Beyond the Library Card: An ESL Curriculum for Effective Library Use.

This curriculum is the result of a project designed to: increase adult English-as-a-Second-Language (ESL) students' knowledge and use of the public library through a problem posing approach; provide a curriculum for teachers throughout the state to teach students about public libraries; and increase public library staffs' awareness of adult ESL patrons' needs and improve their access to library services and materials. The curriculum includes five instructional units: Libraries in the United States; Employees of the Library; Asking for Help at the Library; Resources, Programs, and Services at the Library; and Understanding Library Rules. It also includes "Tips for Teachers" on how to use the curriculum and how to familiarize themselves with their local libraries, and "Tips for Librarians" on effective communication with nonnative speakers of English. The curriculum was designed to be used with ESL students who function at student performance levels two through seven as delineated by the Mainstream English Language Training Project. (AB)

"I am a mother of three children under the age of 8. Financially I am doing very poorly and am living with another family. The library gives us a place to go, a quiet place for my son to do his homework. My children's first and best form of entertainment is reading. I read 50 books a year--I could never afford to buy books. The library is so very important to us."

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This curriculum is the result of partnerships with the North Suburban Library System, the Adult Learning Resource Center (an adult education teacher training agency) three public libraries, and three adult English as a Second Language programs in Illinois.

The goals of the project were to:

* increase adult ESL students' knowledge and use of the public library through a problem-posing approach;
* provide a curriculum for teachers throughout the state to teach students about public libraries;
* increase public library staffs' awareness of adult ESL patrons' needs and improve their access to library services and materials.

_Beyond the Library Card_ is markedly different from previously developed library-oriented curricula because it emphasizes the language skills necessary for using libraries effectively, and it focuses on problem-posing rather than teaching library skills. The curriculum contains the following components:

1) Five instructional units: Libraries in the United States; Employees of the Library; Asking for Help at the Library; Resources, Programs, and Services at the Library; and Understanding Library Rules

2) "Tips for Teachers" on how to use the curriculum and how to familiarize themselves with their local libraries

3) "Tips for Librarians" on effective communication with nonnative speakers of English

Many people, including teachers, librarians, and adult ESL students, were involved with _Beyond the Library Card_. In particular, however, the following individuals need to be recognized for their efforts:

OVERVIEW OF CURRICULUM

Adult ESL programs in Illinois, at community colleges, public schools, and community-based organizations, deliver educational services to almost fifty thousand people with limited English proficiency yearly. In addition to developing listening, speaking, reading, and writing ability in English, these programs teach practical life skills and American culture. Most of the textbooks used in ESL classes include limited information about libraries in the units or chapters about community and/or neighborhood resources. Teachers often arrange class field trips to local libraries and encourage students to apply for library cards. But rarely do teachers discuss the varied resources and services available to their adult students or provide their students with opportunities to practice their newly acquired language skills within the context of using libraries.

Teachers often teach library skills such as locating books using the card catalog; they don’t usually teach students how to overcome their sense of intimidation in an unfamiliar institution. Beyond the Library Card increases adult ESL students’ knowledge of the resources of the public library at the same time as it increases their ability to use libraries more effectively, informs and educates teachers who may not be library users themselves about the resources, programs, and services of the library, and creates awareness in library staff of the needs of adult ESL students.

Beyond the Library Card was designed to be used by ESL students who function at Student Performance Levels (SPL) two through seven as delineated by the Mainstream English Language Training (MELT) Project. (See Appendix A) The SPL levels from the MELT project were selected because they are used by the Illinois State Board of Education, Adult Education and Literacy Section to describe adult ESL students’ English proficiency for testing and funding purposes. Thus they are familiar to the adult ESL teachers in Illinois who will be using the curriculum. Each activity in the curriculum has a suggested SPL level. Teachers may wish to adapt activities so they can be used with students at levels other than the suggested ones.

The student activities were field-tested in adult ESL classes taught by teachers at the College of Lake County (Grayslake and Waukegan) Elgin Community College (Elgin), and Township High school District 214 (Arlington Heights). The six teachers, Laurie Edwards, Kareen Marrone, Beth Small, Eileen Zywiciel, Inge Nauman, and Marilyn Danegger taught students at a variety of proficiency levels-- from beginning through advanced-- and their comments and their students’ reactions to the activities were invaluable.

Librarians from three libraries, Betsy Duda (Gail Borden Public Library-Elgin), Joyce Voss (Arlington Heights Memorial Library-Arlington Heights), and Sandy Sherwood (Waukegan Public Library-Waukegan) as well as Miriam Pollack from the North Suburban Library System provided insight and suggestions for content from a "librarian’s point of view." Any errors in library-specific content should be attributed to the curriculum writer, not the librarians!
BEYOND THE LIBRARY CARD CURRICULUM

I. INTRODUCTION

A CURRICULUM is defined in the Mainstream English Language Project (MELT) Resource Package as:

"a defined outline for an instructional program. Minimally it describes WHAT is to be taught. It can also include suggestions for HOW, WHEN, and WHAT MATERIALS."

Beyond the Library Card is essentially a multi-level curriculum which can be used to supplement instruction. It consists of photo-copy ready classroom activities for Student Performance Levels (SPL) 2-7. Each student activity has suggested SPL levels in the upper right hand corner. The curriculum is designed so that teachers can "pick and choose" the activities that are appropriate for their students' levels, interests, and abilities.

II. INSTRUCTIONAL UNITS

Beyond the Library Card consist of five instructional units:

1. Libraries in the United States
2. Employees of the Library
3. Asking for Help at the Library
4. Resources, Programs, and Activities at the Library
5. Understanding Library Rules

Each instructional unit contains materials appropriate for a wide range of English proficiency levels. The components of the units can be viewed as a menu from which teachers select activities. The unit components are not linear. It is not expected that teachers will begin with the first component, go on to the second, then the third, and so on. Rather than using the components in a sequential order, teachers may use the components in any order that expedites their use.
Each unit contains all or some of the following components:

- Teacher Notes
  Unit Competencies
  Suggested Sources for Authentic Materials from Local Libraries
  Directions for Activities
- Pictures
  Pictures for Vocabulary Development
  Pictures for Problem-Posing Discussions
- Reading Passages
  Pre-Reading Discussion Activities
  Reading Passages
  Vocabulary Activities
  Comprehension Checks
- Cultural Comparison Activities
- Codes for Problem-Posing
- Language Practice Activities
- Information Gaps
- Games
- Home Activities
III. SUGGESTED TEACHING TECHNIQUES

A. USING REALIA AND PICTURES FOR VOCABULARY DEVELOPMENT

B. USING DIALOGUES

C. USING PROBLEM-POSING
A. USING REALIA AND PICTURES FOR VOCABULARY DEVELOPMENT

There are many different ways to use realia, actual objects, and pictures for vocabulary development--the development of both oral skills and sight reading skills. The use of realia and pictures is especially helpful for beginning and intermediate ESL students because they provide context.

Most of the pictures which accompany the instructional units correspond to words or phrases in the reading passages. The pictures can be used, then, to develop vocabulary either before or after students read the passages. For nonliterate learners, realia and pictures can be used in place of the reading passages.

Following are a few suggestions for using realia and pictures to establish and/or enhance comprehension and acquisition of vocabulary.

Introducing New Vocabulary Using Realia and Pictures: Say the new words/phrases one by one, repeating several times. Ask comprehension questions as necessary to ensure that students understand the meaning of the new words. Continue with listening comprehension practice, below.

Listening Comprehension Practice: Say the new words/phrases one by one as students point to the corresponding pictures on their papers. When students demonstrate good comprehension, have them practice saying the new words/phrases aloud.

TPR Activities: Tape enlarged pictures to the blackboard. Have a student (or students) walk to the board and identify the picture(s) you name. For additional oral practice, have various students take the role of teacher by naming the pictures for their classmates to identify.

Pair Practice Using Flashcards: (This activity practices vocabulary that has already been introduced.) Make flashcards before class begins, or have students make the flashcards in class. The flashcards can have pictures on one side and words on the other, or separate flashcards can be made for the words and pictures. Pairs of students then engage in a variety of practice activities such as quizzing each other, matching words with pictures, or writing sentences about the pictures.

Whole Class Match-Ups: (This activity practices vocabulary that has already been introduced.) Before class begins, cut apart the words/phrases from their pictures. Pass out one word/phrase OR one picture to each student. Have the students circulate, using oral language to find their match. Do not allow students to show their pictures or words to each other. (Hint: In classes with mixed literacy abilities, give pictures to nonliterate students and words to literate students.)
B. USING DIALOGUES

Traditionally, dialogues have been used to teach listening and speaking skills. Here is a way to use dialogues to develop both oral and reading skills in multi-level classes.

1. Choose short dialogues (4-6) lines which have as many high frequency sight words as possible.
2. Present the dialogue using pictures, actions, and/or realia to establish meaning.
3. Write the dialogue on the blackboard, leaving blanks in each line.
4. Have students call out the missing words.
5. Read the dialogue while sliding a finger under each word as you say it.
6. Read one part; have the class read the other. Reverse roles.
7. Divide the class and have each half read one part.
8. Have students work in pairs reading the dialogue.
9. Erase some of the original words and have students volunteer them orally or come to the board and write them.
10. Have students copy the dialogue.

For Students with Stronger Reading Skills

1. Write the dialogue on the board.
2. Have students call out the words they recognize.
3. Have the class read the dialogue chorally, guided by your finger sliding beneath the words.
4. Discuss the meaning of the dialogue.
5. Erase difficult or new words and ask students to volunteer them orally or come to the board and write them.
6. Have students copy each line of the dialogue on a separate index card.
7. Have students shuffle and reorder the cards for additional reading practice.
8. The cards can be used for reading practice and review in subsequent classes.

C. USING PROBLEM-POSING

Problem-posing is a tool for developing critical thinking. It is an inductive questioning process that structures dialogue in the classroom. Teachers formulate questions to encourage students to make their own conclusions about society's values and pressures. The problem-posing method draws out students' shared experiences of society.

Problem-posing begins by listening for students' issues. Based on their listening, teachers then select and bring the familiar situations back to the students in a codified form: a photograph, a written dialogue, a story, or a drawing. Each situation contains personal and social conflicts which are emotionally charged for students.

Teachers ask a series of inductive questions which move the discussion of the situation from the concrete to the analytical. The problem-posing process directs students to name the problem, understand how it applies to them, determine the causes of the problem, generalize to others, and finally suggest alternatives or solutions to the problem.

Adapted from: Language and Culture in Conflict by Nina Wallerstein. Addison-Wesley, 1983.
THE FIVE STEPS OF PROBLEM-POSING

1. DESCRIBE CONTENT

   Students describe what they see in the code (a picture, story, dialogue, etc.)

2. DEFINE PROBLEM

   Students identify the issue(s) or problem(s) brought out in the code.

3. PERSONALIZE PROBLEM

   Students relate the issue(s) or problem(s) to their own lives or culture, and they tell how they feel about it.

4. DISCUSS PROBLEM

   Students discuss the social/economic reasons for the problem. They talk about why there is a problem.

5. DISCUSS ALTERNATIVES

   Students suggest possible solutions to the problem, and they discuss the consequences of various courses of action.

Adapted from a workshop presented by Elsa Auerbach for the Illinois ESL Adult Education Service Center, February 24, 1989.
TIPS FOR TEACHERS:
USING LIBRARIES EFFECTIVELY

The six teachers who field-tested Beyond the Library Card offered the following suggestions for using the curriculum:

- Find out which public libraries serve the communities in which your students live. This can easily be accomplished by having students interview each other and sharing their responses with the rest of the class.

- Find out which, if any, students live in communities which do not have public libraries. Not everyone in Illinois lives in an area which has access to free public libraries; however students who live in unincorporated areas may be able to obtain a library card by paying nonresident fees. In addition, employees of businesses may be eligible for library cards so it is important to check with local libraries about their nonresident library card policies.

- Call the libraries in the students' communities and inform staff of your intent to incorporate Beyond the Library Card into your instructional plan. This will alert staff to a possible increase in the numbers of students needing special assistance. In some libraries, there are certain staff members who are designated as "contacts" for limited English speaking patrons because of their special skills.

- Schedule a tour of the libraries for yourself before you bring or send students to the library with assignments. Then select appropriate activities from Beyond the Library Card to prepare your students in class before they go to the local libraries on their own or as a class.

- Ask your contact at the local library if there is a video cassette which highlights library services. Many libraries have made promotional videos for local cable TV and may let you borrow a copy for class use.

- Collect authentic materials from the libraries (application cards, flyers, calendars, newsletters, etc.) You may want to compare these materials with the ones used in the activities in Beyond the Library Card and adapt or use them to create additional activities.
TIPS FOR LIBRARIANS: COMMUNICATING EFFECTIVELY WITH NONNATIVE SPEAKERS OF ENGLISH

Communication workshops were conducted for library staff at the Gail Borden Library (Elgin), Arlington Heights Memorial Library, and Waukegan Public Library as part of the grant which produced the Beyond the Library Card curriculum. The suggestions below were included in the workshops.

> Speak clearly

Many limited English proficient adults avoid talking to native speakers of English because they are afraid they will not be understood or that they will not understand the native speaker. If the adults have been taking ESL classes, they may have become accustomed to the careful, deliberate, often "slowed down" speech of some of their teachers. Clearly articulated speech will assist in comprehension, although care should be taken not to use speech that is so slowed down or simplified that it insults the listener. Pausing after each sentence or point to allow processing time and avoiding the use of slang, colloquial, or highly idiomatic speech will also enhance communication.

> Paraphrase

When people are frustrated in their attempts to communicate with limited English proficient adults, they unconsciously raise their voices or repeat what they have already said. Communication efforts will be more successful if one uses different words to say the same thing. It may be helpful for staff to practice answering commonly asked questions in several different ways: May I help you?; Can I help you?; What can I do for you?; Is there something I can help you with? and so on.)

> Avoid confusing grammatical structures

Certain grammatical structures such as either or questions are particularly difficult for nonnative speakers of English.

Don't say, "Do you want to read a mystery or a thriller?"
Do say, "Do you want to read a mystery? Do you want to read a thriller?"
› Make use of visuals and demonstrations

A picture is worth a thousand words so provide context by using authentic materials, drawings, or photographs to establish or enhance meaning. Demonstrate rather than tell. Don’t assume that everyone can read written instructions. Show someone how to use the copy machine, don’t just tell them about it. Say and write information that includes numbers.

› Be patient

Nonnative speakers of English are usually sensitive about their ability to use the language. Instead of interrupting to "help" them, let them speak without interruption. Then you can ask questions if you don’t understand.
The purpose of this unit is to provide English as a Second Language students who are potential (and perhaps actual) library patrons with basic information about the U.S. library system. Many adult ESL students come from countries where the tradition of free public access to libraries is rare or nonexistent. They avoid becoming patrons of libraries in the U.S. because of their lack of understanding about what a library is, who it serves, and what services are available. Previous experiences with government censorship, limited collections, and restrictive borrowing privileges also prevent potential patrons from becoming library users in the U.S. Here are some ESL students talking about libraries in their native countries:

- "We can't take anything out of the library" (Iraq)
- "There were no libraries in towns or in schools - only in large cities, and then only books." (Laos)
- "The government restricts books in Saudi Arabia in libraries,...and there aren't many new books...And the books that are there don't go out."
- "There are only libraries in the university. Only students can use them." (Vietnam)

Before ESL students are introduced to their local library by a classroom teacher or library staff member, time should be spent orienting students to the concept of "library" in the U.S. Then later, because most of us learn best by doing, students will have the opportunity to demonstrate and apply what they have learned in their local library.

This unit begins with a discussion/sharing of libraries (or the lack thereof) in the students' native countries. In this way, the students can move from the familiar (their experiences with the libraries in their native countries) to the less familiar (the U.S. system).

COMPETENCIES FOR THIS UNIT

Students will be able to:

1. Explain the purpose of a library.
2. Describe the similarities and differences between libraries in the U.S. and libraries in their native countries.
3. Locate the public library in their town or city.
4. Complete an application for a library card.
POSSIBLE AUTHENTIC MATERIALS FROM INDIVIDUAL LIBRARIES AND COMMUNITIES

1. Maps (Local telephone directories serving the communities of the potential patrons are a good source of maps.)

2. Library flyers or brochures about services, materials, and policies

3. Library patron application forms

Samples of all of the above are provided in the suggested activities for this unit. Classroom practice with authentic materials will enable students to experience success when they apply what they have learned in class to new or similar situations.

Almost every town or city in the United States has a free public library. Libraries have collections of books for people to read. There are usually thousands and thousands of different kinds of books in a library. Adults and children can read books in the library or take books home to read. People do not pay to enter a public library.

Libraries also have other things too. They have newspapers and magazines to read. They also have audio cassettes to listen to and video cassettes to watch. Some libraries have puzzles and games for children. Libraries usually have typewriters and computers for people to use. There are many different kinds of things to read and use in a library.

To get a library card, go to the library in your town or city. Ask for an application for a library card. Write your name, address and phone number on the application. A librarian will ask for some identification. Most people show their driver’s license and a tax bill or utility bill. When you sign the application, you are promising to follow the library’s rules. Finally you get a library card.

Some people live in places where there are no public libraries. These people can go to public libraries to read and use the materials in the library. But if they want to take anything home, they have to pay for a library card. Free library cards are for residents only. Libraries usually have special rules for people who don’t live in the library community.

...a passport and ticket to a world of information—available to residents of the Glenside Public Library District (Glendale Heights and Glen Ellyn Countryside).

The card may be obtained in a matter of minutes by showing proof of residency (such as tax bill or driver’s license).

To obtain a card for a child under 16, the parent/guardian must come to the library to sign a responsibility statement.

- Business owners within the District may register for a library card, annually.
- Through contracts with the local schools and day care centers, teachers have library borrowing privileges related to their school requirements.
- Non-residents may purchase an annual card for a fee based on the tax bill.

Cards are renewed every three years.

EMPLOYEES OF THE LIBRARY: TEACHER NOTES

Obviously many people work at libraries, but patrons are most likely to have contact with employees who work in three main areas: Circulation, Adult/Reference Services, and Children's or Youth Services. If a library has an information or reception desk, the persons who work there will try to answer questions or they will direct patrons to the appropriate person. Patrons tend to consider everyone who works in the library to be a librarian and hence do not usually search out the "appropriate" person to answer a question or to help them. Fortunately, library staff who interact with patrons are generally trained in customer service and can assist patrons with most requests. Sometimes, however, it is important that patrons understand "who does what" if problems develop.

This unit introduces ESL students to "who does what," but concentrates on the three main categories of personnel listed above. The students' local libraries may use different titles for the jobs, so teachers should familiarize themselves with the local job names and check to make sure that the general information provided here is correct. The unit also emphasizes the kinds of questions one might ask or the help one might request of the employees who work in circulation, reference, and youth services. Although the vocabulary used is specific to libraries, the functional language and the grammatical structures used (such as WH Questions) have broad use.

This unit has several new activities for students. One is a card game which provides students with vocabulary and grammar practice in the context of job responsibilities at the library. The other is a JIGSAW reading activity. Students must work together to help each other learn the content of the reading passage which describes job duties.

COMPETENCIES FOR THIS UNIT

Students will be able to:

1. identify three major personnel categories of employees in libraries -- circulation, adult/reference services, and children's or youth services.
2. describe the patron services associated with each of the areas listed above.
3. ask appropriate questions of employees who work in the three areas listed above.
4. solve problems related to services in the three areas listed above.

Directions: Talk about the pictures.

Adult/Reference Services Librarian

The reading passage which follows may be presented to students in the same way as other reading passages or as a JIGSAW activity. JIGSAW is a cooperative learning structure which is appropriate for presenting new information in a written format, that is, it is a reading activity. Follow these steps:

1) Divide the number of students in your class by three.

2) Duplicate the three sections of the reading passage on three different colors of paper so that there are sufficient numbers of papers for all students. The sections are labeled A, B, and C. Thus, one third of the class will be working with Passage A, one third with Passage B, and one third with Passage C.

3) Assign students to "Home Teams." Each "Home Team" should have five or six students on it.

4) Distribute the reading passages to the home teams. The first student on the team gets Passage A, the second Passage B, the third Passage C, the fourth Passage A and so on. If you have a small class, there should be at least an A, B, and C on each team.

5) Ask the students to read their passages silently. Then tell the students that they are to move to "Expert Teams." You need to designate three areas in the class for the "Expert Teams"- one for Team A, one for Team B, and one for Team C. Students move to the Expert Team that corresponds to the letter on their reading passage.

6) Each "Expert Team" will be given questions to answer about its reading passage. Give the teams enough time to reread their passages, if necessary, and to discuss the questions. This may take 10-15 minutes.

7) When each "Expert Team" has completed its questions, ask the students to return to their "Home Teams." The "Home Teams" will then pool their information to answer another set of questions about the reading passage.

8) After all questions have been answered by the "Home Teams", the activity is over. (Optional: students can individually complete the comprehension check which follows the reading passage.)

EMPLOYEES OF THE LIBRARY: READING PASSAGE #1

Many people work at libraries. Some people are librarians and some are not. Librarians have college or university degrees in Library Science. Some librarians have a Master's Degree (M.S.). Some have a Bachelor's Degree (B.S.). Some employees in the library have an Associate’s Degree from a two-year college. But there are other jobs in libraries too. Not every library employee has a degree or special training in Library Science. Read about three people and their jobs in a library.

Martha is a Circulation Clerk. She works at the Circulation Desk at the library. She has a high school diploma. She is taking classes in Library Science at the local community college because she wants to learn more about libraries.

Martha likes her job. She also likes to work with people. At the Circulation Desk she helps many people every day. When library patrons have questions, they usually ask Martha. Martha is happy to help them.

Martha does many different things at the Circulation Desk. She helps people who apply for library cards. She checks out books and other materials. She answers questions and tells people whom to ask for help. When people have to pay fines for overdue materials, they give the money to Martha. When people want to put books on hold or to get books from other libraries, they also talk to Martha. Martha is the first person people see when they come to the library. She is the last person people see when they leave.

Lynn is a Children’s Librarian. She has a Master’s Degree in Library Science. Lynn is responsible for all of the library’s services for children from preschool through high school. She has several assistants who help her to do her job.

Lynn chooses the library books for children. She has to know about new books, and she has to know what kinds of books children like. Lynn reads to preschool children at the library’s "story hour." She visits the elementary and middle schools to talk about reading and special programs at the library. Lynn plans the summer reading program for children. She also invites storytellers and authors of books to the library for special programs.

Many children go to the library to work on school projects. Lynn helps them find the books and other materials they need. Lynn also tells teachers about the books and materials the library has on special topics. For example, if all of the children in fifth grade have to learn about stars, Lynn will give them a list of the library’s books about stars.

Lynn loves her job. She loves working with children, and she loves to read. She wants children to love to read too.

Joe is a Reference Librarian. He has a Master’s Degree in Library Science. He is responsible for Adult Reference Services at the Library. Joe selects the adult books for the library to buy: fiction, non-fiction, and reference. Joe has to know what subjects people are interested in so the library can buy the materials people want.
People ask Joe hundreds of questions every week. He doesn’t know the answers to all of their questions, but he knows where to find the answers. Here are some of the questions people ask Joe:

"Where can I find a recipe for low-fat potato soup?"
"What is the address of Mobil Oil?"
"Who wrote the song America the Beautiful?"
"How many people do volunteer work in the United States?"

Sometimes Joe knows exactly where to find the answer to a question. But other times he has to spend a lot of time looking for the answer. If people call on the telephone with questions, Joe calls them back when he has the answer. Joe always helps the people in the library before he helps the people on the phone.

The next time you go to the library, watch the people who work there. What are they doing? Are they doing any of the things you just read about?

Directions for Teachers:

1) Duplicate the situation and question cards (pages 36 and 37) on card stock. Use a different color for the two kinds of cards. Make one set for every four students in your class.

2) Cut the cards on the lines. You will have 12 cards in each set. Shuffle the cards so they are not in their original order.

3) Duplicate the student directions.

4) Distribute the two sets of cards and the instructions to each group of four students.

5) Demonstrate the instructions so students know what to do.

***************************************************************************
***************************************************************************

Directions for Students: Read the instructions carefully before you begin. Ask your teacher if you don’t know what to do.

1) You have two sets of cards. Each set has 12 cards. One set of cards has things people do at the library (situations.) The other set of cards has questions people ask.

2) Take turns reading the cards aloud. Read both sets.

3) Work together. Match the situation cards with the question cards. Take turns reading the words aloud again.

4) Check your answers with your teacher.

5) Put each set of cards together again. Make sure all the cards in each set are the same color. Shuffle the cards. Put the cards in two piles with the words face down so you can’t see the words.

6) One student picks up a situation card and reads it aloud. Another student picks a question card and reads it aloud. The other two students decide if the two cards match. Take turns so all students ask and answer the questions. Go through all the cards. Mix up the cards again and put them in two piles.

7) Use the situation cards only. One student picks up a card and reads it aloud. Then the student picks another student to ask the correct question for the situation. Go through the set. Then do the same thing with the question cards. One student picks a question card and another student says the correct situation for the question.

EMPLOYEES OF THE LIBRARY: PROBLEM-POSING CONVERSATION #1

Problem-Posing Issue: What do you do when you know you have returned books, but the library says you haven't?

Directions: Read the conversation below silently or listen to your teacher read it aloud. Then discuss the problem with a small group or the class.

Nacha is at the Circulation Desk of the library. She has three books she wants to check out. Nacha gives the books to the clerk. Then the clerk asks Nacha for her library card. The clerk reads the number on Nacha’s card with the computer scanner.

Clerk: I’m sorry, but you can’t check out three books.

Nacha: Why not?

Clerk: You have some overdue books. You must return the overdue books and pay the fine before you can check out more books.

Nacha: I don’t have any overdue books. What are the books?

Clerk: One is Tom Sawyer and the other is The Pearl.

Nacha: I’m sure I don’t have those books. I returned them last week.

Clerk: I don’t know what to say.

Nacha: I know I returned those books.

Clerk: Maybe you should go home and check again, and I’ll check the shelves for the books.

Nacha: No. I am positive I returned those books.

1. Who are the people in the conversation? What does Nacha want? What does the clerk say?

2. How does Nacha feel? How does the clerk feel?

3. Have you ever had a problem like this? How did you feel? What did you do?

4. Why does the clerk refuse to check out the books for Nacha? Why does Nacha refuse to go home and check for the books? Would this happen in your country? How would you deal with this problem in your native country?

5. What can Nacha do about this problem? Who can help Nacha with this problem? What would you do about this problem? What would happen if you did this?

ASKING FOR HELP AT THE LIBRARY: TEACHER NOTES

The purpose of this unit is to provide ESL students who are potential (and perhaps actual) library patrons with opportunities to practice functional language related to requesting assistance at the library. Many ESL student patrons are reluctant to go to the library because their limited language skills prevent them from asking for help or from understanding what they are being told.

In a survey completed by ESL students in adult education classes at two community colleges and a high school, four questions were asked about the need for assistance at the library. The first question was, "Do you need help to use the library?" Not surprisingly, the overwhelming response was "Yes." The next question was, "Do you ask for help from the people who work in the library?" Predictably, intermediate and advanced level students answered "Yes" more often than beginning level students. When students were asked, "If you don’t ask for help, what is the reason?" the most frequent response was, "I am afraid to talk." The fourth question queried students about the kinds of help they needed; responses varied from information about services to location of materials to recommendations for easy to read books. The students' responses to the survey were used to develop this unit.

COMPETENCIES FOR THIS UNIT

Students will be able to:

1. request assistance for locating places and materials in the library.

2. request information to solve problems related to using the library.

POSSIBLE AUTHENTIC MATERIALS FROM INDIVIDUAL LIBRARIES AND COMMUNITIES.

2. Library newsletters or flyers.

Samples of all of the above are provided in the suggested activities for this unit. Classroom practice with the above competencies prior to visiting the library will enable students to experience success when they apply what they have learned in class to new or similar situations.

ASKING FOR HELP AT THE LIBRARY: PROBLEM-POSING STORY #1

Problem-Posing Issue: What happens when you ask a question, but you can't understand the answer?

Jolanta is from Poland. She came to the United States five months ago. She was a nurse in Poland. She wants to be a nurse in the United States too. Jolanta studies everyday for the tests to be a nurse. She studies in the morning, in the afternoon, and in the evening. She always studies in her apartment. Jolanta stays in her apartment day and night.

Jolanta has a friend, Marie. Marie is worried about Jolanta. She thinks it is bad for Jolanta to study all day and all night. She thinks Jolanta should leave her apartment sometimes. So Marie tells Jolanta to go to the library to study.

Marie says to Jolanta, "You should go to the library to study. You can walk to the library. The fresh air and the exercise will be good for you!"

Jolanta listens to her friend Marie. She goes to the library to study at 4:00 p.m. Jolanta is very surprised. There are many children in the library. They are talking and laughing. Jolanta cannot study. She is very unhappy.

Finally, Jolanta goes to the Circulation Desk. She says, "I cannot study. It is very noisy. What can I do?" The clerk answers, "I'm sorry you're upset, but it's always very busy here after school. Why don't you go to the Adult Browsing Section? There should be less noise and fewer distractions over there."

Jolanta is very confused. She says, "Pardon me. I don't understand. Can you repeat that?" The clerk smiles and says the same thing again. Jolanta stands there.

Directions: Work with a small group. Discuss these questions. Then share your answers with the rest of the class.

It is Sunday afternoon and Gennaro is at the library. He is looking for a new job so he is reading the Sunday newspapers. The Sunday newspapers always have a lot of ads for jobs. Gennaro finds some ads for jobs in the newspaper. He goes to the copy machine to make copies of the ads.

There is a line in front of the copy machine. Two children are in front of Gennaro. They are copying pages from a book. They are copying many pages.

It is 3:50 p.m. The library closes at 4:00 p.m. on Sunday. Gennaro wants to make copies of the newspaper ads before the library closes. He wants to find out about the jobs on Monday morning. Finally the children leave.

Now it is 3:55 p.m. The library is going to close in five minutes. Gennaro puts $.25 in the copy machine. He pushes the START button. Nothing happens. Then Gennaro presses the COIN RETURN button. Nothing happens. He puts another $.25 in the machine. Again nothing happens. Gennaro pushes every button on the machine. Nothing happens.

A library clerk walks up to Gennaro. She says, "Excuse me, sir. The library is closing. You have to leave now." Gennaro says, "I can't leave. I must copy this paper. The machine has my money. Can you give me change?"

The clerk answers, "No sir. You must leave the library now. Please come back tomorrow. You can use the copy machine tomorrow."

Directions: Work with a small group. Discuss these questions. Then share your answers with the rest of the class.

ASKING FOR HELP AT THE LIBRARY: BINGO

Directions for the teacher: The purpose of this activity is to provide additional practice with the vocabulary that has already been introduced in this unit. Bingo is a culminating activity, not an initial one.

1) Preparation of the Bingo Cards: Give each student a blank bingo grid (see the next page). Have each student write the following 24 items in random order onto the bingo grid. (For lower level students, have them copy the words from the board. For higher level students, dictate the words.)

| Fiction Books | Computers | Mysteries |
| Magazines     | Study Area| Non-Fiction Books |
| Video Cassettes| Circulation Desk| Audio Cassettes |
| Easy Readers | Encyclopedias| Juvenile Books |
| Picture Books | Compact Disks| Tape Player |
| Vertical File | Reference Books| Pamphlet |
| Computer Catalog| Typewriters| Open Stacks |
|               | Newspapers| Paperbacks |

2) Giving the Bingo Cues: For very low level students, show pictures of the items above (if possible) or bring in actual objects (realia) and have the students place markers on the corresponding squares. For higher level students, describe or define the words (see examples below). Students then place markers on the corresponding squares.

Examples: People buy, rent, or borrow these to watch movies at home. (video cassettes)

These books have facts in alphabetical order. (encyclopedias)

There are no words or very few words in these books. (picture books)

People use these to listen to music or stories on tape players. (audio tapes)

If you want a quiet place to read, go to this area. (study area)

3) To teach students who are unfamiliar with bingo how to play the game, use the completed sample bingo card on the second following page. Playing bingo together when everyone has the same card makes the activity a cooperative—not a competitive venture.

RESOURCES, PROGRAMS, AND SERVICES AT THE LIBRARY: TEACHER NOTES

The purpose of this unit is to make ESL students aware of the many resources, programs, and services available to them and their families at the library. Students need to know that they can do more than borrow books, audio cassettes, videos and other materials at the library. They can use special resources for job searches, they can participate in book discussions, bring their children to story hours, meet authors, attend special interest workshops, attend literacy classes or meet with volunteer tutors, and so on. Unfamiliarity with the broad array of services and activities of libraries is not the only thing that prevents ESL students from fully utilizing them. Limited vocabulary and language problems also inhibit student use.

This unit introduces students to a number of activities for people of all ages at the library and provides associated language practice. Dialogues are used to reinforce vocabulary and concepts introduced in reading passages. They also provide additional opportunities for students to practice functional language and grammatical structures typically found in most ESL texts.

After completing this unit, teachers should encourage students to visit their local libraries to learn about the specific programs offered there. Ask students to bring flyers, announcements, newsletters and the like from their local libraries to class for further discussion and sharing. Help students develop cultural awareness by asking them to compare resources and programs found in libraries in the United States with libraries in their native countries.

COMPETENCIES FOR THIS UNIT

Students will be able to:

1. identify a variety of library programs and services for people of all ages.
2. register for a library program in person or on the phone.

RESOURCES, PROGRAMS, AND SERVICES AT THE LIBRARY: CONVERSATION
PRACTICE #1

Directions: Listen to your teacher read the conversation below aloud. Then practice the conversation with your teacher and classmates.

Angela Neri and her family go to the library a lot. They check out books to read every week. They also go to special programs at the library. Everyone in the family likes to read. Angela just heard about the used book sale. She wants to volunteer to help.

Librarian: Hello. This is Treetown Library.
Angela: May I speak to Jane Jones?
Librarian: May I ask who's calling?
Angela: This is Angela Neri. I want to volunteer for the used book sale.
Librarian: Just a minute. I'll get Jane.
(a minute passes)

Jane: Hello. This is Jane.
Angela: Hi. This is Angela Neri. I'd like to help set up the book sale on Friday.
Jane: That's great! We need a lot of help. What time can you come?
Angela: How about 2:00?
Jane: Wonderful. Just ask for me at the Circulation Desk. See you on Friday.
Angela: Okay. Bye.
Directions: Listen to the dialogue below. Then practice the dialogue with your teacher and your classmates.

Mrs. Patel has two children. One child is in second grade. The other child is in middle school. Both of Mrs. Patel's children have problems with reading. Mrs. Patel wants to help her children read better. She is at the library to register for some reading workshops.

Librarian: Can I help you?

Mrs. Patel: Yes. I want to register for the reading workshops.

Librarian: Which ones?

Mrs. Patel: The one on April 20th and the one on May 5th.

Librarian: There's also a workshop on April 7th. Do you want to register for that one too?

Mrs. Patel: No. I'm busy that night.

Librarian: Okay. May I have your name and phone number?

Mrs. Patel: It's Sheela Patel, 690-6075. How much do the workshops cost?

Librarian: Nothing. They're free.

Mrs. Patel: That's great!
THE BOOKMOBILE

Many large cities have more than one library. There is usually a large, downtown library and one or more smaller, neighborhood or branch libraries. But in some suburbs and small cities, there is one main library and a bookmobile.

A bookmobile is a traveling library. It is a large van or a small bus with books, videos, compact disks, magazines, and other library materials. Main libraries have large collections with thousands and thousands of books and other materials. Bookmobiles have smaller collections with only 3,000 to 3,500 books and materials. Some people cannot go to a library. Sometimes it's too far away from their homes. Often people can't walk, drive, or take a bus to the library. Bookmobiles bring library materials to them.

Bookmobiles have most of the same materials that libraries have. But they usually only have popular and current materials. For example, a ten year old magazine won't be on the Bookmobile. But people can check out this week's Time magazine or a best-selling book. The Bookmobile has both fiction and nonfiction books. Often there are some reference books for school children to use for assignments or reports too. People request materials from the main library and the Bookmobile delivers them. People can return materials to the Bookmobile the next time it comes, or they can return materials to the main library.

The Bookmobile in Arlington Heights stops at schools, parks, apartments, and condos. Sometimes it also goes to nursing homes, retirement homes, and businesses. The Bookmobile goes to those places two or three times a month. It may stay at each place for an hour or more.

Have you ever seen a Bookmobile? Have you ever used one? Does your community have a Bookmobile? Call your local library and find out.
Mr. Gómez is at home. He is reading the newsletter from the library. He reads something interesting. A dietitian is going to talk about health and diabetes on March 22nd. Mr. Gómez’s mother has diabetes, so he wants to know more about it. Mr. Gómez calls the library.

Librarian: Hello. This is Hilltop Library. May I help you?

Mr. Gómez: Yes. I want to register for "Important Health Facts" on March 22nd.

Librarian: May I have your name and telephone number?

Mr. Gómez: My name is Max Gómez and my phone number is 277-9286.

Librarian: Is that a home or work number?

Mr. Gómez: Home.

Librarian: Okay. You’re registered.

Mr. Gómez: Thanks.

Directions: Now look at page 6 again. What other programs do people have to register for? Write the programs on the lines below. Then practice the dialogue again with new information.

UNDERSTANDING LIBRARY RULES: TEACHER NOTES

The purpose of this unit is to familiarize English as a Second Language students with appropriate library behaviors and common library rules so they feel more comfortable using library materials and services. Essentially, students will be learning both spoken (explicit) and unspoken (implicit) library rules. They will read, interpret, and discuss some of the common rules and regulations which govern library use (e.g., using a book drop to return books after hours or returning materials on time to avoid fines.) They will also observe, interpret, and discuss a variety of cultural behaviors (such as lowering one's voice or being helped according to one's place in line rather than one's gender or age.)

In the course of developing this curriculum, workshops were conducted for staff on the topic of "Communicating Effectively with Nonnative Speakers of English" at the three cooperating libraries in Elgin, Arlington Heights, and Waukegan. Each of the participants received, as part of the workshop, a list of language tips for communicating effectively with limited English proficient patrons (See Page xiii). The list of tips is similar in intent to the printed rules and/or policies which libraries disseminate to their patrons. Unfortunately for nonnative speakers of English, the difficulties associated with understanding library rules are not only limited to language use.

Violations of the unspoken and unconscious rules of "library culture" may contribute to misunderstandings and negative feelings among library staff and patrons, both native and nonnative. For example, it is important for patrons to know not only that they must pay for lost materials and that fines or suspended library privileges may also result, but that there are acceptable ways to "protest" or seek redress in the event of errors made by library staff. This unit will assist students in solving problems related to library rules.

COMPETENCIES FOR THIS UNIT

Students will be able to:

1. read, interpret, and respond appropriately to library rules, regulations, and policies

2. identify rules of courtesy, time, punctuality, and conduct in the library
POSSIBLE AUTHENTIC MATERIALS FROM INDIVIDUAL LIBRARIES AND COMMUNITIES

1. Posted signs
2. Library newsletters or flyers

Samples of all of the above are provided in the suggested activities for this unit. Classroom practice with the above competencies prior to visiting the library will enable students to experience success when they apply what they have learned in class to new or similar situations.

UNDERSTANDING LIBRARY RULES: TEACHER NOTES FOR PRE-READING ACTIVITY #1 AND READING PASSAGE #1

This unit stresses knowing the spoken and unspoken rules associated with using libraries. Not all students should be asked to read the passage. It will be too difficult for some students and too easy for others. Here are some suggested activities for teaching the content of the passage:

1. BEGINNING LEVEL STUDENTS (SPL LEVELS 0-3)

   Materials: cardstock
colored markers

   Make signs with these words:
   - QUIET
   - DO NOT RE-SHELF BOOKS
   - DO NOT PUT VIDEOS IN BOOK DROP
   - COPIES - $.05
   - NO FOOD OR DRINK
   - THIS IS A SMOKE-FREE BUILDING

   Use pictures to establish the meaning of these signs. You may use your own pictures or duplicate the ones from the curriculum. Have students match the pictures with the signs.

   To extend this activity, visit your local library or the libraries your students attend and copy other signs that you see. Authentic environmental print from your students' libraries will enhance this unit.

2. HIGH-BEGINNING/LOW INTERMEDIATE STUDENTS (SPL LEVELS 4-6)

   Distribute Pre-Reading Activity #1. Ask students to work with a partner. They should read each sentence and decide together if it is true or false. The purpose of this activity is to get the students talking to each other about the content of the unit. Rules may vary from library to library so for most of the questions there are no "right" or "wrong" answers. If rightness or wrongness is an issue for you or your students, check with the library or libraries in your area.

3. INTERMEDIATE/ADVANCED STUDENTS (SPL LEVELS 7+)

   Follow the same general directions as above, but make this change-- have the students check the rightness or wrongness of their own answers at their local library.

Libraries are special places for people to read, study, and learn. People of all ages—children, teenagers, and adults go to libraries. Sometimes hundreds of people are in the library at the same time. They are reading books, newspapers, and magazines. They are using typewriters or computers. They are checking out audio cassettes, videos, and compact disks. School children are doing homework or studying for tests. Librarians are reading stories out loud to small children. Libraries are very busy places!

Libraries are busy places, but they are usually quiet places. Most people do not speak loudly or make a lot of noise when they are in a library. They use soft voices so they don’t disturb other people. If a person talks loudly, people will say, "Be quiet." Some libraries have QUIET signs to remind people to speak softly.

There are other signs in the library too. DO NOT RE-SHELVE BOOKS means don’t return books to shelves. If you take a book off a shelf, you shouldn’t put it back. Books in the library are in alphabetical order. When a book is in the wrong place on a shelf, other people won’t be able to find it. Here are some more signs you can see in the library:

DO NOT PUT VIDEOS IN BOOK DROP

COPIES - $.05

NO FOOD OR DRINK

THIS IS A SMOKE-FREE BUILDING
Not all of the rules in the library are on signs for people to read. One of the rules is that people have to wait in line for help when the library is busy. It is not important if someone is a child or adult, a man or a woman. Librarians do not help men before they help women. They do not help adults before they help children. People must wait their turn in the line.

How can people learn the rules of the library when the rules are not on signs? Children learn the rules from their teachers and parents. Adults learn the rules by watching and listening to each other. They can also learn the rules in English class.

9. replacement to find another that is the same (if you lose a book and can find one exactly like it, sometimes you can give that book to the library)

i) bicycles are to be parked in bicycle racks only. The entrance to the library must not be blocked.

Any patron who willfully violates the rules above shall be excluded from use of the facilities for specified periods of time based on the severity of the willful violation as determined by the Administrator. Any expulsion may be appealed to the Board of Library Trustees by seeking a hearing at its next regularly scheduled meeting.

UNDERSTANDING LIBRARY RULES: PROBLEM-POSING STORY #1

Problem-Posing Issue: Unsupervised children in the library

Directions: Work with a partner or a small group. Read the story below and then talk about the questions.

Mui Pham is in kindergarten. She is five years old. Her sister Long is in first grade. She is six years old. Mui and Long's parents work. Everyday after school the two girls go to a neighbor's house until their parents come home from work. But today, when they arrive at the neighbor's house, nobody is home.

The little girls do not know where their neighbor is. They don't know what to do. Finally Long says, "Let's go to the library. It's only two blocks from here. A lot of kids go to the library after school." So Mui and Long walk to the library.

Long is right. There are a lot of kids in the library after school. Some kids are doing their homework. A few kids are playing games on the computers. Mui sees the puzzles and games. She takes a puzzle and begins to play. Long is looking at the picture books.

Then a librarian come to talk to Mui. She asks, "Who is with you in the library?" Mui says, "My sister, Long." The librarian asks, "Where is your sister?" "Over there," says Mui as she points to her sister. Then the librarian asks Mui, "Where are your parents?" "At work." Mui answers.

The librarian says, "Come with me, please." Mui is frightened. She does not know where the librarian is taking her. She begins to cry. Long sees her sister crying. She runs over to her to find out what is wrong. The librarian says, "Please don't cry. I only want to call your parents. You girls are too young to be in the library alone."

The librarian calls Mr. and Mrs. Pham, but they are not home. The librarian calls the Pham's neighbors, but they are not home.

1. Who are the people in the story? How old are they? Where are they? What are they doing?
2. What is the problem? How do the children feel? How does the librarian feel?
3. Have you ever had a problem like this? How did you feel? What did you do?
4. Why do the children have this problem? In your native country, would this be a problem? How would you deal with this situation in your native country?
5. What would you do about this problem? What would happen if you did this?
