This final performance report provides project outcome information and data to the U.S. Department of Education for the federally-funded Library Literacy Program. The Pawtucket Public Library (Rhode Island) conducted a project that provided literacy services to English as a Second Language (ESL) learners. The project served a community of 50,000-100,000 people. Classroom instruction was provided using a learner-centered approach, in which the facilitator worked with students to develop language and literacy learning activities relevant to the students' needs for and uses of English language and literacy. The project served 52 adult learners, and provided 320 hours of classroom time. The report describes activities from October 1992-September 1993 and provides: a comparison of actual accomplishments to goals and objectives set forth in the grant application; a comparison between proposed and actual expenditures; specific details of activities undertaken; the role the library played in the accomplishment of the goals and objectives; agencies and organizations that assisted in the project; and the impact of the federal project on the ongoing program of the library. Includes the agreement between the Pawtucket Public Library and the International Institute of Rhode Island for the cooperative provision of literacy services. (SWC)

Part III: Narrative Report

1. The goals of the program were to improve Pawtucket Public Library's capability to provide appropriate library services to the limited English speaking communities of Pawtucket and Central Falls and to enable limited English proficient adults and out-of-school youth to develop English skills, including English literacy, and cross-cultural competence.

1-1.1 The Library Director met with the ESL/literacy teacher, the library's reference specialist for Spanish and Portuguese, and three former ESL students to discuss what material the library should purchase to assist students to learn English. The former students recommended that more audio visual materials and dictionaries be purchased for the library's collection. The library has followed their recommendations in selecting materials.

1-1.2 The library staff met with the Director and a staff member of Progreso Latino. Progreso Latino is a non-profit, bilingual, bicultural agency committed to making social services accessible to the Rhode Island Hispanic community. The needs of the hispanic community and how the library could better serve this community were discussed. The library staff learned about the services Progreso Latino provides and the Director and the staff member from Progreso Latino were given a tour of the library and information about library services.

1-1.3 The library ran two open-house workshops. One was held in the evening and one in the morning. The library originally planned to run these workshops on Saturday, but after asking the students already in the classes it was discovered that Saturday was not a good day to hold them. The workshops turned into library tours, because the attendees were interested in what was available to them and how they would use it. Many of the attendees were ESL students or their relatives. Because the workshops turned into tours, there were no costs associated with them.

1-1.4 10 program participants or family members of those in the program took advantage of the casework services offered by the International Institute at the Library.

1-2. The second goal of the program was to enable limited English proficient adults and out-of-school youth to develop English skills, including English literacy, and crosscultural competence.

1-2.1 The Library developed a contract with the International Institute of Rhode Island for the provision of educational and supportive social services at the Pawtucket Public Library for the limited English speaking adults. A copy of the contract is included.

1-2.2 &1-2.3 The program enrolled 52 adult learners, 2 over its minimum goal of 50 and provided 320 hours of classroom time.

1-2.4 Learners demonstrated improvement of English oral proficiency and literacy through performance on standardized tests, through new literacy capacity and through new oral capacity. Pre- and post-test scores on the Basic English Skills Test indicate gains of 8 to 34 points, or 1 to 4 performance levels over the course of the program. The average gain was 17.3 points, or 2 performance levels. In the course of the program, many students became regular library users and developed the ability to and the habit of reading the newspaper each day. In class students oral ability improved, and students reported success and confidence in oral interaction with service providers, school personnel, health care professionals and other English speakers that students can now access without the aid of an interpreter.

1-2.5 The program assisted 6 learners (4 less than our goal of 10) in entering further educational programs --2 in local colleges, and 4 in more advanced level community learning programs. Additionally, the program assisted 6 individuals in successfully seeking employment. Two of these individuals had been out of work for over two years.

2. Comparison between proposed and actual expenditures by budget category.

1. Contracted educational services from the Proposed Expenditure & Encumbrance International Institute
   - $22,998
   - $22,906.71

2. Materials & Supplies
   a. Educational materials and supplies
      - $1,236
      - $1,211.68
   b. Library materials
      - $2,575
      - $2,674.51
   c. Classroom materials
      - $103
      - $169.10
   d. Workshop materials
      - $50
      - $50
   Total
      - $26,962
      - $26,962.00

3. The library contracted with International Institute to provide classroom instruction. Beginning in October 1992, two classes in English as a Second Language were held. Students were recruited through postings at the Library, through advertisements in the local media and through community word-of-mouth. One morning and one evening were set aside for registration, and an intermediate morning class and a beginner evening class, each with 18 students, were formed.

Each class met Monday through Thursday for two hours each day. After the first two weeks of class, all students were tested with the Basic English Skills Test to establish English literacy fluency. Over the course of the first two weeks, oral ability and areas of need were assessed.

In November the program suffered a severe setback when the teacher, a well-known and respected professional ESL teacher, lost her sight almost completely. For the next several weeks substitutes filled in for the teacher, while students hoped she would regain her sight. Finally, in January, when no improvement had been seen, a new teacher was hired.

From January through September a core group of 35-40 students attended classes faithfully. The morning class was an advanced beginner level class, while learners with lower proficiency in oral English and literacy attended the evening session.

In their classes learners practiced English grammar and usage, read selections about topics of relevance to their lives, wrote paragraphs, and learned how to access opportunities such as jobs, services, educational programs, etc. Students explored local and state government and visited the Rhode Island statehouse.

In June several students terminated their study to spend time with their families. At the same time, four students who had been looking for jobs found employment. The program could then take new students. Running through the summer was a real program asset, since most local programs operate on a school year calendar, resulting in very few summer learning opportunities for this community.

In September post-tests were given. A graduation ceremony was held in which learners received certificates of achievement. Fourteen of those who completed the program have since entered into another community ESL program.

4. The library purchased and circulated materials to assist the students and other patrons learn English. Selections were made based on discussions with the ESL teacher, former students and the needs of limited English speaking patrons. Other organizations in the community were informed about the library’s classes and ESL collection. Many of these organizations scheduled tours of the library’s ESL collection for their staff and referred students to the library’s program.

As the classes were always full and had a waiting list, the library staff helped the waiting list students select material to improve their English while they were waiting to enter a class. The demand for ESL classes in our area far exceeds what is available, but, when possible, the staff told patrons of other options for ESL education. The library staff recruited patrons for the program. They welcomed the students daily, made sure they were comfortable in their classroom setting and helped them with their informational needs.

A friendly rapport developed between the staff and the students. Many of the students had never used a library before. Some felt libraries were for the elite. Others were concerned that the government would know too much about them if they borrowed books from the library. As a result of the program, most of our students, their family and friends feel comfortable in borrowing books from the library and asking for help from the librarians.

5. No other organizations or agencies were directly involved with the project except to refer students or to share their concerns for the needs of the students.

6. No other sites were used for this project.

7. This program has helped the library in relating to the new immigrant community. Often when the librarians give tours to school children, they will tell them of a friend or a relative that attended ESL class at the library. This community now knows that the library is interested in their well being. They often come to us with other questions when they need help.
