ABSTRACT

In an effort to relate academic skills with workplace skills and facilitate the transition from school to work, the Community College of Rhode Island developed a skill-based instructional model targeted at 9th through 12th graders and consisting of 6 instructional areas, or strands, and 31 related skills. This guide provides suggested activities for the skills and includes sample handouts and assignment sheets. The activities are organized by the following six strands: (1) career occupational skills, focusing on developing awareness of diverse careers and prerequisites, preparing an academic program reflective of the career choice, and job search strategies; (2) personal skills which examines essential personal attributes and their interplay with career development and develops a personal work ethic and critical thinking skills; (3) interpersonal relationships, including developing language mechanics, identifying leadership styles, exploring conflict resolution, and developing an awareness, understanding, and appreciation of diverse cultures; (4) applied technology skills, focusing on information access, information analysis, and computer literacy; (5) understanding and working through systems, providing a working knowledge of government/political systems, social systems, economic systems, and organizational structures such as union development; and (6) critical thinking process skills, identifying a school or community problem and proposing solutions. For each skill, an overview is provided and information is presented on a suggested time in the lesson plan for addressing the skill, the target grade level, and objectives. (TGI)

Career Occupational Skills
SKILL 1 — Exploration

Overview: To develop an awareness of diverse careers in the workplace and the prerequisites essential to career preparation as well as job placement

Time: Day One

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives: To explore varied careers and the personal/professional prerequisites required

To share with others (peers and parents) career choices/preferences

To understand the process of career selection/s

To appreciate the personal choices and decisions that will be made in pursuing career choices

To exhibit a willingness and commitment to pursue career choice

Activities: The student will:

Research career choice/s through a library exhibit developed by teachers, guidance counselors, and librarians

Complete questionnaire regarding job prerequisites (see attachment)

Enter comments for questionnaire completion in journals for future references

Form small groups representative of career choices and begin to develop a chart of career choice and the prerequisites

For homework, select a picture which characterizes career choices and write a two-sentence caption
Discuss with parents/peers what career/s have been chosen

Materials:
- Library exhibit of career materials
- Questionnaire
- Journals
- Charts
- Magazines/newspapers for picture selection

Assessment:
- Class discussion
- Small group participation
- Questionnaire
- Journal entry
- Chart development
- Homework: picture and caption writing
- Parent/peer discussion
CAREER CHOICE QUESTIONNAIRE

Name:

1. What career/s are you interested in?

2. Why are you selecting this/these careers?

3. What prerequisites do you think are required for this/these careers? List them below.

4. Do you feel that your career choices are compatible with your abilities and interests? If so, how?

5. Have you been interested in this/these careers for a short or long period of time? Circle one.

   Comments:

6. List five steps that you should take to begin your career preparation.

SKILL-BUILDING ACTIVITIES GUIDE
Career Occupational Skills

Skill 1 — Exploration
Skill 2 — Planning

Overview: To develop a career choice that demonstrates essential know-how, skills, and abilities needed for job placement

Time: Day Two

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives: To determine a career choice that correlates with aptitude, personality, and future job placement.

To develop a willingness to pursue career choice

To realize that career preparation is a lengthy process requiring commitment and preparation

To determine whether career choice will result in job acquisition in the 21st century

To realize that more than one career choice could be made in a lifetime

Activities: The student will:

Large-Group Discussion

Respond to teacher's question as to career choice

Volunteer to share with peers picture and caption of career choice

Read from journal the answers to career choice questionnaire

Answer peer questions about career choice, such as reasons for career choice, workplace demand for career choice, and educational requirements for selected career

Small-Group Activities

Divide into career-cluster groups according to choices

SKILL-BUILDING ACTIVITIES GUIDE
Draw a diagram of the choices around a career cluster
Create a collage from career pictures
Select a speaker to present diagram and collage

Large–Group Presentations

Present career cluster diagrams and collages
Write down peer questions asked from diagram and collage presentations
For homework, complete the handout on short- and long-term goals for career choice

Materials:
- Questionnaire
- Journal
- Picture/caption
- Diagram
- Collage
- Goal Handout

Assessment:

Career Occupational Skills

Skill 1 — Exploration
Skill 2 — Planning

Overview: To identify long-term and short-term career (occupational) goals and develop a career ladder exhibiting time and goal acquisition

Time: Day Three
Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives:
- To identify long-term and short-term goals for career choice
- To develop a career ladder that correlates goals with time sequence
- To develop a source guide of career information
- To acquire inquiry skills that facilitate correct responses
- To develop patience and constancy of purpose in research activities

Activities:
The student will:
- Attend the School Career Fair to do research on career choice/s; talk with community people (business/industry representatives, service providers, etc.); and collect handouts/brochures for further study
- In Assigned Career Centers, work with teachers and community people in completing goal sheets
- After completing goal sheets, develop career ladders with time frames
- From the time frames, fill in activities: (1) interest inventory, (2) aptitude test, (3) counselor assignment and interview, and (4) individual curriculum (Grades 9–12)
- Place all information in a career portfolio
- Go to assigned work station, develop “ME” poster to

Career Occupational Skills
Skill 2 — Planning

Overview: To prepare an academic program reflective of career choice and long-range and short-range preparation

Time: Day Four

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives:

To develop an academic program that correlates academic skills with career preparation

To assess personal and academic skills in order to set realistic goals

To understand that attitude plays a major role in academic success and career attainment

To be willing to reassess career choices so that goals remain attainable

To share with others — teachers, peers, and family — assessments of academic and skill attainments

Activities:
The student will:

Complete an assessment of academic backgrounds, i.e., achievement testing, academic profile, career interest inventory, and interview

Meet individually with staff to determine academic needs and career choices

Develop an academic program that is approved by all, including family and future employer/s

Determine that final evaluation will be based upon community experience, demonstration project, and portfolio

Develop a one-year activity planner that reflects academic course work, field experience, and portfolio assessment
Write an academic contract for the first semester that meets the approval of all concerned parties.

Materials:
- Written individual assessment
- Needs assessment sheets
- Portfolio of assessment material
- One–year activity planner
- First–semester academic contract

Assessment:
- Individual counseling sessions
- Standardized testing for needs assessments
- IEP’S for disabled learners
- Preparation of academic program
- Outline of one–year activity planner
- One–semester contract learning

Personal Skills
Skill 1 – Attitude

Overview: To examine essential/personal attributes and their interplay with career development and successful placement in the workplace

Time: Days Six, Seven, and Eight

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives:
1. To know that personal perceptions reflect other people's perceptions of ourselves
2. To develop a self view by examining oneself cognitively and effectively
3. To understand that “who you are” is often “who you are becoming”
4. To realize that personal development is ongoing and affected by family, friends, and environment
5. To realize that one's personality is unique and determines career development

Activities:
The student will:

Watch a short segment of the movie, Working Girl, and answer questions regarding work habits, dress, and interrelationships

Divide into groups according to question category and complete activities assigned to those groups:

(1) Work Habits — Skit Development
(2) Dress — Design and Presentation
(3) Interrelationships — Game Playing

Develop materials assigned to each group for large class presentation. Allow for two days of class and homework.
Video tape (2–3 students) the group presentations for self-analysis and evaluation

Share presentations with another class for objective input and refinement

Ask an employer for an evaluation of group’s work relative to the workplace

Materials:
- Video of Working Girl
- Questionnaires
- Skit
- Dress design
- Game
- Employer evaluation

Assessment:
- Small- and large-class discussion
- Small-group participation/cooperation
- Film questionnaire
- Portfolio review: skit, dress design, and game
- Employer evaluation of group
WORKING GIRL QUESTIONNAIRE

Name:

Category 1: Work Habits:

1. Did the characters demonstrate work confidence? If so, name the character and how work confidence was demonstrated.

2. Select any character and cite two examples of job dependability, responsibility, and commitment.

3. What role did "team work" play in the success and/or failure of the characters' goals? You may select more than one character.
Category 2: Dress:

1. Describe in three sentences the clothing of one character:

2. Compare the dress of management with one of workforce.

3. Do you believe that dress can make the difference in job success and retention?
Category 3: Interrelationships:

1. Discuss two interrelationships that proved ineffective in job success.

2. Did team effort result in job satisfaction?

3. Is "constancy of purpose" essential to job retention?
SKIT DEVELOPMENT FOR GROUP 1

Directions: Develop a five-minute skit that involves similar characters of Working Girl and relates to the questionnaire.

In developing this skit, include characters, their actions, the scenery surrounding them, and their physical movements.

Characters:

Scene:

DRESS DESIGN FOR GROUP 2

Directions: Take the paper characters and clothing; paste them on cardboard; cut out; and select outfits for the characters. Then answer the questions on dress. These characters will be used for the skit production and video.
GAME PLAYING FOR GROUP 3

Directions: Develop a charade game that uses words to describe team work. Examples would be cooperation, sociability, respect, and helpfulness.
EMPLOYER EVALUATION OF VIDEO

Name:

1. Does this video achieve the major objectives of the teaching plan?

2. If so, what were the most effective categories: skit presentation, dress design, and/or game development?

3. Did we illustrate what personal attributes are essential to job preparation and acquisition?

4. Would you recommend how to improve our presentation? If so, please assist us.

Thank you for your involvement and input. We invite you to a follow-up round-table discussion on the video on ____________________.

Personal Skills

Skill 2 – Ethics

Overview: To develop a personal work ethic reflective of character building and contrast it with that of another — be it peer, family, friend, or community person

Time: Days Nine and Ten

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives:

To develop a personal work ethic reflective of oneself
To contrast personal work ethic with that of others
To determine if one's own work ethic “fits” with that of our peers and job management
To decide whether or not personal work ethics can be changed/modified to meet employer's requirements
To accept or reject work ethics when they conflict with our own

Activities: The student will:

In large group discussion:

Read James Finn Garner's “Cinderella,” from Politically Correct Bedtime Stories: Modern Tales for Our Life and Times

Describe the character of “Cinderella” in terms of her relationships with stepmother and stepsisters

How does “Cinderella's” work ethic prepare her for the business world?

What is the moral behind this rewritten tale? Is it realistic?
Small group activities:

Write a fictional case study that illustrates how a fated character can turn a negative into a positive through work ethics

Develop a work ethic agreed upon by the group

Apply this work ethic to the fictional character

Prepare defense of work ethic for class debate

Culminating Activities:

Consult with teacher regarding debate time and rationale

Ask for assistance in acquiring additional materials for debate defense, i.e., newspaper/journal articles

Make preparations for video-taping of debates

Materials:

Garner’s “Cinderella’s” from Politically Correct Bedtime Stories

Debate rules

Debate questionnaire

Work ethic

Newspaper/periodical readings

Assessment:

Large group discussion

Small group activities

CINDERELLA QUESTIONNAIRE

Name:

1. Describe the character of "Cinderella" as developed by Garner.

2. How does "Cinderella" relate to her stepmother and stepsisters at the beginning and end of the tale?

3. What was your reaction to the relationships between "Cinderella" and the Prince? Do you agree or disagree with the ending?

4. How does "Cinderella's" work ethic prepare her for the real world?

5. What is the moral of this revised fairy tale?
DEBATE QUESTIONNAIRE

Name:

1. In developing your case study, what is the major problem?

2. How do the characters respond to their work problem?

3. In your response, do you employ a work ethic which reflects your collective views?

4. Did you all agree that the work ethic was realistic? If so, why?

5. How does your work ethic lead to personal and/or group resolution?
DEBATE RULES

As a small group or large group activity, develop a set of rules for the debate of the group work ethics. Minimize the rules; develop those which keep you on task and within a time frame.
DEVELOPING A WORK ETHIC

Group

In fifty words, develop a work ethic that is based upon class discussions, small group activities, and personal research. Rework so that this work ethic is reflective of your personal and group views.
Overview: To examine how personal, work, and changing values affect employment situations

Time: Days Eleven and Twelve

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives:
To define what a "value" is and list values into three categories

To analyze one's value systems and how they have been organized

To determine how one's value systems have shaped their lives and personalities

To realize that one's value systems can change as they mature

To understand how people's value systems shape workplace relationships

Activities:
The student will:

Individual Assignment:
Write a one-page autobiography and draw a self-portrait

Research the news on the day she/he was born and describe how history shapes lives

Do news page of events on first birthdate

Present autobiography, self-portrait, and news page to small group of four students each

Small-Group Work:
Listen to and critique individual presentations

Put individual work on poster boards
Rotate small group stations so that all groups interact with each other’s work

Put in journal initial comments about each other’s work

Large–Group Discussion:

Select a controversial issue, i.e., welfare reform, and list the values that arise in discussion

Find two newspaper/periodical articles that present “for and against” positions

Write on worksheet the values presented in both positions (homework)

Materials:

Posterboard
Newspapers

Personal Skills
Skill 6 – Daily Living

Overview: To be health-conscious and practice healthy habits for job attendance and retention

Time: Days Thirteen and Fourteen

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives:
To understand how important good health is for job attendance and retention
To complete a health check that provides an overall self-evaluation
To determine if there are any health concerns which would affect career choice and options
To be willing to be advised on preventive health procedures
To develop a health maintenance checklist for the future
To be aware of oneself healthwise and how one's way of life affects their health

Activities:
The student will:

Attend a school health fair where there will be testing and information accessing

Use a checklist to note completed health tests, community contacted resource people, and selected informational resources

Place information handouts in file folder that lists information to be obtained

Discuss with appointed health-service leader affects of personal health reports (checklist) on career choice/s

Select the most helpful informational resources and place them in the appropriate file folder. Note the group

Personal Skills
Skill 7 – Decision-Making

Overview: To apply critical thinking skills in a simulated decision-making exercise and to test the results.

Time: Days Fourteen and Fifteen

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives:
- To know the five steps involved in the critical thinking process
- To apply critical thinking in a decision-making simulation
- To understand how decision-making is not a unilateral process
- To realize that decision-making is a lengthy process requiring group input
- To appreciate "the bottoms-up" approach vs. the "tops down" approach to decision-making in the job world

Activities:

Large-Group Activity:
View a short (fifteen minutes) film on a world issue, i.e. hunger, AIDS, nuclear war, and/or arms race
Complete the critical-thinking steps 1–5
1) define the problem
2) hypothesize
3) gather data from film
4) draw conclusions
5) make recommendations

Small-Group Activity:
Play simulation game entitled "PLANET U.S.A."
Complete critical thinking steps 1–5
Decide on course of action based upon group input
Write decision in business letter format
Submit to large group for approval

Individual Work:

Write in journals the five steps of the critical thinking process

Note personal responses to small group decisions in playing "Planet U.S.A."

Write own decision in one or two paragraphs citing reasons for self-decision

CRITICAL-THINKING PROCESS

Name:

1. Critical thinking can be defined as:

2. The first step in critical thinking is defining the problem.

3. The second step is to develop educated guesses to a particular problem.

4. Develop the data for developing a problem solution.

5. Suggest possible solutions to the problem.

6. Test the consequences of the solutions in large-group discussion.
PERSONAL DECISION-MAKING

Name:

Write a one- or two-paragraph essay on a personal decision-making choice based upon a small- and large-group decision.
"PLANET U.S.A."

You are a space settler on "PLANET U.S.A." and must decide whether or not the colony of 1,000 settlers will have a paid police force for their protection.

The scene is the main council room where 50 representatives of the settlers have been chosen to decide the question. On the left, are those who favor police protection while on the right are those who do not. Unfortunately, there is a tie vote so no decision can be made. Chaos exists that could destroy the Planet.

Act out this problem and propose a solution as you role play.

Interpersonal Relationship Skills

Skill 1 – Communication

Overview: To develop language mechanics (listening, speaking, and writing) by employing three, diverse media (newspapers, radio, and television)

Time: Days Sixteen and Seventeen

Grade Span: 9-12

Objectives: To identify those communication skills essential to effective communication in and out of the workplace

To reinforce listening, speaking, and writing skills in interpersonal relationships

To demonstrate listening, speaking, and writing skills in simulation settings

To apply identified communication skills in three media

To understand how modes of communication can affect communication interpretation

To value effective communication skills in interpersonal relationships, particularly those of the workplace

Activities: The student will:

In large group, identify communication skills essential to life and workplace activities

Prioritize on worksheets listening, speaking, and writing skills that should be reinforced/improved upon

Develop individual inventories of skill building and use to select small-group activity

Small-Group Work

(1) Newspaper Project: Develop a Christmas ad for a fence company using newspapers and a computer software program

SKILL-BUILDING ACTIVITIES GUIDE
Get input from a fence company representative and then submit to a newspaper ad writer for input
Assign titles, roles, and responsibilities
Present ad as a final group project demonstrating essential communication skills

(2) Radio Project: Become a talk show host who is concerned with a controversial social/political/economic issue
Develop a written skit involving a talk show host, guests, and audience
Assign group members to roles and responsibilities
Meet with radio personnel; arrange for a radio "spot," present, and tape
Have class listen to tape and critique the program

(3) Television Project: Develop a new product idea and create a TV ad of 30 seconds
Assign individuals to specific tasks, i.e., producer, director, designer
Video tape the ad presentation and submit to a local TV station
Take input from TV personnel, revise, and present to class for program critiquing

Skill 4 – Conflict Resolution

Overview: To view conflict resolution as both process and closure and explore its use

Time: Days Twenty–Six through Twenty–Eight

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives: To know the six steps involved in conflict resolution: identification, difference between fact and opinion, research, compromise, understanding outcomes, and mutual agreement.

To apply the process of conflict resolution to a given case study which has general applicability.

To understand how closure plays a significant role in conflict resolution, particularly in the workplace.

To define closure as knowing when to cut your losses, accepting closure, tolerance to cultural differences, and commitment.

To apply closure to a given case study where resolution is realistic.

To value other people’s viewpoints when they are presented in a fair/impartial manner.

To show willingness to resolve conflict even with an unsatisfactory resolution.

Activities: Large–Group Instruction Activity:

View transparency listing the six steps in conflict resolution.

Discuss these steps as they relate to a student–chosen conflict, i.e., cafeteria food, longer school day, etc.

Resolve conflict through the stated process and bring to closure.
Small-Group Activity:
Assignment is to resolve and bring to closure a conflict in a given case study.

Each group (four) will be given the same case study but will approach the conflict differently.

Included for each group are the essential resources.

On newspaper print, the steps will be listed and then closure will be on the second day.

Large-Group Activity:
Each group will present resolution depending on the given positions.

As a whole, the class members will come to closure on the conflict.

Newspaper print materials will be displayed for closer examination of the process.

Materials:
- Overhead projector
- Transparency on Steps of Conflict Resolution
- Case study
- Newspaper print
- Research resources

Assessment:
- Steps of conflict resolution for journal entry
- Case study resolution
- Use of research materials
- Large-group and small-group participation
- Debate participation
PROCESS OF CONFLICT RESOLUTION

1. Identification

2. Difference between fact and opinion

3. Research

4. Compromise

5. Understanding Outcomes

6. Mutual Agreement
CASE STUDY ON AFFIRMATIVE ACTION

The time is 1995 and the place is an office where Elaine Manoca, a Spanish-speaking, non-American woman, has applied for a published secretarial position. The newspaper ad indicated that the employer is "an affirmative action employer" and would prefer a bilingual secretary with Spanish as the second language.

Elaine Manoca has been in the United States for three years with her husband and three children. She has an associate degree and ten years of secretarial work in Puerto Rico. She has not worked for the last three years because of her children who are now school age.

The employer takes her application and resume; interviews her; and then asks her to work for two hours. At the end of that time, the employer informs her that she will be considered for the job but three other candidates must be interviewed. By Friday of the same week, Elaine will be contacted.

Elaine is disappointed with the employer's negative response and questioned why she was not hired. He told her that a male college student with an associate degree, two years of high-school Spanish, but no experience was hired because he knew more about the business. When Elaine asked how she could improve herself, the employer said that she was an excellent candidate.

Elaine asked about affirmative action; but the employer said that affirmative action had nothing to do with the job. She asked why it had appeared in the ad. The response was that the employers had to comply with affirmative action regulations or face action by the authorities.
Group 1:

You are Elaine and will pursue your case further through a Spanish Speaking Center. They provide you with legal assistance and proceed to take the employer to court.

Prepare the legal case against the employer by utilizing conflict resolution and determine whether or not this case can be brought to closure without court involvement.

Group 2:

You are the employer and hire your own lawyer. Prepare your legal case against Elaine utilizing conflict resolution and determine whether or not this case can be brought to closure without court involvement.

Group 3:

You are office workers where Elaine has applied for work. You are dissatisfied with the hired employee since he has few secretarial skills and speaks Spanish poorly. He is the nephew of the owner and does not get along with the office workers.

What will be your course of action since as a group, you are divided among yourselves as to your plans. Employ the process of conflict resolution and come to closure.

Group 4:

You are members of the Spanish-speaking community and are committed to help your friend, Elaine. Some advise Elaine to look for another job while others tell her to fight. Utilize process of conflict resolution and come to closure.
Interpersonal Relationship Skills

Skill 5 – Diversity

Overview: To develop an awareness, understanding, and appreciation of diverse cultures and their mores through the social sciences and arts.

Time: Days Twenty-Nine through Thirty-One

Grade Span: 9–12

Activities: To develop an awareness of multiculturalism, particularly of family members and among members of local communities.

To understand how a culture’s mores can affect the mannerisms and beliefs of people.

To appreciate cultural/ethnic diversity in interpersonal relationships.

To view communities as microcosms of larger, more ethnically-diverse worlds.

To become familiar with specific customs, dress, foods, and activities of diverse cultures/ethnic groups.

To extend understanding of multiculturalism to the workplace for greater applicability.

Activities: Large-Group Activity:

Ethnic groups — African-American, Latino, Portuguese, Italian, Greek, and others — selected for study by students.

Five small groups are formed for research and artistic activities.

Directions for group activities are given by the teacher(s) who will display the projects during an international fair.

Evaluation of projects will be undertaken by the students.
Small-Group Projects:

Complete the contract learning proposal and submit to assigned teacher.

Each group will develop a portfolio of materials including a map, three-dimensional pictures of clothing, a menu, a calendar of important dates, and a taped interview with a person representing culture.

Submit three-day project for large-group evaluation and then exhibit at the international fair.

Culminating Activity:

An international fair with teacher, student, and community participation.

All teachers can participate so that the project becomes an integrated, multidisciplinary approach to learning.

Materials:

- Contract learning forms
- Portfolio materials
- Research resources
- Blank audio and video tapes
- Travel brochures
- Maps
- Newspapers
- Raw materials

Assessment:

- Large-group and small-class participation
- Contract learning

Applied Technology Skills

Skill 1 – Information Access

Overview: To determine specific sources of essential information when undertaking research

Time: Days Thirty-Four and Thirty-Five

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives: To define what "research" is
To understand how gathering data is an important/fundamental step in the research process
To identify relevant and essential sources of information and their locations
To value the accuracy of information and how it can resolve problems
To be committed to accessing information as a research process
To value computer usage in information accessing

Activities: Small–Group Activity:
Class is divided into four groups which are assigned scavenger hunts. Location is the media center and allocated time is two periods.

Scavenger hunts require information accessing of print material, audio–visual sources, and computer software. Through the team efforts of teachers and librarian/s, the scavenger hunts will be developed with adequate resources. Successful completion of the scavenger hunt will be rewarded.

Large–Group Activity:
Share with each other scavenger–hunt solutions
Make a listing of sources used, particularly computer software

Skill 2 – Information Analysis

Overview: To analyze information for its accuracy, reliability, validity through a career search

Time: Day Thirty-Six

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives: To determine fact from fiction regarding a career choice

To realize that career choices can be misconceived through media presentation

To determine what qualifications are needed for the career choice

To ascertain primary qualifications from those prioritized by employers

To develop a process illustrating fact from opinion regarding career preparation

To value accuracy of information and to be able to differentiate between fact and perception

Activities: Small-Group Activity:

Look at magazine ads illustrating different careers

Determine through group discussion what qualifications are needed for those careers

List on news print

Ask teacher to invite people representing those careers

Large-Group Activity:

Agree on selection of guest speakers

Prepare to video tape guest speakers for comparison of media views versus personal input on career preparation
For homework, develop sample of career preparation (print, computer, etc.)

Materials:
- Magazine ads
- Newsprint
- Blank video tape
- Materials for sample career preparation

Assessment:
- Large-group and small-group participation
- Newsprint submissions
- Video production
- Homework — sample career preparation

Skill 3 – Computer Literacy

Overview: To develop basic computer skills, including keyboarding, program/software selection, knowledge of application, program modification, and troubleshooting.

Time: Ongoing throughout the program with suggested weekly time of 4 hours.

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives: To complete an introductory computer course with workplace application.

To acquire basic computer skills, i.e., turning on and shutting off a computer, and other keyboarding activities.

To select applicable program/software application for job activities.

To apply knowledge in given workplace assignments.

To value the computer as an essential tool for job placement.

Activities: Small-Group Activities:
Assigned to groups according to computer literacy.

Groups are limited to 8 students and assigned a portfolio of work–based activities to be completed by group and individuals.

Team teaching is employed with computer instructor and/or aides assisting classroom teacher.

Portfolio activities can be designed for weekly sessions of four hours over a ten-to-twenty week period. Individual student hours can be increased depending upon the individual schedule/s.

Once the portfolio activities are completed, group and individual evaluation will be determined. Credit will be awarded for computer course.
Materials

- Computer software
- Disks and computer paper
- Portfolio resources

Assessment:

- Group activities
- Individual portfolio work
- Computer performance based upon instructor's observations

Skill 3 – Computer Literacy

Overview: To apply computer skills in the planning, development, and printing of a class newspaper

Time: One Week

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives:
To apply computer skills to the planning, development, and printing of a class newspaper

To learn the parts of a newspaper and how these parts become an integrated whole

To engage in cooperative learning for newspaper publishing

To employ communication skills in newspaper publishing

To appreciate computer usage in writing and editing a newspaper

To value the printed media as a means of communication

Activities:

Large–Group Activity:

Classroom is divided into 6 centers of newspaper publishing with a computer for each center

Group selection will be based upon student preference

Each center has an activity packet containing instructions and work tasks

Completion of each group’s newspaper assignment will take three days with the last two days allotted for editing and printing

Newspaper publication will be shared with school

Follow-up presentation to a newspaper publisher and editor
Materials: Computer software program for newspaper publishing

5. How do you think a city/town job compares with one in private industry/business?

Give three comparisons.

6. Do you have any general comments regarding your field experience in local government? If so, please tell us about them.
Understanding and Working Through Systems Skills

Skill 1 – Government/Political Systems

Overview: To understand how the first Ten Amendments to the United States Constitution, better known as the Bill of Rights, affects our daily lives in and out of the workplace.

Time: One week

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives:

To know the first Ten Amendments to the United States Constitution

To understand why these Ten Amendments were added to the Constitution

To appreciate the value of the Constitution in the workplace, i.e., workers' rights

To show how these Amendments affect our lives

To realize the role/s that these Amendments play in our interpersonal relationships

To develop a respect for constitutional rights that protect the American citizenry

Activities: Large-Group Instruction

Create a scrapbook entitled the Ten Amendments

Scan newspapers and magazines for articles/stories that relate to the Ten Amendments

Cut out, paste, and label stories concerned with the Ten Amendments

Make scrapbook from the collection of stories

Select three stories which focus on workers' rights
Small-Group Activities

Select group categorized according to Amendments

Share stories with group

Make copy of scrapbook story

Create a group collage on One Amendment, i.e., freedom of the press

Include stories on workers' rights

Individual Work

Place scrapbook in portfolio

Share scrapbook with another class through cross-age tutoring, 7th or 8th grade

Materials: Scrapbook material
Newspapers
Magazines
Collage material
Xerox paper

Assessment: Group activities/participation
Scrapbook
Research activities — newspaper/magazine search
Collage
Cross-age tutoring
There are ten pages to this scrapbook so that one newspaper/magazine article can be pasted with each of the Ten Amendments to the Constitution. Label the page according to the chosen amendment and then explain in two sentences why the story is about that amendment.

Select three stories that show how the Ten Amendments affect workers' right.

Example: Amendment 1 — Freedom to Assemble

People assembled in a park to hear a speaker support more public monies for AIDS research.

Union people striking against a company which has denied them "right to assemble."
Understanding and Working Through Systems Skills

Skill 2 – Social Systems

Overview: To understand how communities develop through the examination of oneself, and to examine the community relationship among families, friends, and neighborhoods

Time: Days Forty-One through Forty-Four

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives:

To examine how individuals are the single units which make up the family, peer group, and neighborhood

To study the interaction of individuals in small related groups (families) and in larger ones, the neighborhood

To trace through an individual’s family tree how families grow and change, especially as it relates to ethnicity

To develop a neighborhood of one’s own and present it as an ideal model

To appreciate diversity in social development

To value oneself as an individual and member of a social group

Activities: Individual Activity

Complete worksheet on family background

Determine the main careers of family members

Interview and tape record two family members who have chosen that career

Write a short newspaper story on family members

Make a family tree and show how the family extends into the community

Place all work in portfolio for evaluation

Skill 3 – Economic Systems

Overview: To understand the development of a national economic system based upon taxation

Time: Days Forty-Five through Forty-Six

Grade Span: 9-12

Objectives:

To understand the system of national taxation in the United States, its origins and historical development

To know that the 16th Amendment to the United States Constitution established an income tax for Americans

To appreciate the American Revolution as a conflict over taxation without representation

To ascertain why the national government created a tax system which became known as the Internal Revenue Service

To realize that Americans have ambivalent attitudes toward "big government's taxation policies"

Activities: Large-Class Instruction

Select from seven, 15-minute video programs produced by the National Council on Economic Education and view those selected

Participate in a class discussion on the videos with the state taxpayer education coordinator

Note answers on worksheet entitled "Understanding Taxes"

Small-Group Activities

In assigned groups, read materials in student kit on "Understanding Taxes" and prepare to role play a skit

Use overhead projector for transparency review
For homework, read over assigned role and prepare for class simulation

Materials:
Resources from the National Council on Economic Education: Videos, Teacher/Student Kits, Transparencies, Worksheets, and IRS Forms
Overhead projector
Guest speaker worksheet
Skit material

Assessment:
Large-class and small-group participation
Question and answer period
Completed guest speaker worksheets
Skit materials and role playing
TAXPAYER EDUCATION COORDINATOR
QUESTIONNAIRE

Name ________________________________

1. Why has taxation increased in the United States, especially at the state level?

2. Do you believe that someday IRS tax forms will be simplified so that all Americans can understand and complete them?

3. Congressional representatives promise that our taxes will be reduced; but they fail to follow through with their promises. Do you have a solution to this problem?

4. As a present or future employee, the work incentive is lessened when more wages mean more taxes. Could the reverse be true: the more you work, the less taxes that you pay?
5. Explain computer usage in tax preparation.
SAMPLE SKIT PRODUCTION
Transparency 1

It is candidate's night for two United States Senatorial Candidates, both of whom are non-incumbents and respectively belong to the Democratic and Republican Parties. Members of the audience have prepared questions on American taxes, specifically tax reduction at the national level.

The moderator informs the candidates that they have two, five minute presentations before and after the debate. Candidate presentations will be randomly selected while audience questioning will be according to the sign-up sheet.

To prepare for this skit, students will be assigned a role and will complete the role requirements, i.e., audience questions.
Understanding and Working Through Systems Skills

Skill 3 – Economic Systems

Overview: To understand what entitlements (Social Security, Medicare, and Public Assistance) are and how taxes are used to pay for them

Time: Days Forty-Seven and Forty Eight

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives: To know what government entitlements are, (i.e., Social Security, Medicare, and Public Assistance)

To understand how public monies, raised from taxes, are used to pay for entitlement programs

To compare the entitlement programs of Canada with those of the United States

To compare national support of entitlements with those of the states, (i.e., Rhode Island and other Northeastern states)

To determine if our forefathers had provided for entitlement programs in the United States and state constitutions

To determine if governmental bodies/agencies should be responsible for the public welfare of its citizenry

Activities: Large–Group Instruction

View a video on national entitlements programs followed by class discussion

Read a short newspaper article on federal entitlement programs

Complete an individual chart illustrating the pros and cons of national entitlement programs
Write a one-paragraph view of whether or not the United States or state governments should be responsible for its citizens' welfare.

Small-Group Activities

Assigned groups will examine, discuss, and take a pro or con position on Canadian or state, (i.e., Rhode Island) entitlement programs.

Complete a group project which will require them to videotape a panel, "Meet Q Public," which presents the pros and cons of Canadian and state entitlement programs.

After viewing the student-made tapes, submit a summary of arguments for and against entitlements to state legislator/s.

Invite state legislator/s to class and discuss video content.

Materials:
- Video on federal entitlements
- Video questionnaire
- Comparative Entitlement Programs Chart
- Blank video tapes
- Summary of small-group argument

Assessment:
- Large- and small-group activities
- Video questionnaire
- Comparative Entitlement Programs Chart
- Small-group video tape
- Summary of small-group argument
- Portfolio submission
VIDEO TAPE QUESTIONNAIRE

Name ________________________________

1. What is an entitlement program? Name one.

2. Determine how entitlement programs are funded and ascertain whether they are funded on the National or State level.

3. Should the national or state governments be involved in entitlement programs? Provide a rationale for your answer.

4. In colonial days of America, how did the people take care of each other?
5. Were colonial or state governments involved with the welfare of their citizens?

If so, how?

6. Read a newspaper article on a present-day entitlement program and determine whether or not this program should be funded.

When giving your responses, provide justification.
COMPARATIVE GOVERNMENT ENTITLEMENT PROGRAMS CHART

Group Members

Construct a chart that compares one federal government entitlement program with that of Canada or a state, (i.e., Rhode Island)

Systems Skills

Skill 4 – Organizational Structure

Overview: To explore the inner workings of an organizational structure and to understand its functioning and complexities

Time: Days Forty–Nine through Fifty–One

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives:

To develop an understanding of organizational structure

To understand the hierarchical development of an organizational structure (i.e., chain of command)

To realize that a company or business is a separate community with its own rules and lines of authority

To appreciate organizational red tape as part of "doing business"

To visualize how humans interact in an organizational structure

To value the support systems that people develop in an organizational structure

Activities:

Large–Group Activity

Participate in a simulation activity:

It is August, 1999, and the world, as we know it, no longer exists. Major earthquakes have destroyed the United States government in Washington, D.C. There are no state or local governments which can provide services, (i.e., police or fire)

Small–Group Activity

Like the original colonists, the remaining Americans must create an organizational structure to survive. You are those Americans and must design an organizational structure.
Using the instructional sheet, chart your organizational structure of governance and then present it to the class for comment. In developing the governance structure, authority, chain of command, rules/guidelines, operations, management, accountability, and diversity must be considered.

Once the chart is complete, create a physical model of your organizational structure.

Materials:
- Simulation game, "The American States"
- Organizational structure diagram
- Physical model of American states
- Materials for model building

Assessment:
- Large- and small-group participation
- Completion of organizational structure diagram
- Physical model building
THE AMERICAN STATES

It is 1999 in the former United States of America. Earthquakes have destroyed the country and there is now no centralized national government in Washington, D.C. Most state and local government organizations have been destroyed.

The remaining population needs to create a structural organization of government that is local and national. In small groups, design a governing structure on both a local and national level. Include departments of safety, laws, education, public works, and any others that you believe are essential.

Use this page to plan out your structural organization and the next page for the illustrated chart.
THE NEW AMERICAN STATES

Once assigned to a group, develop your model of the new American states using the materials provided. Models can be three-dimensional to provide a more realistic presentation.
Understanding and Working Through Systems Skills

Skill 4 – Organizational Structure

Overview: To have a working knowledge and understanding of union development in the United States

Time: Days Fifty-Two through Fifty-Four

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives:

To have a working knowledge of union development in the United States history

To understand why unions developed in the American workplace

To chronologically trace the development of unions in the United States

To select the development of one union (i.e., AFL) determining its origin, leadership, membership, and function

To appreciate the role/s that unions play in today’s workplace

To determine whether or not unions are essential for today’s American workers

Activities:

Large-Class Instruction

Select one major activity for each day: (three day assignment)

Read “Working-Class Radicalism in the Guilded Age,” The Knights of Labor and American Politics

Answer worksheet questions on the assigned class reading

Listen to a union leader speak on union development and organization

Ask questions about the organizational structure of unions from the assigned group lists.
Watch a movie on the labor movement, (i.e. The Molly Maguires) and discuss in small groups the impact that unions had on workers' organizations, rights, wages, and working conditions.

Small-Group Follow-up Activities

Develop time lines of union development in the United States

Create a "Who Am I" game of union leaders with self identifying pictures

Make cue cards that ask questions on American union development

Draw a political cartoon of a union fight, (i.e., Haymarket Square, May 4, 1886)

Materials:

- Selected reading
- Reading questionnaire
- Selected video
- Video questionnaire
- Guest speaker questionnaire
- Time line materials
- "Who Am I" materials
- Cue cards
- Paper for political cartoons

Assessment:

- Large- and small-group activities
- Completion of reading, video, and guest speaker Questionnaire (placed in portfolio)
- Time lines
- "Who Am I" materials
- Cue cards
- Political cartoons

SKILL-BUILDING ACTIVITIES GUIDE

While viewing the film, answer the following questions:

1. Who are the main characters in the film?

2. Why are they organizing and striking against their employer?

3. What are the working conditions?

4. Do these conditions still exist in the workplace?

5. Do you believe that violence was the answer?

6. Can you suggest alternative approaches?
7. Determine the effectiveness of peaceful means in resolving working issues.

8. Do you know anyone involved in a strike?
   If so, discuss their actions.
Critical Thinking Process Skills

Skill 1 – Problem Identification/Resolution

Overview:
To identify a school or community problem and propose solutions through a research-based approach.

Time:
One Week

Grade Span:
9–12

Objectives:
- To identify a problem by defining, analyzing, and determining scope.
- To determine possible solutions (hypotheses) to the problem through deduction and induction.
- To realize that problem-solving requires research and study.
- To learn that available reference sources can facilitate problem solutions.
- To value peer input throughout the problem-solving process.
- To realize that the consequences of problem solution may affect others.

Activities:
Individual Assignment

Each student will select at random an identified problem that the school or community is confronted with.

The student will undertake a research project:
1. State the problem
2. Propose solutions to the problem
3. Find information related to the problem (library activities)
4. Share data with teacher/s through conference time
5. Determine the consequences of the proposed solutions
6. Share proposed solutions with peers
7. Rework solutions based upon peer input

SKILL-BUILDING ACTIVITIES GUIDE

153
(8) Share proposed solutions and consequences with school or community leaders
(9) Rework solutions and submit final (written) research study

Materials:
- Reference materials
- Teacher and library resources
- Research study guidelines (University of Chicago format)

Assessment:
- Research studies
- Observation and interviewing data
- Research paper/presentation
In writing your research paper, use the following format:

I. STATE THE PROBLEM

II. DEFINE THE PROBLEM

III. POSSIBLE HYPOTHESES

IV. INFORMATION

V. POSSIBLE SOLUTIONS

VI. CONSEQUENCES OF POSSIBLE SOLUTIONS

VII. FINAL SOLUTIONS
Critical Thinking Process Skills
Skill 2 – Information Access

Overview: To develop an access system that will provide career and job information for students

Time: Days Fifty-Two through Sixty

Grade Span: 9–12

Objectives:
- To develop an information access system for career and job placement
- To create a database for career and job placement information
- To undertake a survey of students' career choices in a given school
- To match job placement information with career choices of students
- To develop a resource directory of careers and the academic and personal requirements/qualifications
- To realize that information accessing includes appropriate selection of information
- To value information accessing for career choices and job placements

Activities:

Large-Class Instruction
In the computer room, use software program for career choices and requirements
Have students develop their academic and career profiles from the software programs

Small-Group Activities
Share career preparation with other students who have similar career-related clusters
Develop eight- and six-year programs for careers that require higher education

Undertake a survey of freshmen career/job preferences and link to career/job requirements

Share with freshmen according to career clustering

Develop sample, individual curricula for career clusters (high-school curriculum as well as two- or four-year college curriculum)

Materials:
- Computers
- Career software programs
- Sample individual academic profile
- Survey
- Sample individual curricula

All the above materials are available from a software program.

Assessment:
- Portfolio for entire curriculum
- Software program materials
- Participation in large class, small group, and individual activities
- Teacher/peer observations
- Project presentations (entire program)
