APPENDIX: HANDOUTS FOR TRAINING PEACE EDUCATION VOLUNTEERS FOR UN50
INTRODUCTION

Celebrating 50 Years of the United Nations

The United Nations is in the news almost daily, as peacekeeping and peacemaking missions gain international attention. Yet little is taught in our schools about the history and functions of the United Nations. Few of our children -- or their teachers -- have a clear understanding of how the UN came to exist, how it works, or how this global organization is helping solve some of the difficult problems facing the world community.

The 50th Anniversary of the United Nations in 1995 offers a unique opportunity to look back, take stock of where we are, and look forward to a new millennium of hope for global cooperation. Our children need an understanding of how the United Nations serves the needs of all people and the planet. Teachers need to know how to get ahold of the latest UN information educational materials.

The United Nations Association educates people worldwide about the issues, projects, and programs of the United Nations. UNA members in the United States (UNA-USA) have developed a number of educational programs appropriate for students and teachers at all levels. UNA members on the local level have developed creative ways to deliver the message of hope from the UN to students, and share materials with teachers.

THE UNA-USA/GAINESVILLE (FL) EXPERIENCE

In 1993, nine UNA volunteers participated in two volunteer training sessions in order to honor United Nations Day in the schools. Then, individually and in teams, they visited classrooms and provided basic information about the United Nations to more than 1,000 children and teachers, at the request of teachers throughout the city. The creative and innovative presentations developed by these volunteers informed, delighted, and inspired students and teachers from kindergarten through high school.

This manual builds on the UNA-USA/Gainesville experience to help other volunteers prepare to "teach peace" during the 50th Anniversary of the United Nations, and to provide educational resources for UN50.

A MESSAGE OF HOPE

May the PEACE EDUCATION VOLUNTEERS FOR UN50 share their personal understanding of the United Nations, providing a message of hope for all. May the educational, service, and religious organizations working together for UN50 create a wonderful synergy for peace, and inspire ongoing education -- in homes, schools, and communities -- for a peaceful world.

Sue Blythe
Gainesville, Florida
GOAL:
The goal of the training workshops is to help volunteers prepare themselves to give age-appropriate presentations on the United Nations and peacemaking in schools and other meeting places.

PLANNING AND PREPARATION
The guidelines provided here are based on the experience of volunteers in Gainesville, Florida. This is one way of organizing and training your volunteers. Your comments and suggestions are most welcome.

Who can provide the training?
- Any individual or group can support the 50th Anniversary of the United Nations by coordinating this training.
- Professional educators are a valuable asset to the training process, but are NOT a prerequisite. Anyone with good intentions IS qualified!

Who will coordinate the training?
- One person to serve as overall coordinator
- Two to four committee members to support and help coordinate
- Any additional help your group needs can be recruited along the way.

What are the tasks and who will do them?
- See HANDOUT #1: Planning and Preparation Worksheet
- Let members choose the tasks they are most comfortable with -- and assign the rest!
Who can be PEACE EDUCATION VOLUNTEERS FOR UN50?

Your volunteers can come from a variety of resources. You may want to advertise in local papers, and send invitations to:

- Members of your local UNA
- Members of other organizations, service or religious groups supporting UN50 - including Rotary Clubs, Baha’is, Presbyterians, United Methodist, World Federalists.
- See the list of UN50 activities on HANDOUT #2.
- Ask your local UNA Coordinator for UN50 for names of other organizations in your area that are also supporting UN50., or contact UNA/USA Headquarters at (212) 697-3232.
- Parents and other volunteers at schools
- Volunteer organizations
- Anyone who loves the idea of world peace (individuals and members of other peace-related groups in your community) -- including:
  - Veterans for Peace
  - Grandparents for Peace
  - Partners for Peace
  - Kids for Peace
  - Peace Campers
- Other religious, service and educational organizations
What materials will we need?

HANDOUT #3: BASIC UN INFORMATION AND RESOURCES gives ideas on materials you might want to have available for your volunteers and teachers:

Materials for preparing volunteers

Select basic informational pamphlets to send to volunteers prior to the workshop. These should give an overview of the history, present functioning and possible futures of the United Nations.

Materials for the workshop

Your volunteer library may include UN, UNA, UNICEF, and Peace Education Now resources. These will give a range of options for your volunteers, and stimulate creative presentations.

Materials to take to the schools

You may want resource materials to use in your activities, and make available to teachers, such as:

- UN Flags (the complete set makes a wonderful backdrop for any activity!)
- UN and UNICEF books, story and activity books, etc.

Think about some kind of "gift" or souvenir relating to the United Nations volunteers can leave with each classroom visited:

- United Nations flag (purchased or handmade)
- posters of the UN Flags
- framed quotation or picture
- UNICEF gift

Copies of the resource pages may be copied to distribute to teachers.

ORDER EARLY!
Any materials you want to send out ahead of time or provide for your workshop may take 6-8 weeks to arrive.
How will we notify the schools?

- Publicity and flyer. You can use the sample flyer (HANDOUT #4), filling in your own contact information. Or you may want to design your own flyer or other means of advertising.

- Personal contact. If your numbers are few, you may wish to work with just a few schools. Then personal contact is probably best. You can approach the principal, a teacher you know, or a curriculum resource teachers.

- School District. If you anticipate having a cadre of volunteers, you can publicize your project to the school district. (You can always send a letter with UN information if the response is overwhelming for the number of volunteers!)

  - If there is a Volunteer Coordinator in your school district, discuss your plans. You may need to adapt to meet the needs of your school district.

  - If there is no District Volunteer Coordinator, you will need to notify each school individually. Mailing labels can usually be purchased from --or donated by-- the school district.
When and where will we hold the training?

- You can have your training in a home, a school, a religious or service organization, a business -- any place that's available and comfortable for both large and small group work.

- If you schedule your meeting during school hours, you'll know that the volunteers are really available during the school day.

- If you want to prepare volunteers to work in religious and service organizations (YMCA, Rotary, etc.), you may want to schedule your workshops in the evening or on weekends.

How long will the training take?

Workshops will take place during the weeks prior to your announced visits to the schools. They should be spaced with 1-2 weeks between, to allow for preparation and practice of the presentation.

- Workshop 1 — Preparing the presentation
  About 4 hours. This will include a lunch or snack break.

- Workshop 2 — Rehearsing the presentation
  About 4 hours. Volunteers should be prepared to stay that long, to allow thorough presentations and feedback.

GOALS

In this workshop each participant will

- get to know the team of PEACE EDUCATION VOLUNTEERS FOR UN50
- identify and share a personal view of the nature of the UN.
- focus on one age group to teach about the United Nations
- learn appropriate activities for developmental stages of learning
- review some techniques for resolving conflicts nonviolently, from personal to global levels
- begin to create a personalized presentation for students

STRATEGIES

- Getting to know the team of PEACE EDUCATION VOLUNTEERS FOR UN50

As workshop leader, you will set the example, then ask each volunteer to:

- Introduce yourself
- tell where you've lived in the world
- describe your knowledge of and experience with the United Nations

- Developing a personal statement on the past, present and future of the United Nations

- You will choreograph a quiet, reflective moment in which the VOLUNTEERS will create their personal statement on the United Nations. This step is helpful in clarifying what is important to communicate to young people about the UN.
- Prepare the background music. This will be played after reading a selection on the basic goals of the United Nations.
- Make sure everyone has a pencil or pen, and HANDOUT #5: MY PERSONAL STATEMENT. This will be used at the end of the next activity.
- HANDOUT #6: QUOTES. If you find the quotes helpful, have the VOLUNTEERS read them (aloud or silently) before the next activity.
• Setting the Tone. The following reading will set the tone for a reflection on the significance of the United Nations -- its history, its present activity, and its potential for peacemaking in the future.

• Ask two VOLUNTEERS to read these statements from Robert Muller and Franklin Roosevelt:

READER 1

Robert Muller, former Assistant Secretary-General of the United Nations, and Chancellor for the University for Peace in Costa Rica, received the 1989 UNESCO Peace Education Prize, which he shared with the International Peace Research Association (IPRA), in Paris.

READER 2:

In accepting the prize, Mr. Muller expressed a hope that the United States of America would:

... resume their visionary and dynamic role at the United Nations and in all specialized agencies of the UN, so indispensable at this crucial stage of history when world problems multiply unceasingly. [He said,] I often remember these last lines which Franklin Roosevelt wrote in his own hand on the day of his death, for a speech he was to deliver at the opening of the San Francisco Conference convened to give birth to the United Nations from the ashes and blood of the millions of dead of the second world war:

READER 1:

The work, my friends, is peace: more than an end of this war -- an end to the beginning of all wars. I ask you to keep up your faith. The only limit to our realization of tomorrow will be our doubts of today. Let us move forward with a strong and active faith.

Franklin D. Roosevelt
And since it is in the minds of men that wars begin, ... it is ... in the schools of the world that an end to the beginnings of all wars must be made. ... Robert Muller, Chancellor University for Peace

READER 1:

Your personal statement of the significance of the United Nations -- past, present and future -- will have a dynamic impact on the students and people you visit.

Take a few minutes now to create your own message of the hope and vision you hold for the United Nations.

READER 2:

Write your own clear, concise statement of what the UN was in 1945 ... (pause)

of what it is now in 1995 ... (pause)

and what it will be in the 21st century ...

* Start the quiet background music. Allow 10-15 minutes for each person to complete a personal statement. (The UN was ... is ... will be ... *)

* When everyone is done, and while the mood is still reflective, turn the music to barely audible. Invite the volunteers to share their personal statements if they wish.

* Focusing on one age group to teach about the United Nations

  * Each volunteer will select the age range he/she would most like to work with. Mark the age preference in HANDOUT #7: MY PERSONAL PRESENTATION PLAN

  * Look at HANDOUT #8: AGE-APPROPRIATE ACTIVITIES

    Obviously, what works well in a middle school might not work at all in a second grade. These guidelines help volunteers choose activities that will be appropriate for the age groups they visit.

  * Collaboration is encouraged! Working in teams can be very effective -- both in preparation and in presentation.
Individuals, pairs and teams can prepare and/or present for one age group, then visit together.

One team could also prepare for different ages. Time and energy and commitment are the only barriers!

- Reviewing activities of the Gainesville Volunteers

  HANDOUT #9: SAMPLE ACTIVITIES summarizes some of the presentations provided by the Gainesville volunteers. These ideas can be used to develop personal presentation plans.

- Reviewing United Nations materials

  Review any materials which were sent out to the VOLUNTEERS to read prior to the workshop.

  HANDOUT #3: INFORMATION AND RESOURCES: UN and UNICEF MATERIALS FOR SCHOOLS AND LIBRARIES

  These materials may be helpful in planning current and future activities. The list can also be photocopied and left as a gift for teachers.

- Reviewing techniques for resolving conflicts without violence

  Tools for resolving differences nonviolently can help prevent confrontation and aggression in the home, on the playground, or in international situations. The basic formula appears on HANDOUT #10: RESOLVING CONFLICTS NONVIOLENTLY.

  - Cool down, agree to talk it over rather than fight it out.
  - Identify the problem.
  - Listen to both sides, focusing on feelings and needs.
  - Brainstorm possible solutions.
  - Choose a solution that both can agree on.
  - Check back to make sure the agreement is working.

  These steps help resolve conflicts between school children and between nations, when we take the time to use them. Many programs have been developed to help train students, teachers, and community workers.

  - Some of these materials are available on HANDOUT #11: RESOURCES FOR PEACE EDUCATION VOLUNTEERS FOR UN50. The resources on this page may be ordered from Peace Education Now on the ORDER FORM (HANDOUT #12)

    (Please note: We recommend that you order UN, UNA and UNICEF materials directly from the addresses on HANDOUT #3.)
• Reviewing sample volunteer presentations and resource materials
  • Provide VOLUNTEERS with enough time (perhaps 30-60 minutes) to review and discuss materials they have received, including:

  HANDOUTS

  • Resources for the group to explore:

    Books, flags, maps, posters, etc. from your personal collections or ordered from UN, UNA and UNICEF.

  Volunteers will begin planning their volunteer activities after the break.

BREAK  Lunch or snack

CREATING A PERSONALIZED PRESENTATION FOR STUDENTS

Now the volunteers will work individually and in groups to create their own presentations.

Volunteers (individually or in teams) will make decisions about each component of their presentation and write them in HANDOUT #7: MY PERSONAL PRESENTATION PLAN.

Consultation on possible ways an idea might be developed will enhance the presentations and enrich the learning and teaching that takes place -- among the volunteers as well as among the students they will visit.

Consultation with professional educators may be helpful at this stage. Volunteers may want to consult with friends following the workshop.

Also available for consultation on developing ideas:

Jim Olson, Director, UNNUSA
(212) 697-3232

Sue Blythe, Executive Director, Peace Education Now
(904) 376-0642
• PREPARING FOR THE NEXT MEETING

Encourage volunteers to meet with their teams, if necessary, to finalize presentation before the next meeting (in two weeks)

Each individual or group will stage a "dress rehearsal" for the other volunteers, who may offer suggestions for improving the delivery. Volunteers can anticipate a delightful diversity of presentations!
WORKSHOP 2: PRACTICING FOR PRESENTATIONS AND ENCOURAGING EACH OTHER

GOALS:

To give volunteers practice and feedback on the presentations they have developed.

To share any rehearsal experiences with children.

To offer each other suggestions for improving the presentations.

To encourage and support each other.

To share your team's ideas with others.

To provide ideas for further volunteer activities.

Give each volunteer or team an opportunity to demonstrate their presentation, ask any questions or request help with weak spots.

Acknowledge the strengths of each presentation, and the "peaceful qualities" it demonstrates (collaboration, interdependence, oneness, hope, faith, courage, courtesy, respect for differences, etc.)

Sharing your team's ideas with others

Your ideas are valuable to others who are planning similar volunteer activities for UN50 and other peace education themes. Complete HANDOUT #14: RESULTS OF THE VOLUNTEER EXPERIENCE

After you have completed your volunteer experience, you will complete this report. These reports can be shared with others from around the country through UN50 ONLINE -- and become part of a unique education process for UN50. (See HANDOUT #15: COMPUTER NETWORKING FOR UN50).
COORDINATING THE VOLUNTEERS

Distribute a promotional flyer to teachers about one month in advance. You may reproduce the HANDOUT #4, with appropriate dates and contact information.

You may want to include HANDOUT #13: OPPORTUNITIES FOR PEACE EDUCATION VOLUNTEERS, which lists significant dates in the UN and peace education calendars.

Ask your volunteer coordinator to help identify the best person in each school to receive notice about PEACE EDUCATION VOLUNTEERS FOR UN50.

- Elementary school notices can go to principals or Curriculum Resource Teachers
- High school notices can go to social studies teachers.
- Send notices to youth clubs, service and religious organizations, etc.

If your District Volunteer Coordinator is receiving the teacher requests, a volunteer for UN50 can assist with matching individual volunteers to the teacher requests.

A coordinator (from the schools or from your volunteer team) will need to call each volunteer to verify the time and place. Volunteers can call a few days before the visit to confirm where and when the presentation will take place, and to discuss need of any audio-visual equipment (overhead projectors, VCRs, etc.)
FOLLOW-UP GATHERING:
SHARING THE EXPERIENCE!

A pot-luck meal gave the Gainesville volunteers an opportunity to share their UN Volunteer experiences. The individual activities gained new meaning when we put them together as a whole.

Your group may also enjoy a follow-up meeting at the end of the volunteer period. This meeting will provide an opportunity to:

- share successes (a tape recording of this session can be valuable!)
- make suggestions for improving the presentations and/or the system
- Investigate other volunteer opportunities on HANDOUT #13: OPPORTUNITIES FOR PEACE EDUCATION VOLUNTEERS. Your group can offer its services for other UN days or special events. (The decision to continue the process can be made as a group or as individuals.)
- Record results of the individual presentations and plans for future activities on HANDOUT #14: RESULTS OF THE VOLUNTEER EXPERIENCE.

Sharing the Experience with Others

Send copies of HANDOUT #14: RESULTS OF THE VOLUNTEER EXPERIENCE that reflects your group’s presentations and results.

After you have completed your volunteer experience, you will fill out one more report (see p. 17). When complete, these reports (your plan, and your experience) can be shared with others in several ways:

- Send the completed reports for your volunteer team to Peace Education Now. They will be compiled for publication in a book about volunteer activities for UN50.
- If you or someone in your community has access to the Internet, you may send the results from your group via e-mail to peacednow@aol.com.
- You are invited to become an active participant in the VOLUNTEERS FOR UN50 area of the PEACE EDUCATION INSTITUTE on America Online. (See HANDOUT #15: COMPUTER NETWORKING FOR UN50 for more information.)

Give yourselves a pat on the back -- and a group hug!

Celebrating the 50th Anniversary of the United Nations 1945-1995
Excerpts from President Clinton's Address to the UN, October 1993

... It is wise to recall that the first words of the U.N. Charter are not "We, the government," but, "We, the people of the United Nations." That means in every country the teachers, the workers, the farmers, the professionals, the fathers, the mothers, the children, from the most remote village in the world to the largest metropolis, they are why we gather in this great hall. It is their futures that are at risk when we act or fail to act. It is they who ultimately pay our bills.

As we dream new dreams in this age when miracles now seem possible, let us focus on the lives of those people, and especially on the children who will inherit this world. Let us work with a new urgency, and imagine what kind of world we could create for them in the coming generations.

- Bill Clinton

1994: International Year of the Family. "Building the smallest democracy at the heart of society."

Our task must be to free ourselves ... by widening our circle of compassion to embrace all living creatures and the whole of nature.

- Albert Einstein

The Age of Nations is past. The task before us now, if we would not perish, is to shake off our ancient prejudices, and to build the earth.

- Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, 1936

No man I know of has gone to the moon that has not been affected... It is what I ... call instant global consciousness. Each man comes back with a feeling he is no longer only an American citizen. He doesn't like the way things are and he wants to improve them. It is a universal feeling among the astronauts.

- Edgar Mitchell, Astronaut

The earth is but one country and mankind its citizens.

- Baha'u'llah

They shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they make war anymore.

- The Bible

On this United Nations Day 1993, it is clear that the world Organization has begun a new chapter. In sharp contrast to past decades, the vast potential of the United Nations has been recognized. For international peace and security; for humanitarian assistance; for development in all aspects; for the protection of the planet; for the promotion of democracy and human rights, the United Nations is indispensable.

- Boutros Boutros-Ghali, UN Day 1993

HANDOUT #9
SAMPLE ACTIVITIES

These are some of the activities developed by volunteers for presentation to school children, from elementary to high school. Most volunteers found that the children knew little or nothing about the United Nations. To focus young children's attention, volunteers often started with such basic questions as:

- What is a nation? What is united?
- What do we mean by United Nations?

The United Nations is like a treasure chest. One volunteer prepared a toy treasure chest to help first graders see the many roles of the United Nations. From this treasure chest, she pulled a series of children's toys, and told a brief story about each:

- a dolphin: the UN helps endangered animals
- an elephant: the UN made a law to protect them so people wouldn't kill any more elephants for their ivory tusks
- a letter: the UN helps make sure mail gets delivered all over the world
- a stethoscope: the UN teaches people how to stay healthy

Songs of Peace. The flags of the United Nations and a videotape of earth from space set the stage at one after-school program. The children visited in three groups, K-1, Grades 2-3, Grades 4-5. The volunteer sang songs of peace and talked with the children about peacemaking in their own homes and schools.

"The United Nations is about people of the world," one volunteer told a second grade class. As she told about the work of the United Nations, the children made a collage of the world, using pictures of people from all over the world (cut out from 15 years of saved National Geographic magazines!).

An Imaginary trip to the UN. Third graders put on their imaginary space suits, then took an imaginary trip into space to gaze at the "big blue marble" of Earth. The voyage continued to New York City and the United Nations Building. (In the classroom, the children saw a set of UN flags like the ones outside UN Headquarters!). There one volunteer interviewed "Boutros Boutros-Ghali" and "Madeleine Albright." These characters described why the United Nations was created, and took the children on an imaginary tour through the United Nations building.

"The world is Interdependent," one team of volunteers told third grade students. "We're all part of one whole, like a candy bar, with chocolate from Ghana, peanuts from the Sudan, corn syrup from Iowa, sugar from Ecuador, paper from trees in Canada, tin foil from tin mines in Thailand, and coconut from the palms in the Philippines. The candy bar is a global product; and we are world citizens."
The United Nations brings people together. A native American legend gave a fourth grade class a sense of diverse languages and nations. The UN flags represented the variety of people and languages, to the delight of the children. A second story, from a booklet created by one of the volunteers for this project, described the people of the world wanting to be united as "the biggest of all the teams."

A Perspective on Conflict Resolution. One volunteer presented the topic of conflict resolution in a way that invited upper-elementary students to identify conflicts from global to personal levels. Then the volunteer demonstrated how conflicts can be talked out at a peace table in homes, schools, communities and the world. The United National was presented as an organization whose goal is to resolve global conflict peacefully.

Stories of Peacemakers. One volunteer found library books about Eleanor Roosevelt and Ralph Bunche. She told their stories to help fourth and fifth grade students understand the motivations of people who helped to create the United Nations. Discussion included what children can do to make a more peaceful world.

Parents as Peacemakers. A parent education class for high school students requested a volunteer to help them understand how to create peaceful homes. They wanted to focus on "building the smallest democracy at the heart of society" for the International Year of the Family.

The Economics of Peace. A high school economics teacher invited volunteers to visit four of his classes. The volunteers helped the students role-play the challenge of north-south economic disparities, and recognized the importance of the United Nations as a place for dealing with these issues.

The Universal Declaration of Human Rights. A high school history teacher invited a volunteer to visit two of his senior classes. Using overhead transparencies, the volunteer presented each of the human rights and related conventions as a basis for group discussion. The students responded enthusiastically, and wanted to know why a subject of such importance had never been addressed in any of their previous social studies or history classes!

International Festivals and Multicultural Fairs. Volunteers were invited to participate in several school-wide events with global themes. Those who were born in or had lived in other countries shared their experiences; a team representing the United Nations displayed the complete set of flags, which attracted attention and stimulated excited conversation. These students were eager to know about their world, and about the United Nations!
RESOLVING CONFLICTS NONVIOLENTLY

The techniques of conflict resolution are basically the same, whether the conflict is between members of a family, students in an elementary school, adults in a business setting, or diplomats in the international arena. As we learn to practice these skills and attitudes in our own lives, and model them for others, we each help teach the principles of nonviolent conflict resolution.

CONFLICT RESOLUTION teaches each person to be responsible for dealing with conflicts before they escalate into major problems.

MEDIATION involves a neutral third party trained to provide the disputants with a format for dealing with a conflict that has already occurred.

1. Identify the problem
Think clearly about what the problem is, and state it. Limit discussion to the topic at hand - refrain from bringing up the past.

2. Listen to each other, acknowledging feelings and needs.
Concentrate on feelings and underlying needs. Use "I messages," such as: "(Person's name), when I see .......... I feel ................, and I want .................." Both disputants need an opportunity to be heard, without interruption. Use active listening, reflecting back what you hear, so the speaker can correct any misinterpretations. If the problem is based on a misunderstanding, the conflict will often be resolved at this stage.

3. Suggest possible solutions
If there is still a conflict, let each offer possible solutions. Refrain from getting stuck in "bargaining positions" that cause both to feel like losers. Use brainstorming techniques, allowing freedom to express even outlandish ideas. Often the solution that comes from the free exchange of ideas will result in an outcome which addresses the underlying needs of both parties.

4. Agree on a solution and act on it
There is no right or wrong answer, only what is agreeable to both parties. Choose an option that both can live with. Keep negotiating if there is some aspect that doesn't feel right. Once an agreement is reached, both are responsible for keeping their part.

5. Check back to make sure the agreement is working.
If the agreement is working, acknowledge how well you solved the problem and followed through on the solution. If the agreement doesn't seem to be working after a time, parties can repeat the process and come up with a modified solution or another solution. Keep trying!
These resources help Peace Education Volunteers for UN50 prepare lively and meaningful presentations!

TEACHING PEACE - Songs by Red Grammer. Includes "These are places in the world -- some you know, some you don't. Some you'll visit, some you won't." The list is a delightful tongue-twister! Other songs break peace-making down into daily actions. Grades K-4.
Teacher's Guide develops the songs into whole-language activities on conflict resolution, multicultural and global concepts.
