INTRODUCTION

In the Spring of 1994, the faculty and staff of NMSU-Grants launched its preparations for the 1998 accreditation visit of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools. A major part of those preparations was an environmental scan of the Grants Branch institution and community. The contents of this document contain the summarized results of these projects. Information obtained from these research projects was used to prepare the self-study document, and to develop functional and institutional action plans for bringing about improvement of the institution.

REPORT OF THE PROCEEDINGS

OF THE

FACULTY, STAFF, AND COMMUNITY FRIENDS

OF

NEW MEXICO STATE UNIVERSITY-GRANTS CAMPUS

MILAN, NEW MEXICO

JANUARY 29, 1994
INTRODUCTION

On Saturday, January 29, 1994, employees and friends of New Mexico State University at Grants met in a retreat to review strengths and concerns related to the college and to develop a vision statement for the year 2000. The day-long event featured small group discussions between employees and visitors from the Grants/Cibola County School District, representatives from local pueblos, and local residents. A list of attendees is shown in Attachment 1. This document contains a summary of the proceedings of this retreat.

The purpose of this report is to faithfully reflect the statements of attendees, not to ascertain feasibility. Some actions suggested by this group can and should be implemented immediately. Other ideas may form the basis of a long-range institutional development plan. Of course some suggestions are unfeasible because of expense or legal limitations, and some ideas are already being implemented. Description of strengths, concerns, and vision statements are organized by institutional functional areas.

STRENGTHS

Instruction

All groups identified well-qualified and dedicated faculty as a strength of the college. Instructors were described as well-trained, dedicated, caring, involved with students, and involved in professional development. Other factors identified as instructional strengths were the flexibility and variety of courses, outreach activities, the variety of instructional methodologies, the employment of current technologies, and the dedication of many well-qualified part-time faculty. Effective articulation, small classes, and institutional technical support were also cited as contributing to effective instruction at the branch.

Student Services

A focus on staff support for student success was the theme of all groups processing strengths related to student services activities. Specific positive factors identified were effective communications between student services and faculty, ready availability of scholarships and scholarship information, student orientation of staff, competency in handling student problems, improved advising, and effective career service activities.

Physical Plant

All groups identified the physical facilities of the college as beautiful, clean, and well-maintained. Attractive grounds and flowers were also mentioned. The groups described the physical plant as peaceful, calm, and inviting; a place in which students, employees, and local citizens could take pride. Other positive aspects of the physical facilities were parking, the theater, the gym, and available room for expansion.
Relationship with the Community

The college was described as an integral part of the total Grants/Cibola County community. Relations with the public school system were considered to be generally good and improving as were relationships with local pueblos. Faculty and staff involvement in local activities were considered positive, along with support from the press. Strong relationships were identified between the branch and Corrections Corporation of America, the Department of Labor, Western New Mexico Correctional Facility, and many local employers. Specific strengths which were named by the groups included support for plays and other activities, the Adult Learning Center, the Elderhostel program, and Community Education.

Administration

The administrative staff was described as visible and accessible to students, faculty, and staff. They exhibited a positive outlook and a focus on student and community needs. One group stated that administration was supportive of professional development and worked to empower faculty.

Adult Education

The high quality of the adult education staff was cited as a strength by several groups. The staff was described as service oriented, warm, and caring. Specific activities described as strengths were the literacy program, student workshops, the return of GED testing, outreach activities, and the ESL program.

Other Strengths

Other institutional strengths defined by the workgroups included improving faculty morale, a hard-working, caring staff, and improved communications within the college.

CONCERNS

Instruction

Instructional concerns included relatively low faculty salaries, loss of concurrent enrollment, the extended registration period, unavailability of textbooks, and the need for more regular and part-time faculty. Fewer preparations would enable faculty to concentrate more effectively on their courses. The need for additional courses, including upper division and graduate courses, was identified as a need for the area. One group expressed a need for greater diversity among the faculty.
Student Services

The general feeling of the groups was that student services might require additional personnel to effectively conduct its business. Confusion of new students during registration, lack of counseling services, lack of support for diversity, and ineffective explanation to students of the College Placement Tests were specific areas of concern. One group believed that Student Services could do a better job of communication the wide variety of its services to students, to the public, and to college employers, and that better advisement procedures could be set in place.

Physical Plant

The chief complaint of all groups was ineffective heating and air conditioning control system in the Walter K. Martinez Building. Other problems which were identified were settling of the building, noise concerns in the library, smoking, lack of soap in the bathrooms, underutilization of the gym, and after hours access.

Relationship with the Community

One group felt that minorities were not offered appropriate programs. Other concerns focused on inadequate communications or marketing between the college and the local schools, and the college and the community. Specific areas of concern included lack of child care facilities, greater media exposure, negative perceptions by some local citizens, and the need for greater promotion of Elderhostel, Continuing Education, and ABE. One group expressed a need for greater community involvement by administrators and staff. The need to develop a greater understanding (perhaps by means of surveys) of our students and the community was also expressed.

Administration

The groups identified a number of concerns related to administration. They felt there were too many administrators and too few (and underpaid) clerical staff. Two groups noted poor communications between administration and staff but also felt that too many memos contributed to a "paperwork overload". It was stated that administrative deficiencies led to a number of problems in such areas as student advisement, transmission of phone messages, notification of student drops, and coordination with the library. One group suggested that administration should be more proactive and that surveys should be used to ascertain the results of actions.
Adult Education

Much of the concerns about adult education centered around inadequate funding for the program. Inadequate money was available to encourage adult (including senior citizen) participation. Outdated equipment was in use. One group felt there was a misfit between the needs of the community and resources available. Signage was identified as inadequate.

Other Concerns

Other concerns identified by the groups included the need for child care, food service, faculty of color, and campus security. The scheduling of rooms and classes could be improved. Communications with public agencies could be improved particularly as related to the availability of services.
MISSION 2000

The latter half of the retreat was devoted by the groups to the development of a vision of what they might hope the institution would look like in the year 2000. The same functional headings employed in the strengths and concerns statements were used in this portion of the exercise.

Instruction

In the year 2000 at NMSU-Grants, the curriculum would be based upon a clear understanding of the needs of the community, including students and local businesses, new instructional modes, including distance learning, and computer-interactive learning.

A "seamless" education system would be devised so that a student might move smoothly from the Grants/Cibola County School system, through the curriculum at NMSU-Grants, and on to either employment or a four year institution. One group envisioned bachelor degrees and graduate offerings at the college. Some of the new curricula suggested included a teaching day care center, fine arts, nursing/public health, Hispanic studies, medical technology, and a Nanny program. Alternative education for advanced high school students might be provided.

Student Services

By the year 2000, Student Services was envisioned as working more closely with public agencies such as the employment office. Job placement services would be more effective, featuring closer coordination with employers and students. Better marketing of services was also envisioned. New services such as day care, food service, counseling for graduate students, transportation, telephone registration, and a Hispanic student organization were suggested.

Physical Plant

By the year 2000 it was expected that all facilities would be in compliance with ADA and other requirements. Smoking, alcohol, and drugs would be eliminated from the campus. Heating and cooling problems would be resolved. Preventive maintenance would be the order of the day. New facilities suggested would include areas for physical education activities (swimming, courts, and track), a new library, day care, food service, convention center, study rooms, and a music room. New equipment suggested included lockers, a telescope, a gas kiln, opaque projectors and lithography equipment.
Relationship with the Community

The relationship between the college and the community would have evolved by the year 2000 into a more synergistic model. The concept of a "seamless" education system was again discussed. NMSU-Grants would become the college of choice of many local high school graduates. Close coordination would exist between the college and local agencies (employment, food stamps). Improving relations with the community would be dependent on more effective marketing and the new and improved programs described earlier. Closer cooperation would exist between the college and local employers. A combined college community/public school library system might be built.

Administration

By the year 2000 the college would more accurately reflect the gender and ethnic culture of the Grants/Cibola County community. Participative decision making would be the order of the day. Better forms of communication (internal and external) would be employed. Administration would provide leadership for the evolvement and growth of the college. Additional clerical support would be provided for the growing college.

Adult Education

Full funding for adult education classes would be restored. More classes would be in the program. An attempt would be made to encourage every adult in the county without a high school diploma to complete the GED. Additional ESL courses would be provided, and a specialist in learning disabilities would be employed. Transportation might be provided.
REVIEW OF MISSION STATEMENT

One group reviewed the NMSU-Grants Mission Statement. Comments and suggestions provided by this group are shown below. It is feasible to incorporate several of these ideas into a revision of the mission statement.

The mission of New Mexico State University-Grants Campus is to provide quality instructional and supportive programs at the lowest feasible cost to persons within Cibola County. These will be provided to eligible persons without regard to age, color, disability, gender, national origin, race religion, sexual orientation, or veteran status.

To accomplish this, NMSU-Grants Campus will focus on the following:
- Improving instruction
- Improving curriculum
- Improving the transfer process
- Improving a comprehensive student support program
- Improving local economic development
- Improving administrative support
- Improving physical plant operations

Group comments related to the various aspects of the mission and purposes statement are shown below.

General Comments
- Change the wording from "improving" to "enhance".

Instruction
- Expand cooperation education opportunities for students.
- Incorporate exit exams for students completing their education at NMSU-Grants.
- Offer opportunities for post-bachelor and upper division studies through main campus.

Curriculum
- New programs should be added to train students even if it means the employee starts at minimum wage.
- Find ways to add new programs to the curriculum in order to train students for local needs such as health care.
Student Support

- Work to generate scholarships for part-time students and those taking graduate courses.
- Incorporate a student book loan program for students waiting for financial aid.

Local Economic Development

- Hold business/college open forums for different segments of business and industry.
- Hold more public forums to allow more community input.
- Improve opportunities for business service training.

Admissions

- Reduce the time required to receive financial aid.
- Survey input should be expanded to the tribal offices.
- Survey results should be publicized more within the community.
- More community activities on campus.
- Address different areas with marketing efforts.
- Market courses by giving more detail than just titles.
- Hold community forums at least annually.

Meeting with Students
Wednesday, 18 October, 1995

A group of students were invited to meet with the Campus director and other staff members on Wednesday, 18 October, 1995. Approximately one dozen students gathered to discuss various aspects of the college, focusing on things that work, concerns, and ideas for improving the branch. The discussion was friendly and productive.

Things that Work

The student group expressed almost unanimous approval of the various competitions related to the October Activities Month. They approved of the growth of student clubs, and they liked various student-faculty interactive activities. They felt that the Elderhostel process was improved by the addition of table signs warning students that Elderhostel attendees would be using the lounge on given days.

Concerns

The number one student concern was lack of an indoor smoking area. They perceived that the enrollment of high school students was a problem because of shortages of vocational training space and perhaps because of safety issues. They noticed an increase in graffiti during the current semester. Students felt that bathroom plumbing and occasional lack of hand soap in dispensers were minor irritants. Students expressed concern for faculty or incomplete communications between the branch and main campus, and between the branch and the Navajo JTPA program managers. Students voiced a desire for a larger bookstore and for expanded bookstore hours.

Ideas

Several suggestions were generated by the focus group. Without being specific, students asked for more facilities space. They wanted on-campus day-care services. Students also expressed a desire for lockers on campus. They requested that more trees be planted on campus grounds. Again without specificity, students expressed a desire for new science equipment and for an expanded curriculum.
INTRODUCTION

During the Fall 1995 semester, as a part of its accreditation self-study process, NMSU-Grants conducted a survey of students. The purpose of the survey was to ascertain important aspects of the college, including facilities, student services, instruction, and scheduling. Forty-nine students responded to the 75 question survey.

RESULTS

Instruction

Respondents rated the attitudes of instructors as average to excellent, with no below average ratings. Three below average ratings were made as related to non-instructional staff. Math instruction was rated as excellent by 24 respondents. Instruction in English, science, social science, and business were generally rated as average to excellent, as was vocational instruction. Students cited the overall quality of instruction on campus as average (14 responses), above average (18 responses), or excellent (13 responses). Three students felt that overall quality of instruction was below average. They provided similar responses to the quality of instruction in their majors.

Student Services

Nearly all respondents evaluated advisement at average to excellent. With only a few below average citations, most students similarly rated the registration process and financial aid services as good to excellent. Most respondents were familiar with the career advisement service, and about half had received career advisement services. About one third had visited the career office more than two times, twenty respondents had never visited career services. Of 36 respondents who had visited career services, 27 felt they had received adequate attention.

Of 48 respondents, 42 indicated that the registration process was properly explained to them, and that they were properly assisted in the admissions process. Nearly all felt that advisors were sufficiently available and that they were being properly advised. Most respondents similarly believed that advisors were concerned about their academic progress, that advisors helped them understand what was needed for graduation, and that they received adequate financial aid information. Forty-three of 46 respondents stated that they (the student) accepted responsibility for decisions made in advisement meetings.

Facilities

Students generally considered the condition of campus facilities to be average to excellent. This attitude was reflected in student responses related to the condition of classrooms. and the condition of grounds. A few negative responses were received related to heating and air conditioning and to roads and parking lots.

Marketing

A number of questions focusing in marketing issues were included in the survey. Students generally favored the convenient (in-town) location of the campus. They indicated that they were attracted to the campus by recommendations of parents and friends, the variety of programs, and the quality of programs. Very few students came to NMSU-Grants because of newspaper advertisements or because of recommendations by high school counselors.

Educational Objectives

Respondents expressed a variety of educational objectives. Thirty-two wanted to earn an associate degree; thirty wished to improve employment skills. Twenty-seven respondents wanted to take courses for personal growth or knowledge, while 24 students planned to transfer to a four-year institution and 26 planned to earn a certificate.

STRENGTHS

1. Students generally rated highly the quality of instruction they were receiving at NMSU-Grants.

2. Positive ratings were typically provided by students for the various services provided by the student services office.

3. Most students rated the college’s various facilities as good to excellent.

CONCERNS

Careful review of this student survey reveals several concerns:

1. About one fourth of the students who visited career services indicated that their objectives (for the visit) were not satisfied, and that sufficient time was not spent with them by staff.

2. Very few students indicate that they are referred to NMSU-Grants by high school counselors.

3. Ten of 48 respondents indicated that the bookstore is below average or poor.

4. Several students indicated by comment that they were unhappy with the high number of courses cancelled at the beginning of each semester.

INTRODUCTION

As part of its process for accreditation self-study, NMSU-Grants conducted a survey of regular and part-time faculty during the Fall 1995 semester. Ten regular and fourteen part-time faculty responded. Since N is relatively small for each group, responses of both groups were combined for the present discussion.

RESULTS

Instruction

With two exceptions, NMSU-Grants regular and part-time faculty agreed or strongly agreed that the college provides students with the opportunity to attain sound academic preparation, with appropriate experiences to assume roles as competent citizens, and with opportunities to receive appropriate vocational technical training. Respondents similarly agreed or strongly agreed that the general quality of instruction at the college is excellent, along with the quality of instruction in Adult Basic Education. Respondents generally believed that developmental courses are significantly helping students in their courses. Most faculty indicated that the computer equipment is excellent. All except three respondents rated the quality of part-time instruction as good or excellent. Some concern was expressed concerning articulation between instructors teaching the same class.

Student Services

All faculty respondents agreed or strongly agreed that the college’s financial aid offices provides excellent service to students and that student advisement is providing adequate service to students. All respondents save one agreed or strongly agreed that the coop program is helping students and staff and that admissions and records services are adequate. Similarly, nearly all respondents agreed or strongly agreed that student services facilities are excellent.

Administration and Governance

Seventeen of nineteen faculty respondents agreed or strongly agreed that the college has a clearly defined and meaningful mission statement. All respondents save one (who strongly disagreed) agreed or strongly agreed that college administration provides effective leadership. Sixteen of 20 respondents believe that decision-making processes allow effective personal input. Nearly all faculty indicated that college administration was sensitive to the needs of the community. Although half of the part-time faculty expressed no knowledge of the Policies and Procedures Manual, the remainder of respondents believed the document is a viable guide. All respondents except two agreed or strongly agreed that their program managers were providing effective leadership.

Approximately half of regular and part-time faculty rated the faculty evaluation processes as 'fair or poor. While twelve respondents rated their faculty representation as good or excellent, six rated them as fair or poor. Faculty did express much stronger ratings for the faculty senate representative. More than half of respondents rated salary as fair or poor; the benefits package was rated as somewhat higher.

Overall faculty morale was generally rated by respondents as good or excellent, although individuals rated their own personal morale as slightly higher. Nearly all respondents believed that overall employee morale at the college is good or excellent. Regular faculty tended to rate the quality of institutional planning as good or excellent, along with their own opportunity to participate in planning activities. Part-time faculty, however were more likely to rate their personal opportunity to participate in institutional planning as only fair or poor.

Support Services

Support services at NMSU-Grants were generally rated by respondents as adequate. Positive responses were typically recorded for food quality and prices at the snack bar, custodial services, and service provided by the front office staff. Most respondents agreed or strongly agreed that the library is of personal use; that the library contains adequate materials to meet student needs, and that library services are excellent. All respondents save one agreed or strongly agreed that tutoring center services and facilities are excellent, while most agreed that audio visual services are excellent.

Facilities

Nearly all faculty respondents agreed or strongly agreed that the institution’s three major buildings were excellent. Computer and vocational facilities were similarly rated as excellent. The student lounge and parking lots were also rated as excellent by most respondents, along with the quality of classrooms. Most faculty rated the space, comfort, and attractiveness of their own work areas a good or excellent. Although the ratings of part-time instructors in these areas were slightly lower than the ratings of regular instructors.

SURVEY OF LOCAL CITIZENS CONCERNING NMSU-GRANTS ADMINISTRATION AND FACILITIES

Introduction

In November 1995, as part of its self-study preparations, NMSU-Grants conducted a survey of local citizens to sample attitudes of the public concerning its administration and facilities. Forty-six people responded to the eleven question survey. Survey results were generally positive, and the branches strengths and concerns were identified by respondents. The survey instrument with numerical results and comments is attached. A seven point Likert scale (seven being high) was used to record results of eight questions.

Summary of Results

Respondents generally felt that NMSU-Grants responded to community educational needs both quickly (mean = 5.6) and effectively (mean = 5.8). They believed that the public image presented to the community by college administration was quite high (mean = 6.0), and that during the past ten years the college's administrative process has improved (mean = 5.7).

Public respondents generally agreed that facilities and grounds at NMSU-Grants were very attractive (mean = 6.0) and that facilities were frequently open to the public (mean = 5.8). Facilities were deemed as sufficient (mean = 5.3). Of thirty-nine individuals who responded to the yes-no question (No. 8), thirty (77%) indicated that they would be willing to support an additional one mill tax levy to support college facilities or programs.

Strengths and Concerns

Strengths of the college identified by respondents focused on two major factors. The high quality of faculty and staff seemed to be a very important strength. General responsiveness to community educational needs was also underscored by respondents. Local citizens seemed to appreciate the professionalism and business-like approach of the college and its staff.

No clear pattern of concerns could be identified from the responses of those completing the survey. Several respondents suggested the development of a four-year college. One or two seemed concerned that the branch might not survive. Articulation issues were also identified as possible future concerns.
NMSU-Grants is engaged in a self-study as part of its preparation for an accreditation visit by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools. One very important item of concern is the relationship between the college and the community. This short survey is intended to provide the college with feedback about how you, as members of the Grants/Cibola County community, view the college administration. Please take a moment to complete these questions.

STRENGTHS

Instructors, Staff, Classes
Community Involvement
Response to Community Needs
Very Good
Handling the university like a business
Offering courses for local people to keep them in the community
Open and accessible to community
Instructors belong and live in the community; that makes for a positive approach to teaching.
Instructors truly want the students to succeed.
Community involvement
Reasonable, Professional, Responsive
The college is necessary to our town; we hope it continues.
Providing educational opportunity for citizens
Presenting quality education for the community
The wonderful staff
Creating programs to meet needs of students
NMSU-Grants has employed some great instructors and staff who are greatly concerned with the education that their students are given the opportunity to receive.
Professionalism
Public Relations
The flexibility and openness to meet over the community issues facing Grants.
Cost-effective, Post-secondary education.
Community outreach through involvement in various local area organizations
Concern for the needs of the community

CONCERNS

No student boarding rooms
To see that the education provided meets community needs
Moving to another university
Focus on building a four-year facility so students who want to stay in community can do so
The number of "welfare" type students is great. The number of paying students is low.
Keeping doors open and expanding enrollment possibly in some trade area for students not wanting a two-year degree.
Developing effective partnership with Grants/Cibola County Schools
Using the facility on weekends
My daughter will attend the college after she graduates. I am concerned about the quality of education that will be offered at that time and hope the branch will still be here.
Expanding the Curriculum
That courses transfer to four-year programs
Keeping the facility operating
COMMENTS

Good friend and neighbor
NMSU-G does an excellent job. Tech support for the public school is an excellent and needed program.

Four-year bachelors degree program
Continue to network between NMSU-Grants and Cibola County School District
Provide four-year programs
Cibola County is very fortunate to have the branch.
NMSU-Grants has done a great job since the current director joined the staff in getting the school in the public eye more. At one time they were just there and you never heard much about the school.
The auditorium should be more easily available to outside programs.
INTRODUCTION

During the Fall 1995 semester, non-faculty staff at NMSU-Grants responded to a 49 question survey about various aspects of the college. All of the college's non-faculty staff responded to the questionnaire (N=20). Because of the small N, classified staff and professional staff responses were grouped together.

RESULTS

Programs

All respondents agreed or strongly agreed that the college was providing adequate academic preparation for future transfer students, and that students were being properly prepared to assume roles as competent citizens. Seventeen respondents agreed (one strongly agreed) that students were receiving adequate vocational education. Similarly, 15 employees agreed or strongly agreed that students were being adequately prepared in vocational and cultural areas. Sixteen respondents agreed or strongly agreed that the branch was providing excellent Adult Basic Education opportunities.

Administration

All but three respondents believed that the college has a clearly defined and meaningful mission statement. Fourteen employees agreed and two strongly agreed that administration provides excellent leadership. However, only thirteen respondents believe they have effective input in the decision-making processes of the college. Eighteen employees believe that administration is sensitive to the needs of the community, however only twelve felt that administration is sensitive to the needs of staff. Eleven staff agreed (five strongly disagreed) that staff is adequately represented in college administration. Fifteen of seventeen respondents agreed that the quality of institutional planning is excellent.

Instruction

Of 19 respondents, 16 believe that the overall quality of instruction at NMSU-Grants is excellent. Although 18 non-faculty employees agreed or strongly agreed that developmental courses significantly help students, only thirteen indicated agreement that there was a sufficient variety of academic and vocational courses. Fourteen respondents agreed or strongly agreed that the library has adequate materials to meet student and employee needs. Fifteen indicated that the services provided by Adult Basic Education are excellent.
Student Services

All but two staff agreed or strongly agreed that Student Services facilities are excellent. All respondents agreed or strongly agreed that the Financial Aid office provides excellent service and that Admissions and Records is satisfactory. Eighteen employees believed that advisement is meeting the needs of students, while sixteen felt that the coop program is helping students.

Facilities

Fourteen employees agreed or strongly agreed that Martinez Hall facilities are excellent, that the Annex Building facilities are excellent, and that the facilities of the Joseph A. Fidel Activities Center are excellent. Fifteen believed that vocational/technical facilities are excellent, while seventeen stated that student lounge facilities are excellent. Thirteen of 17 respondents believed the quality of classrooms is excellent. Maintenance services were viewed as excellent by fifteen of eighteen respondents. A similar number agreed that the appearance and upkeep of the grounds is excellent. Sixteen staff members believed that the quality of custodial services is excellent. Nearly all respondents stated that the space, comfort and attractiveness of their individual work areas was excellent.

Employee Morale

The annual evaluation process was viewed as fair by only 10 of 17 respondents. However 14 of 17 agreed or strongly agreed that they received an appropriate level of supervision, and that their supervisors are doing an excellent job. Thirteen of 18 respondents indicated that the overall level of job satisfaction at the college is excellent. Nine agreed and nine disagreed that overall morale among staff members is excellent. Interestingly, 13 staff members rated their own morale as excellent. Eleven respondents agreed or strongly agreed that the employee benefits package is excellent.

SUMMARY

Survey results were in general quite positive. Non-faculty employees generally believed that the college had effective instructional programs. Respondents were quite positive about most aspects of the administrative process, and nearly all agreed that the quality of institutional planning is excellent. Respondents viewed the quality of instruction as excellent. Student Services was similarly viewed positively by staff. Facilities, maintenance, and custodial services were all reviewed as positive by respondents. Questions related to employee morale were generally responded to positively.
STRENGTHS

1. Non-faculty college employees generally believe that the quality of instruction on campus is solid.

2. Employees generally approve of several administrative functions including leadership, meeting community needs, and institutional planning.

3. The services provided by Student Services were typically rated by non-faculty employees as excellent.

4. Nearly all employees rated the college's facilities as excellent.

CONCERNS

Several issues of possible concern emerged from the results of this survey.

1. Campus security is viewed as a matter of concern by one half of respondents.

2. Six of eighteen non-faculty employees felt that staff is not adequately represented in College Administration.

3. Communication and cooperation among branch campus departments was not viewed excellent by seven of 15 respondents.

Staff Survey

The NCA Self-Study Steering Committee would like your help in assessing staff opinion about various aspects of the college. Please answer the following questions as honestly and open-mindedly as possible. Block out the appropriate response which best reflects your knowledge of each item. Do not answer questions about areas with which you are not sufficiently familiar to make an informed judgment. Please return the survey to the front office staff by MAY 3, 1988. Your responses will remain completely anonymous and information gathered from the survey will be used only in aggregate form.

INTRODUCTION

NMSU-Grants conducted a survey of the general public of Cibola County during the Fall 1995 semester. Surveys were distributed with the electric bills. Survey forms were returned by mail by 641 respondents, approximately 14 percent of the county's adult population.

RESULTS

Of the 641 respondents, 383 indicated that they had personally at some time attended at least one course at NMSU-Grants, while 426 stated that a family member had done so. The general quality of instruction at the college was rated as quite high; in a scale of one to five (five being high), the mean rating of quality of instruction was 4.2. Of the 641 respondents, 306 indicated that they planned to enroll in one or more college level course in 1996. Of these 306 potential college attendees, 132 stated that they planned to attend NMSU-Grants. When asked what courses they would like to take, by far the largest number (17) selected computers related courses.

Respondents remarked upon the best aspect of the branch. The most frequent response was related to convenient location (N=245). Small classes were cited by 53 respondents as a positive factor, as were the friendly, helpful staff (N=24) and instructors (N=26). Low cost was important to 32 respondents while 13 persons cited the college's service to the public as important. Other categories of positive aspects of the college with multiple responses included good courses, night classes, variety of courses, flexible schedules, and an opportunity for freshman to get a start.

Respondents were asked to suggest how the campus might be improved. Frequent suggestions included a wider variety of classes (33), change to a four-year school (57), Saturday classes (9), and do not know (14). Forty seven respondents believed that the college was fine as is.

Advisement Services - Academic advisors provide students with assistance in course selection and placement, degree planning, personal referral, academic progress and financial aid.

1. Did you register prior to the first day of classes (August 23, 1995)? 124 Yes 9 No
If no, why?

Because there was a hold up from Crownpoint JTPA; their paperwork was not processed in time for enrollment, they were late
I was working and didn't know what courses to take that would correspond with my work schedule, now I'm working here on a work-study program to give me the opportunity to learn and study more at home with only a few hours each week as opposed to 40-45 hours a week
Was out of town until the 28th
I was kind of late starting out because I was looking for funding
Because I was unsure whether my pell grant went through or not, but JTPA service helped me get started on the second week
Was out of town for the whole summer, and the JOBS program were hard to get a hold of

Everything here is fine

I enjoy going to school here at Grants, I hope to accomplish my goals. The instructors are willing to help out the students any way they could

The staff and teachers here are very friendly. I enjoy attending this school

I think they should have more dance classes (ballet, jazz, and modern dance, etc.)
I think this college should offer more classes for Nursing. I am going for nursing and after my pre-requisites are done, I have to drive to Gallup to finish my school.

I have heard that a day care center will be here on campus in January. I think that's great.

INTRODUCTION

The Alpha group met on Friday, 2 Feb 1996 to develop a vision statement for NMSU-Grants for the year 2000. Members present were Cecelia Perrow, Mike Simpson, Bernadette Montoya, Ida Chavez, Mike Toler, Dick Danek, Ron Jernigan, and David Leas. After warm-up exercises, the group turned its attention to defining vision concepts for various aspects of the college. Rules for the day included using humor, looking for opportunity, and eliminating negative thinking. Ron Jernigan won the award for the best joke of the day.
Results

By the year 2000, the group envisions a series of accomplishments for NMSU-Grants:

1. NMSU-Grants would known throughout the county and the state as a model community college for its facilities, for its focus on student academic achievement and for its positive relationships with the people of the service area.

2. Concurrent enrollment of high school students would exceed 100 students; an excellent program in building trades would include electrical trades and plumbing. Relationships with local industry would expand so that the college would be providing tailor-made programs for such industries as prisons and the power plant.

3. The college's services to students would be enriched, including expanded bookstore and food services, expanded elderhostel offerings to include local residents, greater ABE and ESL offerings, and perhaps dormitories for elderhostel students and other students.

4. Campus self-improvement activities would include training related to attitudes, issues and technology, continued self-assessments activities, and overall improvement of the quality of instruction.

5. A continuing education center would be formed to incorporate teleconferences, short courses, elderhostels, and non-credit computer training as well as training for industry. Any dorms which were constructed might be part of this concept.

6. New instructional arenas might include such areas distance education, contract automotive training, and additional low stress short courses.

COLLEGE ASSESSMENT AND PLANNING PROCESS

OUTCOMES
of the first cycle of the CAPP
1994-96

New Mexico State University at Grants
David Leas, Campus Director
June 1996
INTRODUCTION

In 1994, NMSU-Grants published its first College Assessment and Planning Process document. The process, now called CAPP, framed a two-year cycle during which assessment activities were combined with strategic planning, budgeting, and institutional improvement activities.

The process produces four Action Plans for specific functional areas: Instruction, Institutional Support, Student Services, and Institutional Outreach. In addition to the Action Plans of the functional areas, the process produced an Institutional Action Plan. These Action Plans, including the April 19, 1996 Institutional Action Plan, represent a comprehensive strategic blueprint for Institutional improvement.

This document is the final report of the first two-year cycle (1994-1996) of the plan. The Action Plan results will be reported at a later date.

RESULTS OF THE INSTITUTIONAL FOCUS GROUPS
The final focus group meeting of the 1994-96 College Assessment and Planning Process (CAPP) was held on April 19, 1996. Nearly all regular college employees were in attendance, along with representatives from the community and the student body. The preparation package, including the agenda, are shown in Attachment 1. This preparation package was sent to attendees approximately two weeks prior to the meeting.

Following a working luncheon, the group developed a list of institutional strengths. Small groups were then formed to begin processing a list of Institutional concerns. The list of institutional strengths and concerns is presented in Attachment 2. The small groups reconvened to begin working on an Action Plan to address the Institutional concerns. Time ran short; therefore, the task was not completed, and subsequent work by the Alpha group was required to complete the Action Plan. A draft of the completed Action Plan was circulated to all attendees for review and input. The completed Action Plan is shown in Attachment 3.

FUNCTIONAL AREA FOCUS GROUPS

In preparation for the April 19th Institutional Focus Group Process, four focus groups conducted functional area assessment activities. These groups were:

Instruction — Dr. Cecelia Perrow, Chair;

Institutional Support — Ms. Ida Chavez, Chair;
In accordance with the published CAPP process, each of these Functional Area Focus Groups developed statements of strengths and concerns related to their specific areas. In addition, each Functional Area Focus Group produced an Action Plan related to the specific area of concern. Summaries of the results of these Functional Area Action Plans are found as follows:

Instruction — Attachment 4
Institutional Support — Attachment 5
Student Services — Attachment 6
Institutional Outreach — Attachment 7

ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF INSTITUTIONAL PURPOSES

A very important aspect of the CAPP package, is that, at the conclusion of a two-year cycle, the College may utilize its results to review accomplishment of Institutional Purposes during the two-year cycle of the process. This section of the report comments on the nature and degree of accomplishment of Institutional Purposes as seen from the focus of the CAPP process.

ASSESSMENT OF THE CAPP PROCESS
Following the first two-year cycle (1994-96) of the CAPP process, the Alpha group met to review the CAPP process itself. Following the CAPP format, the group developed lists of strengths and concerns related to the CAPP package. In addition, the group suggested several ways in which CAPP could be improved for its second cycle. The results of this process are presented below.

Strengths of the CAPP

1. The CAPP process provides a structure for continuous Institutional assessment and improvement.
2. Nearly all regular employees as well as part-time employees, students and community representatives are encouraged to participate in the process.
3. CAPP allows for both quick fixes and improvement generated by strategic planning.
4. The process incorporates various means of assessment in a process that includes budgeting, strategic planning, and institutional improvement.
5. The two-year cycle of CAPP is frequent enough to provide ongoing input yet not so frequent as to wear participants down.

Concerns of the CAPP

1. There is no external evaluation process for CAPP.
2. Closure to the process should be faster.
3. Comprehensive participation by staff, particularly classified staff, was not always achieved.

4. The process is difficult for some people to understand.

5. Part-time faculty participation was minimal.

6. More time was needed for the institutional planning part of the process.

7. More student participation would be desirable.

Suggestions for Improving CAPP

1. Additional training is needed for some focus group leaders.

2. Schedule group activities more carefully to optimize attendance.

3. Allow for longer meeting times.

4. Greater dissemination of focus group results would be desirable.

5. Stay closer to time lines.

INTRODUCTION

NMSU-Grants conducted a random sample telephone survey of 50 Cibola County residents, listed in the 1996/97 U.S. West Directory, during the Spring 1996 semester. The purpose of the survey was to measure the community's perception of the Grants Campus and to learn how we could improve our services. The instrument used is shown in Attachment 1.

RESULTS

Of the 50 people surveyed, 35 responded that NMSU-Grants came to mind first when thinking of a college or university education. Twenty-one had attended the Grants Campus, while 23 had a family member attend NMSU-Grants. The average rating for the quality of instruction and service received at the Grants Campus was excellent. On a scale of one to five (five being high), the mean rating of quality of instruction and service was 4.6. Of the 50 surveyed, 13 reported that a family member planned to take college level classes in the next 12 months. When asked what particular area they were interested in, by far the largest number (13) named computer classes.

The 50 people surveyed, generally rated NMSU-Grants Campus as inexpensive, providing good service, a convenient location, high quality of instruction, friendly, and easy registration. The most highly rated aspects of the Grants Campus were location and being close to home (19) and small classes (5).

When asked how the campus might be improved, the respondents suggested with more graduate classes (4), RN program (3), bachelors degree programs (2), and more night classes (2).

When asked what time of year, day, and time were best for the sample to take classes, the frequent response was fall semester (17), spring semester (12), anytime (6) and, summer (1). The most favorable times for classes identified by respondents were Monday through Friday (11), Monday through Thursday (7), Saturday or Sunday (0), or anytime (8), 10 - 12 a.m. (15), 5 - 10 p.m. (13). See Attachment 2 for the results of this survey.
