By actively involving the child in hearing, saying, seeing, and writing the letters and sounds, this workbook develops a child's skill in recognizing the alphabet and the initial sounds in words through a series of 78 lessons. It is appropriate for parents to use with their kindergarten and beginning first grade children. By using this learning technique, the workbook quickly focuses the child's attention and reinforces basic skills. This approach also encourages the child to create and to write from the very first lesson. After a preface and advice on getting started, sections of the workbook focus on printing letters of the alphabet, consonant letters and sounds, and the short vowels. (RS)

  Working on the Lessons
Congratulations! You have made an extremely important decision in helping your children learn to read. Research shows that knowing the alphabet and recognizing the initial sounds in words are the skills most likely to lead to success in early reading.

Phonics Plus, Book A develops a child’s skill in recognizing the alphabet and the initial sounds in words. Phonics Plus accomplishes this by actively involving the child in hearing, saying, seeing, and writing the letters and sounds. This book is appropriate for kindergarten and beginning first grade.

By using this learning technique, Phonics Plus quickly focuses the child’s attention and reinforces basic skills. This approach also encourages the child to create and to write from the very first lesson.

English is an alphabetic language: the spelling is designed to represent the spoken sounds. The /b/ sound, for example, can be heard at the beginning of the word book; the short /a/ sound can be heard in the middle of the word bat.

By showing young readers this sound-symbol relationship, you will give them one important key that will help to unlock written messages. Even though English has many spelling patterns that eventually need to be learned, the first step in reassuring young readers is contained in Phonics Plus, Book A: It shows that the language is systematic.

Phonics Plus, Book A asks the child to write on every page. Writing focuses the child’s attention and acts as a powerful strategy for reinforcing the item to be learned. The writing activities also give the child a chance to be creative.

Any beginning reading program naturally needs a rich environment of books, reading aloud, and time for sharing ideas found in books. Those activities create the interest that motivates children to work on decoding skills and other skills that enable them to become proficient readers and writers.

Phonics Plus, Book B is an advanced first-grade book that introduces the basic sound-spelling patterns such as those called short-vowel patterns (cat, bed, bit) and those called long-vowel patterns (rake, bike, cute; nail, team). Book B continues the hear-say-see-write techniques introduced in Book A. Taken together, Phonics Plus, Books A and B provide a thorough decoding program that will serve the first-grade student well.

Thank you for caring about the learning success of your children.

Getting Started

Set aside a regular time for your child to work on the exercises in this book. In fact, two or three short periods of work each day will be better than one long one. Because most of the exercises are presented in groups of five, you can devote each weekday to one page and then let your child work on the review exercise on the weekend.

Also have a regular place for your child to work. Use a desk or table with flat surface, and make sure your child holds the paper straight on the surface. Provide large pencils, and you may want to get some paper with control lines so your child can have more practice if it is needed.

This book is designed to help your child become acquainted with the letters of the alphabet and with the sounds they make. It is the place to try things out, to make mistakes, and to learn by doing.

This is not a spelling book.

At this early stage, it is not realistic to expect children to remember how to spell every word in this book, and that is not the purpose. Instead, we want to provide the background that will prepare your child to study spelling in a systematic way after this book is finished.

To establish the necessary background, we first show your child how to print the letters of the alphabet in order. Then we match each consonant letter with the sound it represents when it is used at the beginning of words. Next, we look at some consonants used at the end of words. Finally, we introduce the short vowels at the beginning of words such as apple and egg.

Help your child.

Offer your child any help that is needed. Don’t hesitate to spell out words or to point out any important bit of information, no matter how often it has been presented. The idea is to give your child practice in getting acquainted with letters and their sounds, and the experience should always be positive. This book is designed to help your child discover that letters and sounds can be matched and that words can be figured out.
Printing the Letters of the Alphabet

Lessons 1–31
Working on the Lessons

Don’t be concerned if your child doesn’t already know the alphabet: that’s what this book is for. All the letters are introduced in alphabetical order (also called ABC order), and additional activities help your child practice printing the letters in order. Furthermore, at any time you can refer to the complete alphabet on page 1 and you can sing the Alphabet Song to remind your child of the proper order.

Lesson 1 gives instructions for “Recognizing and printing capital A and small a.” The same instructions apply to all the following lessons that introduce letters of the alphabet (through Lesson 30). These instructions won’t be repeated on every page; just supply the name of each new letter as you move along.

Explain to your child that each letter can be written as a capital letter and as a small letter (also called uppercase and lowercase). In every one of these lessons, the purpose is to have your child see the letter, say the letter, and then print the letter, first by writing over the outlines that are provided and then by printing the letter without any outline.

Use these alphabet lessons to suit your child’s needs. If your child already knows how to print some letters, just review them briefly. For letters that are unfamiliar, your child can practice on all the lines provided and can use additional pieces of paper as well. Of course, there will be many more chances to practice the letters in words throughout the later lessons.

Consonant Letters and Sounds

Lessons 32-49
Working on the Lessons

From here on, your child will learn that the letters of the alphabet represent specific sounds. We will first focus on initial consonants that represent the sound heard at the beginning of words.

Lesson 32 gives instructions for helping your child discover the relationship between the letter b and the sound it represents at the beginning of words. Follow these same instructions for all of the lessons that introduce initial consonants, that is,

• First, pronounce each word clearly as you point to it.
• Second, have your child say the word.
• Third, help your child listen for the beginning sound as you point to the first letter in the word.
• Fourth, ask your child to print or trace the word while saying it softly.

This procedure employs the listen, see, say, write pattern that uses all major senses for learning these elementary sound-letter relationships.
Lesson 32

Lesson 44
Words that Rhyme

A fat cat.
A wet pet.
A big pig.
A hot pot.
Fun in the sun.

This lesson shows that there are patterns in language. Here the pattern involves pairs of words that end with the same sound. The first two words (fat cat) rhyme because they both end with -at. These two letters form the base of the first pair of words. The other pairs are built on the bases -et, -ig, -ot, and -un. Make sure your child understands that these pairs of words rhyme because the base sounds the same in each pair. Also point out that the words in each pair are different because the initial consonant changes.

This lesson reviews several initial consonants. For each picture, the first letter of the name of the object is omitted. Have your child identify each picture and then print the small letter that represents the initial consonant.
This lesson also reviews a number of initial consonants. Help your child name each pictured object. Then look at the bottom of the picture to find the letter that represents the sound heard at the beginning of the word. Have your child draw a circle around the initial consonant. Your child can color each picture.
Help your child name the object in each picture. In the little box below each picture, have your child write the capital letter that represents the initial consonant for each name. Then have your child color only the three pictures whose names all begin with the same initial consonant.

Family Learning Association
Cut out each letter and paste it in the box next to the picture of the word that begins with that letter.
Beginning here, each lesson will include a complete sentence that uses a word from the lesson. After your child prints the individual words on each page, look at the sentence on the bottom line. Point to each word as you read the sentence aloud. Then have your child read it along with you. Make sure your child notices the target word in the sentence, for example, mouse in Lesson 50.

When we write a sentence, we arrange words so that they make sense and express a complete thought. Point out that the sentence begins with a capital letter and ends with a period. Also mention that the words are separated so they can be read easily. Then have your child print the words and read the sentence back to you. Follow the same procedure in the following lessons. Of course your child may color the pictures.

Notice that the third word has only the initial consonant given. Make sure your child knows what this consonant sound is. Then have your child write the missing letters to form another word that rhymes with the first two in each row.

After the last word has been printed, have your child read the whole row of rhyming words again while pointing to each initial consonant. The missing words are these:

Help your child name the objects in the pictures. Three of the objects in each row have names that rhyme; one does not rhyme. After naming the objects, your child should color only the three pictures whose names rhyme in each row. (The words that don’t rhyme are given in parentheses below.

1. hat, cat, (box), bat
2. pan, (tree), fan, can
3. boat, goat, coat, (shoe)
4. (ball), cake, rake, lake
5. sock, clock, (flag), block
Help your child name the object in each picture. Then have your child write the small letter that represents the initial sound in each name.

Beginning with this lesson we will focus on final consonants. Help your child read the words at the top of the page. Point out the final consonant in each word. Have your child read the word slowly while printing the letters.

Help your child say and print the letters for the other words on the page. Listen to the sound at the end of the word.

Then help your child read and print the sentence at the bottom of the page. Ask your child to find the word in the sentence that ends with the final consonant for that page.

Finally, help your child think of an original sentence that uses at least one of the words in the lesson. Write this sentence on the bottom line. If your child has difficulty thinking of a sentence, each lesson has a suggested sentence at the end.

Lessons 74–78
Working on the Lessons

So far we have focused on consonant letters and the sounds they represent. Now it is time to look at the vowel letters a, e, i, o, and u.

Each of these letters can represent the sound of a long vowel or a short vowel. We hear the sound of long vowels when we pronounce these letters in the alphabet. The long vowel is also heard at the beginning of words such as ate, eat, ice, old, and use. We hear the sound of short vowels at the beginning of words such as at, egg, it, odd, and up.

In the next five units we will focus on short vowels at the beginning of words. Each lesson will introduce a short vowel with a picture and a word that begins with a short vowel sound: apple, egg, igloo, octopus, and umbrella. Then the lesson continues with more words that begin with short vowels.

As always, your child can color the pictures on each page.

Make sure your child sees that the word and is on this week's list and begins with the short /a/ sound.
Help your child say each word and then print the letters. Emphasize that each word starts with the short /e/ sound spelled with the letter e. Read the following sentence and have your child write it on the line at the bottom of the page: I broke a egg.
