INTRODUCTION

Section 353 of The Adult Education Act, P.L. 100-297, as amended by the National Literacy Act of 1991, establishes that not less than 15 percent of funds be used for special experimental demonstration projects and teacher training. These funds are used to provide staff development activities for our Adult Basic and Literacy Education programs through the local consortia and statewide activities. Special training and demonstration projects granted to programs provide products and training that are shared statewide.

This report provides an overview of each of the local consortia projects, the special demonstration and training grants, as well as the statewide activities that took place during the July 1, 1993 - December 31, 1994, period.

STAFF DEVELOPMENT
INDIVIDUAL/CONSORTIA PROJECTS

For fiscal year 1994, the Ohio Department of Education funded staff development activities developed by eight individual ABLE programs and by twenty consortia serving 167 ABLE programs. Attendance for these activities totaled 5,572 ABLE staff at approximately 228 activities. Over 2,074 hours of available staff development through local projects and consortia averaged approximately nine hours per activity. The total allocation for these projects was $453,685.00.

In addition to local training activities through individual and consortia projects, staff development events were facilitated through the four ABLE Regional Resource Centers. New teachers' training occurred regionally as well as regional conferences.

Two other projects centered around state-wide training were "For the Common Good" and "Peer Assistance Teams."

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:
The Resource Center staff will continue to expand the resource collection and increase availability of training sessions and consultations. For example, persons who received Pelavin training through the SW Resource Center, will be encouraged to provide workshops/consultations to other ABLE programs. Plans for 1995 include: New Teacher Training, Application/Resume Writing for Hard to Place Individuals focus group, Regional Conferences, NLP: Neuro-Linguistic Programming Workshop, "There Are No Snowdays" Workplace Literacy Workshop, Stay and Learn Workshop, State Directors Meetings, and Attitudes and the JOBS Client focus group.

Conclusions/Recommendations:
Continue the operation of the Regional Resource Centers and continue communication among all four Resource Centers, the Ohio Literacy Resource Center, the Ohio Literacy Network, and Staff Development Consortiums.

(216) 261-7076

Purpose: To provide technical assistance, resource materials and training for the 51 ABLE programs and the approximately 650 teachers, administrators and tutors who work in Northeast Regional ABLE programs. Delores Tocco Tekieli is the project administrator. The center is staffed by Gloria W. Gillette, director, and Mary Beth Quinn, resource assistant.

Project Outcomes: 1) Since 1/1/94, the Resource Center has developed the library in the following areas:
*books 3,000
*video & audio tapes 250
*research items &
353 projects 500
*newsletters & journals 50
*catalogues 300
*computer programs 30
*variety of kits & manipulatives and
instructional aids
2) The Resource Center has also:
*sponsored on-site training on ESL,
GED administration, New Teacher Orientation
*co-sponsored/hosted teleconferences and a variety of consortium and Directors' meetings *held 3 Advisory Board meetings *developed both an NTO and an ESL manual *provided ongoing technical assistance at the rate of 3-5 calls/day *presented at a number of program sites *participated in other meetings such as Peer Assistance, Quality Indicators, Grant Reading, and State Directors' meeting *developed and distributed 3 newsletters and training schedules directly to 650 ABLE program staff members *responded to over 350 documented requests for information or assistance *met quarterly with regional Centers to: coordinate activities, develop a combined mission statement and long-term goals, maintain regular, ongoing communication, jointly develop an ABLE manual for new teachers *produced an ESL pronunciation manual

Impact:

The impact of the Resource Center has been threefold:

1) for the Ohio Department of Education - we have coordinated activities and information
2) for program directors - we have coordinated information and activities, ordered materials and provided technical assistance
3) for teachers - we have provided training, research, materials and a wide variety of information
Through all of the above activities, we have hopefully impacted students directly or indirectly.

Products or Training Developed:

Our location has allowed us to provide a central site for meetings in the region. In hosting and developing meetings or training, we have increased traffic into the Resource Center, thereby encouraging direct access and use of materials. Accessibility has encouraged inquiries. New Teacher Orientation and the manual development are actual "products." However, our main products are training, information and resources.

Products are Available From:

ESL Pronunciation Manual and the ABLE Resource Handbook are available from:
Northeast ABLE Resource Center
291 East 222nd Street
Euclid, Ohio 44123

Information and resources such as: commercial texts, government publications, professional development materials, training materials, video and audio tapes, journals and newsletters, 353 projects, and catalogues are also available through the Resource Center.

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:

The Resource Center has been funded through August 1995.

Conclusions/Recommendations:

The response to the NE ABLE Resource Center has been far greater than anticipated. The sheer volume of requests reflects the obvious need for a central information site. We have been successful in developing a needed information flow with the ODE. We have met critical training and meeting needs. However, our greatest success has been with meeting day-to-day information needs. Our impact has been the greatest with the teachers which is where the immediate need exists.

Recommendations for the future include:
1) increase training opportunities
2) continue to coordinate activities and training with the other resource centers and the OLRC
3) develop specific training components
4) expand library
5) increase knowledge and experiences with technology and its application in adult education

Additional Comments: We are pleased that teachers and directors have responded positively. We look forward to working with ODE to expand the training opportunities for ABLE programs. We will continue our special interest in ESL projects and materials and will expand our development in the areas of technology, as identified by the field in a recent needs assessment.

Toledo, Ohio 43699-1947
(419) 661-7425
Fax: (419) 661-7662

Purpose: To provide resources, technical assistance, and training to personnel of funded ABLE programs in Northwest Ohio.

Project Outcomes:
* Additional resources were collected for the center
* Technical assistance was provided to both individuals and programs
* New teacher training was conducted
* The Bronx Educational Services (BES) project was facilitated
* The National Adult Education for the Homeless Conference was conducted
* Program visitations were made
* Training sessions were held
* A regional conference was conducted

Impact:
1) Additional networking has taken place among program personnel
2) More people have attended workshops and meetings
3) Resources have been purchased that individual programs can't afford to purchase
4) Additional people have been trained in BES
Product or Training Developed:
New Teacher manual has been produced.
New teacher training program has been developed with other centers.

Products are Available From:
Each program will have the New Teacher manual as will individuals who participated in the training. Manuals are also available from the center upon request.

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:
Each year more requests for training have come in from the field. For the coming year, each consortium has requested at least one training session.

Conclusions/Recommendations:
The resource centers provide an additional method of outreach. They also have provided additional opportunities for networking in the field. There is some overlap with consortium activities and this needs to be considered.

Additional Comments: None
Grant Recipient: Ohio University
Program Name: Central/Southeast ABLE Resource Center
Grant Allocation: $85,000.00
Project Period: September 1, 1993 - August 31, 1994
Program Director: Dr. Edward Stevens
Ohio University
119 McCracken Hall
Athens, Ohio 45701
(614) 593-4470

Purpose: The primary purpose of the Central/Southeast ABLE Resource Center is to provide staff development, technical assistance and material resources for ABLE Region 2, a twenty-nine county region in Central/Southeast Ohio. Edward Stevens, Director; Alice Blake-Stalker, Coordinator; Rick McIntosh, Staff Development Field Representative and Melanie Volk, Secretary, staff the center. During the past year, the Resource Center progressed through three phases of development. The first phase was continued acquisition of resources in the form of books, video/audio tapes, teleconferences, and software. The second phase was the preparation of the three regional campus sites. The third and perhaps most dynamic phase was the hiring of the Staff Development Field Representative.

Project Outcomes: The Resource Center sponsored two regional Directors' Meetings. The first was held on October 8, 1993, at Mid-East Ohio Vocational School in Zanesville, Ohio, and the second was held on April 20, 1994, at Burr Oak State Park in Glouster, Ohio. An Advisory Board meeting was held July 8, 1994, in Zanesville, Ohio.
During the course of the year, staff from the Resource Center attended the following conferences:

* National Conference on Adolescent and Adult Literacy
* OAACE
* Seventh Annual Adult Literacy & Technology Conference
* Focus Group for the National Institute for Adult Learning Disabilities

Dr. Blake-Stalker also attended joint meetings with the Southwest, Northwest, and Northeast Resource Centers to plan and develop a state-wide New Teacher Training Manual. The Central/Southeast Resource Center also conducted a New ABLE Teacher Training on September 11, 1993, and a follow-up on December 4, 1993. CEU's were awarded to participants.

Impact:

Housing the center at Ohio University permits access to a variety of sites for the Resource Center. This makes the materials/resources more accessible to the 29 counties served. With the hiring of the staff development field representative, more emphasis has been placed on training ABLE staff/volunteers in the field. He has travelled to eight areas to conduct workshops/trainings. This two-prong outreach, materials/resources and staff development) not only assists directors and staff, but also reaches the ABLE students, both directly and indirectly, providing better learning opportunities.

Product or Training Developed:

Perhaps the most valuable product the Resource Center has helped to create this past year is the state-wide New ABLE Teacher Training Manual. This manual will, in accordance with State guidelines, bring all ABLE regions into alignment and ensure consistency in the training of new ABLE instructors. Another product was the development of the first Central/Southeast ABLE Resource Center newsletter, which was mailed during the summer of 1994. The Staff Development Field Representative will be developing training for our region. Since this position has only recently been filled, trainings and workshops are still under development. The Resource Center's main emphasis therefore, has been the accessibility of resources to the Central/Southeast region. To that effect, the first copy of the bibliography was mailed to ABLE Directors, in essence, placing our resources in their centers as well.

Products are Available From:
Central/Southeast ABLE Resource Center (see address above)

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:
With continued funding, the center looks forward to further outreach to both directors, staff, and students. With the new field representative, it is expected that the center will have an even greater impact in this region.

Conclusions/Recommendations:
Although it seems that the center has progressed slowly in these two years, a full compliment of staff, which the center has finally acquired, has increased the momentum of the project and the center now enters into a peak of activity. Recommendations include the continued development of staff training and increasing the awareness in the region of the center and the materials/resources it provides.

Program Director: Susan Imel
CETE
1900 Kenny Road
Columbus, Ohio 43210-1090

Internet: ime1.1@osu.edu

Purpose: "For the Common Good" was the continuation of a project begun in 1990. Its purpose was to facilitate the development of interagency linkages among educators, human services staff, employment and training personnel, community action agency staff, and other social service personnel. The six tasks described below were conducted during this phase of the project, which was carried out in conjunction with the State At-Risk Linkage Team.

* Worked with the State At-Risk Linkage Team to plan and conduct a 2-day statewide institute, "For the Common Good: Building Linkages for At-Risk Families in Ohio." The purpose of the institute, held Oct. 19 & 20, 1993, was to provide local interagency linkage teams the opportunity to develop action plans. A total of 94 individuals representing 11 teams registered for the institute. An additional 38 persons participated in the institute as either presenters, facilitators, or state tea, members.
* Planned and conducted a 1-day meeting for staff members from the Ohio Departments of Education, Human Services, Development, and Alcohol and Drug Addiction Services; Ohio Board of Regents; and Ohio Bureau of Employment Services. The purpose of the meeting, held Feb. 9, 1994, was to permit state-level staff to become personally and professionally acquainted. Fifty-three individuals attended the meeting.

* Worked with the Greene County Coordination Team and the State At-Risk Linkage Team to plan and implement a follow-up activity for teams that had attended institutes in either 1990, 1991, or 1993. Held on April 27 & 28, 1994, the meeting consisted of two parts: team development activities on April 27 and team planning activities on April 28, 1994. A total of 99 persons representing 15 teams attended one or both days.

* In collaboration with the State At-Risk Linkage team, produced the publication, A Matrix to Promote the Common Good, that provides information on JOBS Program Ohio Funding Resources. Patterned after volume 2 of Meeting the Challenges: Coordinating to Promote Self-Sufficiency that provides information on JOBS program federal funding resources, this publication is designed to assist linkage teams in coordinating their JOBS programs. Six hundred and fifty copies of this publication were provided to the sponsor and to state linkage team members.

* Produced a follow-up report on activities of linkage teams that attended either the April 1990, Oct. 1991, or the Oct. 1993
Project Outcomes:

* Coordinated a 1-day planning retreat for state team members that was held on Sept. 27, 1994. The purpose of the meeting, which was attended by 15 state team members or their designate, was to allow state team members an opportunity to begin developing a plan for state-level activities.

* Established 11 additional teams
* Provided support for teams formed during 1990-93 institutes
* Continued development of linkages among state-level staff
* Developed a publication, A Matrix to Promote the Common Good, that provides information on Ohio funding sources related to the JOBS program.
* Collected and reported follow-up data on activities on linkage teams
* Initiated long-range planning process for state team designed to develop 2-year action plan
* Disseminated project-related information through a number of activities including presentations at a variety of meetings and conferences. The follow-up report has been entered into the ERIC database.
Conclusions/Recommendations: The continuation of the project during this period supported three additional training activities, the development of two publications, and a state team retreat. An estimated 309 persons participated in these activities. Feedback from the three training activities reinforced the need for continuing linkage activities at both the state and local levels. The activities provided the basis for continued collaboration as well as the opportunity for networking. Despite the limitations of self-report data, the follow-up report provides the most complete written data on local linkage team activities to date. Using the data provided by local teams and state team members, it is possible to conclude that the project has facilitated the development of a number of successful local linkage teams.

Recommendations for the project include the following:

1) Continue to provide regularly scheduled activities for state staff and local linkage teams.
2) Plan and implement more institutes that will foster the formation of additional local linkage teams.
3) Develop a mentoring program that will match experienced teams with those that are forming through the institutes.
4) Plan and implement additional team development activities for the purpose of providing local teams in-depth technical assistance in a variety of areas.
6) Continue to document the project impact through regular follow-up reports that include data from local teams and state staff.
7) Fund an evaluation study of the Common Good project designed to measure its impact.
8) Fund a newsletter for state staff and local linkage team members.
9) Develop of Common Good video for the purposes of marketing and awareness building.
10) To ensure project continuity and to allow for strategic planning, secure on-going funding commitments from ODE, ODHS, and OBES in the amount of $25,000 per agency yearly.

Additional Comments: Quantifying the project activities in a final report hardly documents the impact of the Common Good project. During this funding continuation, the project reached maturity or at least adolescence. Because of invited presentations made by state staff members at three regional USDHS meetings, it received national visibility. Also, the allocation of JTPA 8% Coordination Funds for use in funding project proposed by local linkage teams gave the project a real boost. As a result, ten teams have received grants of $30,000.00 to use in developing coordination projects in their local communities. The current funding environment that calls for interagency collaboration bodes well for the linkage teams established through this project. It has been particularly gratifying to work in cooperation with a number of Ohio state staff and local practitioners in the implementation of the Common Good project activities. The project has benefitted greatly from the advice and counsel of a number of local and state-level personnel.

Purpose: The goal of this project is to provide a vehicle for continuous improvement of ABLE programs and personnel by providing programs the opportunity to identify the areas in which they would like to improve as they begin to work within the framework of the Indicators of Program Quality.

Project Outcomes: As a result of this project, a good network has been built within the members of the teams. This may ultimately, be the vehicle that leads to success of this project. During the AAACE conference in Nashville, the project director had the opportunity to meet with Harold Boone. He was responsible for implementing a similar project in Kentucky, and did some initial training for ODE here in Ohio. He has made extensive changes since the teams were first established and the teams in Ohio have evolved as well. Professor Boone feels that teams can only develop trust necessary to operate as a cohesive team, if the programs being observed are part of the team. As long as the team is an outside group, the project will always be viewed as an evaluation.
As a result, the final project involved bringing programs together regionally to work as teams in implementation of the Indicators of Program Quality. Those members who were originally chosen to be team members will become members of these larger teams. They have had additional training in such skills as team building which should be valuable to the larger group.

Impact:

The final meeting which was held in December was very successful. Invitations were sent to all ABLE programs and programs were asked to send a director/coordinator and a teacher to the training. This was necessary as teachers need to be very involved in the implementation of the quality indicators. Thirty-two programs were represented at this conference.

Those who attended have made plans to visit each others programs during the next four months and meet at the OAACE conference in April to discuss progress.

Product or Training Developed:

Training was provided for the initial team members. Much of the training was provided by Luther Hasely, a consultant who has extensive experience in implementation of teams at all levels. He provided direction for the teams and was responsible for the evolution of the project.

Products are Available From:

No products were produced as part of this project. The current materials used are the Ohio's Indicators of Program Quality and the various support pieces that have developed in training the field.
Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:

This has the potential to be a great project, but it isn't there at this point. The constant changes in the field certainly prohibited this project from moving forward at the pace desired. There is a great deal of anxiety over the quality indicators, so this project can meet a very specific need at this time.

At this point, the four regional resource centers are involved and it makes sense for them to continue this as a resource center activity. They can provide the networking opportunities necessary for this project to continue.

Conclusions/Recommendations:

The team concept is an exciting one which deserves further consideration. It has been useful in many different situations and it can provide a vehicle for the improvement of ABLE programs. However, it will take time to get this project to a level where positive results can be seen.

Additional Comments: This was the second year of a two year project. There were many delays in project implementation and many changes in both the team members and the project concept. Some good networking has resulted and some positive things will eventually come out of this process.
Requests for Proposals in seven topic areas were distributed statewide during fiscal year 1994. One grant was awarded in the following categories: Workplace Literacy: Trouble Shooting for Success, ABLE Support Staff Training Workshop, Beyond Ourselves: Effective ABLE Practices Worldwide, Innovative Practices in English as a Second Language, and Cultural Diversity in the ABLE Classroom.

The Ohio Department of Education has continued its support of organized groups and coalitions of adult literacy providers to strengthen joint planning and coordination efforts. The twelve Adult Literacy Planning and Coordination grants, awarded throughout the state, have increased the overall effectiveness of the delivery of services to the adult learner.

Four Program Quality Enhancement grants were awarded to local programs expressing the need for support in developing and disseminating programs and strategies designed to improve the quality of adult basic and literacy education services. These topics include: Family Literacy Curriculum, Volunteer Literacy Programs in Community Corrections, Adult Basic and Literacy Education Transitions, and Shawnee Foxfire Network.

The total allocation for these twenty projects was $407,469.00.

Requests for Proposals (RFP's) on the Special Demonstration and Training Projects described in this section are in Attachment A.
Grant Recipient: Owens Technical College
Program Name: Workplace Literacy: Trouble Shooting for Success
Grant Allocation: $28,000.00
Project Period: January 1, 1994 - December 31, 1994
Program Director: Linda Stacy
Owens Community College
P.O. Box 10,000
Toledo, Ohio 43699-1947
(419) 661-7425

Purpose: The purpose of this project was to increase the effectiveness of ABLE programs in marketing and implementing workplace literacy programs.

Project Outcomes: Consulting services were provided for a number of programs involved at various levels in establishing workplace programs. Programs were also provided the opportunity for instructional personnel with responsibilities in workplace programs to network on a regular basis. A statewide training session was held in December. Participants had the opportunity to see some of the newest materials/tests available, discuss various workplace issues, and receive some of the latest publications in the field.

Impact: The network of workplace literacy providers is a very cohesive group. It is evident that some programs are better able to provide this service than others. As a result, those who have been successful are very willing to share materials and information. This project was successful because it went beyond the typical training session which may be successful in creating awareness, but rarely results in long term changes.
Change results from a systemic, sustained effort and this project through the consulting services and networking opportunities gave the participants the support needed to implement new ideas.

Product or Training Developed:

A general training was held designed for experienced providers and the emphasis was on new materials and methods in the field. CASAS, Workkeys, and the new national skill standards projects were presented. A professional workplace library was started.

Products are Available From:

Each of the participants was given sets of materials and the four regional resource centers will be given copies of all materials used in the training sessions.

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:

The opportunity for workplace literacy providers to network is critical to the success of the field. Also, at a time when unemployment is low the key to reaching people is through the workplace. While some opportunities for networking exist, the key to success for this kind of project was the individual consulting provided. This provides the kind of support needed to make changes in programs.

Conclusions/Recommendations:

Consulting should be a larger part of any project that has the goal of creating new programs or implementing new ideas. Too much time is spent on big conferences with no follow up. People need on-going support to make changes in their programs.
Additional Comments:

"This was an exciting project in which to be involved," states program director, Linda Stacy. "It gave me time to spend with people to help them solve problems and as a result new programs were established."
Grant Recipient: Owens Community College
Program Name: Support Staff Training
Grant Allocation: $23,000.00
Project Period: January 1, 1994 - December 31, 1994
Program Director: Linda Stacy
Owens Community College
P.O. Box 10,000
Toledo, Ohio 43699-1947
(419) 661-7425

Purpose:
The purpose of this project was to improve the effectiveness of ABLE programs by providing training to support staff personnel. The training included both general customer service information, as well as ABLE specific information.

Project Outcomes:
Four training programs were held in cooperation with the regional resource centers. A directory of the participants has been produced and copies have been mailed to all in attendance. Two training manuals were used for this project. One consisted of pertinent ABLE information and the other was a purchased customer service manual.

Impact:
The training sessions were well received. All of the participants expressed their gratitude for the materials and the information. They were also eager to share information and it is hoped that the directories will encourage them to continue to network.
Product or Training Developed:

The training sessions included a pre-test on general ABLE information. While some people were new to the field and it was assumed that they would have limited knowledge of the field, the project staff were surprised by the limited knowledge of people who had been in the field for years. The questions on the pre-test were all addressed in the training session. The training also included information on customer service with the emphasis on telephone techniques. The final part of the training was on creating a professional appearance. Two manuals were used for this program.

Products are Available From:

Each of the four regional resource centers was given copies of all materials used in the training sessions.

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:

As all participants expressed interest in additional training, OAACE will include sessions designed for support staff at the annual spring conference. Breakout sessions designed for this group might also be part of the regional ABLE meetings. It would also be suggested that the regional resource centers sponsor at least one activity a year for this population.

Conclusions/Recommendations:

Very few programs have full time support staff members and many directors seem to be very unaware of other people associated with the sponsoring agency who may be a point of contact for clients. Some training of directors is needed to help them identify all people connected. Directors should also be encouraged to include support staff in staff meetings and to include them on the rosters for the regional resource centers.

Additional Comments:

This was an enthusiastic group. They are too often ignored, but have the potential to be a valuable resource if trained correctly.
Grant Recipient: Ashtabula County District Library

Program Name: Adult Literacy Planning and Coordination
Ashtabula County Literacy Coalition

Grant Allocation: $20,000.00

Project Period: January 1, 1994 - December 31, 1994

Program Director: Emily Chismar
3431 West 13th Street
Ashtabula, Ohio 44004
(216) 964-7443

Purpose: To continue to operate the Literacy Office through which the planning and coordination of all county literacy services for adults occurs. Continual PR, marketing, family literacy activities, all-county library connections, LVA tutor training and tutor-student matching, tutor development and support, on-going networking with all social service agencies, expansion of the ABLE Reading/Writing Resource Center were some of the activities which were accomplished with this grant funding. Key people: Emily Chismar, Program Dir.; Suzanne Bernardini, ABLE Dir.; Bill Tokarczyk, Ashtabula Library Dir.; John Mahan, Kent Ashtabula Dean; Kay Roller, Family Lit. Dir.; and Becky Phipps, LVS Tutor Trainer.

Project Outcomes: The Literacy Office is serving adult students from the basic skills through possible enrollment at Kent Ashtabula. The coordinator acts as the referral person who assists adult students in connecting at the level most appropriate for their needs whether it is an LVA one-on-one tutor, an ABLE learning center, classes at the Vo-Ed, or enrollment at the university. There are presently 90+ tutor-student matches, and approx. 20 trained tutors assist within the ABLE classrooms servicing several students at each site. Although fewer tutors were trained this year (40), those who completed the workshop have pretty much all become faithful and committed tutors.

Impact:

The Literacy Coalition has become a viable and credible part of the county and its activities. Students know where to call for information, social service agency personnel know where to call for assistance for their clients, public school educators call for assistance for their clients, public school educators call to connect parents of their students to programs. The office/coordinator does PR, marketing, social service interaction, and coordination with all nine county libraries.

Product or Training Developed:

Once again during 1994 the LVA training was adapted for use over the interactive television network (ITV). This system connects all county high schools via a fiber optic television system. Spring and fall tutor gatherings were held for tutor inservicing and development. The Family Literacy coordinator presented a Shared Book activity. The NIE director presented new ideas on using the newspaper as an instructional tool. All tutors are invited to ABLE staff development meetings.

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:
This project is on-going as the Literacy Office is alive and well serving Ashtabula County residents. We promote life-long learning throughout the county and we intend to keep bolstering the economic growth and assisting families toward a better quality of life.

Conclusions/Recommendations:
We are trying more and more to encourage basic literacy students to get moving and to get off the welfare rolls and into the workforce. We also work very closely with Head Start to develop stronger ties with their families and to attempt to redirect thinking and attitudes toward the concept of life-long learning.

Additional Comments:
The Ashtabula County Literacy Coalition is a true collaborative venture, quite unique we're told. It's wonderful to experience such a degree of cooperative leadership that manifests into real help for those adults who come seeking direction and assistance.
Grant Recipient: Canton City Schools

Program Name: Adult Literacy Planning and Coordination Inter-Agency Linkages/Serving At-Risk Families

Grant Allocation: $6,990.00

Project Period: January 1, 1994 - December 31, 1994

Program Director: John W. Pieper
Canton City Schools
Wells Administration Building
617 McKinley Avenue, S.W.
Canton, Ohio 44707
(216) 438-2555

Purpose: To establish an inter-agency coalition, abroad based community action team (CAT) to better meet the needs of at-risk families.

Project Outcomes: Thirty-eight agencies were identified and agreed to participate in the project. The Oct. meeting set the stage for two primary objectives to emerge: to develop a common referral form and to prepare a directory that would give information about each agency, including names of contact persons. The directories were to be designed to include brochures and publicity materials from each agency. The December meeting provided a forum for prioritizing networking needs for disseminating information about other efforts in the community to develop collaboratives, and for determining that the effort initiated by Canton City Schools should continue.
Impact: All those who participated in the project gave very positive evaluations that indicated the need for continued personal contacts through regular meetings, as well as more access to information via computer hook-ups to centralized data banks. All agreed that clients will be better served as a result of these collaboratives, and that there will be less duplication of services.

Product or Training Developed: A Community Action Team notebook which consists of a pocket folder page for each participating agency was developed. Brochures from each agency were inserted in the pockets. Each agency and each ABLE teacher received a notebook. A common referral form was developed. Several agencies indicated an interest in doing cross-training for staff.

Products are Available From: Thelma Slater Canton City Schools 627 McKinley Avenue S.W., Room 208 Canton, Ohio 44707

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications: At the final meeting the group decided to continue meeting in 1995. A meeting with Family Council on January 31, 1995, will determine which priorities can be met by participation in this organization. In addition, all CAT team members will be invited to participate in the monthly roundtable discussions held at the local OBES Customer Service Center.
Conclusions/Recommendations:

Many agencies in our community are interested in collaboration. The team feels that it has a strong impetus to bring agencies together; however, true collaboration takes time. The team would like to continue to meet and to support the efforts of Family Council and OBES. This process is recommended to any ABLE program interested in establishing closer linkages with the community.

Additional Comments:

"We have had many positive comments regarding the meetings and the notebooks. We are confident that many agencies have a much greater awareness of Canton City Schools ABLE services. We are confident our teachers will find the notebooks of tremendous help in making referrals of ABLE students to community services."
Grant Recipient: Clark County Literacy Coalition
Program Name: Adult Literacy Planning and Coordination
Grant Allocation: $20,000.00
Project Period: January 1, 1994 - December 31, 1994
Program Director: Marsha Randall
Clark County Literacy Coalition
Warder Literacy Center
137 E. High Street
Springfield, Ohio 45502
(513) 323-8617

Purpose: To create Life Skills module for low level adult readers; to utilize a community advisory group for improving the delivery of literacy services to meet students needs; to train 50 new tutors and hold 2 in-services based on their needs; to publish an ABLE workplace brochure and to generate additional funding for 1995.

Project Outcomes: Life Skills Module: Review of educational materials on essential life skills for low level adults and publication of Functional Reading Skills. Twenty-two tutors and ABLE providers were trained in the first life skills module training session, and now it is incorporated into all tutor training workshops.

Social Agency Linkage Team: Monthly meetings were started with the new linkage team to improve the delivery of ABLE and other services in the county. A common referral and release form was developed to expedite referrals and follow up practices by referring agencies to ABLE providers and vice-versa. Cross trainings and in-services for ABLE staff and community service agencies began in September 1994 and will take place bi-monthly through 1995.

Tutor Training: Ten tutor training workshops were scheduled, and a total of sixty-seven tutors were trained in the basic adult reading methods, critical thinking and functional literacy. Several feature articles appeared in the Springfield News Sun highlighting students and tutors, along with announcements of training workshops. Partners in Literacy newsletter published and distributed; 96 students were referred through provider agencies and matched with trained tutors; over 6,027 volunteer hours were recorded.

Staff Development, In-Service Trainings and Support: Based on needs assessment and recommendations of advisory group, consultants conducted workshops on goal setting, learning disabilities, stress management, learning styles and working with the mentally impaired. Seventy-two tutors, ABLE staff members and project staff were trained in these workshops.

Public Awareness and Fund Raising: The coalition increased its financial resources by $19,500 beyond this grant. A workplace literacy flyer was developed and approximately 500 were distributed to local industry.

Impact:

A needs assessment was developed and sent to over 100 tutors with a 35% response rate. Six areas of interest were identified and 5 in service workshops were held. Evaluations served to identify areas for improvement and plans for future activities. Sixty-seven new tutors were trained for the year and over 70 tutors and staff members participated in the in-service workshops. A workplace literacy flyer was distributed to enhance public awareness.

Product or Training Developed:

Life Skills module, Social Agency Linkage Team, Community Awareness Campaign, workplace literacy flyer, newsletters, tutor needs assessment, updated and complete booklist of resources available.

Products are Available From:

Products are available from the Warder Literacy Center, address given above.

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:

The projects and products of this grant will remain in place following the grant period. The Social Agency Linkage Team will continue to meet monthly and plans are in process for further development and collaboration.

Conclusions/Recommendations:

The Clark County Literacy Coalition continues to provide essential literacy services to the community through our ABLE providers. The Planning and Coordination Grant has allowed the expansion of these services and the beginning of integration of information and collaboration among social service agencies and ABLE providers. Students, tutors and the community benefit when these agencies work together. For these reasons, it is recommended that state funding for activities and purposes be continued.

Program Director: Ned J. Pahl
Findlay City Schools
1200 Broad Avenue
Findlay, Ohio 45840
(419) 425-8256

Purpose: To fund the development of a partnership of city, county, and state service agencies to help reduce the duplication of services and provide easier access to anyone in the area in need of these services. Five key players have met almost on a weekly basis and are skill holding weekly meetings to fulfill the dream of a one-stop shop in this area of the state. The project is not complete, but the team has presented its proposal to both individuals and groups, and at this point the team is still looking for financial backing and start-up funds. The Hancock County Commissioners have been extremely supportive and offered to build a new building financed through a 23 year bond. Using another grant, the teams has gone forward with the hiring of an architect and a case manager to pilot the concept. The majority of this grant was used to hire a marketing firm to do P.R. and help the committee develop a business plan. The name of our organization is called "Career Link".

Project Outcomes: Documentation of the team's activities are included in the full report. County Impact: Commissioners will donate land adjacent to the new Human Services Building. If timing is good, the County Engineering Department will donate equipment to grade and prepare parking lot for 200 cars. Much effort and in-kind donations have been provided by all of the committee organizations.

PIC, OBES, Department of Human Services (JOBS), Findlay City School Board of Education have all endorsed the concept. Many, if not all, of the social service agencies are starting to rethink how their services are delivered. Career Link is alive and well- we only need money.

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications: The team intends to continue the project. The original group is still intact and very anxious about seeing it through to completion. The next approach is to seek grants from local companies and hopefully, get other organizations to locate in the same building to help pay some of the cost.

Conclusions/Recommendations: Our recommendation would be that, as other committees are formed, it should be made perfectly clear this concept will not happen overnight.

1-800-723-2447

Purpose: 1) To strengthen the Gallia, Jackson, Vinton Linkage and Coordination Team/Literacy Coalition increasing the delivery and combined service capacity within the three county area; 2) to facilitate further joint planning, increase coordination efforts among area programs, strengthening leadership roles within local community service providers; 3) to continue to provide a forum for area service providers to work collectively to identify unmet adult literacy need, secure resources to address those needs, and to evaluate the effectiveness of these activities to reach and serve more adults in need; and 4) to promote public awareness of adult literacy needs, develop and support a service network information and referral system, sponsor and conduct bi-monthly "Service Provider Fairs."

Project Outcomes: Provided 12 monthly meetings for Linkage & Coordination & Literacy Coalition purposes. Conducted "Service Provider Fairs", and co-sponsored the Pre-Economic Uplift Summit; developed a computerized data base program with information concerning local and regional service providers; worked successfully to co-sponsor a "For the Common Good" grant that will allow 10 new computers, with communication software to interact with our computer to increase the I & R Network started with this grant; established a 1-800 number to be used by Linkage & Coordination Team/Literacy Coalition members or other service providers for resource and referral information; developed a public awareness program utilizing radio spots, newspaper articles, and other printed material and speaker presentations. Names and titles of key people involved in this projects are contained in the full report.

Impact:

An estimated 10,000+ individuals have been provided with services through one or more of the 20 agencies representing over 30 programs in this rural Appalachian three county area. A public forum has been developed and continued that has/will enable the group to identify and deal with a wide range of community needs. The computerized "I & R Network" has grown from one computer with communication capability to fourteen computers in different locations that has the potential to allow for one stop service center capabilities in a rural area. At least 15 interagency agreements have been developed by and between Linkage & Coordination Team/Literacy Coalition member agencies.

Project Continuation
and/or Future
Implications:
The project will continue, funding has been obtained through December 1995. Service Provider Agencies and Literacy Volunteers will continue to work diligently to ensure the continued operation of this project.
Other funding sources will be utilized when available and appropriate.

Conclusions/
Recommendations:
1) That funding through the ODE has allowed the three county Appalachian rural area to utilize technology for the transfer of information and the referral of services to our clients, and to maximize services. This type of funding is a valuable asset and we would encourage the continuation of this effort. 2) Do not base you total workforce for a grant on volunteer assistance.
Volunteers are wonderful; however, other obligations can and do keep them from providing the commitment needed for an extended project.

Grant Recipient: The Literacy Initiative
Program Name: Adult Literacy Planning and Coordination
Grant Allocation: $25,000.00
Project Period: January 1, 1994 - December 31, 1994
Program Director: Jill Barrett-Brooks
The Literacy Initiative
99 N. Front Street, Room 4
Columbus, Ohio 43215
(614) 645-7862

Purpose:
The project focused on joint planning and coordination community-wide to increase awareness and the visibility of adult literacy issues; to recruit volunteers for local adult literacy programs; to support existing literacy organizations; and promote and assist new programs. Edith Poling is the Project Director.

One of the initial activities impacting the focus and direction for literacy in our community was the development of TLI's three-year business plan. The abbreviated three-year plan overview is in the full report. The mission of this plan is to mobilize corporate Columbus and community resources toward achieving greater literacy in Columbus.

The major focus for the grant centered on increasing public awareness for adult literacy which in turn would result in increased participation by the corporate community and enhanced recruitment of volunteers. TLI has been successful in placing the issue of adult literacy in the public spotlight in a consistent manner. In 1994 there were four major events which heightened awareness regarding adult literacy. Each activity resulted in the production of Public Service Announcements (PSA's) for television and radio as well as newspaper and magazine articles, flyers, posters and signs.

Through participation with Cafe Glitz, a core group of community leaders (CEO's) have been identified to serve in an advisory capacity to TLI. As a result, a number of CEO's have come forth to incorporate basic skills programs within their own companies over the next two years in an effort to enhance the competitiveness of their workforce.

Through public awareness efforts, the Read-Hotline provided information to more than 400 potential volunteers and made referrals to the local literacy programs. In addition, there were more than 200 students referred, and TLI responded to numerous requests for general information. Material was also provided to community organizations and individuals requesting information. An electronic mail system was facilitated and equipment provided to adult literacy programs. TLI met with and assisted two new community literacy programs during their developmental stages.

Project Outcomes:

I. Community Awareness: 1994 activities, which will be on-going in 1995 and beyond, include:

1) Planning, development and implementation of "Cafe Glitz", a major community event attended by over 1,500 people. More than 40 companies contributed funds in excess of $1,000 each in support of this event and netted approx. $64,000 for community literacy programs.

2) The third annual "Great Grown-Up Spelling Bee" is a yearly event which raises awareness and develops resources for adult literacy programs. TLI realized over $20,000 for community literacy programs during the 1994 "Bee."

3) The Blue Ribbon Campaign was a major awareness effort which resulted in 49 airings of a PSA which promoted adult literacy. Over 5,000 flyers and posters were distributed.

4) The fourth annual Warner Cable Campaign for Adult Literacy raised $22,500 for adult literacy programs and provided significant community awareness.

5) Other events are included in the full report.

II. Resource Development:
Since September 1992, $225,625.98 has been granted to adult literacy programs by TLI; $55,000 in July 1995. TLI also secured and provided used computers to three literacy agencies and modems to 10 additional agencies. Staff members continued to work with the literacy agencies to facilitate the use of an electronic mail system. It is TLI's goal to make electronic mail available to all literacy programs.

III. Community Planning/Research:
The Literacy Initiative built upon the Strategic Plan which was completed in April of 1993, and in 1994 developed and approved a comprehensive three-year business plan to meet future needs in our community. This comprehensive plan takes into account supporting research which indicates that many of the adults needing literacy services are presently employed. Under the new plan, TLI will expand its services in 1995 to include a train the trainer workplace literacy system. Through cooperation with the literacy providers in Greater Columbus and a local corporation, Illiteracy and the Future of Your Company was developed to be used with corporations for support and participation in literacy efforts.

IV. Recruitment and Coordination:
TLI has served the community as a coordinating agency and an information and referral resource through various community activities and most importantly through the Read-Hotline. In 1994, the hotline provided service to more than 700 individuals. The goal of referring 400 volunteers was met. In 1994, TLI provided, free of charge, training and modems to local literacy service agencies as a means of communicating through an automated network system called Lit-Mail. Lit-Mail provides information regarding funding opportunities, literacy workshops, information on innovative teaching strategies, and on-going updates on important literacy issues.

V. Community Outreach:
TLI met with and assisted two new community literacy programs during their developmental stages. TLI was the host site for a visiting professional from Cyprus who was in the U.S. to study education practices.

Impact:

1) A system for awarding grants to local literacy agencies is in place and in 1994 grants were presented to nine literacy agencies (totalling $55,000) to strengthen programs. 2) Four, highly visible, yearly events to promote literacy awareness. 3) The local service providers continue to work toward developing mutually acceptable standards for adult literacy programs. 4) A three-year business plan has been cooperatively developed. 5) Ten agencies are connected through an E-Mail system which will facilitate the quick transfer of information. 6) The Franklinton Learning Center has spun off on its own and is providing adult and family literacy activities. 7) Six local businesses have committed to starting a basic skills program on-site during the next two years. 8) A movie theatre slide has been produced to recruit volunteers and students. 9) Hundreds of thousands of people in the Greater Columbus area viewed or received information about adult literacy. 10) An increase in the number of companies participating in adult literacy at various levels, and 11) a well-known celebrity has agreed to be the literacy spokesperson for our community.

Product or Training Developed:

1. A Three-Year Plan
2. A promotion document, Illiteracy and the Future of Columbus
3. A movie theatre slide for recruitment of volunteers and students
4. A major community-wide fundraiser has been institutionalized
5. An electronic mail system connected to all literacy agencies

The Literacy Initiative

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:

The major events for public awareness have been institutionalized and will continue on a yearly basis. A great deal was learned from the first Cafe Glitz. A significant increase in literacy awareness and resources is anticipated from future events. TLI will have major responsibility for the Great Grown-Up Spelling Bee, which was previously coordinated by Olsten Staffing Services and the Columbus Dispatch. TLI anticipates continued and expanded corporate support from local companies interested in participating in the workplace project. A grant has been submitted and received from ODE for 1995 which will assist TLI to continue working with the literacy service providers and other groups and/or organizations with an interest in adult literacy.

Conclusions/Recommendations:

This was a year of many changes for TLI. There is a new board structure and new board leadership, with exciting things planned for the future. For the first time TLI now has staff support. For much of last year there were only two people in the office. In August we were able to hire an administrative secretary/receptionist. In September a new Hotline Manager was hired. Plans are underway to hire a Systems Services Coordinator for the workplace project in the first quarter of 1995.

Recommendations:

* continue to identify specific funding for coordinating agencies
*support the development of a state-wide group of coordinating program directors so that we can exchange information and share ideas and resources
*develop coordinated marketing state-wide

Additional Comments: Two of the TLI staff moved on to other positions in the literacy community. Laura Whitcher is now Executive Director of the Franklinton Learning Center and Rick McIntosh is Coordinator of the Southeast ABLE Regional Resource Center. TLI is proud of their accomplishments and the fact that it provided a basis for upward promotion in the literacy field.

TLI appreciates the opportunity to be a part of the ABLE grant process. This grant has made it possible to concentrate on the coordination of activities. The ODE staff has been extremely helpful and supportive.

Purpose:

The project outcomes focused upon include:

1) strengthening planning and coordinating processes by adding two agency members and publishing an agency evaluation manual for members on meeting Ohio Program Quality Indicators;

2) improving leadership, joint planning and coordination skills among state managers by making available its agency evaluation manual and publishing descriptive brochures on two awareness/fund raising strategies;

3) identifying unmet adult literacy needs and providing resources to meet those needs by installing Time to Read at two additional sites, supplying new books for students, seeking funding for a Family Dyslexia Center, and maintaining a pilot dyslexia program;

4) continuing services to the LNGC service providers by providing an ongoing tutor training program, publishing a tutor reference manual, conducting a multifaceted awareness campaign, and recruiting, training and placing additional tutors.
Project Outcomes:

Four agencies became members of LNGC
33 page manual, "Indicators of Program Quality" was field tested and revised, will be available for distribution in January, 1995
Brochures describing the LNGC/Rotary Club community involvement model and the Scripps Howard Spelling Bee fund raising model are available for distribution as of 12/31/94
Five provider meetings
Distribution of 2300 books obtained from the Cincinnati Post to provider members and students
Funds to open a Family Dyslexia Center were not obtained from UW &CC; a new funding effort has been initiated through a Cincinnati business community advisory committee
Scottish Rite dyslexia learning center continues to operate at North Fairmont C.C.
Tutors attended training sessions - Orientation - 19, Writing - 5, Basic Tutor Training - 94, Time to Read - 54
The Time Warner New Install Campaign doubled the number of volunteers calling in to become tutors (100 recruits)
377 contacts with tutors, 172 trained, 68 placed

Impact:

Summary evaluation tallies of the LNGC workshops conducted by the Tutor Training Coordinator are part of the full report. See above for more details

Product or Training Developed:

1. Indicators of Program Quality Reference Manual
2. Sample packet containing Scripps Howard Spelling Bee information brochures, script for Recognition Dinner
3. Sample packet containing Rotary Literacy Ambassadors to Business (LAB) video, presentation script, slide masters

Products are Available From:
Nona Stricker, Executive Director (see address above)

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:
The project has been approved for funding in FY 1995 by the Ohio Department of Education. New initiatives include formation of Collaboration Team to recommend/implement three strategies for improved coordination and the seeking of alternative funding through the corporate community for a family dyslexia center.

Conclusions/Recommendations:
This project continues to provide an essential literacy service in the greater Cincinnati area. Its activities have increased the number of trained tutors available to its provider members, provided an essential link between potential students and providers, obtained a variety of untapped resources for literacy, and made the area public keenly aware of the literacy problem. Funding of the literacy office itself continues to be a problem, diverting valuable staff time from literacy advocacy, training, and information and referral to fundraising - just to keep the office open. Therefore, it is recommended that state funding be continued and expanded in future years.
Grant Recipient: Maplewood Area Joint Vocational School
Program Name: Adult Literacy Planning and Coordination
Portage County Literacy Coalition
Grant Allocation: $20,000.00
Project Period: January 1, 1994 - December 31, 1994
Program Director: Helen Jane Wilson
Maplewood Area JVS
7075 St. Rt. 88
Ravenna, Ohio 44266
(216) 296-2892

Purpose: To increase student enrollment in Portage County literacy programs by assisting prospective students with identifying and removing barriers to participation; to increase the yield of GED test takers from all students who are eligible for and apply to take the GED test; and to increase awareness of literacy issues in the general community and promote interagency communication about literacy services using alternative media methods.

Project Outcomes:
* 307 total prospective students reported
* 183 (60%) total prospective students contacted
* 49 (36%) prospective students contacted have enrolled
* 112 students received GED waiver form and were eligible to take the GED test
* 63 (56%) of GED applicants were contacted
* 33 (52%) of those contacted have taken GED test
* 30 (48%) of those contacted have not taken GED/mailed application
Impact:

- Four newsletters were produced (quarterly), 500 copies were distributed.
- Production of public awareness video; shown at variety of events.

How contact influenced the students’ decision to participate/enroll was provided on the Entry Survey Forms used to register all students. All students contacted reported the positive influence of the intake counselor. Feedback from the counselor is summarized in GED Follow-up Summary provided in the full report.

The PCLC received six new monetary donations from businesses and community members.

Students expressed excitement about seeing their writings in the newsletters; the mailing list grows as demands for the newsletters increase.

A high quality videotape has been produced; feedback has been positive.

Product or Training Developed:

Four newsletters; video tape

Products are Available From:

Helen Jane Wilson
(address above)
The mailing list for the newsletter is updated quarterly and welcomes new subscribers.

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:

The secretary continues to take referral calls and has been trained to give necessary information about literacy services; a career contact counselor has been hired under the 1995 Demonstration Grant project to assist the GED students with furthering their education; the newsletter will continue and plans are underway to publish a book of student writings in the summer of 1995; and the video tape will be shown at future events.

Conclusions/Recommendations:

The project has done very well to inform all areas of the community of what services are provided. The project has demonstrated the caring assistance and support the coalition can provide in order to remove barriers for the potential participants and GED applicants. The project is important to the PCLC as it addresses the needs of the PCLC that were identified during the strategic planning process.

It continues to be very difficult to involve the Kent City Schools ABLE Program in the activities of the PCLC and the planning and coordination projects. Every effort has been made to enlist their support, participation and cooperation with little or no response. The Kent ABLE program should once again be a part of the Maplewood JVS ABLE program where growth can continue with a cost effective program that helps adults to help themselves become employable, productive and responsible citizens.

Program Director: Karen Scheid
Ohio Literacy Network
1500 West Lane Avenue
Columbus, Ohio 43221
(614) 486-7757

Purpose: The Information and Referral project of the Ohio Literacy Network (OLN) was funded to expand volunteer and adult learner recruitment efforts through public awareness initiatives; to collect and make available resource information that assists programs in local communities establish and expand literacy services; to identify programs currently offering literacy services throughout Ohio; and to promote collaboration among literacy providers in an effort to leverage the limited resources that have been earmarked for adult literacy.

Project Outcomes: * Promotion of the hotline number through press releases, television & radio public service announcements, and special promotions; production and release of new set of cartoon ads produced by syndicated Ohio-based cartoonists; donation of over $150,000 of free newspaper advertising space to the running of the first two series of ads released in 1992 & 93
* Maintenance of files and database of resource information which serve as source of background information for press releases and articles that OLN produces for the quarterly newsletter, The Literacy Communicator, and monthly newsletter, OLN Member/News.

* Collection of information for use in updating the 1993-94 version of the Directory of Adult Literacy Programs in the State of Ohio; collection of information about available family literacy programs in the state.

Impact:

During 1994, 760 inquiries were made to the information and referral services. Forty-two percent of these calls were from individuals desiring to volunteer in a local literacy program; 38% from adults seeking information about enrolling in programs; and the remaining 20% of calls were resource related. The 1994 call volume increased 67% over 1993 levels.

The 1993-94 version of the Directory of Adult Literacy Programs in the State of Ohio continued to be made available as a referral tool to local literacy programs, libraries, OBES employment offices, correction facilities, and a variety of social service agencies around the state.

OLN staff worked with OBES to design a survey form to be distributed to employers to collect further information about workplace programs. OBES has responsibility for printing and distributing the form. When the information is collected, it will be compiled into a directory format.
Product or Training Developed:
Directory of Adult Literacy Programs in Ohio; cartoon ads that, with permission, may be used on local programs for promotional materials; press releases; and PSA's

Products are Available From:
Karen Scheid (see address above)

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:
An application for continued funding for the hotline through 1995 has been approved by ODE. The Ohio Electric Utility Institute has once again pledged $6,000 for use to support the hotline during the upcoming year.

Conclusions/Recommendations:
Due to the promotional mix that we continue to pursue, calls to the hotline have steadily increased and are becoming less dependent on any one form of promotion. It goes without saying that the more resources that can be brought to bear on promotion, the more calls that will be generated. The OLN will continue to seek funds from foundations and other private sources to increase call volume and pursue additional literacy program information collection initiatives that contribute to coordination and collaboration.

Additional Comments:
This project represents a good example of public and private collaboration. The Special Demonstration and Training Grant provides the major funding source for the project, but direct and indirect contributions from the private sector such as the $6,000 grant from the Ohio Electric Utility Institute, enrich and expand the impact of the project.
Grant Recipient: Project READ, c/o Sinclair Community College
Program Name: Adult Literacy Planning and Coordination Project READ

Purpose: To support literacy providers through joint planning and coordination efforts; to increase the overall effectiveness of the delivery of literacy services in the Dayton area. Key people: Mark Willis, President and Karla Hibbert-Jones, Director.
Project Outcomes: 1) An effective forum for literacy providers and other concerned parties to share information and work together on literacy efforts. 2) A telephone Helpline provides information and referral. 3) Development of resources to meet the needs of adults with learning disabilities. 4) Project READ organized 4 literacy providers to collaborate in providing services in Dayton at the Good Neighbor House, a project of the Urban Ministry of the Seventh Day Adventists. 5) Through the efforts of the coalition's VISTA Volunteer, Deborah Newton, two adult literacy students have been identified.
to serve on the marketing committee and coalition.
6) an updated list of area classes for students and volunteers shared with local JOBS program, JTPA and several other organizations interested in making referrals for their clients, including the OLN.
7) Development of resources to support Project READ's operating budget.
8) Four new members joined the coalition.
9) Coordination of 2 meetings of the Mayor's Commission on Adult Literacy.
10) In conjunction with the Dept. of Labor, OBES, the Mayor's Commission, and Coalition members, began planning a Workforce Basics Seminar for area businesses.
11) One workplace literacy training program for facilitators held; one planned.
12) Several meetings of ESL providers were held to begin networking & joint planning.
13) Facilitated the implementation of the Gateway Grant by working with the Housing Authority and several literacy providers.
14) Initiated a program where coupons for free Subway sandwiches are provided to low level readers that meet short-term goals.
15) Development of the role of "Learner Advisor" for ABLE programs to employ to improve student retention rate.
16) Meetings were held with representatives of several correctional facilities to develop a literacy and GED program at the Montgomery County Jail.
17) Involvement of businesses in recruiting volunteers and students through signs on public transit and the "Food for Thought" campaign, where area restaurants displayed table tents.
18) Participation in Self-Sufficiency meetings.

19) An evaluation of the satisfaction level of coalition members was conducted.

* An effective forum resulted in a stronger coalition with increased membership and involvement; literacy providers increased their knowledge about other people and resources in the community.
* An effective Help line service allowed us to respond to 366 Help line callers in 1994. This reduces the need for individual organizations to expend resources on their own recruiting and marketing campaigns.
* A learning style assessment, developed a couple of years ago by coalition members, was improved. A reading comprehensive component was added, and people from four organizations were trained to use the learning style kit.
* The joint services to be offered next year to the public at no cost at the Good Neighbor House are more comprehensive than any one organization could have provided.
* Students in significant, active roles will have influence and decision making power concerning coalition activities, particularly in the marketing plan. Students' first-hand input is expected to improve our marketing activities and to help us reach more of our target audience.
* The distribution of "up-to-date listings" of resources allows more organizations to make appropriate referrals for their clients on a regular basis.
* Sufficient operating funds allow Project READ to concentrate more on collaborative efforts and less on fund-raising activities.
* New coalition members add diversity, ensuring that literacy providers can collectively meet all the special needs of adult literacy students.
* The Mayor's Commission on Adult Literacy provides increased communication and understanding among businesses and providers. It also helps raise awareness and support of literacy issues.
* Communication and networking among organizations; the seminar, to be held in March 1995, is expected to educate 100 business representatives concerning the design and implementation of basic skills enhancement programs.
* Increased knowledge of workforce literacy issues among instructors and directors.
* The ESL providers gained more information about each others programs and improved the referral process among themselves; this resulted in a decrease in the waiting list.
* Through a new staffing agreement, the Gateway Grant was implemented and served students in a public housing complex.
* the Subway Initiative Program provided some students with a small reward for accomplishing their goal.
* The impact will be assessed in 1995 through a demonstration project awarded to Project READ members, the Miami Valley Literacy Council and the Miami Valley Career Technology Center.
* The meetings concerning development of a literacy program in the Montgomery Co. Jail generated enough interest to attempt to find funding for this project in 1995.
* The general community gained greater awareness of literacy through projects implemented through the business community.
* Involvement in the Self-Sufficiency Task Force led to planning a public awareness campaign to decrease the stigma associated with having poor basic skills.
* The leadership of the Coalition has feedback from its members about its strengths and weaknesses; an evaluation tool for future use by this and other interested coalitions.

Product or Training Developed:

1. Tool to evaluate the effectiveness of Coalition activities
2. Learning Style Assessment with a comprehensive component
3. Table tents and posters used to recruit volunteers and students in "Food For Thought" campaign and on public transit.
4. Public Awareness plan
5. Updated lists of all free programs in 3 county area
6. Project READ Annual Report

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:

The grant provided the coalition with one third of its operating budget and made it possible for coalition leadership to secure other resources to support coalition activities. The coalition is critical to strengthening the efforts of ABLE providers. The ODE is commended for recognizing this and funding coalition activities.

Conclusion s/ Recommendations:

Coalition activities need to be continued to assist literacy providers to develop solutions to their common problems and increase their service capacity and effectiveness.
Grant Recipient: Learning Organizations in Community, Inc. (LOCI) (Formerly The Workforce Basics Consortium)

Program Name: Adult Literacy Planning and Coordination Enhance Workplace Learning

Grant Allocation: $20,000.00

Project Period: January 1, 1994 - December 31, 1994

Program Director: Meg Freeling
LOCI
1445 Broadview Ave.
Columbus, Ohio 43212

Purpose: This process helps a work organization build a learning infrastructure that 1) establishes learning as a core business function, and 2) enables the organizations and its employees to continually design and manage their own learning, using both internal and external resources.

LOCI has worked with a medium-sized construction company to pilot a process for empowering employees to assess, design and implement their own comprehensive learning program, using both internal and outside instructional resources. The Learning Design Team began meeting in June and met every two weeks following a four-phase process:

Project Outcomes:

A. Created enthusiasm for learning - 88% of the company's 126 employees volunteered to participate in the learning program.
B. Created a comprehensive learning program - full participation in the learning

Impact:

The 88% response rate to this voluntary learning program is a key indicator to the Learning Design Team that their program design efforts are on target. Evaluation of the 1st cycle of learning activities will be compiled at the completion of the winter quarter learning activities. This data will be used to plan the second learning cycle scheduled for winter 1996.

Product or Training Developed:

Dissemination of this model for enhancing workplace learning will happen slowly and carefully. LOCI will implement the Learning Design Team process in two additional organizations in 1995.
Presentations will be made to company leaders and others involved in improving workplace learning opportunities. In 1996, LOCI representatives will coach a few other individuals and groups to play the LOCI function of a neutral, whole-systems facilitator. Meanwhile, there are plans to write several short articles on this process.

Products are Available From:

Articles on this process can be ordered after April 1, 1995, from LOCI (address above).

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:

This project was originally proposed as an 18-month process. It will end up being a 2-year process. The second learning cycle will go through the winter of 1996. At that point, the Learning Design Team will have become an ongoing infrastructure for learning that can assess, design, implement and monitor the company’s learning in a way that keeps it aligned with both front line needs and business goals and strategies.

Conclusions/Recommendations:

This project demonstrates the capacity of people, working together from all levels of an organization, to design its own learning program, given the appropriate conditions, support and encouragement. It also makes learning a core business strategy that can help the company grow. This means the company can create new jobs, and the people who fill those jobs will receive quality training.

1. This kind of program must enter the company through the door of the CEO.
2. Find a small to medium-sized company that does not have a pre-existing learning infrastructure in place.
3. There needs to be an individual or group that can play the function of a neutral, whole-systems facilitator who can a) help the company design its own comprehensive learning program, b) link them to local resources, and c) help them train their own people to train.

Additional Comments: Unique features of this Enhanced Workplace Learning Process:

* creates an internal structure for learning that can receive both learners and instructors
* driven by the user
* starts from the whole
* learning includes more than classes
* Learning Design Team models team learning
* Learning Design Team stays in control of its own learning program
* learning facilitators don't come into an educational vacuum
* flexibility, responsiveness, accountability, and personal initiative providing effective training, and follow-up support for our volunteer tutors. Efforts will be enhanced to maintain a link with students to encourage completion of their educational goals and entrance into a GED preparation program.

Conclusions/Recommendations: The literacy component is a strong and integral part of the local ABLE program, providing the individual assistance our low-level readers need in order to progress successfully to the next level in ABLE. We will continue to improve the quality of our literacy component, interaction between other regional literacy tutor programs, sharing ideas and strategies which have proven effective. Since changing legislation and requirements are being directed to social agencies, ongoing communications and joint coordination are essential to maintain an effective program to meet the needs of the targeted population in the county.

Additional Comments: Our local advisory board, made up of representatives from businesses and social agencies, provides the program with guidance and support within our community. We are continually updating and strengthening our literacy program in order to effectively meet the needs of area readers.

Implementation practices of adult educators are being analyzed to learn which significant practices have been used successfully around the nation and world. Based on this investigative research, the project will develop a manual outlining ideas for implementing the Ohio Indicators of Program Quality. Five major tasks are associated with this effort: 1) develop a research plan; 2) collect information; 3) develop the manual; 4) disseminate information about the manual; and 5) evaluate the manual and project. The project is housed at the Center on Education and Training for Employment (CETE) under the direction of Susan Imel. Grant Recipient: Warren City Schools

Program Name: Adult Literacy Planning and Coordination Warren-Trumbull Adult Literacy Council

Grant Allocation: $20,000.00

Project Period: January 1, 1994 - December 31, 1994

Program Director: Mark R. Leiby
1470 South Street
Warren, Ohio 44483
(216) 841-2272 Fax: 395-4578

Purpose: To continue supporting and expanding literacy efforts in the area as well as operating recruitment and training process for adult literacy volunteers, sharing information with the community, determining sources and availability of additional resources to support the literacy effort.

Project Outcomes: We have been able to increase the number of volunteer tutors who have been trained in our program by 30%. Although the actual number of individuals served declined for the first time, we have been able to serve an increased number of low-level readers individually and within the ABLE class situation. We have raised the awareness within the county as to the scope and availability of our services to help those in need of individual reading assistance supported by a telephone log kept during the month of September. Fall figures support an increase in the number of students being served.

The coordinator maintained contact with community agencies, industries, and school
Impact:

During the past year, our literacy program has reached over 229 adults. Of the 229 participants, 82 made the transition into a Pre-GED and/or GED program, 35 of this group took the GED exam, and 22 received their GED Diploma. Since Warren's school dropout rate is nearly 25%, we have worked hard to increase our ability to assist many of the low level readers in the county. Also, we are having a positive impact on many of the area's 10% unemployed who are desiring to raise their reading levels and prepare for job retraining by offering individual assistance.

Product or Training Developed:

The tutor training program was enhanced to better meet the needs of the local program. Five separate training programs were provided throughout the year for over 75 new tutors. In addition, mini staff development components were held to assist tutors with their students, focusing on writing, reading or math skills for their students.

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:

We will continue to recruit both students and volunteer tutors by increasing community awareness of our program,
Project Outcomes: During 1994 the following activities occurred. An advisory board was recruited and a research plan was developed. This plan was reviewed. In addition, information collection began. The information collection was carried out by two different methods. Staff at CETE are concentrating on existing databases for information while the staff member at the Ohio Literacy Resource Center is using personal contact.

There are no final project outcomes at this time.

Impact: None available at this time.

Product or Training Available: None at this date.

Products are Available From: Not applicable

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications: Project received a no-cost extension until May 31, 1995, to complete activities.

Conclusions/Recommendations: None at this time but will be included in the final report.

Additional Comments: This project has encountered a number of difficulties including a late start that caused a delay in initiation of project activities. Combining two separate proposals, CETE and OLRC into one project required extra negotiations and therefore, the project was not actually initiated until June 1994. Staff at CETE and OLRC have communicated via e-mail, fax, telephone, and regular mail.
Although the idea of combining two proposals may have been good in theory, for this size of activity (in terms of funding), it has caused problems. Work on this project is well underway, however, and we expect that it will be completed within the time period. At that time, a complete final project report will be submitted that will include information in all categories.

Purpose:
Innovative Practices in ESL
The purpose of this project was to bring together a team of ESL teachers to develop a simple, reproducible manual on phonetics. Because so many ABLE ESL teachers are not certified in the field or do not have foreign language training, phonetics is slighted in the ESL classroom. Teachers often don't know how to address the problems of accent reduction and linguistic interference. The manual is designed to simplify English phonetics so the basic elements can be easily and routinely used in the classroom. The manual has five sections: basic overview of phonetics; reproducible classroom exercises of the individual sounds of English; a brief overview of 20 common languages; 20 corresponding reproducible, language-specific exercises; and sample activities to practice pronunciation in the classroom.

Project Outcomes:

Innovative Practices in ESL
The planned outcomes of this project were:
* to teach teachers to teach students the fundamentals of language production
* to provide teachers with a simple, reproducible product that can be used on a continental basis
* to fill the gap in professional ESL training
* to recognize master teachers and afford them the opportunity to participate in the development of useful, practical teaching methods and tools

Tips and techniques on using the manual have been presented as training and/or carousels at four different conferences. Response has been good. A follow-up survey was included with each manual to extend the collaborative effort of the project.

Language Bridge Pilot
Students are losing their fear of communication in English. They are recognizing and understanding words and concepts covered in class and applying them to new situations. For example, they are becoming aware of many new concepts when heard on television or seen in a newspaper.

On Speaking Terms: A Practical Guide to Pronunciation for ABLE and ESL Teachers was developed and distributed through training and by request to any director who requested a copy for his/her program. Technical assistance is ongoing.

Language Bridge Pilot

Based on current information the program is very successful. In March of 1995 the project will begin a second section of Language Bridge instruction which will meet one time each week. At that time an exploration of the value of the method as a home study program will take place.

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:

Copies of the manual, On Speaking Terms: A Practical Guide to Pronunciation for ABLE and ESL Teachers and technical assistance are available.
After the home-study phase of the Language Bridge Pilot, the program should be tested in a class with a mixture of language backgrounds. A "generic" version of the Language Bridge text which could be used in the class should be available during the summer of 1995. If this class is successful, training can be developed for teachers who wish to use the method in other programs.

Conclusions/Recommendations:

Innovative Practices in ESL
The collaborative efforts of this project were successful. A team approach to ESL training development will continue. Not only was a professional, usable product developed, but also teachers responded positively to the opportunity to contribute professionally and to be paid for their efforts.

Language Bridge Pilot
All seventeen students involved have made excellent progress (proportionate to the amount of time spent on studying) in speaking, listening, and writing skills. This is documented in improved test scores and also anecdotal evidence and writing samples.

Curriculum Guides will be available after June, 1995. Details on process for distribution to be developed in collaboration with ODE.

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:

The project has been extended through June 30, 1995, to allow time for pilot projects and completion of the guide. At that time further elaboration on future implications can be made. There may be a need for in-service/training throughout the state in the use of the guide.
Conclusions/Recommendations: It appears that very positive results are developing from this project. It has been an interesting, arduous, and rewarding endeavor. Further conclusions and recommendations can be presented following completion of the pilot projects.

Additional Comments: Thanks to ODE for its patience in this monumental task.

Purpose: To develop a transition program that moves students from the community based literacy program into the ABLE classroom, and to share this concept and encourage its implementation in similar programs.

Project Outcomes: Transition program implemented to date:
* 18 students enrolled, 5 moved to Hamilton City School ABLE, 3 obtained employment, 2 dropped out (personal problems), 2 currently enrolled at literacy site, 6 students currently attend classes at literacy program and Hamilton City ABLE.

* Advisory council met to discuss overall plan & specific needs - teams of literacy and ABLE providers attended from Butler, Clermont, Hamilton, and Warren Counties. Preble Co. was subsequently invited to participate.
* Workshop I held June 29, 1994, to assist teams to design their own transition program - 14 in attendance

* Phase II is in process

Impact:

Workshop II planned for April, 1995

Product or Training Developed:
Sample training will be developed after Workshop II.

Products are Available From:
None available at this time.

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:
A continuation of this project would be advisable. This is a relatively new concept in programming. It benefits students, literacy programs, and the ABLE classroom. The opportunity to see how it evolves would be beneficial to all.

Conclusions/Recommendations:
Setting up this type of program is not without its problems, those which are similar to all ABLE programs. However, working through these problems is definitely worth it.

<td>Purpose:</td>
<td>This project was created and managed by BASICS Coordinator (Adult Education) Carolyn Gross. After hearing of the Foxfire teaching method at the Burr C--k Appalachian Conference in 1993, which was used only in K-12 in seventeen states, she saw this as a method that could be adapted for use with the Adult Education student. The Foxfire approach is a way to create active, collaborative, learner-centered classrooms that connect with their communities, produce real work, and stress academic integrity. Foxfire is based on eleven Core Practices which reflect the latest in collective thinking about the principles and practices characteristic of the method's approach to instruction.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Project Outcomes:</td>
<td>1. To establish the first Foxfire Network in the country for adult students. 2. Host a four day conference for 30 ABLE Appalachian instructors in August 1994, in Southeastern Ohio.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
3. Create printed, computer disk and video reference materials for the 30 conference participants and for the four ABLE Regional Resource Centers.

4. To provide support to teachers interested in using this approach with adult education students.

Impact:

Twenty-two ABLE instructors and coordinators from five counties in southern Ohio are now using the Foxfire Method in their classrooms impacting over 1,000 adult learners. Three projects and their evaluations are included in the full report.

Product or Training Developed:

A training video and manual were developed at the conference in August 1994, and are the first steps in training ABLE teacher-trainers. During the 1995 continuation year, trainers from the Kentucky and Georgia K-12 programs will again be used until the five Ohio teachers can complete the work toward their certifications as Foxfire Foundation trainers.

Products are Available From:

Carolyn Gross
(see address above)

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:

This was a first in a series of immersion years for the ODE into the radically different adult education teaching method which was begun in the 1960’s and then used for 25 years in the K-12 systems. Three additional training workshops will be held during the 1995 grant period. Therefore, nearly 50 Ohio ABLE teachers will have spent up to 100 hours each of instruction, and five teacher-trainers will be certified under these two grants.

Conclusions/Recommendations: As a network, the first group of ABLE teachers trained in the Foxfire Method met three times from May, 1994 - November, 1994 for training and sharing ideas and project attempts. Internet and faxing communication was also utilized to keep everyone "networking."

Additional Comments: The program director found that training ABLE teachers to become the first Adult Education Foxfire Network in the entire country to be challenging and even invigorating. All workshop participants were eager to learn the method and ecstatic about trying out their new-found knowledge.
Grant Recipient: Project: LEARN of Summit County
Program Name: Cultural Diversity
Grant Allocation: $20,000.00
Project Period: January 1, 1994 - December 31, 1994
Program Director: Barbara Norton
72 S. High Street
Akron, Ohio 44308
(216) 434-9461

Purpose: To foster a better understanding of the cultural diversity that exists in ABLE classrooms and tutoring situations, and by doing so, foster better teaching and learning practices.

Project Outcomes: The result of this project was the production of a Handbook for Teachers of Culturally Diverse Classrooms (adult populations), as well as a training video designed to serve as supplement and as a workshop activity. The material was presented at a workshop in Columbus, Ohio, (September 1994) during the Ohio Literacy Network Annual Conference. The feedback was positive, and several program administrators expressed interest in additional training.

There are four resources: the Handbook itself, the 4-part video series, a trainer's guide for the handbook, and worksheet and summaries for the videos.

Impact: The introductory presentation at the OLN conference was rated very favorably by the participants. The objective evaluations averaged 4.8 (on a 5.0 scale) for criteria such as "relevance to the field", "appropriate for intended population", and "useful for classroom tutors and teachers." Further evaluative data will be collected and processed as participants utilize the manual and videos.

Product or Training Developed:
The handbook and video series are designed to be used together. Questions that are not answered in that context can be relayed to the author via mail, telephone, or E-mail, all of which will be provided with the materials. In addition to the materials, summaries have been created so that the participants will be able to apply the concepts to their local programs.

Products are Available From:
Copies of the manual, the video series, worksheets and summaries will be available from the four regional resource centers, as well as from Project: LEARN of Summit Co.

Project Continuation and/or Future Implications:
As stated previously, feedback from the participants will be collected and evaluated to be included in a final report during the fourth quarter of the year (1995).

Conclusions/Recommendations:
The project has met with a great deal of positive reaction, although it is in its infancy. The combination of text, video, and additional applicative activities suggest that it will be very user-friendly. If the materials continue to receive positive support, other topics may be considered for further exploration.

Request for Proposals #2
Special Demonstration Project: FY 1994

Project: ABLE Support Staff Training Workshop

Need: The support staff of any organization is its backbone. Many times, however, training activities are only provided for "professional staff" ignoring the needs and critical role that the support staff plays with all the customers of an organization.

Aside from all the traditional roles the ABLE support person must perform, ABLE programs demand even more specific technical knowledge along with the need to develop very sensitive interpersonal skills in dealing with our unique population with its many cultural diversities.

Purpose: To provide ABLE support staff the opportunity to expand their knowledge, skills, and understanding of ABLE related issues.

Minimum Objectives:

2. Plan and conduct a two-day workshop for up to 120 persons which addresses the following topics:

   a. Refresher on basic secretarial skills;
   b. Introduction of new concepts in secretarial science;
   c. Time management;
   d. ABLE funding, grants, and fiscal information;
   e. ABLE philosophy and goals;
   f. Selected literacy issues;
   g. Conference and workshop management;
   h. ABLE reporting requirements;

Special Demonstration Project: FY 1994

Project: Beyond Ourselves: Effective ABLE Practices Worldwide

Need: Many effective practices as well as solutions to very perplexing problems lie beyond the borders of Ohio. Due to a lack of adequate funding, time, and knowledge of effective research methodologies, we often allow these resources to remain untapped.

Purpose: To provide ABLE providers, state consultants, and resource center staff, a manual outlining ideas for successfully implementing the Ohio Indicators of Program Quality by researching and adapting successful ABLE practices from around the nation and world.

Minimum Objectives:

1. Develop a solid practical research plan which uses Ohio's 10 Indicators of Program Quality as a basis for research.

2. Develop a resource guide which:
   a. is organized by indicator topic;
   b. identifies the topic, offers a description of the method, tells how the method is used in its native country or state, outlines the most effective environment for implementation as well as limitations, identified materials equipment and classroom set-up required, and describes a recommended plan to adapt the idea to Ohio's ABLE programs;
   c. provides information about how the ABLE system is organized, evaluated, and funded.

Meet Our Keynote Speakers

Noreen Lopez is the State Director of Adult Education, Division of Adult, Vocational and Technical Education, State Board of Education in Illinois. She is the founder and past chair of the National Adult Education Professional Development Consortium, Inc. Noreen serves on the Board of Directors of the National Council of State Directors of Adult Education. Most impressively she is a former Adult Education teacher and local program director. Noreen intends to share her philosophy on Adult Education during her morning presentation.

Ron Gillum currently serves as the State Director, Office of Adult Extended Learning, Michigan Department of Education and has held this position for 13 years. During his 24 year tenure with the Michigan Department of Education he has served as deputy director Adult Extended Learning, director of Occupational Education Programs and an education consultant for Compensatory and Secondary Education Programs. Ron also served as a teacher and administrator for the Detroit Public Schools for 7 years.

Ron earned his B.S. degree from Western Michigan University and Masters and Doctorate from Wayne University in Detroit, Michigan. Ron's personal and professional contribution to adult education/literacy were recognized by President Bush; in 1992 he was appointed to the Board of Directors of the National Institute for Literacy. He was also elected to the Board of Directors for the American Association for Adult and Continuing Education (AAACE).

Ron credits his philosophy of education to his mentor, the late Ron Edmonds who stated, "As Educators: We can, whenever and wherever we choose, successfully teach all children (adults) whose schooling is of interest to us. We already know more than we need to do that. Whether or not we do it must finally depend on how we feel about the fact that we haven't so far."
