This directory describes over 800 preacademic intensive English Programs and English as a Second Language (ESL) courses open to international students at undergraduate and graduate levels. Listed by state first are Intensive English Programs, full-time preacademic educational programs offering at least 15 hours of intensive English classes each week. Listed separately by state are ESL courses for international students; these offer fewer than 15 hours of instruction each week. Each entry includes the name of the sponsor college or other institution, the title of the program, its address, telephone and FAX numbers, e-mail, and Internet addresses. There is an extensive bibliographic guide to funding support for study in the United States. Appendices provide the standards for postsecondary programs of Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages; the National Association of International Educators principles of self-study programs; a list of University and College Intensive English Programs consortium member organizations; a list of American Association of Intensive English Programs member organizations. Indexes are provided of sponsoring institutions, beginning dates of programs, and programs for English for specific purposes including business, science, teaching assistantships, and other professions. ALA students have unlimited access to computers—and work on industry-leading software designed by ALA.

ALA students learn in small classes geared to their specific level of proficiency. Friendly, professional teachers, the finest instructional materials, and motivated fellow students help ensure that ALA students achieve their goals.

ALA is the internationally recognized leader in English instruction.

ALA programs feature 25 hours of classroom instruction per week.

ALA students can choose to live with an American family—an excellent way to develop speaking skills.

There are many opportunities to travel in the U.S.A. in self-directed groups or on trips planned by ALA.

ALA students often become friends for life.
ALA offers programs at campus sites across the U.S.A.—from Boston to Florida to California—providing a wide variety of choices for learning English. At all sites, students participate in the life of the campus and have free use of campus recreational facilities.
ALA offers a range of programs to meet the needs of students and professionals:

UNIVERSITY PROGRAMS—for students who want to improve language skills in a university setting.

PRIVATE HIGH SCHOOL PROGRAMS—for younger students who want to learn in a secure, boarding school environment.

EXECUTIVE TRAINING PROGRAMS—with schedules and formats specifically tailored to the executive’s needs.

HOLIDAY ENGLISH PROGRAMS—for those who want to learn English during a short vacation period.

CUSTOMIZED PROGRAMS—for special groups with special dates, housing, curricula, and activities.

TESOL Standards, Self-Study and Accreditation

NAFSA Self-Study and Evaluation Resources
TESOL (Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages) and NAFSA: Association of International Educators are leading U.S. organizations in English as a Second Language and international educational exchange. Each organization provides a brief introductory discussion of ways to identify ESL programs of high quality. Longer statements of their standards are contained in appendixes to this book.

ENTRIES

Intensive English Programs
Intensive English Programs (IEPs) are full-time preacademic educational programs that offer at least 15 hours of intensive English classes each week. IEPs usually provide several proficiency levels of English training. International students enroll for several weeks to several months to improve their English to the level required for enrollment at a U.S. college or university. Intensive English is a full-time activity that students pursue before, not in combination with, academic degree study in their chosen field.

ESL Courses
U.S. colleges and universities offer ESL courses to international students that allow them to improve their English language skills while pursuing degree study in their fields. ESL courses in this section are not full-time; they offer fewer than 15 hours of ESL instruction each week. Students with limited English language proficiency are rarely able to combine degree study with ESL. Students with limited English should complete an intensive program before beginning degree study.

The Institute of International Education (IIE) is the largest U.S. higher educational exchange agency.

IIE builds international understanding through educational exchanges that reach nearly all the world’s nations. Many IIE programs further international development goals.

A nonprofit organization with over 650 college and university members in the U.S. and abroad, IIE has provided information on educational exchange to higher education and the public for more than 75 years.

USIA Fulbright Program
The Institute assists the U.S. Information Agency (USIA) in the conduct of the graduate Fulbright Program for both U.S. and foreign students at the predoctoral level.

Foreign nationals who wish to apply for financial assistance through the Fulbright Program to study in the United States must apply through the binational Fulbright Commission or designated U.S. diplomatic post in their home nation. IIE cannot accept applications from foreign nationals for the USIA Fulbright Program.

Program Administration
IIE administers more than 260 programs which benefit more than 12,000 men and women from nearly 170 nations each year. The Institute is an independent nonprofit agency. It organizes international projects at the request of sponsors such as the U.S. Information Agency, U.S. Agency for International Development, foundations, corporations, universities, foreign governments and international organizations.

Guidance information on all IIE-related programs and services may be obtained through IIE’s website, IIE Online. The website address is: http://www.iie.org.
Purposes and Participants
IIE administers international education, training and research activities to fulfill goals developed in consultation with its sponsor organizations. Purposes can vary from the institutional development of a university in an emerging nation to multinational corporate staff development, from short-term training to long-term research on world food needs. Half of those assisted are foreign students pursuing U.S. graduate degrees. The Institute also assists large numbers of U.S. students and U.S. and foreign senior scholars, scientists, artists, corporate executives and community leaders each year.

Services to Higher Education and the Community
IIE provides educational advising services worldwide that assist 200,000 individuals annually. IIE publications are standard guides to international study. IIE research reports provide a substantive basis for policy choices in the field of international exchange.

U.S. Offices
U.S. offices are located in New York, the Institute's central office; Washington DC, Chicago, Denver, Houston and San Francisco. Students and educators visiting New York City are encouraged to make use of the IIE International Education Information Center in planning international study. The center is located at IIE headquarters at 809 United Nations Plaza, and is open Tuesday through Thursday from 11 to 4 except for major holidays. The center cannot provide research assistance by phone or letter.

Overseas Offices
IIE overseas offices are located in Bangkok, Thailand; Hong Kong; Hanoi, Vietnam; Mexico City, Mexico; Budapest, Hungary; and Moscow, Russia. In Indonesia, IIE is represented by the International Education Foundation in Jakarta.

How to Use This Book

English Language and Orientation Programs in the United States will help you to locate opportunities to study English as a Second Language (ESL) in the United States. The book provides basic information on Intensive English Programs and ESL courses at the postsecondary level. It also provides useful information in its introductory chapters, and the appendixes and indexes.

How to Use This Book offers specific information on how to use program descriptions to identify Intensive English Programs and ESL courses of interest to you. This section explains the book's overall organization, how individual program entries are organized, and the terms used in program descriptions. A list of abbreviations used in entries is included.

In addition to consulting this book, international students should seek out the U.S. Information Service (USIS) educational advising centers in their home countries. USIS centers offer much information on U.S. higher education. Advisers can assist international students to make the right educational choice.

Entries in this book are based on a survey of 1,000 U.S. postsecondary institutions and organizations on IIE's computer database of ESL sponsors. In addition, IIE sent questionnaires to all members of the ATESL professional interest section of NAFSA: Association of International Educators whose institutes were not already represented in the book. ATESL is the acronym for Administrators and Teachers in English as a Second Language. Virtually all Intensive English Programs interested in recruiting international students are members of NAFSA/ATESL. The survey was carried out during academic year 1995/96.

All Intensive English Programs and ESL courses listed prepare foreign-language speakers for academic study at U.S. educational institutions. Programs may also meet the needs of people who do not plan full-time academic study in the United States. In fact, many Intensive English Programs offer instruction geared to the needs of individuals preparing for work or technical training in an English-speaking environment. However, this book does not include programs designed to meet survival needs of refugees and immigrants, or remedial English programs for citizens and permanent residents, unless such programs are open to international students and are bona fide regularly-scheduled ESL programs that also prepare foreign-language speakers for U.S. higher education.

Important Note
The Institute of International Education does not review or evaluate programs or courses listed in this book. Inclusion of a program or course does not imply IIE approval or recommendation. Omission does not imply IIE disapproval. Program evaluations and additional information must be requested directly from the ESL sponsor, not from IIE.

IIE tries to make the information in this book as accurate as possible. Bear in mind, however, that information-gathering for a reference book begins long before the book is printed, and that English Language and Orientation Programs in the United States is not published every year. For these reasons, it is a good idea to use this book as a basic, but not a final, information resource for selecting Intensive English Programs and ESL courses. Final and full information on any program or course must be obtained directly from the sponsoring organization.

At the point at which a choice must be made, it is especially advisable to contact the ESL sponsor in regard to information likely to have changed over time (e.g., dates and costs.) Note that entries in this book provide address, telephone, fax, e-mail and World Wide Web information helpful in making direct contact with the educational institutions and organizations that sponsor Intensive English Programs and ESL courses. Final and full information on any program or course must be obtained directly from the sponsoring organization.

INTENSIVE ENGLISH PROGRAMS
Intensive English Programs are full-time educational programs that provide a minimum of 15 hours of class instruction each week. These programs prepare people from other nations for U.S. higher education. They typically offer several levels of English language training. They provide orientation to U.S. academic life. Their intention is to teach international students to speak, write and understand English up to the level required for successful academic performance at a U.S. college or university. Some Intensive English Programs also offer courses to develop English proficiency in specific fields of study such as education, law, marketing, science, etc.

This section also describes a group of programs that focus on specific academic and professional fields—often at the graduate level. These programs of English for Specific Purposes (ESP) develop both English language communications skills and skills needed for work and study in a professional field in the United States. For example, English for business programs are available that provide an introduction to U.S. management concepts and that strengthen the business-related English skills of the participants. Index III at the back of this book lists all ESP programs and Intensive English Programs that offer courses in specific fields.

For less intensive ESL (i.e., less than 15 hours/week), see ESL Courses, the second section of the book. Students often combine academic degree study with additional ESL courses that allow them to continue to develop English language proficiency while studying in their chosen field. These ESL courses are described in the next section of this book.

Sample Entry: Intensive English Programs
The sample entry describes a program that does not exist. In fact, the program entry could not exist, because it offers information under virtually all headings available as options in our computer database. No Intensive English Program offers quite that many options, although many come close. The advantage of this mythical program is that it allows us to provide an example of the many different kinds of useful data you may encounter in using this book, and to explain what they all mean.

OVERALL ORGANIZATION

Programs are grouped by state. See the Map of the United States of America in this book. Within each state, programs are listed alphabetically by name of the sponsor higher educational institution or corporation.

Academic year 1996/97

Each entry begins with a number used to identify the program within the listing sequence and in the indexes. Intensive English Program entry numbers are four-digit numbers beginning with 1. The name of the sponsor college, university, or corporation is next, followed by the title of the program.

The program sponsor is the organization with legal responsibility for the program. If the sponsor is a U.S. accredited college or university, the entry indicates that fact on the last line with the symbol (HE).

Accreditation is recognition by impartial evaluating agencies that a college or university meets a defined standard. It is important to know that a U.S. higher educational institution is accredited, because national and regional agencies with long experience in evaluation have verified that educational offerings of the college or university meet a minimum standard of quality.

Note that accreditation applies only to colleges and universities. There is no accepted accrediting agency for Intensive English Programs as separate entities.

If the sponsor organization is a corporation that is not a U.S. accredited college or university, the symbol (HE) does not appear at the end of the listing.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE
In some cases, a corporation-owned program is physically located on the campus of an accredited U.S. college or university, but the higher educational institution itself is not the sponsor. In such cases, the address indicates that the program is located on campus in care of (c/o) the higher educational institution, e.g., John Smith English Language Program, c/o John Doe University, and the symbol (HE) does not appear at the foot of the entry.

The program address, telephone, fax, and e-mail are as provided to IIE in response to the survey for this edition. The URL (Uniform Resource Locator) subheading indicates the program sponsor's home page address on the World Wide Web. This is followed by the Academic year on which the information provided is based. Standard two-letter U.S. Post Office abbreviations are used for state names in all addresses, e.g., CA for California, NY for New York, etc. See Map of the United States of America for identification of the two-letter U.S. Post Office state abbreviations.

Few abbreviations are used in this book because its primary readers do not speak English as their first language. Standard abbreviations used in program entries are listed at the end of How To Use This Book.

IEP note: 5 hours electives

English for Specific Purposes: Business, 5 hrs/wk.
Communications, Public Relations, 5 hrs/wk. Test Preparation: TOEFL, 5 hrs/wk.

All intensive ESL programs are identified by the phrase Intensive English Program after the address and academic year information, followed by a table that presents the number of hours/week of required work.

Class is the number of required hours per week of classroom instruction at each level of ESL.

Lab is the number of hours per week that students are required to spend in a language laboratory.

CAI is an abbreviation for Computer-Assisted Instruction. If other electives are offered, they will be listed here.

The levels of English language proficiency used in this book are:

- B: Beginning level: student has no knowledge of English.
- LI: Low Intermediate level: student has some basic knowledge of English, can understand and be understood with difficulty.
- I: Intermediate level: student can understand and read with some ease, makes frequent mistakes in writing and speaking, has control of a limited number of grammatical structures.
- A: Advanced level: student has control over most of the structures of English grammar, makes few mistakes although lacks full idiomatic fluency.

In the program descriptions, these terms describe the level of English language proficiency of entering students for whom a particular program is intended. Programs may divide participants into even more precisely categorized levels of English proficiency, e.g., Higher Intermediate, and offer more finely differentiated levels of instruction.

Information on other aspects of ESL instruction are provided where available, e.g., information on optional activities, at the bottom of the table that states intensive ESL class and lab hours/week. If the Intensive English Program offers courses in specific fields, this information appears next under the heading English for Specific Purposes.

English for Specific Purposes Programs

Five to ten percent of the nearly 400 Intensive English Programs have a special focus on a professional field or on orientation to U.S. academic life. These special programs are identified by individual names rather than by the generic title "Intensive English Program." For example, the English for Specific Purposes (ESP) program at Exemplary State University might have a name like the International Business and Banking Program for Professionals.

Information on ESP programs parallels that provided on Intensive English Programs, except that the table on hours/week of class and language lab instruction does not apply and is not used. A summary phrase stating class hours/week is used instead of the table.
Terms

Terms

- 16 weeks beginning September, January; 8 weeks beginning June

Provides information on length-in-weeks of program terms, and on months in which new terms begin. Many sponsors offer programs of several different lengths. Programs frequently begin at several different starting-dates during the year. Terms lists longest term first, followed in descending order of length by other terms offered. Beginning dates are sequenced from August, the first month of the academic year, and continue through the annual cycle through July. Months, rather than exact dates, are used as beginning dates in the entries.

For more information on beginning dates, see Index II, which provides guidance as to the beginning dates of all programs in this section, broken-down into thirds of each month of the year.

Longest Break(s)

| Longest break(s) | 2 weeks beginning December, April |

It helps people from other nations to know when the longest break(s) in a program occur, especially when alternate housing arrangements must be made during the breaks, as is often the case. Contact individual programs to determine their housing policy during breaks. Ask about any other interruptions in the programs, e.g., for holidays.

Average Class Size and Program Size

| Average class size | 10 |
| Program size       | 50 average term, 75 summer |

Average class size indicates the average number of students per class. Program size is the average number of enrolled students of the entire Intensive English Program at the institution. In some cases, programs have provided figures on program size for both the average term during the academic year and for their summer program, typically where there is a large difference between the academic year enrollment and the summer enrollment.

Distribution

| Distribution | Africa 5%; Americas 15%; Asia/Oceania 60%; Middle East/North Africa 15%; Other/Unknown 5% |

This statistic describes the percentage of total enrollment from each world region in the program.

Faculty

| Faculty | Teachers: 5 full-time, 3 part-time Full-time teaching load: 15 hours/week Advanced degree ESL fields: 5 full-time, 3 part-time Administrators: 1 full-time, 4 part-time |

Programs may employ faculty either full-time and/or part-time. Statistics are given on numbers of instructors employed in both categories. Information is provided on the average number of hours/week taught by a full-time faculty member.

Entries also provide the numbers of full-time and/or part-time instructors with advanced degrees in ESL-related fields. Instructors with advanced degrees hold the minimum of a master's degree in Teaching of English as a Foreign Language (TEFL) or Teaching of English as a Second Language (TESL) or in applied linguistics.

Also provided are the numbers of full- and/or part-time administrators for the program.

Eligibility

Eligibility: all foreign nationals with academic admission to host institution

Specifies the groups of applicants who are eligible for admission to the Intensive English Program, as well as any special conditions in regard to eligibility.

Issues

Issues: I-20, IAP-66. I-20 includes academic admission conditional on English language proficiency Indicates that certificates of eligibility for U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) visa forms are issued by the program. The two major certificates of eligibility necessary for a visa are the I-20, for the F visa, and the IAP-66, for the J visa. Note that the certificate of eligibility is not in and of itself a visa, which must be issued by appropriate consular officials at U.S. diplomatic offices in other countries. U.S. consular officials only issue visas to prospective students if they meet all conditions imposed by the U.S. embassy or consulate.

In some cases, the I-20 issued for study in a preacademic Intensive English Program may include academic admission to the formal academic program of the sponsoring college or university. If so, a brief statement of the conditions for academic Admission is provided in the entry, e.g., I-20 includes academic admission conditional on demonstrated English language proficiency.

Academic Credit

Academic credit • 5 undergraduate degree credits for ESL replacing freshman English. May take academic courses: at Advanced level

Some ESL programs sponsored by U.S. colleges and universities offer credit towards an academic degree for work completed in preacademic intensive English. This heading indicates whether such credit is offered, the amount of credit offered, and whether ESL can replace required courses in freshman English, a foreign language, an elective, or other academic courses.

In some cases, typically at the Advanced level, ESL students may take academic courses at the sponsor college or university while still actively enrolled in the Intensive English Program. Information is provided as to whether it is possible to take academic courses, and on the conditions for taking academic courses, e.g., with permission from the ESL program staff.

Tests

Tests • International, Institutional TOEFL; Michigan tests, locally developed tests

ESL programs use standardized tests to measure English language proficiency, most commonly the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) of the Educational Testing Service (ETS). This heading provides information on the standardized tests used by the program sponsor to measure achievement of English language proficiency.

Services

Services • academic counseling, academic placement, airport meeting, campus orientation, conversation partners, crosscultural activities, field trips, homestay, host family, housing assistance, international student adviser, personal/cultural counseling, recreational activities and/or visa/tax counseling

Several kinds of support services are commonly provided by ESL programs. Information is given as to whether the program offers academic counseling, academic placement (i.e., seeks to find an appropriate U.S. college or university for program students upon successful completion of the Intensive English Program), airport meeting, campus orientation, crosscultural activities, field trips, homestay, a host family program (in which arrangements are made for ESL students to visit with U.S. families), housing assistance (in which the program offers assistance in locating lodging), personal/cultural counseling, recreational activities and/or visa/tax counseling.

Costs

Costs • tuition $3,000.00 16-weeks, $1,600.00 8-weeks; application fee $50.00 applicable to tuition; activities fee $75.00; health insurance $250.00

Cost data is provided on tuition, application fee, if any, activities fee, if any, and other fees. In some cases, an application fee may be applied to tuition if the candidate is admitted to the Intensive English Program. This information is provided where available.

If room and board are not separate costs but are included in tuition, entries provide that information.

Housing

Housing • Campus housing: available year-round. Off-campus housing: readily available, moderately priced; assistance in locating provided Room: $1,500.00 16-weeks, $850.00 8-weeks

Indicates whether the program offers campus housing or not. Also indicates charges for housing (room) or housing plus food (room and board).

Off-campus housing may be available. Entries state whether off-campus housing is available or not, whether it is readily available or difficult to find, and whether it is moderately priced or expensive. If the program offers assistance in locating off-campus housing, that fact is indicated.

Board

Board • board plan $700.00 16-weeks, 10 meals per week; $500.00, 15 meals per week; $775.00, 19 meals per week

Provides information on charges for food (board). Where the information is given, the price includes the number of meals per week. In some cases, housing and food (room and board) costs are combined into a single room and board charge, in which case the board heading directs the reader, using the phrase, “board plan included in housing,” to the housing heading, where information on the combined cost is provided.

Other Information

Established: 1975 Member: UCIEP, AAIEP Endorsements: TESOL standards, NAFSA principles (HE) (P+C)

Established: states the year in which the ESL program began. The year given is not the year in which the sponsor college or university was founded. It is the year in which an existing higher educational institution or private language school first offered its Intensive English Program.

Member: indicates that the sponsor organization is a member of University and College Intensive English Programs (UCIEP) and/or the American Association of Intensive English Programs (AAIEP). UCIEP is an independent consortium of university- and college-administered Intensive English Programs in the U.S. Its purpose is the advancement of professional standards and quality instruction in Intensive English Programs. AAIEP is an organization of Intensive English Programs aimed at promoting ethical and professional standards for Intensive English Programs. Details on each of these organizations are printed in the appendixes of this book.

Endorsements: “TESOL standards” indicates that the sponsor organization has endorsed the “TESOL Standards for Post-Secondary Programs” developed by Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL), the professional association of ESL teachers and administrators. “NAFSA principles” indicates that the sponsor organization has endorsed a set of standards developed by NAFSA: Association of International Educators, a nonprofit membership association composed of individuals and representatives of postsecondary institutions. The TESOL standards and the NAFSA principles are printed in full as appendixes to this book, and introductory chapters in the front of this book provide information on their roles in the field of English as a Second Language in the United States.

Users of this book are encouraged to consult the TESOL standards and NAFSA principles as part of their decision-making process in choosing an ESL program. The fact that an ESL sponsor endorses the TESOL standards and/or NAFSA principles is an indication that the program attempts to meet defined standards of quality for ESL teaching and administration.

As noted above under the sponsor name and address heading, (HE) means that the sponsor—the legal entity responsible for the Intensive English Program—is an accredited U.S. college or university. Programs which are not identified with the (HE) symbol are sponsored by corporations or other organizations that are not U.S. accredited colleges or universities.

The (P+C) symbol at the end of an entry means that an intensive, full-time English program is located at an institution that also offers ESL courses which are not full-time and are less intensive. Information on courses is provided in the next section of this book, ESL Courses.

If the ( )-symbol appears, the user will be able to find the program sponsor’s ad in this book.

ESL COURSES

This section describes English as a Second Language courses and semi-intensive ESL programs. All courses are intended for international students pursuing academic study at U.S. colleges and universities. ESL courses offer fewer than 15 hours of language instruction weekly. Students are typically enrolled for degree study at a U.S. higher educational institution and are taking ESL courses to improve their English language proficiency as part of their academic program. Although courses are chiefly intended for students, some are open to individuals not enrolled in study for an academic degree.

For more intensive, full-time ESL programs of 15 or more hours/week, see the first section of this book, Intensive English Programs. Students who need to concentrate on developing English language proficiency before they can successfully pursue degree study at a U.S. college or university typically enroll in a preacademic Intensive English Program (IEP). These students may spend several weeks to several months on full-time English language study.
Sample Entry: ESL Courses
The sample ESL course entry provides examples of the data to be found in the course descriptions in this book. The paragraphs below explain terms used under each major heading, using the sample entry as an example. Major headings are printed in boldface. Subheads under major headings are printed in italic type.

Academic year 1996/97

Each entry begins with a number used to identify it in the listing sequence and in the indexes. ESL course entry numbers are four-digit numbers beginning with 2. The name of the sponsor higher educational institution is followed by its address.

The address, telephone, fax, e-mail, and URL numbers are as provided to IIE in response to the survey for this book. They are followed by the Academic year on which the information provided is based.

TOEFL Required for Academic Admission

TOEFL required for academic admission • 500
undergraduate, 550 graduate TOEFL waived if student completes the institution's IEP

International students who apply for academic admission to a U.S. college or university often must meet a minimum standard of English language proficiency as demonstrated by their performance on the standard TOEFL examination (Test of English as a Foreign Language.) Minimum TOEFL scores required for undergraduate and, where appropriate, graduate admission are given under this heading. In some cases, the TOEFL requirement is waived if the student completes the institution's IEP, and this information is provided accordingly.
Orientation

Orientation • offered; $35.00 orientation fee; 2 days campus orientation for international students, part of 5 days orientation for all students.

Orientation to U.S. higher education and to U.S. society is particularly important for the international student, who, from the moment of arrival in the United States, must deal with customs and practices very different from those to which he or she is accustomed. Most campuses offer an orientation for all incoming students, both U.S. and foreign. Many campuses also offer special orientation programs for international students, frequently in combination with the more general orientation given to all new students. This heading provides data on the availability and length of orientation, the additional cost (if any) for orientation, and whether a special effort is made to orient the international student.

Services

Services • academic counseling, academic placement, airport meeting, career counseling, computer lab, conversation partners, crosscultural activities, field trips, homestay, host family, housing assistance, international student adviser, personal/cultural counseling, recreational activities, visa/tax counseling

International students require special support from campus services. If a campus provides academic and personal/cultural counseling and other special services to the international student through the office of an international student adviser or by other means, the availability of such services is indicated here.

ESL courses offered by the institution are listed. The level of English language proficiency at which a course is taught is indicated by one of the four standard symbols used in this book: B (Beginning), LI (Lower Intermediate), I (Intermediate), and A (Advanced).

Each course listing indicates the number of hours per week and the terms during which the course is offered, unless the sponsor did not provide this information.

Other information

Other information • Part-time ESL courses open to: dependents, tourists, business personnel Member: UCIEP, AAIEP Endorsements: TESOL standards, NAFSA principles (HE) (P+C)

Part-time ESL courses open to: Many U.S. colleges and universities offer part-time ESL courses to individuals who are not formally enrolled for an academic degree. This heading provides information as to whether part-time ESL is open to dependents of enrolled foreign students, or to business personnel, tourists and other groups that can benefit from ESL classes.

Member: indicates that the sponsor organization is a member of University and College Intensive English Programs (UCIEP) and/or the American Association of Intensive English Programs (AAIEP). Details on each of these organizations are printed in the appendixes of this book.

Endorsements: “TESOL standards” indicates that the sponsor organization has endorsed a set of standards for ESL programs developed by Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL), the professional association of ESL teachers and administrators. “NAFSA principles” indicates that the sponsor organization has endorsed a set of standards developed by NAFSA: Association of International Educators, a nonprofit membership association composed of individuals and representatives of postsecondary institutions. The TESOL standards and the NAFSA principles are printed in full as appendixes to this book, and introductory chapters in the front of this book provide information on their roles in the field of English as a Second Language in the United States.

As noted above under the sponsor name and address heading, (HE) at the foot of an entry means that the course(s) listed are offered by an accredited U.S. college or university.
The (P+C) symbol at the end of a course entry means that an intensive, full-time English program is also offered by this institution. Related programs are described in the previous section of this book, Intensive English Programs.

If the £-symbol appears, the user will be able to find the program sponsor's ad in this book.

Study in the United States can be an extraordinary adventure in which the educational experiences do not start or stop at the classroom door. For students, study in the U.S. brings fresh perspectives on educational objectives, career choices, political and economic issues and human relationships. For mid-career professionals and educators, it can point a career in new directions, provide an invigorating change from routine and enhance educators’ teaching and research upon their return.

Planning is the most crucial factor in the success of U.S. study and research at all educational levels, and should begin at least one year prior to departure. The choices to be made are many, and require time and thought. Choosing the right institution and program is complex, but can reward you with the experience of a lifetime.

The need for advance planning is especially important when you need financial assistance to achieve your educational or research objectives. Many grants and fellowships are awarded on the basis of competitions that require candidates to begin the application procedure eighteen months or more before departure. In many cases the deadline date for application is one full year before the award begins.

Funding Sources — Researching the Options

Funding for United States Study: A Guide for International Students and Professionals ($39.95, available from IIE Books, PO Box 371, Annapolis Junction MD 20701) brings together information on a wide variety of grants that may be used by foreign nationals. It is compiled from a survey of more than 10,000 organizations that offer grants and/or are active in international educational exchange. The book is intended to provide information on those awards for which anyone who meets eligibility criteria may apply. Grants described in the book are offered by the U.S. and foreign governments, colleges and universities, international organizations, professional associations, foundations, corporations, libraries, research centers and binational agencies.

Types of awards offered range from small travel grants to postdoctoral research fellowships intended to cover full costs of research, living and dependents’ expenses, international travel and a variety of other expenses. Grants are offered that cover only tuition or living expenses, or that are intended to supplement financial support from other sources. Some awards are totally unrestricted in how they may be used. Duration varies from the length of a conference, to a summer or academic year, up to three or more years.

Calculate Expenses
When figuring your expenses to study or carry out research in the U.S., be sure to factor in all costs:
tuition, housing, food, fees, books, health insurance, travel to and from your home country and the United States, and local travel.

Do not expect to find employment once you arrive in the U.S. On-campus work employment opportunities are limited and highly competitive. Current U.S. immigration regulations restrict employment outside the university for both international students and their spouses. Wages for teaching and research assistantships at U.S. universities are generally subject to U.S. taxes.

Women and U.S. Study
Despite recent progress, the percentage of women participants in international scholarship programs remains markedly lower than that of men.

The problems and barriers that women face in pursuing international education are wide-ranging.
Family and personal concerns often weigh heavily in women's professional decisions. Societal norms and expectations—and restrictions and taboos—vary from country to country, from city to rural areas, and even from family to family within the same community. While there are strategies for helping to overcome barriers, such tremendous diversity demands that every woman who decides to pursue international educational opportunities necessarily address these issues within her own specific cultural and familial context.

It is important to focus on the positive aspects of study abroad. Pursuing advanced education overseas will benefit not only you, but also your family, and broadly speaking, perhaps even your country. Upon your return you will be better prepared to serve in your chosen profession, and you may have a significant impact on your community in your chosen field.

For practical information for women contemplating study or research in the U.S., read Study Abroad:

Other Resources
Your nearest Educational Advising Center will have additional information on funding and study or research in the U.S. Most centers have general reference material with the addresses and admission requirements of various institutions, as well as information on grants. They may also have special lectures on admissions and funding possibilities.

To locate the Educational Advising Center nearest you, refer to the appendix “Overseas Educational Advising Centers” in Funding for United States Study, consult the Directory of Overseas Educational Advising Centers ($19.95, College Board Publications, Box 886, New York NY 10101), or contact the American Embassy, consulate or USIS office in your country.

Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages, Inc. (TESOL) is an international professional association for English as a Second and Foreign Language educators. Its members include researchers, administrators, materials developers, testing specialists and linguists as well as classroom teachers and teacher trainers. The TESOL standards are printed in full as an appendix to this book.

In many countries in the world, a ministry of education or a nationally controlled body has the authority and responsibility for education regulation, including evaluation, curriculum development, standards and teacher examinations.

The U.S. education system is decentralized, flexible and responsive, but there is a lack of consistency among higher education institutions and programs regarding admissions standards and program expectations. Most evaluation takes place as part of a self-regulatory process administered by regional and program-specific accrediting bodies. Accreditation is voluntary and uses peer professionals and institutional pressure to meet generally accepted standards through self-assessment and periodic peer review for program development.

Self-Evaluation by English Programs
Since the early 1980s, TESOL has promoted English language and teacher preparation program regulation through the process of self-study. Its Professional Standards Committee formulated standards for English language programs and developed a program of self-study through which English language programs assess how well they meet those standards. Programs undergo a process of clarifying goals, examining resources and functions, and identifying the strengths and weaknesses of the program. An entire staff is usually involved in the self-study process, which helps build the capacity for continuing evaluation and change.

The TESOL self-study process includes endorsement of TESOL’s Statement of Core Standards for Language and Professional Preparation Programs, available from TESOL. Programs that endorse the standards and complete the self-study process, requiring a commitment of up to 2 years for completion, may send a report to TESOL for review. If the self-study is successfully completed, a program may receive a TESOL certificate of completion.

Accreditation
Beginning in 1993, TESOL members approached the Board of Directors about the development of an accrediting program for Intensive English Programs (IEPs) in the U.S. A task force appointed by the Board surveyed the field and found support for the project. As a result, in 1995 the Board appointed the Accreditation Advisory committee to develop an accreditation program.

The accreditation program will be different from the self-study process. In addition to the self-evaluation component, it will include peer review by site evaluators and regulation by the accrediting body.

Intensive English Programs (IEPs) in the U.S. must be accredited by an agency recognized by the U.S. Department of Education in order to send I-20 forms to international students who want to study in the U.S. IEPs that are not part of university programs that are accredited by a regional accrediting body must be independently accredited. The TESOL accreditation program will fill this need.

As of the printing of this current volume, the TESOL IEP accreditation project was in its second year of development. The Accreditation Advisory committee hopes to carry out pilot accreditation studies in the fall of 1998.

For more information about TESOL, the self-study program, and TESOL's emerging accreditation program, contact the TESOL Central Office, 1600 Cameron Street, Suite 300, Alexandria VA 22314-2751. E-mail: accred@tesol.edu. URL: http://www.tesol.edu.
NAFSA: Association of International Educators is a nonprofit membership association that provides training, information, and other educational services to professionals in the field of international education and exchange. The association’s membership is composed of nearly 8,000 individuals and representatives of postsecondary institutions. NAFSA’s membership includes a large professional interest section, Administrators and Teachers of English as a Second Language (ATESL), comprised of professionals in the ESL field.

NAFSA has a number of resources to assist institutions in self-study and evaluation. These include Standards and Policies in International Education, a compilation of the association’s standards for institutions and individuals, including NAFSA’s Code of Ethics; the NAFSA Self-Study Guide, a comprehensive handbook on assessment of international educational programs; and Building Better English Language Programs, a series of readings from leading ESL professionals on evaluating and improving English language programs. These and other NAFSA publications are available for a nominal cost from the association’s publications service. To obtain further information and place an order, contact the service at 800-836-4994.

In addition, NAFSA’s Consultant Referral Service serves as an information clearinghouse on professionals in international education and ESL who offer their expertise to institutions on a consultative basis. Referrals are free to NAFSA individuals or institutional members. For additional information, contact Bill Carroll, Director of Education and Training, at NAFSA: Association of International Educators, 1875 Connecticut Avenue NW, Suite 1000, Washington DC 20009-5728. LCP welcomes you to join our

Intensive English and University Preparation Program

Select from four campus-based Centers...

- California State University (Sacramento, California)
- MiraCosta College (Oceanside, California, north of San Diego)
- Irvine Valley College (Irvine, California)
- Highline Community College (Seattle, Washington)

- Located in the state's capital city, California State University, Sacramento is one of the largest campuses in the CSU system. The University offers undergraduate and graduate degrees in more than 50 fields and has the most modern facilities, including a state-of-the-art engineering and computer science building. Sacramento is a safe and friendly community and is convenient to both San Francisco and Lake Tahoe.

- MiraCosta College is a two-year community college in Oceanside, California, 35 miles north of San Diego. Its sandy beaches are ideal for surfing and offer year-round opportunities for ocean recreation. La Jolla and Carlsbad beaches are also nearby. The College is situated on a 168-acre hilltop location with beautiful panoramic ocean and mountain views. Oceanside is convenient to San Diego, as well as Los Angeles attractions.

- Irvine Valley College's beautiful campus is located in "America's Safest City", Irvine, California. The College offers both two-year degrees and Certificate programs in many disciplines. Halfway between Los Angeles and San Diego, Irvine is in the heart of southern California's world-famous attractions such as Disneyland, Universal Studios and Hollywood.

- Highline Community College, in the Seattle suburb of Des Moines, offers a variety of two-year degree and Certificate programs, including Business, Computer Science and Air Transportation. Seattle is a place of great natural beauty and unlimited outdoor recreation such as skiing, sailing, hiking and bicycling. The area is considered one of the most desirable places to live in the U.S.

Learn to Speak English and Play Tennis in the U.S.A / Canada

New World Language Institute/International Tennis Academy campuses are situated on the ground of international resorts providing perfect settings for individuals, families and groups to enjoy this educational experience.

The Shorewalk Vacation Village Resort in Bradenton and the Enclave in Orlando make up the Florida locations. The Shadow Mountain Resort in the foothills of the San Jacinto Mountains is the setting for the California Campus and the two newest campuses are located on the Turkish Riviera on the Aegean Sea, and at the Highland Inn in Midland, Ontario, Canada on the Georgian Bay.

Professionally-trained ESL instructors teach English using the communicative method ensuring an enjoyable and rewarding learning experience. This approach is similar to how many individuals learn their native tongue. At NWLI/NWITA, students learn to speak, communicate and understand English before they learn to read and write English.

Classes are available on a weekly or monthly basis.

Four week courses start throughout the year.

Courses include:
- Vacation stay at Disney World or Disneyland
- Vacation stay New York City and Washington D.C.
- English & Special Activities
- Youth Camp (ages 10-18)
- Mature Adult Program (ages 50+)
- Business English
- Private High School Exchange
- Year-round Tennis Instruction

Prices begin at US $1,940.00 for an all inclusive 4 week program.

Accommodation with a carefully selected host family or at any of our magnificent resort sites. Students and families are conveniently located near all major attractions.

Programs and rates brochures are available in Spanish, Portuguese and English.

English Language Study at Its Best
The English Language Institute is a year-round, three-semester program consisting of 24 class hours per week at six different levels of language proficiency. Students and professionals from all over the world receive the intensive instruction they need to excel in and out of the classroom. The Institute offers:

- Qualified, experienced instructors
- Audio, video and computer laboratories
- TOEFL and academic skills preparation
- Specialized classes and workshops
- Academic advising
- Social and cultural activities
- Communication courses for professionals
- University placement assistance
- Concurrent university study for eligible students
- Graduate and undergraduate admission for qualified students
- Convenient housing
- Host family visits

Excellence at Wayne State University
Wayne State University is one of America's leading urban research universities offering more than 7,000 courses in nearly 400 different areas of study. Established in the late 1800s as a small medical college, Wayne State University has flourished into the third largest institution of higher education in Michigan. Its current enrollment exceeds 33,000 students, more than 1,700 of whom are international students from approximately 80 countries. Nearly 40 international student associations are active on Wayne State's campus, contributing to its high standards of commitment, quality and excellence.

In the Heart of Detroit
Located in Detroit's Cultural Center, Wayne State University's 185-acre campus is footsteps away from some of Michigan's most acclaimed attractions such as the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Detroit Public Library, the International Institute and the Fox Theatre. The Detroit River serves as a backdrop for events such as the annual Detroit Grand Prix auto race, the Gold Cup limited hydroplane race and the Montreux-Detroit International Jazz Festival.

The University of Missouri at Columbia (UMC) is frequently ranked among the nation's top 10 percent of universities and as one of America's best college buys. UMC is the state's largest university (22,000 students) and offers 250 accredited academic programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Conditional acceptance to most undergraduate and some graduate programs is available to qualified applicants. A good recommendation from the Intensive English Program (IEP) substitutes for the required minimum TOEFL score of 500 for most undergraduate programs.

The Intensive English Program
The IEP, established in 1978, offers English language instruction to internationals wishing to improve their English skills for academic, personal or professional reasons.

- Minimum of 25 hours of instruction per week
- Small classes and individualized attention
- Emphasis on academic English and university preparation
- Highly qualified, experienced and dedicated faculty
- Social and cultural activities, including out-of-town trips
- College and university placement assistance
- Counseling on academic, personal, and immigration matters
- Institutional TOEFL twice each term (once in summer)
- Conveniently located in one building on beautiful campus
- University residence halls or private off-campus housing
- Transportation service from Columbia airport
- Students admitted in January, June, and August

The Community
Columbia, Missouri, is often listed as one of the 20 best cities to live in the U.S. It is a safe, clean, and friendly community of 70,000 people located halfway (200 kilometers) between Kansas City and St. Louis. Living costs in Columbia are 8-10% below the national average.

A special English Language and Culture Orientation Program for international students who:

- want to obtain a bachelor's degree (open to women only) at Chatham College
- want to study for a short period (up to a year) and obtain a certificate from Chatham
- want to enter another United States college or university

You can choose any number of weeks, anytime during the academic year or summer (minimum of five weeks is recommended). If you have TOEFL scores below 500, Chatham can provide you with special assistance.

The program includes:

- Intensive English—reading and writing, grammar and vocabulary building
- Cross-cultural communication
- Field trips to cultural and entertainment sites in Pittsburgh

About Chatham College:

A leader in women's education since 1869, Chatham College is located in the Shadyside/Squirrel Hill neighborhood—within close proximity of downtown Pittsburgh and within walking distance of entertainment, fashion boutiques, and restaurants.

Appendix A: TESOL Standards for Postsecondary Programs

TESOL Standards

Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL) is an international professional organization for the field of English as a Second or Foreign Language. The statement of the TESOL Standards below is excerpted from: TESOL Standards and Self-Study Questions for Postsecondary Programs, available from TESOL, 1600 Cameron Street, Suite 300, Alexandria VA 22314-2751; Phone: 703-836-0774.

Using TESOL's Standards

These standards...are intended to guide the self-study participants as they examine the purposes and goals of a program, administration, curriculum, implementation, and assessment procedures. The statement and standards, which provide detailed descriptions of quality ESOL programs,...are intended to lead participants towards a description of their program which includes an examination of the current program as well as a review of the past and a projection for the future. It is the intent of TESOL and the Committee on Professional Standards that this manual lead ESOL professionals to consider thoughtfully what type of program is best for their constituency.

The idea is not to provide a list of statements or questions for which either positive or negative responses can be provided or upon which prescriptive evaluations can be made; rather, these statements are meant to serve as a basis for analysis and review of a program's organization and operation. They are not all inclusive but are an attempt to highlight the key features of most ESOL programs. The greatest effectiveness of the self-study approach comes from the dynamic interaction of the review process as it evolves among and with the participants of a program...

Once the mechanism is in place for gathering the data, the study of them and the development of strategies for change, self-study can become an ongoing process. TESOL will maintain a list of those programs which have performed self-studies. Programs which have not submitted reports on further self-studies will not appear on the list.
Standards for Postsecondary ESOL Programs

Those standards are divided into those for intensive/non-intensive programs and support system ESOL courses. Programs denote a separate administrative structure while support system ESOL courses are offered through existing departments or units.

Standards for Intensive/Non-Intensive Programs

A. Statement of Purpose and Goals
   1. There is a written statement of purposes and goals available to the public.
   2. The statement is compatible with TESOL's Standards and the NAFSA Principles for International Educational Exchange.

B. Program Structure Administration
   1. There is a written description of the nature of the program (including whether it is intensive, non-intensive, credit or non-credit, and whether it is independent or part of a larger institution.)
   2. There is a written description of the organizational structure of the program.
   3. If the ESOL program is part of a larger organization or an institution of higher education, the two coordinate their efforts for the benefit of the students they serve.
      a. The institution integrates the ESOL program into all aspects of the larger organization which deal with ESOL students.
      b. There is a statement of the relationship of the ESOL program as a whole to the organizational structure of the other institution.
      c. The policies and practices regarding the administration of ESOL programs and courses are in keeping with those used throughout the larger institution.
   4. There is a director with direct responsibility for the program.
   5. The administrative personnel are ESOL professionals and have masters' degrees or doctorates in fields appropriate to their responsibilities.
   6. The administrator responsible for directing the instructional program has at least a master's degree with a concentration in ESOL and experience in the field and in administration and supervision.
   7. The administrative staff is knowledgeable and supportive of the program goals and objectives.
   8. Personnel policies are clearly specified in writing and administered fairly.
      a. There are statements concerning working conditions for the personnel including hiring, firing, rank promotion, salaries, benefits, pay increases, grievance procedures, teaching load, and number of hours of work expected.
      b. Personnel information is made available to all staff.
      c. Staff members are given written contracts and job descriptions.
      d. Staff are assigned specific responsibilities appropriate to their training and experience.
      e. There is orientation for new staff members. Both full-time and part-time instructional staff (including graduate student teaching assistants) are oriented to the total instructional program, advised throughout the program, supervised and evaluated to ensure the high quality of the program.
      f. There is a core of permanent, full-time teachers.
      g. There is a written statement that clarifies the use of full-time and part-time teachers in terms of the needs and goals of the program.
      h. If the ESOL program is part of an institution of higher education, the policies and practices relating to the program faculty and staff are in keeping with those which apply to faculty with equivalent training and experience throughout the institution.
      i. Instructional staff who are assigned responsibilities equivalent to a full-time position are compensated as full-time employees.
      j. Salaries are comparable to the salaries offered by educational institutions in the area.
      k. There are appropriate support services for teachers.
      l. The administration provides opportunities for professional development.
The administration seeks input from the instructional staff, support staff and students in making policy, operational and instructional decisions.

Administrators provide for evaluation of their work by instructional staff, support staff and students.

The administration takes the responsibility for budgeting and financial management by ensuring that there is income sufficient to maintain a continuing program of high quality and by distributing money fairly and equitably to reflect the needs of the program. If the ESOL program is part of an institution of higher education, budgeting procedures are consistent with those used by other units.

Instructional Staff

1. The members of the instructional staff have masters' or doctorates with concentrations in teaching ESOL or are actively working toward these degrees.

2. Members of the instructional staff give evidence of a dedication to providing a high quality of instruction, taking into account a variety of needs and learning styles.

3. Instructional staff members follow the curriculum and program policies.

4. Instructional staff members seek to maintain constant and effective communication with all parts of the instructional program in order to function as a team committed to accomplishing the goals of the program.

5. Instructional staff consistently participate in evaluation activities for the purpose of maintaining a high level of individual performance.

6. Instructional staff members engage in a systematic growth and development program through their institutions, interact with peers within and without their program, and attend formal, professional and self-study meetings in order to maintain up-to-date competence in the field.

7. The instructional staff gives evidence of commitment to the profession as a whole and consistently seeks to improve the status of the profession.

Support Services

1. Students have access to personal and academic counseling provided by trained staff.

2. Students are housed in situations appropriate to their personal and academic needs.

3. Medical insurance is readily available.

4. The program provides orientation to the language program, to student policies, to other related institutions, to the community, and to the country in general. It makes an orientation handbook available.

5. The program facilitates students' contact with the community through such programs as host family programs and other extracurricular activities.

6. There is a grievance procedure for students, and they are acquainted with this procedure.

Program Curriculum

1. The ESOL program has a written curriculum which includes observable performance objectives for all levels.

2. The curriculum is based on an assessment of the cultural as well as language needs of the particular group of learners.

3. The curriculum and methodology allow for different backgrounds, abilities, ages, current levels of achievement, learning styles, goals, and communicative needs of the students.

4. The ESOL program utilizes a curriculum which is different from that of English for native speakers.

5. The curriculum and methodology reflect the best current knowledge in the field, and they are compatible with the goals for the program.

6. Adequate, up-to-date materials are available for each student.

7. Additional teacher resource materials are available to enable the teachers to draw from the best sources available in the field for the widest range of needs.

8. The length and intensity of the program are sufficient for the completion of the curriculum goals.

9. The teacher-student ratio is appropriate to the goals of the course.

Program Implementation

1. Programs follow ethical standards for recruitment of students and maintain close communication with the clients they serve.

2. Criteria for admission to a program or enrollment in a course are clearly stated and adhered to by the entire staff including the recruiting staff, admissions officers and academic advisors.

3. Promotional materials and recruiting personnel make only justifiable claims about the
4. The program staff work closely with agencies and individuals sponsoring students and are accountable to them.
5. The program adheres to government regulations in admitting students and in dealing with them during their participation in the program.
6. Policies related to costs, scholarships, financial assistance and refunds are stated clearly to prospective students.
7. Academic and personal records (as well as immigration information, if applicable) are maintained on students.
8. Records are kept confidential in accordance with current laws, regulations and the policies of the institution.
9. Transcripts are made available.
10. Instruction is carried on in safe, comfortable surroundings conducive to learning.
11. Adequate supplies of equipment and furniture are available to carry out the program effectively.

E. Program Assessment
1. The program engages in periodic self-study and evaluation to review the program, its stated goals, purposes and accomplishments.
2. The self-study group considers input from administrators, instructional and support staff and students through a wide range of data including test results, observations, teacher evaluations, student evaluation, enrollment figures and financial statements.
3. The administration and instructional staff seek assistance for program evaluation and improvement from appropriate sources such as related professional organizations, outside advisers, specialists and peers in the field.
4. If the ESOL program is part of a larger institution, it participates actively in the self-study, evaluation and/or accrediting process of the institution.
5. Analysis of self-study data results in a written plan for improving or maintaining the quality of the program.
6. The program makes changes based on evaluative evidence.

Standards for Support System Courses

A. Statement of Purpose and Goals
1. Both credit and non-credit courses are offered as part of the institution's recognition of its responsibilities accruing from its admission of students whose English skills may not be the same as those of the majority of its students. This recognition is acknowledged in the institution's statement of mission and purpose.
2. Credit-bearing courses carry credit equivalent to parallel courses offered for native speakers.
3. Non-credit courses provide the type and level of instruction offered by other non-credit courses given at the institution.
4. ESOL courses are subject to the same types of review and revision procedures as other courses in the same department or unit.

B. Structure of Support System ESOL Courses

1. Policies and practices regarding the administration of ESOL courses are in keeping with those used throughout the institution.
2. The administrator of the department or unit in which the ESOL courses are housed considers the needs and concerns of the ESOL courses and faculty important to the department or unit and consults with them in appropriate ways concerning such items as teaching loads and teaching assignments.
3. The ESOL courses are integrated into the course offerings of the department or unit in which they are housed.
4. The ESOL courses are given equal consideration in terms of scheduling, staffing, and class size to that given other courses in the department or unit.

Instructional Staff
1. The faculty responsible for the ESOL courses are fully integrated into the department or unit.
2. Permanent, full-time positions are created and maintained to the fullest extent possible.
3. The ESOL faculty have appropriate training and/or experience for providing instruction in the ESOL courses offered.
4. The faculty are eligible for the same faculty ranks as others in the department with equivalent training and experience.
5. The job descriptions for ESOL faculty are equivalent to others in the department or unit.
of the same rank in terms of teaching loads, research expectation and commitment of service to the institution.

4. Appropriate consideration is given to the numbers and types of publications and refereed presentations in determining reappointment, merit, salary and tenure.

5. Appropriate consideration is given to the demands placed on ESOL faculty when those faculty are evaluated for teaching effectiveness.

6. ESOL faculty are eligible for the same types and amounts of support for professional development, such as travel or released time, as others in the department or unit.

7. ESOL faculty are included in all the deliberations of the department or unit to the same extent as other faculty. Such deliberations might include matters relating to hiring, firing, promotions, budgets and teaching assignments.

Support Services
1. The institution recognizes that students with limited English proficiency need special attention and provides adequate support services to both students and faculty.

2. Students are provided with needed special advising and counseling services which are easily accessible and properly staffed.

3. ESOL faculty have access to the same types and levels of support services as those available to other faculty in the department or unit, such as secretarial help or equipment. In addition, such special support and equipment as are necessary for the ESOL courses, such as labs or video players, are provided.

4. Academic advisement for students of limited English proficiency must ensure that the students' workload be appropriate to their level of proficiency.

C. Curriculum
1. ESOL courses, both credit and non-credit, are fully integrated into the course offerings of the department or unit.

2. Procedures followed for initiating new course offerings and revising current offerings and deleting them are consistent with other such procedures in the department or unit.

3. Course requirements for credit courses which parallel those offered for native speakers are equivalent; provision is made for different teaching methods and class size.

4. Course requirements for non-credit courses are appropriate to the purpose for which the courses are offered.

5. Placement procedures are clearly articulated and made available to students. Students are advised of these procedures at the time of admission. Other faculty throughout the institution are aware of the procedures and adhere to them.

6. Courses which are offered without carrying academic credit or those which carry credit which will not count toward graduation or which will not transfer to another institution are clearly labeled as such. To avoid the students' having to take an overload in order to enroll in such non-credit courses, provisions are made for counting the course hours in figuring the course load.

7. Institutions which offer and may, on the basis of placement procedures, require non-credit courses clearly indicate to prospective students that such is the case. Students are aware at the time of admission that they may be required to take some courses which will not count toward their degrees.

8. The curriculum and methodology in the ESOL courses, whether credit or non-credit, reflect an awareness of the cultural needs of the students and allow for different backgrounds, abilities, and learning styles, insofar as they can be accommodated by the goals of the courses.

9. The support system must have an adequate range of course offerings to accommodate the various levels of proficiency of the students admitted to the ESOL program and to ensure the students genuine equality of opportunity to achieve the standards of proficiency of the institution.

10. The number of hours of instruction in ESOL at each level of proficiency must be adequate to achieve the objectives of the courses.

D. Implementation
1. Requirements for admission to any of the ESOL courses are clearly stated and available to students.

2. The criteria for enrollment in any given ESOL class are known and adhered to by all concerned, such as admissions officers and academic advisers.

3. Policies relating to fees, withdrawal from courses and refunds are appropriate and equivalent to those for other courses of a similar nature offered by the institution. They are clearly stated and made available to students and prospective students.

4. Academic and personal records for ESOL students are maintained carefully and in keeping with the practices of the institution.

5. All records are kept confidential in accordance with current laws and regulations and are in keeping with the policies of the institution.

6. Transcripts are made available for ESOL courses in the same ways as for other equivalent courses.

E. Assessment

1. ESOL courses are evaluated according to the same procedures, wherever possible, as other courses within the institution.

2. Evaluations to be used in revising courses and creating new courses are available to the ESOL faculty.

3. The administration and faculty seek assistance for the evaluation of courses and their improvement from such sources as professional organizations, outside specialists and peers in the field.

4. Self-study is used to determine the current effectiveness of course offerings and the need for new or different offerings. Students are included in this process to the extent feasible.
NAFSA: ASSOCIATION OF INTERNATIONAL EDUCATORS

NAFSA: Association of International Educators is a nonprofit membership association that provides training, information and other educational services to professionals in the field of international educational exchange. The association's membership is composed of nearly 8,000 individuals and representatives of postsecondary institutions. NAFSA includes a large professional interest section, Administrators and Teachers of English as a Second Language (ATESL), comprised of professionals in the ESL field.

NAFSA Principles for International Educational Exchange

In the early 1980s, NAFSA convened a Task Force on Standards and Responsibilities to address the growing concern that NAFSA and its institutional and individual members had not been active enough in the establishment of useful, recognized principles of effective practice for professionals in international educational exchange. In response to these concerns, the Task Force created the NAFSA Principles for International Educational Exchange. The NAFSA Principles consist of clearly defined standards and institutional responsibilities in English language teaching, as well as in foreign student and scholar services, international student recruitment and admissions, advising and program administration for U.S. study-abroad students, and community programs and services. The implementation of the Principles is supported by NAFSA's program of institutional self-study, as detailed below.

NAFSA Self-Study Program

NAFSA's self-study program is designed to assist educational institutions and related programs in:

- assessing the strengths and weaknesses of their international educational exchange programs and services;
- improving the quality of these programs and services, thereby increasing the effectiveness of the educational exchange process; and
- strengthening their own ability to assess and improve international education in a manner consistent with the mission of the institution.
Educational institutions participate in the program by:

1. endorsing the NAFSA Principles as an appropriate code of good practice toward which the institution strives; and

2. undertaking a self-study of their international educational exchange programs and services.

NAFSA encourages program-level self-study and has conducted self-study workshops aimed specifically at the Intensive English Program. However, NAFSA advocates that special attention be given not only to the goals, resources, functioning and outcomes of the ESL program itself, but also to articulation between the program and its host institution or organization.

NAFSA has a number of resources to assist institutions with self-study. Relevant publications (e.g., the Principles and NAFSA manuals and guidelines on a variety of related topics) are available for free or at a nominal cost. An additional resource, NAFSA's Self-Study Guide: Assessment of Programs and Services for International Educational Exchange at Postsecondary Institutions (Harriet L. Marsh, 1994), is also available to assist institutions with the assessment process. Along with publications, NAFSA's Consultation Service can provide assistance with ESL consultants who are trained in self-study techniques. The Service is available on a flexible, cost-sharing basis. Consultations must normally be arranged with the NAFSA central office four to six weeks in advance of the actual site visit.

For further information on the NAFSA Principles for International Educational Exchange and NAFSA's self-study program, contact Bill Carroll, Director of Education and Training, NAFSA: Association of International Educators, 1875 Connecticut Avenue NW, Suite 1000, Washington DC 20009-5728; Phone: 202-462-4811.

Principles for Institutions

The movement of students and scholars across community, cultural, geographic, and national boundaries has been recognized for centuries as essential to the discovery of truth, new knowledge, and the means of applying what is learned abroad to human enrichment and progress. In the second half of this century the interchange of students and scholars has grown steadily, become more formalized and is an increasing influence upon U.S. higher education and the society as a whole. Indeed, the significance of the interdependence of nations, peoples and world systems has brought international education into the very mainstream of higher education planning and requirements.

Programs of international educational exchange take many forms and are located in institutions of divergent purposes, sizes, and settings. Regardless of form and content the value of any program can be realized only when a college or university has made a conscious decision to be involved in international educational exchange and has made a commitment of resources commensurate with the nature and scope of that exchange. Such recognition and commitment require adherence to the following institution-wide principles:

1. The institution should have a clearly stated policy, endorsed by the governing board, setting forth the goals and objectives of the international educational exchange program or programs developed by the institution. This policy should be manifest in the institution's planning and budgeting. Personnel and program resources—administrative and academic—should be sufficient to assure that the program can be operated in ways consistent with the principles presented in this document.

2. The executive staff of the institution should discuss with the faculty and administrative staff the implications of the international educational exchange policy for the academic programs and academic staff.

3. Programs in international educational exchange should be closely related to and consistent with the basic purposes and strengths of the institution.

4. Regardless of program size, the institution should acknowledge its responsibility to demonstrate sensitivity to cultural needs—social, religious, dietary, and housing. These factors must be accounted for in the planning and execution of the program.

5. Special services required by involvement in international educational exchange should be performed by personnel who are trained for their particular responsibilities, and institutional policy should ensure that faculty and administrative staff receive appropriate training for the activities they manage.

6. Administrative staff and faculty should seek to develop and maintain respect and sensitivity toward those from different cultures in the effectuation of their responsibilities for international educational exchange programs.

7. The institution should periodically evaluate programs, policies, and services, in light of established goals, and regularly review those goals.

Principles for the Admission of Foreign Students

Foreign citizens have usually been educated in school systems that vary from those in the United States. As a result, students from other countries are often unfamiliar with U.S. procedures and terminology. Institutions that admit foreign students must develop a sensitive and flexible admissions policy that reflects awareness of different academic backgrounds and personal expectations.

To assist institutions in establishing a sound admissions policy and an effective admissions system, criteria for ethical recruitment were developed at a Wingspread colloquium in March 1980. These criteria, known as the Wingspread Principles, are presented in Foreign Student Recruitment: Realities and Recommendations, and are incorporated in the following principles:

1. The admissions goals and policies for foreign students should be related directly to overall institutional goals and policies and include:
   - The academic characteristics of students to whom admission is offered.
   - The level—graduate or undergraduate—of students sought.
   - Geographical areas to be emphasized or discouraged
   - The number of students desired (as a proportion of the student body).
   - The extent to which the institution will make financial resources available to foreign students.

2. Admissions materials should be thorough, complete, and clearly written; they should be sensitive to candidates' unfamiliarity with U.S.
education and lack of facility in the English language. Care should be taken to include:
   - Detailed information about the admissions requirements and procedures.
   - Candid, pertinent, and current information so that students unfamiliar with United States higher education may make informed academic judgment.

3. Realistic information about full costs of study and living expenses, as well as the availability of financial aid.

4. English language requirements and, if admitted initially for an English language training program, the degree of commitment the institution accepts for subsequent education of the student in another of its academic programs.

5. Specific information about requirements of academic programs.

6. Complete information regarding the conditions of admissions and acceptance, accounts, orientation, and all steps to be followed prior to arrival.

Recruitment of foreign students for both academic and English language training programs must be conducted in an ethical, responsible manner.

- The student's educational goals must be ascertained and a responsible judgment made about whether they can be achieved at the accepting institution.

- Admissions decisions should be made using complete files including academic documents, English proficiency reports, and other supporting materials.

- Admissions responsibilities, including issuance of the visa eligibility certificate, should never be delegated to third parties outside the institution.

- Applicants to an English language training program must be given full information about the extent of the institution's committance to admit such applicants subsequently to another of its academic programs or provide assistance in obtaining admission to another institution.

4. The foreign admissions process should be conducted by personnel who are trained and competent in the interpretation of foreign educational records. These duties may be conducted on a full- or part-time basis as required by the size of the effort.

- At the undergraduate level, foreign student admissions—usually a highly centralized process—should be enhanced by faculty advice.

- In foreign graduate admissions, where deans' offices and faculty committees often play an important role, the advice and recommendations of admissions staff... should be carefully considered in the decision process. The important contribution each individual can bring to the admissions decision should be recognized.

- Special reference resources should be acquired and new materials acquired as they become available.
- Admissions personnel should call on the expertise of individuals on the campus, elsewhere, or abroad who can assist in providing sound evaluations.

5. The functions of the admissions office should be coordinated with those units responsible for English language training, academic programs, and student advising services, and there should be regular contact and sharing of information among those responsible for these functions.

6. The institution's foreign student program should be studied periodically in order to formulate any needed adjustments to admissions criteria, procedures and processes:
   - Entering characteristics should be correlated periodically with student retention and other measures of performance.
   - Students should be queried periodically about reactions to admissions materials and procedures.
   - Other campus offices as well as cooperating agencies should be queried about the effectiveness of the admissions materials and procedures.

Principles for English Programs and Determination of English Proficiency

An extremely important factor in determining whether the presence of foreign students at a college or university will be a mutually beneficial experience for the students and the institution is the students’ ability to use the English language. A student who cannot communicate adequately with faculty, staff, or fellow students will encounter significant difficulties in carrying out even limited daily activities. Moreover, serious deficiencies in English will hamper a student in pursuing an academic program at any level. For those students serving as graduate teaching assistants, the ability to speak English effectively in a classroom is especially critical.

For these reasons, an institution must carefully evaluate the English proficiency (overall ability to use the language) of prospective students when they are being considered for admission. In evaluating English proficiency, both level and field of study should be considered, since the most critical question to be answered is how well the student will be able to cope with a specific program at a given institution. Students whose English proficiency seems adequate for a regular academic program often need an English support course or courses in order to function more efficiently in the classroom or to meet an institutional English requirement. Institutions that maintain a policy of admitting foreign students who are qualified academically but who have limited or minimal skills in English must provide half-time or full-time (intensive) programs in English as a Second Language or refer students to English training programs where they can receive adequate instruction.

In an effort to establish guidelines by which institutions can evaluate their own or other English programs, NAFSA supports the following principles. These standards apply first to the question of determining English language proficiency and then to the training programs themselves. Except where specifically noted, these principles are meant to apply both to academic institutions and to private, proprietary organizations which offer English training programs.

Determining English Proficiency

1. The procedures and criteria established for determining English proficiency should be clearly defined. While these procedures should be uniform and comprehensive, they must take into consideration differences presented by at least three common situations:
   - For students being admitted directly from overseas, English proficiency should be determined on the basis of results from widely accepted tests designed for this purpose.
   - For students who have enrolled in intensive English language programs conducted by the institution to which they are applying, additional information should be sought regarding the students’ overall use of English, specific strengths and weaknesses, and motivation for continued improvement. In this regard there should be close communication between the admissions office and the English language program.
   - For students who have been enrolled in intensive English language programs at other institutions or at private language schools, similar information indicating level of English language proficiency should be sought. Admissions personnel should seek the assistance of any specialists in English as a Second Language at their institutions for guidance in interpreting such information.

2. Institutions should periodically assess their capacity to successfully determine English proficiency of prospective foreign students in light of the students' performance in subsequent academic programs.

English Support Courses
Students with sufficient command of English to begin regular academic work at a college or university frequently require additional training to prepare them for tasks encountered during their program of studies. This training is best provided through English support courses taken in conjunction with regular academic courses in the students' fields. These English courses should address the special needs of students whose native language is not English. They typically range from courses which are the equivalent of freshman English to advanced courses in technical English for graduate students.

3. After admission, the institution should employ effective procedures to identify those students who require some specialized training in English in light of the specific course of studies to be pursued. Special care should be taken to provide training in oral English skills for foreign graduate students assigned as teaching assistants.

4. Support courses should be designed and taught by individuals with training in the teaching of English as a Second Language.

Intensive English Programs
The purpose of an Intensive English Program is to develop and strengthen the English skills of persons whose native language is not English, usually in preparation for pursuing an academic program at the graduate or undergraduate level. Such individuals generally do not have sufficient command of English to begin regular academic work at a college or university. Some programs administered by colleges and universities enroll only students who have received academic admission to the institution but require short-term training, often in the summer. Most programs at academic institutions maintain year-round schedules and enroll people at varying levels of proficiency who intend to enter degree programs at the same or other institutions. Finally, a large number of programs are administered by private organizations. These latter programs, often housed at academic institutions, enroll students who must all continue their academic studies elsewhere. Based on experience from many established programs, it is not unrealistic to expect students who begin at the lowest levels to require a full calendar year to reach levels of proficiency sufficient to begin academic work.

5. Intensive English Programs should establish clear goals and objectives for the training they provide. In the most general terms, these goals would be to provide sufficient and appropriate training to enable students to meet test score requirements established by the institutions they plan to attend.

6. In order to achieve these goals, Intensive English Programs should receive adequate support from their sponsoring institutions. Although no single administrative pattern is required, intensive programs should be sufficiently independent to permit the smooth functioning of all activities and units.

7. The director and core faculty of an Intensive English Program should have principal commitments to the program. The director should have advanced academic training in the teaching of English as a Second Language and have teaching and administrative experience, if possible, including overseas experience. Part-time instructors, especially if they are graduate students in a university program, should be taking or have taken graduate work in the teaching of English as a Second Language.

8. To ensure that students will be adequately prepared for an academic program, the syllabus of an Intensive English Program should include training in a variety of skills. The most basic are listening (understanding spoken English) and reading (understanding written English). Also of importance for academic work are speaking (in both formal and informal settings) and writing (primarily expository writing needed in most fields of study).

Principles for Foreign Student/Scholar Services
An institution that enrolls foreign students or invites foreign scholars should recognize that individuals from different cultures and educational systems have special needs for advice and assistance. These needs must be met by services that are organized, directed, and funded by the host institution. The scope and level of such services is to some extent dependent on the number of foreign students and scholars. Regardless of their number, however, the presence of foreign students and scholars requires certain basic levels of support which enable them to function successfully in U.S. colleges or universities. The following principles concern the provision of these essential services:

1. The host institution should state clearly its intentions to provide special services for the foreign students and scholars it brings to its campus. These services should include:
   - Advisory and counseling services.
   - Mandated and technical services in compliance with U.S. government regulations.
   - Coordination and liaison with the community.

2. Regardless of the number of foreign students and scholars, the level of funding, or other circumstances, there must be one unit in the host institution that is responsible for coordinating these services, and there should be clear and widely acknowledged designation of responsibility for these services.
   - These duties may require full-time or part-time staff, depending upon the size of the clientele. Where possible, it is highly desirable to have a single individual or office designated to provide these advisory services.
   - The staff should be knowledgeable about U.S. immigration law and regulations.

3. The institution should provide ample professional services which are fully accessible to foreign students and scholars. The intention of these services is to assure that maximum benefit is derived from the educational experience. The advisory services must seek to remove impediments and to solve problems on behalf of these individuals.
   - The advisory staff must work closely with other campus and community resources which can be of assistance before arrival and throughout the individual's stay.
   - An orientation program that introduces students to the physical environment, registration procedures, academic policies, housing, counseling and health services, visa requirements and INS regulations, financial matters, and social and intercultural activities should be provided.
   - Advisory services should be provided on an ongoing basis with respect to personal counseling, emergency needs, institutional policies, preparation for departure, and re-entry to home countries upon completion of stay.

4. The advisory staff serve both the institution and the students and scholars it enrolls; they should, therefore, perform an intermediary role and be a channel of communication between those individuals and outside agencies or institutions.
   - The advisory staff should seek to bring an intercultural dimension to the educational programs of the institution and the general life of the community.
   - Advisory services should include academic advising—performed either by faculty members or foreign student advisers.

Principles for the Provision of Community Services and Programs
The presence of foreign students and scholars on campus and in the community involves crosscultural relationships and provides opportunities for increased global awareness. Individual contacts and the sharing of a variety of social and professional activities provide the opportunity for mutual appreciation of different cultural patterns and national aspirations.

Although it may serve a wider constituency at the state or national level, the college or university is an integral part of the community in which it exists. Colleges and universities which enroll foreign students and scholars should make, in cooperation with the community, every effort to assist these students in their adjustment to life in an American community. They may also enhance the education of foreign students and scholars by offering a variety of experiences, both on campus and in the community, which will ensure that optimum benefit is Principles for U.S. Study Abroad

One of the most effective ways to increase U.S. understanding of other languages and cultures and to improve our ability to function effectively in this interdependent world is to provide individuals with opportunities to study abroad. By living and studying in another country people learn to live with and appreciate different points of view and gain a more global perspective on life’s challenges and opportunities.

The institution that endorses the concept of study abroad should provide some form of basic advisory services. Many opportunities exist for American students interested in studying abroad—sponsored programs of their own institution, programs sponsored cooperatively with other institutions, and hundreds of direct opportunities which may or may not have U.S. institutional sponsorship.

These principles apply to the delivery of advisory services as well as to the direct administration of a study abroad program or cosponsorship of a program with other institutions.

Advisory Services for Study Abroad

1. Within the context of its overall international educational objectives, an institution should have a clearly stated policy about its intentions and goals for facilitating study abroad.

2. Recognizing that programs and advising may be handled by various people on campus, there should be a central point of access to useful information about overseas opportunities. A library of essential study abroad information materials should be maintained.

3. Faculty and staff members who are responsible for advising should be identified and listed in campus reference literature. These individuals should be given opportunities to develop their abilities to provide sound, knowledgeable, and objective advice about study abroad programs. Important components of advising include the following:
   - Clarifying objectives for wanting to go abroad.
   - Identifying opportunities that are educationally sound and culturally beneficial.
   - Determining the quality, value, and appropriateness of a particular study abroad experience.
   - Coordinating evaluation of students' educational backgrounds with admissions personnel of foreign institution.
Understanding the implications of a particular study abroad experience on graduation requirements, transfer credit, and financial aid.

4. Returning students should be asked to provide evaluations to enable study abroad advisers to determine the usefulness of the program for those students and possible future participants in that program, and to evaluate the usefulness of the advisory services they received before going abroad.

Cosponsoring Study Abroad Programs Administered by Other Institutions
In order to encourage study abroad or broaden the options readily available to its students, a number of institutions have elected to join consortia or cosponsor study abroad programs in which another institution handles program administration. A consortium or cosponsorship arrangement for study abroad should provide opportunities that are consistent with the institution's overall academic objectives, requirements, and standards; the programs should be administered in accordance with the principles for study abroad program administration (see below); and the home campus role in the cosponsorship should be evaluated periodically by faculty, staff, and students to determine if the objectives are being met.

Administration of Study Abroad Programs
Institutions administer study abroad programs in order to establish direct control over the development and provision of a specific kind of overseas learning experience. Many different kinds of institutions operate programs, including U.S. colleges and universities, foreign universities and companies, and proprietary organizations. The types of programs and amounts of structure and support services vary tremendously. Despite the wide range, all should be administered according to the following principles.

5. The purposes and specific educational objectives of the program should be carefully developed and clearly stated in the program bulletin and promotional materials.

6. Accurate, honest, and complete information should be provided to prospective applicants describing the nature and scope of the program including its opportunities and limitations, how and where instruction will be given, the relationship, if any, to a foreign institution, grading practices, significant differences between a home campus experience and what can be expected abroad, information about local attitudes and mores, local living conditions, and the extent of responsibility assumed by the program for housing participants.

7. Applicants should be screened to ensure that participants have the maturity, adequate language proficiency, academic background and achievement, and motivation necessary for success in the type of program and place of study.

8. The program should include an orientation, both predeparture and ongoing, which assists participants in making appropriate personal, social, and academic adjustments. Programs maintaining centers abroad should provide counseling and supervisory services at the foreign center, with special attention to the problems peculiar to the location and nature of the program.

9. The program should encourage extensive and effective use of the unique physical, human, and cultural resources of the host environment, and the academic rigor of the program should be comparable to that at the home campus. There should be clearly defined criteria and policies for judging performance and assigning credit in accordance with prevailing standards and practices at the home institution.

10. Administrative arrangements (such as housing, transportation, and finances) and support services (such as counseling and health services) made both in the U.S. and at the program location abroad should be managed effectively by carefully selected and qualified staff who have both appropriate academic and administrative experience necessary to perform the work.

11. Programs should be evaluated periodically by student participants, program administrators, and a faculty advisory committee to determine the extent to which objectives and purposes are being met. Changes should be made in light of the findings.

UNIVERSITY AND COLLEGE INTENSIVE ENGLISH PROGRAMS

University and College Intensive English Programs (UCIEP) is an independent consortium of university- and college-administered Intensive English Programs in the United States. Founded in 1967, UCIEP's purpose is the advancement of professional standards and quality instruction in Intensive English Programs at universities and colleges in the United States. At present, UCIEP has more than sixty members located throughout the country.

All UCIEP member programs are committed to the consortium's effort to ensure that students receive the highest quality intensive English instruction from trained, professional teachers. Every three years each member program is required to endorse the UCIEP Guidelines and to undergo a program of self-study and evaluation. Each member's self-study process is evaluated by a committee to ensure that the program is in compliance with the UCIEP Guidelines.

In sum, UCIEP member programs offer the following:
- Intensive English Programs administered by accredited universities and colleges throughout the United States
- Quality academic English instruction on university/college campuses
- Highly trained professional instructors
- Academic and personal advising services
- Opportunities for interaction with American students
- Access to campus facilities, such as libraries, computers, health centers, laboratories, recreation centers, etc.
- Participation in campus activities, such as field trips, concerts, lectures, athletic events, etc.

Appendix D: AAIEP Member Organizations

American Association of Intensive English Programs (AAIEP)

The American Association of Intensive English Programs (AAIEP) is an organization of Intensive English Programs, represented by their directors, which:

1. Promotes ethical and professional standards for Intensive English Programs.
2. Encourages and facilitates evaluation of Intensive English Programs.
3. Provides liaisons between Intensive English Programs and other organizations whose concerns for international students overlap with those of AAIEP.
4. Works to increase awareness abroad of opportunities for English language study in the United States and provides information to students and counselors.

To accomplish these purposes AAIEP has established two committees to complete its mission. The Standards Committee of AAIEP refines standards and implements them as requirements for membership. The Advocacy Committee provides information about study at IEPs in the United States and maintains dialog with government agencies on issues which impact intensive English students.

AAIEP is committed to support the professional image of ESL instruction in the United States and to work for the well-being of the profession and the individual member programs. The association is a vehicle for working with NAFSA, TESOL, the U.S. Department of State, the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service and other organizations that use IEPs or whose actions affect IEPs. These may also include U.S. and foreign government agencies, sponsors, and admissions officers and counselors. Through its workshops, newsletters, study abroad fairs, and internet listserv, AAIEP promotes program quality and dialog on important professional issues.

Why is AAIEP membership important to students and counselors?

All members of AAIEP have been approved for membership only after they have successfully completed the Program Self-Appraisal (PSA) process. The PSA process requires that the program demonstrate that it meets the standards established by AAIEP. These standards, which are available...
Intensive English Programs which have been approved for AAIEP membership may be large or small, on-campus or off-campus, in any geographical region of the U.S., and may have a variety of curricular goals. However, member programs have some characteristics in common: a commitment to quality in ESL education and student services, and a commitment to providing useful and accurate information to prospective students.

Each AAIEP member program is fully described and the AAIEP Standards are presented in the AAIEP Member Profiles, available in print free of charge or on the World Wide Web, both at the address below. English Language & Orientation Programs in the United States

The Standard Reference to English as a Second Language at U.S. Colleges and Universities

Over 800 programs and courses. English Language and Orientation Programs in the United States (ELOPUS) describes the English as a Second Language (ESL) offerings of U.S. accredited higher educational institutions and U.S. language schools.

The standard reference. Long the reference directory used by U.S. educational advising centers worldwide, ELOPUS is widely used by ministries of education, embassies, universities, corporations, exchange agencies and other organizations that sponsor international students in the United States.

Describes over 800 preacademic Intensive English Programs and ESL courses open to international students at undergraduate and graduate levels.

300-plus pages of indexed information on:
- ESL proficiency levels
- Class hours
- Availability of language lab, computer-assisted instruction, and other options
- Terms and beginning dates
- Academic credit
- Costs and fees
- Contact addresses, phone, fax and internet
- Student services, faculty, program sizes, tests, eligibility and much more

A publication of the Institute of International Education. The largest U.S. higher educational exchange agency, IIE is a nonprofit organization with 650 accredited U.S. college and university members.

REPRODUCTION BASIS

[Checkmark] This document is covered by a signed “Reproduction Release (Blanket)” form (on file within the ERIC system), encompassing all or classes of documents from its source organization and, therefore, does not require a “Specific Document” Release form.

[Blank] This document is Federally-funded, or carries its own permission to reproduce, or is otherwise in the public domain and, therefore, may be reproduced by ERIC without a signed Reproduction Release form (either “Specific Document” or “Blanket”).
