The California Indian Library Collections (CILC) was funded with the aim of returning unique cultural materials in three media types—sound recordings, photographs, and text—to California's Native Americans and making the collections available to all citizens through their local libraries. This document includes the first four volumes of the finding guide, produced to provide access to the data from the photographic data collection which includes more than 7500 photographs: (1) Volume 1 contains the table of contents for the entire eight-volume finding guide, an introduction to the CILC (including tribal fact sheets, maps of the California tribes, a description of basket shapes and uses, and a list of county CILC collections), and the first part of the photographic index sorted by tribe (Achomawi through Pomo/Kashaya Pomo); (2) Volume 2 contains the second part of the photographic index sorted by tribe (Pomo/Kashaya Pomo through Yurok); (3) Volume 3 contains indexes to all photographs, sorted by tribe; and (4) Volume 4 contains indexes to all photographic data, sorted by category. Much of the information in this publication was collected in the early decades of 20th century. While every effort has been made to ensure the reliability of the data, the California Indian Library Collections does not guarantee accuracy. Corrections brought to the attention of the publisher will be corrected in future editions.
How to Use the California State Library Finding Guide

The California State Library Finding Guide to the California Indian Library Collections consists of eight volumes. This material is a compilation of the California Indian Library Collections found in 18 northern and two central California county libraries (see Volume 1, p. 24, for locations of county libraries). The material in the California State Library (CSL) finding guide is composed of an introduction, two indexes, and a bibliography. In order that the information be accessed as easily as possible, the data for each index and the bibliography have been sorted in several manners. Following this page, an organizational chart graphically illustrates the structure of the finding guides.

Introduction. Included in the “Introduction” is a brief history of the California Indian Library Collections (CILC), and description of the archival sources at the University of California, Berkeley, where Native American materials may be found. Tribal Fact Sheets in this section textually correlate various tribal groups with California counties where they live; the first two of four maps graphically reproduce this information. A textual hierarchical listing of linguistic groups relates to the second pair of maps which illustrates similar information. Alternate tribal name spellings are also included. An illustrated text explains the Native Americans’ use of different basketry types.

Photographic Data. Following the Introduction, the first group of indexes is found in the section entitled, “I. Photographic Data.” This is the cataloguing data pertaining to the photographs found in the 51 CSL photographic books. The first two pages in this section are instructions on how to use the photograph books, and how to order duplicate photographs. Instructions on how to use the finding guide photographic indexes follow.

The photographic indexes are arranged in several manners. First, the data is sorted by tribe, then within each tribal group the information is sorted by title (the name of the photograph). The tribal data is then sorted by category (the subject of the photograph, such as ‘Household’ or ‘People’). Therefore, within the data for one tribe in the first sorting, all like names are together. In the second sorting, all like objects are together. The next section is all the photographic data for all the tribes in the CSL collection sorted alphabetically by title. Lastly, all the photographic data is sorted by category, placing the data for all objects in like categories.

As an example, to find photographs of the Porno doctor Essie Parrish, go to the “Table of Contents, Volumes 1 through 8” in Volume 1, page iv. Under “Photographic Data,” note the finding guide volume and page number for “Porno Sorted by Title.” In this case, the “Porno Sorted by Title” will begin in Volume 1, page 353. In Volume 1, after page 353, within the ‘E’s, data will be given on Essie Parrish. The information will indicate the CSL photograph book(s) number and page numbers (for example, Porno, Book 36:47b) for all photographs of Essie Parrish.

Sound Recording Data. The next section, “II. Sound Recording Data,” begins with a brief history of the three sound recording groups. These groups have been catalogued separately because the data for each were not equal. Instructions are also included on how to order duplicate copies of the audio cassette tapes and how to use the sound recording indexes in the finding guide.

In general, the same method is used for arranging the data for the sound recording indexes as was used for the photographic indexes. In order to facilitate retrieval of the information, each of the three indexes — “Indexes to ‘Keeling Guide’ Sound Recordings,” “Indexes to ‘Rodriguez-Nieto Guide’ Sound Recordings” and “Indexes to the Hodgson Sound Recordings” — are presented in four different arrangements: 1) sorted by title, 2) by tribe, 3) by performer, and 4) by audio tape number.

Bibliographies. The last section, “III. Bibliographies,” includes instructions on how to order copies of written materials. This is followed by a guide to the bibliographic format used in the finding guide. The bibliography of the CSL textual collections has first been sorted to produce a tribal bibliography for each tribe in the twenty counties that have California Indian Library Collections. The last section of the finding guide, “Bibliography Arranged by Call Number,” is the entire CSL bibliography arranged alphabetically by the California State Library call number.

INTRODUCTION

Mike Weeks
Phoebe Apperson Hearst Museum of Anthropology
The California Indian Library Collections (CILC) was established in 1988 with funding provided by the federal Library Services and Construction Act, administered by the California State Library in Sacramento. CILC is located at the Phoebe Apperson Hearst Museum of Anthropology (formerly the Robert H. Lowie Museum of Anthropology), University of California at Berkeley.

In 1987, Gary E. Strong, the California State Librarian, recognized the growing needs of the state's underserved communities as well as the steady growth of a diverse population. At that time he called for a "rethinking of public library services, a broadening of awareness and valuing of the diversity of the people that compose and will compose California." Under the heading of Partnerships for Change (PFC), Mr. Strong announced programs that would build on previous efforts to strengthen responsive library services. The PFC mission is to award community grants, develop a system of ethnic resource centers, heighten statewide awareness, and create forums for future change. The California Indian Library Collections project was funded as an adjunct to this vision with the aim of returning unique cultural materials to Native Americans and making the collections available to all citizens via their local libraries.

Research on the state's Native Americans has been mostly published in obscure scholarly sources and few specialists in the cultural materials exist outside major museums and universities. Native American collections in public libraries have not addressed the needs of the more rural regions in the State, nor have the materials available to public education always been adequate. In order to overcome these limitations, an alliance was formed between the California State Library (CSL) and the Hearst Museum of Anthropology to make use of the priceless resources accumulated over many decades at the University of California at Berkeley. These archives – which consist of many unpublished manuscripts and field notes, obscure scholarly articles, turn-of-the-century photographs as well as rare recordings of songs and dances – have remained essentially unavailable to the general public. The Hearst Museum and CSL resolved to select and duplicate these materials from the vast anthropological, linguistical, and historical accumulation, and place them in a library facility in each California county.

After the thirteen University of California, Berkeley, campus archives were surveyed, mini-archives for each county library were extracted from the University holdings. Each county archive reflects the culture of the particular Native American tribal units who live, or lived, in that county. The county sets are augmented by a composite collection housed in the California Room at the State Library in Sacramento. The composite set will provide Native Americans, scholars, and interested library patrons convenient access to the entire collection in one locale. A finding guide specific to each county collection and a composite set of finding guides for the CSL collection are available to help access the materials.

The CILC project is also a cooperative effort between the county libraries and the Native Americans living in the area. County librarians curate the collections while Native Californians are the cultural and moral proprietors of the collections. For many Native Californians, hearing the tribal songs and seeing the family photographs for the first time means discovering their historical roots. Each county library generously provides funding for staffing, reference service, and maintenance. CILC encourages local involvement in preserving – and passing on – Native Californian cultural heritage as an essential representation of the Native American view of the world.

Many people have worked on the project. The first project director, Dr. Lee Davis, the CILC staff, and University of California, Berkeley, student interns were responsible for assembling the collections. Photographs from the Hearst Museum archives were duplicated by Dr. Lee Brumbaugh who has also served in an advisory capacity. In 1992, the CILC staff and interns, under the direction of the current project manager, Dr. Jeannine Davis-Kimball, began to organize the materials and place the information on computerized databases to assist library patrons in finding materials they need. These databases form the core of the collection's finding guides for the first twenty counties as well as the CSL composite set.

We at CILC are eager for library patrons to give us their reactions to the collections. In particular, we would like to have feedback on the photographic collection. Instructions for sending new or corrected information is found on page one of each photo book.
Archival Sources at the University of California

The development of the field of anthropology coincided with the early years of the University of California at Berkeley. In 1901, Alfred Kroeber was appointed the first professor of anthropology at the University. Kroeber’s drive and energy in this field was responsible for the extraordinary documentation of Native Californian cultures. As a result, the University is fortunate to have the world’s largest collection of California Indian cultural materials.

Native Californian cultures are extremely diverse. They are also composed of many different tribes and languages. During his working years, Kroeber witnessed the decline of Indian populations in California. With the help of other distinguished early anthropologists, he mapped the Native Californian cultures within the framework of cultural anthropology. These other collaborators (and at times competitors) included C. Hart Merriam, Edward Sapir, Pliny Earle Goddard, John P. Harrington, Roland B. Dixon and Edward W. Gifford. The University of California Publications in American Archaeology and Ethnology (UCPAAE) began publishing in 1903. There soon followed a steady production of monographs dealing with special tribal topics including religion, basketry, social organization, physical anthropology, and archaeology. The UCPAAE series includes 50 volumes and contains 241 contributions.

In the early 1950s, the Department of Linguistics began to focus on Indian languages. Graduate students working in the field of Native American studies research Indian languages, a discipline that contributes to the understanding and reconstruction of Californian prehistory. In this department, student research has contributed to the compilation of dictionaries and to the publication of valuable Indian folklore. Beginning in the late 1960s and into the 1970s, a resurgent academic interest led by Lowell Dean occurred in California anthropology.

Eight archives on the campus have significant quantities of California Indian cultural materials. These archives are extensive, diverse and extremely important in the study of the Californian Native American populations. A discussion of each archive and its holdings, as they relate to Native Californian cultural history, follows.

The Hearst Museum has the largest anthropological holdings west of the Mississippi and, most importantly, the largest collection of California Indian materials in the world. The museum was created in 1901 by the Regents of the University with support from Phoebe Apperson Hearst, the mother of William Randolph Hearst. In 1911, Ishi, the last Yahi, lived and worked at the museum until shortly before his death in 1916. In the early 1930s, ethnographic collections were consolidated in Berkeley, but it was not until they were installed in Kroeber Hall in the early 1960s that they became available for broader research. Today, in addition to a collection of approximately 10,000 photographs, 246,658 ethnographic and archaeological objects are housed in the museum.

In 1961, archaeological archives from the California Archaeological Survey were incorporated into the University's Archaeological Research Facility. This facility, headed for many years by Robert F. Heizer, supports work done by the archaeologists in the Department of Anthropology at Berkeley. Detailed written and photographic records of archaeological excavations, including a great wealth of information on Native Californian cultures, are maintained at the Research Facility.

With over seven million volumes, 90,000 serials, 350,000 maps, 55,000 aerial photographs, 4,000 atlases, and extensive unpublished manuscripts, the University's library collections are the fourth largest university collection in the nation. In addition to The Library, many branch libraries are devoted to specific academic disciplines. As shelving for library materials is limited, many volumes are stored off campus at the Richmond Field Station. Upon request and with a few days notice, these materials will be brought to The Library. On-line cataloguing databases, GLADIS (limited to U.C. Berkeley) and MELVYL (including the collections of the nine U.C. campuses and other entities), as well as the traditional card system (listing U.C. Berkeley materials acquired through 1977) assist in locating specific items.

The Anthropology Library was established at the same time as the Department of Anthropology, and its first librarian was Pliny Goddard. It is one of the nation's principal reference libraries dedicated to the subject of anthropology. The Library has more than 66,800 bound volumes and 1,001 serials. Its holdings are on-line and are included in the GLADIS and MELVYL databases.

The final major library source is the Bancroft Library. Non-circulating books, some 47 million manuscripts, field notes written by A. L. Kroeber, R.F. Heizer, and other Berkeley faculty; and other materials, are found in this rare book, manuscript, and special collections library. Its photographic collection includes many California Native Americans as subjects.

A non-circulating collection of language materials is found at The Survey of California and Other Indian Languages, a specially funded center developed and used by students and others doing field research. Some of the material, consisting only of word lists, translated tales, and stories, can be found as it was originally noted down by the researcher. Fifty dissertations on various aspects of California Indian linguistics are available at the adjacent Department of Linguistics.

The Language Laboratory was established in 1960 to provide classroom support to the College of Letters and Sciences. The Laboratory also houses the sound recording archives of The Survey of California and Other Indian Languages. More than half of the eighty-eight Native American languages recorded on tape at the Language Laboratory are of the California Indian languages.

In 1916 the University Extension Center for Media and Independent Learning began to provide the educational community with extremely high quality visual materials. In the early 1960s the Center for Media worked with Samuel A. Barrett, a Lowie Museum research ethnologist, on the American Indian Film Project. The result of that collaboration is fifteen titles, called the American Indian Series. These films depict traditional ways of American Indian people with a special emphasis on California Native Americans. Unedited film footage from this project, which is not available to the public, is housed at the Hearst Museum of Anthropology. Many other videos and films dealing with Native Americans may be rented and/or purchased from the Center for Media.

Information for accessing or ordering the various materials in the California Indian Library Collections is located at the beginning of each specific section of this finding guide.

Basket Shapes and Uses

Plant Food Gathering and Transport

Gift/Storage Basket. The gift/storage basket is presented as a gift and is used for transporting goods or plant foods. Typical size: ht. 30"; dia. across mouth: 25".

Seedbeater. Using the seedbeater, edible wild seeds were harvested by knocking seeds off the plant and into the burden basket. Typical length: 20".

Acorn and Seed Meal Winnowing, “Sifting” Baskets, and Trays. “Sifting,” winnowing baskets, and trays are round or triangular. The baskets are deep while the trays are shallow or flat. Close-twined round or triangular “sifters” were used to separate fine, fully-ground acorn meal from the coarser meal which required additional pounding. Seeds were also sifted with these basketry implements. The fine meal was separated by a side-to-side shaking action. Both closed- and open-weave baskets and trays were used for winnowing. Typical dia.: 20".

Openwork Winnowing Basket. Dia. 20".

Triangular Basket. Length 20".
Mortar and Pestle. Acorns were the staple food source of the California Indians. These nuts were pounded into meal on stone mortars. The funnel-shaped mortar baskets, with a hole at the bottom, were used to concentrate the meal in the bottom of the basket onto the mortar rock. This prevented the meal from flying off the mortar during pounding. Typical dia. across the top: 14".

Storage and Food Serving Baskets

Large Storage Baskets. Large twined storage baskets for acorns and other non-perishable foods often have sides incurving toward the top. In north central California the baskets are round or globular in shape. In the northwestern area of the state the large storage baskets are typically taller with a larger opening. Fancy or highly decorated gift baskets were used for storing different items. Typical dia. across largest area: 30".
Food Preparation and Serving Baskets

Cooking Baskets. Cooking baskets have flared, straight or slightly incurved sides. Red-hot rocks are repeatedly dropped into the basket until the acorn soup or mush is cooked. The large (24" or more) cooking baskets have flaring sides to make it easier to remove the cooled rocks. These large baskets would probably have been used to cook for the extended-family households typical in pre-contact times. Today feasts for community gatherings are prepared in the baskets. Small cooking baskets (12" or smaller) may have a slightly incurved profile but are more open (so that rocks can be removed) than the storage basket with strongly incurved sides.

Food Serving Platters. In many parts of northern California, openwork twined platters were used to serve roasted fish or meat. Typical dia.: 12-15".

Food Serving Baskets. Small coiled or twined gift baskets with flaring sides were used for individual servings of acorn soup or mush, and for dipping and pouring water. Typical dia. across mouth: 3" to 6".

Specialized Baskets

Shell money and other valuables were often stored in small, necked gift baskets whose shapes are reminiscent of pottery. Typical dia.: 7".
Lidded “Trinket” Baskets were a post-contact innovation in northwestern California. They were made primarily for sale to European collectors. Typical dia.: 6”.

Basketry Tobacco Pouches were also made in northwestern California. Typical dia.: 3”.

Gambling Trays, shallow, round woven basketry were used by women while playing gambling games. Typical dia.: 20”.

Fancy Gift Baskets

Elliptical or Boat-Shaped Baskets. These baskets had various uses. Small ones (typically 5” long) were often used to store valuables. Shaman and native doctor’s paraphernalia were stored in medium-sized baskets (typically 14” long). The very large elliptical baskets (typically 30” or more in length) were used to store dance equipment and regalia.

Treasured Gift Baskets. The Pomo tribes are famous for their elaborately decorated coiled-baskets used as gifts to store small valuables. Such “treasure” baskets were (and are) more valuable than the items stored in them. The baskets are decorated with beads or feathers. Sometimes they are completely covered with red woodpecker feathers (“sun” baskets), or with a combination of brightly colored feathers. The feathers were tightly stitched into the basket weave. Such valuable baskets were presented as gifts to friends as well as for wedding gifts. They are also used as sacrificial item when a person who owned the basket dies. These elaborate baskets are also made for sale to collectors. Typical dia.: 7”.

Tobacco Pouch. Dia. 6”.
Lidded Trinket Basket. Dia. 6”.
Gambling Tray. Dia. 20”.

Elliptical Basket. Length 5-30”.

Sun Basket. Dia. 7”.
Feather Basket. Dia. 7”.
Miniature Baskets displayed the basketweaver’s skill. They were given as a gift or sold, and sometimes were used in doctoring ceremonies. Typical dia.: 1/4” - 2”.

Other Specialized Basket Types

Water Bottle. A water-proof twined weave was used for these baskets from the central area of eastern California. Typical dia.: 10”.

Basketry Water Bottle. Dia. 10”.

Basketry Cap. Basketry caps were worn in the northwest and areas of eastern California. Plain, everyday caps were worn by both men and women. Fancy dress-up caps of the finest quality twined weave are still made and worn by the women today. Typical dia.: 8”.

Basketry Cap. Dia. 8”.

Basketry Cradle. Basketry cradles were used by all northern California tribes. The baby was fastened into the cradle which was carried on the mother’s back. Typical length is 30” although a variety of sizes were made to correspond to the age of the infant.

Basketry Cradle. Lenth 30”.

Basketry Moccasins. Some tribes also used basketry techniques to weave foot-gear or moccasins out of tule rushes or other plant materials.

Basketry moccasins. Length 10”.
Traps

Birds and fish were the principal animals caught with traps. In California, salmon and certain other migratory fish were second only to acorns as a food staple. Basketry traps were made in three main forms. A "plunge" trap was used to scoop up fish. "Invaginated" traps had a narrow, funnel-shaped opening leading the fish into a second chamber from which they were unable to exit. A third trap type is long and funnel-shaped. Upon entering the trap, the woodpecker, quail or certain fish became wedged into the small end. The size, structure, and weave of each trap varied according to the specific animal. Three types of traps are illustrated: the Pomo invaginated fish-trap, typical dia. at the mouth: 18"; the Atsugewi basketry fish-trap, typical dia. at the mouth: 12"; and the Pomo woodpecker trap, typical dia. at the mouth: 4".

Invaginated Fish Trap. Dia. 18".

Fish Trap. Dia. 12".

Woodpecker Trap. Dia. 4".
Basket Weaving Methods

A basket was worked, and formed of grasses, twigs and fibers into a piece of artistic design – sometimes only to be admired for its artistry, but usually created to serve a further purpose. Baskets were made to serve all the container needs of the early California peoples who had no pottery. Not merely handwoven, they were filled with meaningful designs, symbols, even stories, following tribal tradition. Beyond tradition, weavers exercised artistic freedom leaving their individual marks. Three types of basket weaving is illustrated below.

Coiling. A flexible rod, or cluster of 3 rods, is coiled and continuously bound to the preceding level. This method produces a strong but quite stiff basket or tray.

Simple Open-Work Twining is used for traps and some winnowing trays. As in cloth weaving, a horizontal weft goes under and over the vertical warp. Two or three pieces of horizontal weft material may also be twisted around each other.

Tightly Woven Twining. This weave is used for cooking baskets, caps, water bottles, and for other items where waterproofing is required, or where flexibility is essential. The weaving includes a variety of complex and difficult techniques and designs.

The California Indian Library Collections would like to thank the Director and staff of the Phoebe Apperson Hearst Museum, University of California, Berkeley, for much time and effort in advising and assisting during the preparation of the collections. The work could never have been completed without the many hours of work contributed by interns from many departments at the University of California and numerous volunteers. We want to also thank students from Professor Robert Black's Native American Studies Class at U.C. Berkeley who also contributed to the California Indian bibliographies.

How to Use The Photograph Books

The California State Library Collection of photographs is bound in 51 volumes. The material includes books pertaining to the Achomawi, Atsugewi, California Athapaskan (unspecified), Chilula, Coast Miwok, Hupa, Karok, Kato, Klamath Lake, Klamath River (unspecified), Konkow, Lake Miwok, Lassik, Maidu, Mattole, Modoc, Nisenan, Nomlaki, Nongatl, Northeastern California (unspecified), Northern Paiute, Northwestern California (unspecified), Patwin, Pomo/Kashia Pomo, Shasta, Sierra Miwok, Sinkyone, Tolowa, Wailaki, Wappo, Washoe, Western Mono, Whilkut, Wintu, Wintun (unspecified), Wiyot, Yana, Yokuts, Yuki, and Yurok tribes. Photographs of Ishi are in the Yana photograph book. In addition to the photographs, two different types of textual pages have been included in each book. Each page is divided into boxes. In the first box at the top of all pages three pieces of information are given

1. the number for this specific book in the photograph collection;
2. the county where the collection is located;
3. the Native California Indian tribe to which the book pertains.

A table of contents follows immediately, listing in sequential order all the photographs in the book. The title of the photograph is listed to the left, the page number to the right. You will note that page numbers below 10 begin with a “0” followed by a number. All page numbers are followed by a letter. For example, the first photograph is on page “01a.” This is page 1, photograph a.

a. far upper right, page number and photograph location on the page
b. left, title of the photograph
c. left, a general subject category for the photograph
d. left, location where the photograph was taken, if known
e. left, Cat 1#: refers to the Phoebe Apperson Hearst Museum catalogue number for that particular object
f. right, Cat 15#: refers to the Phoebe Apperson Hearst Museum photograph negative catalogue number

a. Page No.: 33d
b. Title: Basket; globular; plain twined.
c. Subject: Household
d. Location: [Northwestern California]
e. Cat 1#: blank (indicating Cat 15# is the identification for this photograph) or 1-528
f. Cat 15#: 1-233729

Since the data on the textual page opposite a photograph refers to only one object, a different method was used for those photographs containing more than one object. For example, if photograph “a” on page 36 contains three objects, it will need three corresponding records to describe each object. The first record appears on the page facing the photograph, as in the case of single-object photographs. The two extra records appear on completed text pages without photographs, coded “999,” which have been inserted at the back of the book. In these records, the number in parentheses (which follows the code “999”) refers to the page where the photograph for this information may be found. In our example, the extra two records would be numbered 999 (36a).

Also included in each photo book is a glossary listing the Alternate Name and/or Spelling for Indigenous Groups, and Indigenous Language Groups. The two “Tribal Fact Sheets” list the tribes in each county and the counties in which a tribe is located. “Basket Shapes and Uses” illustrates and defines the use of each basket type. This material is also found in the Introduction to California State Library Finding Guide.

So that library patrons can give CILC feedback on the photographs, pages without photo information have been inserted at the end of the book. Corrected or new information may be added to this form. The form should be given to the librarian, who will forward a copy to the California Indian Library Collections office. If you add information, please include your name and the date so that we can give you credit.

Also see the finding guide for additional information, including how to order copies of photographs.

How to Use Indexes for Photographic Data

The photographic data found in the indexes for the California State Library photographs have several arrangements in the finding guide. By selecting the appropriate index, it is possible to quickly find specific information. The arrangements are: (1) data pertaining to each tribe sorted by title (general description of the photograph); the same data rearranged (2) by category (household, people, ritual, etc.). All data from the 40 tribes represented in this photographic collection are combined into one database. All data are then sorted by (3) tribe and then rearranged by (4) category.

To find a specific basket (geographic location, person’s name, etc.), go to the index of the appropriate tribe (“Sorted by Title”) then look for the specific basket (geographic location, person’s name, etc.). Following is an example of an entry and the information available about one photograph:

Example representing (1) and (3):

Basket, “granary”; hemispherical

Published: U.C. Publications in American Archaeology and Ethnology, vol. 22. no. 2, pl. 19
Cat. # 1-334
Pomo
Bk 28:05a

Title

It is possible to find all the specific materials (household, ritual, hunting and fishing, etc.) belonging to one tribe, or to all the tribes represented in the entire California State Library collection, by consulting the “by Category” arrangement. Following are the data for one pipe:

Example representing (2) and (4):
