Introduction

The new French as a Second Language (FSL) Program of Studies consists of nine levels of proficiency: Beginning French 1, 2, 3, Intermediate French 4, 5, 6 and Advanced French 7, 8, 9.

This document, French as a Second Language: Annotated Bibliography of Learning Resources. Intermediate Level (Grades 4 to 12), contains print and non-print resources suitable for use with students at the Intermediate level of the new French as a Second Language Program of Studies for Alberta schools.

This list is not exhaustive and does not claim to include all of the excellent French as a second language resources that are currently available.

Selection Criteria

The learning resources selected for this bibliography meet all (or most) of these criteria:

1. The materials can be used in a variety of French as a second language programs in Alberta.

2. The fields of experience, language and activities are appropriate to the students' age and level of French language learning.

3. The content and suggested learning activities promote positive attitudes toward and a greater understanding of the French language and culture.

4. The materials take into account different styles of learning.

5. The materials depict aspects of francophone community life in Canada and in other countries.

6. The content is current, accurate and free of obvious bias.

7. The materials support the development of all language skills.

8. The materials can be adapted to a variety of teaching styles.

9. The general physical format (design, print, illustrations) is appealing.

10. The materials are reasonably priced, durable and readily available.
Contents and Format

This annotated bibliography is designed to help select and locate learning resources for students at the Intermediate level of the Alberta French as a Second Language Program of Studies.

The resources are categorized as follows:

- Audio/Video/Kits
- Communicative Activity Resources
- Computer Software
- Cultural Learning Resources
- Games and Puzzles
- Magazines and Newspapers
- Posters, Maps and Charts
- Reading Collections/Literature
- Student Reference Materials
- Teacher Reference Materials

In each of these categories, resources are listed in alphabetical order, by title. Each annotation provides bibliographic information and ordering information as well as information about the price, age level, fields of experience, curricular emphasis and suggested use. Specific information which was unavailable at the time of publication may be obtained directly from the publisher/distributor.

Entries use these headings:

- Title
- Author(s)/Producer(s)
- Publisher/Distributor
- ISBN (International Standard Book Number) or BPN (Basic Program Number)
- Publication Date
- Price
- Age Level
- Component(s) Available
- Field(s) of Experience
- Summary

The prices included for each resource are effective as of September 1, 1992, except for those resources published since that date. Please contact the Learning Resources Distributing Centre (LRDC) or the distributor for current prices, including G.S.T. and shipping charges.

This document also provides addresses for publishers/distributors, Regional Offices of Education and media centres. A title index, which lists all resources in alphabetical order by title, and a format index, which lists resources by category, complete this annotated bibliography.
Entries marked with an asterisk (*) are designated by Alberta Education as "support" resources and are available from the Learning Resources Distributing Centre. Support learning resources are those student learning resources authorized by Alberta Education to assist in addressing some of the learner expectations of course(s); or assist in meeting the learner expectations across two or more grade levels, subject areas, or programs as outlined in the provincial Programs of Study. All other resources may be purchased directly from the publisher/distributor. Before purchasing resources, teachers should consider requesting review copies from publishers to ensure that the materials will meet the students' needs and be suitable for the type of instruction they have planned.

Social Life
Trades and Professions
Weather
Summary:
À la radio, based on a series of French radio programs addressing everyday life topics such as the weather, sports and current events, is specifically designed to develop listening skills. The choice of language and speed of speech are natural. The 14 themes reflect the interests and needs of today's adolescents (ages 12 to 18); however, this material can also be used with students who are between 9 and 11 years old, for less complex listening tasks.

The 100 activities in this resource provide the basis for many group or pair communicative activities such as role-playing and interviewing to promote productive oral skills and creativity.

An excellent, versatile, ready-to-use resource for the busy FSL teacher.

Title: Au micro

Author(s)/Producer(s): Sue Finnie

Publisher/Distributor: Mary Glasgow Publications (The Resource Centre)

ISBN: 1-85234-242-0

Publication Date: 1989

Price: $125.00

Age Level: 12-17

Component(s) Available: blackline masters
2 audio cassettes

Field(s) of Experience: Fine Arts
Health and Leisure Activities
Holidays and Celebrations
Housing
People Around Us
Vacations

Summary: A kit designed to improve oral comprehension skills, Au micro would be well suited to students at the Beginning 3 and Intermediate 4/5 levels of the FSL program.

The material is divided into 15 units which can be used in any order. In each unit, young French people aged 13 to 17 talk about themselves, their families, their interests, their country and their customs. Canadian students will easily identify with these French teenagers and will have an opportunity to compare and contrast their own culture with that of France.

The oral comprehension activities include three or four short interviews for each topic. Students are guided to listen not only for the general gist of the passage but for pertinent details as well. There are 15 authentic documents related to the themes which provide a realistic context for introducing new vocabulary. Two additional worksheets per topic provide a range of communicative activities, making this resource ideal for use with classes of mixed abilities.

All activities are on reproducible blackline masters, organized in a ring-binder.
French Restaurants

Summary: This 20-minute video filmed in Paris presents appealing and authentic images of a variety of French restaurants.

The cassette, consisting of three vignettes, begins with adolescent French-language students ordering lunch at a local restaurant, using basic French communicative expressions. Vocabulary and linguistic structures are introduced and re-introduced as the language increases in difficulty and complexity. The second vignette, depicting a more formal dining-out experience, gives an excellent “taste” of French cuisine and culture. The third vignette provides a humorous look at a less-than-desirable experience with several restaurant patrons.

This is an excellent enrichment resource.

Vary with each issue

This useful teacher resource is published twice a year – in September and January. Each issue has two parts: “Teacher Update” and “Classroom Resources.”

The “Teacher Update” section contains information on language and culture; notes on new teaching approaches, ideas, techniques and methodology; and, information on professional organizations.

The “Classroom Resources” section presents language exercises that are organized by topics and skills, and graded in three levels – Beginning, Intermediate and Advanced. All activities are cross-referenced to show at a glance where they might fit in with your FSL basic program. Included are ready-to-use student resources such as worksheets, activities (with authentic French material), audio cassette recordings, theme-based modules for games, songs, recipes and a variety of communicative group activities.

The cultural component of the FSL program is comprehensively addressed. All material can be photocopied.

A must for the language teacher's professional library.

Component(s) Available: See "Summary" below.

Field(s) of Experience: Activities, People Around Us

Animals, School

Clothing, Trades and Professions

Community, Vacations

Food, Weather

Housing

Summary:

The Magnetic Way into Language is a unique manipulative language resource. Components include a special magnetic board and vibrantly coloured visuals which are flexible, durable and capable of being layered. This resource gives students hands-on participation in the learning process – through visual, tactile and spatial stimulation.

The basic program consists of four separate kits entitled: "The Street," "The Country," "Indoors" and "People in Action." Combining any of these kits provides visuals for a vast array of scenarios portraying everyday situations that are familiar to all students. The components included are: a class board, choice of two different program guides, a package of four dry-erasable markers, a package of metallized plastic sheets (for the teacher's own creations) and over 475 visuals representing storefronts, vehicles, traffic signs, buildings, animals, weather symbols, furniture, appliances, people, actions, emotions and so on.

The material is multicultural and multidimensional and comes with a lifetime guarantee. Since there are no printed words, it can be used for teaching a variety of subject areas and languages.

In addition to the basic program, other packages can be purchased separately: "Into Our Community," "Into Children's Literature" (nursery rhymes, fairy tales and folktales), "Into Life Systems" (the human body) and "Into Our World: Dinosaurs." A kit of letters and numbers is also available.

Students and teachers at all levels will find The Magnetic Way into Language a dynamic and interactive resource.

Summary:
Each cassette in the series features 20 popular songs taken from the airwaves of Quebec's "top 10" radio stations. The cassettes are produced and sold monthly but they are also available in 3-month, 6-month and 1-year subscriptions.

Each cassette is accompanied by a small leaflet that provides the lyrics to five of the songs and information on some of the current artists.

For teachers in Alberta, this is an excellent way to access current popular music of Quebec, which supports the culture component of the program of studies. Additionally, the lyrics could support general language formation activities.

This video, designed for secondary FSL students of Intermediate language proficiency, is a follow-up to Module I. The video presents three short films: “À fleur de peau,” “Le porte feuille” and “La petite gardienne” (7-9 min. each). The scenes depict authentic life situations of high interest to adolescents. The focus is on listening, comprehension and speaking strategies. Students are encouraged to use non-verbal clues and their own experience to interpret a message. They also develop a tolerance for ambiguity in the language learning process; they learn that it is not necessary to understand every word to interpret a message.

This resource provides an excellent model and reference for teachers. They might use the same approach with any other audiovisual material to complement and enrich classroom instruction.

Although the primary function of this module is to develop communication strategies, it also deals with the language and culture components of the new FSL program.

The teacher's guide contains a description of communicative strategies and experiential activities, useful teaching notes on language and cultural points, and a transcript of the three films.

Summary: This series consists of programs shot around Rouen and on the northern coast of France. Young people aged 11 to 13 voice their opinions about a variety of daily activities.

Designed for Beginning and early Intermediate students, these video cassettes show native speakers using basic French at a natural, conversational speed.

The program, which may be purchased separately or as a series, includes:

À la maison. Students learn how to: describe where they live, identify rooms in the house, and describe family and pets.

À la mode. Students learn how to: describe and purchase clothes, and talk about likes and dislikes in clothing and music.

À la table. Students learn how to: describe food and meals, buy food and snacks, and express likes and dislikes regarding food.

À l'école. Students learn how to: tell time, link activities with times and days of the week, and talk about daily routines and what happens at school.

En vacances. Students learn how to: talk about the near future, describe vacation plans and discuss different countries, the weather and time.

En ville. Students learn how to: extend greetings, make introductions, express age, and identify various shops and locations in a town.

Jours de fêtes. Students learn how to: ask and state date of birth, play party games and give holiday greetings. They also learn about holiday customs in France.

Les sports. Students learn how to: talk about sports, link time to sporting events, and express likes and dislikes regarding sports. They also learn about famous French athletes.

Temps libre. Students learn how to: describe leisure activities, make arrangements and discuss preferences regarding the use of free time.

Visites en France. English girls visiting Boulogne test their French skills. Next, young English visitors in Le Touquet interview local people.

Summary:
This package of 30 ten-minute programs is based on the adventures of two children, Jacques and Sophie, and Ananas, their human-like pineapple friend. The children's real, everyday-life experiences (presented with a hint of fantasy) are familiar and enjoyable to upper elementary students. These materials promote language acquisition through context-rich use of basic vocabulary and sentence structures.

The useful teacher's guide contains a summary of each program, and lists basic vocabulary, key phrases, sentence structures, expressions and songs used in the video episodes. The guide also suggests a teaching procedure for each program, with good pre-viewing and post-viewing activities to promote active listening and better general comprehension. The suggested pair or group activities, such as dramatizations, role-playing, making posters and writing invitations, help to integrate the FSL program components and develop the four language skills.

For a list of all 30 programs, refer to the ACCESS Network Video Catalogue. To purchase copies, phone the Provincial Educational Media Centre at 1-800-352-8293.

Publication Date:
Price:
Age Level: 12-16
Component(s) Available: video cassette
Field(s) of Experience: Holidays and Celebrations, Senses and Feelings

Summary: Full of intrigue and emotion, Une nuit à l'école is a 45-minute story of two children who spend Christmas Eve trapped in their school. Their resourcefulness and quick thinking is met only by locked doors, barred windows and a huge snowstorm that causes a power failure.

Although designed for students whose first language is French, the Intermediate-level FSL student would understand the general story line.

No teaching notes are provided, but teachers can easily develop various activities for follow-up and expansion of the theme.

Age Level: 12-18

Component(s) Available:
- video cassette containing 8 programs
- instructor's manual

Field(s) of Experience: Trips, Excursions or Student Exchanges

Summary:
Shot entirely on location in France, Panorama de la France presents a voyage through France with visits to several cities and villages. Throughout the 60-minute video, interviews give historical, cultural and geographical information about each locale. Both residents and visitors provide additional factual information as well as their opinions, feelings and attitudes. The people interviewed are from all age groups and various walks of life. They speak the French of everyday conversation.

The accompanying instructor's manual contains reproducible blackline masters related to the eight segments of the video cassette, a transcript of the video, and a variety of activities that will help students engage in active, participatory viewing; develop skills in making observations about French language and culture; and, improve listening, speaking and writing skills. Many of the activities support the general language education objectives of the FSL program.

Part of a series of three, this video cassette allows students to listen to authentic French spoken by natives and provides them with insights into the culture of contemporary France. Highly recommended.

Outdoor Activities

Summary:

This British resource consists of a variety of letter-writing exercises, including letters to a pen-friend; notes on holiday postcards; letters which invite, accept, apologize and thank; formal letters requesting information; and, letters to answer. Throughout, model letters are presented and comprehension questions (in English) are included. Extensive help is given in the form of vocabulary and structure guides (French and their English translations) along with suggestions in English which indicate possible ways the model letters may be adapted. Specific practice in replying to letters ranges from filling in the blanks in a model letter to open-ended writing. A test section asks students to respond to the model letters.

This resource has two weaknesses: English is used extensively, as well as translation. These approaches to teaching a second language are not consistent with the program of studies. However, giving students authentic tasks (letter-writing) is consistent with the program. A teacher may want to use the model letters and contexts with adapted activities to support the writing component in a number of fields of experience.

Summary: This motivating and enjoyable resource can be used either in the classroom or at home to practice listening to authentic French.

The interesting material in the workbook encourages students to do something rather than simply answer questions. Each task has a purpose, for example: choosing things, making lists, sequencing information, reporting to someone else. When students do these exercises, they develop skills in listening comprehension and in reading and writing.

Each workbook contains worksheets, transcripts of the audio cassette recordings and an answer key. The master audio cassette has a license to copy for use in an individual teacher's classroom only. Packs of five workbooks and five audio cassettes are available separately.

A highly-recommended resource, especially for individual student work.

Summary: This resource is designed primarily to develop skills in listening comprehension.

The student's text is organized around 36 topics, each including a listening task with a related authentic reading text and follow-up activities. Listening tasks are graded to suit a variety of learner abilities and are designed to develop both listening for the main idea and for specific details. A final comprehension activity focuses on analyzing of speakers' attitudes, emotions and opinions.

A full transcript of the recordings is provided at the back of the student's text. Topics include: meeting friends, taking a message, sending a letter, reserving a room, following a recipe, the cost of living and choosing from a menu.

Age Level: 12-18
Component(s) Available: 3 soft-cover texts
Field(s) of Experience: Various

Summary: The Communicate in French series was developed to prepare students for the General Certificate of Secondary Education (GCSE) French examinations. Each text covers one of the skills: speaking, reading and writing. Each fully illustrated text contains a variety of activities, most of which are based on authentic material. These, in turn, encourage practical communication about many different topics.

Because the authentic material is taken from sources in France, this resource provides a lot of cultural information related to France.
Communication Plus 2 contains 64 communicative activities (organized by topic) which develop both oral and written skills. The topics are age-appropriate and the activities provide motivation and structure for communication in the classroom. Support documents such as graphs, charts, invitations, posters, maps, cartoons, photos, excerpts from articles and brochures are authentic and interesting and add a significant cultural element to the materials.

The teacher's guide identifies objectives, gives practical pre- and post-activity suggestions and provides answer keys.

This material was published in the early 1980s and it contains a large vocabulary (including varied verb tenses used incidentally). Even so, it is recommended for enrichment, review or reinvestment, to supplement a basic French language program.

Summary: Communication Plus 3, the third in the Communication Plus series, contains 54 communicative activities. This resource is designed to help more proficient secondary students who are at the Intermediate 6 and Advanced levels to develop their oral and written language skills.

Activities in this resource are more complex and elaborate, and they reflect the current cultural and social needs, interests and realities of today's teenagers. The topics promote expression of personal thoughts and feelings, creative expression, research, discussion, observation and synthesis. This resource may be adapted easily to deal with fields of experience other than those indicated.

Refer to the description of Communication Plus 2 (see p. 33) for more detail; each resource in the series is based on the same approach and models.

- Trades and Professions

Summary:

This set of blackline masters and audio cassettes provides teachers with a well developed and easy-to-use assessment package. Activities help to evaluate student progress in listening, reading, speaking and writing, and are graded at three levels of difficulty.

Each task is based on a particular theme and uses authentic documents. The situation and task are explained in English, but the listening or reading material is in French. For example, the activity “Quel restaurant” gives students the following situation: “You've arrived in a French town with your family and are looking for a restaurant. As there are so many to choose from, you decide to telephone the tourist office and ask their advice. You hear a recorded message.” The accompanying listening evaluation task then requires students to fill in a grid to get the information they need to choose a suitable restaurant.

The teacher's book contains suggestions for using the student material in a variety of ways – for practice or for either formative or summative evaluation. Individual student profile sheets are also included.

Summary: Students at all levels of language learning will enjoy the innovative and interesting activities in this collection. Designed for pair or group work, these games and activities encourage meaningful communication and provide opportunities to practice the four language skills: speaking, listening, reading and writing.

There are complete instructions for each activity, including: objectives, number of participants, step-by-step directions, vocabulary lists and suggestions for expanding or adapting the activity.

An excellent resource for developing proficiency in French and for motivating students as they discover that communication can be both useful and fun.

Summary:
This communicative resource contains 46 illustrations of cartoon scenarios dealing with everyday life foibles. The illustrations provide motivation to learn and a context for oral discussion and story-telling. This material is especially useful and enjoyable for secondary students who have had at least 100 hours of French instruction. However, it can easily be adapted for use at all levels of language proficiency.

Each cartoon story sequence is accompanied by some basic vocabulary to help students write or tell their stories.

This resource supports the philosophy and approach of the new FSL program.

Component(s) Available: teacher's guide, student text, workbook, answer key, audio cassette

Field(s) of Experience: Trips, Excursions or Student Vacations, Exchanges

Summary:

This unit is based on the philosophy of the National Core French Study and is designed for students with a minimum of 125 hours of previous French language instruction. It integrates the four FSL program components: experience/communication, culture, language and general language education.

Students are first guided through the planning of a tourist holiday in Montreal using the communicative/experiential approach. Skills and knowledge needed to plan a tourist holiday are integrated. Students are later invited to use these same skills and knowledge to plan a short trip to Quebec. The teacher's guide provides detailed lesson planning for effective use of the audio cassette, workbook and student text.

A good teaching model for the communicative/experiential approach.

Summary:
This collection of authentic materials - newspaper clippings, travel brochures, songs, recipes, ads, schedules, cartoons, maps, games - is gathered from throughout the French-speaking world, including Canada, West Africa and the Caribbean. The documents are organized by topic and are clearly indexed for easy reference. A glossary of difficult words and expressions appears on the bottom of each page and there is a complete vocabulary at the back of the book. Discussion questions and activities support each of the documents but there is no answer key.

This is an excellent resource for the busy teacher who wishes to add culture and authenticity to many of the fields of experience listed in the new program of studies.
Title: La Tour Eiffel a disparu!

Author(s)/Producer(s): Pierre J. Capretz

Publisher/Distributor: Harcourt Brace Jovanovich

Publication Date: 1983

Price: 13-18

Age Level: soft-cover student text

Field(s) of Experience: Various

Summary: This mystery story presents a collection of data pertaining to an unresolved case and invites students to help Agent X24 of Scotland Yard solve the mystery.

Each chapter begins with a comment in English to set the scene and introduce the documents, which include photographs, drawings, letters, postcards, transcripts of conversations, newspaper articles, ads, maps, and pages from pamphlets and French phone books. While the story is fictional, the documents are authentic. Students are directed to study the documents through questions and activities at the back of the book. For example in chapter 1, the initial stage of the crime is explained. At a party, a souvenir candy Eiffel Tower was stolen. The transcript of an interview between a witness and Agent X24 presents a description of the suspect. Pictures of 10 individuals present at the party are assembled as documents. The students are asked to read the transcript and attempt to identify the suspect from among the 10 pictures. This task is made even more authentic because, it is explained, the witness mysteriously vanished shortly after the interview. One activity permits students in small groups to play a detective game using the descriptions of the individuals in the photographs as clues.

This resource corresponds well with the emphasis in the new program of studies. Students read authentic documents for a realistic purpose in a context. They are involved in using their deductive powers both in solving the mystery and in using context and other clues to cope with the language in the documents. Additionally, the resource integrates a wealth of French culture, both in the documents and the activities.

This resource is different from most others, both in its mystery format and in its high level of student involvement.

Age Level: 12-18
Component(s) Available: student book
Field(s) of Experience: The Francophone World, Trades and Professions, Trips, Excursions or Student Exchanges, Weather, World of Work

Summary: This 64-page book provides students with supplementary reading, writing and speaking practice through a different type of authentic document – the Minitel text. Samples of what actually appears on the screen of this communications service, which is provided free of charge to customers of France Télécom, require students to make decisions about a specific situation: for example, choosing an appropriate movie, restaurant, hotel or campsite.

This resource introduces students to an important French cultural phenomenon, and it gives them an opportunity to do problem-solving activities, both individually and in groups, which focus primarily on reading and writing. Instructions to the student are given in French.
Points Cardinaux: Listening Activities for GCSE French

Price: 13-18
Age Level: 13-18
Field(s) of Experience: Animals Food Health and Exercise Health and Leisure Activities Housing People Around Us School Shopping Trips, Excursions or Student Exchanges Weather World of Work

Summary: This resource contains supplementary listening activities organized by topic. The listening passages on the audio cassettes are produced from authentic material and semi-scripts were developed by native (not Canadian) speakers of French. Passages present natural and spontaneous language at its normal speed.

Each listening activity is given a context in English, and many include visual clues and realia as well. Students are asked to listen in order to perform a task that has a realistic purpose. For example, students provide an immediate response in the form of note-taking, transcoding information or making choices. (They might complete an application form for a youth club or match the descriptions of family members to their photographs.) In many of the tasks students are asked to imagine themselves in the situation. (They might record information about a pen-friend's appearance in order to recognize him at the airport.) There is a progression of difficulty within each topic area but teachers are encouraged to exploit the material for various individual needs and abilities by varying their expectations.

The teacher's book states clear objectives for each activity, and provides tapescripts, teaching notes and follow-up suggestions. Also included for some activities are reproducible master copies for some of the grids, maps and forms that students are to complete. A reference grid is supplied which lists the topic areas found in each listening passage.

Points Cardinaux: Listening Activities for GCSE French (cont'd)

Even though the context for each activity is given in English, this resource is highly recommended for its bank of authentic listening passages and task-oriented activities.

Summary:
This resource contains supplementary reading activities organized by topic. Students read authentic advertisements, brochures, timetables, letters and magazine articles for a purpose. Sometimes they will need to have a detailed understanding of one document. At other times, students will only skim for general meaning.

The introduction includes a list of techniques to help students cope with difficult language. Teachers are encouraged to modify reading tasks to meet the needs and abilities of individual students better.

Even though the context and the questions are given in English and the expectation is that students would answer in English also, this resource is highly recommended for its authentic documents and varied and realistic tasks. It provides a bank of ideas that could be used for various purposes in FSL classes at the Intermediate level.

Summary:

This resource contains supplementary listening and speaking activities organized by topic. Each topic begins with a series of 5-10 listening passages. Before hearing each passage, students are presented with a comprehension exercise which helps them to focus their listening. The recordings are of native (not Canadian) French speakers who are expressing themselves spontaneously. Students will therefore have to cope with the speed and fluency of native speakers. The Poste de secours contains highly structured question-and-answer activities for pairs of students. More than one way of saying the same thing is often presented. Several role-playing activities using similar questions and answers allow students to hold brief conversations with each other and exchange true, personal information. The last section of each topic is “information gap” activities where pairs of pupils, working together, hold authentic conversations. (Speakers do not fully know in advance what the other is going to say as each student is given different information.)

The teacher's book contains transcripts of the listening passages as well as additional, reproducible information gap activities and easy simulations. For example, a set of 24 different family profiles are provided on cards that can be cut up and distributed to students. Students must find the other members of “their” family.

Even though all the directions in the pupil's book are in English, this resource is highly recommended for its wealth of ideas for communicative and interactive activities. It can provide variety and support additional practice exercises in the classroom.

Summary: This resource contains supplementary writing activities organized by topic. For each topic the writing activities are graded in approximate order of difficulty. Tasks are authentic: lists, memos, postcards, letters, invitations, reminders, instructions, forms and questionnaires related to subjects that interest teenagers. Each task is in context, and most include an authentic French document which acts as both a stimulus for writing and a language model. Each task has a section called “This May Help You” where students can find examples (how to complain, how to compare), and useful idioms and vocabulary. In the introduction, students are encouraged to get their message across even if there are mistakes in the writing. Strategies for attacking the writing assignments are outlined.

Tasks are varied and realistic, and they are based on authentic documents. This resource provides an excellent bank of ideas for the FSL teacher.

Tu parles encore!

Tu parles encore!, a follow-up to Tu parles!, uses the same communicative approach. The fields of experience are treated in a more complex way and are therefore suitable for students at the Intermediate level. The main focus is on the message to be understood and produced rather than on the form of the message.

This communicative material integrates the four components of the FSL program.

Publisher/Distributor: Weigl Educational Publishers

ISBN: Various

Publication Date: 13-18

Price: 5$ or 5 ¼” diskette – Compatibles PC/MS/DOS 2.1/ATARI ST-STE

Age Level: Various

Summary: This series of computer software focuses on spelling, grammar, vocabulary, verb conjugation, numbers, operations, measurement, geometry and mental calculations.

Each diskette consists of 500 exercises under 10 themes, ranging from beginning to more advanced levels of skill in each category.

The colour program provides an on-line tutorial including a print-out reference sheet of basic information required to assist the user in working through the exercises.

For each student (up to eight maximum) the program memorizes the results of five sessions; with each session recording the scores obtained under each heading (10 themes per heading), as well as the number of exercises completed. (Obtaining 9/10 and having completed 37 exercises has more value than the same results on only four completed activities.)

The exercises are accompanied by music which can be turned off at the discretion of the user.

This series of computer software is an excellent resource for small group, pair or individual enrichment and tutorials on the basic structure of the French language. Teacher supervision may initially be required as all instructions are in French. The dynamic activities are user-friendly and highly motivating for any French language student at any level of proficiency.

This software series is a worthwhile addition to any school’s French language materials.
This computer program, consisting of two sections, “Conjugaison” and “Participe passé,” allows the language student to work at his/her own pace while systematically acquiring new verbs, and learning their application and conjugated forms.

The first topic, “Conjugaison,” presents 30 verbs of both “-er” and “-ir” endings and their auxiliary verbs: être and avoir. Also presented are impersonal verbs such as: falloir, vouloir, pouvoir and examples of irregular verbs and their spellings (lancer, manger, nettoyer, etc.). Reflexive verbs (se laver, se lever, etc.) are also covered.

The verb tenses presented include: present indicative, subjunctive, conditional, imperative, and infinitive and participle forms.

The second part, “Participe passé,” presents exercises in which the student must read a text, follow basic instructions to perform a required task, complete accents and follow up with the correction activity for each question.

Program colours highlight the important verb structures: participe passé (blue), auxiliary verb (yellow) and the word determining agreement (red).

All instructions are in French, which may initially require teacher involvement, but as students become familiar with the format of the program, this software allows for excellent enrichment and tutorial work in small groups or pairs.

The program is interesting and easy to use and worth considering as a supplementary resource.

Various

Designed to accompany the first level of the French for Mastery series, this software provides varied and extensive vocabulary practice for Beginning 1, 2, 3 and Intermediate level 4 students.

This self-contained and easy-to-use program allows students to improve their vocabulary without teacher supervision. There are two types of activities: in recognition activities students indicate a response in a multiple-choice format, and in production activities students type in the correct response. Immediate feedback is given to students, and they have the opportunity to try again if their first response is incorrect. When students have shown that they can correctly identify vocabulary items, then they practice using the words in sentences. As students work through an activity, their correct answers are confirmed and they are given a percentage score.

This software package provides a convenient and flexible way to allow for review and reinforcement of basic skills.

Available for both Apple and IBM-compatible computers.

Summary:

Fun with Arc-en-ciel 1 and Fun with Arc-en-ciel 2 are text files designed to be used with the French-language version of Camsoft's Fun with Texts (also available from The Resource Centre). This resource contains a variety of activities which are closely linked to the Beginning level basic resources, Arc-en-ciel 1 and Arc-en-ciel 2 and can be used on any fully IBM-compatible computer.

The tasks included in this package enable students to: participate in problem-solving activities, work autonomously at their own pace or in groups of two or three, practice all four language skills, increase their confidence and have fun!

The accompanying teacher's notes include a print-out of each activity in its original form and also provide the main objective of the task, the skills emphasized (reading comprehension, for example) and suggested instructions for students.

Text files for Arc-en-ciel 3 are forthcoming.

Age Level: 9-16
Component(s) Available: 5 1/4" diskette
                       user's manual
Field(s) of Experience: Various
Summary: This educational software package is designed for Apple II or compatible computers with at least 64K RAM and one disk drive.

The Game Show uses animated colour graphics to present a wide variety of subject material with the appearance and action of a TV game show. It is cross-curricular in its approach, providing questions in language arts, science, math and social studies. (One disadvantage is its American slant – U.S. Presidents, for example, is one of the topics.)

The game may be played by either one or two teams. Each team has a partner on the computer screen who is a “regular” participant on The Game Show. The “regulars” help their teammates guess a mystery word by providing helpful hints. Points are awarded to the team that correctly guesses the target word. The fewer clues the students need to guess the mystery word, the more points they earn.

An enjoyable and entertaining way of learning French.
CULTURAL LEARNING RESOURCES
Comprends-tu? Le temps des fêtes

Title: Comprends-tu? Le temps des fêtes

Author(s)/Producer(s): Rebecca Ullmann and Joan Howard

Publisher/Distributor: Prentice-Hall Media

ISBN: 0-13-532275-8

Publication Date: 1972

Price: $88.00

Age Level: 10-14

Component(s) Available:
- teacher's guide
- activity masters
- filmstrip
- songbook
- flash cards
- audio cassette

Field(s) of Experience: Holidays and Celebrations

Summary:

This cultural module (with a suggested grade level of 7 to 9) was designed to acquaint students with a specific aspect of French-Canadian culture – how families celebrate Christmas in their homes.

The audio cassette provides narration in both French and English and contains such songs as “Vive le vent” and “Vive la canadienne.” Other components in this audio-visual kit provide ideas and materials for the actual preparation of a Christmas celebration: recipes, arts and crafts suggestions such as crowns for “La fête des rois,” and songsheets.

Le temps des fêtes could be adapted for use by students at all levels.

Title: Signposts French

Author(s)/Producer(s): Edith Baer and Margaret Wightman

Publisher/Distributor: Cambridge University Press (Pippin Publishing)

Publication Date: 1982

Price: $13-18

Age Level: 13-18

Component(s) Available: soft-cover student text

Field(s) of Experience:
- The Francophone World
- Health and Exercise
- Health and Leisure Activities
- Money
- Outdoor Activities
- Shopping
- Trips, Excursions or Student Exchanges
- Outdoor Activities
- Shopping
- Trips, Excursions or Student Exchanges

Summary: If you were to visit France, this is the book you would like to have studied before your trip! It is designed to help non-French speakers, even beginners, understand the signs and notices that can be found in France. The reader is first given some general ideas on how to make sense of signs, how to judge whether they are important or not, and the way the language on signs works. Then each chapter deals with a situation visitors may have to cope with and presents the signs they are likely to come across. Each chapter has a key words section, explanations of important signs and “Test Yourself” questions. An answer key to the last section is included.

There is a wealth of culture in the authentic signs and notices in this resource. General language formation objectives are consistently addressed as students practice the suggestions for coping with unfamiliar signs such as picking out key words, words of the same family, cognates and faux amis. Specific language points are also presented in concrete situations. (Signs that begin with words ending in “-ez” or “-er” ask you to do something.)

The clear organization by topic or situation and the self-teaching approach of this resource make it easy to choose sections for individual or group project work. Note that permission to reproduce is not given so using it for whole-class activities will require multiple copies.

This resource is highly recommended as a teacher reference, as an idea bank and as a source of supplementary activities for individual or group project work.
Title: Tour du monde francophone

Publication Date:
- 1985 (Promenade dans Paris)
- 1985 (Zigzags en France)
- 1986 (Images d'Haiti)
- 1986 (Visages du Québec)

Price:

Age Level: 13-18

Component(s) Available: 4 soft-cover student texts

Field(s) of Experience:
- The Arts/Plays
- Challenges for My Future
- The Francophone World
- Health and Exercise
- Money
- World of Work

Summary:
Each of the four texts provides 25 short (one page or less) lessons on various aspects of the featured place. For example, Promenade dans Paris provides photographs and brief descriptions of famous sites throughout Paris while Zigzags en France provides a lesson for each of France's most-often visited cities and regions.

In Images d'Haiti, information on the history and rich cultural diversity of Haiti is provided along with lessons on such topics as agriculture, poverty, tourism, rum, Haitian art and voodoo.

In Visages du Québec, the story of Quebec begins with Jacques Cartier and finishes with the independence movement and René Levesque. Lessons are included on the cities of Quebec and Montreal, as well as on sports, art, crafts, education, religion and music. Several lessons focus on the unique nature of the Québécois as a francophone people in North America and on the issue of bilingualism. This material is somewhat dated (1980s) and is clearly written from an American perspective. Therefore, its usefulness in Canadian schools is limited, especially regarding the treatment of the independence movement.

Each lesson in each book is accompanied by a black-and-white photograph, discussion questions and a topic for further research. Texts are designed to be read by students who have had two or three years' background in French. Difficult words are defined at the end of each chapter.

Tour du monde francophone (cont’d)

This material is recommended to support the culture component of the program of studies. This series would be useful as a reference for students who are researching and identifying similarities and differences in francophone cultures nationally and internationally. (Note the exception, as stated above, is Visages du Québec.)
Title: Trivia-lités. À la découverte de la culture française

Author(s)/Producer(s): Rosemarie Giroux Collins

Publisher/Distributor: Addison-Wesley

ISBN: 0-201-17617-3

Publication Date: 1986

Price: $19.75

Age Level: 14-18

Component(s) Available: soft-cover book of reproducible blackline masters

Field(s) of Experience:

- The Arts/Plays
- Health and Leisure Activities
- Characters and Personalities
- The Sciences – Technology
- The Francophone World

Summary:

This resource builds on the trivia game craze of the 1980s. Each blackline master presents 10 short-answer, true/false or multiple choice questions in French on a specific topic. On the back of each page are the answers and often some additional background information. Topics include “Paris,” “Institutions,” “Langue,” “Géographie,” “Beaux-arts et littérature,” “Sports et loisirs,” “Personnages célèbres,” “Monuments et sites historiques,” “Histoire,” “Sciences et inventions,” “Cinéma musique,” “Nourriture,” “Acronymes et abréviations,” “Français hors de France,” “Qui suis-je?,” “Citations” and “Potpourri.” The vast majority of the questions pertain specifically to the culture of France, with only a few scattered questions that pertain to Canada.

There are several ways to play the trivia game, including pair grouping, team competitions, small-group activity, ladders and a double elimination tournament. The questions and/or answers could form the basis for research projects. This approach would support the “culture” objectives of the program of studies.

The language is not complicated but the content of the questions can be quite challenging. Therefore, this resource is most suitable for Intermediate level 6 and Advanced levels.

Title: Coup de craie-on
Author(s)/Producer(s): Helen Coltrinari and Bruce Galbraith
Publisher/Distributor: Tralco Education Services
ISBN:
Publication Date: 1990
Price:
Age Level: 9-18
Component(s) Available: game cards teacher's notes
Field(s) of Experience: Animals Health and Leisure Activities
The Arts/Plays Outdoor Activities
Community Trades and Professions

Summary: Similar to Pictionary, this game challenges each player to illustrate on the blackboard the word or expression that appears on the card chosen from one of the six categories. The other team must correctly guess what the illustration represents.

This game has been designed to develop comprehension skills, dictionary skills and social skills. It allows students to work cooperatively, develop imagination and creativity, interact and communicate, and (perhaps most importantly) learn while having fun.

The junior version of this game, which is suitable for Beginning level students, includes these categories: native expressions, on s'amuse, actions, à l'école/à la maison, vêtements/parties du corps. Categories in the senior version include: nature, professions, en ville, sports et loisirs, pot-pourri, actions.

Blank cards for each category are included for individualization.
Title: Jeux de communication

Author(s)/Producer(s): Charles Hadfield and Jill Hadfield

Publisher/Distributor: Mary Glasgow Publications (The Resource Centre)

ISBN: 1-85234-421-0

Publication Date: 1992

Price: 9-18

Age Level: 9-18

Component(s) Available: 70 blackline masters, teacher's notes

Field(s) of Experience: Activities, Clothing, Community, Health and Leisure Activities, Money, People Around Us, Senses and Feelings, Shopping, Trips, Excursions or Student Exchanges

Summary:

This collection of 40 games has been designed for students at both the Beginning and Intermediate levels. The emphasis of the games is on successful communication rather than practicing a particular linguistic element.

Primarily cooperative in nature, the activities involve a variety of tasks such as: drawing a route on a map, filling in a chart, matching, exchanging information, solving problems and puzzles, role-playing and simulation.

The games are arranged in approximate order of difficulty. Each deals with a specific function and limits itself to one or two structures and a clearly defined theme. Pair work and small-group work are stressed.
Title: La communication par le jeu
Author(s)/Producer(s): Claude Alschuler and Claudette Cornaire
Publisher/Distributor: Centre éducatif et culturel
Publication Date: 1987
Price: $21.25
Age Level: 12-17
Component(s) Available: soft-cover teacher resource text
Field(s) of Experience: Adaptable

Summary: This is a collection of 65 communicative games, each of which is presented in an easy-to-read chart format. Each game gives clear, point-form information on specific and general objectives, content, level, number of participants, required material and step-by-step procedures to facilitate preparation for and the process of the game. Some activities can also be done with grade 5 and 6 students.

These activities, for pairs or small groups, are classified according to degree of difficulty and may be used as described or adapted to suit one's instructional needs. Students may be invited to create their own variations. The text contains two parts, each of which presents two types of games: Part I is composed of “Jouons avec des chiffres et des lettres” and “Le lexique et la grammaire en jeux,” while Part II contains “Les jeux d'interaction sociale” and “Les jeux de création.”

These activities provide great motivation for oral expression and comprehension. They also encourage creativity, which generally enhances communicative competence.

An excellent resource for the busy language teacher who wants versatile, quick and easy-to-use activities to support classroom instruction.

Summary: In this series, unlike most others, the student reader is involved as a character in the adventures. Soon after an initial situation is established and again throughout the story, the reader is presented with alternatives and is directed to read different pages depending upon the choices he or she makes.

The adventures are short. Each story line takes up 15-20 pages but each page presents under 10 lines of print. The language is simple, the stories are written almost entirely in the present tense, and key words are translated at the bottom of each page. Full-page black-and-white drawings are included on every second page.

This series is recommended for its short, high-interest, action-based plots and its unique format.

Summary: This resource features the exploits of the familiar cartoon character, Garfield. English-language versions of the cartoons are translated for a French-speaking audience.

The text may be challenging for Intermediate students, but the context, the colourful illustrations and the familiar Garfield style will greatly assist them with comprehension. Students may even be motivated to look up a key word in the dictionary in order to understand the cartoon clip better. Because the clips are short and amusing, this resource provides opportunities for students to read for pleasure even when only a few minutes are available.

This is an excellent resource for motivating students, in individual or small group activities.

Summary:
This series of six high-interest, low-vocabulary cultural readers provides information about modern-day Quebec (its size, regions and culture) through a clear text with black-and-white illustrations, maps and photographs. Each reader contains a glossary and comprehension exercises complemented by a workbook with fun-filled activities, such as puzzles and games, to be done in written or oral form, individually or in pairs. The accompanying high-quality audio cassettes can be used to develop or test oral comprehension. This series is highly recommended to supplement the culture component of the FSL program at the Beginning 3 or Intermediate level.

Summary: These four interesting and exciting thrillers written in easy-to-understand French, exploit various themes pertinent to young people's daily lives.

Titles include:

Passeport S.V.P.! Gisèle Girard arrives at Mirabel Airport where she will be departing for Rome only to discover that she has forgotten her passport. She phones her parents to ask them to deliver it immediately, but they are stopped by the highway patrol for speeding. Will the passport arrive in time?

Silence, on flambe! Réal's parents are going away for the weekend so he decides to invite some friends over for a big party in their plush downtown apartment tower. A fire breaks out but the fireman's ladders do not extend that high. Will the young people be saved?

Trouvez la disquette! A computer programmer discovers that a diskette containing secret data has disappeared from his desk. Who are the criminals?

Une puce dans la cuisine. An engineer has stolen the prototype of a microchip to sell to a foreign power. He is apprehended but will disclose the location of the chip only if he is given a plane to flee the country. Otherwise a bomb will detonate. The chip is necessary to disengage the bomb. Will it be found?

This high-interest reader is intended for Intermediate-level French students who have a good working knowledge of the basics of the language. It is designed to help the student develop facility in reading and speaking French without recourse to translation.

Each of the six stories in this reader is followed by a vocabulaire (in which unfamiliar expressions are defined in French) and a set of exercises. The exercises are designed to test the student's comprehension of the story, drill vocabulary and teach grammar. Also included are special "imaginative" activities.
Title: Le petit zodiac
Author(s)/Producer(s): A.C. Domenech et al.
Publisher/Distributor: Éditions Hurtubise HMH
ISBN:
Publication Date: 1985
Price: $5.95 for each of 12 texts in series
Age Level: 8-16
Component(s) Available: 12 texts, one for each sign of the zodiac
Field(s) of Experience: Animals
Characters and Personalities
Holidays and Celebrations
Summary: This high-interest, low-vocabulary series briefly describes the characteristics of persons born under each astrological sign. Mythology is addressed in interesting and captivating ways, the illustrations are colourful and engaging, and the text is simply written.
Les aventures de Pierre et de Bernard

This adventure series is designed specifically for adolescents at the Intermediate level. Each reader is approximately 60 pages long.

Each adventure of Pierre and Bernard, the two 17-year-old heroes, contains elements of action, suspense, romance and intrigue, and each story has an authentic cultural setting.

The stories are written for the most part in the present tense, and the writers have attempted to use simple vocabulary and syntax. Definitions of many unfamiliar words and expressions are provided in the margins (in simpler French or in English). The readers each contain about five full-page black-and-white illustrations. Additionally, the books identified below with an asterisk contain several comprehension questions and activities (correct the statement, complete the sentence, give the opposite) after each two-to-three-page passage of text:

Le collier africain. Pierre and Bernard sail to eight different French-speaking countries to find the beads of the African necklace.

Le crâne volé*. On vacation in the valley of Dordogne in southwestern France, the boys find themselves drawn into the mystery of the missing skull.

Le Grand Prix*. Working for a Paris newspaper, the heroes cover the Grand Prix in Monaco and a plan to sabotage the hopes of a young racing driver.

Les assassins du nord*. Pierre and Bernard travel to Quebec City to cover the Winter Carnival for their newspaper but find more than the traditional festivities as they become involved in an industrial conspiracy.

Les aventures de Pierre et de Bernard (cont’d)

Les contrebandiers. The boys are invited to Brittany where they discover a band of smugglers.

Le trésor des pirates. Pierre and Bernard meet the Shark and his gang as they join an explorer friend in a search for sunken treasure.
Title: Plaisir de lire
Author(s)/Producer(s): M.R. Smith and P. Baillot d'Estivaux (Eds.)
Publisher/Distributor: House of Grant (Canada)
(Distributed by Fitzhenry & Whiteside)
ISBN: 0-460-94076-7
Publication Date: 1985
Price: 12-18
Age Level: soft-cover student text
Component(s) Available: Fine Arts
Field(s) of Experience: Legends and Myths
Holidays and Celebrations
Summary: This reader contains 15 short selections (one to four pages long), including high-interest stories, non-fiction articles and poems. The fictional selections range from mystery, adventure and magic to humour, fairy tale and myth. The non-fiction topics include Canada's role in space and the origin of jazz. While the language has been adapted to reduce grammar and vocabulary difficulties, the stories are not childish.
Numerous comprehension questions are provided at the end of each selection.
Other language activities are included, such as:
- given the adjective, find the corresponding noun
- given the noun, find the corresponding verb
- given the definition, find the corresponding word or expression.
The illustrations which accompany many of the selections contain deliberate errors. These form the basis for an additional exercise; students are asked to identify the details in the drawing which contradict the text.
This supplementary resource will motivate reading and add variety to lessons.
Title: Pour le plaisir
Author(s)/Producer(s): Rose-Hélène Arseneault and Armand Elbaz
Publisher/Distributor: Centre éducatif et culturel
ISBN: 2-7617-0115-1 (Midi … Boulevard Rosemunt)
2-7617-0132-1 (Un certain été)
Publication Date: 1981
Price: 12-17
Age Level: 2 soft-cover student texts
Component(s) Available: 2 soft-cover student texts
Field(s) of Experience: French as a Second Language

Summary: These titles are the first two in a series of four adventures written specifically for FSL students. They are designed to be similar to stories students of this age might read in English. This series differs from other reading collections in that there is no glossary or page-by-page definition of difficult words and expressions. Students are reminded that they can get help with difficult words (through the dictionary, the teacher or the context), but they are encouraged to read primarily for the pleasure of discovering the plot and the action. The two novels, both set in Canada, are approximately 35 pages long and contain numerous blackline illustrations.

Each book has a second section entitled “Exploitation pédagogiques,” which gives suggestions for activities and exercises such as research projects, analysis of authentic documents and group discussions. These activities are not simply a series of content questions for each chapter.

These superior readers are highly recommended for upper Intermediate or Advanced students because of the Canadian content, the format which parallels novels students might read in English, and the short, appealing stories.

Summary:
This collection of short articles, stories and documentaries will be of considerable interest to today's adolescents. Entries address current scientific, political and social events such as the video game market in France today; habits and problems of today's youth; the jean craze in Russia; Marc Garneau; secret agents in the RCMP, FBI and CIA; and, sports.

Each page contains illustrations and a glossary to facilitate reading comprehension. This very motivating and contemporary reading resource can be used to supplement a basic FSL program at the Intermediate 6 or Advanced levels. It will be especially helpful in stimulating discussion and research activities.

This is an excellent up-to-date resource that supports the philosophy and approach of the FSL program. A teacher's guide will be available in the future.

Summary:
These collections of short (mostly under 10 pages) one-act comedies use modern, colloquial French as it is spoken in France. The plays, which require few props, lend themselves to formal or informal performances by students. The publisher states that an objective of the plays is to "offer students a glimpse at the comic side of French family life and let them see that Americans and the French are really not so different after all."

This resource is suitable for upper Intermediate and Advanced students. The language is somewhat difficult (conditional, subjunctive, pluperfect), but a number of the words and expressions are translated at the bottom of each page.

While these plays do not clearly support any of the four components of the FSL program, they could provide variety in the lessons and would make an excellent special project.
STUDENT REFERENCE MATERIALS
Title: Amicalement

Summary: This student dictionary contains approximately 30,000 words as well as 555 illustrations and photographs, both in black-and-white and colour. Each word is defined in French and clearly contextualized in a sentence. The vocabulary and illustrations are contemporary and reflect the world of today's adolescents in a French-Canadian context.

The section on proper nouns includes more than 2,100 entries on people, places and events. The entries relate to the following themes: science, literature, sports, culture, history, geography, the arts, ecology, the economy and religion.

This entirely French dictionary is an invaluable learning tool for Intermediate and Advanced FSL students.

Summary:

This short vocabulary book is useful as a student reference to support communicative activities. The vocabulary lists are presented by theme and sub-theme and are organized into productive (English to French) or receptive (French to English) vocabulary as well as basic and more advanced phrases. For most topics, there is a short final section on signs and notices.

The thematic system enables quick and easy reference for effective communication in such activities as role-playing, field trips and travel in a French milieu.

Field(s) of Experience: Various

Summary:

This excellent and practical grammar reference takes an interesting approach to basic and complex linguistic phenomena. The resource is designed for Intermediate and Advanced FSL students and their teachers.

The content is crisply and systematically organized, using a detailed table of contents and an index for quick and easy reference. Each grammatical phenomenon or term is presented and explained in the context of a cartoon, poem, brochure, short story, etc. Black-and-white illustrations attract students and motivate them to understand and remember the rule or explanation, and to acquire more language skills. A chart-form synthesis and summary help the learners visualize the linguistic form and attend to the grammar rules. An exercise workbook accompanies this reference.

Publisher/Distributor: National Textbook Company (Copp Clark Pitman)

ISBN: 0-8442-1503-1

Publication Date: 1990

Price: $15.96

Age Level: hard-cover dictionary

Field(s) of Experience: Various

Summary: A handy guide for students of all levels, this dictionary provides information about those misleading French words that look and sound like English words and appear to have similar meanings, but don't. Each false cognate is defined in English, then put into context in a French sentence. When appropriate, the French word for the "false" friend is also given. For example, in the entry for "cave," meaning "cellar," you will also learn that the French for the English word "cave" is "caverne."

This resource is an indispensable supplement to any French-English dictionary.

Component(s) Available: soft-cover student text, audio cassette

Field(s) of Experience: None

Summary:

This program provides training in the phonetic aspects (sounds, intonation and rhythm) of French for adolescent and adult learners. The program is designed to be used with Beginning to Advanced learners because it does not require comprehension of written or spoken French.

Lessons 1 through 6, each of which last approximately 50 minutes, consist of active listening exercises which treat intonation, rhythm and sounds. Production practice is included in each of the final six lessons. Accent on Accent can be used as a self-study tool because all the explanations are in English and the answers to all the exercises are located on the workbook page immediately following.

This resource has limited use in the classroom because it emphasizes phonetics in isolation from meaningful language. This approach is not consistent with the philosophy of the program of studies. However, the self-study format makes this a valuable resource for French teachers who wish to improve their French.

Summary:
This teacher reference shows how to evaluate students using the “teaching for communication approach.” It clarifies fundamental concepts regarding testing and presents models for creating tests for your own program and grade level. This text provides clear insights into some general principles for effective summative and formative evaluation.

It shows what communicative tests look like (in all four skill areas), how to score for communicative ability and how to develop communicative tests. The “how to” section on suggestions for developing your own communicative tests is excellent.

The author realizes that communicative tests tax the imagination and therefore provides many and varied examples of such tests for a range of skills and grade levels.

A must for the language teacher’s professional library.

Summary: This series has been designed to provide teachers with important information regarding the new FSL program of studies as well as valuable techniques and strategies for its implementation. Each video is accompanied by a workbook which requires the viewer to be actively involved with the video.

Program 1, in English, demonstrates the implementation of the Beginning level of the program of studies at three different grade entry points (4, 7 and 10). It develops an understanding of the strategies, techniques and lesson planning that teachers are using in the classroom at this level. This video would be valuable for administrators as well, since it provides practical information on the teaching practices which are conducive to the implementation of the program of studies.

Summary: This collection of 123 reproducible blackline masters contains a wide variety of illustrations and activity sheets on such topics as: food, animals, school, housing, leisure-time activities, work, vacations and health. Certain pages are reproductions or adaptations of authentic documents, including maps, menus, recipes, telegrams, registration forms, letters and curriculum vitae.

The section entitled “Général” includes: empty word-search grids, certificates, blank cartoon strips, questionnaires, puzzles, badges to make, and information required by students to create their own magazine. The grammar reference section at the end of the book provides clear and succinct notes on verb tenses, asking questions, prepositions, the negative and adjectives.

A real time-saver for FSL teachers, this collection is also available in German, Spanish, Italian and English.
Title: Interaction et discours dans la classe de langue
Author(s)/Producer(s): Claire Kramsch
Publisher/Distributor: 2-218-06882-6
Publication Date: soft-cover teacher reference
Price: This reference book examines the theory of language learning as an interactive approach. For Claire Kramsch, the classroom is an authentic "microcosm of the second language domain." Communication occurs between teacher and student and especially between and among students themselves. This book, which suggests practical teaching ideas and activities based on this interaction-oriented approach, would be useful to all language teachers.

Summary: This series of six publications provides teachers with valuable and current information on the theory and research relating to the acquisition of French as a second language. The National Core French Study was carried out across Canada, and the documents of the Final Report make some interesting observations about FSL teaching throughout the country. These booklets provide theoretical constructs from which curriculum development can be carried out. They also help teachers understand some of the more difficult tasks of teaching and learning a second language.

A must for all teachers since this study is, in part, the foundation of the new Alberta program of studies for French as a second language.

guide for group leaders

Field(s) of Experience:

Summary: This program of professional development has been written for French as a second language teachers, department heads, coordinators, advisors and teacher trainers.

Each of the modules, available in both French and English, emphasizes a particular aspect of French as a second language teaching based on a communicative/experiential model. There are five modules on the development of communication activities related to specific language skills, two modules on classroom facilitation, a module on how to adapt these manuals to the personal experiences of students and teachers, and a module outlining an evaluation procedure for communicative/experiential-type learning.

(cont’d)
Users will identify their own current teaching practice and will decide how these modules might enhance or improve their personal approach. They will also be guided to make better use of communicative materials as well as to distinguish between materials that are truly communicative and those that profess to be.

Each module presents and studies its subject in four phases: Section A provides an introduction to the topic, Section B discusses basic theory, Section C explains how to develop a lesson plan and Section D presents strategies which will enable the users to implement new activities in their approaches.

This collection of independent-learning documents is invaluable for teachers exploring their own personal concepts of teaching and how they relate to the communicative/experiential approach.

Summary: This collection of classroom-tested teaching activities for students of English as a second language could also easily be used for other target languages. Created by more than 40 teachers all over the world, the collection contains activities in all four skill areas: simulations, role-playing, group dynamics activities, exercises in creativity and the like.

Some activities are centred on a particular linguistic function such as interrupting, while others provide new, lively ways of dealing with a specific grammatical structure. Activities are provided for all learning levels and most can be adapted to suit a teacher’s needs.

The “recipe” for each activity includes the suggested time, the language function(s) developed or practiced and the materials required. Directions for executing the activities are clear and easy to follow.

Teachers will find countless opportunities to use the ideas in this book to enliven their classes and to stimulate and motivate their students.

Component(s) Available: soft-cover text

Field(s) of Experience:

Summary:

This book describes current knowledge about the way people learn languages in the classroom. Topics include: current theories on language acquisition and learning; methodological trends in the teaching profession; a review of research on first and second language learning; suggestions for contextualizing and integrating speaking, writing, listening, reading and culture activities for small group communicative interaction; and, testing.

This reference book explores and investigates principles, practices and issues of second language teaching from a proficiency-based orientation. It directly addresses the second language teachers' age-old dilemma of how to assist students in becoming more proficient in their second language in a classroom situation.

Because teaching and learning should take place in a real-life context to promote student interest and motivation, the author recognizes that the classroom setting presents a special challenge. Real-life experiences must be simulated. The author describes a useful process for planning an integrated FSL program.

In this book, both novices and experienced language teachers will find practical ideas, new teaching techniques or a different perspective on a familiar technique.

A must for every language teacher's professional library.

Summary:

This manual was designed to respond to the need for a lexicon of French computer terms specifically adapted to the educational context. This handy 65-page guide allows both students and teachers to access appropriate French words and expressions relating to the use of computers in the classroom. The choice of terms and their definitions reflects the usage found in dictionaries, glossaries, and the user guides which accompany popular software packages.

Entries are listed in alphabetical order. A typical entry might be:

touche d'échappement (n.f.)
escape key
Touche qui permet d'annuler une opération accomplie par erreur et, ce faisant, de donner accès à autres fonctions.

An English-French glossary is provided at the end of the manual.

Summary:

Intended for all teachers of languages, this manual suggests many imaginative uses of video in the classroom. It notes a variety of ways to motivate students at different levels of competency, and ways to enhance their communication skills in listening, speaking, reading and writing.

This resource provides basic information on equipment and on using video in different classroom situations. It also suggests ways of using actual TV programs, commercials, music videos and feature films. A wide range of specific activities are clearly explained and categorized according to competency level, purpose, type and length of video sequence to be shown, as well as time required to complete the accompanying activity.

Although the emphasis is on the teaching of English as a second language, this is an excellent, easy-to-use resource for students of any language.
