City Colleges of Chicago IL Chicago City Wide Coll; Tech Prep

A project conducted to establish tech prep articulation training agreements between City Colleges of Chicago and several public secondary schools is described in this report. Project activities were as follows: (1) developed a handbook to define the tech prep experience and guide committee members on how tech prep can be a valuable asset to students and hospitality employers; (2) secured planning stage agreements with three high schools; (3) established an advisory board; (4) established ties with community outreach organizations; (5) developed and conducted a survey that rated competencies for entry-level hospitality positions; and (6) initiated contact with two high schools to start the planning stage for the travel and tourism component. Extensive appendixes include the following: survey results, newspaper article highlighting program success, brochure on Illinois Tech Prep, mission statement of the Hospitality Tech Prep Team, outline of advantages to and expectations of area employers, advisory board implementation topics, hotel-motel/food service position descriptions, first draft of skills for hotel-motel management/food service administration, and model tech prep education/private sector partnership agreement. The final two appendixes contain syllabus outlines for food service administration and hotel-motel management. This information is provided for each course: catalog description, prerequisite, credit/contact hours, schedule, clientele served, textbooks, objectives, and units of instruction/content outline. Major Accomplishments and Significant Findings of the Project: (see Final Report Abstract)

Evaluation and Impact:
Developed and conducted a survey which rated competencies for Hotel-Motel Management and Foodservice Administration skills and knowledge for entry, retention and advancement. Hospitality Human Resource Professionals were used as participants in the survey to assure which skills are relevant and whether instruction would take place in an academic setting and/or at the workplace.

The results of the survey will then be used to substantiate our current curricula or make changes so that curricula is in line with industry standards and expectations. (see attached survey)

Attached is a recent article from the Chicago Tribune that highlites how successful the Hotel-Motel Management Program at Jones Commerical High School in conjunction with The Palmer House Hotel is performing. The Jones Commerical High School Program is under the direction of Marlene Anderson, a member of our Tech Prep Team. Ken Maier, Human Resource Director at The Palmer House Hotel, is also a member of our Tech Prep Team.

Problems:

Only significant problem encountered was the initial starting date of January 13, 1992. However, we have made sufficient progress in spite of the lost time and are confident we can achieve all of our FY-1992 Planning Objectives by September 1, 1992.

Conclusions and Recommendations:

Recommendations:

1. When creating a competency survey, use the resources of the Illinois Vocational Curriculum Center. They are an excellent resource on current published vocational competencies.

2. If at all possible, locate any professional organization that deals directly with your targeted vocation. I found the Chicago Women's Chapter of Hospitality Human Resource Professionals to be an unlimited and inspiring resource.

3. Locate and secure the cooperation of local community/civic organizations that support training for individual teenagers to become productive and contributing adults with a family support component.

4. As mentioned at several ISBE Tech Prep Workshops, do not waste the time of any of your industry volunteers. Before any meeting, mail out a well thoughtout agenda. Try to keep your meetings in line with your agenda and conclude at a preset time. This strategy will tend to ensure their future involvement.
5. Prepare and mail a periodic newsletter or simple letter to all involved so that you keep them active and interested.

New business
Palmer House finds room to train students for careers

By Maudlyne Ihejirika
Staff Writer

"Housekeeping. This is Aaron. How may I be of service?"

Without taking a second glance, you may not notice that the smooth, professional voice behind the large oak desk in the Palmer House Hilton belongs to a junior executive overseeing housekeeping details.

Guests at the Loop hotel frequently do double-takes after encountering these polished teens, who masquerade as administrators for $6 an hour.

Aaron Thomas and other teenagers are part of a public schools program that is the pet project of Palmer House Managing Director Joseph Frederick Jr. Sixteen of the youths are employed at the Palmer House and the Chicago Hilton and Towers.

Frederick conceived the program in New Orleans in 1980, when, as president of the newly built Hilton there, he interviewed 10,000 people to hire his first 500 employees.

"Not one of those 500 lasted six months," he said. "The quality of the work force was poor. The younger people we hired never even came to work on time. It became apparent that unless something happened to change that, I would have to look outside the city to hire people."

That's a complaint frequently made by companies that hire workers produced by Chicago public schools.

But Frederick went a step beyond complaining. He met with New Orleans school officials to design a work-study program, build a classroom and train a teacher to educate students in hotel management.

By the time he left New Orleans for Chicago in 1988, about 90 percent of the program's students were going on to college, compared with 28 percent of the seniors in the New Orleans school system.

When he brought his program to the Chicago Board of Education.

Students at Jones Metropolitan High School take the course in their senior year, getting credit for their part-time hotel jobs. In the summer, they stay on, working full time to earn college tuition.

Marlene Anderson, a teacher at Jones, has witnessed the power of the program.

"You start out with this timid student that really has no idea of what the working world is like or how to interact with adults, and you just see changes," she said.

"Creativity comes out, resourcefulness and self-esteem.

"Every student that comes out of the program either goes on to college, continues in this field or goes on to other fields. But they have a sense of who they are and what they want to do. The program helps bring about a sense of maturity I just don't see in other students."

The students attribute their development to the responsibility they are entrusted with. They say they also owe their achievements to the opportunity to broaden their horizons by mixing with people of all races and classes within the confines of the city's oldest hotel.

"This is my first job," said Melissa Hernandez, 18, a Jones senior working in the hotel's food and beverage department. "I was scared to death at first, because a lot is expected of me. A big, pretty place like this was a little intimidating.

"My personality's changed a lot. Like, I always wore jeans, now I wear heels a lot. I've really learned how to communicate and how to adjust to different situations."

That's what the program is about, Frederick said.

"If all businesses in this town were to affiliate with the school system, I think we could accelerate the development of these kids and enhance their competitiveness almost instantaneously," he said. "We have to quit bitching about the problem in the public schools and just jump in and help out."

Suburban schools have heard about the program and clamored for their students to be let in.

But, "It's kids from city schools who need this house," said Frederick, who lives in Barrington Hills. "I know what I pay in suburban taxes. These kids are taken care of."
Advancements in technology have brought broad, sweeping changes to the workplace. Concepts like computer-integrated manufacturing, work cells, statistical process control, just-in-time inventory control, participatory management, ergonomics, employee involvement and customer service, to name a few, have become commonplace in today's corporate settings. Couple these changes with a dramatic shift in demographics, and Illinois could be facing a serious deficit in qualified labor in the near future. The private sector and education must combine forces to ensure that Illinois has the human resources necessary to maintain a competitive edge in the twenty-first century.

One only has to look at the skills demanded by modern business and industry to realize the extent of the educational challenge. The workplace demands a labor force that possesses not only advanced technical skills, but strong academic skills and interpersonal skills and a willingness to continue to learn. A task this formidable cannot be accomplished by vocational-technical educators or academic educators working in isolation from each other and from business.

Illinois educators, both technical and academic, are responding to this challenge with the development of a bold reform concept called Tech Prep.* Illinois Tech Prep represents an educational path that integrates college preparatory coursework with a rigorous technical education concentration. It is a planned sequence of courses, both academic and technical, that begins at 9th grade and is articulated with a post-secondary experience leading to an associate degree. Because Tech Prep prepares students for a lifetime of learning, it also provides preparation for advanced education such as a four-year baccalaureate degree. Tech Prep prepares students with the skills and competencies necessary to meet employers' performance standards not only for entry-level jobs, but also for career advancement.

TECH PREP STUDENTS

Tech Prep is aimed at attracting a wide range of students, and all interested students should be provided the opportunity to participate. Typically, the students most likely to be attracted to Tech Prep are students who:

- Fall between the 25th and 75th percentile of secondary students;
- Enjoy using complex math and science concepts to solve problems;
- Have an aptitude toward technical/scientific content;
- Intend to pursue post-secondary education;
- Enjoy learning through the application of academic knowledge and skills;
- Desire a challenging, good-paying career and are willing to work toward achieving this goal.

Tech Prep has entrance standards. When students lack the necessary competencies they will be provided the opportunity to get academic assistance to possibly to qualify for and participation in Tech Prep at a later time.

TECH PREP PARTNERSHIPS

The success of Tech Prep is dependent upon the development of 50/50 partnerships. These partnerships are between:

1. Academic and technical educators.
2. Secondary and post-secondary educators.
3. Educators and representatives of the private sector.
1. The Academic/Technical Partnership

To be prepared to succeed in the workplace of the twenty-first century, students will need a strong academic foundation and the ability to apply it. Tech Prep brings academic and technical educators together in a true partnership. These Tech Prep educators eliminate barriers which stand in the way of interdisciplinary cooperation. They are receptive to new teaching methods and design Tech Prep sequences together.

Tech Prep Educators also jointly design instructional strategies to strengthen the relationship between academic content and application.

2. The Secondary/Post-Secondary Partnership

Tech Prep provides students with opportunities that maximize experiences at both secondary and post-secondary levels. Tech Prep represents a strong linkage between secondary and post-secondary institutions to provide a smooth transition from one level to the next without duplication of effort. The secondary experience is well articulated to the post-secondary program to provide a solid foundation for advanced technical studies at a post-secondary institution. Articulation also ensures that students can continue when appropriate in a four-year baccalaureate program with minimal loss of credit. Ultimately, Tech Prep prepares students to benefit from a lifetime of learning opportunities.

Apprenticeship is a natural progression for Tech Prep students. No only does apprenticeship provide for a smooth transition from school to the workplace but apprenticeship insures that students receive work based learning and that their education will culminate in full-time employment. Apprenticeship can also expedite the third important partnership in a Tech Prep program.

3. The Education/Private-Sector Partnership

A well-prepared future labor force is dependent upon equal commitment from both education and the private sector. Employers working with Tech Prep clearly identify and communicate their performance standards. These standards will include not only technical skills, but also expectations in reading, math, science, and communications. Tech Prep educators design learning experiences to ensure students meet these expectations and certify that completers are ready to enter the workforce.

Employers must not only identify and communicate performance standards, but be willing to provide incentives to make Tech Prep attractive to students. These incentives may include:

   a. Priority hiring considerations.
   b. Wage and/or advancement incentives.
   c. Support for continued work-related training and education.
   d. Paid internships or employment for students during the school year or summer while enrolled in a program.
   e. Scholarships to post-secondary institutions.

In addition, employers inform the public of Tech Prep opportunities and encourage enrollment in the program. Further, they provide training slots and work with educators to ensure appropriate learning experiences.
Tech Prep represents new opportunities. Opportunities for educators to restructure curricula to reflect the needs of tomorrow, opportunities for employers to remain competitive in an ever changing economy, and opportunities for students to prepare for challenging careers in the twenty-first century. Tech Prep completers will be motivated self-starters capable of setting career goals and being an asset to their employer. They will be team players able to communicate and solve complex problems in the workplace of tomorrow. Technical Preparation/Associate Degree completers will ensure that Illinois continues to be a state where industry can locate, grow and prosper.
MISSION STATEMENT

The mission of the Hospitality Tech Prep Team, which is comprised of hospitality business leaders, high school faculty and staff, and CCWC staff, through its courses and services will provide students who are successful completers of the Tech Prep Program with:

CHICAGO CITY-WIDE COLLEGE
CITY COLLEGES OF CHICAGO
TECH PREP EDUCATION/PRIVATE-SECTOR
PARTNERSHIP AGREEMENT

Chicago City-Wide College has been awarded a grant to develop a written 2+2+2 Tech Prep model for students interested in Hotel-Motel Management and Foodservice Administration careers. This model will include sequenced pathways for study incorporating articulated applied academic courses and vocational-technical courses. Multiple entry/exit points will be identified in order to prepare students for hospitality employment in selected program areas.

It is agreed that academic concepts in mathematics, science, and communications will be identified and an attempt will be made to integrate these concepts into post-secondary levels.

A well prepared future labor force is dependent upon equal commitment from both education and the private sector. Employers working with Tech Prep must clearly identify and communicate their performance standards. These standards will include not only technical skills, but also expectations in reading, science, math, and communications. Tech Prep educators will design learning experiences to ensure students meet these expectations and certify that completers are ready to enter the workforce.

Employers must not only identify and communicate performance standards, but be willing to provide incentives to make Tech Prep attractive to students. These incentives may include:

a. Priority considerations for employment.

b. Wage and/or advancement incentives.

c. Support for continued work-related training and education.

d. Paid internships or employment for students during the school year or summer while enrolled in a program.

e. Scholarships to post-secondary schools.

In addition, employers inform the public of Tech Prep opportunities and encourage enrollment in the program. Further, they provide training slots and work with educators to ensure appropriate learning experiences.

We have read the above and agree to offer the following incentives to Chicago City-Wide College Tech Prep Graduates: (Please circle the letters from the above incentives.)
