This publication provides a model curriculum with a focus on welfare-to-work, school-to-work, and first-time employees. It emphasizes the basic competencies most valued by employers for the current and future domestic and global work force. Section 1 presents an overview of LifeWork, a performance-based transitional program that uses the participants' experiential learning and establishes connections and collaborations among participants, program staff, agencies, and businesses. Curriculum features are listed. Section 2 presents learning objective lists for these areas: environment, person, and job. A course presentation time list details anticipated presentation time for each learning objective. A list of learning objectives for a shorter (40-hour), more intensive course is provided. Section 3 provides supplementary materials: course portfolio and journal suggestions, group discussion questions, and learner log. The LifeWork course consists of three parts: "The Environment," "The Person," and "The Job." These LifeWork course parts are detailed in sections 4-11. Each section correlates learning objectives with suggested ideas, activities, and resources. Handouts provide information and student activities and exercises. Section 12 contains these assessment materials: course mastery checklist and learner and instructor self-assessments. Section 13 provides evaluation materials: midpoint course evaluation, LifeWork program evaluation, focus group evaluation, and instructor observation checklist. (YLB)

Developing the basic competencies most valued by employers

LifeWork Overview

LifeWork creates a model based on:

- presenting participants with skills and knowledge necessary for the current and future work force
- providing relevant, interactive, and interesting content and context for acquisition of the pre-employment skills
- utilizing the participant’s experiential learning
- performance-based outcomes
- transitioning program participants to technical training, internships, work, and beyond through initial job readiness training
- enhancing the professional, personal, and educational well being of both course participant and his/her family
- establishing connections and collaborations between participants, program staff, agencies, and businesses
LifeWork
Developing the basic competencies most valued by employers

Curriculum Features

- multi-level
- interactive and engaging
- reflective
- provides 1-3 objectives for each idea/competency
- allows for expansion
- measurable
- relevant context
- links to self, work, home, community
- modules can be presented independently
- handouts are listed in recommended presentation order
- self-paced
- can be done independently with monitoring
- for all age groups and gender
- no cultural bias
- graphics connect to theme/competency
- journal topic corresponds to each objective

Developing the basic competencies most valued by employers

40 Hour LifeWork Course

If time necessitates a shorter, more intensive course, the following 20 learning objectives are those most crucial to pre-employment skills training.

THE ENVIRONMENT

* To identify the necessary work force skills and their link to occupations
* To discuss learning and apply learning tips
* To become familiar with and acquire strategies for accessing company policies, procedures, and information
* To list ways to acclimate to a new work environment

THE PERSON

* To identify personal and professional strengths and preferences
* To formulate and understand linking of short and long term educational, professional, and personal goals
* To identify and discuss how learning styles function in the workplace
* To focus on maintaining a positive attitude for work and home
* To connect personal qualities and job success
* To study and demonstrate interview preparation, questions, and tips
* To identify the value of nutrition and health for self, work, and family
* To provide ideas and methods for identifying, avoiding, and handling stress

THE JOB

* To become acquainted with problem solving
* To know how to make carefully planned and effective work and personal decisions
* To know roles on teams
* To recognize characteristics of effective, collaborative team members
* To practice workplace writing
* To enhance reading strategies for the workplace
* To develop effective listening skills
* To develop effective speaking skills

LifeWork Course Portfolio

A folder of course materials should be kept by each learner that reflects work and progress. It will help the learner be more organized and responsible. The learner can draw from this to provide ideas and concrete evidence to potential employers.

What is it?

- a way to engage learners in meaningful tasks that evaluate learning over time
- a supportive collection approach which is done WITH and not to learners
- a method to evaluate the application of knowledge and information
- a snapshot of a learner’s best work
- a contextualized evaluation based on predetermined criteria

What are the contents?

- Writing samples
- Speaking activities
- Journals
- Learner self-reflection
- Customized tests
- Instructor observations and comments
- Educational needs and goals
- Interview materials
- Course activity sheets

What are the benefits?

- shows growth in learning
- builds confidence
- fosters individual responsibility for learning
- requires active and ongoing learner participation
- allows learner to receive a clear indication of progress and success
- develops higher level thinking skills
- supplies demonstrated evidence of skills
- engages learner in judging and analyzing his/her own performance
Keeping a Journal

Keeping a LifeWork journal will:

- help you connect and transfer class materials and ideas to self, work, and home
- offer a method for recording your thoughts and feelings
- promote the habit of writing
- allow you to keep track of what you are learning and your progress
- provide the opportunity for critical thinking about workplace topics and skills
- serve as a place of reference for questions, issues, and concerns to share in class and/or with peers
LifeWork Group Discussion Questions

Once a week during the LifeWork course take time to discuss the program. Form groups of 3-5 and answer the following questions.

- How is the class going?

- What is one difficulty in participating?

- What is one advantage in participating?

- What challenges seem most problematic?
  - personal
  - academic
  - job-related

- What is one issue or situation in which you would like the advice of your classmates?

- What is one piece of advice you could share with the group?
Learner Log

① One main thing I've learned

① One way I will use this on the job

① One question I want to have answered

① One idea I can use in my personal life

① One comment about the class

Changes in the Workplace

The traditional workplace was based on the strategy to build things as cheaply as possible. An assembly line in which workers functioned like a machine: lifting, attaching, but not thinking and acting on their own, was commonplace. Management did the thinking, gave the orders, and evaluated the end product.

The modern workplace is different. Today workers think for themselves, communicate their ideas to supervisors, make team decisions, and are responsible for self-monitoring and product accountability. Why these changes? Global competition, technological advances, economic forces, and customer service are among the reasons.

DISCUSSION

Where Do You See The Most Changes In Society Today?
Do You Think The Changes Affect You? How?
Which do you consider positive changes? negative changes?
PAST AND PRESENT: Mr. Potato Head

Objective: To demonstrate and observe the difference in the traditional and modern workplace

PART I Instructions:
1. Find/Purchase a Mr. Potato Head game.
2. Get 4 students to volunteer to participate in the activity. Three will act as workers and one will be a supervisor.
3. Explain the role play situation - for the 70's - to the 4 participants.
   Situation: It is an assembly line process where the workers do exactly what the supervisor says. The 3 workers provide no feedback, input, comments - they don't talk. A "Just Do It" situation. Each worker will sit in a straight row at a table and put 1-2 pieces on the potato head as told by the supervisor. The supervisor will be the only one talking. You want the supervisor to give one incorrect placement so that there is 1 mistake on the potato head at the end of the process. No comments allowed! The end product, Mr. Potato Head, will be used in the next role play.
4. Have the remainder of the students in the class take notes on key points they observe. Use the Mr. Potato Head Record Sheet.

This first part demonstrates how workers were reliant on supervisors for all actions, behavior, thinking; basically, everything. Input was not valued and workers were not required to think.

PART II Instructions:
1. Use the Mr. Potato Head(s) that were assembled in Part I.
2. Get 4 students to volunteer to participate in the activity. Three will act as workers and one will be a supervisor.
3. Explain the role play situation - for the 90's - to the 4 participants.
   Situation: The supervisor will conduct a department meeting and be asking questions and soliciting ideas. The topics will be: efficient production, work schedules, shift change problems, and training needs. The incorrect assembly of Mr. Potato Head will be discussed and proactive and reactive ideas and solutions investigated. The 3 workers will be very active in their participation with responses, ideas, and issues. A timeline developed and delegation and volunteering of tasks should be included in the situation.
4. Have the remainder of the students in the class take notes on key points they observe. Use the Mr. Potato Head Record Sheet.

This part should demonstrate how the present-day workers are being asked to provide input, share ideas, join in discussions, assist in the decision-making process, identify their own training needs, be responsible and self-monitoring for tasks.

Cultural Differences in the Workplace and Beyond

In today's workplace, you will encounter many different kinds of people on a daily basis. In the modern workplace, different is normal. There are many reasons why people are different. Biology and culture are two factors.

Biology determines our sex, color of skin, hair, and eyes.

Culture is how we view and practice life. We see it when we talk about ourselves and others. We demonstrate it when we act in various situations. We use it to interpret everyday events and how to behave at work and home.

Culture

Culture is reflected in mind style, experience, organizations, events, generation, gender, sexual orientation, profession, social class, religion, race, nation, region, neighborhood, and family.

Finish each phrase according to your cultural background:

Gender Society treats and teaches us differently according to our female or male status. A woman/man is taught today to ____________________________

Family. The family unit creates its own customs and rituals. At my house the holiday customs are to ____________________________

Age The particular generation in which grew up affords us unique experiences. One unique feature of my generation is ____________________________

Race The characteristics of a common genetic bond. My race is _______ and it has the following aspects: ____________________________

Organization Working together in a specific group, company, union, or club develops a unique or company culture. My organization is special because ____________________________

Share your responses with another classmate or as a group
Your Cultural Slice

Compare your cultural characteristics to section/slice of an orange. There are many sections that form one orange. Like an orange, each of us have many cultural sections combined to make our own cultural background. Each person’s cultural slice contributes, in his/her own special way, to make up today’s society.

Write on each section of the orange the things representative of you and your culture. Use ideas from the Cultural Differences in the Workplace and Beyond sheet.

Share your responses with another classmate or as a group
New Tasks For the New Workplace

What are some of the responsibilities that may be expected of you?

How many different hats will you have to wear?

At some point, you may be asked to do two, three, or even many of the below listed tasks for just one job position. The modern workplace no longer allows for just doing or being responsible for only one task. Look at the list of tasks and answer the two questions.

1. What are some interesting job task combinations you could perform?
2. What job(s) do you know that require multiple responsibilities?

- To recruit and hire employees
- To train employees and co-workers
- To order and purchase items
- To monitor quality
- To maintain records
- To generate ideas for new products
- To evaluate processes and people
- To supervise people in various roles
- To provide clerical support
- To substitute for people and positions
- To repair and maintain equipment
- To tutor co-workers
- To explain company benefits
- To write reports on routine basis
- To attend training sessions
- To track inventory and supplies
- To provide customer service

Redefining the Workplace

× new computers
× new equipment
× new foreign trade
× new work teams
× new cross-training
× new products

× new international standards
× new security procedures
× new employee self-regulation
× new problem solving expectations
× new diversity of workforce
× new management styles

How have these aspects changed the workplace?

Divide into groups of 3-4, choose two aspects from the above list, and answer the question so that you can report to the class. Think about progression of 5, 10, 15 years ago to the present day as you respond to this question. Draw from personal, academic, and/or work experiences to develop your best response.

15 YEARS AGO 10 YEARS AGO 5 YEARS AGO

2.
Reflection on Change

What personal and work experiences can you draw from that reflect change from 5-10 years ago?????? What are the reasons for the changes??????

Linking Occupations and Skills: Which Job is for Me?

The following activity gives you an opportunity to explore your perception of the skills needed in possible career options. In the list below are several different occupations with the largest job growth into the 21st century.

Select 2-3 occupations in which you might be interested or select your own personal choices. Write your selections in the boxes at the top of the chart. Next, write down the skills that you think are required in these positions. Discuss your ideas with a peer, teacher, colleague, friend, or counselor. If possible, find an employee in one of these occupations for discussion and/or information.

OCCUPATIONS WITH THE LARGEST JOB GROWTH: 1992-2005

- HOME HEALTH AIDES
- PHYSICAL THERAPISTS
- HUMAN SERVICES WORKERS
- PARALEGAL
- COMPUTER ENGINEERS
- TEACHERS
- SYSTEMS ANALYSTS
- CORRECTION OFFICERS
- MEDICAL ASSISTANTS
- CHILD CARE WORKERS
- PERSONAL AND HOME CARE AIDES
- INSURANCE ADJUSTERS, EXAMINERS

Punctuality: What Do You Think?

Questions for Discussion

1. What do you think about people who tend to be late to meetings or work?

2. How does tardiness impact you? an employer? the co-worker?

3. What actions do you think are unacceptable for tardiness?

4. What processes and/or approach should be taken or implemented to avoid tardiness?
THE SURVEY SAYS...

1. Have the students brainstorm and develop 2 questions for each of the topics: APPEARANCE, PUNCTUALITY, and ATTENDANCE

   - One question that they would like to ask an employer
   - One question that they would like to ask an employee

2. Have the students schedule a time to interview an employee and an employer/supervisor, during class time if possible, to pose their 6 questions and record responses.

3. Have the students work in groups of 2 if desired.

4. Have the students discuss their findings and make a chart showing the responses.

SHARING LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Spend a few minutes and complete the following questionnaire. After everyone in the class has completed his/her questionnaire, collect them all, mix up, and redistribute. Make sure no one receives back their own questionnaire. Find your questionnaire again by asking questions to others; when found, share experiences.

1. What was the last important thing you learned from your everyday experience?

2. What was the last important thing you learned from an educational experience?

3. What type of conditions help you learn best?

4. What is your greatest strength as a learner?

5. What is your greatest difficulty as a learner?

6. What one technique do you use to help others learn?

7. What technology have you used for learning? (TV, tapes, computers, videos)

The Learning Circle

Every situation you encounter or are involved in at work, home, or school impacts your learning. Everything has some element of learning. The process in which you stop and think about how you learn is called knowing how to learn. It is when you can generalize from particular learning instances. This process is cyclical, thus The Learning Circle, and is what you should apply to all learning to be the most successful learner.

As you learn, ask yourself the following questions:

1. Experience the Situation: What is going on?
2. Verbalize: What happened? How did you feel?
3. Synthesize: How does it all fit together? How was it significant?
4. Develop Meaning: What might I draw from this? How does this relate to other experiences?
5. Apply the New Knowledge: How am I going to use this learning? How does this apply to my world?
The Learning Circle

Experience the Situation ➔ Verbalize ➔ Synthesize ➔ Develop Meaning ➔ Apply the New Knowledge ➔

APPLICATION

Choose a situation and discuss how you went through the learning circle process. Did it work? Did it make a difference?

- Reading a travel brochure for a trip, vacation
- Planning a dinner
- Cooking with a new recipe
- Putting a toy together
- Watching a soccer, baseball, or football game

DISCUSSION

Why is knowing how to learn important in a work, personal, or academic environment?
Outcomes of Knowing How to Learn

Lifelong learning has become a necessity. Because learning itself involves skills, understanding, and processes that can be acquired, learned, and taught one can always know how to learn more effectively and efficiently at any age.

The person who understands knowing how to learn displays the following:

Learning Case Study

Your supervisor approaches you and requests that you start using a new piece of equipment that was purchased two weeks ago.

You’ve only spent 15 minutes with the supervisor discussing the equipment when it first arrived. You discussed how this would increase productivity for you and the company.

You have an equipment manual at the workstation, but are unsure how to use it, how to understand the technical vocabulary, or where to start. You wish you had more time with your supervisor.

Write your reaction to this situation. Include all your knowing how to learn and Learning Circle ideas. Describe your action steps.
Benefits: What Are They?

Companies, in addition to a salary, provide employee benefits. This is to attract workers and provide loyalty to the company.

5 Strategies for Accessing Information

As a professional employee, there are certain strategies that will help you successfully, and with minimum frustration, gain the information you are seeking. Whether you are a job seeker, a new hire, or a long-term employee, finding the right methods and approaches to gain information is essential. The information may range from inquiring about a company to dates for technical training. Try to always use these 5 strategies.

1. WHERE DO I GO? (exact location)
2. WHO DO I SPEAK TO? (accessing correct person)
3. WHEN DO I CONTACT THEM? (time and means mutually appropriate)
4. WHAT DO I ASK? (specific questions, ready and written)
5. HOW DO I SPEAK TO THEM? (professional and personal courtesy)

Why do you think these 5 strategies are necessary? What do you do when you try to find out specific information? Which of these do you think is the most difficult to perform?
Mission Possible: Gaining Information

ASSIGNMENT:

1. Brainstorm, as a group, a list of different types of necessary work information. This could be concerning benefits, company procedures, training schedules, vacation days, or any other work-related issue.

2. Divide into smaller groups of 2 or 3; decide on a topic to investigate.

3. Use the 5 Strategies for Accessing Information sheet as a guide. Record your answers on the sheet.

4. Contact a business and get the information you need.

5. Report back to the large group on your findings.

   ___ I can vary my work speed and structure
10. ___ I draw on only one main skill or talent
    ___ I draw on many skills and talents

DISCUSSION

- What did you discover about yourself and job preferences?
- What type of jobs exist for your preferences?
- Do you think the job you would prefer is immediately available or do you need to gain more skills? more education?
Your interests and features of your personality are very important to consider as you conduct your job search. It is important to know these two so you can choose a job in which you will be comfortable and do your best.

APPLICATION:
Draw pictures or write words that best illustrate or describe your job and personal interests, personality, and skills. Give your paper to a friend and have them look at your pictures and work. Both give advice on possible career choices.

Choose a saying on a routine basis to motivate, encourage, and light your way as you pursue your goals. Write it down, say it, and pass it along!

1. Say: “Every day, in every way, I am getting closer and closer!”
2. Always tell yourself that you can reach your goal -- no problem!
3. Have a goal and believe in it. Strong dreams always come true!
4. A day without laughter is a goal-less day!
5. Stimulate yourself and others to be happy and fulfilled!
6. The road to your goal may be winding, but travel on!
7. Aim high in hope, goals, and work!
8. Water what you want to grow!
9. Every day count one of your successes!

Why Do I Work?

There are numerous reasons for obtaining and maintaining a job. People have different needs that work can fill. Work plays a big role in our life and since we spend so much time at work, it is important that we understand why we work and we enjoy it. It may also be that we have to work at less favorable jobs as we pursue our career goals.

In all of our job changes and stages, it is highly advisable that you have a CAREER PLAN and VISION to organize and support your pursuits.

As you develop a Career Plan and Plan of Action, you will want to determine your reasons for working and what type of jobs and people assist in your goals.

CHECK THE 5 MOST IMPORTANT REASONS TO YOU FOR HAVING A JOB:

Working With Your Learning Style

In order to understand and maximize your learning potential, it is important to discover how you learn best and use this knowledge to work for you. You will be most successful at work, education, and home when you take responsibility for knowing your learning style and for choosing techniques that work best for you.

Usually, people have a preferred style, but we all use a combination of styles to help us learn and remember. Using all your styles (senses) helps you remember information more effectively. Identifying your styles and the styles of the people at work and home will make you interact more effectively and successfully.

1st: APPLICATION

a. Complete the self-assessment A Learning Style Inventory for the Workplace to discover your preferred learning style.
b. Review and discuss Characteristics of Sensory Preference Dimensions.

2nd: FOLLOW UP

a. Form groups and put together a simple object by using available scrap, discarded, or recycled materials. You may want to make a boat, a building, an animal, anything that is appropriate to the task.
b. The goal of the task is to observe everyone’s learning style as they are involved in the process of creating something. Discussion about the observed learning styles is held after the process is completed.

3rd: DISCUSSION

a. What was the group interaction like?
b. Were your group members able to effectively work together?
c. Did you find yourself combining the three styles as you worked?
A LEARNING STYLE INVENTORY FOR THE WORKPLACE

The ways in which our brains most successfully take in information are rooted in physical preferences. The three main sensory preferences are:

1. Auditory - learns best by listening and discussing
2. Visual - learns best by reading, examining, and seeing
3. Tactile/Kinesthetic - learns best by handling, touching, moving, doing, and experiencing

Everyone has sensory preferences. However, many people have a balance between two or three of the sensory modes. It is important for learners to know their preferences, so that they will know how to optimize their learning and interaction with others on the job and at home.

Directions: Think about how you receive and retain information in job and personal situations while you read each of the following statements. Then place a check mark (✓) in the box that most accurately describes how you learn.

1. When my supervisor gives me instruction, I usually remember more when:
   □ a. I listen closely
   □ b. I watch him speak
   □ c. I write it down

2. I usually solve problems at work by:
   □ a. Talking to myself or a co-worker
   □ b. Making a list or schedule
   □ c. Thinking while walking or pacing

3. When I can't write down an order number, I remember it by:
   □ a. Repeating the number aloud
   □ b. "Seeing" or "imagining" the number in my mind
   □ c. "Writing" the numbers with my finger on a table, wall, or in the air

4. I find it easiest to learn a new task on the job by:
   □ a. Listening to someone tell me how to do it
   □ b. Watching someone else do it
   □ c. Doing it myself
5. What I remember most from a training video is:

☐ a. What the people said to each other
☐ b. Where the training was and what it looked like
☐ c. How I felt when I watched the video

6. When I go to a department meeting, I:

☐ a. Need to repeat the information to myself
☐ b. Need to read the information
☐ c. Need to write the information down

7. When I need to remember job instructions, I:

☐ a. Listen carefully to the instructions as they are read
☐ b. Try to “see” the instructions in my mind
☐ c. Try to make my own diagram or summary of the instructions

8. I like to learn new things at work by:

☐ a. Listening to someone tell how it is done
☐ b. Reading about how it is done
☐ c. Seeing someone do it

9. If I am confused about what a word means, I:

☐ a. Listen to someone use it in a sentence
☐ b. Look it up in a dictionary
☐ c. Ask a co-worker or supervisor what it means

10. What I like to read is:

☐ a. Stories that have a lot of conversation
☐ b. Stories that have lots of descriptions of people, places and events
☐ c. Stories with a lot of action

11. I usually remember people I have met by their:

☐ a. Names
☐ b. Faces
☐ c. Actions and expressions

12. It is hard for me to concentrate at work when I:
☐ a. Hear many different noises
☐ b. See many people and a lot of activity
☐ c. Feel too hot or too cold

13. I like to find out the latest news at work by:

☐ a. Hearing it from my supervisor or a co-worker
☐ b. Reading a bulletin board or memo
☐ c. Walking around and checking it out myself

14. At work I like it best when I:

☐ a. Talk to my co-workers
☐ b. See different people
☐ c. Work with machinery, computers and office equipment

15. When I have to learn something for my job, I:

☐ a. Memorize the steps in the order I will do them
☐ b. Try to see how to do it in my mind
☐ c. Actually do the job

SCORING

Count the total number of answers you have for each letter and write them below

a. _____Auditory learner: learns best by listening and discussing

b. _____Visual learner: learns best by viewing, examining and reading

c. _____Tactile/Kinesthetic learner: learns best by handling, touching, moving, doing and experiencing.

Your highest total indicates your perceptual learning preference. Your next highest total indicates another strong preference, especially if the numbers are close.

STRATEGIES TO HELP YOU LEARN AND REMEMBER

For the auditory learner:

- Teach someone else what you have learned
- Summarize what you want to learn aloud or to someone else
- Quiz yourself out loud or ask someone else
- Try a solution to a problem verbally before doing it
- Ask your supervisor or co-worker to give you verbal explanations or directions
- Find a co-worker with whom you can discuss directions, explanations, instructions, etc.

For the visual learner:

- Take notes during meetings
- Write summaries in your own words of procedures, explanations, etc.
- Write down oral instructions
- Read directions silently instead of out loud to gain maximum understanding
- Highlight important details in written instructions, procedures, memos, etc.
- Make lists of things you need to remember to do
- Try to get a mental picture of what you are reading or listening about in a meeting to better retain this verbal information
- Ask supervisors or co-workers to provide models of successful procedures, completed products, and written work to better understand company expectations

For the tactile - kinesthetic learner:

- Manipulate or assemble objects, materials, or models
- Draw, underline, and highlight written instructions
- Make your own diagrams, charts, time lines, or summaries using your own words
- Break up your learning time into manageable time blocks, if possible
- Take short breaks to stretch and move around
- Tap a pencil, finger, or foot while you are trying to learn a new procedure

APPLICATION

Take one item for the auditory, one from the visual, one from the tactile and apply it to yourself, someone in the group, at work, or at home. Share your processes and products with the group.

Determining your Brain Dominance

For maximum learning and interaction in the workplace, it is important that you explore your how you learn best. Determining your left- and right- brain dominance will enhance your self-awareness and make you more capable of creating positive relationships in the workplace.

Understanding your brain dominance is a powerful tool. By integrating your learning styles and your left-, right-brain functions, you can:

- help increase your memory
- achieve a higher energy level
- have more motivation
- improve your concentration
- enhance positive relationships
- find more control over your life

a. Complete the Left/Right Brain Self-Assessment
b. Review the Characteristics of Analytic-Global Dimensions

DISCUSSION

a. What did you discover about yourself? anything new? surprises?
b. Describe one to two specific instances in which you demonstrated either a left or a right brain dominance.
Read the following left and right brain characteristics and circle the most appropriate answers, (the number). The scoring table at the end of the list will help you determine your “dominance.” You may find that you are fairly balanced between the two hemispheres.

1. I have no trouble making decisions about the correct thing to do.

2. I see problems or pictures as a whole rather than in parts or details.

3. I follow written directions best and prefer to write and talk.

4. I often think of many things at once rather than thinking through one idea at a time.

5. I’m usually aware of the time.

6. When I’m introduced to someone for the first time, I pay particular attention to the person’s face. I later forget the person’s name, but I remember his or her face.

7. I attack most problem-solving activities analytically and logically.

8. When comparing things, I usually look for ways they are alike rather than ways they are different.

9. I’d rather take a true/false, multiple-choice, or matching test than an essay test.

10. Most often, I use my imagination and I think in an abstract manner.

11. If I have a problem, I break it down into smaller, more manageable parts in order to arrive at a solution.

12. I seem to learn best if I can observe a demonstration or read the directions.

13. Generally, I like to be in control of a situation and I do not like to take too many risks.

14. I like assignments that are open-ended rather than more structured assignments.

15. I learn best by seeing and hearing.

16. I learn best by touching or doing.

18. If I try to remember information, I generally picture it in my mind.

Adapted from Learning to Learn, copyright 1990 by Incentive Publications, Inc. Nashville, TN.
19. Although I sometimes get upset, I am a rational person.

20. I don't mind trying anything once; I take risks when it is necessary.

21. Sometimes I talk to myself in order to think or learn something.

22. I can let my feelings "go". I am considered to be somewhat emotional.

23. I solve problems on an intellectual basis rather than an intuitive one.

24. People have told me that I'm creative.

25. I prefer to think of one thing at a time.

26. I like to act in a spontaneous manner.

27. I prefer to plan things and know what's going to happen ahead of time.

28. I can easily remember melodies and tunes.

29. I am usually in control of my feelings.

30. I do well in geometry and geography.

31. I usually can recall information I need quickly and easily.

32. I enjoy reading and writing poetry; it comes to me easily.

33. I can really concentrate when I want to.

34. When I work in a group, I can "feel" the moods of others.

35. I understand mathematical concepts.

36. When solving problems or taking tests, I rely on one idea leading to another in order to come to a conclusion.

37. I can learn new vocabulary words easily.

38. When I plan a party, I "hang loose" rather than plan all of the details.

39. I usually can learn easily from any teacher.

40. In class I'm generally aware of what everyone is doing.

Adapted from Learning to Learn, copyright 1990 by Incentive Publications, Inc. Nashville, TN.
41. I notice and remember details.

42. I can easily see the whole picture when only a few puzzle pieces are in place.

43. I don't mind practicing something repeatedly in order to master it.

44. I communicate best with someone "in person" rather than on the phone.

45. I can remember jokes and punch lines.

46. I have trouble concentrating when I know I should.

47. I can write directions in a clear and logical manner.

48. I sometimes rely on my intuition when making decisions.

49. I basically have a day-to-day routine.

50. I sometimes can remember things according to where I "saw" them on the page.

Targeting Qualities Most Important to Employers

Today's business executives indicate that the following personal characteristics are most important. Are you on target?

- dependable
- positive attitude
- honesty
- good listener
- problem solver
- high energy
- effective communication skills
- team player
- sound decision maker
- hardworking
- open to suggestions and feedback
- confident
- willing to learn new skills
- neat appearance
- respectful and considerate
- ability to follow through
- accurate and responsible

FOLLOW UP:
Work in groups of 3-4. Choose five of the words/phrases from the list. Define the word/phrase by using it in a specific work or personal context. Write the definitions on index cards. Be as detailed as you can in order to convey the meaning of the word. Share the cards with the other groups.
Create a personal profile of your personal and professional skills and qualities. Vertically place the letters of your name on an index card or on this piece of paper. For each letter of your name write a skill or quality you have previously identified as one you possess. Place the skill/quality beside the letter; for example: E enthusiastic. When you finish with your name, both first and last, you will have a list of qualities that you can keep in your Career Portfolio and use at interviews and on the job.
The Resume: Your Written Reflection

Your resume is a brief, but vivid picture of yourself. Its purpose is to interest the employer enough to call you for an interview. It’s your way to get your foot in the door. The content and format varies according to personal preferences, but generally all resumes contain the following categories.

Use this worksheet to record all your information as you create your resume or in updating your resume.

A. Personal Data provides name, address, phone number, e-mail.

B. Job Objective explains in one sentence the type of job, professional field, or organization you are seeking.

C. Work Experience details positions you’ve held, names of employers, specific duties, and dates for each position.

D. Education lists all schools attended, formal and informal course work, degrees, certificates.

E. Summary of Qualifications describes your qualities, skills, and abilities relevant to work.
How an Employer Looks at a Resume

DO MAKE SURE YOUR RESUME HAS:

- Current address and phone number
- Clear, concise writing
- Correct grammar and spelling
- Strengths supported with examples
- Format that is easy to read
- One to two pages in length
- Brief, detailed objective
- Listing of jobs, volunteer experiences, achievements
- Information listed in chronological order, present day first

DO MAKE SURE YOUR RESUME DOES NOT HAVE:

- Misspelled words and poor grammar
- Several different typefaces or fonts
- Rounded off dates
- Ink or white-out corrections
- Vague educational information
- Missing descriptions of work experience
- Irrelevant information

FOLLOW UP: How does your resume look? How would you rate it?
Being prepared for an interview is critical. There are tasks to complete at three main stages while going through this process. The before, during, and after are critical components and all need equal attention. Always be organized and ready. Complete the following form for each interview.

|----------------------|---|
| Things to do as Preparation |
| During the Interview |
|----------------------|---|
| Things to Say, Ways to Act |

INTERVIEW EXPECTATIONS

Be prepared to be asked about by the employer:

- Work History
- Job-related Skills
- Employment Goals
- Job Training
- Interest Level in Job
- Communication Skills

Be prepared to shine in the following areas:

- Appearance
- Courtesy
- Opening remarks
- Attitude
- Honesty
- Closing Questions

FOLLOW UP

1. List and discuss ways to: (a) demonstrate how you can shine and (b) be prepared with appropriate responses for the interview categories.

2. Role Play interviews; include the two above sections. Video tape, if possible.
Tips for Sailing Through Your Interview

Tip #1: Do your homework!
- Learn about the company
- Study the job description

Tip #2: Draw from your personal inventory!
- Review skills, talents, and achievements
- Concentrate on examples and strengths

Tip #3: Be prepared!
- Anticipate commonly asked questions
- Don’t ramble
- Expect a diversity in questioning

Tip #4: Avoid negative comments!
- Respond on a positive note
- Control body language and facial expressions
- Repress negative comments about past jobs

Tip #5: Dress appropriately!
- Be professional in appearance
- Avoid poor or indifferent personal grooming

DISCUSSION

- What Tips can you give?
- Practice these tips with a partner or in the group. Play both following and not following the tips to see the differences. Can you tell?
Questions to Expect

Below you will find a sample of the most commonly asked interview questions. You can expect to respond to at least five to seven open-ended questions of this type in the course of an interview.

- What can you tell me about yourself?
- What made you decide on this particular career?
- How does your experience relate to this job?
- What one or two accomplishments in your life have given you the most satisfaction and why?
- Tell me what you feel are your greatest strengths. Name one weakness.
- How has your education prepared you for this job?
- What are you looking for in this job?
- How do you think a friend or co-worker would describe you?
- What personal goals have you set for yourself? Both short and long term.
- How can you contribute to this company?

FOLLOW UP:
How well can you respond? Practice responses with a friend, teacher, family member, tutor, or other supportive person.
Questions to Ask

Always remember: An interview is an exchange of information. You should ask questions as well. This is your opportunity to get information that will help you make a decision about the job and exhibit your skills and qualifications. Try to ask two to three questions at the end of the interview. Use these below.

- How would you describe the duties of this job?
- How would you describe your company’s management style?
- How are employees evaluated?
- Does the company offer training for this type of job?
- Is there a tuition reimbursement plan?
- Are there opportunities for promotion?
- What are the company’s plans for future growth and development?

WORD BANK

| polite   | title  | introduce | return |
| name    | purpose | number    | professional |
| before  | greet   | time      | Dr.     |
| inform  | Mrs.    | correct   |         |

Practice making a few business calls using this guide. Does it make a difference in obtaining the information you’re seeking?
Telephone Inquires

Your first step in finding a job often starts with a telephone conversation.

It may mean that you have to provide initial information about yourself over the phone before you are chosen as a potential job candidate.

It may mean that you have a phone conversation to set up an interview.

In either case, you should be prepared by having a telephone script and your resume or skills by your side for quick reference. Use the script below.

---

Telephone Script

Write the actual words or phrases you would say in your telephone conversations.

Introduction:

Purpose of call:

Questions to ask:

Information received:

Next step:
Dealing With the Public

When dealing with the public, try to keep the following in mind:

- Always be pleasant and smile (even to yourself!)
- Try to use the person's name or title
- Relay a sincere interest in the person's needs
- Be as prompt and courteous in service as possible
- Answer the customer's questions
- Display patience and be a good listener
- Find someone else to help if you can't
- Don't argue or become rude
- End the conversation with a Thank You and appreciation

DISCUSSION

What phone conversations have been really pleasant? really disappointing?
Planning A Budget

What is a budget? A plan for managing your money, a way of keeping track of the money you get, and the money you spend.

A budget shows how you are spending your $ and tells you whether you are following your plan to meet your goals.

To make a budget, list the following:

1. income (money you have every month that is stable, you can count on)

2. expenses (all the things you spend $ on)

3. list things you really want (your goals)
   a.
   b.
   c.

NOW YOU'RE READY TO CREATE YOUR BUDGET!!

Tips for keeping track of your expenses:

1. Write down your expenses every day.
2. If you have cash, write what you spend on the back of the receipt or in a small notebook.
3. Keep all receipts in your billfold or purse so you can remind yourself what you bought when recording at the end of the day.
4. Consult your budget and goals BEFORE you go shopping.

To have a healthy diet and good nutrition for you and your family, follow this guide. This food guide pyramid is provided by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. Eat the necessary types of foods and required servings you need each day to stay healthy and happy.

What recipes and foods do you know or have that provide the required servings for the food groups?

What foods can you take to work to meet these groups?
You Are What You Eat!

The types of foods you eat affect the way you feel and act. A balanced diet is necessary for the development and maintenance of a healthy body and mind. Eating good food, the required servings, and balanced meals make a difference!

Record what you eat for a week to see your patterns and make necessary changes.

DISCUSSION

How Do You Feel After This Week?

Did You Eat Any New Foods?

Was It Easy or Hard To Find Foods In Each Group?
A Healthy Start: Exercise

Regular physical activity can help you feel better, sleep better, and perform better at work and at home. It's not important what type of physical activity or exercise you do. It is important, however, that you develop and maintain a daily and/or weekly routine and heightened awareness of being active and exercising.

Exercise is one half of being healthy. Good nutrition is the other half. A good, even balance is essential to mind and body.

Recommendations:

- Choose a physical activity that's convenient and one that you enjoy
- Start slowly and increase time as you build endurance (to 20 min. per day)
- Avoid excuses for not exercising and not being healthy
- Acknowledge that it is time consuming, but worthwhile
- Make a constant effort to walk vs. riding, eating healthy when given options
- Reward yourself on a daily and long-term basis
- Identify exercise and physical activity as a regular, continuous lifestyle

Benefits:

- Your mind will be more alert
- Your emotional reactions will be more balanced
- Your energy level will be higher
- Your stamina will be greater
- Your stress will be more easily handled

DISCUSSION

How can we support each other in promoting a healthy exercise and nutrition plan?
What were some of the types of physical activity you checked?

How does it make you feel?

Do you prefer individual or team sports/exercise?

What physical activities have you never done and would like to try?

How do you motivate yourself?
Coping Strategies

Stress is a physical and psychological condition experienced whenever demands are placed on an individual to adapt or change. Everyone experiences stress to some degree. It is not limited to any one group, age, or geographical area.

Our level of stress is measured by how we view a situation. The same event or situation may be stressful for one person, but not another.

The key is to learn to anticipate and cope with stressful situations.

COMMON SOURCES OF STRESS
- frustration
- conflict
- overload
- life events
- pressure
- daily hassle

COPING STRATEGIES
- Direct Action: attacking the problem head on
- Mind Control: changing viewpoints and attempting to see situations in more positive and optimistic ways
- Personal Support: asking for help from at least 1 person
- Physical condition: eating and sleeping properly
- Relaxation: finding methods to be calm and relaxed on a routine basis
- Predicting: meeting the problems and challenges to eliminate stress
- Incentives: developing rewards for troubled periods

DISCUSSION

WHICH OF THE FOLLOWING STRATEGIES WOULD BE MOST HELPFUL TO YOU IN STRESSFUL SITUATIONS?
Stressful Situations

A. Describe a situation that is currently stressful for you.

B. Describe how the situation has affected your:
   - physical health
   - feelings
   - thoughts
   - actions

C. How have you been coping up to this point?

D. Have the coping strategies been working for you?

E. What do you want to happen in this situation?

A. Divide into pairs. Look through a city newspaper for a current social, political, or economic article.

B. Find a news article relating to one of the categories from the Coping Strategies sheet that indicate stress. It may be a subjective call. Read between lines.

C. Discuss as a large group what type of articles were found and what the related stress is in the situation.

D. What coping strategies could you suggest for the situations?
Stressful Words

Why might these words cause stress?

Do these words cause you high, medium, or low significance of stress?
- Circle (〇) the high stress words
- Check (✓) the medium stress words
- Mark (×) the low stress words

Share your responses and discuss ways to reduce stress in relation to these words.

- fear
- rejection
- parents
- anxiety
- grades
- failure
- love
- sports
- peer pressure
- moving
- death
- expectations
- money
- choices
- change
- gossip
- fighting
- hate
- illness
- work
- friends
- conflict
- clothes
- eating
Celebrate with Stress Reduc-ers

What are some ways to eliminate stress and give yourself special incentives, gifts, or rewards?

What do you do for yourself?

What can you add to the list?

Sing a song

Take a Bubble Bath

Write a poem

Read a book

Visit a neighbor or

Check out a movie classic video from the library

Write a nice note to a friend

Time Management Tips

Managing your time is often compared to managing your money:

1. First, you should determine how to spend your time.
2. Second, you should determine on what to spend your time.
3. Third, you should focus on making and following plans for your time.

Tips ~~~ Which Work for You?

- Determine goals and identify what needs to get done
- Figure out priorities
- Set a realistic time period
- Don’t put off the important tasks
- Make a schedule
- Keep a daily “To Do” list
- Write down important items to remember in always the same spot
- Have a quiet time each day to plan next day’s activities
- Reward yourself when task is finished by doing something you enjoy

- Where do you record your tasks? In a notebook, planner, what????

JOB -- PAGE 1
Initial Assessment: What is Problem Solving?

What is your opinion? Write yes or no in the blank according to your thoughts and opinions.

1. All people have problems sometime in their life. _____
2. Determining blame is one step in the problem solving process. _____
3. Asking open-ended questions helps solve the problem. _____
4. It’s beneficial to solve other people’s problems. _____
5. Problem solving is a skill anyone can learn. _____
6. It’s best to first define the problem before taking action. _____
7. Problem solving involves making choices. _____
8. You solve work and personal problems with the same process. _____
9. Problems should be viewed as learning opportunities. _____
10. You feel stress if you can’t solve a problem. _____

What is a problem?

How do you define the word “problem”?

My Best Responses -- What is the problem solving process?
List what you think might be a step by step approach to problem solving.

115
DO YOU HAVE A PROBLEM?

A problem is a situation not easily solved. Problems are normal. In a problem you are not sure how to get from point A to point B. In problems there are gaps, obstacles, and barriers preventing easy resolution.

POINT A

where you are

GAP

where you want to be

POINT B

The sides are usually balanced between the two situations and this is what makes the problem remain and persist until it can be resolved. You have a virtual tug-of-war.

Reality ➔ Gap ➔ Ideal Barrier
Obstacle

Two opposing forces meet at the gap. Which wins? How do you solve the problem?

You want a new dress➔ Gap ➔ You want to save money
You want to go back to school➔ Barrier ➔ You have no child care
You have to work with Jane➔ Obstacle ➔ You dislike Jane

APPLICATION

1st: Determine if the following are problems
2nd: Define the problem (what is the gap, barrier, obstacle to overcome?)

a. You want to attend a computer class, but don’t have transportation.
b. You want to take a math course, but it is scheduled during your work time.
c. You want a job as a teacher, but you are afraid you don’t have adequate skills.
d. You have been assigned a task, but you don’t have time to do it.
e. Your neighbor borrows things and doesn’t return them.
Ten Steps to Problem Solving

1. Recognize that there is a problem needing a solution.
   DO WE HAVE A PROBLEM?

2. Decide whether it is a personal, practical, communication problem.
   WHAT KIND IS IT?

3. Develop a clear, non-judgmental statement of the problem.
   WHAT IS THE ISSUE?

4. Identify the primary source of the problem.
   HOW LONG? WHO'S INVOLVED? WHERE?

5. Limit the scope of the problem and solution. Be specific.
   WHAT EXACTLY NEEDS TO BE ACCOMPLISHED?

6. Brainstorm a list of solutions.
   WHAT DO YOU THINK?

7. Discuss the most appropriate options.
   WHICH ARE BEST? WHY?

8. Evaluate the options.
   WHAT WILL HAPPEN IF I CHOOSE THIS OPTION?

9. Choose a solution.
   IS THIS THE BEST OPTION?

10. Apply the solution.
    WHAT IS THE ACTION PLAN?

APPLY STEPS 1-10 TO A RECENT PERSONAL, WORK, OR EDUCATIONAL PROBLEM. WHAT WERE THE RESULTS?
Problems, Problems, Problems!!!

Problem #1
Your neighbor asked you to watch her two children for an hour while she went to the grocery store. She came back three hours later. You were mad because this wasn’t the first time she did this to you. She was delayed because her car broke down and she had to wait for someone to come and repair it.

Write two open-ended questions you will ask your neighbor:

Why is this situation a problem and who is involved?

Problem #2
You offer a friend a ride to work, and she/he is not ready on time. You always wait for her/him, even though it makes you late.

List two options for solving this problem:

1.
2.

Problem #3
A co-worker asks you on a regular basis to watch his/her work station so that he/she can make a phone call to check on the children at the day care.

Define the problem:

Write about a problem that you have thought about in the past week:
Check Your Problem Solving

Choose one of the two listed problems and (1) list how you would have handled the problem in the past and now (2) list the action for this problem as you take it through the ten step process.

PROBLEM #1 -- Two people at work want the same vacation period, but only one person can be gone from the department at a time.

PROBLEM #2 -- You need help at work, but are afraid to let your supervisor know. If you ask the co-workers, they may give you a hard time.

How you would have handled the problem in the past:

The "ing" of Teaming

As businesses move from the traditional to modern workplace style, inclusion and expansion of teams is rapidly increasing. Knowledge of teams, learning the necessary team skills, and positive attitude is essential to job success.

There are four stages of team development as described below:

Shaping -- formation of the team

- Pleasant and courteous behavior exists
- Attempts to consider others' feelings is paramount
- Goals are established

Clashing -- appearance of conflicts within the team

- Comfort levels increase and pleasantries decrease
- Questions of attendance, tasks, and purpose brought forth
- Differences in personality are very apparent
- Team leader facilitates resolution and emphasizes team effort

Respecting -- development of effective team member skills

- Acknowledgment of each member's contribution
- Trust is established
- Clear understanding of team roles and process
- Participation is more open and effective

Achieving -- performance as a team

- Effective problem and task solving
- Cooperation is natural and successful
- Individual and group abilities and talents recognized

DISCUSSION

- Which stage do you think is most commonly difficult for people?
- What are the professional and personal benefits for teaming?

Team Contributions

When working on a team or in a group, there are two main groupings of roles that are quite evident. Both are essential to strong, successful teaming. Team members become effective when they model a variety of roles and keep them in mind while working on a team task. The two groups are as follows:

Task Roles

Functions needed to carry out task and accomplish objectives and goal

1. To initiate interaction: getting the team started, offering solutions, suggesting new direction for the task, providing new ideas, giving reorganizing ideas, keeping the task alive

2. To provide information: offering facts, connecting personal experiences to similar situations, stating opinion, giving beliefs and values

3. To solicit information: asking for input, looking for additional information, seeking clarification, investigating feelings concerning the task

4. To monitor the task: keeping team members focused on the work, determining sources of difficulty

5. To expand and clarify ideas: asking for and providing clarification of existing ideas, visualizing the implementation, judging the ideas and/or task for effectiveness, giving examples

6. To bring closure of task: showing relationships among ideas, information, and recommendations, providing links, narrowing task focus, pulling activities together

7. To summarize ideas and process: reviewing process, paraphrasing ideas and information, restating major points and plans

8. To reach consensus or outcome: deciding if team can now make a decision about the task, agreeing of plan of action

1998 M.K.Gee - Life Work - for Gads Hill Center
Relationship Roles
Functions needed to create, strengthen, and maintain the group as a team

1. To encourage people and ideas: being friendly, displaying courteous behavior, offering praise and support

2. To ease tension: relieving tensions when they arise, settling differences, introducing humor

3. To facilitate the process: involving all members, balancing equal input and feedback from each member, drawing out the reticent/quiet member

4. To follow the group: going along with the majority on ideas and processes, being comfortable and positive with decisions, roles, and people, being receptive to others, being an active listener when appropriate

THE TEAM LINE UP
1. Place a strip of tape or paper, 15-18 inches wide x 4 feet, on the floor. The length will depend on number of participants and the narrower the width, the better. The key is NOT to allow for extra space.
2. Have everyone stand on the tape/paper. Give no special instructions at this time.
3. Tell everyone to arrange themselves on the strip in order of their birth date. Oldest to youngest; left end is oldest and right end is youngest.
4. State that they can NOT step off the strip of paper/tape in the process or else they will have to start all over each time.
5. Set a time limit of 5-10 minutes for rearranging themselves.
6. Tell them to think of the problem solving and team process as they interact and complete the task. Start the clock!

DISCUSSION: ◆What specific strategies did you use to accomplish the task?
◆What was difficult?
◆What roles did you find yourself taking?
Non-Functional Team Roles

From time to time people have a tendency to behave in ways that are counterproductive to team effort. The displayed behavior focuses more on individual rather than the group needs. It can harm the group and deter accomplishment of the assigned task. Listed below are some common behaviors.

1. Blaming others and showing hostility
2. Relating irrelevant personal experiences
3. Arguing too much on an idea or issue
4. Criticizing and devaluing individual and group efforts
5. Monopolizing the conversations and input
6. Refusing to contribute
7. Pleading for support to back personal/professional interests
8. Telling jokes and disrupting the team’s work
9. Calling attention to yourself for recognition and ego-boosting
10. Acting indifferent and daydreaming

DISCUSSION

How can a team handle an individual or individuals who exhibit these behaviors?
Divide into groups of 4 to 5.

List all the markings you can think of that are on a dime.

Do not look at a dime during this process.

Come back together as a large group and compare lists.

DISCUSSION

What does this exercise tell you about the value of a team?

Is it important as a team to look at details?
My Team in the Desert

This is an exercise in applying the information from the Team Contributions sheet. You should make sure each of the roles are demonstrated throughout the task. The task is to come to consensus as a team on answering the two questions below.

Questions to Answer

1. How will you survive?

2. What will you need to survive?

Scenario

Your mini-van has broken down as you travel through the Painted Desert to visit the Grand Canyon. Your group of 5 is spending its free day from the company conference you are attending in Arizona. You are now stranded and find the following items in the van:

1. 2 books of matches
2. a box of cookies
3. a road map
4. first-aid kit
5. road emergency kit
6. car tool kit
7. 1 bag of potato chips
8. 1 blanket
9. 3-2 liter bottles; 1 soda, 1 water, 1 empty
10. 2 packages of chewing gum

DISCUSSION

Steps for Resolving Conflict

When conflicts, problems, issues arise at work or at home, try using these steps:

1. Determine a mutually appropriate time and place for meeting.

2. Act positively and professionally.

3. Define the issue(s). Just the facts.

4. Identify how each involved party contributes to the problem.

5. Be patient and listen.

6. State to-date attempts for resolution (successful and unsuccessful).

7. Brainstorm all possible solutions.

8. Discuss and assess the possible solutions.
9. Agree on one solution for initial action.

10. Establish roles and activities for working on solution.

11. Set up timeline for meetings to track progress and effectiveness.

12. Recognize efforts and provide verbal support as each involved party works on resolving the conflict.

APPLICATION

Read the descriptions and decide what you would do to address the situations.

Percy is having repeated trouble with being tardy and absent from work. When he does show up he is a good worker. However, whenever questioned by a co-worker or supervisor, he just shrugs and says that he has a lot going on in his life right now.

Judy has been doing an outstanding job at work and in training. On the other hand, Olivia has been struggling throughout her training and secretly fears she might not be kept on at work. Olivia appears to resent Judy's good performance and Judy is constantly telling everyone of Olivia's troubles.
Don't Take Offense: It’s a Good Thing!
Positive Ways to Change Office Behavior

When interacting with people and behaviors that impede effective communication, try following these guidelines:

1. Start with honest appreciation and positive reinforcement.
2. Call attention to the error, shortcoming, or work not done in an indirect way by using the word “I” and not a direct “you”. For example: “I don’t seem to have the paper that was due” instead of, “You didn’t turn it in on time!”
3. Include your own shortcomings as you discuss the situation.
5. Let the other person maintain self-esteem and confidence. Don’t embarrass.
6. Acknowledge and support the slightest improvement at every stage.
7. Encourage! Encourage! Don’t make the correction or work seem overwhelming to correct.
8. Motivate the other person to feel like the upcoming tasks or changes will be positive challenges.
9. Present the situation as an opportunity for professional growth.

Advantages To Using A Computer For Writing

- Your writing can be easily changed.
- Your writing can be easily adjusted to a wide variety of formats (the way the page is set up) and fonts (the different ways the letters look on the page).
- Your writing can be easily enhanced with bold, italics, boxes, pictures, charts.
- Your writing can be easily checked and corrected for spelling and grammar.
- Your writing can be easily stored for future reference in two different locations: on a disk and inside the computer.

DISCUSSION

Have you ever felt like this?
Write 2-3 sentences for the following situations. Be clear and concise as this is what is expected in the workplace.

Exchange with a partner for comments and positive criticism. Revise together or individually. Share with the large group.

- You are leaving work early. Tell why.

- You want to schedule a vacation. Give dates.

- You report a work incident. Include specifics.

- You have a doctor’s appointment. Explain.

- You don’t understand health benefits. Make an appointment.

- A piece of equipment is broken. Report it.
Workplace Writing Expectations: What Are They?

Interview someone from a company to answer the following questions. You may want to ask different people in different positions within one company. As an alternative, you could also invite two to three individuals into the class.

This information will give a general idea of how writing is done at work.

1. How is writing done? (by hand, computer, in a group...?)

2. How often is it required? (daily, monthly, reports...?)

3. What are the supervisor's expectations? (is it a high priority...?)

4. What are the writing expectations regarding mechanics? (correct spelling, structure, grammar, legible...?)

5. How is the overall performance of the writing abilities within the company? (good, bad, need work...?)

6. Is writing ability a part of the performance review?

FOLLOW UP

Share findings with the large group. Chart the responses to identify averages and opinions.

Writing About Work Experiences

Write 1-2 sentences describing your past and/or present work experiences. If you don’t currently have these experiences, write about a volunteer experience (short or long term) or a personal experience.

The main purpose is to write about what you did in clear, natural, concise sentences.

WORK EXPERIENCE

VOLUNTEER EXPERIENCE

PERSONAL EXPERIENCE

Keep this in your Career Portfolio so you will have it in your job pursuit.

FOLLOW UP

Share with a partner, small group, or class you most enjoyable experience from the above work. Why was it so enjoyable? How could relate these experiences to a potential employer?
Writing with Post-It Notes

Take Five 4 x 4 post-it notes. Create a clear and natural sentence for each of the following word groups listed below. Write each sentence on a separate post-it note and stick to this sheet of paper when finished. Put the words and phrases in any appropriate order.

Limiting your space will help you avoid lengthy, confusing sentences.

1. pick up/ daycare/ children

2. dinner/ guests/ groceries

3. stress/ movie/ weekend

4. clean up/ broken/ water

5. work/ early/ overtime

FOLLOW UP

Share your sentences with a partner and have him/her answer the following three questions:

Which sentence is the best?

Which sentence needs improvement?

What suggestions could you make to the writer?
Practicing with Forms

When filling out medical, work, and personal forms and applications, try to follow these guidelines. It will help in making a good impression.

1. Read the application or form carefully and completely before filling out anything.

2. Print in black ink, or type with no white correction ink, or word process in a 12 pt. font. Do it neatly!

3. Fill in all spaces and blanks. If the information or question does not apply to you, it is best to put NA (not applicable).

4. Avoid abbreviations; spell out everything in full.

5. Proofread the application or form. Have a friend or co-worker read it also.

6. Make an extra copy for your files.

APPLICATION

A. Get a sample form or application for each of the 3 categories:
   Job Application
   Medical Insurance form
   College Application form

B. Fill out the form individually or with a partner.

C. After completion, fill out the following:

1. 1 thing you learned about yourself

2. 1 thing you found difficult to fill in

3. 1 suggestion to help others fill out the form or application
Helpful Reading Strategies

- Previewing - Before you start reading, find out something about what you will read. Then you can start thinking about the topic. You will be able to read faster and with more understanding.

- Asking Questions as You Read - This keeps your mind on what you read. Questioning also helps you pay attention and remember.

- Guessing What New Words Mean - Don't look up every new word or you will forget what you are reading. Use the whole sentence or paragraph to guess words.

- Finding the Main Idea - To find the main idea, ask yourself two things: (a) what is this about? and (b) what does the writer want to say about this?

- Understanding Structures and Patterns - Structure and patterns are way of putting ideas together. If you can discover these, you will be able to understand and remember more.

- Using Signal Words - Some words are like signs on a highway. They tell you where the author is headed. Signal words help you follow the author’s ideas and guess what you will read about.

FOLLOW UP: Read one article from the Chicago Tribune, apply the above strategies. Report to your group which of the strategies was most helpful.
When Reading is Difficult

1. Reread the difficult section or material.

2. Change surroundings.

3. Listen to soft, quiet music, if possible.

4. Visualize the information, create concrete images.

5. Build and comprehend one sentence/paragraph at a time.

6. Read aloud.

7. Discuss the material with a friend or family member.

8. Set aside the reading and return to it later- do return!

9. Find a tutor.

Communication Skills Overview

Is communication important to the following people? Why or why not?

Yes? No?

Answer the following questions:

1. How do you define communication? What all does it include?

2. What qualities does a good communicator possess?

3. List 3-4 jobs that require the ability to communicate as a primary skill.

4. What does “lack of communication” really mean?
Active Listening Tips

1. Prepare your mind and intend to listen.
2. Focus on conversation content -- what are they saying?
3. Silently clarify what is being said.
4. Keep your mind alert -- take notes mentally and/or orally.
5. Avoid distractions.
6. Engage yourself -- be thinking of examples as you listen.
7. Pay special attention to introductory and concluding remarks.
8. Identify commonly used cues such as tone, body, speed.
9. Organize thoughts while listening.
10. Connect concepts and main ideas to details.
11. Summarize what you have heard.

Work with a partner and discuss two popular social, political, or economic issues. Take turns and follow the listening tips. Record what works well and what you need to work on now.
Common Reasons for Not Listening

How good of a listener are you?

Check the reasons for not listening that apply to you.

Scoring:

a. If you have just 2 or 3 check marks in the first column, you tend to be usually open-minded about listening.
b. If you have most of your check marks in the Now and Then column, that is not too bad. We all have slips from time to time.
c. If you have a lot of check marks in the last column, you need to work on your listening. Try to be a more receptive listener.

DISCUSSION:
What did you find out about yourself? What one item needs work?
Eight Communication Suggestions

1. Keep it simple: sentence structure, vocabulary, instructions

2. Speak clearly: clear tone, confident voice, normal speed

3. Use effective questioning: begin with yes/no and progress to "wh" (who, what, why, where, when); be specific and inclusive

4. Present appropriate information: sequentially, in small chunks

5. Provide feedback: positive, constructive, check for comprehension

6. Demonstrate good listening skills: active, not passive

7. Be patient: repeat, use body language, make it visual

8. Walk in his/her shoes: language, education, attitudes, values

Discussion

Describe in detail when you have used one or more of the suggestions.
Communicating with Body Language

Are these examples of positive or negative body language? What do they communicate in the work environment?

1. Making eye contact:

2. Yawning

3. Smiling:

4. Appropriate Dress:

5. Nodding

6. Posture:

7. Pointing:

8. Frowning:

9. Tapping Pencil

10. Daydreaming:
COMMUNICATING ON THE JOB

Employers state that communicating effectively and working well with supervisors and co-workers are major factors in job success. You will be using your communication skills in the following role play situations.

Instructions: In teams of two, one person will be the new employee and the other person will be the supervisor or co-worker.

JOB SITUATION 1
After three weeks on the job, you (new employee) are still not clear about your job assignment. You need to ask your supervisor for a better understanding of the job responsibilities.

JOB SITUATION 2
It has been one month since you (new employee) started your job. You have not met many co-workers, feel a little isolated, and want to learn more about the company benefits. You have decided to approach a co-worker at lunch.

JOB SITUATION 3
You (the supervisor) have noticed that the new employee has been coming in late on a sporadic basis for the last three weeks. You need to find out if there is a problem and if the new employee understands company policy.

JOB SITUATION 4
There have been more and more mistakes in product and operations within your specific department, on all three shifts. The supervisor has presented this problem at a department meeting the day before and asked that you (new employee) and a co-worker be the department representatives in reporting back to him about options for resolution. You are now discussing this problem with your co-worker during break.
Communicating Through Interviews

Practice your speaking and listening skills by conducting an interview with a business person, friend, or family member. Keep in mind your active listening tips and communication suggestions. Share the responses with your group.

Ask the following questions:

1. What is your job title?

2. How long have you been at your job?

3. What do you make and/or do?

4. How would you describe your job? What are the main duties?

5. What is the supervisory style at the company?

6. Do you work with a team of people?

7. What changes are happening at work?

8. What skills do you need to perform the important tasks in your job?

9. How do you report your work? talk to your supervisor?

10. What kind of training have you had on the job?
