School Counseling Internship Organizational & Supervision Materials.

Internship is a vital experience for a student counselor, providing opportunities for application and integration of knowledge and skills. University supervision of school counseling interns is a complex task. This document, addressing a lack of articles on the pragmatism of this type of supervision work, provides two handbooks that show how to run a counseling internship program. Intended for university supervisors of school counseling internship programs, each handbook details the school counseling internship program at Eastern Washington University. The first handbook offers general and specific information on internships, including: policies and procedures; internship objectives, sites, requirements, and supervisors; ethical standards; assessment programs; liability insurance; disclosure statements; professional conduct; and client rights and responsibilities. The second handbook covers internship supervision. The topics treated here include program philosophy; general goals of the counseling program; internship objectives; required internship activities; necessary documentation; the master counselor role; and a comparison between internship and student teaching. Four appendices provide examples of self-reporting forms, a tape rating form, a weekly supervision report, quarterly assessment forms, and a copy of an internship agreement. (RJM)

Introduction

Historically, professors in medicine and human services have viewed student internships as a critical training component of their programs (Bernard & Goodyear, 1992). In Counselor Education, the national accrediting body mandates an internship experience for all school counselor candidates (Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs [CACREP], 1994). University supervision of school counseling interns is a complex task. This supervision involves both administrative and clinical supervisory duties (Bernard & Goodyear, 1993). Despite the vital nature of these supervisory duties, only two articles on the pragmatics of this type of supervision work have appeared in the professional literature (Pitts, 1992; Pitts, Miller, Poidevant, & Meyers-Arvin, 1990). The authors of both of these articles did an excellent job explicating the key structural elements of university supervision of school counselor interns. However, the "nitty-gritty" aspects of running a school counseling internship program were not covered. This document aims to fill this dearth in the literature.

Document Contents

By "nitty-gritty," we mean the everyday processes that make up a counseling internship. For instance, questions such as the following:
1. How often in an academic quarter should a site-supervisor conduct a formal review of an intern's progress?

2. What materials should an intern include in their performance portfolio?

It is questions such as these that prompted us to put together this document for university supervisors of school counseling internship programs. The answers to these questions and others can be found in appendices. Here the reader will find copies of two handbooks that detail the school counseling internship program at Eastern Washington University (EWU).

At EWU, the counselor education faculty designed their internship programs to meet and exceed the internship standards set by CACREP (1994). The internship handbook (see Appendix A) provides to students: (a) an overview of the internship program, and (b) specific information on internship policies and procedures. The supervision handbook (see Appendix B) communicates to both the intern and site supervisor the expectations and responsibilities of all parties involved in the internship program. Both appendices A and B contain a variety of forms that aid the concretization of internship procedures and relationships. Finally, CACREP standards require that a group supervision experience be part of any school counseling internship program (CACREP, 1994). Appendix C contains the syllabus for the class designed to meet this requirement.

Conclusion

This document contains materials that detail the specifics on how to run a smooth functioning CACREP-style school counseling internship program. Research on the efficacy of this internship model versus other models would benefit the counselor education field.

1. Purpose and Goals

The purpose of this manual is to inform students about the goals of the internship, and policies and procedures governing the internship program. Students are expected to be thoroughly familiar with this manual.

The counseling internship plays a major part in the counseling student’s professional development. The student must recognize and arrange to make the investment to achieve the goals of the internship. Internship provides a bridge between academic preparation and the applied setting.

The principal goal of the internship is to provide the student with a broad set of experiences as a practicing professional in a school or community agency under competent supervision. The intern will act as a practicing professional performing a broad range of professional and technical activity typically performed by regularly employed counselors in the setting. The student will be able to develop his or her knowledge and experiential base and technical skills to a high level.

The minimum internship requirements are set forth in the standards of the Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs (CACREP and/or WACs). Students are expected to set their own goals to meet and exceed these minimum requirements. Minimally the internship experience must include 600 total hours: 240 of those hours must be direct service to clients.

2. General Information

Schools and agencies typically do not pay interns. The department believes interns should be paid a stipend, and it is committed to working toward that objective. Work study support cannot be used as a stipend for an internship. Work study students desiring to work in their internship setting must put in their work study hours over-and-above their internship hours. Students employed by an agency or school should plan to do their internship in a different agency or school to obtain a broad experience.

Agencies offering internship opportunities differ in the kinds of experiences they can provide the intern. To maximize the internship experience, the student will need to give careful thought to the types of experience he or she desires. The student should decide which population he or she wants to work with primarily, e.g., adults, children and adolescents, geriatric adults, etc. The student will need to decide the nature of clients he or she wants to work with, e.g., marital and family issues, substance abuse and addiction, mental health problems, etc. And the student needs to determine if the particular internship setting will meet the requirements for any special licensure or certification desired, e.g., mental health or clinical counseling, AAMFT, etc. In general, it is best to consider a broader range of experiences rather than a narrow range.

The student may also desire to obtain some more specific professional experiences during the internship. For example, a student may want to gain experience in diagnostic testing. Or a student may want to get experience with some specialized therapy technique such as play therapy or art therapy. Being clear about these issues will help maximize the student's internship experience. It will be to the student's advantage to discover the possibilities for exposure to varieties of techniques and approaches offered in the agency.

The agency to which the student applies will be very interested in his or her goals. The agency will want to determine whether the student’s goals fit within the mission and supervision capability of the agency. A student with clear goals is seen as more mature, motivated, and self-directed than a student with vague goals. When the student's goals are known, the agency can work with the student to develop the kinds of experiences needed to meet the goals.

All of this does not mean the student must prematurely commit her or himself to a professional career, and make irreversible choices. Rather it emphasizes that, as in all learning, goals help structure learning experiences.

3. Student Responsibility

The internship imposes important responsibilities on the student. The student competes for intern positions with students from other training programs. To compete successfully, the student needs to develop a clear set of objectives to be met and to actively follow the procedures and time lines set forth to secure a placement. The department does not guarantee an internship, but does develop agreements with agencies and schools permitting students to apply. The department will actively support and facilitate the student's search for an internship. The student will work within the framework of these procedures and the agreements the department has established with schools and agencies.

The student needs to prepare a resume and a formal letter of application to the school/agency selected, and anticipate an interview by the school/agency.

The internship is a three-way agreement between the student, the department, and the participating school or agency. When the student has accepted an intern position, it is expected that he or she will honor the conditions and arrangements to which he or she has agreed by accepting the position. The student, therefore, needs to become familiar with the programs, policies, and practices of the agency or school. Once an internship position has been accepted by the student, changes in internship setting are discouraged. No changes will be accepted by the department unless there is a compelling reason, and the changes have been approved in writing by the agency and the department.

The intern shall determine that the agency/school professional liability insurance covers the interns' activities. If not, the intern shall obtain his/her own insurance. The student is responsible for arranging his/her own liability insurance protection. The university, department a.d/or department faculty shall not be held responsible for providing insurance coverage, and shall not be held liable for any action brought against the intern by a client, anyone associated with the client or by the agency or school, or anyone associated with the agency or school.

3A. The student needs to familiarize her or himself with all the materials in this packet. The contents are:

1. A brief guide for the student to use for developing his or her objectives for the internship.
2. Flow Chart specifying student activities and time lines for completing activities.
3. CACREP Minimum Standards and WAC Codes for School Counseling Interns.
4. List of Schools and Agencies offering internships.
5. A copy of the AACD Ethical Standards.
6. Copies of forms used to evaluate the intern's progress and performance.
7. Professional Liability Insurance Disclaimer to be read and signed by the student and returned to the Internship Coordinator.
9. Internship Log
3B. Major Student Activities for Arranging the Internship

1. Formulate internship objectives and review with advisor.
2. Identify potential sites based on objectives from pre-approved agencies or schools.
3. Prepare professional resume and letter of application.
4. Initiate background check process. (Explanation found in “General Information” section.)
5. Arrange for and visit prospective sites.
6. Select site
7. Formally apply for internship at selected site.
8. Interview for intern position as needed.

* Notification or advice and consultation of advisor needed.
 Notification or consultation and approval of Internship Coordinator needed.

3C. Background Checks
Interns working in schools and mental health interns working with children must submit to a background check and fingerprinting. The background check must be completed before beginning the internship.

4. Site Selection Considerations

Some students may desire to complete an internship in more than one setting. The standard internship experience is a half-time position (20 hours per week) for 3 consecutive quarters. Students desiring internships in 2 settings will need to commit to 2, half-time positions in one year, or take 2 years to complete both internships.

Employed school personnel must do their internship in a setting in which they are not employed.

The counseling faculty will assist in directing students to the schools or agencies consistent with student goals.

The site must allow interns to become familiar with a variety of professional activities other than direct services. Students must be able to obtain supervised experience in the use of professional resources such as appraisal instruments, computers, media, research, and professional literature. Approved internship sites must allow the student to record client interactions by audio and/or videotape for supervision purposes.
Policies Governing Internships

Policy 1: Eligibility

Students must have successfully completed 45 quarter hours of graduate study in counseling and the counseling practicum to be eligible for internship. The 45 quarter hours must include the following core courses and counseling foundations courses:

- APSY 504: Theories of Human Development
- APSY 541: Group Processes
- APSY 542: Career Development
- APSY 546: Group Counseling
- APSY 544: Counseling Theory and Techniques
- APSY 545: Advanced Appraisal Techniques
- APSY 548: Counseling Children and Adolescents
- APSY 569: Family System and Parent Education
- APSY 695: Counseling Practicum
- APSY 540: Education Counseling Systems (for school counselors only)

Policy 2: Enrollment

Students must be enrolled in APSY 697, Internship, for each quarter they are interning. During each quarter of the internship, the student shall attend an internship seminar conducted by the Internship Coordinator. The seminar will meet weekly for 1 1/2 hours. The purposes of the seminar shall be:

a. case conferencing/group supervision;

b. to share information about site experiences;

c. to discuss relevant professional issues or problems arising during the internship;

d. to supplement the internship experience by consultation and/or presentations of specialized topics and research;

e. to integrate and apply content and experiences from the academic program to the internship experience.

In addition, for school counseling interns, WACs specify 12 hours of observational consultation with the Internship Coordinator, or designated university representative.

Policy 3: Completion

Students eligible for internship must complete the internship in either their 1st or 2nd year of eligibility (within 2 calendar years). The student must be enrolled in APSY 697, Internship, during each quarter in which they intern.

Policy 4: Supervision

Interns shall receive a minimum of one hour per week of individual supervision by the clinical supervisor on-site.

The intern's primary resource person on site is his/her clinical supervisor. Site supervisors must have a minimum of a Master's degree in the program emphasis area and appropriate certificates and/or licenses. Additionally, they must have at least two years of relevant post-masters professional experience, and be knowledgeable about the expectations and requirements of the student's program emphasis. Supervisors must be familiar with procedures for evaluating interns. Supervision will include discussion of appropriate client assignments, counseling strategies, client assessment, and making client progress reports, as well as evaluating intern skills and knowledge base. Group supervision will also be provided.

The faculty Internship Coordinator provides administrative supervision to both the student and the clinical supervisor. The Internship Coordinator visits the internship site and contacts the clinical supervisor to assure that the necessary experiences and supervision are provided the intern. The Internship Coordinator also grades the internship experience.

Students will formally evaluate their clinical supervision at the end of the internship, in consultation with the Internship Coordinator.

Policy 5: Site Visitations

The student will receive an on-site visit by the Internship Coordinator at least once each quarter.

Policy 6: Competencies and Assessment

Interns will develop a portfolio to document skills and competencies.

The portfolio is to include a statement of each clinical objective the student develops, a description of the method or procedure for meeting the objective, and a summary of the activity(ies) which demonstrate the competency. A representative work sample (with client name blacked out) shall be in the portfolio to evidence competency. This is to be reviewed with the site supervisor who will sign off on each competency objective. Mental health intern competencies shall include:

1. intake and psychosocial history;
2. client assessment and problem(s) identification;
3. psycho-diagnostic testing;
4. DSM-III-R diagnoses;
5. development of therapeutic plans;
6. evaluating effectiveness of therapy;
7. effective referral-out procedure;
8. sample of one session and case summary notes or reports with critique;
9. case presentations;
10. effective transfer to other therapist and/or therapy termination plan and process;
11. special interventions (crisis intervention);
12. cross-cultural counseling/interventions;
13. community outreach/training program;
14. consultations;
15. other
School counseling interns will develop portfolios to reflect the following competencies specified by the attached WAC Codes.

5. evaluation of the effectiveness of a group intervention;
6. example of counseling with student having exceptional needs;

8. special interventions (crisis intervention; referral to community agency, etc.);
9. sample of active participation in IEPs and MDTs;
10. sample of parent education program;
11. consultation with teachers and administrators;

14. case presentation;
15. presentation to students regarding high risk behaviors for prevention;
16. report of a contribution to understanding of an ethical issue or legal issue in the school;
17. other

Policy 7: Supervisor Assessments

Site supervisors will complete quarterly and final assessments of interns.

The quarterly and final assessment forms are included in this manual. The intern is to review each evaluation with the site supervisor. Both the intern and site supervisor are to sign the evaluation, and the intern shall submit the evaluation form to the Internship Coordinator before the end of each quarterly grading period. The evaluation forms, the portfolio and performance in the internship seminar will be used by the Internship Coordinator to grade the interns.

Policy 8: Documentation

Interns will document activity hours by completing an internship log.

A copy of the Internship Log is included with this manual. Students are to record their activity on the log. The site supervisor is to sign the log each month, and the log is to be maintained as part of the intern's portfolio to document completion of professional activity and hour requirements related to the program they are completing.

Policy 9: Involuntary Termination of the Internship

An intern may be suspended and/or terminated by the school or agency for cause. The intern may be immediately suspended upon a verbal conference with the site supervisor and Internship Coordinator, and terminated upon receipt of written notice to the intern and the Internship Coordinator.
An intern may be terminated by the school or agency for actions or conduct which:

a. places a client in or causes danger to a client, or others;

b. violates professional codes of ethics and/or laws governing the activities of the school, agency, and/or training program, e.g., AACC and/or APA and/or SPI codes of ethics; and/or WAC codes applicable to counselors.

c. interferes with the school or agency carrying out its functions, e.g., repeated tardiness or absences, refusal to accept or complete assignments, taking unauthorized initiatives, etc.;

d. engaging in activity outside of competencies without training and supervision, e.g., individual IQ testing;

e. deficient performances in areas of training and supervision;

f. violations of law pertaining to regulation of counselors and school personnel;

g. following repeated warnings about problem issues.

9A. Appeal

An intern who has been suspended or terminated may appeal the action to the counseling faculty. The faculty will meet with the agency which suspended/terminated the intern to explore possibilities for addressing agency concerns and to determine the possibility of having the student reinstated contingent upon the student and program satisfactorily remediating the area(s) of concern. The faculty may recommend the student be terminated from the training program for serious ethical violations or illegal behavior. The faculty will seek professional guidance from appropriate state licensing and/or certification boards in determinations to recommend termination from the training program. Faculty may direct the student in writing to take specific actions to remediate problems, issues or deficiencies which initially resulted in the suspension/termination.

Upon receiving the reviewing actions of the faculty, a student may appeal to an independent panel of five (5) members from the PEAB and Mental Health Advisory Board. The independent panel shall not include any member of the agency suspending/terminating the student or the counseling faculty in the Department of Applied Psychology. The Appeal Panel may recommend measures whereby the student may be requalified for reinstatement to the training program and/or to an internship. Students will then be reevaluated by the counseling faculty for reinstatement to the program, and/or assisted in developing a new internship setting. Students reinstated to an internship will be credited with objectives achieved prior to the suspension/termination.

9B. Reinstatement After Successful Appeal

Reinstating a student to internship will not be interpreted to mean the student returns to the agency which suspended or terminated the student. The student will be assisted in a new internship placement.

9C. Documentation of Suspension/Termination

A report of the intern’s suspension and/or termination will be placed in the student’s graduate file and removed only upon satisfactory performance to remediate the problem or issue to be decided by the Appeal Panel. If the student fails to remediate the problem or issue, the report may become a part of the student’s permanent record.

9D. Termination of Student

An intern terminated from an internship may be terminated from the counseling training program.

ETHICAL STANDARDS

American Association for Counseling and Development
(As Revised by AACC Governing Council, March 1988)

PREAMBLE

The Association is an educational, scientific, and professional organization whose members are dedicated to the enhancement of the worth, dignity, potential, and uniqueness of each individual and thus to the service of society.

The Association recognizes that the role definitions and work settings of its members include a wide variety of academic disciplines, levels of academic preparation, and agency services. This diversity reflects the breadth of the Association's interest and influence. It also poses challenging complexities in efforts to set standards for the performance of members, desired requisite preparation or practice, and supporting social, legal, and ethical controls.

The specification of ethical standards enables the Association to clarify to present and future members and to those served by members the nature of ethical responsibilities held in common by its members.

The existence of such standards serves to stimulate greater concern by members for their own professional functioning and the conduct of fellow professionals such as counselors, guidance and student personnel workers, and others in the helping professions. As the ethical code of the Association, this document establishes principles that define the ethical behavior of Association members. Additional ethical guidelines developed by the Association's Divisions for their specialty areas may further define a member's ethical behavior.

Section A:

General

1. The member influences the development of the profession by continuous efforts to improve professional practices, teaching, services, and research. Professional growth is continuous throughout the member's career and is exemplified by the development of a philosophy that explains why and how a member functions in the helping relationship. Members must gather data on their effectiveness and be guided by the findings. Members recognize the need for continuing education to ensure competent service.

2. The member has a responsibility both to the individual who is served and to the institution within which the service is performed to maintain high standards of professional conduct as the member strives to maintain the highest levels of professional services offered to the individuals to be served. The member also strives to assist the agency, organization, or institution in providing the highest caliber of professional services. The acceptance of employment in an institution implies that the member is in agreement with the general policies and principles of the institution. Therefore the professional activities of the member are also in accord with the objectives of the institution. If, despite concerted efforts, the member cannot reach agreement with the employer as to acceptable standards of conduct that allow for changes in institutional policy conducive to the positive growth and development of clients, then terminating the affiliation should be seriously considered.

3. Ethical behavior among professional associates, both members and nonmembers, must be expected at all times. When information is possessed that raises doubt as to the ethical behavior of professional colleagues, whether Association members or not, the member must take action to attempt to rectify such a condition. Such action shall use the institution's channels first and then use procedures established by the Association.

4. The member neither claims nor implies professional qualifications exceeding those possessed and is responsible for correcting any misrepresentations of these qualifications by others.

5. In establishing fees for professional counseling services, members must consider the financial status of clients and locality. In the event that the established fee structure is inappropriate for a client, assistance must be provided in finding comparable services of acceptable cost.
6. When members provide information to the public or to subordinates, peers, or supervisors, they have a responsibility to ensure that the content is general, unidentified client information that is accurate, unbiased, and consists of objective, factual data.

7. Members recognize their boundaries of competence and provide only those services and use only those techniques for which they are qualified by training or experience. Members should only accept those positions for which they are professionally qualified.

8. In the counseling relationship, the counselor is aware of the intimacy of the relationship and maintains respect for the client and avoids engaging in activities that seek to meet the counselor's personal needs at the expense of that client.

9. Members do not condone or engage in sexual harassment which is defined as deliberate or repeated comments, gestures, or physical contacts of a sexual nature.

10. The member avoids bringing personal issues into the counseling relationship, especially if the potential for harm is present. Through awareness of the negative impact of both racial and sexual stereotyping and discrimination, the counselor guards the individual rights and personal dignity of the client in the counseling relationship.

11. Products or services provided by the member by means of classroom instruction, public lectures, demonstrations, written articles, radio or television programs, or other types of media must meet the criteria cited in these standards.

Section B: Counseling Relationship

This section refers to practices and procedures of individual and/or group counseling relationships.

The member must recognize the need for client freedom of choice. Under those circumstances where this is not possible, the member must apprise clients of restrictions that may limit their freedom of choice.

1. The member's primary obligation is to respect the integrity and promote the welfare of the client(s), whether the client(s) is (are) assisted individually or in a group relationship. In a group setting, the member is also responsible for taking reasonable precautions to protect individuals from physical and/or psychological trauma resulting from interaction within the group.

2. Members make provisions for maintaining confidentiality in the storage and disposal of records and follow an established record retention and disposition policy. The counseling relationship and information resulting therefrom must be kept confidential, consistent with the obligations of the member as a professional person. In a group counseling setting, the counselor must set a norm of confidentiality regarding all group participants' disclosures.

3. If an individual is already in a counseling relationship with another professional person, the member does not enter into a counseling relationship without first contacting and receiving the approval of that other professional. If the member discovers that the client is in another counseling relationship after the counseling relationship begins, the member must gain the consent of the other professional or terminate the relationship, unless the client elects to terminate the other relationship.

4. When the client's condition indicates that there is clear and imminent danger to the client or others, the member must take reasonable personal action or inform responsible authorities. Consultation with other professionals must be used where possible. The assumption of responsibility for the client's(s') behavior must be taken only after careful deliberation. The client must be involved in the resumption of responsibility as quickly as possible.

5. Records of the counseling relationship, including interview notes, test data, correspondence, tape recordings, electronic data storage, and other documents are to be considered professional information for use in counseling, and they should not be considered a part of the records of the institution or agency in which the counselor is employed unless specified by state statute or regulation. Revelation to others of counseling material must occur only upon the expressed consent of the client.

6. In view of the extensive data storage and processing capacities of the computer, the member must ensure that data maintained on a computer is: (a) limited to information that is appropriate and necessary for the services being provided; (b) destroyed after it is determined that the information is no longer of any value in providing services; and (c) restricted in terms of access to appropriate staff members involved in the provision of services by using the best computer security method available.

7. Use of data derived from a counseling relationship for purposes of counselor training or research shall be confined to content that can be disguised to ensure full protection of the identity of the subject client.

8. The member must inform the client of the purposes, goals, techniques, rules of procedure, and limitations that may affect the relationship at or before the time that the counseling relationship is entered. When working with minors or persons who are unable to give consent, the member protects these clients' best interests.

9. In view of common misconceptions related to the perceived inherent validity of computer-generated data and narrative reports, the member must ensure that the client is provided with information as part of the counseling relationship that adequately explains the limitations of computer technology.

10. The member must screen prospective group participants, especially when the emphasis is on self-understanding and growth through self-disclosure. The member must maintain an awareness of the group participants' compatibility throughout the life of the group.

11. The member may choose to consult with any other professionally competent person about a client. In choosing a consultant, the member must avoid placing the consultant in a conflict of interest situation that would preclude the consultant's being a proper party to the member's efforts to help the client.

12. If the member determines an inability to be of professional assistance to the client, the member must either avoid initiating the counseling relationship or immediately terminate that relationship. In either event, the member must suggest appropriate alternatives. (The member must be knowledgeable about referral resources so that a satisfactory referral can be initiated.) In the event the client declines the suggested referral, the member is not obligated to continue the relationship.

13. When the member has other relationships, particularly of an administrative, supervisory, and/or evaluative nature with an individual seeking counseling services, the member must not serve as the counselor but should refer the individual to another professional. Only in instances where such an alternative is unavailable and where the individual's situation warrants counseling intervention should the member enter into and/or maintain a counseling relationship. Dual relationships with clients that might impair the member's objectivity and professional judgment (e.g., as with close friends or relatives), must be avoided and/or the counseling relationship terminated through referral to another competent professional.

14. The member will avoid any type of sexual intimacies with clients. Sexual relationships with clients are unethical.

15. All experimental methods of treatment must be clearly indicated to prospective recipients, and safety precautions are to be adhered to by the member.

16. When computer applications are used as a component of counseling services, the member must ensure that: (a) the client is intellectually, emotionally, and physically capable of using the computer application; (b) the computer application is appropriate for the needs of the client; (c) the client understands the purpose and operation of the computer application; and (d) a follow-up of client use of a computer application is provided to both correct possible problems (misconceptions or inappropriate use) and assess subsequent needs.

17. When the member is engaged in short-term group treatment/training programs (e.g., marathons and other encounter-type or growth groups), the member ensures that there is professional assistance available during and following the group experience.

18. Should the member be engaged in a work setting that calls for any variation from the above statements, the member is obligated to consult with other professionals whenever possible to consider justifiable alternatives.

19. The member must ensure that members of various ethnic, racial, religious, disability, and socioeconomic groups have equal access to computer applications used to support counseling services and that the content of available computer applications does not discriminate against the groups described above.

20. When computer applications are developed by the member for use by the general public as self-help/standalone computer software, the member must ensure that: (a) self-help computer applications are designed from the beginning to function in a stand-alone manner, as opposed to modifying software that was originally designed to require support from a counselor; (b) self-help computer applications will include within the program statements regarding intended user outcomes, suggestions for using the software, a description of the conditions under which self-help computer applications might not be appropriate, and a description of when and how counseling services might be beneficial; and (c) the manual for such applications will include the qualifications of the developer, the development process, validation data, and operating procedures.

Section C: Measurement & Evaluation

The primary purpose of educational and psychological testing is to provide descriptive measures that are objective and interpretable in either comparative or absolute terms. The member must recognize the need to interpret the statements that follow as applying to the whole range of appraisal techniques including test and non-test data. Test results constitute only one of a variety of pertinent sources of information for personnel, guidance, and counseling decisions.

1. The member must provide specific orientation or information to the examinee(s) prior to and following the test administration so that the results of testing may be placed in proper perspective with other relevant factors. In so doing, the member must recognize the effects of socioeconomic, ethnic, and cultural factors on test scores. It is the member's professional responsibility to use additional unvalidated information carefully in modifying interpretation of these test results.

2. In selecting tests for use in a given situation or with a particular client, the member must consider carefully the specific validity, reliability, and appropriateness of the test(s). General validity, reliability, and related issues may be questioned legally as well as ethically when tests are used for vocational and educational selection, placement, or counseling.

3. When making any statements to the public about tests and testing, the member must provide accurate information and avoid false claims or misconceptions. Special efforts are often required to avoid unwarranted connotations of such terms as IQ and grade equivalent scores.

4. Different tests demand different levels of competence for administration, scoring, and interpretation. Members must recognize the limits of their competence and perform only those functions for which they are prepared. In particular, members using computer-based test interpretations must be trained in the construct being measured and the specific instrument being used prior to using this type of computer application.

5. In situations where a computer is used for test administration and scoring, the member is responsible for ensuring that administration and scoring programs function properly to provide clients with accurate test results.

6. Tests must be administered under the same conditions that were established in their standardization. When tests are not administered under standard conditions or when unusual behavior or irregularities occur during the testing session, those conditions must be noted and the results designated as invalid or of questionable validity. Unsupervised or inadequately supervised test-taking, such as the use of tests through the mails, is considered unethical. On the other hand, the use of instruments that are so designed or standardized to be self-administered and self-scored, such as interest inventories, is to be encouraged.

7. The meaningfulness of test results used in personnel, guidance, and counseling functions generally depends on the examinee’s unfamiliarity with the specific items on the test. Any prior coaching or dissemination of the test materials can invalidate test results. Therefore, test security is one of the professional obligations of the member. Conditions that produce most favorable test results must be made known to the examinee.

8. The purpose of testing and the explicit use of the results must be made known to the examinee prior to testing. The counselor must ensure that instrument limitations are not exceeded and that periodic review and or retesting are made to prevent client stereotyping.

9. The examinee’s welfare and explicit prior understanding must be the criteria for determining the recipients of the test results. The member must see that specific interpretation accompanies any release of individual or group test data. The interpretation of test data must be related to the examinee’s particular concerns.

10. Members responsible for making decisions based on test results have an understanding of educational and psychological measurement, validation criteria, and test research.

11. The member must be cautious when interpreting the results of research instruments possessing insufficient technical data. The specific purposes for the use of these instruments must be stated explicitly to examinees.

12. The member must proceed with caution when attempting to evaluate and interpret the performance of minority group members or other persons who are not represented in the norm group on which the instrument was standardized.

13. When computer-based test interpretations are developed by the member to support the assessment process, the member must ensure that the validity of such interpretations is established prior to the commercial distribution of such a computer application.

14. The member recognizes that test results may become obsolete. The member will avoid and prevent the misuse of obsolete test results.

15. The member must guard against the appropriation, reproduction, or modification of published tests or parts thereof without acknowledgment and permission from the previous publisher.

16. Regarding the preparation, publication, and distribution of tests, reference should be made to:

Section D: Research and Publication

1. Guidelines on research with human subjects shall be adhered to, such as:

b. Code of Federal Regulation, Title 45, Subtitle A, Part 46, as currently issued.

c. Ethical Principles of Psychologists, American Psychological Association, Principle #9: Research with Human Participants.

(The Buckley Amendment).

e. Current federal regulations and various state rights privacy acts.

2. In planning any research activity dealing with humans subjects, the member must be aware of and responsible to all pertinent ethical principles and ensure that the research problem, design, and execution are in full compliance with them.

3. Responsibility for ethical research practice lies with the principle researcher while others involved in the research activities share ethical obligation and full responsibility for their own actions.

4. In research with human subjects, researchers are responsible for the subjects' welfare throughout the experiment, and they must take all reasonable precautions to avoid causing injurious psychological, physical, or social effects on their subjects.

5. All research subjects must be informed of the purpose of the study except when withholding information or providing misinformation to them is essential to the investigation. In such research the member must be responsible for corrective action as soon as possible following completion of the research.

6. Participation in research must be voluntary. Involuntary participation is appropriate only when it can be demonstrated that participation will have no harmful effects on subjects and is essential to the investigation.

7. When reporting research results, explicit mention must be made of all variables and conditions known to the investigator that might affect the outcome of the investigation or the interpretation of the data.

8. The member must be responsible for conducting and reporting investigations in a manner that minimizes the possibility that results will be misleading.

9. The member has an obligation to make available sufficient original research data to qualified others who may wish to replicate the study.

10. When supplying data, aiding in the research of another person, reporting research results, or making original data available, due care must be taken to disguise the identity of the subjects in the absence of specific authorization from such subjects to do otherwise.

11. When conducting and reporting research, the member must be familiar with and give recognition to previous work on the topic, as well as to observe all copyright laws and follow the principles of giving full credit to all to whom credit is due.

12. The member must give due credit through joint authorship, acknowledgment, footnote statements, or other appropriate means to those who have contributed significantly to the research and/or publication, in accordance with such contributions.

13. The member must communicate to other members the results of any research judged to be of professional or scientific value. Results reflecting unfavorably on institutions, programs, services, or vested interests must not be withheld for such reasons.

14. If members agree to cooperate with another individual in research and/or publication, they incur an obligation to cooperate as promised in terms of punctuality of performance and with full regard to the completeness and accuracy of the information required.

15. Ethical practice requires that authors not submit the same manuscript or one essentially similar in content for simultaneous consideration by two or more journals. In addition, manuscripts published in whole or in substantial part in another journal or published work should not be submitted for publication without acknowledgment and permission from the previous publication.

Section E: Consulting

Consultation refers to a voluntary relationship between a professional helper and help-needing individual, group, or social unit in which the consultant is providing help to the client(s) in defining and solving a work-related problem.
or potential problem with a client or client system.

1. The member acting as consultant must have a high degree of self-awareness of his/her own values, knowledge, skills, limitations, and needs in entering a helping relationship that involves human and/or organizational change and that the focus of the relationship be on the issues to be resolved and not on the person(s) presenting the problem.

2. There must be understanding and agreement between member and client for the problem definition, change of goals, and prediction of consequences of interventions selected.

3. The member must be reasonably certain that she/he or the organization represented has the necessary competencies and resources for giving the kind of help that is needed now or may be needed later and that appropriate referral resources are available to the consultant.

4. The consulting relationship must be one in which client adaptability and growth toward self-direction are encouraged and cultivated. The member must maintain this role consistently and not become a decision maker for the client or create a future dependency on the consultant.

5. When announcing consultant availability for services, the member conscientiously adheres to the Association's Ethical Standards.

6. The member must refuse a private fee or other remuneration for consultation with persons who are entitled to these services through the member's employing institution or agency. The policies of a particular agency may make explicit provisions for private practice with agency clients by members of its staff. In such instances, the clients must be apprised of other options open to them should they seek private counseling services.

Section F: Private Practice

1. The member should assist the profession by facilitating the availability of counseling services in private as well as public settings.

2. In advertising services as a private practitioner, the member must advertise the services in a manner that accurately informs the public of professional services, expertise, and techniques of counseling available. A member who assumes an executive leadership role in the organization shall not permit his/her name to be used in professional notices during periods when she/he is not actively engaged in the private practice of counseling.

3. The member may list the following: highest relevant degree, type and level of certification and/or license, address, telephone number, office hours, type and/or description of services, and other relevant information. Such information must not contain false, inaccurate, misleading, partial, out-of-context, or deceptive material or statements.

4. Members do not present their affiliation with any organization in such a way that would imply inaccurate sponsorship or certification by that organization.

5. Members may join in partnership corporation with other members and/or other professionals provided that each member of the partnership or corporation makes clear the separate specialties by name in compliance with the regulations of the locality.

6. A member has an obligation to withdraw from a counseling relationship if it is believed that employment will result in violation of the Ethical Standards. If the mental or physical condition of the member renders it difficult to carry out an effective professional relationship or if the member is discharged by the client because the counseling relationship is no longer productive for the client, then the member is obligated to terminate the counseling relationship.

7. A member must adhere to the regulations for private practice of the locality where the services are offered.

8. It is unethical to use one's institutional affiliation to recruit clients for one's private practice.

Section G: Personnel Administration

It is recognized that most members are employed in... public or quasi-public institutions. The functioning of a member within an institution must contribute to the goals of the institution and vice versa if either is to accomplish their respective goals or objectives. It is therefore essential that the member and the institution function in ways to: (a) make the institutional goals explicit and public; (b) make the member's contribution to institutional goals specific; and (c) foster mutual accountability for goal achievement.

To accomplish these objectives, it is recognized that the member and the employer must share responsibilities in the formulation and implementation of personnel policies.

1. Members must define and describe the parameters and levels of their professional competency.

2. Members must establish interpersonal relations and working agreements with supervisors and subordinates regarding counseling or clinical relationships, confidentiality, distinction between public and private material, maintenance and dissemination of recorded information, work load, and accountability. Working agreements in each instance must be specified and made known to those concerned.

3. Members must alert their employers to conditions that may be potentially disruptive or damaging.

4. Members must inform employers of conditions that may limit their effectiveness.

5. Members must submit regularly to professional review and evaluation.

6. Members must be responsible for in-service development of self and/or staff.

7. Members must inform their staff of goals and programs.

8. Members must provide personnel practices that guarantee and enhance the rights and welfare of each recipient of their service.

9. Members must select competent persons and assign responsibilities compatible with their skills and experiences.

10. The member, at the onset of a counseling relationship, will inform the client of the member's intended use of supervisors regarding the disclosure of information concerning this case. The member will clearly inform the client of the limits of confidentiality in the relationship.

11. Members, as either employers or employees, do not engage in or condone practices that are inhumane, illegal, or unjustifiable (such as considerations based on sex, handicap, age, race) in hiring, promotion, or training.

Section II: Preparation Standards

Members who are responsible for training others must be guided by the preparation standards of the Association and relevant Division(s). The member who functions in the capacity of trainer assumes unique ethical responsibilities that frequently go beyond that of the member who does not function in a training capacity. These ethical responsibilities are outlined as follows:

1. Members must orient students to program expectations, basic skills development, and employment prospects prior to admission to the program.

2. Members in charge of learning experiences must establish programs that integrate academic study and supervised practice.

3. Members must establish a program directed toward developing students' skills, knowledge, and self-understanding, stated whenever possible in competency or performance terms.

4. Members must identify the levels of competencies of their students in compliance with relevant Division standards. These competencies must accommodate the paraprofessional as well as the professional.

5. Members, through continual student evaluation and appraisal, must be aware of the personal limitations of the learner that might impede future performance. The instructor must not only assist the learner in securing remedial assistance but also screen from the program those individuals who are unable to provide competent services.
6. Members must provide a program that includes training in research commensurate with levels of role functioning. Paraprofessional and technician-level personnel must be trained as consumers of research. In addition, personnel must learn how to evaluate their own and their program's effectiveness. Graduate training, especially at the doctoral level, would include preparation for original research by the member.

7. Members must make students aware of the ethical responsibilities and standards of the profession.

8. Preparatory programs must encourage students to value the ideals of service to individuals and to society. In this regard, direct financial remuneration or lack thereof must not be allowed to overshadow professional and humanitarian needs.

9. Members responsible for educational programs must be skilled as teachers and practitioners.

10. Members must present thoroughly varied theoretical positions so that students may make comparisons and have the opportunity to select a position.

11. Members must develop clear policies within their educational institutions regarding field placement and the roles of the student and the instructor in such placement.

12. Members must ensure that forms of learning focusing on self-understanding or growth are voluntary, or if required as part of the educational program, are made known to prospective students prior to entering the program. When the educational program offers a growth experience with an emphasis on self-disclosure or other relatively intimate or personal involvement, the member must have no administrative, supervisory, or evaluating authority regarding the participant.

13. The member will at all times provide students with clear and equally acceptable alternatives for self-understanding for growth experiences. The member will assure students that they have a right to accept these alternatives without prejudice or penalty.

14. Members must conduct an educational program in keeping with the current relevant guidelines of the Association.

Professional Liability Insurance Coverage During Internship

The importance of having sufficient professional liability insurance coverage during my Applied Psychology Internship experience was adequately explained to me. In addition, the possible negative personal and/or economic consequence resulting from not having such coverage during my internship was also adequately explained to me.

Sources for obtaining appropriate and sufficient professional liability insurance coverage have been presented to me. Examples of such sources are: American Association for Counseling and Development and James Group Service, Inc. of Chicago, Illinois.
Client Disclosure Statement

This statement is prepared in accordance with Washington State law regarding registered and certified counselors. The student therapist with whom you will work is not a registered counselor; his or her supervisor is a certified mental health counselor, certified school counselor, or a licensed psychologist.

According to state law, counselors must be either registered or certified through the Washington State Department of Health unless otherwise exempt. To be registered, a person fills out an application form and pays a fee. To become certified, a person fills out an application form and pays a fee, and he or she must also show proof of appropriate education and training. The intern must give the client written information that explains the type of counseling she or he will participate in; the methods or techniques that might be used; the therapist's education, training and experience; the cost of counseling sessions; and client rights and responsibilities.

Client Rights and Responsibilities

The client retains the responsibility for making choices in the management of his or her life, including the choice of therapist and of whether or not to continue in any particular counseling relationship. Should the client decide to withdraw from counseling, it is a recommended courtesy to notify the counselor of that decision.

The intern routinely will discuss all counseling interactions with a supervisor. Occasionally video- or audio-taped segments will be the focus of a training group consisting of supervisor and several counselor trainees. Outside of the training environment, confidentiality will conform to state guidelines; namely, the intern or supervisor or training group member will not disclose any information provided by the client during a counseling session unless:

The client gives written consent;
The information concerns certain crimes or harmful acts;
The client is a minor and the information acquired by the intern indicates the minor was the victim or subject of a crime, then the intern may testify at any proceeding wherein the commission of the crime is the subject of inquiry;
The client brings charges against the person registered or certified under the law;
The intern receives a subpoena to provide the information;
The intern has reasonable cause to believe that a child or adult dependent or developmentally disabled person has suffered abuse or neglect. Therapists are required to report such incidents to authorities.
Assurance of Professional Conduct

Thousands of people in the counseling profession practice their skills with competence and treat their clients in a professional manner. If the counselor deviates from the treatment agreed upon by client and counselor, the client has the right to question the change and to end the counseling if he or she so deems appropriate. There are some acts that are considered to be unprofessional. Clients experiencing such acts are encouraged to contact the Department of Health (206) 753-1761, Monday-Friday, 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.) to explore procedures for filing a complaint. The following situations are not identified to alarm the client, but are identified to help the client be an informed consumer of counseling services.

Abuse of a client or sexual contact with a client.
Incompetence, negligence or malpractice that harms a client or creates an unreasonable risk of harm to a client.
Willful betrayal of a practitioner-client privilege as recognized by law.
The commission of any act involving moral turpitude, dishonesty or corruption relating to the practice of counseling. The act does not have to be a crime in order to be a violation of the law regarding counselors.
Practicing counseling while suffering from a contagious or infectious disease in a way that would pose a serious risk to public health.
Aiding a client to obtain an abortion through illegal means.
Possession, use or distribution of drugs except for a legitimate purpose, addiction to drugs or violation of any drug law.
Habitual use or impairment from the use of alcohol.
Misrepresentation or fraud in any aspect of the conduct of the profession.
Advertising that is false, fraudulent or misleading.
Offering to treat clients by a secret method, procedure or treatment.
Promotion for personal gain of any drug, device, treatment, procedure or service that is unnecessary or has no acceptable benefit to the client.
Conviction of any gross misdemeanor or felony relating to the practice of counseling.
Violation of a state or federal statute or rule that regulates counselors, including rules defining standards of practice for certified counselors.
Suspension, revocation or restriction on the registration or certification to practice the profession.
Aiding an unregistered or uncertified person to practice counseling when that person is required to be registered or certified.
Violation of the rebating laws which includes payment for referral of clients.
Interference with an investigation by use of threats, harassment against a client or witness to prevent them from providing evidence in a disciplinary or other legal action.

Counselors practicing counseling for a fee must be registered or certified with the department of licensing for the protection of the public health and safety. Registration of an individual with the department does not include a recognition of any practice standards, nor necessarily implies the effectiveness of any treatment.

INTRODUCTION

Internship is a vital experience for a student counselor, providing opportunities for application and integration of knowledge and skills. Your involvement with the internship program provides an important service to the profession and the counseling intern. The Intern Supervision Handbook is designed to serve as a guide for you as a counseling intern supervisor.

The objectives of the internship reflect the 1988 standards as set forth by the Washington State Board of Education. The counseling intern's progress should be based on the satisfactory completion of the listed objectives. Before certification all candidates must demonstrate knowledge and skill at the initial level as described within the Washington Administrative Code.

We thank you for your time and involvement with counseling interns. Please contact us if you have any questions or concerns.

COUNSELING PROGRAM PHILOSOPHY

The Eastern Washington University Counseling and Development Program reflects current knowledge of effective counseling practices within a rapidly changing society. Students acquire knowledge and skills in counseling theories and techniques, human development, school counseling systems, career development, family dynamics, and community resources. Students gain an awareness of social changes and the impact of those changes on the children in the K-12 school system. Special emphases are placed on ethical and legal issues, the treatment of substance abuse and addiction, suicide prevention and intervention, understanding and prevention of violence and abuse, and other contemporary social problems.

A cooperative relationship between a counselor education program and the K-12 school system allows the two systems to share ideas and resources. The supervision of the counseling intern is one of the opportunities for the two agencies to work together.
GENERAL GOALS OF THE COUNSELING PROGRAM

The counseling program is committed to the preparation of school counselors in a manner consistent with the 1988 guidelines and with the educational goals of the K-12 schools. Certified counselors from Eastern Washington University will:

1. Demonstrate competence in areas indicated by the 1988 Certification Standards.
2. Demonstrate academic skills appropriate for a master's degree.
3. Design counseling programs and strategies in accordance with the goals of Washington K-12 schools.
4. Perform in a manner consistent with the AACC Code of Ethics and with state and federal laws.
5. Provide leadership to the school, the community, and the counseling profession.
6. Maintain a plan for personal and professional development.
COUNSELING INTERNSHIP OBJECTIVES

Objectives for the counseling internship (APSY 695) are consistent with state requirements as listed in WAC 180-78-295—specific knowledge and skills for ESA, school counselor, sections 2 through 6. The supervisor is asked to mark each objective at the end of the intern experience, and sign to show student’s completion.

REQUIRED INTERNSHIP ACTIVITIES

1. Individual Counseling

   The intern must meet with students in individual sessions. This commonly starts with co-counseling activities, then moves on toward greater independence. The intern should be ready for his or her own caseload by the second quarter of the experience.

   Interns are required to supply audio tapes to the university supervisor. The process of gaining parental permission for audio taping of student counseling sessions is to be determined by the district. Either the intern may send out permission slips or the school may prefer to have the slips sent out by the master counselor. The permission process needs to start at the beginning of the internship in order to comply with the taping requirement. The intern needs one tape for approximately each 15 hours of internship time (one tape per week for two quarter interns).

   Interns are required to maintain written records of all individual sessions. Records should contain the purpose or goal for the session, action taken including the techniques employed, and future plans, homework for students, and a long-term goal if appropriate.

2. Group Counseling

   Interns are required to partially or fully lead at least one group during their experience. Most interns propose plans and establish their own group although some schools prefer to have the master counselor serve as a co-facilitator. The intern is required to have plans for each group session approved by the master counselor before the session begins. The master counselor should initial and date the plans to designate approval. The overall group plan should also be approved by the university supervisor.
3. Other Counseling Activities

The intern should participate in all counseling activities of the school. This does not, however, include non-counseling duties which a school may expect of a counselor. For example, hall duty, lunch duty, and bus duty are not counted as part of the school counseling internship hours. The lunch hour is frequently the time when the intern is most able to gain access to students without disturbing class schedules.

4. Meetings and Inservice Events

The counseling intern is encouraged to participate in faculty meetings, MDT meetings, counselor meetings, and available inservice sessions, but should not be expected to attend all meetings of the school. The intern may use these hours as a part of the internship. The intern is required to maintain a log of all internship experiences.
REQUIRED DOCUMENTATION

The student must provide the following information at the regularly scheduled meetings with the university supervisor. Remote students must mail the documentation and maintain telephone contact at regular intervals as determined in cooperation with the university supervisor.

1. Provide counseling tapes (approximately one for each 15 hours of internship time). Self-critiques of the tapes should also be included.

2. Maintain a log of counseling activities. The log should include the following:
   a. daily record of activities
   b. plans for all group sessions (signed approval prior to the session by master counselor).
   c. casenotes of all individual sessions with a summary of the happenings.
   d. feedback statements from weekly session with master counselor.
MASTER COUNSELOR ROLE

1. Help the intern to become a part of the school system. It is sometimes difficult for the intern to feel a part of the system and to meet the faculty of the school.

2. Determine an appropriate sequence of activities for the intern. The university can recommend a desired sequence of activities but the master counselor is the one who must interpret the needs of the candidate in terms of the actual school system.

3. Report any concerns immediately to the university supervisor. The greatest problem occurs in internships when the feedback reported to the intern and the information provided to the university supervisor are either neutral or positive; and then, late in the experience, dissatisfaction is expressed by the master counselor. A master counselor may be attempting to give an intern maximum opportunities to improve. If the intern does not improve, however, it may be too late for the university supervisor to effectively intervene. Report any behavior considered unusual or inappropriate for a counselor.

4. Inform the intern of rules, policies, and procedures of the school. This is particularly critical in areas such as substance abuse, pregnancy, suicide attempts, and child abuse. It is also important, however, for the intern to be aware of policies regarding tardiness, parking, and the faculty room.

5. Assist the intern in finding clients and in gaining time to work with those clients.

6. Help the intern in locating other important resource persons within the school.

7. Provide regular written and oral feedback for the intern.

8. Rate the intern on all objectives at the end of the internship, and write a non-confidential recommendation for the intern (supervisor recommendations are required by law to be non-confidential).
COMPARISON BETWEEN INTERNSHIP AND STUDENT TEACHING

Candidates for professional positions within the school setting commonly must engage in a variety of field experiences, the most common being internship and student teaching. Although internship experiences are similar to the experiences of student teachers, a number of differences do exist and, therefore, the following information is provided for role clarification.

1. Scheduled Time in the School

The counseling internship is 20 hours per week for three consecutive quarters. A minimum of 600 hours is required for the internship. A counseling internship may be scheduled in a variety of patterns. It is required that the schedule be agreed upon by the K-12 system, the intern, and the university supervisor and is strictly maintained unless an alternate plan is agreed upon by all parties. Interns typically carry additional coursework and/or may work on a part-time or full-time basis.

2. Role of the University Supervisor

The university supervisor for the student teacher observes directly in the K-12 setting on a frequent basis. Supervision by the university counselor supervisor is usually done away from the K-12 setting. Local interns are required to meet with the university supervisor on a regularly scheduled basis. Remote interns are required to make telephone contact with the university supervisor, also on a regularly scheduled basis. Both must submit tapes and counseling logs at intervals agreed upon by the intern and the university supervisor.

The university supervisor sets up the experience in the beginning, telephones the master counselor and the principal at intervals throughout the internship, visits the school typically about two times, or more often if needed. Remote interns are visited at least two times during the experience.
3. Role of the Master Teacher/Master Counselor

The master teacher and the master counselor serve essentially the same role within the school except that the counselor often does not have direct access to the sessions. A counseling intern must be supervised by a counselor with at least 2 years of experience. The master counselor may sit in on sessions, listen to tapes, review written materials, talk with students and concerned adults, and debrief activities with the intern. The master counselor is asked to review all group plans prior to implementation and to meet with the intern and write weekly comments in the intern's log.
