This curriculum module contains lesson plans and application activities that were developed to help adult students master the writing skills needed to earn a general high school equivalency diploma. Included in the module are materials designed to help students demonstrate effective writing and master specific objectives in the following writing skill categories: mechanics, usage, sentence structure, paragraph development, and mastery of the POWER (planning, organizing, writing, evaluating, revising) program. A syllabus detailing the topics and homework assignments of the 18-week course is provided along with student handouts and learning activities. A variety of handouts are presented, including tip sheets, word lists, and lists of rules/guidelines for spelling, using words correctly, and writing passages of various length. (MN)
Developing the skills that lead to getting a high school diploma while practicing and transferring those skills to a workplace setting was the basis for this curriculum development. While much of the material referenced is from a major publishing house, students are encouraged to practice skill transfer in daily settings.

INTRODUCTION

The Workplace Classroom is a set of 11 curriculum modules created by workplace educators from Pikes Peak Community College in collaboration and partnership with employees of Current, Inc., a large greeting card company in Colorado Springs, Colorado. The partnership was formed through an 18-month federal workplace research and development grant from the United States Department of Education awarded to the Colorado Community College and Occupational Education System. Teachers in the project designed, developed and field-tested curricula and materials for the 11 basic skills courses through the process of identifying and understanding the culture of the workplace and the learning needs of the individuals working within it.

The Pikes Peak staff chose not to rely on ready-made materials or programmed texts with which to teach classes. Instead, teachers and curriculum specialists interviewed employees, created job profiles, developed customized assessments, and invited student participation in the development of class content. The result is a unique set of curriculum modules in learning to learn, reading, writing, communication, problem solving, English as a second language, math and algebra that reflect learning needs of real people in a large printing/manufacturing environment. These modules were designed as six week, two hour classes, but the learning rationale and intentions could easily be modified to accommodate longer or shorter sessions.

The idea of following a design process involving the active and continuous commitment and participation of the employee and the employer provides a fresh look at the development of curricula and instruction. The goal of this process is to develop a curriculum product that enhances the basic literacy skills of adults and increases critical thinking and problem solving skills that are easily transferred to occupational improvement. The Pikes Peak staff felt that the best way to reach this goal was to involve employees and employers in the many levels of curriculum development and design.

We believe that these curriculum products are genuine reflections of sound adult learning theory that says adults must have relevant learning experiences that build on prior knowledge and in some way advance positive change in their daily work lives. These modules were built through the active participation and assessment of the adult students for whom they were designed. Those of us who developed these products encourage other workplace educators to use them in part or as complete modules, keeping in mind that their very design welcomes the change and diversity that other workplace environments are sure to lend to them. We feel that the authenticity of our curricula will provide ideas and incentive to other teachers and curriculum specialists who are beginning new programs or are looking for ways of improving existing curricula.

Best of luck with any or all of the Workplace Literacy Modules.

GED WRITING FOR WORKPLACE STUDENTS

INTRODUCTION

The lesson plans and application activities in this curriculum module were developed to support identified learning needs of adult students who want to earn a general equivalency diploma for high school. Students represented a variety of skill levels and abilities therefore a variety of material is included. The format for the GED classes is somewhat different from the other workplace curriculum modules. The GED Math and Writing are primarily restricted to assignments in the Steck-Vaughn series with supplementary materials created by teachers that addressed specific learning needs of their students.

The text used for the course was Steck-Vaughn. Sample materials come from Steck-Vaughn and are supplemented by teacher-made application exercises. Students in the course were encouraged to master the material necessary to complete a GED and to also apply new skill to the workplace setting.

TIPS ON MASTERING SPELLING

1. Write words that are causing difficulty several times.

2. Use your dictionary and write long, difficult words in parts.
   mis-cel-la-ne-ous

3. Have someone dictate words and then write them.

4. Group similar words and practice them together.
   author/doctor/counselor although/altogether/always precede/recede proceed/succeed

5. Write sentences with spelling words.

6. In one or more sentences, write similar spelling words.
   I don't care whether the weather is good.

7. In one or more sentences, write different forms of words.
   Jim is the twelfth of twelve children.
SPELLING RULES

Rules for Short Vowels

1. -ck
   Use -ck to spell the (k) sound immediately after one short vowel at the end of a one-syllable word and also in a few two-syllable words.
   EXAMPLES: track, black, clock, deck, trick, duck
   -ck is also used to spell the (k) sound after one short vowel in two-syllable words ending in -et or -le.
   EXAMPLES: jacket, pocket, tickle, ticket, buckle

2. Floss Rule (-ff, -ll, -ss, -zz)
   In a one-syllable word, double the final f, l, s, and z after a single vowel.
   EXAMPLES: staff, spell, kiss, jazz, roll
   EXCEPTIONS: if, clef, gas, this, us, thus, yes, bus, plus NOTE: Final -s sounded as (z) is never doubled - as, is, was, has, his.

3. Long Spelling after a Short Vowel: -tch
   Use -tch to spell the (ch) sound immediately after one short vowel at the end of a one-syllable word and also in a few two-syllable words.
   EXAMPLES: catch, pitch, wretch, kitchen
   EXCEPTIONS: such, much, rich, which

4. Long Spelling after a Short Vowel: -dge
   Use -dge to spell the (j) sound immediately after one short vowel on the end of a one-syllable word and also in a few two-syllable words.
   EXAMPLES: badge, judge, bridge, dodge, gadget

5. Doubling Rule
   In a one-syllable word, with one short vowel, ending in one consonant (1-1-1), double the final consonant before adding a suffix that starts with a vowel (-ed, -er, -ing, -y, etc.).
   EXAMPLES: batting, fitter, getting, stopped, funny
   DO NOT DOUBLE the final consonant before a suffix starting with a consonant (-ful, -ly, -ment, -ness, etc.).
   EXAMPLES: fit - fitted, fitful; sad - sadder, sadly red - redder, redness; ship - shipping, shipment
   In a multisyllable word, double the final consonant if the final syllable is accented.
   EXAMPLES: admit' - admit'ting - admit'ted (accent on final syllable) forgot' - forget'ting - forget'ten enter' - enter'ing - enter'ed (no accent on last syllable, no double) pi'lot - pi'loting - pi'loted
   In a multisyllable word do not double the final consonant before a suffix starting with a consonant.
Examples: ship, shipped, shipment
In a multisyllable word, when the short vowel is followed by at least two consonants at the end of a root word, do not consider doubling when adding an ending.
Examples: plant - planted; pitch - pitcher; truck - trucking
Note: Never double x or y: fix - fixing; have - having

Rules for Long Vowel Sounds
1. Silent -e
Silent -e on the end of a word "makes" the single vowel immediately before it long
Examples: cop - cope; pan - pane; pin - pine; cut - cute;
Silent -e makes y = (i) as in type and style
Final -ve: A preceding single vowel may be long or short before -ve because y is never doubled.
Examples: hive, grave, trove (long vowel sound)
        have, give, love (short vowel sound)
2. When ie and ei = (e)
   Use i before e
   Except after c
   Use ei when sounded as (a), as in neighbor and weigh Examples: piece, ceiling, believe, receive Exceptions: either, neither, foreign, forfeit, height, leisure, seize, weird conscience, and science
3. Words ending in -ce or -ge
   Keep the final e when adding a suffix that begins with a or ø
   Examples: notice + able = noticeable outrage + ous = outrageous

Contractions
Abbreviations of two words with an apostrophe to show where the letters are missing:
   who's for who is          haven't for have not it's for it is            can't for cannot there's for there is      didn't for did not
Note: Do not confuse contractions with sound-alike possessive pronouns (whose, its, theirs, for example), which do not use apostrophes.
-ful and -ly Rules

The suffixes -ful and -ly are added to root words as they stand. If the root word ends with a silent -e the e will not be dropped. Note these examples:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>surely</th>
<th>lively</th>
<th>purely</th>
<th>closely</th>
<th>finely</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>likely</td>
<td>lovely</td>
<td>rarely</td>
<td>severely</td>
<td>safely</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lonely</td>
<td>scarcely</td>
<td>wisely</td>
<td>widely</td>
<td>bravely</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>timely</td>
<td>sincerely</td>
<td>nicely</td>
<td>loosely</td>
<td>homely</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

If the suffix -ly is added to a word ending with l, the -l must be doubled. Note these examples:

| usually | legally | occasionally |
| casually | actually | exceptionally |
| mentally | mortally | annually |
| punctually | finally | potentially |

Adding -ly to Words Ending in -le

In a word with the ending -le, preceded by a consonant, change the final e to y. Note the following examples:

- simple - simply
- gentle - gently
- terrible - terribly
- horrible - horrifying
- double - doubly
- able - ably

If the le is preceded by a vowel, simply add the -ly:

- sole + ly = solely
- futile + ly = futilely

The y Rule

1. Words like try ending with a y preceded by a consonant, change the y to i when adding a suffix, unless the suffix begins with the letter i:

   - try - tries, tried, trial
   - empty - emptied, empties

   When adding -ing to try, keep the -y, as in trying:
   - copy - copies, copied, copying, copyist
   - rely - relies, relied, reliant, reliable, relying

   EXCEPTIONS:
   - shyly
   - dryly
   - slyly
   - spryly
   - wryly
   - shyness
   - dryness
   - slyness
   - spryness
   - wryness

2. Words ending with y preceded by a vowel do not change the y to i when a suffix is added.

   - play
   - plays, played, player, playful, playing

   EXCEPTIONS:
   - pay
   - payed
   - say
   - said
   - laid
   - day
   - daily
   - gay
   - gaily
   - slay
   - slain
Spelling Rules for Forming Plurals

1. Add -s to most words.
   brake - brakes    school - schools    play - plays

2. When words end in -ch, -s, -sh, -x or -z, add -es.
   business - businesses    brush - brushes    match - matches

3. When words end in -o, add -es.
   potato - potatoes    tomato - tomatoes

4. When words end in -f, change the -f to -v before adding -es.
   loaf - loaves    knife - knives    calf - calves

5. When a word ends in -y, change the -y to -i and add -es.
   company - companies

6. When words end in -ay or -ey, add only -s valley - valleys

7. Some unusual plurals may require a change in spelling.
   man - men    woman - women    emphasis - emphases analysis - analyses

8. There are some words that don't fit any rule.
   chief - chiefs    handkerchief - handkerchiefs

WHAT IS A SENTENCE?

A sentence expresses a complete thought. A sentence contains a subject (which mentions someone or something) and a predicate (which tells what the subject is doing).

There are four types of sentences: declarative, interrogative, imperative, and exclamatory.

Declarative sentences make statements. A declarative sentence can be as short as two words:

- Jack ran.

This sentence illustrates the usual word order in a declarative sentence - a noun or pronoun followed by a verb. Most sentences are declarative.

Interrogative sentences ask questions. Some interrogative sentences begin with a question word (who, what, where, why, how):

- Who ran with you?

Some interrogative sentences reverse the word order of declarative sentences and begin with verbs:

- Did you run?

Imperative sentences give orders. Imperative sentences appear to have no subject because "you" is the understood subject:

- Get out!

Exclamatory sentences express emotions (astonishment, admiration, fear, etc.) and they close with exclamation points:

- What a great writer he is!
TIPS ON WRITING COMPLETE SENTENCES

A complete sentence contains a complete thought, a subject, and a verb.

FRAGMENTS are incomplete sentences.

Examples:
- That open manhole up ahead.
- Got some new ankle weights.
- And she lived in a town called Parker near Denver.
- After pleading guilty to twenty-two traffic offenses, such as double parking, having no driver's license, speeding, and driving in such a manner as to violate the basic rule.

RUN-ONS are sentences crammed together containing more than enough for one complete sentence.

Examples:
- People don't enjoy reading two sentences crammed together it's confusing.
- Run-on sentences are easy to correct many people don't know how.
- I did not care to question them about the time I suspected about three years had passed.
- He has assembled forty pages of notes for a project, article, or book he hasn't decided which it will be.

NOTE: When you write, keep it clear and simple. Consider the person who will be reading your writing. The reader cannot read your mind or ask for further information or clarification.
Use Capitalization:
- For names of streets, cities, and states.
- For names of months of the year.
- For the salutation in a letter.
- For the first word of the complimentary close.
- For the word "I".
- For the first word in a sentence.
- For specific names of organizations, people, and places.
- For the first word of a sentence in quotation marks.
- For the titles of books, movies, and stories (short words need not be capitalized).
- For titles referring to a specific person.
- For brand names.
- For directions when indicating a specific place.
- For a proper adjective formed from a specific place name.

Use End Punctuation:
Period
- At the end of a statement or command.
- In an abbreviation.
Question Mark
- At the end of direct questions.
Exclamation Mark
- At the end of a word or sentence expressing strong feelings (surprise, shock, enthusiasm).

Use Commas:
- To separate more than two items in a list.
- To separate two adjectives that describe the same noun if and could be used between them without changing the meaning.
- To separate a descriptive word or group of words (an appositive) from the noun being described.
- To separate the name of a town from a country or state.
- To separate the day of the week from the month in a date and set off the year from the rest of the sentence.
- To set off expressions that are not essential to the meaning of the sentence (parenthetical like: for example, however, nevertheless, incidentally, etc.).
- To separate introductory words from the rest of the sentence.
- To set off a person's name or title used in direct address after a long introductory phrase.
- To separate a quotation from the rest of the sentence (place a comma before the quote).
• To separate a phrase that identifies the speaker and interrupts the quotation (first comma inside quotation marks and second comma follows the interrupting phrase).

Use Semicolons:
• To join clauses that can stand alone and are not joined by a connecting word.
• To join two clauses that could stand alone but are joined by such linking words as however and therefore.
• To join two independent clauses joined with a conjunction when there are other commas in the clauses.

Use Apostrophes:
• To replace missing letters in contractions.
• To show possession.
  Noun ending in -s, add 's.
  Plural noun ending in -s, add apostrophe only.
  Plural noun not ending in -s, add 's.

Use Quotation Marks:
• To set off a person's exact words.
• To set off an unusual term or an exact phrase used by a specific person.
  NOTE: A punctuation mark that is part of the quote is always placed before the second quotation mark.
A paragraph is a group of sentences about a single topic or idea. Generally the topic is stated in one sentence within the paragraph. The sentence that expresses the main idea, of a paragraph is called the topic sentence. The topic sentence is often found at the beginning of a paragraph, but it can be placed anywhere in the paragraph. When found at the beginning of a paragraph, the topic sentence tells the reader what the rest of the paragraph is going to be about.

Look at the following paragraph from The Story of the United Nations by Katherine Savage and see if you can locate the topic sentence.

The United Nations takes part in many different activities. It employs experts to study world aviation, atomic energy, and shipping in all its forms, from primitive sailing junks to modern luxury liners. Helped by United Nations funds, scientists are experimenting with new drugs and trying out industrial designs. In meteorological offices they are poring over charts of tides and winds and collecting data on the eruptions within the earth, the disturbances of the oceans, and the currents in the air. They hope to make travel safer and, by giving warning of earthquakes, tidal waves, and hurricanes, to save millions of lives.

Now consider the following paragraph from The Sea Around Us by Rachel Carson.

Krakatoa, in its destruction, became known to the entire world. The eruption gave rise to a hundred-foot wave that wiped out villages along the Strait and killed people by tens of thousands. The wave was felt on the shores of the Indian Ocean and at Cape Horn; rounding the Cape into the Atlantic, it sped northward and retained its identity even as far as the English Channel. The sound of the explosions was heard in the Philippine Islands, in Australia, and on the Island of Madagascar; nearly 3,000 miles away. And clouds of volcanic dust, the pulverized rock that had been torn from the heart of Krakatoa, ascended into the stratosphere and were carried around the globe to give rise to a series of spectacular sunsets in every country of the world for nearly a year.
Unity in Paragraphs

Unity means confining discussion to a single topic or idea. The topic sentence states the idea and the following sentences help explain or clarify the main idea. Any sentence that is not related to the topic of the paragraph destroys the unity and is confusing to the reader.

Paragraph Development

The topic sentence states the main idea of a paragraph in general terms. To clarify the meaning, the rest of the sentences in the paragraph must give specific details.

- Develop with facts:
  Writer must prove the topic sentence to be true.
  Facts must be given to support the topic sentence.

- Develop with ideas:
  Give examples

- Develop with reasons:
  Opinion must be supported with reasons which may be facts, examples or incidents.

Coherence in Paragraphs

Details must be arranged in a sensible order and the relationship between the details must be clear. The following are logical ways to arrange details:

- Chronological Order
  Transitional expressions (or signal words) are necessary to show the relationship between details. Examples: first, next, then, finally.

- Order of Importance
  Start with the least important and build up to the most important.
  Transitional expressions (such as first, next, furthermore, most important, and last) can be helpful in this situation, also.

- Order of Location
  Start with center of the scene and move outward.
  Present in an order that makes the location clear.
UNITY IN A PARAGRAPH

Consider the following paragraph from Get That Story by John J. Floherty.

Variety is the spice of the reporter's life. He never knows from one moment to another where his next assignment will take him or the problems that will face him. It may be a burglary, an explosion, or an exposure. It may direct him to a luxurious home or a dingy tenement, to a jail or a hospital. The story may be in the next block or a day's journey distant. Whatever it may be, he hurries to it, hoping that a beat or a good human interest story awaits him or that the story may lead to bigger things. Many a big story has grown out of some trifling event that seemed at the moment to be scarcely worth printing.

What is the topic sentence? What idea is expressed in the topic sentence? Does every sentence in the paragraph explain or clarify the main idea? Is the paragraph unified?

Write a short paragraph, using one of the following sentences as your own topic sentence. Be sure that every sentence helps explain the idea expressed in the topic sentence.

REFLEXIVE AND INTENSIVE PRONOUNS

Reflexive Pronoun:
An object pronoun used when the action of the verb is directed back upon itself. It reflects the subject just as a mirror reflects a person who looks into it.
EXAMPLE: Mary hurt herself sliding down the hill.
Used as an object when the subject both performs the action of the verb and is acted upon.

Intensive Pronoun:
Emphasizes or intensifies a noun or pronoun in the same sentence.
Provides no new information, just calls attention to the noun or pronoun to which they refer.
EXAMPLE: Mrs. Jones took the curtains down herself, but she was unable to put them back up again.

PLEASE NOTE:
The following forms are NEVER used:

hissself  theirsself
oursself  theirselves

13. Do you know if (us/we) can go with them to the beach?
14. The last to depart were Bill and (her/she).
15. The table is reserved for you and (I/me).
Nouns name a person, place or thing and can be classified in several ways.

Common nouns: name any, some or all members of a group. They are not capitalized.
Examples: singer, continent, car.

Proper nouns: name a specific member of a group. Proper nouns ARE capitalized.
Examples: Chevrolet, Louise, Europe.

Abstract nouns: name thoughts, notions, or emotions (things we cannot perceive with our senses).
Examples: hope, truth, democracy, love, courtesy, courage, belief, justice, sadness

Concrete nouns: name something we can perceive with our senses (see, touch, taste, smell, hear).
Examples: apples, berries, giraffe, beans, song, table, knife, piano, noise

Compound nouns: combinations of two or more words that form a new word or phrase that functions as a noun.
Examples: countdown, cowboy, mailbox, ice cream, earring, mother-in-law

Collective nouns: name a group considered as a whole.
Examples: cache, batch, cluster, team, committee, flock
DIRECT OBJECTS/INDIRECT OBJECTS

Direct objects receive the action of the verb. The direct object answers the question "what?" or "whom?" after the verb.

Examples: I opened the package. (Package tells what.)
I met her. (Her tells whom.)

Indirect objects indicate to or for whom or what something is done. An indirect object can always be changed into a phrase beginning with the preposition "to" or "for".

Example: Jim bought his little brother an ice cream cone. (Cone answers the question bought whom or what, so cone is the direct object. Brother answers the question bought a cone for whom or what, so brother is the indirect object.)

NOTES ON DIAGRAMMING:

Boys eat hotdogs.

The rooster crowed proudly.

We gave him the money.
ADJECTIVES:
- Modify nouns or pronouns.
  (A modifier makes words more specific by describing or by limiting.)
- Answer the questions "What kind of ( )?", "How many?". "Which one?"
  EXAMPLE: He was a slim young Spaniard of medium height with a dark complexion and quizzical eyes.
- Can appear immediately before nouns or in the predicate after a linking verb.
  EXAMPLES: She wore clean gloves.
  Pictures can be beautiful.
- Are articles (a, an, the)
- Are possessive pronouns (mine, their, etc.)
- Are numbers, both cardinal (one, two, three, etc.) and ordinal (first, second, third, etc.)
  EXAMPLE: There are twenty cars in the parking lot.
- Can have distinctive endings.

- Can be proper (formed from proper nouns)
  EXAMPLES: The value of the American dollar is falling throughout the world.
  She bought three loaves of French bread.
  San Francisco has many beautiful Victorian homes.
- Have three degrees of comparison: positive (simple), comparative (comparing two people or things), and superlative (comparing three or more people or things)
  EXAMPLES: Jim is tall.
  Bob is taller than Jim
  Tom is the tallest of the group.
For adjectives of one syllable (and some of two syllables) add -er to form the comparative and -est to form the superlative.
For adjectives containing three or more syllables use more and most to form comparatives and superlatives.
  EXAMPLES: Jack is a successful inventor.
  Jim is more successful than Jack.
  John is the most successful.
EFFECTIVE USE OF ADJECTIVES

Consider the following paragraphs:

1. My parents decided to have dinner at a restaurant last evening. It was about 6:30 when we entered the dining room. After a while the hostess seated us. A waiter spread a tablecloth over the table. Then he placed silverware and napkins on the table along with some glasses. When our order came, I was served soup, rolls, potatoes, steak, and beans. For dessert I had a piece of cake and a glass of milk. What a meal!

2. My parents decided to have dinner at a restaurant last evening. It was about 6:30 when we entered the cramped and gloomy dining room. After a while the grumpy hostess seated us. A clumsy waiter spread a dirty tablecloth over the table. Then he placed rusty silverware and crumpled napkins on the table along with some cloudy glasses. When our order came, I was served watery soup, soggy rolls, burned potatoes, tough steak and cold beans. For dessert I had a small piece of stale cake and a glass of warm milk. What a meal!

John Burroughs in Wake-Robin

Passing down through the maple arches, barely pausing to observe the antics of a trio of squirrels - two gray ones and a black one - I cross the ancient brush fence and am fairly within the old hemlocks, and in one of the most primitive undisturbed nooks. In the deep moss I tread as with muffled feet, and the pupils of my eyes dilate in the dim, almost religious light. The irreverent red squirrels, however, run and snicker at my approach, or mock the solitude with their ridiculous chattering and frisking.

Eudora Welty in "A Visit of Charity"

It was midmorning - a very cold, bright day. Holding a potted plant before her, a girl of fourteen jumped off the bus in front of the Old Ladies' Home, on the outskirts of town. She wore a red coat, and her straight yellow hair was hanging down loose from the pointed white cap all the girls were wearing that year. She stopped for a moment beside one of the prickly dark shrubs with which the city had beautified the Home, and then proceeded toward the building, which was of whitewashed brick and reflected the winter sunlight like a block of ice. As she walked vaguely up the steps, she shifted the small pot from hand to hand; then she had to set it down and remove her mittens before she could open the heavy door.
ADJECTIVE EXERCISE

DIRECTIONS: Underline the adjectives in the following sentences.

1. Judy had a high, squeaky voice.
2. My den is silent and quiet.
3. His once brick-red hair is now gray.
4. The farmer brought his early vegetables to market.
5. The flowers looked fresh and beautiful.
6. The early bird catches the worm.

13. My nephew is the most infuriating child I have ever met.
14. Janice thinks that good manners are the basis for good personal relationships.
15. My summer clothes are in the cedar closet.
PREPOSITIONS

Prepositions are words that indicated connections between other words. They can indicate space relationships or time relationships and connections between ideas. Note the relationship in the following sentence:

The keys are on the table.
The preposition on indicates the relative positions of the keys and the table.

The only way to recognize prepositions is to memorize the most common ones. Here is a list of the most common one-word prepositions:

- about
- above
- across
- after
- against
- along
- among
- around
- as
- at
- before
- behind
- below
- beneath
- beside
- between
- beyond
- by
- concerning
- despite
- down
- during
- except
- excluding
- for
- from
- in
- including
- inside
- into
- like
- near
- off
- on
- onto
- out

- past
- regarding
- since
- through
- throughout
- till
- to
- toward
- under
- underneath
- unlike
- until
- up
- upon
- with
- within
- without

PLEASE NOTE: Some of these words can function as other parts of speech. For example, for is a coordinating conjunction, as and since are also subordinating conjunctions, and outside is also an adverb.
PREPOSITION EXERCISE

18. The children lay down on the grass in the shade of a tree and went to sleep.
19. Everyone applauded wildly for five minutes.
20. The robber was standing near my car.
VERBS

Verbs are words that express action (both physical and mental) or a state of being.

TYPES OF VERBS:

Linking Verbs do not express action. They connect the subject to the word or words that follow. The following are linking verbs: is, am, are, was, were, being, been, be, feel, sound, look, appear, remain, seem, taste, smell.

Examples: Vinyl floors are easy to clean.
   My favorite snack is Ranger Cookies.
   John appeared tired after the race.
   Low calorie diets seem risky.
   Her forehead feels hot.

Auxiliary or Helping Verbs do not appear alone in sentences. They are always accompanied by one or more verbs. The following are examples of auxiliary verbs: is, am, are, was, were, be, being, been, do, does, did, has, have, had, shall, will, should, might, may, can, would.

Examples: He was watching you.
   The Eskimos were living in igloos.
   I shall go to the store tomorrow.
   They have been playing in the yard since early this morning.

VERB TENSES:

Present Tense verbs describe actions or conditions that take place at the same time they are being described.
Examples: I see the clouds.
   He hates to make decisions.
   She walks to the store.
   They run in the mud.

Past Tense verbs describe actions or conditions that took place at a time before they were described.
Examples: She refused to wash the dishes.
   Judy lit the candles just before dinner was served.
   The bride planned every detail of the wedding.
   I walked home from the store.

Future Tense verbs describe actions that will take place after they are described.
Examples: I will bake a chocolate cake for the party.
   We will hold a garage sale next week.
   The soup will contain chicken, corn, beans, and pasta.
   Stretching before exercising will prevent injury.
Perfect Tenses are used to describe how an event in the present, past or future continues to be relevant at a later time. The perfect tenses combine the past participles of verbs with one or more auxiliary verbs.

Examples: Jim has arrived at work. (Present Perfect. Jim's arrival is reported and it is suggested that he is still there.)
Helen has shopped at Hibbards since she was a child. (Present Perfect. This sentence describes events that started in the past and continue into the present.)
Jim had already arrived at work when the boss walked in. (Past Perfect. This sentence describes an event in the past and shows it to be relevant at a later time.)
Jim will have arrived at work by the time the boss walks in. (Future Perfect. This sentence describes an event in the future and shows its relevance to another event in the future.)
I will have returned home by midnight. (Future Perfect. This sentence describes actions that will take place before some specified time.)
EFFECTIVE USE OF VERBS

Some verbs can be general and others can be precise. For example, walk is a general verb. Amble, stroll, swagger, march, and saunter are precise because they describe specific ways of walking. The use of precise verbs helps make writing come alive and be more interesting.

Consider the following composition which tells how victory was achieved in the final minutes of a football game. Take note of the verbs used which clearly describe the actions that take place.

With three minutes left in the game, and a tie score, we had a first down on our opponent's twenty-yard line. We hammered at their line but could not make a dent in it. By the third down, we were desperate. Finally, our guard and tackle ripped an opening in the center of their line and our fullback plunged through. He was staggered by a glancing tackle, recovered his balance, and raced on until he was tackled within five yards of the goal line.

On the next down, with only seconds left, our halfback carried the ball. Taking it on a quick pass, he dashed for the right end. His interference blocked two opposing men who came rushing in. Two other men lunged for him. He swerved aside, then sprinted for the corner of the goal line. Their safety man grabbed him, but our man dragged the tackler with him for the three yards to the goal line. Our man fell across the line as the gun signaled the end of the game. We had won by six points.

Charles Reade in The Cloister and the Hearth

As in a mist he heard a twang. He glanced down. Denys, white and silent as death, was shooting up at the bear. The bear snarled at the twang, but crawled on. Again the crossbow twanged, and the bear snarled and came nearer. Again the crossbow twanged, and the next moment the bear was close upon Gerard, where he sat, with hair standing stiff on end, and eyes starting from their sockets, palsied. The bear opened her jaws like a grave, and hot blood spouted from them upon Gerard as from a pump. The bough rocked. The wounded monster was reeling; it clung, it stuck its sickles of claws deep into the wood; it toppled, its claws held firm, but its body rolled off, and the sudden shock to the branch shook Gerard forward on his stomach with his face upon one of the bear's straining paws. At this, by a convulsive effort, she raised her head up, up, till he felt her hot fetid breath. Then huge teeth snapped together loudly close below him in the air, with a last effort of baffled hate. The ponderous carcass rent the claws out of the bough, then pounded the earth with a tremendous thump.
VERB EXERCISE

1. A month had elapsed.
2. They greeted me in a cordial manner.
3. I gave him my address.
4. I might have been thrown from the car if I hadn't been wearing a seatbelt.
5. The ransom should never have been paid.

20. Henry drives his children to school.
ADVERBS:

- Describe verbs, adjectives or adverbs.
- Answer the questions "How?", "How often?", "When?", "Where?", or "To what degree?"

EXAMPLES:

He runs fast. (Runs how? Fast.)
He runs now. (Runs when? Now.)
He runs away. (Runs where? Away.)
She is too thin. (How thin? Too thin.)
They moved too far away. (They moved where? Away. How far? Too far.)

- Often (but not always) end in -ly. Adding -ly to many adjectives turns them into adverbs.

- Have three degrees of comparison: positive (simple form), comparative (comparing two actions) and superlative (comparing three or more actions).

EXAMPLES:

Jim ran fast in the race.
Jack ran faster than Jim.
Michael ran the fastest of all.

For adverbs of one syllable add -er to form the comparative and -est to form the superlative. For longer adverbs or adverbs ending in -ly, use more or most. All adverbs use less and least.

EXAMPLES:

Ruth was behaving strangely.
Hannah was behaving more strangely than her sister.
Of the group, Julie was behaving most strangely.
EFFECTIVE USE OF ADVERBS

Consider the following paragraphs:

1. The alarm sounded in the lighted station house. Men began moving toward the huge red and silver fire trucks standing in the doorways. Some put on helmets and rubber coats. Others slid down the thin brass pole that connected the engine room with the sleeping quarters above. Drivers climbed into the trucks and started the motors. The big doors opened to the hot, dark night, and the hook and ladder, with men clutching its sides moved out into the street. The other trucks followed. With sirens wailing, Engine Company Number 7 made its way across the city to another fire.

2. The alarm sounded feebly in the dimly lighted station house. Wearily men began moving toward the huge red and silver fire trucks standing in the doorways. Some grumpily put on helmets and rubber coats. Others slid awkwardly down the thin brass pole that connected the engine room with the sleeping quarters above. Drivers climbed slowly into the trucks and started the motors. The big doors opened squeakily to the uncomfortably hot, dark night, and the hook and ladder, with men cautiously clutching its sides, moved out into the street. The other trucks followed timidly. With sirens wailing, Engine Company Number 7 unhappily made its way across the city to another fire.

Now consider the following passage from a story by the English writer D. H. Lawrence. Paul, the boy who is the central character of the story, overhears his mother say that their family is unlucky. The boy decides that the way to find luck is to ride his rocking horse to it.

He went off by himself, vaguely, in a childish way, seeking for the clue to "luck." Absorbed, taking no heed of other people, he went about with a sort of stealth, seeking inwardly for luck. He wanted luck, he wanted it, he wanted it. When the two girls were playing dolls in the nursery, he would sit on his big rocking horse, charging madly into space, with a frenzy that made the little girls peer at him uneasily. Wildly the horse careered, the waving dark hair of the boy tossed, his eyes had a strange glare in them. The little girls dared not speak to him.

When he had ridden to the end of his mad little journey, he climbed down and stood in front of his rocking horse, staring fixedly into its lowered face. Its red mouth was slightly open, its big eye was wide and glassy-bright.

"Now!" he would silently command the snorting steed. "Now, take me to where there is luck! Now take me!"

CONJUNCTIONS

Conjunctions are words that connect words, phrases, or clauses. There are three types: coordinating conjunctions, correlative conjunctions, and subordinating conjunctions.

Coordinating Conjunctions:
- Connect words, phrases, or clauses that are basically equal in importance.
  - And means "in addition to" and is used to connect two ideas.
  - But introduces an exception or contradiction. Use when contrasting two ideas.
  - Or offers alternatives (one of two things is possible, but not necessarily both).
  - Nor is the negative form of or. It is used only in negative sentences and must follow words such as no, not, never, and neither.
  - Yet means "nevertheless" and doesn't usually join nouns or pronouns.
  - For, meaning "because," is used to connect two sentences when the second sentence explains a reason for an event or circumstance described in the first sentence.
  - So means "therefore" and is used to connect two sentences when the second sentence describes the result of an action or circumstance mentioned in the first sentence.

Correlative Conjunctions:
- Pairs of words used to join words, phrases or sentences.
  - both...and
  - either...or
  - neither...nor
  - not only...but also
  - whether...or

Subordinating Conjunctions:
- Subordinating conjunctions join subordinate (dependent) clauses to main clauses to form complex sentences.
- They clarify time sequences, express possibilities, compare ideas, add information on location and manner, and explain cause-and-effect relationships.

Subordinating conjunctions and their purposes:
- Time - after, before, since, once, until, when, whenever, while.
- Reason/Cause - as, because, since.
- Condition - although, even though, though.
- Result/Effect - in order that, so, so that, that.
- Location - where, wherever.
