CNN Newsroom Classroom Guides
June 1996

by Turner Educational Services
Dear Educator:

Thank you for your interest in CNN NEWSROOM. Enclosed is the information you requested, including everything you need to enroll in the CNN NEWSROOM service. CNN NEWSROOM is a daily 15-minute commercial-free news program specifically produced for classroom use and provided free to participating schools.

By completing and returning the enclosed enrollment form, you have the right to videotape the program at 4:30 a.m. (ET), Monday through Friday, and have it available for use in the classroom. You may copy it as desired and show all or part of it as you see fit throughout the day. In addition, you may retain these tapes to create a permanent video library. You will also be signed up to receive T3, a magazine with information on CNN NEWSROOM and other resources offered by Turner Educational Services.

The daily CNN NEWSROOM cablecast is also supported by a Daily Classroom Guide, written by professional educators. These guides are available through several independent electronic mail services and through a variety of state department of education networks. The enclosed information describes the guide and the different delivery services available to you.

We are pleased with the enthusiastic response to CNN NEWSROOM we have received from educators and students nationwide, and we’re excited about bringing this important resource into our nation’s classrooms. If you have any questions about CNN NEWSROOM and how it can be used in your school, please call our toll-free hotline, 1-800-344-6219, weekdays between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Eastern Time.

Again, thank you for your interest in CNN NEWSROOM. Best wishes for a successful academic year.

Sincerely,

Louis C. Pugliese
CNN NEWSROOM Project Director
Turner Educational Services, Inc.

P.S. Remember, upon completing and returning the enclosed enrollment form, you may begin taping and using CNN NEWSROOM in the classroom without delay. If you prefer, you may fax your completed form to us at 1-215-493-5320.
The CNN Newsroom Daily Classroom Guide is available through America Online and a number of other electronic services. Contact the individual carriers for more information, or call the CNN Newsroom toll-free hotline, 1-800-344-6219.

ANCHOR DESK
TOP STORY: ISRAELI ELECTION
1. Explain why Prime Minister-elect Netanyahu was labeled as a "hardliner" throughout the campaign. Is there any evidence that he has altered his position? Explain. Why are Israel's Arab neighbors and its economic partners concerned about the hardline approach?
2. Distribute the RESOURCE (pg 4). Review the events preceding and immediately following last week's election. In class discussion, cite some of the issues on the minds of Israel's voters as they went to the polls. Working in small groups, have students search additional resources for information on any other events that have taken place since the election (two are given on the RESOURCE). Have groups share their findings. Write both the pre-election issues and post-election events on the board. Based on these issues and events, have groups draw up lists of priorities for the Netanyahu Administration.
EXTENSION: Working as advisors to the new Prime Minister, have students write essays recommending how Mr. Netanyahu should approach each priority on their group's list. Student essays should address how his initial actions as prime minister will define his leadership to the global community.

DEMOCRACY IN AMERICA DESK: PRESIDENTIAL "JOKING"
3. What is presidential decorum? What are the do's and don'ts of acting "presidential"? Consider the importance of formality during certain public occasions. What might a president "tone down" or conceal, what sides might he/she emphasize?

4. Distribute the HANDOUT (pg 3). Ask students to complete the chart as they watch the video. Have them discuss their findings as they analyze the information on their charts.

OUR WORLD: KIDS' RALLY
5. What was the purpose of this weekend's "Stand for Children" rally in Washington, D.C.? Why are some criticizing the goals of the rally? With whom do you agree? State your rationale.
6. Pres. Clinton argued for more federal aid for children saying, "They're growing up in a world that is changing rapidly. They need our help more than any generation before them." Have students respond to the President's statement. Then divide the class into groups and challenge each to conduct audio or videotape interviews of young people responding to the question, "What can adults do to help you grow up in today's world?" Have groups share their interviews and discuss how respondents' concerns were similar to or different from those addressed at the rally.

* STUDENT HANDOUT: PACKAGING

DIRECTIONS: While viewing the Democracy in America story, record the images of presidential candidates. INTERPRETING MEDIA IMAGES: Briefly describe what image the politician is TRYING to convey. (Note: Avoid writing down what you think he actually communicates). WEIGHING THE IMAGE: Evaluate how this particular moment furthers or hinders the politician's campaign.

1. Did any of these media moments help the candidate in an unexpected way? Did some of these moments backfire and undermine the politician's effort to portray a certain image?
2. Do you agree with Kerry Tymchuk's assertion that "Joe Sixpack and Joe Public is going to remember the joke as a sign he's not a bad guy after all"? If you were a campaign manager, what factors would you weigh before staging an image-making moment for your candidate? Explain.

3. Today's Democracy in America story focuses on Mark Katz's and Kerry Tymchuk's behind-the-scenes contributions to the presidential campaign. Which media are the best vehicles for their techniques? Explain how their approach affects our democratic process.

EXTENSION: Read a newspaper, or watch or listen to the news this week. Find other examples of presidential image-making and be prepared to analyze them using the chart above.

STUDENT RESOURCE: ISRAEL'S P.M. ELECTION

Nov. 4, 1995: Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin is assassinated by a right-wing Jewish extremist as he leaves a peace rally. Shimon Peres becomes the next prime minister.

Nov. 13, 1995: Peres orders Israeli troops out of Jenin, the first West Bank town handed over to Yasser Arafat's Palestinian Authority.

Feb. 11, 1996: Peres, enjoying a 15-point lead in the polls, calls for early elections, moving them up from November to May 29.

Feb. 25, 1996: Bombs explode in bus in Jerusalem and at soldiers' post in Ashkelon, killing 28 people and wounding more than 80. Palestinian militant group Hamas claims responsibility.

Mar. 4, 1996: Hamas is responsible for a suicide bombing of a Tel Aviv shopping center that kills 13, wounds over 100.

Apr. 11, 1996: Israel launches 16-day attack against Iranian-backed Hezbollah guerillas in south Lebanon.

Apr. 24, 1996: PLO removes language calling for the destruction of Israel from its charter.

Apr. 25, 1996: Israel's ruling Labor Party drops long-standing opposition to Palestinian state from its platform.

May 29, 1996: Election held between Shimon Peres, Benjamin Netanyahu who, eventually, is declared winner in an extremely close race.

May 30, 1996: Israeli stocks drop 5%. International investors had favored the Labor Party's (Peres') peace policies.

GERMANY NUKE: GERMANY--RADIOACTIVE WASTE DISPOSAL; PROTESTS

1. Why are people protesting the storage of nuclear waste at Gorleben, Germany? Why are the authorities unconcerned about the hazards? Have students use news magazines to review the history of anti-nuclear protests in Germany and:
   a. List the major projects that have been protested and the reasons for the protest.
   b. Indicate the cases in which the government abandoned the planned projects.
   c. Indicate the kinds of projects that have proceeded despite protests.

   Ask: What conclusions are you able to draw from the comparison of the successful and unsuccessful projects? Where does the storage project fit on your list? Could you have predicted the protest’s failure? What seems to be the standard upon which project priorities are set in Germany?

2. Use the same news magazines to identify political and environmental groups that have grown up in Germany as a result of anti-nuclear and other environmental protests.
   a. Develop a comparative study of the founding, growth and development of each of these organizations.
   b. Indicate the goals and positions of the various groups on environmental questions.
   c. Indicate which groups are purely German organizations and which ones function as international organizations, such as Greenpeace.

   Why is environmentalism such a strong issue in Germany?

CUBAN BALL (PART 1): CUBA--SPORTS--BASEBALL

2. How do Cuban baseball players compare with those from other countries, including the U.S.? What characteristics of the game have made it so popular in Cuba? Have students create a poster study of the history of baseball showing its expansion from earliest times to the modern day. Include information about when the game was first played in each country and the circumstances that led players from one country to play for another. Lead a class discussion historical instances where sports competitions bridge political and cultural divides.

TOP STORY: UN "CITY SUMMIT"
1. What is the purpose of the latest UN social summit? Where is the summit held? Why do you think the summit organizers chose this city for its meeting?
2. Write the three major themes of this summit -- population, development and discrimination -- on the board.
   a. After a brief discussion focusing on each of these themes, direct each student to search newspapers/news magazines for at least one article that cites a specific problem or concern in any one of these categories. Have students bring their articles to class.
b. Divide a bulletin board into 3 columns labeled POPULATION, DEVELOPMENT and DISCRIMINATION. Instruct students to pin their articles in the appropriate columns.
c. Allow students to read each article in a specified time period then return it to its place on the board for others to read.

When everyone has read all the articles, divide the class into 3 groups. Challenge each group to come up with and present an agenda or course of action for dealing with the problems they read about in the articles in any one category.

3. Have each group of students choose any city and research its living conditions (housing availability, environmental issues, jobs, etc.). Have groups report their findings. As a class, devise a “quality of life index” using a clear letter or number system (e.g., "1" might mean 'very high standard of living for that city, "5" might mean conditions are deplorable). Conclude by having each student write an essay assigning a "quality of life index" number (based on the class "system") to one city and explaining his/her rationale.

4. UN Sec'y. General Boutros Boutros Ghali has stated, "I consider the conferences of the UN crucial to the work of the organization, essential to the fulfillment of the mandate and crucial for the determination of the future of life on this planet." Focus students' attention on this quote and have them work in groups to research any one UN conference in recent history. What issues did it consider? What was the outcome of the conference? Do students think it was "crucial" as described in the above statement? Have each group present a critical analysis of that conference and evaluate its role in affecting global policy.

b. update each country's political/economic status in the post-Cold War era.

Have each group make a graphic presentation of its findings to the class. Analyze and discuss the information presented and patterns found. Have students project 20 years into the future the status of their assigned nations and state their rationale.

6. Challenge students to research the national makeup and purpose of the following African organizations: ECOWAS, ECOMOG and OAU. To what extent have they been involved in Liberia? To what extent have they been successful? Explain. In your opinion, what factor(s) most impede their effectiveness? Which factors could aid in their success? Explain.

 STUDENT RESOURCE: LIBERIA -- BACKGROUNDER

Liberia was founded in 1822 by the white American Colonization Society as a place to relocate the descendants of freed slaves. In 1847, Liberia became Africa's first republic. These early, English-speaking colonists, called Americo-Liberians, established themselves as a dominant class over the indigenous populations, which was comprised of several different cultures.

Liberia's major export was rubber; by 1904, Britain had established the first rubber plantation. America's Firestone Tire and Rubber Company bought out the British in 1926, leasing almost a half million hectares of land which was worked by the indigenous population, oftentimes by force. Firestone remained a presence in Liberia until 1983. Other major exports include rice, palm oil, coffee, cocoa and iron ore.

William V.S. Tubman, President of Liberia from 1944 to his death in 1971, attempted, as did others, to integrate the two classes. However, the America-Liberians retained control over the government and civil service. Tubman was succeeded by his Vice-Pres., William R. Tolbert, Jr. In 1980, Tolbert and other officials were executed after a successful military coup led by Samuel K. Doe, the first non-Americo-Liberian head of government. Six years later -- and after a suspect election -- Doe became President and a new constitution took effect.

In 1989, Charles Taylor, a former Doe associate and member of an opposing tribe, led an invading force, the National Patriotic Front, against Doe. Later, Doe was killed by still another rival faction. Four men proclaimed themselves as leader. The West African Economy Community (ECOWAS) placed peacekeeping troops in Liberia in August 1990 and partitioned the country into two zones. One zone included Monrovia, Liberia's capital; the other zone, controlled by Taylor, comprised about 95% of the land.

Several cease-fires have been negotiated since then, each one giving way to factional fighting. In 1993, an interim government was established. Fighting erupted again in April 1996 when loyalist Taylor forces tried to arrest the leader of another faction, Roosevelt Johnson who, subsequently, fled to Ghana.

INDIA AND THE WEST: INDIA--POLITICS

1. In what ways has India assumed the role of a regional power? What factors limit India’s domination of the politics of the region? Have students color-code a map of the region, with India as the center, showing the population of each country. Place on each country a symbol a) showing the number of soldiers in that country’s military and b) showing the size of its GNP. What conclusions can be drawn about political, military and economic power in the region? What will it take for India to be able to assume clear leadership? Explain.

3. What resources insure that most young people in Cuba get a chance to play baseball? How are players selected for more specialized national training? Ask: How do you think Cuba will fare in the Summer Olympic Games? Have student groups:
   a. List the teams that are competing in Olympic baseball this summer.
   b. Make a chart showing the number of amateur and professional teams in each country and the extent to which baseball is learned and played in each country’s schools.
   c. Using the results of the baseball competition from the 1992 Olympics, identify countries they consider to be baseball powerhouses. Compare with the names on the chart. Ask students: Why do you think the Cuba is particularly strong in international competition? Why do you think the government has made such a large investment in baseball programs? Is it paying off for them? In what ways?

3. Guide students to explain the concept: "a corner on the market." Who is the target market for nostalgic waxed candies? Is this a profitable market to corner? Explain. How might the manufacturer broaden the appeal of these candies to a larger consumer base? Have students design wax confections for the '90s. Groups should consider flavors, shapes, colors, links to current trends. Have students present their candy ideas along with their rationales. As a class, critique the concepts for mass market appeal.

4. Why do the manufacturers of waxed candies believe they have a "winner"? What type of market research might they have implemented before reviving the candies?

(a) OBSERVATIONAL RESEARCH -- gathering data through direct or indirect monitoring and recording of consumer behavior (competitive products, pricing, packaging)

(b) EXPERIMENTAL RESEARCH -- gathering data by manipulating variables and comparing to a control (testing advertising, price, distribution, packaging)
(c) SURVEY RESEARCH -- gathering data from respondents in a survey instrument (mail, telephone, in person)

Why would this type of research be most effective? How might the research be implemented?

5. Have student groups design a FOCUS GROUP interview that would yield data to determine the most marketable candy among their peers. Have students (a) develop the "script" for the focus group moderator -- from broad introductory questions to specific issues; (b) choose effective candy samples for consumer behavior tests; (c) record data as they implement the independent focus group made up of students from other classes. Guide groups to analyze and report their data with a recommendation for the most profitable candy venture.

   STUDENT HANDOUT: CRITIQUING THE CONSUMER

DIRECTIONS: Read the following scenarios and on the scale rank the individuals described from most objectionable (5) to least objectionable (1). Discuss the rankings within your group. Be prepared to explain what specific behaviors are the most negative and why they are particularly detrimental.

1. (1) Mary Magee is a working mother who shops quickly. She often does not have time to follow the news. Although she is concerned about children's rights, she does not know what she can do as a consumer to prevent child labor.

2. (1) Bob Boylston is a coupon clipper for whom the bottom line is price. When he watched Craig Kielburger on the news he thought about changing his shopping habits, but he concluded that altering his ways would have an insignificant impact on child laborers.

3. (1) Dave Dunster put his money into a mutual fund that invests in developing nations. He has made a high return on his investment so far and he is not sure if the fund investigates the labor practices of the companies it supports.

4. (1) Sarah Sanders began investing heavily in companies whose manufacturing plants are in developing nations. For Sarah, cheaper labor costs mean a higher return on her investments.

5. (1) Tom Turnbeck has invested heavily in a textile manufacturer. He knows the company exploits children but he hopes that over time he can influence the company's policies because he is one of their biggest shareholders.

EXTENSION: Write a description of yourself as a consumer. Use the third person, referring to yourself as "he" or "she." Where would you rank your scenario among those above? How might you rewrite your scenario to improve your ranking?

CZECH SUCCESS: CZECH REPUBLIC--ECONOMIC GROWTH
1. What factors suggest that the economy of the Czech Republic has flourished? Why has this happened? Have students investigate the success of the Czech Republic.
   a. Graph the economic characteristics of the countries of eastern Europe: population density, literacy rates, percentage urban, value of machinery, etc.
   b. Compare your data with GNP data for each of these countries.

Are there apparent reasons why the Czech Republic has been so successful? What factors seem to be most important to economic growth? Will the other countries be able to match Czech success? Explain.

GUATEMALA CARE: GUATEMALA--ECONOMIC CONDITIONS; ENTREPRENEURSHIP
2. How has CARE tried to improve the condition of peasant women in Guatemala? Is the program thought to be successful? Does it appear to be practical? Using pigs or blackberries as examples, have student groups list the steps necessary to produce, transport and sell the product for money. How does the presence of a largely barter economy affect this situation? What non-financial barriers do you see? What else should be done to improve this situation? Is this CARE program a step in the right direction? Explain.

CUBAN BALL (PART III): CUBA--SPORTS--BASEBALL
3. Who are the heroes of Cuban baseball and what are their rewards? How do they view the opportunities baseball provides them? How do these heroes compare with sports heroes of other countries? Lead a class discussion on the relationship between sports/sports heroes and national identities. Have groups search for information on
   a. the role played by sports and sporting events in nations' cultures and economies; and,
   b. the effective use of sports in creating opportunities for international exchanges, or "sports diplomacy."

Have groups share their information. Create a display illustrating our global passion for physical competition.

TOP STORY: CYBER-SECURITY RISKS

1. What is computer "hacking"? What institutions and businesses are at risk from hacker activity? In the video we are told that "...there's a threat to national security, but that nobody knows how serious it really is." Why do you think this threat has been largely ignored by business and government leaders?

2. One computer security expert likens cyber-security to "building an onion." Divide the class into "teams" and have each choose a particular business or institution for which to design a cyber-security system.
a. Have each team begin by listing the issues/concerns that would likely be specific to its chosen "client" (e.g., a bank would want to protect account numbers and personal loan/account information).

b. Challenge each team to "build" the multi-layered "onion" that would deter hackers.

Have groups present their ideas and critique each other's. Can cyberspace ever be made "burglar proof"? If not, what recourse exists for government, business and individuals? Discuss.

HABITAT FOR HUMANITY
3. Generate a class discussion about how Habitat for Humanity embodies the "raising the barn" spirit of long ago. If there is a Habitat chapter in your region, have students find out more about the specifics of the organization's work. Who builds these homes? How are they funded? How do the new homeowners help to promote the "barn-raising ethic"? Have students share their findings. Discuss how aspects of the Habitat for Humanity program could be applied on a global scale to address the problems of poverty and homelessness.

OUR WORLD: GIRLS AND DRUGS
4. According to the video, what factors have contributed to the rise in drug and alcohol abuse among teenage girls? Do you agree or disagree with this reasoning? Explain. The study cited in the video recommends training adults to spot the "subtle symptoms" of substance abuse among girls and women. Offer your ideas for a realistic strategy to prevent young women from turning to drugs and alcohol.

  NEW DINOSAURS  ********

1. BEFORE VIEWING: Ask students to describe dinosaurs. How many can they name? How large were they? When did they live? In what ways did their world differ from ours? How do we know these things?

2. AFTER VIEWING: Discuss the characteristics of the newly discovered dinosaur. Has this discovery shed new light on our understanding of these beasts? Explain.

3. Arrange for students to have access to media materials and instruct them to conduct research of the world of 90 million years ago.
   a. During what geologic era and period was this?
   b. What plants and animals could be found on Earth?
   c. What was the climate like?
   d. How do we know these facts?

4. Gather materials suitable for constructing dioramas for each student group. Distribute copies of the HANDOUT (pg 4). Instruct each student to read carefully the background information on the Cretaceous Period. Then, divide the class into groups, challenging each to use the materials provided to create a diorama depicting some aspect of Deltadromeus' life. Have them use information from the video, their own research and information on the HANDOUT to insure accuracy. Display completed dioramas in the media center or commons areas.

5. Challenge students to write a story from the viewpoint of a Deltadromeus. Have them correlate the story to the action depicted in the diorama. Arrange for students to share completed stories and dioramas with other classes, younger students, the PTSA or faculty.
EXTENSION: Write a story from the viewpoint of a paleontologist who uncovers evidence of the action depicted by the diorama. Use information from the video to describe the working conditions of a paleontologist. Will the scientists correctly interpret the events depicted by the diorama? Why/Why not?

THE LIFE & TIMES
STUDENT HANDOUT: OF DELTADROMEUS

The dinosaur’s muscles rippled under her reptilian skin. Walking upright through the swampy delta, her 3-toed feet made squishing sounds in the soft ground but did not sink. Her 27 foot-long body was poised for action, sense organs in her 5 foot-long head alert for signs of prey, and 5-inch long razor sharp teeth glistened. She was adapted for hunting in forests and fens of the Cretaceous Period. She is called Deltadromeus Agilis, or agile delta runner.

This remarkable creature did not know all the things we do about her world. The vegetation that feed her prey was vastly different from that we find now. Most of the plants were gymnosperms, relatives of today’s pines, cypress, cedars and hemlocks. Many were palm-like cycads, such as Zamia, that still grow in central Florida. Others were relatives of the ginkgo tree with its broad, fan-shaped leaves. Some were like today’s conifers. All produced seeds that are not enclosed in fruits or husks; none produced flowers.

Angiosperms, or flowering plants, were small and just beginning to challenge the gymnosperms for control of the land. The landscape lacked the color and nutrition supplied by flowers, fruits and berries but the delta land was productive. Herbivores munched on gymnosperms, insects swarmed and Mesozoic mammals roamed.

Small and secretive, these ancestors of today’s most successful group of vertebrates played second fiddle to the ruling class of the Mesozoic, the reptiles. Herbivorous reptiles walked, swam and flew through the Cretaceous landscape. Largest of these, the sauropods, were food for Deltadromeus but a challenge to bring down. Some had duck-like bills, others had sharp horns and protective head frills. All were formidable opponents. Other predators and scavengers competed with Deltadromeus for herbivore flesh. Some were small and agile and hunted in packs; others were large and solitary.

Deltadromeus waited for her hunt, using the gymnosperm vegetation as cover. Along came a giant herbivorous dinosaur with 3 sharp horns and a head frill and Deltadromeus pounced with great speed. The Triceratops tried to flee but was overtaken. Using her razor sharp teeth, Deltadromeus ripped huge hunks of flesh from its body. Her prey succumbed quickly and Deltadromeus’ young could eat. Scavengers were attracted to the kill; even shy mammals got a share. By nightfall the carcass was just bones. Although perfectly adapted to her environment, the Deltadromeus female died, her carcass covered with sediment. Millennia passed, the climate changed and different adaptations were selected. Dinosaurs vanished. Mammals became the dominant vertebrate; 90 million years after she died, Deltadromeus’ remains were uncovered, shedding new light on her world.

EURO SKEPTICS: BRITAIN--ECONOMIC POLICY--EUROPEAN UNION
1. WHILE VIEWING: Have students list a) advantages Britain has in joining the European Union and b) reasons why some Britons remain skeptical about the Union. AFTER VIEWING: Gather more information about the advantages/disadvantages to Britain of its membership in the EU. Place your data on a decision grid and label the columns PRO and CON and the row SOCIAL, POLITICAL and ECONOMIC. Which as has the advantage, PRO or CON?
a. On what did you base that decision? Are the arguments of equal value?
b. Identify the weak and strong arguments. Which row had the strongest arguments for and against the Union? Which one had the weakest?
c. Are the stronger or weaker arguments psychologically based, that is, using fear or anger? Why do you think this is so?
Considering all of the arguments, do you think Britain will join the EU? Why/Why not?

2. WHILE VIEWING: Have students note the reasons Cuban baseball players defect to the U.S. and what their defections have cost them. AFTER VIEWING: Review the history of Cuban migration to the U.S. and note what motivated Cuban immigrants in general.
Compare the 2 sets of notes.
a. Do ball players have motivations and costs similar to those of other Cuban defectors?
b. Are there ways in which the baseball players' situation is significantly different?
c. Should the U.S. welcome defecting ball players or should they be returned to Cuba? Defend your response.
3. Write 2 letters from the perspective of a Cuban ball player who has defected.
a. Letter #1: to U.S. immigration (INS) explaining why you should be granted asylum.
b. Letter #2: to your family in Cuba explaining your reasons for your actions.

ANCHOR DESK

*Tune in Mondays for the DEMOCRACY IN AMERICA on CNN NEWSROOM.
* Explore the issues and images that are shaping Campaign '96.

TOP STORY: NORTHERN IRELAND PEACE

1. What is Sinn Fein? Why aren't they involved in N. Ireland's peace talks? Explain why there is an air of mistrust between the IRA and the British government. What is former U.S. Sen. George Mitchell's role in the peace process?

2. Divide the class into groups. Have each research the conflict in N. Ireland to learn about the different parties involved and their objectives. Then, have each group list possible outcomes of the peace talks based on what it has learned about the current situation in N. Ireland. Have groups present their findings and ideas. In class discussion, challenge students to make predictions about the results of the peace negotiations.
EDITOR’S DESK: NEWSQUIZ (pg 4)

3. Today's NEWSQUIZ asks students to identify at least one story seen this week on CNN NEWSROOM in each of the following categories: International, National, Health & Safety, Social and Technology. Each story identified, students must write an appropriate headline. Answers may vary as some categories overlap; e.g., KIDS’ RALLY could fall under National or Social. BONUS: Students can score additional points by naming more than one story where applicable. Each story must have a headline.

NATIVE AMERICAN GATHERING

4. Explain why more than a 1000 Native Americans from 80 tribes met recently in the Colorado Rockies. How did what they hear, see and experience help them "to become healthy links in the circle of life"?

5. Define and discuss the term "ritual" in class. Replay the video, directing students to note examples of ritual throughout the segment. Have them share their notes in class discussion. What symbols were involved in each ritual? What was the significance of each ceremony? Ask students whether or not they have ever been part of, or have witnessed, a ritual. Have them write brief papers explaining what took place, what symbols were used and the ritual's role within the specific culture.

MEDIA LITERACY: READ BETWEEN THE HEADLINES

6. Distribute the HANDOUT (pg 3) and, as a class, read and discuss the double meanings behind the headlines. Ask volunteers to state how they might rewrite some of these to clarify their intended meanings. Challenge students to find more examples of double-meaning headlines or create some of their own.

WRAP IT UP: Work with a group to present a program reviewing the week's news. Create a storyboard showing the featured stories then "broadcast" stories of the week in front of the class.
ISRAEL ABUL ABBAS: ISRAEL--PALESTINIAN ARABS; TERRORISM
1. Who is Abul Abbas? Why is he in Israel? Why do some oppose his presence there? Have the class prepare a portfolio of information about Abul Abbas then hold a courtroom hearing on his future.
   a. One person should represent the Italian government and request extradition.
   b. A Palestinian should argue for his stay in Israel.
   c. Judges should be Israelis who must choose among the two positions or another choice, considering the political implications of their decision.

Conduct the trial and decide his fate. How was the case decided? What factors influenced the decision? Can a criminal truly be a national hero? Explain. Follow up by writing a letter to the Israeli ambassador discussing your decision.

CHILE ENCHANTED: CHILE--SOCIAL LIFE AND CUSTOMS
2. Why has Chiloe become a major tourist attraction? Gather data to make a colorful, graphic, travel poster advocating vacations on Chiloe. Choose carefully the attractions you display and the theme you use, and try to work Chiloe's mythology into your display. Does your poster interest people in this vacation site? What qualities most appeal to them? What do they like least about your depiction of the island? Do you think persons in your community might vacation there? In what country might it best to advertise Chiloe Island? Why?

CUBAN BALL (PART V): CUBA--SPORTS--BASEBALL; OLYMPIC GAMES
3. What are Cuba's expectations for the Olympics? Who seems most concerned about the issue of defections? Gather data about the 5 best teams in the 1992 Olympic baseball competition. Graph that data and add any recent data you can find. Have any changes taken place in the top teams? Use your data and any other information to predict who will win this summer's gold, silver and bronze baseball metals. Check your predictions against the outcome of the Games.

TOP STORY: CHURCH BURNINGS

1. Do you think what President Clinton calls "racial hostility" is a significant problem locally and nationally? What details in the story suggest that racial polarization is affecting both the reactions to the burnings and the federal government's efforts to stop them?

2. Divide students into small groups and present them with this scenario: You have been assigned to a task force that must evaluate Pres. Clinton's four-pronged approach to stopping the burnings.
   a. What aspects of his approach would you leave unchanged?
b. what specific improvements would you suggest?
Based on their evaluation of the Clinton Administration's approach, have groups a) offer their strategies for solving this crisis and publish them on posterboard and b) critique each other's ideas and come up with a consensus plan.

DEMOCRACY IN AMERICA DESK: ROCK FOR CONGRESS

3. Why is candidate Ken Poston reaching out to rock bands for support? Contrast his political strategy with that of his opponent, Nathan Deal.

4. Distribute the HANDOUT (pg 3). Have students work in groups to locate examples of celebrity endorsements in each category and note their findings on the HANDOUT. Groups should share their work, then respond to the questions that follow in class discussion. Do students think this strategy works in politics? Should the presidential contenders seek celebrity endorsements?

OUR WORLD: SHAKESPEARE AND AMERICAN SIGN LANGUAGE

5. In what way does Shakespeare's language lend itself to the "sign"? Ask student volunteers to demonstrate their knowledge of sign language and have the class describe the images these signs represent. Distribute the HANDOUT (pg 4) and divide the class into small groups. Discuss the definition of IMAGERY given on the HANDOUT then have groups follow the directions. CHALLENGE: Have students find a different passage containing imagery from MACBETH or another Shakespeare play and explain how they would direct the sign language for that passage.

--- STUDENT HANDOUT: CELEBRITY ENDORSEMENTS ---

DIRECTIONS. Search media sources, including TV and radio, to find a celebrity endorsement in each category below. REMEMBER: A celebrity can be an entertainer, sports figure, politician, or any other well-known person. Briefly describe who is doing the "endorsing," who or what he/she is promoting and what the audience sees/hears in each case.     STUDEDITION HANDOUT: SHAKESPEAREAN SIGN LANGUAGE

DIRECTIONS: Step 1: Read the definition of IMAGERY below and query your teacher and other group members until you understand this literary term. Then read the passage from Shakespeare's tragedy MACBETH several times, circling phrases that contain images.

IMAGERY: Descriptive language that creates a picture in the mind.

Out, out brief candle!
Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player
That struts and frets his hour upon the stage,
And then is heard no more; it is a tale
Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, Signifying nothing. (V, v, 3-28)

Step 2: Write out the meaning of the passage in your own words in the space below. This passage is spoken by the King Macbeth after he has just been told that his wife, the Queen, has committed suicide. When he delivers these lines, he is in danger of losing his throne -- and his life -- to his enemies who are rebelling against his reign.

Step 3: In the spaces below write down two images from the speech that the performer will communicate using American Sign Language. Use the remaining space to describe how the actor should dramatize the image so deaf people will "see" the spoken word.

CROATIA DEMOCRACY: CROATIA--POLITICS

1. What conditions and events have caused critics to charge that democracy in Croatia is in trouble? Group students to review Croatian history in order to gain insights into that country's potential for democracy. Have groups use what they learn to create a graph showing the institutions and conditions under which the Croats were ruled during the a) pre-Yugoslavian, b) Yugoslavian and c) post-Yugoslavian periods.

a. Draw a large circle to represent the political future of Croatia and draw 3 circles around it with arrows pointing toward the center circle, each representing the periods mentioned above.

b. Considering the historical influences on Croatia, what projections would you make about Croatia's political future?

c. In what ways might other countries influence Croatia in order to boost the chances for its development of democratic institutions?

CHINA SMOKING: CHINA--SOCIAL LIFE AND CUSTOMS; SMOKING

2. What part does smoking play in China's economy? Why is the government joining the anti-smoking campaign? Among what group is smoking increasing? Have the class design and conduct a survey of smokers to find out why they started smoking, whether or not they understand the hazards and why they continue. Compile and analyze the data. Will increasing public restrictions on smoking affect their behavior? From your research and what you know of smoking in China, how effective do you think China's anti-smoking program will be? What other actions on China's part might be more effective in reducing smoking?

INTERNET: http://www.eecs.ukans.edu/~btwang/China/China.html

UNLIKELY OLYMPIAN: ATLANTA, GEORGIA--OLYMPIC GAMES

3. What are Senakwami's qualifications for participation in the Games? Find out what procedures are set by the International Olympic Committee for a person to qualify to represent his/her country. What other qualifying procedures does the U.S. set? Do persons from smaller countries who have fewer qualifications have a greater chance of participating in the Games than would be required of an athlete from a larger country? Should minimum performance standards be imposed? Should untrained athletes be allowed to participate? Defend your responses.

Mrs. Yeltsin apparently used a 1994 deal with Tatarstan as a model for his new agreement with Chechnya. Group students to search for accurate information on the following:

1. According to the video segment, on what "concept" did both sides in the Russia-Chechnya conflict agree? Lead a class discussion on why "...military issues...had been easily agreed....[but]...political issues [were]...a word-by-word uphill crawl...."

2. Mr. Yeltsin apparently used a 1994 deal with Tatarstan as a model for his new agreement with Chechnya. Group students to search for accurate information on the following:

   a. issues involved in Tatarstan's bid for independence;
b. ethnic minorities affected; and,
c. short- and long-term effects of the deal and whether or not the "power-sharing" has been mutually beneficial.

Have groups share the information they found about Tatarstan and compare it with what they know about Chechen issues and ethnicity. Ask: Does it appear as if Chechnya will achieve its goals, or is this latest move merely a campaign ploy? Defend your responses.

3. Have students evaluate, as a campaign strategy, the claim attributed to Mr. Yeltsin that "...communists are losing and may be planning foul play." In the persona of a campaign manager for one of Yeltsin's opponents, have each student "respond" to his claim.

HABITAT CONFERENCE: INCHON, SOUTH KOREA

4. What "problems" does Inchon City have to overcome in order to be a "model city"? What industries add to environmental concerns? Discuss the environmental impacts various kinds of industries can have on a community, including those in which your students live.

5. Ask: How does your community measure up as a "model city"? Distribute the HANDOUT (pg 4) to student groups. Have each a. review the categories given on the chart; b. discuss whether or not each translates into an "asset" or "liability" for the community; and, c. briefly explain their reasoning on the chart. Then have each group review its chart and prioritize the issues its community needs to address. Challenge groups to come up with and present practical ideas to address those issues.

Bosnian Elections

1. BEFORE VIEWING: Summarize what you know of the war in Bosnia. Who was involved? What was the cause? How did the war end?

2. AFTER VIEWING: What do you think the reporter means when she says, "For better or worse, the electoral process begins in Bosnia"? How are the tensions that caused the Bosnian War still evident in the political process?

3. What logistical problems exist as the "process of democratization" begins? Why are voter lists inaccurate? How does this factor alone invite questions about a "fair" election? What other issues threaten the validity of the upcoming elections? Explain President Izetbegovic's view of the likelihood of a timely election in his country.

4. Besides the desire for political stability in Bosnia, why are NATO nations interested in having the elections take place on time?
   a. Generate a class discussion about the stake NATO nations have in the Bosnian peace process and in Bosnia's political stability.
   b. Divide the class into groups. Have each group discuss these questions: Should NATO be more involved in the electoral process in Bosnia? Why/Why not? If so, what measures should NATO take to promote timely, peaceful, fair elections?
   c. Give groups ample time to discuss, then have them share their ideas with the class.

After hearing different views, have students write individual position papers stating their opinions and rationale on NATO involvement in the election process.
5. According to the video, "...nationalist politics still grip parts of Bosnia." Refer students to this quote and ask them to define "nationalism." Then divide the class into groups and have each find information on a recent or upcoming election in which nationalism had/has a role. Have each group report its findings. How is nationalism often a response to adverse economic and/or political conditions? Discuss.

CHALLENGE: Have students make predictions about the effects of nationalist politics on Bosnia's elections.

 STUDENT HANDOUT: MODEL COMMUNITY
DIRECTIONS: How would you rate your community's "quality of life"? What steps would it have to take to become internationally recognized as a "model city"? What are your community's strong points? What issues does it need to address? Based on your list of "liabilities," prioritize those issues and discuss some practical ideas to address them.
CRIME PHILIPPINES: PHILIPPINES--CRIME
1. For what reasons do the people of the Philippines not trust their police department and government officials? What is the government doing to regain public confidence? Gather and compare information about crime in Manila and in several other Asian cities of equal size. What conclusions do you draw about the level of crime in Manila? What does the comparative level of crime tell you about the effectiveness of law enforcement in the Philippines? Is there anything in the data to suggest that corruption is a problem in the Philippines? Using your data, design a campaign for the Philippine government to use to regain public support for their police officials. What factors will help or could damage your campaign?

UN NKOREA FOOD: NORTH KOREA--ECONOMIC CONDITIONS
2. What factors have contributed to the food shortage in North Korea? What has been the world community’s response? Why are the U.S., Japan and South Korea using this time to push new peace talks with North Korea? Study the conclusion of the Korean War. List the final agreements that were made. Do the agreements constitute a good treaty? Why might these countries want peace talks at this time? Is it unfair to want to negotiate an agreement when one side is suffering from a shortage of food? Why/Why not?

3. Why does entrepreneur David Lea think the London Cabs would work in Paris? What roadblocks stand in the way? Find out how easy it is to export cars among the European Union countries. Begin by marking on a map the number and make of cars produced in each European Union country. On another map, mark the number of cars sold in European Union countries other than where they were made. Who are the big producers, exporters and importers? Is the business relatively evenly distributed? Considering the data, do you think the cabs will be sold in Paris? Explain.

TOP STORY: PARISH ASHES IN SOUTHEAST U.S.
1. According to the video, some of the recent church burnings are gang-related. Query students about gang violence in their communities and ask them to describe its impact.
2. Using the Internet and other resources, have student groups determine how the juvenile crime rate has been changing in your state/town/county over the last 20 years. Have students brainstorm ways local and national governments could help lower that rate and/or prevent juvenile crime.
RUSSIA'S YOUNG VOTERS

3. Have students compare what they saw in the video of Russia's young voters with similar age voters in the U.S. What trends emerge? Do 18-25 year olds in Russia and America have the same attitude towards voting? What are some of the conditions that affect a young person's attitude towards going to the polls?

4. Distribute the HANDOUT (pg 4). Divide the class into three teams, each representing one of the democracies listed, to research voter turnout, using the Internet and other resources.

BUSINESS DESK: SUNGLASSES MARKET

5. Have students work in groups to conduct a "Sunglasses Survey."
   a. Copy and distribute the HANDOUT (pg 3) to each student to survey at least one consumer who has purchased sunglasses in the past year. (NOTE: Students may want to cut off the portion of the HANDOUT at the dotted line and save it for the conclusion of this activity.)
   b. Instruct students to have their respondents follow the directions and "rank" the features given and add any other specifications they feel are important in making a decision about purchasing sunglasses.
   c. When everyone has brought in their surveys, have students collate them into stacks by features that were ranked "1." (For example, all surveys where "Fit" was ranked "1" would go into one stack, and so on.)
   d. Divide the class into groups. Have each (i) choose one stack of surveys and (ii) review consumer preferences on their surveys.

   Challenge each group to create and present a marketing campaign aimed at the target market for that feature.

Combine your survey results with those of your classmates, collating them by number "1" rankings. In other words, put into one pile all surveys where "Fit" was ranked #1; do the same for the remaining 5 categories. Choose one group of surveys and decide your "target market" if you were the manufacturer of sunglasses that were strong on that feature. Create and present an ad campaign for that market.

 * * * * *  STUDENT HANDOUT: Promoting Youthful Voting

DIRECTIONS: You are part of a UN task force studying the role of the youth vote in democratic nations. You and your team will research recent voting trends in one of 3 countries: Russia, the U.S. and Israel. First, find out what percentage of the 18-25 year olds in your team’s country voted in the most recent national election.

PART I: The percentage of 18-25 year olds who voted in (your team’s country) during the election of 199( date of last national election) was ______ %.

Part II: Use the chart below to generate a list of factors that appear to spark high voter turnout in this age group. Then, in the middle column below, list the factors that might be related to voter apathy in this age group. Finally, separate these positive and negative factors into the following categories: Economic (E), historical/political (H/P) and ethnic/religious (E/R). Some conditions affecting elections may fall into more than one category. Be prepared to defend your choices for Column #3.

1. How are Syrians perpetuating their claims to the Golan Heights? Using a map of the Middle East, identify countries that border on Israel. Gather data about Israel’s expansion since 1948, indicating these gains on the map.
   a. Which territories has Israel returned to its former owners?
   b. Which territories has Israel kept?

Analyze then discuss the strategic importance of the Golan Heights and the Gaza Strip to Israel.

2. Gather information about the dispute over the Golan Heights. Organize mock negotiations between Israeli and Syrian diplomats on this issue. Add another country to serve as mediator and a class panel to evaluate the strength of each side’s claims.
   a. What is each country’s position? Who has the strongest claim on the national security issue?
   b. How important is Syria’s claim of traditional possession?

In the end, which nation is most strongly supported by the panel? How does the issue of the Golan Heights seem most likely to be decided in the future?

TOP STORY: COURT DECISION ON INTERNET REGULATION

1. Why did the federal court issue an injunction against the Communications Decency Act? What implications does this action have for Internet users?

2. Have students read the text of the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution and in a class discussion summarize its meaning in their own words. Then read to them the following quote from the federal court decision: "As the most participatory form of mass speech yet developed, the Internet deserves the highest protection from governmental intrusion." In class discussion, have students interpret this quote. Ask: Do you think the framers of the Bill of Rights would have agreed with this court decision? Why/Why not? Have students write essays in response to these questions.

3. Invite an attorney who specializes in constitutional law to visit the class and explain the judicial course taken by the Communications Decency Act. Have the visitor explain what an injunction is, who sought it in this case and why. Then ask him/her to discuss the appeals process and why the Clinton Administration might seek one. Afterward, have students break into groups to talk about the political pros and cons of a Clinton Administration appeal to remove the injunction.

HABITAT CONFERENCE: DALLAS SOLAR HOMES

4. What is unique about the "Esperanza del Sol" project? Describe the features that allow these houses to be energy efficient.

AUTO EMISSIONS

1. BEFORE VIEWING: What is meant by "automobile emissions"? What chemicals are found in them and what is their source? Are they dangerous? Explain. Who monitors auto emissions and how? Does this reduce air pollution? Why/Why not?

2. AFTER VIEWING: Discuss the new auto emissions detector. How is it different from/similar to current emissions testing?

3. Where is auto emissions a problem -- nationwide, regionally and/or locally? Explain. Should all cars should be tested? Why/Why not? What criteria should be used to determine an acceptable emissions level? Would this be fair to everyone? Why/Why not?

4. Group students to represent the following interests: Automobile Manufacturers, EPA, American Chemical Society, motorists' associations, state/local governments, petroleum companies, and Donald Stedman and his researchers. Distribute copies of the HANDOUT (pg 4) to each group. Arrange for student access to media materials referring to auto emissions, emissions testing, etc. Groups should use information from the video, the HANDOUT and other references as needed to develop an auto emissions policy. Challenge them to shape their policy to benefit the group they represent.

5. Using information from the HANDOUT, video and other sources, have groups create a timeline of auto emissions problems and the search for solutions. Ask: Should the Stedman process be included on the timeline? Why/Why not? Display students' work in the media center or commons area.

6. Have students research the chemicals in air pollution. Which chemicals are most dangerous? Which ones might be eliminated by further processing of gasoline? Which ones could be reduced by rce-engineering auto engines? Which ones are easiest to detect through emissions testing? Can all be detected by the Stedman method? Chart students’ findings.

7. What pollutants besides exhaust emissions can be directly or indirectly attributed to autos? How are pollutants tested? Are tests reliable? Explain. Could a version of the Stedman method be used to detect these pollutants? Why/Why not?

  STUDENT HANDOUT: THE SEARCH FOR CLEAN AIR

Air pollution and cars were linked in the early ‘50s by a California researcher who determined that traffic was to blame for LA’s smoggy skies. Then, new cars emitted nearly 13 grams/mi. hydrocarbons (HC), 3.6 grams/mi. nitrogen oxides (NOx), and 87 grams/mi. carbon monoxide (CO). Since then, the federal government has set standards to lower pollutant levels; and, the auto industry has developed new emissions control technologies. Current federal certification standards for car exhaust emissions are 0.25 gram per mile HC, 0.4 gram per mile NOx, and 3.4 grams per mile CO. The standard for evaporative HC emissions is 2 grams per test. Improvements came about in a series of steps:

1964 CA requires minimal emission control systems on 1966 cars.
1966 Minimal emission controls required on 1968 and later cars.
1970 Clean Air Act establishes EPA to be responsible for regulating motor vehicle pollution; calls for 90% reductions in auto emissions; new cars must meet a 0.41 gram/mi. HC standard and a 3.4 grams/mi. CO standard by 1975; NOx emissions to be reduced to 0.4 gram/mi. by 1976. (NOx standard later revised, see 1977.); directs EPA to set health-based "National Ambient Air Quality Standards" for 6 pollutants, all present in auto emissions to some degree.
1971 New cars must meet evaporative emission standards; charcoal canisters to trap gasoline vapors appear.
1974 Congress delays HC and CO standards until 1978, sets interim ones at auto industry request; Energy Policy Conservation Act, sets first fuel economy goals; Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) program phases in more stringent standards.
1975 First catalytic converters and unleaded gasoline appear.
1977 Clean Air Act amended; HC standard delayed until ‘80, CO until ‘81, NOx until 1981; NOx is relaxed to 1 gram per mile.
1983 Inspection and Maintenance (I/M) programs established in 64 cities, requiring periodic tests of passenger vehicles for malfunctioning emission control systems.
1985 Stringent emission standards for diesel-powered trucks, buses.
1989 Fuel volatility limits set to reduce evaporative emissions.
1990 EPA imposes strict limits on diesel fuel sulfur content; Clean Air Act amended to further reduce HC, CO, NOx and particulate emissions; also, introduces programs to reduce pollution from motor vehicles.
1991 EPA promulgates lower tailpipe standards for HC and NOx.
1992 Standards set for emission limits for carbon monoxide at cold temperatures (20°F); oxygenated gasoline introduced.
1993 Limits set on sulfur content of diesel fuel.
1994 Phase-in begins for cleaner vehicle standards, technologies.
CHINA CULTURE: CHINA--HISTORY--CULTURAL REVOLUTION
1. Have students gather information about the goals and events of the Chinese Cultural Revolution. Organize a debate about the real goals of the Revolution. Have one side argue that the Revolution was necessary in order to replace the traditions of the past with a more progressive set of values. The other side should argue that it was a political move meant to revitalize Mao's power base. Research may suggest other positions to add to the debate. Use the events of the Cultural Revolution to support your positions. During the debate, list the arguments for each position. For closure, write a summary essay using the arguments presented.

TOP STORY: RUSSIAN ELECTIONS

1. BEFORE VIEWING: Have students list reasons the Russian elections are important to the U.S. AFTER VIEWING: Add to the class list. Do students agree with new points or opinions brought up in the video? Why/Why not?

2. Guide students to prepare an "election watch" chart for Sunday's contest. Who are the major candidates and their parties? What do the polls predict? Then, have students watch CNN NEWSROOM next week and other CNN election coverage to analyze the outcome and its potential impact on the U.S.

EDITOR'S DESK/NEWSQUIZ

3. Distribute a copy of the NEWSQUIZ (pg 4) to each student. As a class, read the directions, then define "fact" and "issue" as used on the QUIZ. Practice distinguishing between these terms; then, direct students to indicate both the FACTS and the ISSUES for each NEWSROOM story listed. Responses will vary.

ARTISTRY IN ACTION: EDWARD HOPPER
4. From the video and other sources, have students describe the major appeal of Edward Hopper’s work. How might the terms "realism," "loneliness" and "starkness" apply to Hopper’s paintings? What other terms might students add? Challenge students to write haiku (first line 5 syllables; second line 7 syllables; third line 5 syllables) using their terms and depicting one of Hopper’s works.

5. Do you agree with the goal of the Truro Conservation Trust? Is there an area or monument in your town that you feel should be preserved? Explain. As a class, write a mission statement for a local historical conservation group.

MEDIA LITERACY: BIAS AND THE VISUAL MEDIA
6. Before distributing the HANDOUT (pg 3), have students discuss bias as it applies to the media. If a report shows bias, what might students expect to see? Consider presentation of all sides of a story, emotional appeals or language, skewed or incorrect facts, ambiguous or weighted language. Using a video segment for classroom viewing or watching reports on their own, have students use the chart on HANDOUT (pg 3) to measure and analyze bias in the visual media. What techniques are apparent when reports are clearly unbiased?

RUSSIA TV CAMPAIGN: RUSSIA--POLITICS--ELECTION

1. What role is television playing in the Russian presidential campaigns? Why do Russians tend to distrust TV as an information medium? Gather information about the major candidates including Lebed, Yavlinsky, Yeltsin, Zugenov, and Zhironovsky. Make a chart comparing their views and results from recent polls regarding their popularity. Considering the appeal of their positions, which candidate might find TV an effective campaign tool? Which candidates will be hurt by TV advertising? Why do you think television is so rapidly coming to play a major role in Russian politics? Will the country benefit from this trend? From what you have seen, what do you predict will be the outcome of Sunday's presidential election?

INTERNET: http://www.online.ru/eservices/edistant.html
2. In what ways is the Hapoel Taibe a symbol for the Palestinians who live in the Taibe area and beyond? How has the team already been able to score political points in Israel? Research population figures for Jews and Palestinians living in Israel. Create a map display that shows the numbers and distribution of each group throughout the country and, on an enlarged map, specifically in the Taibe area.
   a. To what extent is Israel ethnically segregated?
   b. Is the Taibe area typical of the country as a whole or is it more ethnically integrated?
Write a short paper in the style of an editorial or a letter to the editor promoting athletics as a means of generating inter-communal relations.

3. What social issues does Pagascovie suggest have risen as a result of the end of the communist state? Gather information about the situation in the Czech Republic during the past five years. Work in a small group to create a visual commentary on one Czech social issue.
EXTENSION: Create visual commentary on local, national or international issues. Display gallery-style in the media center.

3. Consider the following statement made in the video segment: "Russian Presidential candidate Gennady Zyuganov says the eventual reunification of the former Soviet Union is 'inevitable.'" Group students to conduct research into Russia's relations with other member-states of the former Soviet Union. Divide the states among the groups.
   a. With what states is Russia naturally aligned? Why?
   b. With what states have relations been contentious? Why?
      What is the current status of their relationship?
   Have each group present its findings. To whom is a "Soviet Reunion" particularly attractive? Why? Which states WOULD and WOULD NOT consider a "reunion" and why? Ask: What role do you think this issue will play in the next election if Mr. Yeltsin's reforms fail?

4. How might recent events have an impact on current Russian politics? Distribute the RESOURCE (pg 4). As a class, review the information given. Then have students work in groups to conduct research to learn more about the ideological differences between Mr. Yeltsin and Mr. Zyuganov and share their findings. Challenge each group to use what it has learned and the information on the RESOURCE to create two hypothetical TV ads, one for each candidate, designed to sway undecided voters in the upcoming runoff election.

3. What is "acting presidential"? In class discussion, have students use their own words to define this term. Then divide the class into groups and challenge each to
   a. brainstorm and list ways Mr. Clinton could be viewed as "acting presidential" to voters; and,
   b. write down the images of what voters would see and discuss these with the class.

Then challenge each student to write a newspaper editorial supporting or rejecting Pres. Clinton's quest for a second term, based on specifics cited from research. Should the voters "follow" Pres. Clinton into a second term? Discuss.
5. Might former Pres. Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter or George Bush have won second terms had each followed a predecessor’s “playbook”? Divide the class into groups. Have each choose one of these former presidents and research the political circumstances surrounding his defeat. Challenge each group to write and present a skit where a previous president gives political advice to the group’s chosen president before his re-election bid. How might history have changed, for example, had Jimmy Carter taken a page from Franklin Roosevelt’s political “playbook”?

 STUDENT RESOURCE: RUSSIA’S TURNING POINTS

Here are some recent memories that may influence Russian voters as they head back to the polls in July for a runoff between the reform-minded Boris Yeltsin and Communist Party candidate Gennady Zyuganov.

THE COLLAPSE OF THE SOVIET UNION
Just before Yeltsin’s election, the Ukraine declared its independence from Moscow. Shortly afterward, both Mikhail Gorbachev and Boris Yeltsin met separately with Soviet military leaders, making different appeals to restore unity. The military decided to do nothing. The USSR crumbled into 15 republics within two weeks.

“SHOCK” ECONOMIC REFORMS
On Jan. 1, 1992, Pres. Yeltsin freed prices as part of radical economic reforms aimed at ending shortages and implementing capitalism. The cost of most food staples tripled overnight. Promising to lift living standards within one year, Yeltsin hired Igor Gaidar, a western-oriented economist, as his economic czar. Gaidar’s radical reforms had some positive effects but at great social cost. Yeltsin backed away from this strategy in late 1992, leaving Russia’s economy the half-communist, half-capitalist hybrid it is today.

THE WHITE HOUSE SIEGE
A two-day insurrection by communists, fascists and other anti-Yeltsin rebels was silenced on Oct. 4, 1993, when the military attacked the Russian White House, or parliament, where rebel leaders were gathered. Yeltsin himself came very close to being overthrown. Only a written order from Commander-in-Chief Yeltsin to a military whose loyalties were divided between Yeltsin and the rebels saved the country from civil war.

WAR IN CHECHNYA
On Dec. 11, 1994, Russian tanks rolled into Chechnya in an attempt to silence those favoring Chechen independence. Seventeen months and 30,000 lives later, Russia and Chechnya negotiated a cease-fire to an embarrassing chapter in Yeltsin’s political career.

THE MONEY DEAL
In late January 1996, Russia was facing a government cash crisis. With the help of U.S. Pres. Bill Clinton, Yeltsin was able to secure a $10.2 billion loan from the International Monetary Fund (IMF), helping Yeltsin politically while aiding Russia’s economy.

*     STUDENT RESOURCE: RUSSIAN CANDIDATES

Russia's vote tally is nearly complete. The percentage totals for the major candidates looked like this yesterday:

Boris Yeltsin 35.2%
Gennady Zyuganov 31.9
Alexander Lebed 14.7
Grigory Yavlinsky 7.4
Vladimir Zhirinovsky 5.8

Each candidate represents different interests and ideologies. Below is information on each of these individuals.

BORIS YELTSIN (age 65): Russia's current president is an ex-engineer turned Communist Party official and member of the Soviet politburo. He was the chief architect of the collapse of the USSR in 1991 and initiated radical economic reforms in 1992. Yeltsin campaigns as the "only defender of stability and reform." He has had some health problems but seems to be healthy now and is actively courting the youth vote.

GENNADY ZYUGANOV (age 51): Former Soviet official and organizer who led the Communist Party to victory in December's parliamentary elections. He advocates state control of industries, broader government involvement in the economy and "peaceful" restoration of the Soviet Union.

ALEXANDER LEBED (age 46): Retired general, credited with ending ethnic hostilities in the former republic of Moldova in 1992. Platform fuses patriotism with calls for "order" and a strong military. Earned his popularity as an Afghan war hero and for publicly denouncing Yeltsin's use of the military in Chechnya.

GRIGORY YAVLINSKY (age 44): A free-market economist and ex-Soviet government advisor, he heads the centrist Yabloko ("Apple") Party. He pledges to streamline and soften Russia's economic reforms, fight crime and reform the military.

VLADIMIR ZHIRINOVSKY (age 50): Previously ran for president in 1991, this flamboyant lawyer heads the ultra-nationalist Liberal Democratic Party, which has strong support in the parliament. He is famous for his "shock value"; for example, he has promised to annex Alaska if he is elected.

TOP STORY: WHITE HOUSE WOES

1. Who is Bruce Lindsey? What was his position in Bill Clinton's 1990 campaign for Governor of Arkansas? Why is his implication in Whitewater of concern to the President? How has the President responded to these latest allegations? What has the White House done in an attempt to calm the uproar over its handling of confidential FBI files?

2. Discuss the meaning of the term "damage control" then divide students into groups.
   a. Tell students in each group to pretend that they are aides to President Clinton. Their job is to read/observe the media coverage of the latest developments in Whitewater and the FBI files affair, then issue a memo on steps the White House should take to control "damage" in the minds of voters.

b. Have each group write, edit and present copies of its memo to the other groups.

As a class, review and discuss group memos. Did some "aides" advocate a totally "upfront" approach to dealing with these issues and with the media? Did some promote a more "tight-lipped" policy? According to these student-advisors, what should the White House do to minimize the fallout from these problems? Discuss.

3. The allegation concerning Bruce Lindsey involves a $30,000 campaign withdrawal he made from an Arkansas bank. The bank's owners are accused of violating federal law by not informing the IRS of the withdrawal. Why would they have to do this? Why are some bank deposits and withdrawals regulated by law?

In class discussion, have students offer possible answers to these questions. Then invite a bank officer to address students on some of the federal laws involving deposits and withdrawals and the reasons behind these regulations.

OUR WORLD: BRODY'S BLUES

4. With what other legendary performers has eleven-year old Brody Buster been compared? Have students gather information on child prodigies, some performers who have been given this label and how they developed their talents. Have students share information and discuss what drives these young people to musical greatness.

DESK: REEF REBUILDING

1. BEFORE VIEWING: Ask students to describe a coral reef. Where are they found? How are they formed? How do they affect the marine ecosystem?

2. AFTER VIEWING: Have students describe damage sustained to the coral reef in Florida. How will the reef be repaired? Why is repair of the reef so important?

3. Where else in North America can coral reefs be found? Where in the world? Have students use a globe or outline maps of the world to indicate coral reef communities. Ask: What do all these areas have in common?

4. Have students make a list of conditions necessary for the formation of coral reefs. Then challenge students to predict how changing environmental conditions affect coral reef communities. How do human activities affect coral reefs? Why?

5. Ask: What organisms form coral reefs? How do these creatures get food, reproduce and eliminate waste? Group students and distribute the HANDOUT (pg 4). Instruct students to use their text, media and other resources to answer these questions about the life of coral and record all answers on the HANDOUT.

6. Divide the class into several groups. Assign to each group a particular coral reef community and instruct each to make a poster detailing this community. The poster should include:

a. the location of the community, environmental conditions and food webs.

b. text and graphics, especially pictures of plants and animals inhabiting the reef.
Display completed posters in the class, media center or other common area.

7. Tell each group that an accident, similar to the one described in the video, happened to their reef. Have them use information from the video, the HANDOUT and additional resources as necessary to plan repair of their reef. Each group should explain the details of the repair in a formal report. Have the other groups review the report and critique the feasibility of the repair.

DIRECTIONS: Corals are small marine animals that live together in colonies. They belong to a larger group of animals, the coelenterates, which include jellyfish and anemones. Coelenterates are also called Cniderians because they all have stingers; Cnideria means stinger. Corals are special because they have skeletons. Over hundreds, even thousands, of years these skeletons build to form a reef.

Use your text and other resources as needed to complete the chart below about the life of coral. This information is important because coral reefs provide homes for many other organisms. If the coral die, or are killed, the coral reef community could not exist.

TOP STORY: RUSSIAN POLITICS

1. Ask students to define the word "coup" then discuss what is meant by the following statement: "Today, when President Yeltsin fired Barsukov and Korshakov it was the last nail in the coffin of coups." Based on their understanding of Russian history, do students agree or disagree with this assessment? They should support their opinions with examples from both recent and past Russian history.

EDITOR’S DESK/NEWSQUIZ

2. Divide the class into two teams and challenge them to name the political figures described in the 9 summaries on the HANDOUT (pg 4). The team correctly identifying the most persons wins.

ANSWERS IN ORDER: Bruce Lindsey; Gennady Zyuganov; Shimon SPACE IS THE PLACE
3. Ask students to imagine themselves in the place of one of the shuttle’s crew. What would they expect to see and feel as their space craft accelerated from 0 to 17,000 miles/hour? Have them write a poem or song to “celebrate” their imaginary experience, or draw a picture to illustrate what they saw.

MEDIA LITERACY/THE GAMES OF ’96
4. Ask students to discuss the media’s view of the ideal woman. Do they agree or disagree with this image?
   a. Provide them with magazines, scissors, glue and paper.
   b. Challenge them to work in teams to create a collage of the quintessential media image of WOMAN.
   c. Then, give them time to jot down thoughts in response to the 6 questions on the HANDOUT (pg 3) and guide a discussion based on these questions.
   d. Following the discussion, challenge them to find or draw pictures to add to their original collages. Additions should illustrate changes to the “ideal female image” they hope will result from coverage of Olympic women athletes.

MEDIA LITERACY

STUDENT HANDOUT: PLAY BALL, LADIES!

DIRECTIONS: Create a collage illustrating the IDEAL WOMAN as seen through the eyes of American media. Next, jot notes in response to the questions below to use in a short discussion on the power of media in the creation of an ideal image.

1. How would you describe the "ideal" woman as viewed through the eye of the media? Explain.

2. Is this image a powerful influence on young women today? Why?

3. How do the softball stars shown in PLAY BALL! compare with this image? Explain.

4. Are there aspects to these stars that you believe are ignored in the current “female ideal”? If so, what are they?

5. In your opinion, should these qualities "get more coverage" in media imagery? Why/Why not?

6. If these women capture the hearts and minds of the American public, how would you expect the current female media image to be influenced by these new American heroines? Would you consider this to be a positive, neutral or negative change? Explain.

ERIC
Finally, work with teammates to create a new "ideal" female image for the media to promote based on pictures of America's female athletes. Accompany your collage with an open letter to "Madison Avenue" explaining the need for the new image and naming your favorite Olympic athletes as examples of your proposed ideal.

  *  * * * POLITICAL

DIRECTIONS: Show off your knowledge of the important political figures featured in this week's news. Each of the following summaries describes such a leader. The team that identifies the most leaders described below wins.

One of Bill Clinton's closest advisers; worked as campaign treasurer for Clinton's 1990 campaign for Arkansas governor.

Former Soviet official and organizer who led the Communist party to victory in December's parliamentary elections. He advocates state control of industry, broader government involvement in the economy, and hopes to restore/re-assemble the Soviet Union.

Former Prime Minister of Israel, a member of the Labor Party who sought to continue the peace proceedings begun under the late Yitzhak Rabin.

Former U.S. Secretary of State in the Bush administration. His FBI file was one of 400 files that ended up at the White House illegally.

Former presidential candidate in Russia's 1991 elections, this man's nationalistic views often have provoked controversy and alarm in the international community. Currently, he heads the ultra-nationalist Liberal Democratic Party.

Prime Minister-elect of the new Israeli government, member of the Likud Party.

Retired Russian general who recently surprised pollsters by receiving nearly 15% of the vote in the first round of Russia's presidential elections.

Current Secretary General of the UN who plans to run for a 2nd term despite U.S. plans to prevent his re-election.

Former business partner of Bill Clinton in the Whitewater land deal. Convicted recently of fraudulent banking practices, this person is now investigated for embezzlement while working for a famous conductor in Hollywood.

ANCHOR DESK

* Israel, Russia, the United States...this is an election year around the world. Stay tuned to CNN and CNN NEWSROOM for all the latest details on the global political scene.

TOP STORY: ARAB LEAGUE SUMMIT
1. What was the major topic of discussion at this past week's Arab League Summit? In spite of a show of unity, the Arab League members are divided over this issue. Explain the viewpoints of the "hardliners" and "moderates" on the question of Israel.
2. Summarize the message delivered in the Arab Summit communique. What are the possible repercussions if Israel fails to heed this message? On what other issues did Arab leaders flex their collective political muscles? Do you think their show of unity will have any effect on the resolutions of any of these issues? Explain.
3. Arab unity was a major goal of the Arab summit. Guide students to complete the chart on HANDOUT (pg 4) as they find "lines of enmity and amity" in the Arab world. Have students share their findings and, as a class, decide on the best routes to unity.

DEMOCRACY IN AMERICA DESK: THE CRYING GAME

4. Why were some of the political figures in the video crying? Did their emotional reactions appear genuine to you, or do you think their tears were politically motivated? Explain. Veteran political observer Jimmy Breslin says tears "make no difference." Do you agree or disagree with him? Why?

5. In this election year, students are likely to hear a great deal of political trivia. Provide them with a springboard for some interesting discussions and research by challenging them to a "political scavenger hunt."
   a. Distribute the HANDOUT (pg 3) to groups of students.
   b. Direct each group to use its text, online sources and any other available resources to find the answers to each trivia question given.

   ANSWERS: 1-Henry Clay; 2-Harding and Kennedy; 3-Seven: Washington, Jackson, Wm. F. Harrison, Taylor, Grant, Garfield and Eisenhower; 4-Twice: Jefferson (1801), John Q. Adams (1825); 5-Ford, Carter, Reagan, Bush. After checking answers, challenge groups to continue compiling political trivia questions (and answers) for their classmates.

ANDREAS PAPANDREOU

6. Who was Andreas Papandreou? What conditions prompted his rise to power? What circumstances forced him out? How did he return to the political limelight? Can you think of any other political leaders who have fallen out of favor with their people, only to return to political popularity? Discuss.

DIRECTIONS: In this election year, you're likely to hear lots of political trivia. Here's a political scavenger hunt to get you into the political trivia "frame of mind." Search your text, resources and online sources to find the answers to these trivia questions. Record your answers in the spaces provided.

1. Bob Dole is the first sitting U.S. Senator to resign his seat to pursue the presidency since this senator did in 1842. Who is he?

2. If elected, Bob Dole would be only the third president to move directly from the Senate to the Oval Office. Who are the other two?

3. Like all of his predecessors, Pres. Bill Clinton also has the title of "Commander in Chief" of the Armed Forces; but, how many presidents also served as generals in national service, and who are they?
4. If no presidential candidate receives a majority of Electoral Votes, the House of Representatives chooses the next president. How many times has the House chosen the president? Who was the victor in each case?

5. Name the former U.S. presidents who are still living.

Check your answers. Now use your resources to help you compile some presidential trivia questions (and answers) for your classmates.

Search to compare information on the status of the CIS economies and civil liberties with their previous Soviet status and with each other. Are any of the states better off? Discuss factors that contribute to government stability. Color-code a map of the CIS to indicate which states
   a. appear to be stable,

2. Describe the dangers migrant workers encounter when attempting to cross "La Linea." What expectations do these workers have to take such risks? Use the Internet to discover the niche migrant workers fill in the U.S. economy.
   a. Find out the kinds of labor typically performed by migrant workers, how much they earn and the profit gained by the industries.
   b. Use images to mark on a U.S. map the states using migrant workers and the work/industry for which they are hired.
   Which industry uses the most migrant workers? Who benefits most from this labor pool? 2. Lead a class discussion of the differences between the "territory-for-peace principle" and Pres. Bush’s phrase, "territorial compromise." Are the preconditions for a peace based on "territorial compromise" different from those established by the "territory-for-peace" principle? Discuss.

3. The end of the top story focuses on the U.S.’s past role as a mediator in Arab-Israeli negotiations. How might mediation by a third party be used to advance the current peace process? How well has third-party intervention worked in other conflict-
4. Challenge students to cite examples of other regions that are experiencing conflict founded on territorial disputes. Ask: What comparisons emerge between these conflicts and the Arab/Israeli conflict? Using these comparisons, have students make predictions about the Arab/Israeli peace process.

JAPANESE JAZZ

5. BEFORE VIEWING: Have students think back to the last concert they attended or watched on video. Ask: Do you need to have a significant amount of background knowledge about music in order to enjoy/appreciate a performance? Explain.

6. AFTER VIEWING: Consider Marcus Miller's statement that the Japanese, "really understand the music." Agree or Disagree: Audience understanding is an important part of music appreciation? CHALLENGE: Divide students into groups and have them choose a type of music to research before the next class. Groups should prepare 15-minute presentations for the class that involve listening to, and learning about, one type of music. Their presentations should also address the relationship between knowledge and appreciation.

STUDENT HANDOUT: REBIRTH OF A CITY

DIRECTIONS: In today’s INTERNATIONAL DESK story, CNN Correspondent Maria Ressa states "...perhaps the best solution to insurgency here is development." Could what is happening in Quezon happen in another part of the world? Choose a city or town anywhere that has been the site of civil war or rebel insurgency. Conduct research to learn more about the region so that your group can attempt to economically "rejuvenate" that site. Note your findings below as you consider:

1. natural resources of the region:

2. geographic assets (location, ports, etc.):

3. sources of electrical power:

4. transportation possibilities:

5. possible business opportunities:

6. the current political system: (Are those in power likely to support private enterprise? If so, cite evidence. If not, would a business/government partnership to promote economic growth be possible? Explain.)

Combine your findings into a formal presentation. Pretend that you are part of a United Nations commission whose job it is to offer a plan to rejuvenate this site. Present your plan and try to "sell" it to your classmates, acting as your nation’s government.
CENTRAL ASIA ISLAM: TAJIKISTAN—RELIGION—ISLAM—FUNDAMENTALISM
1. Who are the players in this civil war? What interests do they promote and why? Based on statements made in the video report, what are the pros and cons associated with governance under Islamic law?
2. Note on a map the countries mentioned in the video and their relationship to one another. Use the Internet and other resources to find out each country's "ethnic mix" and display in a pie graph. Based on your findings, how possible would it be to establish and maintain Islamic law in each country? Would this be more of an issue for countries with shared borders? Explain.

Search for examples of disappearing ways of life in other cultures. What impact has change had on the family and on society? What remains of the traditional ways and what modifications emerged? Talk to older family members about changes that may have occurred in family traditions over generations. What effect did these have on individuals? the whole family? In class, share efforts taken to blend the traditional with the modern.

Have students use this list and the HANDOUT to identify the key circumstances in U.S.-Saudi relations. Then, ask them to make recommendations for U.S policy towards King Fahd's government, in the wake of today's bomb attack. Groups should present recommendations in the form of two-minute talks before the class.

3. Why did ValuJet employees march on Washington, D.C., yesterday? Why was their corporation’s president asked to testify before Congress? How has he responded to the FAA’s decision to shut down ValuJet? What criticisms were leveled at the FAA?

4. What is the job of the FAA and to whom is it accountable? What are the parameters and limits of its authority? Have groups of students each choose to research the FAA or other U.S. federal agency whose job is citizen protection, such as the NTSB or FDA. Assist groups in locating on-line and other resources that will help them find information on the chosen agency. Have groups present their findings as formal reports.

EGYPT’S ECONOMY

DIRECTIONS: Today’s BUSINESS DESK segment explains how Egypt is trying to make the transition from economic socialism to capitalism. Although there are different forms of economic socialism and capitalism, some generalizations can be made in comparing these two systems. Use your resources to help you explain, in your own words, how each economic characteristic listed below is perceived under economic socialism and capitalism.

<table>
<tr>
<th>CHARACTERISTIC OF THE ECONOMY</th>
<th>UNDER ECONOMIC SOCIALISM</th>
<th>UNDER CAPITALISM</th>

<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1. Based on your research and on what you have written, explain the general steps Egypt will have to take in order to move toward a free market (capitalist) economy.

2. Discuss problems that could surface as Egyptians take these steps. How would you suggest Pres. Mubarak move his people toward capitalism with minimal economic and political fallout?
Discuss.

     SAUDI ARABIA:
     STUDENT RESOURCE: HISTORY AND GOVERNMENT

BIRTH OF A NATION: The Saudi Arabia monarchy is anchored in the religion of Islam. King Abdul Aziz (1882-1953) founded the country.
He joined the two provinces of Hejaz and Nejd, thus becoming King of Saudi-Arabia in 1932. A descendental of the earlier Wahabi rulers, a tribe that continues to dominate Saudi society to this day, King Aziz'z dynasty, the House of Saud, still rules Saudi-Arabia. The country is named after him, as his full Arabic name is bin Abdul Rahman bin Faisal Al-Saud.

CURRENT GOVERNMENT: One of Aziz's 45 sons, King Fahd, rose to power in 1962 when he was 60 years-old. He is considered to be a pro-Western modernist who opposes the fundamentalism of some of his nation's Muslim neighbors. In 1992, Fahd created a new constitution featuring a 60-member council that proposes and reviews laws. Laws are ultimately passed by The Cabinet which is primarily composed of members of the Saudi royal family.

THE ECONOMY: Oil was discovered in 1936; it made Saudi Arabia one of the oil-rich Arab states on the Persian Gulf. The country is a member of OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) and possesses one-third of all known oil reserves. During the 1980s, the country's revenues plummeted, due to a drop in worldwide consumption of fossil fuels and other factors. In order to increase revenues, the Saudi government banded together with other OPEC member nations to fix the price of oil. These efforts to keep oil prices artificially high created tension between the U.S. and Saudi Arabia.

ROLE IN REGIONAL CONFLICTS: During the Iran-Iraq War of the 1980s, Saudi Arabia, fearing Ayatollah Khomeini's fundamentalist regime, sided with Iraq. Saudi Arabia became directly involved in the war when Iran began attacked its ships in the Persian Gulf in 1984.
During the Gulf War of 1991, Saudi Arabia became a target of Iranian missile attacks.

HUMAN RIGHTS: King Fahd and the Cabinet pass laws restricting individual freedoms. For example, citizens lack rights such as freedom of speech and the right to a fair trial. Women are not allowed to drive in Saudi Arabia; some women who protested against this governmental decree in the early 1990s were persecuted.

2. According to the video, what short- and long-term "fixes" are needed to improve Chile's living conditions? Describe the "partnership" and assumptions on which Chile's housing program is based. Then use the Internet to research U.S. Habitat for Humanity programs -- guidelines, requirements, success rates -- and note similarities with Chile's program. If your community could benefit from a similar program, identify and investigate local/state housing programs. Create a chart comparing potential homeowner requirements. Which program(s) seem to be the best for low- and middle-income buyers? Explain.

TOP STORY: U.S. REACTS TO BASE BOMBING

1. What signs pointed to a possible terrorist attack against the U.S. base at Dhahran in the months preceding the bombing? How did the military react to the suspicious activity? According to U.S. Defense Secretary William Perry, were these precautions effective? Explain.

2. Why did the presence of Western troops touch "a sensitive nerve" with many Saudis at the outset of the 1991 Gulf War? How has the perceived "mission" of many ardent Muslims come into conflict with this Western presence? Why have some of these forces resorted to terrorism?

3. Have students work in groups to examine the U.S. military presence in other nations and some responses to that presence. Assist student groups in conducting research to learn more about the reasons why some nationals resent the presence of the U.S. military on their soil. Have groups share information in a class discussion. Note the locations of some of these bases and why the U.S. maintains interests there. What, if anything, can the U.S. do to reduce the incidence of anti-U.S. sentiment against its personnel? Discuss.

AT ISSUE: SUPREME COURT RULES VMI MUST ACCEPT FEMALE CADETS

4. Summarize the Supreme Court's decision in the VMI discrimination case. Why did the Court reject Virginia's female alternative to VMI? How did Justice Antonin Scalia, as the lone dissenter, respond to the case? To what other institution does the High Court's ruling apply?

5. At the core of this decision is the fact that VMI receives a $10 million per year subsidy from the state of Virginia. According to the video, VMI could choose to remain all-male if it is willing to give up this state funding. After reiterating these facts to the class, generate a discussion about the options VMI officials will consider when they meet next month. Should they vote to change the institution or maintain tradition and lose their funding? After class discussion, direct students to write position papers supporting one of the two options and offer their reasoning.

1. BEFORE VIEWING: Ask students to describe vertebrate animals. What characteristics do all vertebrates share? Where do vertebrates live? List examples of vertebrates.

2. AFTER VIEWING ask: According to scientists, how long have vertebrates existed on Earth? Where did the earliest vertebrates live? Describe some of the vertebrate fossils on display at the American Museum of Natural History.

3. How do scientists know the age of fossils? List methods used to determine the age of fossils, including law of superposition and radioactive dating. Which method(s) is/are most accurate? Explain. Which method(s) is/are most user friendly? Why? Do results obtained from all methods agree with each other?

4. Ask: Are all vertebrates related? How do scientists determine the relationship among various species? Discuss the following techniques used by scientists to determine evolutionary relationships: biochemical analysis, comparative anatomy, comparative embryology and genetic analysis. What data is need for each method? Which methods are most accurate? Why? Do results from the various methods agree with each other?

5. Distribute the HANDOUT (pg 4). Have students use their text, additional media resources and information from the video and class discussion to complete the chart summarizing vertebrates. Divide the class into 7 groups; assign each group a particular class of vertebrate animals. Have students
a. make a poster detailing this group of animals.
   b. include the distinguishing characteristics of the class, evolutionary history of the group, natural history of representatives both past and present, pictures of animals in this group and the relative abundance of animals in this class throughout geologic time.
   The poster should include text and graphics. Display completed posters in the class or hallway.

6. Challenge student groups to work together to design a display of vertebrate animals, past and present, suitable for a museum.
Instruct the class to include the evolutionary history of vertebrates, the relationships among modern vertebrates and the impact vertebrates have had, and continue to have, on Earth.

2. What is happening to Mexico City? Why? What are the long-term effects of the "over-exploitation of ground water"? What other concerns about Mexico's water resources were discussed in the video segment? Search resources for information on:
   a. public health problems due to contaminated and/or scarce water resources; and,
   b. the general state of the public's health in and around Mexico City.

Collate findings and analyze the results. According to your information, does a correlation exist between current public health concerns and the state of Mexico City's water resources? Defend your rationale.
