This guide describes ERIC as an information system sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education that gathers, selects, abstracts, and indexes documents and articles on a wide range of education topics. The guide provides information on the following: (1) how to get started using ERIC; (2) how to use a computer to access the ERIC database; (3) how to obtain articles or documents through ERIC; and (4) how to locate ERIC information about disabilities. Two books are listed for further information on ERIC and accessing special education information. A sample ERIC document resume is provided. ERIC's 16 clearinghouses are listed, with their addresses, telephone numbers, Internet addresses, and descriptions of the education areas covered. (CR)

Reproductions supplied by EDRS are the best that can be made from the original document.
What is ERIC?

ERIC, The Educational Resources Information Center, is the information system sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education. ERIC is set up to serve teachers, parents, school board members, librarians, professors, and everyone else concerned about education. It is composed of 16 clearinghouses, 9 adjunct clearinghouses, and 3 support units. The clearinghouses gather, select, abstract, and index documents and articles on a wide range of educational topics. Documents include pamphlets, booklets, research reports, curricula, instructional materials, and conference papers. The articles come from more than 1,000 different journals and magazines.

ERIC also refers to the bibliographic database where descriptions of these documents and articles — more than 850,000 of them — are maintained. The documents and articles are also abstracted and indexed in two monthly publications — Resources in Education (RIE) for documents, and the Current Index to Journals in Education (CIJE) for journal articles. Most libraries have the RIE and CIJE.

Why use the ERIC system?

You can turn to the ERIC database for almost any question you might have about the education of your child. This observation is especially true if your child has a disability. It is difficult to be a well-informed parent, but it is certainly much easier when you know how to use such valuable information resources as those available through ERIC. ERIC is a rich source of information, and more and more families are learning to use the collection. They have found that learning to use the ERIC system is certainly worth the effort.

How do I get started using ERIC?

Go to your local library or to a nearby university library and talk to the reference librarian. You can request a short lesson on how to use ERIC, including how to use RIE and CIJE to identify articles and documents of interest to you. A sample abstract for a document in the RIE, with a full explanation of how to read it, is presented on page 4 of this guide. (If your library does not have RIE or CIJE, ask the librarian where these can be found in your area.) Also available is the Thesaurus of ERIC Descriptors that lists the subject headings used in cataloging articles and documents.

Another valuable resource for learning about ERIC is the ERIC support unit, ACCESS ERIC, which helps new clients use ERIC resources. The ACCESS ERIC staff can help orient you to the system, answer your questions about ERIC services, refer you to sources of specific information, and provide publications produced by the system on a variety of topics. ACCESS ERIC also maintains a number of database files available on-line to the public. Call ACCESS ERIC toll-free at 800-LET-ERIC (800-538-3742).

Can I use a computer to access the ERIC database?

Yes. In fact, one of the most important features of the ERIC database is that it is computerized. This means that the descriptions of ERIC documents and articles are available not only in print form (RIE and CIJE), but also in an electronic database that can be searched from anywhere in the world using a personal computer (PC) equipped with a modem. Most libraries offer computer searches of the ERIC database, but anyone who has access to a PC and modem can search the ERIC database with a minimal amount of training.

The ERIC database is also available on compact disc. Searching the ERIC database on CD-ROM is an excellent way to become familiar with both the content of the ERIC database and the art of computer searching. Most libraries now have personal computers equipped to handle compact discs, and many libraries will help you learn to use this technology yourself, so that you can become your own information provider. Searching ERIC on CD-ROM may be an excellent resource for parents and/or disability organizations, allowing users to find what they want and print it out right away.

And, if you have a personal computer, a modem, and access to the Internet electronic network, you can search ERIC yourself. For a list of public Internet access points to the ERIC database and step-by-step login directions, send an e-mail message to ericdb@aspensys.com.

If you have access to the Internet, you can also take advantage of the AskERIC service. AskERIC is an electronic question-answering service for parents, teachers, students, or anyone with a question on education. AskERIC information specialists and staff of the ERIC Clearinghouses provide a research-based response to these queries, usually within 48 hours.

To use the AskERIC service, simply send your e-mail inquiry (via the Internet) to: askeric@ericir.syr.edu

Some commercial network services offer electronic access to ERIC information. For example, if you currently subscribe to an electronic service such as America Online or CompuServe, you can access ERIC. If you are not sure how to reach ERIC electronically, or if you are not sure your service connects to ERIC, call ACCESS ERIC, toll-free, at 1-800-LET-ERIC (1-800-538-3742).

How do I obtain articles or documents I've identified through ERIC?

A unique feature of the ERIC system is that, once you have identified a document you would like to read in full, you can usually find it in the ERIC microfiche collection. Unlike most bibliographic databases, ERIC provides microfiche copies of the documents you found abstracted and indexed in Resources in Education. This means you can go to many major libraries and most university libraries and find the document on microfiche, read it on a microfiche reader, and even copy it and take it home, if you like.

If your library does not have the ERIC microfiche collection, you can still use ERIC. Copies of ERIC documents — pamphlets, program reports, instructional materials, and conference papers — can be ordered directly from the ERIC Document Reproduction Service (EDRS). The toll-free EDRS ordering number is 1-800-443-3742. EDRS can give you price information for paper copies and for microfiche. Postage is additional in both cases. You will need to use a microfiche reader to read microfiche products, but your local library should have such a reader. If it does not, or if you prefer to read a paper copy, you can always request that EDRS send you the paper version of the article or document of interest.

I'm looking for information about disabilities. Does it matter which ERIC clearinghouse I contact?
While each of the 16 ERIC clearinghouses will try to answer your questions, the ERIC Clearinghouse on Disabilities and Gifted Education (ERIC/EC) is the clearinghouse to call or write when you have an education question about children with disabilities. Located in Reston, Virginia, this clearinghouse is operated by The Council for Exceptional Children, a non-profit professional organization with a membership of more than 50,000 educators and policy makers concerned about the future of special education.

Among the products and services provided by ERIC/EC are: references and referrals; ERIC Digests (basic overviews on topics of interest to the broad educational community); information packages on current topics; mini searches (limited to 10 citations); computer search reprints (prepackaged computer searches on important special education topics); and reports that synthesize and analyze special education research and practice.

To contact ERIC/EC, call 1-800-328-0272, or write: ERIC Clearinghouse on Disabilities and Gifted Education, 1920 Association Drive, Reston, Virginia 20191.

What do the other clearinghouses do?

Each of the clearinghouses has its own subject area(s) of specialization and is responsible for gathering, selecting, and abstracting the articles and documents in that subject area to be added to the ERIC database. Staff at the clearinghouses can also answer questions about the ERIC system from anyone who calls, writes, or visits them. If you would like to visit one of the clearinghouses, it is best to call in advance to make an appointment.

To help you pursue using the ERIC system, we have listed, beginning on page 5, the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of the 16 clearinghouses, along with a brief description of each clearinghouse's area(s) of emphasis.

We hope that you will take advantage of the rich resource of ERIC. It can be a powerful tool for gathering information about the education of your child and other related matters. For more information about any topic discussed in this guide, including how to order copies of documents from EDRS, contact ACCESS ERIC or any of the ERIC clearinghouses.

This book examines issues in designing coherent education policy for public elementary and secondary schools. It seeks to expand the policy discussion by refining the definition of coherence and considering a number of complex questions raised by the notion of coherent policy. The book offers an indepth look at systemic school reform and offers a variety of ideas as to how educators at the district, state, and federal levels may coordinate the various elements of policy infrastructure around a new set of ambitious, common goals for student achievement. Chapters include the following: (1) "The Politics of Coherence" (Susan H. Fuhrman); (2) "Policy and Practice: The Relations between Governance and Instruction" (David K. Cohen and James P. Spillane); (3) "The Role of Local School Districts in Instructional Improvement" (Richard F. Elmore); (4) "Systemic Educational Policy: A Conceptual Framework" (William H. Clune); (5) "Student Incentives and Academic Standards: Independent Schools as a Coherent System" (Arthur G. Powell); (6) "New Directions for Early Childhood Care and Education Policy" (W. Steven Barnett); (7) "How the World of Students and Teachers Challenges Policy Coherence" (Milbrey W. McLaughlin and Joan E. Talbert); (8) "Systemic Reform and Educational Opportunity" (Jennifer A. O'Day and Marshall S. Smith); and (9) "Conclusion: Can Policy Lead the Way?" (Susan H. Fuhrman).
References accompany each chapter. (LMI)

Note: The format of an ERIC Document resume will vary according to the source from which the database is accessed. The above format is from the printed index, Resources in Education.
The ERIC Clearinghouses have responsibility for acquiring the significant educational literature within their particular areas, selecting the highest quality and most relevant material, processing (i.e., cataloging, indexing, abstracting) the selected items for input to the database, and also for providing information analysis products and various user services based on the database.

The exact number of Clearinghouses has fluctuated over time in response to the shifting needs of the educational community. There are currently 16 Clearinghouses. These are listed below, together with full addresses, telephone numbers, and brief scope notes describing the areas they cover.
