The purpose of this guide to local history resources in Ontario (Canada) public libraries is to evaluate current trends, problems, and innovations, including the use of new technologies. The guide was developed from a survey of Southern Ontario Library System (SOLS) members; a total of 58 libraries provided information about their local history collections. The survey found that local history and genealogy is an important component of the collections of many Ontario libraries. In most cases, local history is an additional responsibility given to regular reference staff. Inadequate staff time and expertise are the chief factors that limit collection growth. Library cooperation and communication with local historical and genealogical societies has resulted in mutually beneficial projects. Many of the libraries' most useful local history resources are the result of provincial and federal grants. A number of problems were indicated by the survey, including inadequate staffing, lack of space, funds, and equipment, problems related to administration of resources, and theft and natural disasters. Automation and new technologies offer great hope for preserving and expanding access to local history resources; an increasing number of libraries are putting local history catalogs, indexes, and actual resources into machine readable form. Also included in this guide are: a directory of the libraries; a list of libraries (with corresponding page numbers) mentioned in the directory; lists of libraries with collection development policies and gift/donation forms; and a bibliography of library produced descriptive and promotional literature. Appendices provide sample polices and forms. (Contains 17 references.) (AEF)

INTRODUCTION

In the summer of 1994, this researcher, with support from the Canadian-American Studies Committee of the State University of New York at Buffalo, visited a number of Southern Ontario public library local history collections and interviewed several other librarians by telephone. The purpose was (1) to learn about local history and genealogy resources in these libraries and (2) to develop and pretest a survey instrument that could be used to collect information about local history resources and their administration in Ontario public libraries. The ultimate goal was to produce a Guide to Local History Resources in Ontario Public Libraries and to evaluate current trends, problems, and innovations including the use of new technologies.

In this undertaking, invaluable assistance was received from the Southern Ontario Library System (SOLS) which agreed to distribute the Survey instrument with their quarterly newsletter. Anna Johnston of the Hamilton Office was extremely helpful. Recognition must also be given to the assistance provided by Lynne Prunskus, a student at the School of Information and Library Studies who is employed in the Special Collections Department of Brock University.

The questionnaire was distributed to SOLS members in September 1994. Responses were returned to the Hamilton Office and were forwarded to this researcher in January 1995. Some libraries included copies of their local history collection development policies and some provided samples of their descriptive and promotional literature. Some of these collection development policies are reproduced in the Appendix of this guide, and a bibliography of library produced descriptive and promotional literature appears on page 21. These publications contain valuable information and could serve both as reference tools for other libraries and models for them to emulate. Copies should be requested from the individual libraries.

A total of 58 public libraries provided information about their local history collections. Results of the Survey are summarized beginning on page 7. To increase the scope and detail of this guide, survey responses have been augmented in the Directory Section by including data from several other publications - most notably Angus Baxter's outstanding guide to Canadian genealogy, In Search of Your Canadian Roots, and C. William Filby's Directory of American Libraries with Genealogy or Local History Collections. Consequently, the Directory Section contains information about 139 Ontario public libraries.

RESULTS OF THE SURVEY

CHARACTERISTICS OF ONTARIO LOCAL HISTORY COLLECTIONS:
The survey found that local history and genealogy is an important component of the collections of many Ontario public libraries. Even libraries with very small local history collections recognize their value. Some libraries have substantial collections with special staff (often part-time) whose sole responsibility is the administration of the local history collection. More often local history is an additional responsibility given to regular reference staff. The development and care of local history collections is such a labor intensive and specialized activity that inadequate staff time and expertise are the chief factors that limit collection growth. Even the largest best administered collections report much more could be done if only more staff time was available.

Some libraries work with local historical and genealogical societies on mutually beneficial projects. Library volunteers or employees may have indexed, microfilmed, transcribed, or helped create historical resources held at other community agencies. Members of historical societies sometimes help develop, staff, and administer public library historical collections. Some organizations place their book and manuscript collections on deposit in the public library to make them more accessible to researchers. Library cooperation and communication with local historical organizations has proved to be a very useful strategy.

MAJOR COLLECTIONS:

Based on responses to this survey and statistics found in other reference tools, the public libraries with the largest and best local history and genealogy collections include:

- Barrie Public Library 1000+ volumes
- Belleville Public Library 1000+ volumes
- Burlington Public Library 1000+ volumes
- Cornwall Public Library 1000+ volumes
- Elgin County Public Library 3000+ volumes
- Hamilton Public Library 1000+ volumes
- Kingston Public Library 1000+ volumes
- Lambton County Library 1000+ volumes
- London Public Library
- Mississauga Public Library 9000 volumes
- Niagara Falls Public Library 5000+ volumes
- North York Public Library 3000+ volumes
- Ottawa Public Library 10,000+ volumes
- Owen Sound Public Library 1000+ volumes
- Port Credit Public Library 1000+ volumes
- Sault Ste Marie Public Library 1100 microforms
- Metropolitan Toronto Reference Library 5000+ volumes
- Windsor Public Library 1900+ microforms

Also possessing significant collections are:

- Brampton Public Library 100+ volumes; 500 microforms
- Brantford Public Library 400+ volumes
- Bruce County Public Library 350+ volumes
- Chatham Public Library 500+ volumes
- Etobicoke Public Library 800+ volumes
- Fort Erie Public Library 300 volumes
- Guelph Public Library 600+ volumes
- Kitchener Public Library 500+ volumes
- Nanticoke Public Library (Waterford Branch) 500+ volumes
- Nepean Public Library 900+ volumes
- Niagara on the Lake Public Library 700 microforms
- Pembroke Public Library 300+ volumes
- Port Colborne Public Library 400+ volumes
- Richmond Hill Public Library 800+ volumes
- Scarborough Public Library 700+ volumes
Sudbury Public Library
Timmins Public Library 400+ volumes
Welland Public Library 500+ volumes
Whitby Public Library 500+ volumes

IMPACT OF PROVINCIAL GRANTS:

During conversations with librarians in the Summer of 1994, it became apparent that many of their most useful local history resources had resulted from provincial and federal jobs creation programs of the 1970s and 1980s. Grant funded projects produced valuable resources that few libraries would otherwise have been able to create.

Sometimes, these grants were responsible for the development of entire collections, such as the outstanding collection of historical microforms at the Niagara on the Lake Public Library and the excellent and well indexed local history collection at Guelph Public Library. Many grant projects, including indexes and photographic surveys, have been continued - as time permits - by regular library staff.

These grants made potent and enduring contributions to the public library's ability to preserve and provide access to Ontario's heritage.

Projects undertaken with grant support include:

- Indexing of back issues of newspapers for subjects and/or for biographical information including births, deaths and marriages (Barrie, Belleville, Chatham, Collingwood, Dundalk, Dundas, Fort Erie, Kent, Kitchener, Lambton, Markdale, Newmarket, Niagara Falls, Niagara on the Lake, Oakville, Ottawa, St Catharines, Welland)

- Creating an index to the entire local history collection (Cornwall, King, Waterloo)
- Creating and organizing the entire collection and creating computer based finding aids (Guelph)

- Indexing important local history reference books which did not have their own indexes (Welland)

- Indexing church histories, local histories, and church registers (Thorold)

- Indexing cemetery records (Lambton)

- Transcribing census records (Nanticoke)

- Indexing records in the library archives (Ottawa)

- Compiling, indexing, and microfilming scrapbooks (St Catharines)

- Researching and/or writing local histories (Bloomfield, Rideau Lakes)

- Preparing pamphlets, booklets, information kits (Belleville)

- Collecting and/or microfilming and creating finding aids for documents, records, newspapers, and/or directories (Burlington, Lambton, Niagara Falls, Niagara on the Lake, Oakville)

- Creating and indexing local history vertical and clipping files (Dundas, Kitchener, Nanticoke, Oakville)

- Processing and indexing historic photograph collections (Fort Erie, Kitchener, Lambton, Niagara Falls)

- Organizing the map collection (Niagara Falls)

- Processing manuscript collections (Kitchener, Hamilton)

- Identifying photographs (Nanticoke)

- Inventorying the historic print collection (Niagara Falls)

- Photographing and researching historically significant local buildings (East Gwillimbury)

- Creating a photographic survey of the community (Mississauga, Niagara Falls)

- Oral history projects (Fort Erie, Metro Toronto, Owen Sound)

- Cataloging, classifying and creating a catalog for materials at City Hall (Georgina)
- Organizing family histories (Nanticoke)
- Converting a manual local history index to computerized form (Kanata)
- Under professional guidance, supplying conservation treatment to a scrapbook collection and preparing finding aids for manuscript collections (Hamilton)
- Creating a large microfilm collection of local historical resources by searching out and obtaining microforms from major Canadian, U.S., and British archives and seeking out and microfilming records in local historical societies, churches, and other repositories (Niagara on the Lake)
- Creating a computer based system for indexing the local newspaper and other historical resources (Niagara Falls)
- Creating local walking and driving tours (Rideau Lakes)

PROBLEMS:

Those responding to the survey reported a variety of problems including problems related to:

STAFFING

- Much more could be accomplished if more staff time was available (reported by both very small collections and very large collections including those with full or part time local history librarians)
- The library lacks enough staff to adequately develop and service the local history collection (reported by many libraries)
- There have been serious staff reductions in the local history department
- Staff shortages are responsible for a growing backlog of unprocessed materials and for gaps in locally produced indexes
- Staff shortages make it difficult to extend hours of service
- Staff shortages make it difficult for senior staff to find time for planning
- Staff lacks the expertise needed to effectively promote, develop, and service collections

- General reference staff needs to be trained to handle local history questions when local history staff is unavailable

- Library must depend on the work of volunteers but dedicated volunteers are difficult to recruit, train, and retain

- The Historical Society which formerly helped develop and administer the local history collection has disbanded

LACK OF SPACE, FUNDS AND EQUIPMENT

- Current space is inadequate for the growing collection (reported by many libraries)

- Competition for available funds is great as libraries suffer budgetary cutbacks and must pay for expensive new technologies

- No current budget for new acquisitions therefore unable to acquire important new publications

- Lack funds to support a growing community interest in historical resources

- Microfilm is expensive

- Microfilm reader-printer is old and inadequate

- Microfilm readers are expensive to repair and maintain

- Local History department needs its own microfilm reader

- Local History department needs its own microcomputer

PROBLEMS RELATED TO ADMINISTRATION OF RESOURCES

- Local History policies need to be updated

- Some of the older indexes were poorly done

- Authority control - it is difficult to establish headings for local names and subjects

- There are no guides and bibliographies that describe local history resources that are scattered in various repositories throughout the region
- There is insufficient cooperation and coordination between the library and other historical agencies in the community.

- Materials owned by the local historical society would be more secure and accessible if they were housed in the public library.

- It is difficult to obtain resources that reflect the community’s ethnic diversity.

- Changes in the library’s jurisdiction requires that the library acquire new resources to meet its expanded responsibilities.

- It is difficult to provide patrons of branch libraries with access to local history information since resources are housed in the central library.

- There is a need to encourage more input from the community.

SECURITY AND DISASTERS

- Security is an important consideration since materials are often rare or unique and impossible to replace.

- Materials are stolen from files (reported by several libraries; one takes the precaution of having a duplicate vertical file of xerox copies for staff use only).

- A card catalog listing materials held at City Hall is missing perhaps stolen.

- Libraries must consider the possibility of unexpected natural disasters (one library lost it’s local history collection when the building was hit by a tornado; another collection was destroyed by fire).

AUTOMATION AND INNOVATION:

Automation and new technologies offer great hope for preserving and expanding access to local history resources. The future holds the promise of multimedia local history databases which contain text, images, audio materials, and motion pictures and which can be accessed through emerging networks at terminals throughout the community, the nation, and the world.
Today an increasing number of libraries are putting local history catalogs, indexes, and actual resources into machine readable form. Some libraries began computerizing in the 1980s - often with provincial grant assistance. At Guelph Public Library, the entire collection was cataloged and indexed with finding aids produced as computer print outs. Currently, the database and the print outs are out of date because, due to cutbacks, local history staff positions have been eliminated. The former Archivist, now the Systems Librarian, would like eventually to update the database and make it available online through the OPAC (Online Public Access Catalog) and via dial up.

At Niagara Falls, a simple but effective database management system designed by a summer employee has been used for a decade to index the local newspaper and to maintain a local history index on a microcomputer in the library. The librarian would like to add this database to the library OPAC after it is installed in 1995. While many libraries have cataloged their local history monographs and other resources in MARC format and included them in their OPACs, the librarian believes this will be a great challenge at Niagara Falls since she does not expect to find much copy cataloging available for their unique local history resources. Similarly, while the Hamilton Public Library’s local history monographs are included in the library OPAC, converting the massive "Where To Look File" to machine readable form is too daunting a prospect to even consider at the present time.
Many libraries are adding local history indexes to their OPACs and a few already provide access through dial-up connections or regional networks. The public libraries belonging of the Halinet network have made their individual newspaper and local history indexes searchable through the networked OPACs of all four member libraries.

A few libraries are already using scanning technology to create databases of actual local history materials. Oakville Public Library is scanning documents, texts, and photographs to create an image database on a dedicated microcomputer. They hope eventually to make it available on the OPAC and via dial-up. Lindsay Public Library was the site of a 1991 pilot project in which a multimedia local history database was created on a hard disk using DVI technology. The resultant database was impressive but ultimately disappointing. At the time of this survey, a promised CD-Rom version of the database had not been delivered by the manufacturer and the library did not have a printer capable of printing items from the hard disk. The library lacks the technology needed to add items to the original database and projected costs of equipment and training are well beyond what the library can currently afford. At present the project appears to be at a dead end.

Projects identified include:

- Local history monographs have been added to the library OPAC (reported by many libraries)

- The newspaper is indexed using a database management system and the index is accessible either as a print out or via a microcomputer depending on the library (Barrie, Belleville, Burlington, Newmarket, Niagara Falls, Waterloo)

- Birth, death, marriage announcements are available as computer print outs (Barrie, Belleville, Huntsville)

- The entire local history collection was indexed with a database management system; finding aids are available as computer print outs (Guelph, Oakville)

- Plan to make local history catalog and/or index available online (Brampton, Cornwall, Kemptville, Lambton, Niagara Falls)

- Plan to make local history index available on a dedicated microcomputer (Innisfil)

- Online indexes to local newspapers and/or historic photographs and documents are accessible through the networked OPACs of HALINET libraries (Burlington, Halton Hills, Milton, Oakville)

- Newspaper index and/or local history index is searchable through the library OPAC (Kanata, Whitby)

- Directory/index to local associations is stored on a Macintosh computer (Ottawa)

- City bylaws index is stored on a personal computer (Ottawa)

- Some Toronto branch libraries have created microcomputer based local history indexes using either PC File or Authex software

- Database of scanned documents, clippings, photographs is stored on the hard disc of a dedicated microcomputer and linked to local history index; hope to eventually make this database available on-line (Oakville)

- Investigating possible scanning of documents for digital storage and possible use of the Internet to provide access to these documents and the local history index (Lambton)

- Investigating scanning scrapbooks and ephemera files, putting them on optical discs or CD Roms using imaging technology and providing access to them via the library's Local Area Network (Mississauga)

- Considering putting historic photographs on CD-Rom for enhanced access, preservation, sale and distribution (Metro Toronto)

- Would like to eventually put finding aids on CD-Rom (Niagara on the Lake)

- 1991 pilot project created a multimedia database of stored images, text, motion pictures, and oral history materials using DVI technology (Lindsay)

The transition to automation and networking also presents libraries with many challenges.

Problems reported include:

- Because there is no coordinated authority control between different libraries it is difficult to develop union catalogs and to combine and network local history databases

- Libraries are finding that retrospective conversion of manual files is more labor intensive and time consuming than anticipated

- Libraries with large manual indexes and catalogs find it difficult to automate because of lack of copy cataloging and because it is too laborious and time consuming to put these massive reference tools into machine readable form

- Scanning equipment purchased by the library is too small for maps and larger documents

- A library that undertook the development of an impressive multimedia database as a pilot project has not been able to acquire the auxiliary resources needed to expand and fully utilize it and the project now appears to be at a dead end microfilmed, some are hard copy, some are indexed in the "Where to Look" file) maps, atlases, and surveys (many 1791+) pictures and photographs (many) including:

over 10,000 individually mounted and indexed prints
nearly 500,000 negatives from the Hamilton Spectator for 1955-1984
negative files of the Hubert Beckett studio slides (some - made from items in the collection and used to accompany presentations) post cards (over 1500 arranged by subject depicting local scenes 1902+; these have been photocopied for security purposes; patrons search the copies before requesting the originals) audio recordings (a few local radio programs etc.)
films and videotapes (about 30 films of local interest some of which have been transferred to video - a mixture of home movies and professional productions)
microfilms include newspapers, censuses, assessments,

County for the 19th century includes birth, marriage, death registers; voters lists, etc.
(There is currently no municipal archives- if one is established these records will be transferred) archives of local businesses and organizations collections of family and personal papers memorabilia and greeting cards

Benefitted from provincial jobs creation programs? = yes
In the 1980s provincial summer grants enabled the department to hire and train university students to provide conservation treatment to a scrapbook collection and, under the guidance of the archivist, to process and create finding aids for manuscript collections which would otherwise have remained unprocessed

Finding aids and indexes:
Cataloged books are listed in the library OPAC
The "Where to Look" file is a very large card index started in the 1930s which indexes the entire collection - clippings, books, pamphlets, photographs, periodicals, newspapers, archives - by subject, personal and corporate name. There are inventories and finding aids in the library for many of the manuscript collections. Several handouts offer instructions on how to use the "Where to Look" file. Brochure briefly describes resources and policies, and emphasizes "WE ARE LOOKING FOR MORE!"

Current problems include:
- The department has suffered some small cuts in staff and funding but generally there are few problems.
- The large size of the existing card indexes and catalogs would make them difficult and expensive to automate.

In 1991 the library was the site for a demonstration project that involved the creation of a multimedia database of local history information that stored still pictures, motion pictures, oral history, text, etc. on hard disk using the DVI compression system. The system was designed and the database created by a Toronto firm. The demonstration was partially funded by government agencies.

While the system appears to work beautifully, a representative of the library indicated in a 1994 telephone conversation that it has proved something of a disappointment. The contractor made a CD-Rom of the database which it had demonstrated internationally but the library had not received a copy of it. The library could not print out items from the hard disk because it did not have a printer that was compatible with the database. Nor did the library have the software and hardware needed to update the database and prices being quoted for them and for staff training were far beyond the means of the library.

If in the future compatible technology become widespread and moderately priced the library may be able use the database but in 1994, the project seemed to be at a dead end. The library was considering creating a new local history database using a scanner and a Macintosh computer. Since the earlier data apparently could not be transferred to a more standard computer format, the new database was to be recreated "from scratch" some retrospective indexing by volunteers but progress in retrospective indexing is slow index is stored on a microcomputer and backed up on tape D-base system is easy for staff and patrons to learn but rather unsophisticated searchable by subject descriptor codes, title words, and key words added to the title field there are about 1000 subject descriptors each of which is assigned a five digit code (e.g. 00061 = Churches - Jehovahs Witnesses) key word searching of the title is also possible names of persons and additional subject words are often added to the title area of the record so they can be retrieved by a key word search each record has space for a maximum of three descriptors and about 50 characters of title information when more space is needed for extra names or terms or when more than three descriptors are desired, multiple records are input for the item being indexed it is hoped that after the library’s catalog is automated in 1995, it will be possible to mount the newspaper index on the library’s computer so that it can be searched online from the library OPAC and by dial up

Subject index to the photograph collections
What’s Your Line? Wondering About Your Family History?
1992 (40 p.) lists significant genealogical resources in the collection

Current problems include:
#1 Space and access - resources are housed in six different locations throughout the building including a second floor storage room; it is difficult and time consuming to retrieve and return items; it also presents security problems
#2 Staff time - there is not enough staff time available to accomplish all that needs to be done; processing local history resources is very labor intensive
#3 Impending automation - the local history collection is not cataloged in MARC format; it is anticipated that retrospective conversion will be challenging since copy cataloging may not be available for many items in the collection

NIAGARA ON THE LAKE PUBLIC LIBRARY

repository for book collection of the Niagara Historical Society; family histories (Baxter lists 37); municipal records; military records; school lists; census returns; business records; newspapers 1799+; land records; military records; church registers (Baxter lists 7)

SEE Filby 1988 p. 273 =
200 books; mss; 386 reels of microfilm

This Survey = substantial collection emphasis = The library houses the Niagara on the Lake Historical Resource Centre which is a collection of about 700 reels of microfilm documenting the history of Niagara on the Lake and the former Township of Niagara; this collection was acquired by purchasing microfilm from sources as diverse as the National Archives of Canada, the Archives of Ontario, the U.S. National Archives, the British Museum, and the Mormon Library of Utah, and also by microfilming local newspapers, and church, cemetery, and municipal records books (there is a collection of about 125 books belonging to the Niagara Historical Society; most are genealogy related; they have been placed in the library to make them more accessible) clippings, pamphlets, etc.
(2 filing cabinets of pamphlets and clippings - newspapers are clipped very selectively) genealogical materials include:
published genealogies (about 50) unpublished family histories (some) census records (many 1842+ including a special 1867 census of Niagara) newspapers (1796+ - microfilmed - indexed by surname for 1796-1947) maps (about 50)
photographs (the library doesn’t have any but it has an inventory of photographs and post cards owned by the Niagara Historical Society) oral history interviews (about 25)
- in 1991, the Friends of the Library started interviewing key people in the community about the area and its history
- Historical Society also owns some oral history tapes
- no tapes have been transcribed, but the Friends plan to begin transcribing both the library and the Historical Society tapes in the near future videotape (1 tape produced by the library (ca 1990) on the historic Hawley House.)

microfilms include newspapers, municipal records, military records, school lists, church records, cemetery records, business and commercial records, records and publications of the Niagara Historical Society, papers of individuals and families

Benefitted from provincial jobs creation programs? = yes
While Niagara on the Lake is a very important place historically, in the past researchers could find few resources in the library

With the provincial grants, the library hired workers who located and acquired relevant materials available on microfilm from sources that included the National Archives of Canada, the Archives of Ontario, the U. S. National Archives, the British Library, and the Mormon Library in Utah

In addition, local records (e.g. church records) were searched out and microfilmed with assistance from Brock University and the Archives of Ontario

The manuscript collections of the Niagara Historical Society were acquired on microfilm from the Archives of Ontario

This collection was created and inventoried by three workers employed with Province of Ontario Local Initiative Grants in the early 1980s; other non-government grant sources funded the microfilming and the purchase of microfilms

In addition, a Surname Index to local newspapers was created by summer jobs workers

Finding aids and indexes:
The HRC is staffed 9 hours a week by one of the persons originally hired under the grant who helped assemble the collection

Classified Card Catalogue - lists by format (manuscripts, land records, print, cartographic, and pictorial resources) material found in the library and seven other local repositories
Records of Niagara - revised edition, 1978
(ca 100 p.) - published inventory of resources in: the Library, the Historical Society, the Municipality, the Jean M. Huggins Queenston Collection; and four local churches

Niagara Historical Resource Centre: A Guide to Resources and Facilities - brochure
Classified Card Catalogue of microform holdings
Some of the microform collections were purchased with their own finding aids
Biography Card File - indexes microforms for over 4500 names of early inhabitants
Surname Index - a card index to surnames in local newspapers covering 1796 to 1947 - lists birth and death notices and any mention of a surname even in advertisements

Current problems include:
The library has few problems at present but if additional workers were available they could undertake additional projects such as indexing of post 1947 newspapers

Oakville Newspaper Index - Card index (Births, Deaths, Marriages, Biography, Subjects) - indexes local newspapers 1850-1993 (most complete for 1960-1993) (Succeeded in 1994 by online local history index)

Online local history index 1994+ indexes the local newspaper and lists materials added to the local history collection accessible through the library OPAC, through the OPACs of Burlington, Halton Hills, and Milton public libraries via the HALINET network, and by dial up from outside the library hope eventually to obtain copyright clearance and scan the entire newspaper so that copies of articles can be stored on hard disk and printed on demand retrospective conversion of older manual indexes and their addition to the database is a future possibility

Oakville Images Project-
In 1991, a $100,000 grant was received from the Lawson Foundation to create a local history space in the Central Library $30,000 of this was used to develop the Oakville Images project a scanner was purchased and a database of scanned images of photographs, pictures, documents, clippings is being developed the online local history index indicates which images are stored in the database - they can be retrieved from the dedicated microcomputer by pressing a function key when the citation appears and the images can be printed currently images are only accessible via the dedicated microcomputer; eventually it is hoped the image database will also be accessible online

We would like to add the following items to the collection. Can you help?

Current problems include:

The library reports modest problems related to the fact that indexing and scanning is more labor intensive than expected.
The scanner they purchased is too small for most maps and for larger documents and the resolution is acceptable but not outstanding.

oral history interviews (a few - including an untranscribed interview from the 1980s with Sheriff Wilson) audio recordings (24 - local musicians including school bands, local symphony orchestra, etc.)
films and videotapes (8 including items made by local groups on Welland Canal pollution, Niagara region tourism, local electoral debates) microfilms include newspapers, church records, wills, land records, Welland Canal materials, telephone directories, cemetery records, Tweedsmuir histories, scrapbooks, a few Brock University theses from the 1960s that deal with the Underground Railroad, regional geology, etc.

Tweedsmuir histories of Decew Falls, Grantham, Pelham, Port Dalhousie - some cataloged - some on microform, some in scrapbook form land grants information - microforms of Archives of Ontario indexes to Niagara land records, petitions, and patents archival material - while the library owns some, it tends to direct archives and personal papers to the historical museum and Brock University materials owned include:

some government records,
some archives of organizations (e.g. St Catharines General Hospital) some family and personal papers campaign buttons and political pamphlets some artifacts
some original documents (e.g. land transactions)

Benefitted from provincial jobs creation programs? = yes
Created and updated indexes and finding aids
Compiled scrapbooks of newspaper clippings which were then indexed and microfilmed - the scrapbooks have been kept up by staff but the indexing and microfilming ended when the grants terminated

Finding aids and indexes:
Cataloged items are in the library OPAC
Surname index (60 catalog card drawers) to resources in the collection - updated daily - births, deaths, marriages, other information
Subject Index (on cards) to Minutes of City and Regional Councils 1986-
Picture and Slide File Index
Map Index
Some older newspapers have been indexed including: St Catharine’s Consitutional 1861-1871 and the Thorold Post 1875-1876
As clipping files are culled, newspaper indexes are updated maintain the collection.

Current problems include:
Reductions in staff and funds make it difficult to satisfy great and increasing public demand for service
Need more staff/space/time to collect, process, and serve the public
Must compete with other library priorities for limited resources
Need updated policies
Need to train general reference staff in use of the collection since they may sometimes be called upon to provide service when the local history staff is not available

city/town directories (many - 1833+) old telephone directories (many - 1880s+) newspapers (many - 1790s+ - most microfilmed - not indexed) maps (thousands; Toronto maps dating back to 1788; comprehensive collection of Toronto fire insurance plans and Goad atlases) historic picture collection:
photographs (over 50,000)
paintings, drawings and prints (15,000)
post cards (2600)
the core of this collection of Canadian historical pictures was donated between 1910 and 1918 by John Ross Robertson - founder and publisher of the Toronto Telegram - the collection is especially strong in views of Toronto from the founding of York in the 1790s to the 1920s. The library would like to eventually put selected items onto CD-Roms for sale and distribution.
oral history interviews (about 80 - some transcribed - Toronto Between the Wars - documents Jewish life in Toronto between 1920 and 1940) microfilms include newspapers, Tweedsmuir histories, biographical scrapbooks, Toronto scrapbooks, telephone directories, census records archival and manuscript resources - archives of private organizations (a few) personal papers of individuals and families (many)

Benefitted from provincial jobs creation programs? = yes
The collection benefitted indirectly when a series of oral histories prepared by university students with summer work grants were deposited with the library upon completion

Many other Ontario libraries had grant workers research materials in the Metro Toronto historical collections and make copies for deposit in their own collections

Finding aids and indexes:
Cataloged monographs are listed in the library OPAC
Many card indexes and catalogs including:

Barbara Myrvold (416) 393-7500

Automation: SEE:

Each of the thirty-one branches collects data to document and provide information on the historical development of its surrounding neighborhood.

Some maintain vertical files and local history indexes.

When the Toronto library system was automated using Geac software/hardware, local history automation was given a low priority

Instead, PC systems were adopted for local control

PC File, a software package routinely sent to branches and for which staff had already been trained, was found acceptable for creating subject indexes, but it cannot create an online authority file

Authex, another software package designed specifically for periodical indexing has this capacity

Branches have been given the option of using whichever package they choose

Unfortunately, there was, in 1990, little or no coordination among branches as to authority control

Because of this and because the local PC systems were not compatible with the GEAC software, online access to local history files of individual branches through system OPACs was deemed not feasible

SAMPLE POLICIES AND FORMS
COLLECTION POLICY

The Room of Local History formally opened on [date]. The Room houses local history collections that belong to the Public Library and the Historical Society. As well, the Branch of the Ontario Genealogical Society keeps their books and vertical files in the Room. Local history material has been collected since the early 1900s, under the auspices of chief librarian [name]. Her successor continued to support the local history collection. The Public Library made a further commitment to the collection with the opening of the Room.

There are three ways that acquires material for the local history collection.

1. Purchase
2. Donation (or loan of original for copying)
3. Transfer from other collections in the system

Other criteria are considered as well. The geographic relevance of the item is a primary concern. The local history collection is designed to serve the needs of the City of [name]. However, the present collection, and the use of the collection, reaches beyond local interest. The priorities can be listed as follows:

1. The first priority is to collect books (both fiction and non-fiction) about [name] and the Regional Municipality of [name]. Works by local authors are important to the collection. Books dealing with local subjects are equally important.

2. The second priority is to collect books about [name] and [name] Counties. Books about [name] Ontario are also useful, for example, [name], [name], [name], and [name] Counties. These are counties that are important to the history of [name] Region because of settlement migration patterns and other links to this area.

3. The third priority is to collect books about [name] history, geography and social life and customs. Many of these topics relate to historical events in [name] Region.

4. The fourth priority is to acquire books relating to Canadian history, geography and social life and customs.

The decision is often made to transfer older books from other collections into the Room. In some cases, a Canadian imprint becomes "rare" in a monetary sense, and needs protection from possible loss. As well, last copies of Canadian imprints are sometimes transferred to the local history collection.

Time period is another criteria for the collection. The settlement of this area dates back to the early 1800s and naturally, books and other documents from that time period are valuable additions to the collection. However, the acquisition of modern books etc., is equally important, before they go out of print or become difficult to locate for the collection.

Other criteria for acquiring material for the collection is determined by type, size and format.

Non book material in the collection:

1. Photographs:

The collection could include photographic prints, glass or film negatives, slides, post cards, photo albums, prints, sketches or paintings. Recent photographs are as important to collect as 19th century images. If the owner of the original is reluctant to donate a photograph etc., they may be willing to loan the article for reproduction purposes. In some cases, the owner has agreed to donate the original if they receive a copy in exchange for the original.

2. Maps:

Any map representing the geographical area of Region is important. Original 19th century survey maps of the area and the other villages and townships are valuable resources for researchers. The maps may be rolled wall maps or in frames. Modern maps, for example, road maps, aerial maps from planning departments, are also valuable. Copies of maps as well as originals are useful to the collection. In many ways, copies are useful because they are printed on sturdier paper than the originals. Sketch maps drawn by local people often show details that do not appear on commercial maps, such as the location of farms, buildings or changes of ownership.

Blueprints of residences or buildings are also valuable, as well as architectural drawings.

Many local maps are transferred from Information Services to the vertical files after they are no longer useful to the reference collection.

3. Newspapers/Periodicals:

Locally printed newspapers are extremely valuable sources of local history. They are also very vulnerable because of the poor quality paper used in their printing. Even a single issue of a County newspaper is important. Current newspapers should be collected as they appear, as well as advertising newspapers and periodicals. These newspapers are either converted to microfilm or are clipped for the Vertical File.

4. Vertical Files (Newspaper Clippings)

All local newspapers, either daily or weekly, are regularly checked for local information for the Vertical Files. Files date back to the 1950s, although there are older clippings in the files as well.

The clippings are assigned a subject heading, and stored in filing cabinets. These files are not weeded because the clippings will be valuable in the future. Some clippings are transferred from Information Services as those files are weeded.

5. Manuscript Collections:

Manuscript materials include such items as diaries, journals, memoirs and reminiscences, club minutes, business records or collections of letters. These items are generally kept together as a unit. Once again, 19th century items are valuable, but 20th century records should not be neglected.

6. Ephemera:

Ephemera is often defined as material that was produced to be used once and then thrown away. This includes programmes of special events, handbills, funeral notices, broadsides and posters. Any item reflecting an event in Region is a valuable addition to the collection.

7. Oral History Tapes:

started gathering oral history information in 1981. This programme has gathered a unique collection of historical data on Region through interviews with older members of the community. The programme is supported in the budget, as well as an annual grant from the Regional Heritage Foundation.

8. Artifacts:

Most artifacts are refused if offered to the collection. The potential donor is referred to an appropriate museum that might be interested in the donation.
The will accept small memorabilia items such as commemorative medals or buttons. However, the does not have storage space for larger items nor a staff trained to care for such artifacts.

--- DONATION AGREEMENT ---

I hereby give to the PUBLIC LIBRARY the objects listed herein.

I understand that the said objects become the exclusive property of the Library, and may be displayed, loaned or placed elsewhere in such a manner as the Library deems advisable.

A. GENERAL PHILOSOPHY

The Local History Collection is a separately housed, non-circulating, research collection consisting of works which relate the history, geography, geology, culture and socio-economic composition of Simcoe County with specific emphasis on Barrie and the surrounding townships of Oro, Innisfil, Vespra and Essa. The objective of the collection is to meet the patron's long-term informational, educational and research needs on topics of local history.

The traditional tendency of the pioneer to settle in the rural areas and then to migrate to the urban centres is found in Simcoe County; thus Barrie's development is mirrored in the development of the County as a whole.

The aim of the collection is to allow for the reconstruction and interpretation of the record of Barrie's and more broadly, Simcoe County's past, to establish a formal record of the formation and growth of the county and to provide a recorded explanation of how and why society in the county has arrived at its present condition.

Basic Collection Parameters

a. Special emphasis is placed on collecting materials on Barrie and the immediately surrounding Townships of Oro, Vespra, Essa and Innisfil. Included are books, pamphlets, atlases, maps, newspapers (i.e. hard copy of special issues), cemetery listings, church histories and other relevant documents.

b. All materials about local history will be collected, regardless of viewpoint.

c. Gifts and donations to the collection will be accepted and added to the collection in accordance with the library's general policy for donations.

B. MATERIALS SELECTION CRITERIA

a. Primary Materials

Collection emphasis is on secondary source materials - it is the role of the Simcoe County Archives to collect and preserve original documents relevant to the County and its history. Copies of original manuscripts relating to the local history of Simcoe County or the genealogy of its residents will be collected.
j. Family Histories
Copies of family histories of residents of Barrie and Simcoe County are collected. Patrons are encouraged to donate originals to the Simcoe County Archives for preservation.

k. Cemetery Records
Cemetery records for Barrie and Simcoe County are collected.

l. Local Architecture
Works describing the domestic and corporate architecture of Barrie buildings will be included along with photographs and postcards which record the architectural history of Barrie.

m. Ephemerai Materials
To be included, are materials whose subject matter is relevant to geographical areas beyond the boundaries of Simcoe County, but which have a direct and significant impact on some aspect of life in the County e.g. publications of the South Lake Simcoe County Conservation Authority, based in York Region, which impact on Lake Simcoe.

n. Photographs
Photographs and postcards depicting prominent people, and the architecture, landscape and geographical formations of the local area are collected.

o. Maps and Gazetteers
Maps and gazetteers depicting Barrie or Simcoe County, including Barrie are collected.

p. Oral History
Oral histories on tape are included in the collection.

C. RESEARCH MATERIALS FOR GENEALOGICAL RESEARCH
Types of local history materials to be shelved in the general non-fiction collection:

a. Guides to the principles and procedures of genealogical searching.

b. Guides to records which provide genealogical information.
INTRODUCTION

The following policy and procedures administer the Local History Collection. They are to be reviewed on an annual basis by the Local History Librarian and will be updated as necessary and filed in the Procedures Manual.

ROLE AND SCOPE OF THE LOCAL HISTORY COLLECTION

The purpose of the Local History Collection is to collect and preserve the written and secondary source materials on the history of the city of Brampton and the former Townships of Chinguacousy and Toronto Gore, for the benefit of researchers and the general public. It is the responsibility of the library to make historical materials available on a restricted basis to patrons of the collection and to hold these in trust for future generations.

The major emphasis of the collection is Brampton and the former Townships of Chinguacousy and Toronto Gore. Other geographical areas are added only if they include important information on the history of these areas. Formats collected are unlimited and include books, pamphlets, brochures, flyers, posters, diaries, journals, letters, newspapers, newspaper clippings, scrapbooks, notebooks, minutes, government publications and records, grave registers, cemetery records, maps, photographs, audio recordings, videotapes, and film strips.

Subject areas that are related to the history of Brampton and the former Townships of Chinguacousy and Toronto Gore are of interest to the collection are: business, science and technology, education, ethnic groups, native Canadians, social aspects, arts, politics, newspapers, agriculture, women, religion, family, professions, social welfare, work, unions, geography, prominent individuals and events.

In addition to considerations of location, time, and scope, decisions on the acquisition of material will be based on the costs, availability, space for storage, and user demand.

Continual effort will be made to locate relevant subject and general bibliographies to check the completeness of the holdings.

It is the responsibility of the Local History Librarian and the library to see to it that the collection permanently acquires only items that fit within the scope of the collection.
3. SELECTION

A. Items of a current and historical nature are judged for their relevancy to the collection criteria.

B. The Local History Librarian annually develops a collection development program.

C. The Local History Librarian uses a variety of selection aids to identify possible acquisitions: rare book/out of print catalogues, regular trade publications and catalogues, local newspapers and newsletters, patron input etc.

D. The Government Publications Librarian will generally order two copies of all publications issued by the city of Brampton and by all quasi-governmental bodies with primary jurisdiction in the City of Brampton. The first copy will be held in Government Publications, the second copy in Local History. If only one copy is available, it will be held in Government publications.

E. For publications issued by the Region of Peel, Peel Board of Education, Dufferin-Peel Roman Catholic Separate School Board and other quasi-governmental bodies with jurisdiction throughout the Region of Peel, the Government Publications Librarian will consult with the Local History Librarian about the need to order a second copy.

4. ACQUISITION

A. After verification, complete ordering information is forwarded to the Head, Reference and Special Information Services Division for approval. If approved, the ordering slips are forwarded to either Technical Services or to the Government Publications Librarian for ordering. Upon receipt all items are forwarded to the Local History Librarian.

B. Donations are accepted by the Local History Librarian if the material conforms to the collection policy. A letter acknowledging receipt of a donation is sent by the Local History Curator, with a copy to the Head, Reference and Special Information Services Division. The Local History Source File is completed to document the donation (see Appendix A).

C. Acquisition of ephemeral material and newspaper clippings: (see Appendix B).

D. Acquisition of high school yearbooks: (see Appendix C).

E. The Local History Librarian arranges with Technical Services and Government Publications to receive issues prior to 1974 of designated serials and standing orders. For example: Agendas, Minutes and Reports of Regional/Municipal Governments, Peel Board of Education, Dufferin-Peel Roman Catholic Separate School Board and Brampton Public Library.

5. DISCARDING MATERIALS

Since the collection is a research collection, the library does not generally discard materials unless it does not fit within the scope of the collection.

6. ORGANIZATION

A. Cataloguing is the responsibility of the Local History Curator. The Curator assigns each item to a subject area (see Appendix D) and assigns each item an alpha-numeric code number (see Appendix E).

B. The Local History Curator completes the Input sheet for Local History as per established procedure (see Appendix F), and forwards them to clerical staff for processing.

C. Processing is the responsibility of clerical staff. The Input Sheets are processed in a format consistent with similar entries in the Local History Catalogue. The processed page is inserted into the Catalogue by the Curator.

D. Items are not stamped with the Library's ownership stamp nor are archival materials mutilated by attaching labels or markings of any kind.

E. Extra copies of pamphlet file material are kept in separate envelopes.

F. Envelopes containing a number of items will have noted the total number of items contained in the envelope near the alpha-numeric number and all such items will be individually coded.

G. Clerical staff will type finding aids, bibliographies, etc.
7. MAINTENANCE AND PRESERVATION
   A. The Local History Curator shelves all materials and performs shelf reading of the collection.
   B. The Local History Curator checks the collection for items in need of repair. Minor repairs are referred to clerical staff and major repairs are referred to Technical Services. Repairs/preservation of archival material requiring professional attention are referred to the Head, Reference and Special Information Services Division.
   C. Branch Secretary maintains the catalogue on the word processor.

8. DELIVERY OF SERVICE
   A. The Local History Collection is stored in the locked Local History Room located at the Chinguacousy Resource Branch. Library patrons are not permitted access to the Local History Room. Local History microfilm is stored in a locked cabinet on the second floor of the Chinguacousy Resource Branch.
   B. The collection is for reference use only. No items will leave the library.
   C. Access to the Collection is provided through a separate, manual Local History Catalogue.
   D. Information Services staff are able to retrieve items from the collection dealing with general inquiries. Inquiries requiring an in-depth search are referred to the Local History Librarian or the Curator in his/her absence.
   E. Material from the collection is available during regular library hours and only when adequate supervision of the material is possible by Information Services staff. Adequate supervision is the ability of staff to periodically and conveniently view the patron and his/her use of the material. Local History material is not made available for use when such supervision is impossible.
   F. All patrons are required to produce proper identification in order to handle items stored in the Local History Collection. Patrons must fill out the Local History Inquiry Form (see Appendix G).
   G. Staff retrieve the items from the Local History room. No more than three separately catalogued items may be given to a patron at one time. Multiple items kept in one envelope must be counted by staff once the patron has completed using them. Envelopes containing single items must likewise be inspected.
   H. Photographs are generally stored in clear plastic covers (2 photographs per cover) which are then placed in a binder. This binder is not to be removed from the Local History room; only the plastic cover containing the requested photograph should be removed and given to the patron. Both photographs given must be noted on the inquiry form.

9. STATISTICS
   A. The Local History Curator completes the Local History Monthly Statistics Form (see Appendix H) each month and forwards a copy to the Local History Librarian.

10. GUARDIAN INDEX
    A. The Local History Curator indexes the Guardian on a weekly basis by completing the Input Sheet for Local Newspaper Index (see Appendix I). The Curator creates new subject headings as is necessary and checks and files the completed cards.

11. PROMOTION
    A. The Local History Librarian assists the Extension Department by setting up displays, writing articles, addressing community groups, preparing promotional materials, etc.

12. SUMMARY OF RESPONSIBILITIES
    A. Local History Librarian
       - overall responsibility for the collection
       - selection (collection development and analysis)
       - promotion
    B. Local History Curator
       - cataloguing
       - statistics
       - shelving
       - Guardian Index
       - research
APPENDIX B

EPHEMERA

For the purpose of the Local History Collection ephemera is defined as follows:

Materials which were produced to be used to pass information on from person to person, and particularly ones that mention names, places, and dates.

They include:
- Programs
- Menus
- Organizational reports
- Handbills
- Funeral Notices
- Sales Notices
- Wedding announcements
- Advertisements and posters
- Ballots
- Report Cards

EPHEMERA ACQUISITION

1. The clerical staff member responsible for the Community Board at the Chinguacousy Branch forwards all material removed from the board to the Local History Curator. The Curator selects items from this material.

2. The Local History Curator targets service and social groups within the community with the aid of the Community Services Directory. These groups would receive a letter requesting a copy of any materials to be forwarded on an on-going basis.

3. The Local History Curator will extend the Guardian indexing to choose items to be clipped for the Local History Curator.

APPENDIX C

HIGH SCHOOL YEARBOOKS

Policy: The Library obtains copies of all local high school and selected other local school yearbooks for addition to the Local History Collection. If necessary, copies are purchased by the Library.

Procedure: 1. Local History staff inform Serials of any new schools for which yearbooks should be requested.

2. Annually in April, Serials will write a standard letter to each school indicating for which years yearbooks are required. The letter will be the Initial letter for new schools or Repeat letter for schools to whom letters have been previously sent.

3. If there is no response by May, a Reminder letter will be sent.

4. If there is still no response by June, Serials will contact the school by telephone. If cost is the problem, Serials will offer to purchase the yearbook.

5. On receipt of yearbooks Serials will note years received on the letter and forward books to the Local History Curator.

6. If the library is informed of non-availability of any years, Serials note this information on the letter and inform the Local History Curator.
The Burlington Collection, housed in the Galloway Room, contains current and historical materials which relate to Burlington and Halton Region.

ACCESS

Access to the Galloway Room is closed to the public but materials from the Burlington Collection are generally available whenever the library is open.

Patrons can determine which materials are needed by consulting the online catalogue, the Burlington Collection Where-To-Look file or one of the local history finding aids.

Information Desk staff are available to assist patrons with their query and to supply requested materials. If research is of an in-depth nature, the patron is advised to speak with the Librarian responsible for local history.

USE

In order to protect the collection, up to three pieces of material will be given to a patron at one time. Materials must be used on the Upper Level.

Upon receipt of materials, patrons must present a valid B.P.L. library card or a piece of I.D. bearing an address, such as a driver's licence.

Book cards clipped to items will be removed and held with the I.D. until all materials are returned. For files without cards, staff will note the nature and number given and attach I.D.

Much of the collection is unique, fragile, and irreplaceable. Patrons are requested to handle materials with care, especially if photocopying, and to ensure that materials are returned to the proper files.

Staff will check to see that all materials are in place before returning I.D.

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS

Some local groups have deposited materials in the Galloway Room for safekeeping. In order to consult or update their materials, designates of these groups will be allowed into the Galloway Room to work with their materials only.

Special arrangements have been made by a few groups and individuals to access collections in the Galloway Room.

In the above cases a list of names is appended and is updated regularly. Library staff may request I.D. before allowing access to the Galloway Room.

BURLINGTON HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Also in the Galloway Room are the records of the Burlington Historical Society. Most of these records have been photocopied for the Burlington Collection. B.H.S. records will not be given out to library patrons.

Members of the Historical Society may be allowed in the Galloway Room to consult and update their materials. Members from LACAC (Local Architectural Conservation Advisory Committee) may also use Historical Society materials. Library staff may request I.D. and membership before allowing access.

Any questions regarding use policy and procedure for the Galloway Room and for the collections held within should be directed to the Librarian responsible for local history.

Update - November 1994

LACAC is in the process of transferring their records to the Galloway Room and will have a reciprocal use arrangement with the BHS.

We own all records deposited with the library except for those of the BHS and LACAC.

If you have any questions about the handling or use of the material, please do not hesitate to ask.
OBJECTIVE:

TO COLLECT, PRESERVE AND MAKE READILY ACCESSIBLE INFORMATION RELATED TO THE HISTORICAL EVOLUTION OF THE GREATER HAMILTON AREA.

ROLE STATEMENT:

Special Collections is a repository for the collection, processing and accessing of information, in a wide variety of formats, relating to the historical development of the City of Hamilton and the Hamilton-Wentworth region.

Special Collections' resources are particularly directed to the information needs of researchers, genealogists, students (secondary and post-secondary) and interested individuals seeking materials relating to the history of Hamilton and the Hamilton-Wentworth region.

The Department also houses a major Canadian book collection, and a representative rare book collection, for use by library patrons as reference materials, not for circulation. Canadian literature relating to the War of 1812 and Arctic explorations is emphasized. Local histories of Ontario communities are actively collected.

Located in a separate, secured, climatically-controlled area of the Central Library's third floor, the Special Collections' storage areas contain valuable, and in many cases, irreplaceable items (notably books, photographs, maps and archives). These items require specialized, detailed knowledge to process and make available in response to public requests.

Use of Special Collections' materials requires direct supervision to ensure their careful use and to prevent theft or damage due to carelessness or vandalism.

The Canadian book collection serves as a major reference resource collection, particularly as regards to materials related to Canadian history and literature.

Liaison, whether directly or indirectly, with area heritage institutions and organizations is an important component of Special Collections' role in the community. Special Collections' staff often refer patrons to external heritage sources of information, and are often asked to participate in special projects such as publications, significant anniversaries, etc., relating to the work of area heritage organizations.

The Special Collections' staff of 5.5 FTE (as of December 1, 1993), plus page and shelf reader assistance, strive to operate the department which is open to the public 59 hours per week, plus 4 hours on Sundays during the fall and winter.

Special Collections' staff respond to questions delivered in person, by telephone or by letter.

RECEIPT FOR VALUABLE PAPERS

Your donation of is gratefully acknowledged. A receipt containing a proper evaluation of the materials has been prepared for your records and will act as a means of verifying this as a donation for income tax purposes.

It is understood that you and/or your organization (represented by an executive officer) have agreed with the Hamilton Public Library to house the materials in question with the Hamilton Public Library on a permanent basis and that these materials become the property of the Library.

The Hamilton Public Library further agrees to provide proper and safe storage of the materials and to carry out any conservation procedures as may be necessary to repair or maintain these items. The Hamilton Public Library reserves the right to determine the maximum number of copies of items to be retained from this donation.

The Hamilton Public Library agrees to acknowledge at all times the origin of these items and reserves the right to display or use them in the course of its activities as a public library in the area of public interest for research.

The Canadiana Collection Plan

Canadiana Collections

The Mississauga Library Canadiana Collection provides a variety of resources to support research on the history and development of Southern Ontario with particular emphasis on the area now incorporated as the City of Mississauga and the Region of Peel. The collection will collect appropriate rare and out of print titles as well as relevant current materials. Materials are acquired by purchase from book dealers and publishers, by transfer from other Mississauga Library System collections, and from donations from the City of Mississauga and the general public. The collection is divided into four sections: the Ruth Konrad Collection of Canadiana, the Canadiana Reference Collection, the Local Archives and the Historical Photograph Collection. All of the Canadiana collections will be catalogued to enhance public access.

Ruth Konrad Collection of Canadiana (RKLH)

The Ruth Konrad Canadiana Collection consists of the core collection of fine old and rare books. The focus of the collection is on the Province of Ontario with particular emphasis on the County and Region of Peel. Materials for this collection are largely acquired by purchase from rare book dealers and by transfer from other departments. Items will be considered for inclusion in this collection if they are particularly rare, old or of local interest. The location code for this collection is RKLH.

Canadiana Reference Collection (CNARK)

This collection contains a wide variety of Canadiana material not found in the Ruth Konrad Collection. It is composed of books on a wide variety of topics that are deemed to be of permanent interest as well as government documents that relate to local issues. The collection contains extensive microform resources including copies of all available Canadian Census records for Ontario, Mississauga community newspapers and other documents and information. Material for this collection is acquired by purchase, by transfer from other departments, and by donations from the general public. In addition, the Local Press Clipping scrapbooks are maintained to provide information not otherwise available. These scrapbooks require staff to continue searching local news sources for appropriate current information. The location code for this collection is CNARK.

Local Archives

This collection contains material relating to the Region of Peel not suitable for cataloguing nor inclusion in the book collections. Letters, diaries, handbills, brochures, manuscripts and other similar material are collected from current sources and by donation. Because of the ephemeral nature of this material, it must be collected as produced so the department must maintain appropriate mailing lists and approach potential donors. Each archival file heading is fully catalogued to ensure public access.

Mississauga Historical Photograph Collection

This collection contains a great many slides documenting the growth and physical changes that have occurred in Mississauga in the past century. New photographs will be acquired through donation and through cooperation with City departments that can provide new photographs of significant sites. The department will continue to solicit copies of old photographs of Mississauga people and places. This collection has been popular with a wide range of patrons interested in acquiring images of Mississauga for decoration, presentation and for research purposes. Public access to the collection is maintained through manual indexes and through a computer entry with appropriate subject headings.

Historical Maps

The department maintains a collection of historical maps primarily on local topics. This collection will grow as appropriate old maps become available and new maps are produced. In addition to maps, old and historical posters and art reproductions are kept.
Mississauga Library System
Canadiana Reading Room

Security Procedures

The Ruth Konrad Collection of Canadiana is a Special Collection housed at Central Library and supported by the History and Geography Department. The collection is a unique archive of information in diverse formats (books, scrapbooks, maps, photographs, slides) which tells the story of the widely varied experiences of life in Mississauga from the original inhabitants to the latest immigrants. It is a collection that mirrors the city's unique identity. The collection celebrates the city's and country's heritage and is invaluable for serious researchers.

For these reasons, strict security procedures protect this collection of rare materials:

1. Hours of opening are limited to eight hours a day, five days per week to ensure adequate staffing.

2. No material is retrieved from the Canadiana Reading Room outside these hours.

3. No material is used outside the Canadiana Reading Room, that is, in the public areas of the Library.

4. No material is borrowed for use at home/school/work from the Canadiana Reading Room under any circumstances.

5. Photocopying of material is allowed, but the researcher must be accompanied by a staff member.

6. The Canadiana Reading Room is locked at all times. During hours of opening, researchers must knock for admittance to the Reading Room.

7. Specially designated Canadiana Reading Room staff are scheduled to monitor the Room and retrieve information for researchers at all hours of opening during the Room's five-day week. Staff members are scheduled to cover coffee breaks and lunches of the Reading Room staff.

8. All Canadiana material, in all its diverse formats, is recorded by staff during the period of its use in the Reading Room: the date, time of day, name and phone number of each researcher, and the specific titles retrieved for use are recorded in the Reading Room binder by the staff.
LOCAL HISTORY COLLECTION
GOALS & OBJECTIVES

Goal 1:
To collect, promote, and provide access to knowledge and materials about the Town of Orangeville and Dufferin County, in cooperation with the Dufferin County Museum and Archives.

Objective 1:
The Orangeville Public Library will acquire, maintain, and make available to the public the following items:
1. Orangeville newspapers on microfilm
2. Historical atlases for Dufferin and surrounding counties
3. Cemetery transcriptions for Dufferin county
4. Census returns on microfilm for Dufferin county
5. Family histories for Dufferin county
6. Town of Orangeville Council minutes, reports, and bylaws
7. Studies and reports prepared for or by the County of Dufferin
8. Books on Dufferin county
9. Books by Dufferin county residents
10. Selected books on the surrounding areas, including Caledon, Halton-Peel, Wellington, Simcoe, Bruce, and Grey.

Objective 2:
The Library's Local History collection will not contain any archival material. Any that is donated to the Library will be sent to the Dufferin County Museum and Archives. In turn, the DCMA will allow the Library to photocopy files, archival documents and material, and other information for its collection. The DCMA will keep the Library informed of any recent acquisitions of interest to the Library's collection that the Library may photocopy or purchase.

Objective 3:
The Library will provide space for rotating Museum displays. The Library will work with the Museum's Programme and Education Coordinator to develop cooperative programmes for children and adults.

Objective 4:
The Library will provide an information and referral service to the public with respect to DCMA holdings, services, events, etc. The Museum will supply the Library with a current list of holdings so that the Library may supply the public with accurate information. The DCMA will provide an information and referral service to the public with respect to the Library's holdings, hours, services, etc. and the Library will supply the DCMA with current information.

Goal 2:
To provide genealogists with limited guidance, current resources, and access to materials and information not only for Dufferin County but for the province of Ontario, and in some cases, Canada-wide.

Objective 1:
The Library will provide basic, current genealogy guides, resource books and indexes to material that is available such as the Inventory of Newspapers, Angus Baxter's genealogy guides, the Indexes to the Census Returns for Canada, etc.

Objective 2:
The Library will provide an Interlibrary Loan service with the Archives of Ontario to provide microfilm that the Archives has now made available for interloan. This includes Cemetery Transcriptions, Death Indexes and Registrations, Birth Indexes and Registrations, Marriage Indexes and Registrations, Land Records, Court Records, etc. for the entire province.

Objective 3:
The Library will provide an Interlibrary Loan service with the National Library of Canada for census returns on microfilm and other available materials.

Objective 4:
The Library's Reference department staff will answer basic inquiries by mail. Patrons will be referred to appropriate agencies (i.e. DCMA) whenever possible. Research will not be undertaken by Library staff. Photocopies may be provided.

REFERENCE DEPARTMENT
OTTAWA ROOM COLLECTION POLICY

As approved by AMC
March 20, 1991

OTTAWA ROOM
INTRODUCTION

This collection was begun in the mid 1950's as part of the Ottawa Public Library's contribution to the centenary of the City of Ottawa in 1955.

From the beginning it was considered to be a general local materials collection which would include a strong element of local history, but would also emphasize Ottawa authors and publishers (excluding the Government of Canada) in all fields.

When the new central library building opened in 1973, the Ottawa Room collection which by then had grown considerably, was housed in this special climate controlled room. The room was subsequently relocated to the third floor during the reorganization of the Main Library in the Fall of 1990. Administratively, the Ottawa Room forms an integral part of the Reference Department.

Over the years, the collection has expanded so that it now functions as a full deposit for the documents of the City of Ottawa and the RMOC, in addition to its function as a deposit for local history, local authors, and local publishers.

I. AUTHORS, PERSONAL:

a) All works in some editions/forms of persons born and raised in the Ottawa-Carleton region subject to minimum selection criteria.

b) All works in all editions/forms, produced by persons while resident in the Ottawa-Carleton region for at least 10 years. The Ottawa Room librarian has some discretion as to the forms selected and as to the residency required.

1 Works include fiction and nonfiction, trade and educational, commercially produced publications; privately published books, pamphlets, speeches, lectures, etc. In the case of federal government monographs, the local author must have clearly written the whole work by himself/herself and the work must be a substantial monograph and have substantial local interest. Excluded are short works (i.e. essays, short stories, poems, etc.) published in collections (i.e. anthologies, periodicals, etc.) which are not published locally and comprising no other material of local interest. An effort will be made to record the source of these short works in the Ottawa Index.

2 Editions means special, numbered editions; the first printing of the first edition; all significant reprints or reissues of the work when some alteration or addition has been made, i.e. a change in the original content or a new critical introduction or preface; every translation, not English/French only. Reprints in exact facsimile or duplicate copies may be acquired as working copies in order to preserve the original copies extant, especially when our original copies are in frail condition.

3 Forms means hardbound or paperback copies of the original edition; microform; audiotape recordings, comic books, etc. In all cases, the hardbound edition is to be preferred. The selection of the same work in other forms is to be at the discretion of the Ottawa Room librarian. The audiovisual aspect of the Ottawa Room collection awaits future development.

4 Excludes works by and about federal members of Parliament and the Senate.
II. AUTHORS, CORPORATE:

a) All legislative and administrative reports, maps, studies, papers, in monograph or serial form, hard copy or microform, produced by the Regional Municipality of Ottawa-Carleton and the City of Ottawa.

b) All major reports, studies, in monograph or serial form, hard copy or microform, published by local Ottawa-Carleton non-governmental institutions and organizations: e.g. social agencies, hospitals, churches, companies, political parties, societies, clubs, and associations.

c) A selection of major reports and studies by local governmental and non-governmental organizations in the Ottawa-Carleton region.

1 Major means a document which makes a significant descriptive statement about the organization which produced it: an historical or critical survey, annual financial and activities report, constitution, by-laws, regulations, etc., or a document which contributes significantly to the discussion of a specific issue or problem: technical studies, planning documents, briefs presenting recommendations for action.

2 Local means those institutions having a predominantly Ottawa-Carleton orientation for their activities and goals. Provincial or national organizations based in Ottawa-Carleton are not included here. Exceptions may be certain local chapters of provincial, national, or international organizations; eg. Ontario Genealogical Society, Ottawa Branch.

3 Ottawa-Carleton means the Regional Municipality of Ottawa-Carleton (RMOC).

III. PUBLISHERS:

a) Includes works published by publishers in the Ottawa-Carleton region, provided such publications are written by a local author, as noted in Section I, or where the subject is relevant, as noted in Section IV.

b) Publisher may be a commercial publishing company or a private individual.

c) The federal government as a publisher is excluded here, except as noted in Section I(a) or where the subject is relevant, as defined in Section IV.

d) In the case of private or self-published materials, the Ottawa Room librarian will use discretion in assessing the relevance of these materials, using the Ottawa Public Library Book Selection Statement.

IV. SUBJECTS:

The geographical setting of the Ottawa Room collection includes the region of Ottawa-Carleton, and more generally the whole of the Ottawa Valley (including the valleys of its tributaries, i.e. Rideau Valley) and all its townships and towns (see Addenda 1 and 2).

a) For the Ottawa-Carleton Region, the entire subject range is to be included. Works of fiction in this geographical setting (including works placed elsewhere, but where the fictional characters have a connection with this setting) are to be included. Maps and atlases: topographic, thematic, insurance, planning maps which describe this setting, or the geographical units within it.

b) For the Ottawa Valley, the emphasis is on biographical, genealogical, historical, geographic, and heritage materials. Topographic and thematic maps and atlases are to be collected.
V. PERIODICALS AND NEWSPAPERS:

Includes all daily newspapers produced in the Ottawa-Carleton region. All weekly and irregularly issued newspapers published in Ottawa-Carleton only. A selection of other periodical publications in the Ottawa-Carleton region: e.g. newsletters issued by local associations and societies, magazines which mostly contain local subject matter or local authorship.

VI. POLITICAL CAMPAIGN LITERATURE:

All printed materials issued by all candidates contesting the municipal elections in the City of Ottawa. All printed material for all candidates contesting provincial and federal constituencies within Ottawa-Carleton.

VII. GIFTS:

All material that qualifies under the collection policy guidelines will be gratefully received, providing there are no stipulations as to final disposition. Gifts of an archival nature may be transferred to the City of Ottawa Archives.

VIII. DESIDERATA

We maintain wants lists of older out-of-print materials listed in used book dealers' catalogues when we are unable to purchase these titles at the time they are listed because of budget restraints or because we were too late.

IX. ACCESS

A special effort is made to develop and maintain in-house finding aids, including indexes, bibliographies, pathfinders, etc. to provide enhanced access to the collection.
