In October 1992, the Disabled Student Programs and Services and Student Placement Offices of Palomar College initiated a partnership program with existing service agencies and employers to enable individuals with disabilities to enter the employment mainstream and to establish a safety-net support system within the work environment. The program developed two courses to prepare students for employment and to provide support on work adjustment issues. In addition to counseling, assessment, and placement services, the program also selects a worksite peer-mentor who is trained and given incentives to support the adjustment of the new employee. The program relies on existing campus services and partnerships with employers and community service agencies. By 1994, the project had accomplished the following: (1) a Transition Committee, involving 21 representatives of community agencies and educational institutions, was formed and agreed to meet monthly to advise the placement project, share information and concerns, promote cooperation, and avoid duplication of effort; (2) an active 35-member advisory board including representatives from the college and business community was formed and has stimulated a true partnership between the project and business community; (3) intake, screening, and transition plan procedures have all been modified to streamline and enhance the effectiveness of the project; (4) curricula and syllabi for vocational preparation and work adjustment courses were modified and approved; and (5) 21 students had been placed. Brochures and other program materials are included. (KP)

PROGRAM ABSTRACT

In October, 1992, the Disabled Student Programs and Services and Placement Offices of Palomar College initiated a partnership program with existing service agencies and employers with the purposes of enabling individuals with disabilities which impact learning to enter the employment mainstream and of establishing a safety-net support system within that environment.

The program developed two courses designed to prepare students for employment and to provide support pertaining to work adjustment issues once the person begins a work placement. In addition to counseling, assessment, and placement services, the program also includes a peer-mentor component which is applied in selected cases. A peer mentor is an existing employee at the worksite who is provided training and incentives to support the adjustment of the new employee.

The program relies heavily on existing campus services and linkages (partnerships) with employers and community service agencies. Involvement of an active Advisory Board (35 members) and Transition Committee (21 members) are key features. The result is a cooperative, efficient arrangement which benefits students with disabilities, employers striving to employ and accommodate those individuals. The project brings together elements of the community which heretofore did not know how to cooperate.
Project Activities Summary 1993-94

Goal: To develop a model placement program at Palomar College for persons with targeted disabilities.

Objective 1: Implement an additional three linkage agreements for referrals and shared services with service agencies to provide comprehensive and coordinated services for students in the career placement program by 1/15/94. Amend existing agreements as necessary to clarify roles and allow for a sharing of information.

Objective 2: Implement an additional six linkage/partnership agreements with selected employers by 1/15/94. Amend and enhance existing agreements to include more employer participation in advisory boards and classroom activities, and encourage continued involvement in development of work experiences and peer mentor arrangements.

Objective 3: Modify intake, screening, and transition plan procedures by 12/1/93.

Objective 4: Modify curriculum and syllabi for the two vocational courses by 3/1/94.

Objective 5: Conduct a minimum of thirty vocational placements for students to provide an opportunity for career exploration and to identify strengths and develop confidence in their abilities. Placements will be accomplished by 9/30/94.

Objective 6: Provide a minimum of five inservice training and orientation sessions for faculty, staff, employers and mentors to increase their understanding of disabilities and to enhance working relationships with these populations by 9/30/94.

Objective 7: Enhance, refine and improve technical information on the adaptation of school and work environments so that they are accessible and functional for persons with disabilities by 1/30/94.

Objective 8: Develop adaptations to the model that will translate basic principles to other groups by 9/30/94.

Objective 9: Develop dissemination methods and materials by 9/30/94.
Objective 1  The projected number of linkage agreements (3) has already been met and exceeded.

The true spirit of the objective was to encourage community agencies to work cooperatively. This aspect has been accomplished through the Transition Committee, a body which rotates chairmanship to promote member involvement. The 21 representatives of agencies meet, by their request, on a monthly basis to advise the placement project, share information and concerns, promote mutual cooperation, and avoid duplication of effort among regional agencies with similar purposes (transition). The formation of this committee has served a larger purpose for the North San Diego County region and has benefitted the overall purposes of the project.

Each meeting is evaluated by members utilizing a classroom research type assessment form. Such a format provides productive feedback and maintains member interest through modification of the meeting agenda.

The current linkage agreements need modification to clarify roles and define agency connections.

Objective 2  The projected number of additional linkage partnership agreements with employers has not yet been met but will be by the end of the project year.

An active Advisory Board has been developed which is composed of 35 members from the business community and from college administrators and supervisors. Advisory Board members have requested that the project re-evaluate the need for linkage agreements, for companies as a whole are hesitant to sign because they feel an almost threatening commitment. Members have recommended that agreements be made between individuals (working for a company) and the project.

The Advisory Board has stimulated a true partnership between the project and the business community. The board meets ten times a year (average attendance=15), periodically rotates chairmanship to promote member involvement, and has members involved in sub-committees (curriculum review, evaluation, etc.), presentations to project courses, employment of a project participant, and employer/mentor arrangements.

Objective 3 Intake, screening, and transition plan procedures have all been modified to streamline and enhance effectiveness of the project.

Intake. At a certain point, the project received more referrals than it could effectively handle. Many referrals were inappropriate or based on misinformation. Periodic orientation meetings were arranged to clarify the purposes and requirements of the project and to allow interested individuals to self-screen. This saved staff time and consumer frustration. Intake forms have been revised and modified.

Screening. The PDQ is now used for all targeted applicants. Existing academic and vocational assessments are sought and used for the screening and diagnostic process. An "extended evaluation" status has been established for individuals who, after screening, may not yet be ready for participation in the project. These marginal candidates are given structured timelines and recommendations to pursue in order to enhance their chances for success in the project. 50% of these individuals have later been included in the project.

Transition Plans. Tentative goals, written and signed, are established with the student in an in-house staffing after acceptance into the project. Transition plans, involving key outside agencies and individuals, are established later after needs and goals have been clarified. It has been discovered that it is important to set up challenges for each student along each step of involvement with the project.

Objective 4 Curricula and syllabi for the two vocational courses were modified and approved by the college in February of 1994.

The Vocational Preparation and Work Adjustment courses were approved as credit courses and will be included in the 94-95 college catalog. The Work Adjustment class is now open-entry/open-exit to enhance its flexibility, and has incorporated a textbook to add structure and focus.

Feedback from evaluations (student, curriculum advisory committee, instructor) resulted in the following changes: time and day of a work adjustment section were altered; employer presentations were added to the Vocational Preparation class; a self-paced lab component was added to enhance flexibility when student transition plans were incorporated into the course. The strong student request was to have more contact with employers. This need will be met with the over 15 employer presentations and 5 field trips which will have been accomplished by the end of the project year.

Objective 5 The objective of placing 30 students in employment will be achieved by 9/30/94. Currently, 21 students have been placed in this second year. Overall services to students, including intake, orientation, and job placement referrals will exceed 65 students by the completion of the project year. Ongoing support to placed students still requiring services has continued.

Students continue to be served in two tracks. Track One students have targeted disabilities (brain injury, learning or psychological disabilities) and require more intensive job development and follow-up services. Track Two students have other disabilities and/or require less supervision or minimal services. Track Two provides equal access to basic placement services for all work-ready students with disabilities and provides information for expansion of the model to other disability groups (see Objective 8).

Mentor arrangements have been utilized more than in the first year and have proven to be an effective marketing tool. Strong relationships have been developed between the project and the following campus agencies: Cooperative Education (work experience); Regional Occupational Programs (ROP); and the Comet.
Center Drug and Alcohol Prevention Program. 50% of current project students are enrolled in Cooperative Education.

The majority of the follow-up services are done via contact in the Work Adjustment class. Employers are hesitant to allow project staff to do on-site follow-up unless a long-term relationship has been established (such as involvement in the Advisory Board). It has also been found that fewer than 30% of participants need the planned monthly site visits and/or weekly employer phone calls. At-risk students are generally initially placed in on-campus jobs as campus supervisors have tended to be more open to interventions and strategy development, thus allowing the student to learn workplace strategies in a supportive environment before transition to an outside workplace.

Due to the current economic environment in California we are relying more on placements involving Advisory Board members, as these members know that, through developed relationships, staff are available to assist with workplace issues that may arise.

Objective 6 Five inservice training and orientation sessions will be accomplished by the end of the project year.

Initially we faced resistance from employers who needed to be assured that such training would be compatible with company policies. However, in February of 1994 we provided an Americans with Disabilities Act inservice (in conjunction with University of California - San Diego). From the success of that inservice, we received a request from one employer to provide from four to six different inservices for their employees at their various sites.
After an initial small turnout, the campus Mentor Club is resuming activities due to indications of revived interest. This was designed as a means to bring together various on-campus mentors and supervisors and provide informal training on-line with the purposes of this objective.

A second staff development workshop is planned with the Student Placement Office on campus to address disability awareness issues that they may face on an everyday basis. The effects of this workshop will carry beyond the time limitations of the project.

Objective 7 Technical information materials and resources have all been enhanced and modified.

The volume of these materials forces us to create a more effective organization, delivery, and updating system. The focus of this objective has evolved from provision of information to an emphasis on self-advocacy (students) and independent accessing of information (employers). Students and employers seem to prefer information in written form which allows them control over the absorption of new material.

Objective 8 Adaptations to the model that will translate to other disabilities will be more fully developed by the end of the project year.

From our experiences with Track Two students, only about 25% of students in other disability groups (other than deafness and hard-of-hearing) require all of the comprehensive services available to the targeted populations. Technical information files are now being developed for students and employers to cover these additional disability categories.

A San Diego State University Rehabilitation Counseling-for-the-Deaf staff member has been solicited to train the project staff on deaf culture, job placement methods, and job accommodation requirements for the deaf and hard-of-hearing population.

Objective 9 The objective to develop dissemination methods and materials will be met and surpassed by the end of the project year.

A slide presentation on the project has been developed, utilized, and is now being revised to highlight more program details. An audio-visual tape and an informational notebook are in development. An Advisory Board member is acting as a consultant on these latter projects.

The project was presented at the California Career Conference in November of 1993, the Southern California Caregiver Resource Center, and the local chapter of the Head Injury Foundation. The project will be presented at the California Community College Chancellor's Office Third Annual Collaborative Conference on April 15, 1994.

Curriculum is now in development for the projected Network for Information and Curriculum Exchange. In response to the outstanding response we received from outside community people who have presented in our courses, we have decided to include selected outlines and materials from their presentations in our curricula.
Objective 1. Formalize linkage agreements with three participating agencies which are currently informally involved in Transition Committee activities and clarify roles and define existing connections with agencies already operating under formal linkage agreements by 1/15/95.

Further developing existing relationships and maintaining the current frequency of meetings (ten times per year) will lay the groundwork for continuation of cooperative efforts beyond the time limitations of the project.

The practice of having members evaluate each meeting will be continued to help direct the agenda and maintain participant interest.

Objective 2. Implement an additional three linkage partnership agreements with individual representatives of businesses and industries; modify existing linkage partnership agreements to reflect the individual commitment of the representative of the employer to the goals of the project and toward mutual cooperation. These elements will be accomplished by 3/15/95.

The above changes were prompted by responses of employer representatives of the Advisory Board. These changes will allow more clarity in defining Advisory Board member involvement in the project (sub-committee involvement, site-visits, presentations to students, etc.). Such a change solidifies member investment in the purposes of the project and enhances the chances that member involvement will continue beyond the time scope of the project.

Objective 3. Make final modifications to intake, screening, and transition plan procedures by 1/15/95.

Intake. Despite an overabundance of referrals, minorities are still under-represented. Agencies dealing with these populations will be approached more directly. A Transition Committee member who specializes in this area will be consulted to determine barriers which may exist in minority group involvement in the project. Orientation meetings will be continued to inform interested populations and to allow prospective clients to self-screen. Intake forms and processes will be modified based on feedback from consumer and Transition Committee evaluations.

Screening. PDQ and existing assessments will continue to be incorporated into the screening/diagnostic process. Use of the Boston Readiness Assessment Criteria will be evaluated and considered for use. There may be ethical and efficacy issues involved in including the scale into the already lengthy screening process.

Transition Plans. Feedback is being solicited from Transition Committee members on this process. Some students in the project are not involved with outside agencies. We will explore the possibilities of inviting a Transition Committee member into the transition meeting process (upon client approval) to provide a needed balance of outside input.
Objective 4. Make final modifications to the curricula and course outlines for the two vocational courses by 3/1/95.

Evaluation feedback from students and Advisory Board members will be considered and incorporated into course outline revisions as necessary. Times and locations will be altered when possible to meet the needs of the students involved each semester. Continued and expanded Advisory Board member involvement (curriculum review, site-visits, class presentations, etc.) will be solicited also in the upcoming year. Use of textbooks which have been introduced will be evaluated. If technical problems are reduced, videotaping of key segments will be introduced to help carry over the spirit of the project beyond the designated time scope.

The new focus of course content will be on developing awareness of disability and promoting self-advocacy in the workplace.

Objective 5. Conduct a minimum of 32 placements for students to provide an opportunity for career exploration and to identify strengths and develop confidence in their abilities. Placements will be accomplished by 9/30/95. It is expected that 65 students will be provided services (intake, orientation, job referral) during this time frame. Previously placed students still requiring services will continue to receive support services as needed.

Use of mentor arrangements as a job-site support device will increase as employers and existing employees become familiar with the concept (by using existing effective arrangements as examples) and as they recognize the utility and benefit to them of this feature of the project.

At-risk students will continue to be placed in campus jobs or internships to evaluate their job readiness and provide practical training in desirable worker skills.

Project staff will further foster employer relationships to ease the process of job-site follow-up, based upon feedback that employers were more receptive to outside interventions when working relationships had been more fully developed and established.

Objective 6. Provide a minimum of 6 inservices custom-designed to meet the needs of individual employers with the purpose of increasing their understanding of disabilities and enhancing their working relationships with these populations. These inservices will be accomplished by 9/30/95.

Project staff will confer with interested employers to design training sessions which will meet the needs of each employer. Employers previously indicated concerns that inservices would not be compatible with company philosophy or policy. These inservices will allow the spirit of the project to continue beyond its time limitations.

The Mentor Club will continue monthly meetings and will be encouraged to evolve into member-driven leadership which will use Disabled Student Programs and Services staff for technical assistance.
Objective 7. Develop a method to train employers and students with disabilities to more independently use technical files and access other sources of technical assistance by 1/30/95.

New information will be included in technical files as it becomes available. Consumers need to learn to access information more independently so that the intentions of the project can carry beyond the length of the project.

Objective 8. Develop adaptations to the model that would apply to other disability groups requiring a similar basis of services by 9/30/95.

During the final year, Track One services (see Accomplishments) will be opened up when possible to students outside of the targeted disabilities as our expertise expands with other disability populations. Physical and speech disabilities may require only minor modifications, while visual and hearing adaptations could require substantial modifications and an extra level of services (and expenses), so they may not be able to be included within the time frame of this project.

More service providers specializing in these populations will be contacted and informed of the project to gain valuable information for working with these groups and to once again avoid duplication of effort and encourage mutual cooperation.

Objective 9. Continue and expand the dissemination of information process to inform employers and service agencies of the results of the project. Dissemination activities will continue until 9/30/95.

Information packets pertaining to the project will be developed, prepared, and disseminated based on requests from the field (interested employers, service agencies, other colleges and training facilities, etc.).

Project staff will submit a program proposal to present the project at the annual conference of the California Association for the Post-secondary Education of the Disabled (CAPED).

Project staff will present a "poster session" at the annual Project Director's Conference (sponsored by the Transition Research Institute) in the spring of 1995.

Other formal presentations of the project will be arranged as opportunities become available.

Project Coordinator will participate on the Learning Disabilities Association (LDA) advisory board as a job placement consultant.

Certification Regarding Debarment, Suspension, Ineligibility and Voluntary Exclusion – Lower Tier Covered Transactions

This certification is required by the Department of Education regulations implementing Executive Order 12549, Debarment and Suspension, 34 C.F.R Part 85, for all lower tier transactions meeting the threshold and tier requirements stated at Section 85.110.

Instructions for Certification

1. By signing and submitting this proposal, the prospective lower tier participant is providing the certification set out below.

2. The certification in this clause is a material representation of fact upon which reliance was placed when this transaction was entered into. It is later determined that the prospective lower tier participant knowingly rendered an erroneous certification, in addition to other remedies available to the Federal Government, the department or agency with which this transaction originated may pursue available remedies, including suspension and/or debarment.

3. The prospective lower tier participant shall provide immediate written notice to the person to which this proposal is submitted if at any time the prospective lower tier participant learns that its certification was erroneous when submitted or has become erroneous by reason of changed circumstances.

4. The terms "covered transaction," "debarred," "suspended," "ineligible," "lower tier covered transaction," "participant," "person," "primary covered transaction," "principal," "proposal," and "voluntarily excluded," as used in this clause, have the meanings set out in the Definitions and Coverage sections of rules implementing Executive Order 12549. You may contact the person to which this proposal is submitted for assistance in obtaining a copy of those regulations.

5. The prospective lower tier participant agrees by submitting this proposal that, should the proposed covered transaction be entered into, it shall not knowingly enter into any lower tier covered transaction with a person who is debarred, suspended, declared ineligible, or voluntarily excluded from participation in this covered transaction, unless authorized by the department or agency with which this transaction originated.

6. The prospective lower tier participant further agrees by submitting this proposal that it will include the clause titled "Certification Regarding Debarment, Suspension, Ineligibility, and Voluntary Exclusion—Lower Tier Covered Transactions," without modification, in all lower tier covered transactions and in all solicitations for lower tier covered transactions.

7. A participant in a covered transaction may rely upon a certification of a prospective participant in a lower tier covered transaction that it is not debarred, suspended, ineligible, or voluntarily excluded from the covered transaction, unless it knows that the certification is erroneous. A participant may decide the method and frequency by which it determines the eligibility of its principals. Each participant may, but is not required to, check the Nonprocurement List.

8. Nothing contained in the foregoing shall be construed to require establishment of a system of records in order to render in good faith the certification required by this clause. The knowledge and information of a participant is not required to exceed that which is normally possessed by a prudent person in the ordinary course of business dealings.

9. Except for transactions authorized under paragraph 5 of these instructions, if a participant in a covered transaction knowingly enters into a lower tier covered transaction knowing that a person who is suspended, debarred, declared ineligible, or voluntarily excluded from participation in this transaction, in addition to other remedies available to the Federal Government, the department or agency with which this transaction originated may pursue available remedies, including suspension and/or debarment.

Certification

(1) The prospective lower tier participant certifies, by submission of this proposal, that neither it nor its principals are presently debarred, suspended, declared ineligible, or voluntarily excluded from participation in this transaction by any Federal department or agency.

(2) Where the prospective lower tier participant is unable to certify to any of the statements in this certification, such prospective participant shall attach an explanation to this proposal.

Dear Colleagues:

I am pleased to submit to you the Palomar College proposal for our Partnership for Employing Students with Disabilities Program.

Since 1973, our Disabled Student Programs and Services (DSP&S) unit has been the center of a network of support services for the disabled residents of our 2555-square-mile district in North San Diego County. This year, DSP&S is serving 800 students with disabilities.

Meanwhile, our Placement Services unit is contacting 4000 employers throughout our district and placing students in 65 to 75 percent of the positions offered through the college: more than 600 annually. A growing percentage of those placed can, and should, be students with disabilities.

By combining the expertise of the staff in these two units and working with our network of employers, we will develop a model program that will create partnerships between the student, the college, other support agencies, and the business community to provide career placement opportunities for the disabled. Our pilot project has shown that there is a need for the program. Your support will enable us to implement it.

Sincerely,

George R. Boggs, Ph.D.
Superintendent/President

Workshop Description:

The Disabled Student Programs and Services and Student Placement Offices of Palomar College have established a partnership program with campus services, outside service agencies, and employers. The goal of the program is to seek a partnership with employers and existing service agencies which will enable individuals with disabilities to integrate into the work force and to establish a safety net support system within that environment. This workshop will describe and explain how the collaboration and resources of all parties involved has enhanced the program as well as the community. In addition, innovative curriculum and non-traditional placement strategies will be introduced.
WORKSHOP TITLE:
Partnerships For Employing Students with Disabilities

WORKSHOP DESCRIPTION:
The Disabled Students Programs and Services and Student Placement Offices of Palomar College have established a partnership program with campus services, outside service agencies, and employers. The purpose of the project is enabling individuals with disabilities which impact learning to enter the employment mainstream and establishing a safety-net support system within that environment. Currently, we have an action-oriented advisory board of business/industrial representatives which addresses the needs of all involved parties of the project (students, school, community). Technical assistance and accommodation manuals are provided to facilitate successful retention of students. Our Transition Committee offers opportunities where existing service agencies meet to exchange information and to review individual student transition plans (collaborative agency effort). The end result is a cooperative, efficient arrangement which benefits students with disabilities, and employers striving to employ and accommodate those individuals.

WORKSHOP OBJECTIVES:
1. Understand the importance of and strategies utilized to build partnerships which enhance the community.
2. Describe key curriculum components (i.e. vocational preparation and work adjustment courses, technical assistance/manual, National Information and Curriculum Exchange (NICE)).
3. Utilize program materials for actual student placement within a non-traditional model.

What is the Americans with Disabilities Act?

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) provides civil rights protection for the estimated 43 million Americans with serious physical and mental disabilities—and for some people who are treated as though they have these kinds of disabilities. The ADA was signed into law by President George Bush on July 26, 1990.

The ADA is designed to prevent discrimination against individuals with disabilities and ensure equal access to jobs, public transportation and businesses that serve the public. This is similar to the protection that federal law already provides against race, religious, national origin and sex discrimination.

The law uses the term "individual with a disability" rather than "handicapped individual," which for many is the more familiar term. The reason for the change is that many people with disabilities feel strongly that the term "handicapped" is linked to negative stereotypes and patronizing attitudes, like a racial or ethnic epithet.

The ADA is likely to have a major impact on private industry, both in its employment practices and in the way it provides goods and services to the public.

There are five separate parts, or "titles" to the ADA:
I. Employment
II. Public Services
III. Public Accommodations and Commercial Facilities
IV. Telecommunications
V. Miscellaneous

Who is covered by the ADA?

Any qualified individual with a disability.
A person is considered to have a disability if he or she:
* has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities
* has a record of such an impairment
* is regarded as having such an impairment

ADA Terminology

Qualified Individual with a Disability - An individual who satisfies the requisite skill, experience, and other job-related requirements of the employment position which the individual holds or desires, and who, with or without reasonable accommodation can perform the essential functions of the position.
Major Life Activities - These functions include taking care of one's needs, walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, breathing, learning and working.

Essential Functions - These are the fundamental job duties of the employment position the individual with a disability holds or desires. The individual must be able to perform these functions unaided or with the assistance of a reasonable accommodation. Marginal functions of a position may be reassigned to others as a reasonable accommodation.

Reasonable Accommodation - Making a change in the usual way of doing things so that a qualified person with a disability can participate. A reasonable accommodation does not require the most expensive or difficult alternative to assist the individual with a disability. A reasonable accommodation may not be required if such an accommodation imposes undue hardship on the organization or would create a direct threat to the safety of the employee or to other persons in the workplace.

Undue Hardship - An accommodation that is unduly costly, extensive, substantial, disruptive, or would fundamentally change the essential functions of the job. It is determined on a case-by-case basis.

Direct Threat - To exist, there must be a significant risk of substantial harm that could not be eliminated or reduced by a reasonable accommodation. The ADA does not require an employer to place, or keep, a person in a job if it would be a direct threat to the safety of that person or other persons in the workplace.

Examples of Reasonable Accommodations

*Making existing facilities readily accessible
*Acquiring new equipment
*Modifying existing equipment
*Job restructuring
*Modifying work schedules
*Modifying tests and training materials
*Changing company policies
*Permitting the use of accrued paid leave or providing additional unpaid leave for necessary medical treatment
*Providing parking spaces

Adapted from FOCUS ON ABILITIES: An Overview of the Americans with Disabilities Act, United Parcel Service, 1992
ADULTS WITH LEARNING DISABILITIES IN THE WORKPLACE

By Sue Norton, LD Specialist, Palomar College

So one of your employees has told you that he/she has a learning disability—now what do you do? First of all, do not panic. Your employee is one of perhaps 5,000,000 people in the United States who has a learning disability (LD), so this is not a unique situation. Yes, there may be some tasks this particular employee will have difficulty completing—and there may be some tasks that are insurmountable—but most tasks will require minimal accommodations, if any at all. Let's begin with defining just what this LD thing is all about.

LD is a heterogeneous group of disorders. That is persons with LD, just like the entire population, exhibit a variety of strengths and weaknesses. However, unlike non-LD folks, those with LD exhibit more marked differences between their intellectual ability (which is average to above average) and their achievement in one or more areas. For example, Mary Mathematician can calculate numbers with amazing speed, but she is apprehensive about writing letters because her spelling is, well, not exactly easy to decipher. However, she has wonderful reasoning skills and can carry on a conversation using extensive vocabulary. Now consider John Mechanicalwonder. He can disassemble an engine, diagnose the problem, and reassemble the engine without referring to a manual. However, he avoids reading like the proverbial plague because he struggles to "decode" or pronounce words he reads. How, then, can you help accommodate employees like Mary and John?

First, Mary's problems can be alleviated largely by a word processing system spell checker or a portable spell checker. She also could dictate correspondence into a tape recorder or to a secretary (which most executives routinely do, anyway). John has a wonderful visual memory that enables him to complete a task without reading how to do it. Therefore, you could provide a demonstration and/or illustration of how to complete the job rather than to require reading about it.

There are, of course, other problems encountered by persons with learning disabilities. Some have spatial orientation difficulties—they forget where they have parked their cars, for example—and must carefully map their way from one point to another. Remember, we all have been lost in parking garages at one time or another! Others need to have directions repeated or written because of auditory processing delays and confusion. For example, you might tell the employee to order 250 widgets whose stock number is 502, but the employee thinks you want 520 #205 widgets. The solution? Write down the order instead of giving it orally. After all, when we call Information for a telephone number, we usually write it down.

Finally, talk with your employee so that both of you are comfortable with the situation. The employee may overestimate (or underestimate) his/her capabilities or be timid about discussing concerns with you. At the same time, you may be tentative about accepting LD in the work place. Open communication is the answer in such a situation. Listen to your employee explain strengths and weaknesses, and at the same time observe the employee on the job. You will discover that minor accommodations will lead to a more satisfied, eager employee, and a more productive work situation.

Still concerned? Please do not hesitate to call Disabled Student Programs & Services (619) 744-1150, ext. 2375. We know our students can be successful employees, and we want to combine your expertise and ours to everyone’s satisfaction.
