The topic of alternatives to incarceration or community-based corrections is presented in a selected list of resources containing approximately 350 items. Included are English language books, articles, government documents, reports, dissertations and conference proceedings. Textbooks have not been included. The scope is international and currency a consideration in selecting material for inclusion; the most recent entry was published in July, 1995. Earlier materials have been included only when judged to be particularly useful. Accession numbers for materials which are part of document collections from the National Council on Crime and Delinquency (NCCD) and the National Criminal Justice Reference Service (NCJRS) have been included when identified. An author index is provided, as is a list highlighting the international material. The bibliography is arranged into sections starting with works of a general nature. Following sections are: (1) shock incarceration or boot camps, (2) intensive supervision probation (ISP), (3) halfway houses and day centers, (4) fines and restitution, (5) probation, (6) community service, and (7) electronic monitoring and home detention. Items which address more than one of the above topics have been included in the general section. (TS)
ALTERNATIVES TO INCARCERATION
A Selected Bibliography

This is a selected list of resources on the topic of alternatives to incarceration or community-based corrections. Included are English language books, articles, government documents, reports, dissertations and conference proceedings. Textbooks have not been included. The scope is international and currency a consideration in selecting material for inclusion. Earlier materials have been included only when judged to be particularly useful. Accession numbers for materials which are part of document collections from the National Council on Crime and Delinquency (NCCD) and the National Criminal Justice Reference Service (NCJRS) have been included when identified. An author index is provided as is a list highlighting the international material.

This bibliography was prepared by searching The NCJRS Database on CD-ROM, the Social Sciences Index, Criminal Justice Abstracts, Criminology and Police Science Abstracts, Criminal Justice Periodical Index, Current Law Index, and Abstracts on Adult Corrections 1983-1990. In addition, CUNY+, the library catalog of the City University of New York (of which John Jay College is a part) was searched. The Sealy Library of John Jay College comprehensively collects materials in criminal justice and is a valuable resource for the topic of this work. In addition, the Library has cataloged the valuable collection of documents from the National Council on Crime and Delinquency (NCCD) making them more widely accessible through the CUNY+ catalog. The CUNY+ catalog is accessible to remote users via the Internet via TN3270 (TN3270 cunyvm.cuny.edu : tab to the command line and type "dial vtam" <ENTER>). Clear the screen and type "LNAV"). Please note: Your computer must have TN3270 software to access CUNY+. Choose the DPAC database for the library catalog.

The bibliography is arranged into sections starting with works of a general nature. The following sections are: shock incarceration or boot camps, intensive supervision probation (ISP); halfway houses and day centers; fines and restitution; probation; community service; and electronic monitoring and home detention. Items which address more than one of the above topics have been included in the general section.
