This bibliography is intended as a resource for teachers and service-providers who work with participants in LINC (Language Instruction for Newcomers to Canada) programs of basic English-as-a-Second-Language education. It lists and describes Canadian teaching materials appropriate for adult immigrants' English language learning and their orientation to, settlement in, and active participation in Canadian life. Its content and organization reflect three levels of language proficiency and cultural adaptation, is comprehensive in its coverage of Canadian print materials, and is accessible to both specialists and lay persons. Bibliographic information provided includes title, author, date, LINC level, length, source, price, supplementary or related materials, subject area, and a brief annotation. The first three sections cite materials for each of the three proficiency levels, and a fourth lists materials for all three levels. Appended materials contain citations according to theme (anti-racist education; citizenship; ESL literacy; vocational English; general language study; grammar; life skills and community resources; speaking and conversation; teacher references; vocabulary), addresses of publishers and distributors, LINC level descriptions, a list of individuals consulted for the project, and correspondence used in consultation. The TESL Canada Journal is most grateful to each of the following for the part they played in the preparation of this special issue:

the TESL Canada Federation, in particular Eleanor Rogers, Past President, and Donna MacDonald, Executive Assistant, for successfully initiating and overseeing the project;

the Settlement Branch of Employment and Immigration Canada for generously funding the project;

Alister Cumming, Barbara Burnaby, Alice Weinrib, Susanne Holunga, Jose Lopes and Stephanie Paulauskas for their excellent preparation of the bibliography; and Leslie Vryenhoek and The University of Winnipeg for their ready assistance in the preparation of camera-ready copy.

The Annotated Bibliography of Teaching and Learning Materials for Adult Newcomers to Canada should prove a most valuable resource for TESL professionals involved in ESL Programs for learners at LINC Levels one to three across Canada.

Introduction

This bibliography is a resource guide for teachers and service-providers who work with participants in LINC (Language Instruction for Newcomers to Canada) programs of basic English as a Second Language education. The bibliography lists and describes Canadian pedagogical materials appropriate for adult immigrants' English language learning, as well as their orientation to, settlement in, and active participation in Canadian life.

The content and organization of the bibliography reflect the first three levels of language proficiency and cultural adaptation identified in LINC policies, accounting for various regional and cultural settings across Canada. This document intends to be comprehensive (in its coverage of Canadian print material relevant to this pedagogical setting currently available) and accessible to diverse users (professionally specialized and lay persons alike). Consultations on the scope and content of the bibliography have incorporated views of key practitioners in adult ESL education throughout Canada.

While the bibliography intends to be comprehensive, it is not (and cannot be) exhaustive because new materials are being developed and published constantly to meet identified needs. TESL Canada plans to update this bibliography periodically. Any information about additional material should be forwarded to TESL Canada, P.O. Box 707, Station C, Toronto, Ontario, M6J 3S1, attention: Research Coordinator.

TESL CANADA JOURNAL/REVUE TESL DU CANADA
SPECIAL ISSUE NO. 3, 1993
Organization

The bibliography is organized in three ways to facilitate access to the materials. First, and most generally, all annotations for materials are presented under one of four categories related to levels of the A-LINC rating tool (see Appendix C):

1. LINC 1, corresponding to teaching and learning materials pedagogically appropriate to level 1 of the A-LINC rating tool;

2. LINC 2, corresponding to teaching and learning materials pedagogically appropriate to level 2 of the A-LINC rating tool;

3. LINC 3, corresponding to teaching and learning materials pedagogically appropriate to level 3 of the A-LINC rating tool;

4. GENERAL, including all teaching and learning materials that are pedagogically appropriate to levels 1, 2, and 3 of the A-LINC rating tool as well as materials that teachers or LINC service providers might profitably refer to and use directly to organize LINC projects.

The majority of materials appear in the GENERAL category, reflecting the general nature of materials presently prepared for adult learners of English in Canada. Because few of these materials were prepared before LINC policies were implemented in 1992, the present categorization into three A-LINC levels is only approximate, representing suggestions made during our consultations or our impressions of vocabulary or language structures, contextual references, or pedagogical conventions related to the A-LINC descriptions of English proficiency. Teachers and learners may, of course under many circumstances, find specific materials listed in one LINC level appropriate for another LINC level.

The second level of organization is that, within each of the four categories above, all materials (and their annotations) are presented in alphabetical order by the names of the authors (or first authors or editors) of the materials. This level of organization permits identification of specific materials by browsing and by cross-referencing with the third level of organization.

The third level of organization is in ten tables that list materials appropriate to specific aspects or themes of language learning and teaching common to the LINC program (see Appendix A for LINC descriptors):

1. Anti-racist education,
2. Citizenship,
3. ESL Literacy,
4. English for Work,
5. General Language Study,
6. Grammar,
7. Life Skills and Community Resources,
8. Speaking/Conversation,
9. Teacher Reference, and
10. Vocabulary.

Within each of these tables, materials are cited by the names of authors and are subcategorized as LINC 1, LINC 2, LINC 3, or All LINC Levels—so that readers may quickly locate the annotations for materials in the alphabetical ordering of the main part of the bibliography. Appendix B lists the names and addresses of all publishers and Canadian distributors cited in the bibliography.

Bibliographic information follows APA style (1984) and the overall format developed in Cumming's (1990) Annotated bibliography of Canadian ESL materials. That is, each item in the bibliography identifies: authors' or editors' names, date of most recent publication, title of the book(s), place of publication, publisher, accompanying materials (such as work books, teacher guides, other books in a series, multi-media supplements), number of pages, and the 1992 list price for purchase of the material. Below this bibliographic information are key words describing the material (using the ten themes listed above, e.g., anti-racist education, citizenship, ESL literacy etc.). Then unique characteristics of the material or supplementary material are listed, such as teacher guide, answer key, audiocassette, videocassette, or illustrations. A single paragraph annotation then describes the content, organization, and purpose of the material.

Approach

The bibliography was prepared during November and December 1992 and January 1993. To identify materials for inclusion, the project team first conducted telephone and fax interviews with a sample of people providing LINC classes or LINC service providers in key centers across Canada, identified through TESL Canada contacts. (Their names and addresses are listed in Appendix D; the interview protocols appear in Appendix E). At the same time, all relevant materials appearing in Cumming's (1990) Annotated Bibliography of Canadian ESL Materials were identified and recategorized for the present purpose. Systematic searches were conducted of three computer data bases: ONTER1S, ERIC, and the Canadian Index of Education. Visual searches were conducted of the Modern Language Centre reference library then of several large libraries at ESL and literacy teaching centers in the Toronto area. An initial draft of the bibliography was prepared, incorporating materials gathered from each source. The draft was then sent to all persons consulted for their comments and suggestions for additional materials to be included. Then revisions were made for a final version of the document.

The project team established several criteria to select material for the bibliography. The chief criterion was to identify materials expressly prepared for the purpose of English language learning and teaching among adult newcomers to Canada. This criterion focused our attention on print materials that could be used by teachers, learners, or program organizers directly in LINC classes or related educational contexts, such as at-home study, tutoring, or settlement orientation. In addition to print material such as exercise books, curriculum guides, learner dictionaries, or learner newspapers, we have referenced audio, video, and film materials that accompany them.

A further criterion was feasibility of use and acquisition within diverse LINC settings. As a consequence, the bibliography does not include: computer materials because of the present variety of software and hardware requirements; theoretical or research studies on ESL education, which although potentially relevant, we could not envision most LINC practitioners using directly in their programs or practices; or articles in scholarly journals or professional magazines. While a nearly infinite number of print materials such as brochures, pamphlets, or magazines are suitable for the LINC program and settlement in Canada, the scope of the present project could not permit our referencing of such sources for all regions of the country. We have only listed materials with an identifiable distributor and those currently in print.

Materials were selected using a broad definition of "Canadian", including materials produced by Canadian authors, institutions, or publishers as well as materials with extended references to locations and situations in Canada. Thus materials produced, for example, in Australia, England or the United States for learners in those countries were excluded from the bibliography, even though teachers and learners may find their pedagogical content suitable to the LINC program in some circumstances. No attempts were made to assess the educational or production quality of the materials, either in our annotations or selection process, so that the bibliography could provide as broad a range as possible of material to suit users' local interests or purposes within Canada. Materials identified as "regional" in the key word annotations have extensive references to particular Canadian cities, making them suitable to that one location alone. We expect this bibliography will require updating every few years to incorporate publication of new Canadian materials related to the LINC program.

INTRODUCTION
LINC LEVEL 1

ESL literacy; visuals

The three workbooks focus on the sound-letter correspondence of the alphabet. Basic structures are introduced hierarchically, moving from simple to more complex in each workbook. Vocabulary items are listed at the back of Level 3 workbook. Large visuals (8 1/2 x 11) for each of the pictures used in Level 3 workbook are available.

Beer, B., & Rampaul, Y. (1990). English for life. 38 pages. Winnipeg, Manitoba: Y. Rampaul. Workbook 1 $7.00; Visuals $15.00; Wall charts - price not available; Cassettes (2) $15.00.

General language study; ESL literacy; visuals; audiocassettes

Developed for beginner level students, this workbook provides practice in answering basic personal information questions such as name, address, telephone number as well as questions dealing with the familiar topics of weather, colour, family and native countries. The various activities provide opportunities for practice of the four language skills. The visuals help contextualize the vocabulary and structures and the audiocassettes help students develop their listening skills. The workbook includes a note to the teacher, describing the materials and a suggested methodology for their use.

independent language study; life skills, ESL literacy; vocabulary; illustrations; audiocassettes; answer keys

Each of the six units deals with a different survival topic: meeting people, exchanging personal information, getting and giving directions, taking telephone messages, making arrangements with neighbours and getting repairs done. The illustrated student books are used in conjunction with the program's accompanying audiocassettes. Students listen, repeat, check, read and ask questions. An answer key is provided for each unit. Follow-up assignments include practice exercises on the vocabulary, pronunciation, and grammar structures focused on in each unit. Community contact assignments are also included in each collection of unit assignments.

Buthuru, D. (& Dragman, J. (Ed.).). (1982). All my life... Vancouver: Vancouver Community College. 25 pages. $2.00

ESL literacy; illustrations

Buthuru writes of her life in Fiji and in Canada, and of her struggle to overcome problems and setbacks in making her livelihood.

ESL literacy; life skills; illustrations

This short story written by an adult learner at the Toronto East End Literacy Project is designed as reading material for adult learners of basic literacy and English as a second language. The author writes about his working experiences. Sentences are short and simple, averaging 2 or 3 per page.

life skills; ESL literacy; illustrations

Short answers and sentence completion exercises focus on basic vocabulary related to objects inside and around the house.

life skills; vocabulary; illustrations

Through short answer and sentence completion exercises, as well as dialogues about driving tests, students are given information on different kinds of vehicles, parts of the car, traffic lights, arm signals, speed limits, parking, signs, passing, and headlights, etc.

- life skills and community resources; vocabulary; illustrations

The steps from the first doctor’s appointment to the birth and care of the baby are described for ESL learners, including breast and bottle feeding, nursery items, disposable vs. cloth diapers, and caesarean deliveries, among others. Vocabulary is introduced in the context of dialogues and exercises.

- life skills; grammar; general language study; audiocassettes; illustrations; exercises; forms; answers; tapescripts; life skills

Each level includes a student book, teacher’s book, multilevel activity and resource package and audiocassettes. The student book contains 10 units, covering a variety of life skill topics (e.g. housing, health, food, transportation, employment). All skills are integrated in each unit, along with new grammatical structures. At the end of each unit are Progress Checks and a Memo to the teacher. At the beginning of the student book is a section of step-by-step procedures covering the majority of exercise types. Grammar summaries and tapescripts are found at the end of the student book. The teacher’s book includes reproducible versions of the first-page illustrations, instructions, suggestions, pronunciation exercises, cross-references to exercises in the multilevel activity and resource package and cross-references to vocabulary pages in The New Oxford Picture Dictionary. Competency checklists are found at the back of the teacher’s book. The Multilevel Activity and Resource Package contains reproducible workbook pages, picture cards, word cards, game boards and interactive activities. Worksheets come in two levels (A and B). Teacher’s Notes are included for each unit.

ESL literacy; life skills; illustrations

This short story written by an adult learner at the Toronto East Env Literacy Project is designed as reading material for adult learners of basic literacy and English as a second language. The author writes about a New Year’s Eve experience, more than 25 years ago, when he saved a young woman from being beaten by two men. Black-and-white photographs accompany the text.

ESL literacy; illustration.; index

Names and basic letter sounds of hard consonants and short vowels are organized alphabetically, including practice of initial and final consonant sounds. A tutor’s guide lists what to do and what to say as each letter is taught, with additional teaching tips at each stage. A reference list of regular spellings is included.

ESL literacy; grammar; answer key

The phonics and grammar exercises in this series are to be used for dictation and board work, as well as for homework. The first level introduces short vowel sounds, consonant combinations, and basic grammar. The second level focuses on long vowels, punctuation, contractions, negatives, paragraphs, suffixes, and antonyms, and other items. The third level includes diphthongs; more advanced grammar, root words, and similes, for example.

Kamikura, F. (& Sawkins, M. (Ed.).). (1982). Now I have time. Vancouver: Vancouver Community College. 25 pages. $2.00

ESL literacy; illustrations

Prompted by her husband's death, Kamikura began studying English. She writes about her life before and after immigrating to Canada in 1927, and about raising a family here. Large type and photographs are featured.

grammar; ESL literacy; vocabulary; illustrations; photographs

The workbook contains stories about real people, followed by questions, grammatical practice and vocabulary practice. Grammar and vocabulary sections are found at the end of the workbook. Illustrations and photographs provide context for the thematically-based readings. Themes covered include greetings/introductions, family, routines, housing/occupations, body/ailments.

ESL literacy; vocabulary

Visual clues prompt the use of new vocabulary on 10 themes at four levels of difficulty. Each of the themes introduces 20 words for practice in eight different combinations. A word list supplements the pictures in all but the last two combinations of each theme, which can be given as a test. Detachable puzzle pages which can be used as duplicating masters are a unique feature of this book.

grammar; illustrations; exercises; film/videocassette

The booklet introduces the present and present continuous verb forms separately, along with a variety of exercises and then contrasts the tense and its aspect. The booklet is designed to be used after the film/videocassette What do you do/What are you doing? which is available from the National Film Board of Canada.

ESL literacy; exercises; illustrations

Included in this booklet are twelve lessons based on three themes: the calendar, time and money. Each lesson outlines the theme focused on, lesson objectives, skills to review, activities, materials and evaluation. Model lessons, work-sheets and resource sheets are also provided.

English for the workplace; vocabulary; illustrations; instructor guide

These 2 books focus on the language used to work in the fashion industry, highlighting related language use in the community. Specific aspects of the daily work environment, as well as regulations of the ladies' dress and sportswear industry, shape the content of the program. The first book has units on the sewing machine, measurement, colours, materials, finished garments, signs and notices, personal stories, and human rights. The second book focuses on hours of work and overtime, job classifications, minimum wages, vacation pay, holidays, unemployment insurance, wage statement, maternity benefits, workers' compensation, and union issues.
This short story written by a group of adult learners at the Toronto East End Literacy Project is designed as reading material for adult learners of basic literacy and English as a second language. The topics are signing forms (e.g., leases, mail offers, medical information sheets, and bank account documents). The text is in dialogue format, and on each facing page a black-and-white photograph appears.

general language study; audiocassettes; illustrations; exercises; forms; grammar; answers; tapescripts; life skills

Each level includes a student book, teacher’s book, multilevel activity and resource package and audiocassettes. The student book contains 10 units, covering a variety of life skill topics (e.g. housing, health, food, transportation, employment). All skills are integrated in each unit, along with new grammatical structures. At the end of each unit are Progress Checks and a Memo to the teacher. Teacher’s Notes are included for each unit.

ESL literacy

The author, an ESL learner, writes about her life in Laos, and the hardships she went through before arriving in Canada.

ESL literacy

The authors, who were ESL learners, have written stories about different aspects of their lives in five countries where they previously lived: India, Vietnam, Guatemala, Colombia and India.

ESL literacy

Tony Basra, a new immigrant in Canada, has written a collection of stories, covering a variety of topics. His topics range from personal feelings such as joy, excitement and sadness to descriptions of Indian weddings, food and the Caste System.

ESL literacy; photographs

The author writes about his life, starting in Cambodia in 1939 and arriving in Canada in 1990, and the many homes he and his family had in between.

ESL literacy

The nine stories written by Rani focus on her personal feelings of India. Her stories include memories of her school and village in India, a story and movie that she liked and her daily schedule.

ESL literacy; beginner to intermediate proficiency

The book was written and produced by four students, each of whom wrote three stories and/or poems on personal topics.

ESL literacy; illustrations; pictures; exercises

Adult students in literacy programs wrote, edited and revised their stories with the help of their instructor where necessary. Various themes are represented in the stories, e.g. adventures, experiences and personal thoughts. The student workbook consists of nine stories, each story followed by a variety of written activities. Activities in the student book can be reproduced for classroom use.

life skills and community resources; illustrations
Vocabulary for describing one's health, filling in hospital forms, and understanding what doctors and nurses are doing and saying in the hospital during pre- and post-surgery is given in dialogues and in sentence completion, short answer, and matching exercises.

ESL literacy; life skills and community resources; vocabulary; series; regional; illustration; hand-lettered text

The exercises in these 3 booklets encourage development of reading and writing skills through tracing of letters, matching words to pictures, and language experience stories that create a "word bank". Exercises are organized by topic, not difficulty. The food and restaurant booklet focuses on names of food items and prices. The booklet on shopping introduces vocabulary and symbols, such as care labels on clothing and instructions on prescriptions, as well as numbers, days and time. Exercises in the transportation and community living booklet focus on using public transportation in Toronto and area, and on other public services such as libraries and Ontario health services.

life skills and community resources; regional; illustrations; hand-lettered text

For adult students in a beginning English program, this booklet focuses on language used to describe various aspects of community life, organized into sections called: where do you live?, housing in my neighborhood, people working in my community, and I go to these places. Brief notes to the instructor summarize the content of each section and suggest topics for discussion. Exercises and activities are based on residence in Toronto and areas. Black and white photos and hand-drawn maps appear throughout.

ESL for the workplace; ESL literacy; regional; appendices

Eighteen exercises are based on information about Ontario’s labour laws and dental care coverage. Each exercise is prefaced by a list of objectives and notes to the instructor about method of presentation. Students’ exercises include fill-in-the-blank conversations, reading comprehension questions, and discussion questions. Appendices give specific information about Ontario.

life skills and community resources; ESL literacy; speaking/conversation; regional; illustrations; appendices

Focusing on signs in the Toronto subway system, as well as on hand-drawn maps and fare information, students learn how to use the subway. Black and white photos and language used in giving and receiving directions are key elements in the exercises. Each lesson is prefaced by a list of objectives as well as instructor notes on methods and discussion topics.

Sacco, M. (1976). Has/had: The present perfect and simple past. Ottawa: Supply and Services Canada. 60 pages. $2.75.
The booklet introduces the present perfect, provides a variety of exercises and contrasts it to the past tense and present perfect continuous verb forms. The booklet is designed to be used after the film/videocassette Has/had which is available from the National Film Board of Canada.

Toronto Board of Education. (1984). Our lives. Toronto: Toronto Board of Education. 48 pages. $8.00

Portuguese women in adult ESL classes in Toronto dictated these stories to their teachers and used them in classes to develop their English language proficiency. Topics centre on life in Canada, especially work and family, with an introductory section about Portugal. Following each reading passage are questions and exercises that expand on basic themes.

Toronto Board of Education. (1990). More than just Chinese Food... Toronto: Toronto Board of Education. 41 pages. $13.00

This book consists of writing by adult ESL learners of Chinese origin. The book is organized around four basic themes: family, education, social customs, and festivals. Each short text is accompanied by a set of questions for oral discussion and group work activities.

English for work; ESL literacy; vocabulary; speaking/conversation; illustrations

A picture story follows the steps for producing an article of clothing in a garment factory in Toronto. The story is divided into sections that correspond to the division of labour in the factory: pattern-making, the computer room, the cutting room, the sample room, the shop floor, and the shipping room. Job-related vocabulary is used in context, describing the activities shown in the pictures.

anti-racism; citizenship; illustrations

In addition to a teacher's guide, this kit about rights of Canadian citizens and immigrants contains eight modules: 1) basic rights and freedoms; 2) employment rights; 3) tenant's rights; 4) age; 5) sexual harassment; 6) equal pay; 7) race, colour and ethnic origin; and 8) disability. The students' manual contains cartoons illustrating case histories followed by a series of questions to motivate oral discussion.

speaking/conversation

Suitable for multi-level classes, the activities in these books are arranged by contextually-based functions of language. Socially appropriate communication, rather than a specific level of linguistic competence, is stressed. Each chapter relates a problem followed by activities based on discussion and selection of solutions. Topics, functions, strategies, and grammar for each chapter are listed in chart form. The teacher's editions explain how to present the functions in each chapter, suggest 3 levels of role play activities, and give topics for pre-composition discussion; some research topics are briefly outlined.

vocabulary; ESL literacy; life skills; exercises; pronunciation key; glossary; crossword puzzles; answer key

The eighteen units are based on readings that describe aspects of Canadian life. The activities that follow each unit topic focus on the vocabulary words in the passage. Students practise pronunciation, identify parts of speech and use the vocabulary in natural English sentences. The book contains a variety of communicative and interactive activities to stimulate discussion.

anti-racist education; speaking/conversation; teacher reference; illustrations

This book is a collection of oral stories about personal experiences with racism in Canada. These stories cover several topics: 1) the culture of everyday; 2) childhood; 3) work, and 4) continuing to fight. The stories can be used as classroom material to facilitate oral discussion.

life skills and community resources; English for work; illustrations; forms; exercises; teacher guide; answer key

The book is divided into 7 units which chronologically reflect stages of the job search process (e.g., self-assessment and job assessment, networking and getting started in a job search, barriers to employment, resumes and application forms, interviews). Notes for the ESL instructor include methodological suggestions, description of the format and the philosophy of the book. Supplementary resources and reference materials are listed at the end of the book. Each unit consists of student stories, questions for discussion and activities.

ESL literacy; speaking/conversation; teacher's guide

Designed to develop a student's ability to write clearly and logically in work-related contexts, Write on focuses on teaching thinking, reasoning and organizing skills. In addition to writing memos, letters, descriptions and instructions, the guide includes reading and discussing the mechanics and process of writing. Practice activities are provided on sentences, editing and note taking. The tutor's guidebook outlines procedures for teaching the 11 units in the student's book and suggests follow-up activities. A chart indicating the kinds of practice exercises is included in the appendix.

citizenship; ESL literacy; illustrations; maps; teacher's notes

Materials in Level 1 workbook have been simplified for the adult student with limited literacy skills. Large print, simple sentence structure, simple maps and charts and information in small sections have been used throughout the materials, along with activities. Topics cover such areas as municipal, provincial and federal governments, how laws are made, how to vote, people and languages, history, privileges and responsibilities. Level 2 includes maps, charts, illustrations, graphs, diagrams and readings on the topics of geography, history, political parties and voting, and other topics covered in Level 1, but in more depth. Accompanying the workbooks is a booklet containing Teacher’s Notes.

general language study; illustrations; answer key; audio-cassette

The book contains 100 popular jokes and a variety of language activities related to them. The jokes are categorized by theme and within each theme the jokes are grouped in order of difficulty. Cultural notes, along with introductions provide background information. Language activities include pronunciation practice, vocabulary development, speaking skills development through dramatization, interviews and discussions and grammar practice. All jokes and pronunciation exercises are on the audiocassette. An answer key is found at the back of the book.

speaking/conversation; ESL literacy; illustrations; exercises; teacher’s guide

Designed to stimulate a co-operative learning environment, and to accommodate students of different levels of English ability.
the workbooks in this kit prepare groups of students to engage in information gap and information transfer tasks. First, students work in "expert groups" where each has identical information on specific topics; then, they re-group into "jigsaw groups" of four, each of whom has different information (from each expert group) that must be shared in order to understand the whole situation. Exercises focus on vocabulary building, reading comprehension, and personal responses to the readings. Quizzes for each unit are available in the teacher's guide.

speaking/conversation; videocassette; exercises

The teacher's guide and student workbook serve as a guide to the videocassette. The video consists of 17 vignettes set in a variety of situations. Each conversation is built around one language function (e.g. complaining, apologizing, giving instructions). The book is divided into 16 units. Each unit includes a description of the situation, a glossary of the speech functions, cultural notes, teaching suggestions, two sets of comprehension questions, and a set of additional questions. Transcripts and answers appear at the end of the book.

grammar; answer key; exercises

The booklet deals with eight grammar problems that appear in ESL learners' writing. Rules, examples and practice activities are provided in each chapter. Review exercises and additional reading selections for summarizing, along with all answers, are English as a second language. Toronto: Ontario Ministry of Citizenship. 21 pages. Free.

This booklet has 6 two-page stories, collected from "Newcomer News", about the history and development of Ontario. Stories about the Native people, French rule, the Loyalists, the War of 1812, changes in the government, and economic development, are followed by exercises in sentence completion, reading comprehension, grammar structures, and vocabulary.

Newspaper articles on citizens' rights and responsibilities focus on Ontario, listing addresses and phone numbers for Human Rights Commission offices and Race Relations Directorates, and recounting stories of community action. Geographical description of other parts of Canada, and historical information about Canada's name, flag, and birthday are also included.

These student textbooks are organized by theme. The themes include career planning, consumerism, leisure, education, family life, multiculturalism, and the environment. A glossary of terms, a grammar section and reading for pleasure are featured in each of the twelve units. The teacher’s pedagogical notes have reproductions of student books, transcripts of taped activities, and descriptions of activities with options for weak and strong students. The evaluation guide contains formative and summative tests and student answer sheets, as well as an answer key. Three audiocassettes are included, two for classroom activities and one for tests.

In each of 17 chapters a full-page black and white photograph introduces the topic of a story. A series of questions that stimulate response to the topic, and a list of relevant vocabulary (organized by who, where, when, why, what, and how questions) prompt students to build individual stories about the photo. A glossary defines the vocabulary printed in bold-face throughout. A chart of language functions and verb tenses shows how topics can be integrated.

These three booklets present and practice over 500 phrases strategically useful in opening, maintaining, verifying, adjusting, or closing conversations. Innovative classroom activities are suggested to practice functionally similar phrases, which are grouped and listed in the margin of most pages. Book 1 deals with phrases to attract attention, introduce topics, digress from a topic, provide opinions, and discuss problems. Book 2 considers phrases to expand on topics, evaluate subjects, or make arguments. Book 3 concerns phrases for responding to various kinds of statements and closing conversations. It also provides a detailed index of the words and phrases appearing in the entire series. The selection of phrases was derived from a corpus of English speech data.

The production of spoken English suitable for specific social situations is the focus of the functionally-organized activities in this book. Learners are given contexts in which to practice requesting and giving information and directions, interrupting, stating preferences, making suggestions and small talk, agreeing and disagreeing, describing, giving opinions, persuading, and developing an idea. Each of the 10 units offers several different learning activities, citing American and Canadian examples. The teacher's manual lists appropriate introductory comments for each unit, as well as methodology notes.

The 9 modules at each level are organized by theme, offering activities at two levels of difficulty, covering aural/oral and literate skills. Modules are grouped in 3, any one of which a teacher can select for classroom study before going on to a module in the next group. Themes include: marketing strategies, life-styles, the magic of movies, remarkable people, terralune, designathon, interact, and take a stand. Self-evaluation activities are provided, as well as oral evaluations and end-of-module tests. Objectives follow the Quebec Ministry of Education guidelines for intermediate English. Sections are coded to indicate levels of difficulty, number of participants, and skill groups. Charts in the teacher’s guide to each module allocate the time to be spent on each skill group, level of difficulty, objectives, text characteristics, and the guide provides procedural suggestions, answers, evaluation information, and tapescripts.

The book is a collection of readings and activities organized into four units, each with four stories set in different cultural and geographical contexts around the world. The stories in each unit are thematically linked, progressing in difficulty. Each story has an opening jig-saw reading activity, comprehension questions on the story and on the unit as a whole, textual and interpretative questions, and vocabulary, puzzles and activities. Instructions for all exercises and solutions to the unit puzzles are located at the end of the book. Appended to the book is an introduction to the teacher, offering suggestions on how to adapt the stories and activities and describing the theoretical foundation of the book.

Writing activities are organized to focus on grammar points, which are explained in the teacher’s handbook. In each of the beginning level units, short answer and sentence manipulation exercises are followed by model compositions on Canadian topics; free compositions based on the model are also assigned. The student’s workbook has space for writing answers to exercise questions and final drafts of compositions. Crossword puzzles and games are included in some units. At the intermediate level, one teacher’s handbook and student workbooks (at two levels of difficulty) continue the writing practice introduced in the beginner text. Grammar points are illustrated in the context of topics, such as banking, health, taxes, or citizenship. There are exercises in sentence completion, short answer, and paragraph writing. Oral drills are provided in the teacher’s handbook, and supplemental activities focus on discussion.

Language activities in this multi-media teacher’s module are based on the daily working lives of immigrants in urban Canada. The teacher is described as a participant researcher who reacts to the students’ experiences and needs in designing an appropriate curriculum. The content of the five units (histories of immigrant workers, industrial and service sector jobs, work relationships, working conditions, and home and community life) are applicable to a variety of workplaces. The teacher’s manual encourages progressive development of curricula, emphasizing activities like listing work-related activities and equipment, charting communication flow maps, outlining job tasks, comparing jobs in Canada and their homelands, and mapping the local neighbourhood. Student worksheets for these activities are included. The video is an introduction to the "tool kit".

This teacher resource book shows how and why photostories can be produced to foster language and literacy learning. Seven chapters introduce 4 kinds of material: 2 essays focusing on employment and advertising as contexts for the photostories, an explanation of the production of photostories, 2 examples of photostories, and a discussion section with suggested activities. "Collective" learning is emphasized, with students directing much of the process.

This reading/language textbook focuses on developing reading skills, but listening, speaking and writing activities are incorporated into each of the twelve chapters. Twelve newspaper stories from across Canada are featured, teaching students about the country and Canadian culture. The original stories in the Instructor’s manual have been rewritten in the Student’s book to accommodate the learners’ proficiency level. The Instructor’s manual includes supplementary materials to help teachers adapt the stories to the particular needs of their students. Answers to the quiz questions are found in the Teacher’s and Student’s book.

A companion text to Amazing! Canadian newspaper stories, this book contains interview topics related to the newspaper stories contained in the earlier text. Each of the fourteen chapters is organized into three sections. In Section 1, facts on Canadian culture are presented followed by authentic interviews with Canadians and a speaking activity designed to generate intercultural discussion. The second section features an audiotaped interview or conversation about a newspaper story with accompanying illustrations. Included in the last section are audiotaped conversations and follow-up speaking activities. The Instructor's manual contains transcripts of the interviews and conversations, instructor's notes, supplementary materials and an answer key.

Bell discusses a wide range of practical pedagogical considerations in teaching classes of adult students with different levels of ESL proficiency. The book suggests techniques appropriate for curriculum planning, classroom instruction, and student activities in this situation. Bell first identifies unique factors in multilevel classrooms. She then describes, in case-study fashion, a typical teacher's course planning: numerous methods for student assessment; and diverse ways to organize whole class, group, individual, and self-access learning tasks.
A sample lesson sequence closes the book, along with a brief annotated bibliography to guide further reading.

The texts and workbooks in this series focus on reading, writing, and speaking, including intermediate and terminal objectives for these three skills in each module. Earlier modules emphasize speaking skills. Workbooks have reading texts, written exercises, diagnostic tests, and correction keys. Recorded material has dialogue, expansion drills, conversations, words and expressions, pronunciation examples, reading aloud, and tests. Some of the books have bilingual instructions (French and English), designed for English courses in Quebec. Modules begin with a presentation and continue with a dialogue, sentence building, expansion drills, and other language-oriented tasks, organized by grammar points.

The units in the two parts of the student’s book are organized by themes, which feature the same characters in a variety of everyday situations. Grammar is isolated from the communicative practice of the skill-based activities, many of which are appropriate for non-literate students. Sections of useful information about medical care, human rights, employment standards, and other social issues extend each theme for more advanced students. An appendix of irregular verbs is included. The teacher’s guide is organized by the different activity headings in the student book, and includes a summary of the purpose of each type of activity, teaching suggestions, briefly annotated references, and a list of contents in the student book. The material is designed for recent immigrants to Ontario.

Activities in this teacher resource book are designed for adult students who are landed immigrants in Canada: to familiarize them with Canadian custom regulations, with a special section on crossing the Canada-U.S. border by bus or car. Activity materials include flashcards, picture stories, and exercises. Dialogue scripts may be taped for classroom use.

life skills and community resources; regional; illustrations

Information and activities in this book concern Vancouver area health services. Dialogues, comprehension questions, picture stories, flash cards, and extension activities are included, and brief instructor notes appear throughout. The content is divided into Health department services, Home care, Child health centre, and Dental clinic.

ESL literacy; blank forms

A wide variety of commonly used forms are reproduced along with vocabulary explanations and "hints and helps". Examples include banking forms (including deposits, withdrawals, and mortgage and loan applications), as well as application forms (for S.I.N., jobs, union membership, driver's licence, insurance, and credit cards). Special vocabulary and "hints and helps" are listed before each form. A list of abbreviations and a printing chart are included, and a record card is provided on the back cover. In some cases instructions are directed to school-age learners, but the content is generally suitable for adult learners. Some forms, such as the 1980 income tax return, may be dated.

Twelve chapters focus on characteristics of teaching and adults' learning of ESL, the teaching of specific language skills, and materials development. Each chapter is preceded by questions that introduce ideas to be considered in teacher education or initial preparation courses. A list of related readings for each chapter is included.

The booklet provides information and strategies on how to find a job in both English and French. It is designed as a self-help booklet in which the reader is guided by questions and notes. Answers and suggestions are offered. In addition samples of cover letters, resumes, introductory letters to ads, and what to say on the telephone are provided.

The series consists of four documents that are designed to help immigrants learn about Canada as they learn one of Canada's official languages and as they adapt to, settle, and integrate into Canadian society. Canada: A Source book and Working with newcomers are informational resources for second language teachers, immigrant settlement workers and others who assist immigrants in their settlement and integration. These publications, which have the hierarchy of needs as their organizing principle, cover topics ranging from basic survival needs to personal aspirations.

Canada: A Source book is a syllabus designed to assist second-language teachers plan the content of their LINC classes and to assist settlement workers plan orientation and information sessions. Information is presented in a Question and Answer format from the point of view of the immigrant. Each section is introduced by a question that invites immigrants to talk about customs in their source country and to learn about customs in Canada, thereby involving them in using the language and concepts being learned to express what is familiar to them. This publication also contains information about immigration, Canadian history, geography, culture, family structures, education, employment, religion, laws and the legal system, banking, transportation, multiculturalism and citizenship.

Working with newcomers presents a conceptual framework for people who offer orientation, information and services to newcomers. It is designed to provide an appreciation of the immigrant experience and suggests how Canadians can help newcomers during their adaptation, settlement and integration. Information is provided from a national focus related to the commonalities that Canadians share regardless of where they live in Canada. It is designed to be supplemented by community, municipal and provincial information sources.

A Newcomer's guide to Canada and Getting started in Canada offer information to newcomers. They are designed to help newcomers learn about Canada and the commonalities that Canadians share and cover, in condensed format, the same topics as those addressed in Canada: A Source book.

Designed to provide ESL students visiting Canada with contact with native speakers in natural language learning experiences outside the classroom, this program prepares students for reaching destinations in downtown Vancouver. In-class work on grids and mazes, tape-recordings of conversations, and feed-back sessions are some of the ways that language is analyzed or practised. The guide includes students' notes (some in Japanese), as well as descriptions of classroom and field trip activities.

ESL literacy; grammar; illustrations

The first unit focuses on developing adjective, time, and "because" clauses through answers to wh- questions about picture stories. Pre-writing activities are emphasized to integrate spoken understanding of syntax, structure, and vocabulary with written work. The second unit is designed to stimulate free composition. Sentence-level exercises focusing on wh- questions begin the unit; three guided composition "packages" follow emphasizing grammar points and sentence-combining.

ESL literacy; life skills; maps; scales; exercises

The activity book is designed to be used with the atlas. Questions and exercises on each map help students develop skills needed to understand and interpret various types of maps. Scales, graphs, lines of latitude and longitude, the compass, colours, symbols and climate are some of the many topics covered. Canada, along with other regions in the world, is focussed on. Fifteen reproducible outline maps appear at the back of the activity book.

Life skills and community resources; vocabulary; exercises; illustrations; pamphlets

This five-unit module designed for intermediate students addresses four questions about household garbage in Toronto: what it consists of, where it goes, where it comes from and what is being done to reduce, reuse and recycle. Each unit begins with questions for discussion, followed by a variety of vocabulary, language and problem-solving activities, along with activities for outside classroom work. The module includes pamphlets containing information on the environment and a list of places to obtain further environmental information in Ontario.

ESL literacy; life skills and community resources; illustrations

The vocabulary and forms associated with job loss, and UI and GAIN applications are introduced. Notes for instructors highlight relevant information, procedures, and teaching techniques. Reproductions of real forms are included. Picture stories and other activities are designed for two levels of beginners.

life skills and community resources; regional; illustrations
Separate sections include information and exercises on reporting medical emergencies, crimes, and fires. These are prefaced by a basic dialogue for telephone use in an emergency (911 and a request for a translator). Flashcards, dialogues, comprehension questions, situations, picture stories, and brief instructor notes are included.

life skills and community resources; vocabulary; illustrations

Sections describe the layout of facilities in a bank, opening a new bank account, savings accounts, chequing accounts, using a bank machine, and applying for a loan. New vocabulary is introduced through picture stories, dialogues, and short reading passages. Black and white photographs and reproductions of forms are included.

life skills and community resources; vocabulary; illustrations

Sections describe the layout of facilities in a post office, mailing letters and parcels, and other postal services, with exercises on specific aspects of each such as addressing envelopes, registering mail, and arranging delivery notices, change of address, and money orders. Vocabulary used in these situations is introduced by picture stories, dialogues, and short reading passages. Reproductions of forms are included.

speaking/conversation; audiocassettes; exercises; illustrations; charts

Fourteen units help students develop listening, speaking, and conversation management strategies in situations such as small talk, asking for explanations, or expressing preferences. Units include discussion, pre-listening, listening comprehension, and guided conversation tasks, emphasizing meaningful, functional interactions.

These resource books are for teacher and student use. The beginner level books are organized by skill, and sub-divided by themes, such as consumer affairs (for communicative skills) and special days (for reading skills). The content guide cross-references grammar activities to the theme-related activities. In the intermediate level books, grammar exercises are prefaced by notes on form and use. Contents include present perfect, modals, infinitives of purpose, adverb clauses, and adjective clauses among others, in the first book, and past perfect, passive voice, wish/hope, gerunds and infinitives, and noun clauses, among others, in the second book. Answer keys are published separately.

ESL literacy, vocabulary; tests

The teacher’s manual explains spelling instruction, focussing on either sound or orthographic patterns, along with teaching sound combinations, silent letters, and irregular consonants to more proficient students. The student’s books include sentence completion and pronunciation exercises, and lists of words organized by common sounds.

teacher reference; anti-racist education; charts; illustrations; appendices

This practically-oriented handbook sensitizes teachers and others working in education to cross-cultural issues such as racism, values and practices of specific cultural groups, and biases in educational materials or tests. Various questionnaires, checklists, and recording instruments are provided to assess multicultural needs, provide for equality of opportunity, and develop appropriate curricula or attitudes in schools and communities. A conceptual framework is outlined to remediate students’ prejudiced thinking.

teacher reference; ESL literacy; assessment; bibliography

This document outlines an approach to ESL literacy assessment using the interview as an assessment tool. Following the introduction which outlines the assessment purpose and rationale, the authors provide suggestions for implementing the approach. A chart of the assessment process is presented with each component described in step-by-step fashion. Probing techniques are offered for helping learners and assessors identify needs/goals, perceptions, abilities and strategies, and to develop learning priorities. Four appendices provide assessors with lists of topics to discuss, life goal areas, suggested materials to gather and specific skills to focus on. The fifth appendix includes a chart to record information.

teacher reference; anti-racist education; illustrations

This is a teacher’s guide to anti-racist education. The four chapters each contain four sections which focus on describing anti-racist education, the school and community, the curriculum and student services. Chapters include letters, staff development notes and activities, classroom activities and resources.

vocabulary; illustrations
In addition to definitions of words written in simple English for ESL learners, this dictionary includes a pronunciation key, idioms, a list of irregular verbs, common abbreviations, numbers, punctuation marks and metric symbols. Several illustrations appear on every page to accompany word entries.

The "contact approach" emphasizes language learning through interaction with native speakers of English. In-class guests and field trips, as well as individual and class activities, stimulate awareness of natural English use. The program was designed for groups of Japanese students visiting Vancouver, but the material can be used with students of any cultural background. Sample lessons are given for ESL as well as content-area learning. Students' and teachers' functions are described.

teacher reference; bibliography

This report based on a review of research, literature and unpublished documents outlines the history of ESL teaching in Canada and provides an assessment of the extent to which existing ESL programme delivery meets the needs of adult immigrants and refugees in Canada. In addition, recommendations for future policy and planning are made.

Life skills and community resources; vocabulary; exercises; audiocassette

The six sections of this module provide opportunities for adult ESL learners to acquire the necessary language and knowledge to look for accommodation independently. Pre-listening activities introduce housing vocabulary in preparation for the seven conversations between landlords and potential clients. Activity sheets accompany the conversations as well as follow-up practice activities. Exercises focus on questions to ask landlords, directions, map reading, want ad vocabulary and telephone skills. A resource list is included naming community agencies and government offices providing information on housing and tenants' rights.

ESL literacy; citizenship; life skills; newspaper; photographs; illustrations; teacher notes

Published quarterly, Welcome news contains articles on issues relevant to Manitoba and Canada. As the audience is intended for ESL readers, articles are graded according to vocabulary and sentence structure. The content covers topics such as housing, employment, health care, government, multicultural events and sports. The teacher notes accompanying this newspaper provide activities and further information about the content of the paper.

ESL literacy; grammar; exercises

Simplified grammatical explanations and examples are presented, along with a variety of practice activities. Practice includes such activities as open-ended, information gap and traditional (fill in the blanks, controlled practice) type activities. Simple readings are also provided, followed by activities. The use of North American idioms and vocabulary is evident in the activities.

Recommendations by teachers and staff of the Citizenship Development Branch shaped this list of books for adult ESL. The annotated entries are organized by theme into 18 categories including professional development, class texts, variety of skills, literacy, songs, films, TOEFL, kits, and computers. Annotations are brief, focusing on purpose and scope of the materials, and include 1987 prices. Selections are listed in alphabetical order by title within each category.

teacher reference; adult curriculum & instruction; illustrations

This booklet helps teachers to identify content that is relevant and meaningful to adult ESL students. Ideas are listed for choosing themes and involving students in creating and using tools. The FIGS principle (familiar, involves, generates, social setting) guides selection of themes and learning tools.

teacher reference; community resources

This booklet lists resources produced, collected, and distributed by the Ontario Ministry of Citizenship for ESL teachers, learners, and programs. Most entries are annotated. Information about associations, government offices, and grants is included. Instructions for buying or borrowing the materials are given.

teacher reference; citizenship; curriculum & instruction

Adults in citizenship courses are taught "how to beat city hall" in this sample lesson plan based on an actual news article. A series of activities introduce vocabulary and explore the issue, relating it to personal experiences. Materials, grouping, processes, outcomes, and time frames of each activity are described; additional comments clarify aspects of the activities. Sample class handouts are included.

life skills; regional

This kit contains one poster, 20 copies of illustrated newsprint tabloids, 4 activity sheets for duplication, 2 sets of 2 photo sequence stories, 1 leader’s guide, 1 audio cassette with script, and 3 booklets. These materials introduce the concept of insurance in Canadian society while providing practical language practice.

teacher reference; anti-racist education
This booklet consists in a series of sixty-six profiles of Canadian ethnic groups. Each profile is accompanied by relevant statistics and historical trends pertaining to immigration in Ontario.

This booklet provides information and references and makes suggestions for developing a program for adult ESL learners. Included also is an annotated bibliography of resources for adult ESL programs. A student profile form, needs assessment questionnaire and course evaluation questionnaire are included in the appendices.

Published 10 times per year, except for July and August, Your news contains articles on issues relevant to Canada and Quebec. As the intended audience is adult ESL learners, articles are graded for both beginner and intermediate students. This informative newspaper covers such topics as multicultural events, sports, government, health and housing.

ALL 3 LINC LEVELS

These handbooks introduce survival English for Canada. There is one volume in English and one volume in each of Laotian, Hmong, Chinese, Spanish, Vietnamese, and Portuguese. Topics include: Canadian geography and citizenship, transportation, telephoning, health, shopping, banking, school, work, accommodation, and law.

These 12 booklets are designed to assist teachers to plan instruction for adults learning initial, functional communication in a second language. Each booklet specifies learning objectives, cultural considerations, kinds of spoken transaction, useful expressions, and classroom activities (information gathering, information-sharing, information-processing, and role plays) as a framework for preparing lessons appropriate to learning to interact socially in specific situations in a new language and culture. These frameworks form a basis for teaching any language at the initial stages, requiring a teacher to provide materials, speech, vocabulary, and cultural background to implement a curriculum to suit learners' needs and interests. Use of the new language to transact information and perform social functions is emphasized in the objectives and suggested teaching activities.

Appendix C. A-LINC Descriptions for Levels 1, 2, and 3

A-LINC LEVEL 1

May speak a little, but usually not at all. May recognize some letters but have trouble pronouncing them.

Understanding is very limited and may range from no apparent comprehension, to comprehending short phrases or key words.

May be unable to copy Roman script. Can usually print own name, but cannot manage address or anything else. May not handle pen/pencil at all, or only with awkwardness. May not read/write in own language, or with minimal ability.

Usually has little or no sight word recognition. Usually has little or no ability to phonetically decode words. If words can be decoded, there may be no understanding of their meaning.

A-LINC LEVEL 2

Minimal speaking ability, with very little vocabulary, usually limited to topics of personal information. Speech is frequently interrupted by hesitations while searching for needed words/structures.

Can understand only a little, usually with the help of gestures, and only if words are spoken at a slow pace. May tend to repeat phrases/questions just heard rather than respond to them.

Writing usually quite limited, e.g. to name/address, and some high-frequency words.

Can read alphabet and numbers and basic words or sentences.

A-LINC LEVEL 3

Can speak with simple sentence structures, using present tense, but attempts at linking or sequencing sentences prove difficult. Speech is fragmented, i.e. a mixture of sentences and phrases, or single key words strung together without function words. Will struggle to search for words. Vocabulary limited to personal information, daily life, or similar familiar topics. Pronunciation problems often make speech hard to understand.

Listening ability is often better than speech production, with the ability to understand basic instructions/questions, often by picking up on key content words rather than necessarily understanding everything.

Writing is mainly limited to single words, phrases and simple sentences, such as personal information required for filling out a form. Frequent errors in spelling, grammar and punctuation.

Can read basic information presented in simple sentences within a known, usually practical context, such as basic forms, lists, familiar classroom material.

Appendix E. Consultation Protocols

November 17, 19...

Dear colleague,

We are writing to ask for your input to a project we are currently conducting for TESL Canada and Employment and Immigration Canada to prepare a LINC-Specific Annotated Bibliography of Second Language Teaching and Learning Materials. As a resource guide, this bibliography will list, describe, and provide distribution and purchasing information on teaching and learning materials suitable for adult participants in levels 1, 2, and 3 of Employment and Immigration Canada’s LINC (language instruction for newcomers to Canada) programs. Of particular interest are educational materials appropriate for this population’s acquisition of English as a Second Language (ESL) and their orientation to, settlement in, and participation in Canadian society. The final version of the bibliography will be distributed widely throughout Canada in the coming year for use by instructors, program administrators, adult students, and other persons associated with the LINC program.

We are asking for your assistance as part of a nation-wide consultation strategy in preparing the bibliography. Your name will be identified through TESL Canada’s Directory as a person who is well informed about adult ESL education in your region of the country. We are particularly interested in asking you to help us identify:
1. in the first phase of consultations (Nov. 18 to Dec. 1), particular concerns of adult newcomers in your region of Canada that you consider should be addressed in the contents and organization of the bibliography and

2. specific teaching or learning materials that you think should be included in the bibliography, then

3. in the second phase of consultations (Jan. 4 to 15, 1993), revisions you think would help to improve the contents of our initial draft of the bibliography.

Our schedule to complete these consultations is very tight; Employment and Immigration Canada would like a completed version of the bibliography by the end of January. We would therefore like to arrange a time to interview you by telephone in the final week of November as the first phase of consultation. The interview will take no more than 30 minutes. On the basis of these consultations and our library research, we will prepare an initial draft of the bibliography and mail it to you in late December. We will then contact you by telephone in early January to arrange a time for a follow-up telephone interview in mid-January as the second phase of consultation. This follow-up interview will probably last for 15 to 30 minutes.

If you are willing to allow us to consult with you, could you kindly complete the attached consent form, tear it off of this letter, and mail it to us in the enclosed, stamped envelope. Please retain a copy of this letter and the two survey forms for our later consultations. You are of course not under any obligation to participate in this consultation; you may decide to withdraw your participation at any point. If you do choose to participate, Employment and Immigration Canada has asked us to list the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of all persons contacted for this consultation. If you do agree to assist us, your name will be cited on this list. But any information you provide will be strictly confidential. None of the specific information or remarks you provide us will be related to you personally in our final report, nor will they be identifiable in the contents of the bibliography. None of the information being collected in this project will be used to evaluate your knowledge or any educational programs you are associated with.

Thank you very much for your cooperation,

Sincerely,

Consent Form

Dear Drs. Cumming and Burnaby,

I have read your letter of November 17 describing the consultations for preparation of a LINC-specific Annotated Bibliography of Teaching and Learning Materials and kept a copy of the letter for my records.

I am / am not (please circle one) willing to participate. I do / do not (please circle one) agree to have my name and address listed as a person consulted for this project.

Survey Form #1, Initial Consultation

We will contact you by phone to arrange a convenient time to interview you between Nov. 18 and Dec. 1. Please have this form ready, along with any specific materials or information you are able to gather to answer the two questions below. We will collect information from you by interview over the telephone so you need not write out your answers to these questions to transmit them to us.

1. Could you advise us on local concerns of teachers and learners in LINC programs that you think the bibliography ought to address? In addition to categorization of materials by LINC levels 1, 2 and 3, how else might the contents of the bibliography be organized or displayed to be most useful for LINC participants? What kinds of information would be most useful and appropriate to include in this bibliography?

2. Can you suggest specific teaching or learning materials for inclusion in the bibliography? Relevant materials appearing in Alister Cumming’s Annotated Bibliography of Canadian ESL Materials, TESL Canada Journal, Special Issue #2 (1990) are already being included. Are you aware of appropriate materials that have been produced more recently or were not included in this earlier bibliography? Could you inform us of the publishers or distributors? (All relevant materials are being considered if a specific distributor for the materials can be identified.)

Thank you for your input and advice.

Survey Form #2, Follow-up Consultation

We will contact you by phone to arrange a convenient time to interview you in mid-January. Please have this form ready, along with any specific materials or information you are able to gather to answer the questions below. We will collect information from you by interview over the telephone so you need not write out your answers to these questions to transmit them to us.

Given the draft of the LINC-Specific Annotated Bibliography of Second Language Teaching and Learning Materials you have received, can you make specific suggestions to improve the:

1. contents of the bibliography?

2. organization or visual display of the bibliography?

3. usefulness of the bibliography for its intended audiences (e.g., teachers, students, and others in the LINC program)?

Thank you for your input and advice.
The TESL Canada Journal is published twice a year.

SONY LANGUAGE LABORATORY SYSTEMS —
CHOOSE THE SYSTEM THAT’S BEST FOR YOU.

BASIC
LLC-1100: The desktop language lab system. Sony’s new LLC-1100 system can turn any room into a “basic” language learning lab for up to sixty students.

TRADITIONAL
LLC-4500 MKII: The traditional lab. This economical computer-controlled system provides all traditional language lab functions. It’s reliable and easy-to-use.

OR SOPHISTICATED
LLC-9000: Touch-screen sophistication with stereo sound. Program this computer-controlled lab to your personal teaching style – add individual video and PC’s – even analyze and print test scores.
