992 funding: $24,398,000 for the entire program; special amounts for adult activities are not available.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

FY 1992 funding: $63,000,000 for the entire program; amounts for basic skills are unavailable.

JTPA Migrant and Seasonal Farmworker Programs (Title IV-A, JTPA)

These programs are designed to combat chronic unemployment and substandard living conditions among migrant workers and their families. The programs offer two broad types of services: (1) providing occupational training, support services, and basic skills (including English literacy) to equip migrant workers for stable, year-round employment at a decent wage; and (2) improving the living standard for those who remain in the agricultural labor pool.

FY 1992 funding: $77,644,000 for the entire program; data on basic skills expenditures are not available.

JTPA National Programs (Title IV-D, JTPA)

With the funds available for national research and evaluation and for pilot and demonstration programs, the Secretary has supported projects to:

- develop literacy training models for school dropouts, low-income single mothers, and other groups with special needs;
- disseminate promising workplace literacy and basic skills models;
- develop literacy assessment instruments; and
- test new instructional techniques.

FY 1992 funding: $45,753,000 for R & E and P & D; amounts for literacy-related projects are not readily available.

ACTION

VISTA (Title I, Domestic Volunteer Service Act of 1973)

The basic VISTA program, administered by the Federal agency ACTION, recruits, selects, and trains full-time volunteers to serve in needy communities. VISTA projects provide community development, health care, rehabilitation for disabled people, education, and a range of other services aimed at alleviating poverty in the US. Among the volunteer projects authorized by law are those addressing the problems of "illiterate or functionally illiterate youth and other individuals."

The Director of VISTA is also charged with disseminating to public and private nonprofit literacy organizations effective literacy programs and materials related to the use of volunteers, and with submitting exemplary VISTA literacy projects each year to the national clearinghouse on literacy administered by ED.

The Director is also authorized to provide technical assistance to help employers integrate volunteers into their workplace literacy programs; as part of this effort, the Director must coordinate with the Department of Education's workplace literacy programs.

FY 1992 funding: $32,688,000 for the entire program; amounts for literacy are not available.

COMMISSION ON NATIONAL AND COMMUNITY SERVICE

National and Community Service (National and Community Service Act of 1990, PL 101-610)

The Commission is a new, quasi-governmental agency charged with overseeing a variety of new national and community service programs authorized by PL 101-610. Several of these programs mention literacy as one of the target areas for community service efforts:

- Higher Education Innovative Projects involve postsecondary students in community service, including teaching "individuals with limited basic skills or an inability to read and write." FY 1992 funding: $5.6 million.

- The American Conservation and Youth Corps creates corps of youth aged 16 to 25 to work on environmental and human service projects, including "literacy training that benefits educationally disadvantaged individuals." ACY participants may themselves be educationally disadvantaged, and may receive basic skills and high school equivalency education at the same time they work on community projects, from the agency that administers the volunteer program. At the end of their service, participants receive education and training benefits. FY 1992 funding: $22.5 million.

- State-administered National and Community Service programs test national service programs that engage youth and adults in full-time and part-time service to meet educational, human, environmental, and public safety needs, especially those related to poverty. States must provide full-time participants with educational services and materials to enable them to obtain a high school or equivalent diploma. FY 1992 funding: $22.5 million

*Appropriations are for entire program; specific amounts for literacy are not available.
• Rural Youth Service Demonstration Projects develop models for youth to perform education, human, environmental, and public safety services in rural areas. FY 1992 funding: Amount to be determined at discretion of Commission. *

APPALACHIAN REGIONAL COMMISSION AND DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Appalachian Regional Education Program (Appalachian Regional Development Act)

This program is administered by ED, with funds transferred from the Appalachian Regional Commission. The program authorizes grants to States in the Appalachian region for educational projects that demonstrate area-wide planning, services, and programs. The primary focus of the program is vocational training. In recent years, the program has shifted emphasis so that adult workplace literacy development is now receiving greater relative emphasis.

FY 1992 funding: $3,200,000 for the entire program. The portion used for literacy is not available.
UNFUNDED PROGRAMS WITH LITERACY MISSIONS

Family Literacy Public Broadcasting (National Literacy Act)

The 1991 National Literacy Act authorized $2 million for the Secretary of Education to contract with the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB) to produce television programming and accompanying education materials to help parents improve family literacy skills and language development. Libraries and other nonprofit agencies and organizations would distribute to families the programming and materials produced by CPB.

Library Literacy Centers (Title VIII, LSCA)

This program authorizes grants to States to establish one model resource center per State that would lend literacy education materials and equipment to local public libraries and would train library personnel about literacy services. With their grants, the State centers would be allowed to acquire video and computer equipment and materials; however, hardware and software purchases could not exceed 25% of the grant. Local public libraries are eligible for competitive grants to establish a program for lending materials to illiterate adults and their instructors, and for other innovative library literacy activities.

Library Family Learning Centers (Title VIII, LSCA)

This unfunded program authorizes grants to public libraries to establish family learning centers, which provide comprehensive library services to all family members. Although the program does not authorize literacy education for parents, it does allow funds to be used for materials to help adults learn parenting skills and acquire job information and for electronic materials and resources for adults and children. If funded, libraries would be required to use a minimum of 10% of the grant to acquire computer hardware and software.

Blue Ribbon Awards for Correctional Education Programs

The National Literacy Act amended the Secretary of Education’s Blue Ribbon Schools program, originally authorized by Chapter 2 of ESEA but not currently funded, to require the Secretary to make at least one award yearly to effective and innovative programs for inmate education and literacy.

Postsecondary Education for Non-traditional Students (Title I-A, Higher Education Act)

This program would provide grants to postsecondary institutions to help them meet the continuing education needs of non-traditional adult students, including dislocated workers, displaced homemakers, AFDC clients, and "functionally illiterate" adults. Institutions may use funds, among other things, for adult literacy efforts to meet the labor market needs, for remedial education, and for providing adults with educational information, "including literacy information." Title I also authorizes separate grants to help higher education institutions provide inservice training to staff who provide adult and continuing education.

VISTA Literacy Challenge Grants (Title I, Part C, Domestic Volunteer Service Act)

The Director of ACTION would make matching grants to public and private organizations to establish or expand literacy programs that use volunteers.
