This bilingual curriculum was developed by job search counselors at a Seattle nonprofit social service agency in conjunction with Washington state's welfare reform initiative, WorkFirst. The workshops were 30-hours long and were given over a 2-week period. The classes were conducted in the students' native language, as well as in English by an English-as-a-Second-Language (ESL) teacher. The units cover an entire range of work search activities as well as job retention skills and worker rights.

Group work is an integral part of the job search workshop. As clients work together and share their concerns, they provide support for each other and develop team work skills that are valued by employers. The workshop is divided into 10 units, plus appendices. Covered topics include the following: an introduction to purpose, topics, and goals of the workshop; cultural differences; changes in welfare laws; the identification of job skills; a description of entry-level jobs; resources for locating job listings; job hunting; application processes; interview practice; resume writing; identifying what employers are looking for; qualities of effective workers; keeping a job; making money, benefits, workers rights, and unions; starting the new job; and changing jobs and career ladders. Useful forms are included.
JOB SEARCH WORKSHOP CURRICULUM

Prepared for the Refugee Federation Service Center with the support of the Private Industry Council

This curriculum was developed to be used by the bi-lingual Job Counselors at the Refugee Federation Service Center (RFSC) in their Job Search Workshops with refugees in conjunction with the requirements of WorkFirst. The workshops were 30 hours long and were given over a two week period; roughly 3 hrs/day for 2 weeks. The classes were given in the clients' native language. At some RFSC sites, four of these workshop days were conducted by an ESL teacher in English only.

The units cover the entire range of work search activities as well as job retention skills and workers' rights. It was intended that the counselors would use what was needed for their particular group. Since the lessons were not given in English they were not designed as ESL lessons although there is a strong language learning component throughout.

Lastly, group work is an integral part of the Job Search Workshop. As clients work together and share their concerns they provide support for each other as well as develop the team work skills that are so valued by employers.

Unit 1 Why Are We Here?

OBJECTIVES
Participants will:
- be introduced to the Job Search Workshop: purpose, topics, goals
- share and discuss ideas about culture and begin to understand cultural differences around work.
- understand and discuss changes in welfare.
- begin to identify barriers to their goals.

MATERIALS
Handouts:
Getting to Know Each Other Becoming Bi-Cultural Welfare Reform
Emotions

Warm Up: Introductions
1) Facilitator introduces her/himself and describes the purpose of the Job Search Workshop as a place to learn about work: how to choose a job, how to find a job, and how to keep a job.

2) Facilitator introduces her/himself: where she/he is from, how long in Seattle, their job before, job now, number of children.

1. Activity: Getting to Know Each Other Purpose: It is important that participants are able to share with each other in this workshop. Throughout the following units and activities participants should be encouraged to work together. The goal is to create a safe place for participants to express whatever they feel. And a supportive, cooperative group will be able to help each other in and out of the classroom.

Also, even though the workshop is presented bi-lingually it is very important to expect simple tasks to be carried out in English. Filling out forms and grids is also good practice for filling out work forms.

1) Participants ask each other questions and fill in a grid in groups of four. The group chooses one participant to be the writer and another to be a speaker.

2) A speaker for each group will talk about his/her group, looking for similarities and differences, using English sentences where possible.
2A. Activity: What is culture?
Purpose: It is important for participants to understand that they do not need to agree with and adopt everything from U.S. culture. This activity is planned to help begin the discussion that will continue throughout the remaining classes about becoming bi-cultural. This process is not easy and presents many challenges. It is the role of the facilitator to help participants talk about the process and offer encouragement. In the end people can gain a great deal as they take and build on the best of both cultures.

1) Facilitator presents these ideas to the class:
Culture is knowledge, beliefs, and behavior shared by a group of people. There are many races and cultures in America so it is not possible to say that all Americans share the same culture. America is often described as a culture of cultures. Yet Americans themselves talk about a “mainstream”, U.S. culture that is shared by a majority of Americans. Learning a new culture is hard work. Adapting to different ways of doing things can be tiring and, at times, frustrating. Just as we speak of language learning, we can also speak of culture learning. Both language learning and culture learning take time.

2) Handout: Becoming Bi-Cultural
Participants are asked to fill in and discuss as a group:

2B. Activity: You Can Choose
Purpose: To help participants understand that:

a.) they can choose which customs to adopt and add to their own culture. They can adopt some customs and behaviors for some situations only.

b.) that they are in the process of becoming bi-cultural.

1. Participants discuss these questions in groups of four.
2. Facilitator writes the responses on newsprint.

1. What customs in U.S. do you like?
2. What customs in U.S. make you feel uncomfortable?
3. What customs in U.S. do you not understand?
4. What customs from your country are you proud of?
5. What customs from your country are you not proud of?
3. Discussion/Reading: Welfare Reform

Purpose: To help participants understand the recent past and current situation around welfare reform.

Handout: Facilitator reads and explains; participants read if they can. Participants answer some True or False questions to see if they understand.

4. Follow-up Discussion: Welfare: Good or Bad?

Purpose: To give participants the opportunity to give their opinions and suggestions about welfare.

Have participants discuss the pros and cons of welfare. It is important to see both sides - welfare helps people but it is only temporary. Some people may need assistance for a longer time than others. Everyone is better off if they work.

5. Activity: Hopes and Dreams

Purpose: To help participants express the hopes and dreams they have for themselves and their families. To encourage participants to see their current situation as an opportunity to take steps towards reaching these dreams. Stating one's dreams or desires is important in goal setting. Having a strong desire for success or reaching one's goal can help people endure difficulties. This idea needs to be repeated especially when the present task seems very difficult!

- Ask participants to answer the following questions and talk about them with a partner.
- Give out Emotions Handout.
- Ask for volunteers to share with the group. (Some people may be reluctant to share personal information.)

1. How did you decide to come to the Seattle area?
2. What did you expect before you came to Seattle?
3. What did you find? Were you surprised, disappointed, satisfied, happy, sad, angry? (Participants can refer to Emotion Handout to practice English.)
4. What dreams did you have for yourself and your family before you came to the U.S.?
5. Have your dreams changed? How did they change? How are they the same?
6. Activity: When I have a job I can.................
Purpose: To conclude the day's activities on a positive note. Participants will begin to express simple, immediate, short term goals.

Participants finish the sentence, "When I have a job I can ..........". Facilitator asks for participant responses and writes them on the board or on newsprint. This list represents a collection of all the reasons for this workshop!

Barriers: Participants may begin to talk about reasons that they cannot reach their dreams. Begin to record these barriers on a Barriers to Employment sheet of newsprint on the wall. These barriers will be addressed as the workshop continues.

Tomorrow: We will talk about what you already have to get a good job, what you need and what is in your way (barrier).

Welfare Reform

Welfare began in the United States in the 1930's after the Great Depression. There were not many jobs and very little money. The government started helping people because millions of Americans were out of work.

Now, there are many jobs and the United States is economically very strong. The government and the American people do not want to give people money if they can work. So, on August 22, 1996 President Clinton signed the Welfare Reform Bill. $54 billion will be cut from welfare programs over six years. Before, welfare programs, called Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), was guaranteed to everyone who was eligible. The new name for welfare is Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF).

The welfare reform bill says that nobody can get welfare for more than five years or 60 months in their life. The number of months will be counted from August 1, 1997. People who get welfare will be required to look for a job while they are on welfare. They will need to try to get a job, fill out job applications and send resumes. Now each state controls their own welfare programs. The welfare program in Washington State is called WorkFirst.

There are cuts in the Food Stamp and SSI programs for some people. SSI is for people who are sick or disabled. People who arrive in the United States after August 22, 1996 will not be able to get SSI benefits or Food Stamps. If a person is cut from SSI benefits, they may be able to get money from another program called GAU (General Assistance Unemployable). This is less money than SSI, about $339 a month and $215 for medical expense.

There are some exceptions to the cuts in Food Stamps and SSI. Refugees who have been the U.S. less than five years can still get Food Stamps. If a refugee or immigrant becomes a citizen, they can continue to get SSI and Food Stamps. If you have worked for more than ten years in the U.S., you can continue to get Food Stamps and SSI.

Circle (T) for True and (F) for False

1. Refugees in the U.S. three years can have Food Stamps cut. T F

2. Citizens cannot get Food Stamps cut. T F

3. People who work 8 yrs. in the U.S. can be cut from Food Stamps. T F

4. People who come to the U.S. in 1998 can get welfare. T F

5. People who are disabled can be cut from SSI. T F

6. The welfare program in Washington State is called Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF). T F
WHAT CAN I DO???
Objectives
Participants will:
- identify and speak about their transferable skills.
- identify what they want in a job, job values
- identify barriers to work and work together to find solutions.

Materials
Handouts:
You Are Not Alone
TRANSFERABLE SKILLS
SKILLS
WHAT I LIKE IN A JOB
Perceived Barriers to Employment
Occupational Descriptions (see Appendix)

Warm up: Read You Are Not Alone to participants. If possible two participants can read the dialog. Ask participants what they think Tarig will say. Ask how many participants have work experience and how many do not. Explain that those who have worked have job experience and those who have not have transferable skills that they can use on a job. This leads to Activity 1.

1. Activity: Transferable Skills
Purpose: To explain about transferable skills and to guide participants into identifying some that they can talk about. It is important that this activity result in a short list of job skills and transferable skills that each participant can talk about in simple English. This prepares the way for interview questions and resume writing.

What Can I Do?
Facilitator explains:
1. A skill is simply something we can do.
2. Some skills are job skills. They are specific to a job like operating a fork lift.
3. Other skills are transferable skills. These are skills we take from one job to another and are often skills we learn from life. Operating machinery is a transferable skill, as is teaching (parents teach their children) and problem solving.

Checklist: Facilitator goes over TRANSFERABLE SKILLS checklist with participants. Explain that these are only a few of hundreds of transferable skills. Facilitator describes each one and the participants check off their skills.
2. Activity: Success Stories

Purpose: To help participants give examples of their transferable skills. Again, this is best done in English to prepare for interviews.

1.) Participants are asked to think of a particular success they have had in their lives, something they were and still are very proud of. This can be as simple as organizing a special meal, playing a winning game, making a dress, building something. For many participants stories out of their experience concerning leaving their country and surviving as refugees in camps are full of examples of their resourcefulness and skills.

2.) The facilitator models the process and tells about a personal success story. The facilitator points out the skills needed for this success.

3) Participants are asked to share their success to a partner. The partners will then help each other name the skills that they used.

4) Each pair of participants shares their stories and skills with the group. The group can then add additional skills that might have been overlooked. Each participant writes down these skills until everyone has had a turn.

3. Activity: Skills List:

Purpose: To help participants write down and practice saying what their skills are. See the Occupational Descriptions in the APPENDIX for specific job skills.

Facilitator helps participants (and participants help each other) write down in English what their job skills are from former jobs. This will be very helpful in filling out applications and writing resumes.

4. Activity: What I Like in a Job

Purpose: To help participants decide on a job objective. It's very important NOT to say, "I want any job." Even if a person is willing to do many things he/she must think about what he/she likes and doesn't like in a job. This helps narrow the field a little and ensures that the person will not find themselves in a job they dislike.

1) Facilitator explains vocabulary.

2) Participants check off their choices and rate them in order of preference.

3) Facilitator helps participants write their job values statement. This statement should be in sentence form in English.

4) Participants share their top choices (1's) with a partner. They talk about their differences and similarities.

5) Ask participants to think about what jobs have these job values and to make suggestions for each other's job choice.
5. Discussion and Activity: Perceived Barriers

Purpose: To look at why people think they cannot work and to encourage the participants to help each other find solutions to their perceived barriers. To assure the class that together we can find solutions.

To let participants know that if we cannot solve a particular problem in class, then the facilitator will go to other resources for help. These hard to solve problems get added to the Barriers to Employment sheet began in Unit 1. Also, if many people have the same barrier explain that it may be systemic, or part of a bigger problem in the community, like problems with transportation. Again, these too can be solved but in another way. You can put the hard to solve, more systemic problems on a separate sheet marked Parking Lot.

Remind the class that there are many agencies involved in helping them make the transition to employment.

2) Give participants the Perceived Barriers To Employment worksheet.

   Explain that these are called 'perceived' barriers because these are barriers we 'think' we have. Sometimes what looks like a barrier to one person is simply a situation to another who can easily see a solution. This is the reason we share our 'perceived' barriers.

   Explain each barrier and have participants check off their perceived barriers. Participants share their lists in pairs. Ask participants to listen carefully to each and offer suggestions.

3) Collect the participants' Barrier worksheets. Tell them you will look at these again at the end of the workshop to see if these are still barriers!
Two women meet in the supermarket. Tariq and Phuong are neighbors and their children go to the same school.

Tariq: Hello, Phuong. How are you doing?

Phuong: Oh! Tariq, it's good to see you. I'm fine.

Tariq: I haven't seen you at the bus stop for a while.

Phuong: I've been very busy looking for a job. I go to a job search class every morning. I really want to work.

Tariq: I know some people who found jobs. But they worked a short time and then they were laid off. They never got benefits. I don't want to do that. I have medical coupons now and I know how to live on very little money.

Phuong: Sometimes people get laid off. But working for even a little time will give me experience.

Tariq: But what about health insurance?

Phuong: After you find a job you still get medical coupons for one year. Then you can apply for Washington Basic Health. That is inexpensive medical insurance. I really want to work so that I can save money to buy a car.

Tariq: I agree. It is very hard to say 'no' to my children every time they ask for something new. But I have never worked. What can I do?

Phuong: There are many entry level jobs you can do now. You need to learn about different kinds of work and choose something you like to do.

Tariq: But what can I do? I have no experience?

Phuong: Why don't you come with me to the workshop? You are not alone. Many people have no experience. But you can still do many things. And people will show you what to do when you get a job.

In the Job Search Workshop we help each other with our problems. And if we cannot find an answer together our counselor knows where to go for help. Then our problems are not so big!

TRANSFERABLE SKILLS

Transferable skills are skills from your total life experience: from past jobs, volunteer, military and family experience. Most adults have over 500 skills!

1. Place a check next to the skills you have.

2. Circle your five strongest skills. (These will be the skills you will want to talk about in your job interviews and put on your applications and resume.)

- Assemble things
- Cook and serve food
- Drive or operate vehicles
- Repair things
- Count things
- Manage money
- Use tools
- Speak to groups
- Order goods and supplies
- Design or invent things
- Grow things
- Teach others
- Listen
- Artistic
- Help others
- Make decisions
- Counsel others
- Sell things
- Solve problems
- Work in a team
- Plan ahead
- Use machines
- Care for children or old people
- File records
- Examine things
- Lead or supervise others
- Care for sick people
- Perform, act
- Locate information
- Construct/repair buildings

UNIT 3  What Job Is For Me? Starting the Search!

OBJECTIVES
Participants will:
- learn about a variety of entry level jobs
- identify three job titles of interest to her/him.
- identify different resources for locating jobs.
- learn how to read job ads/ announcements

MATERIALS
Handouts:  Entry Level Job Descriptions and Pictures
Pay Per Hour Chart
Grouping Exercise

Sample Applications and Resumes (see Appendix)

Warm Up:  BEING A LITTLE AFRAID IS NORMAL.
PREPARATION IS A GOOD WAY TO CONTROL FEAR.
TALK Positively TO YOURSELF.
ENERGY ALWAYS PAYS OFF.
KEEP GOING.

1) Facilitator writes these sentences on the board or has them prepared on newsprint.
2) Ask participants what they think the sentences mean.
3) Encourage participants to use positive attitudes and self talk as they go through the job search. Give examples from personal experience so participants can see how hard work and a positive attitude pays off in the long run!
1. Activity: Entry Level Jobs

   Purpose: To explain what entry level jobs are and to identify various entry level job titles. Also estimating wages for these jobs will be helpful to participants as they decide on the job they want.

   (It may be useful to invite a Job Developer in to talk to the class about what entry level jobs are available now in Seattle. Also, to tell the class about jobs that clients have gotten recently. Maybe a former client can come in, if their schedule allows, and talk to the class about their job.)

   1) Brainstorm: Entry level jobs do not require any kind of special training. For these jobs experience and personal qualities are more important than formal education. Can you think of any?

   - waiter/waitress
   - laundry worker
   - child care worker
   - janitor
   - security guard
   - kitchen worker
   - stock clerk
   - gardener
   - animal caretaker
   - dishwasher
   - cannery worker
   - office clerk
   - houseman: hotel
   - receptionist
   - electronics assembly worker
   - housekeeper: hotel
   - housekeeper: private home
   - fast food cook
   - parking lot attendant
   - sewing machine operator
   - gas station attendant
   - warehouse worker
   - construction worker
   - maintenance worker
   - food processing plant worker
   - copy machine operator
   - garbage collector
   - bus driver
   - fruit picker
   - carpenter
   - delivery person
   - truck driver
   - sales clerk
   - cashier
   - shoe repair
   - packers
   - house painter
   - cafeteria worker
   - jewelry assembler
   - busperson
   - bank teller
   - home health aide

2) Discuss: Career Ladders

   Purpose: To help participants understand that a first job is not the best job. A career ladder is a way to go to a higher job - step by step. Give some examples of careers ladders, such as:

   - 5-head cook
   - 4-cook
   - 3-cook trainee
   - 2 -prep cook
   - 1-cook's helper

   Note: Simply introduce the idea here. More exercises about getting ahead are in unit 10.
3) Entry Level Job Descriptions and Pictures:
   - Participants work in pairs. (You may want to pair readers with non-readers.)
   - Give each pair two or three job titles.
   - Participants look at the pictures and talk about what that job requires.
     What do you need to know for that job?
     What are the duties, pay, etc.?
   - The pairs report to the whole class about the job.
   - As each job is talked about ask the questions:
     Can you do that job? If no, why not?
     Do you like this job? Why or why not?
     Do you know someone who does this job?
     How much is the salary per week, per month, per year? Compare to welfare. (Use the Pay Per Hour Chart.)

2. Activity: Grouping Jobs
Purpose: To help participants look at groups of jobs that have similar requirements. This will enable them to consider a variety of jobs that they can do and like to do. Many jobs will fit into more than one group.
   Also, the talking about the jobs will help participants become familiar with different job titles, descriptions and requirements.

   1. Participants can stay in their groups from the last exercise and use the pictures they discussed.
   2. Give each group one copy of Grouping Jobs worksheet.
   3. Participants put the names of jobs they can think of for each category. They can use the names of any jobs not just the ones they have pictures of.
   4. In each group one person will be the Writer, one person will be the Reporter and one person is a Monitor who will make sure everyone contributes.
   5. When all are finished write down all the names from every group for each category on the board.

3. Activity: Job Selection
Purpose: To help participants choose and focus on three job titles of interest. Everyone has seen and talked about many entry level jobs and what they require. Now using this information they choose what they would like to do.

   1) Each participant names three jobs of interest to him/her.
   2) Facilitator asks participants why they chose their particular jobs and writes the reasons on the board. Explain that these reasons are job values, or what people look for or want (value) in a job.
4. Activity: How to find a job in Seattle?
Purpose: To have participants think about different strategies for finding a job and compare their job search in Seattle with how they found jobs in their countries.
   1) Facilitator asks participants about how they found jobs in their countries. What did you do? Where did you go?
   2) Brainstorm different ways of getting a job here.
   3) Use Who Will Find a Job First?
      Ask participants “Do you do this in your country to find a job?”

5. Activity: How People Find Jobs
Purpose: To relate certain job search activities with particular jobs. This will help participants understand what they must do for their personal job objectives.
   1) Give participant How People Find Jobs worksheet.
   2) Participants work in pairs to discuss their opinions.
   3) Additional jobs can be discussed and included at the bottom of the chart.
   4) Ask each group to share their ideas on the best way to find certain jobs and discuss any differences.
6. Activity: Reading Want Ads

Purpose: To give participants practice reading want ads. This will also help participants become familiar with the vocabulary of the job market.

1) Newspaper Ads: Explain that ads are found in the Classified Ads section of the newspaper. These are also called want ads. There are many different parts I the classified ads, called headings. You need to find the heading that is about jobs. Different newspapers have different heading for jobs in the classified ads. Sometimes you need to look under these headings: Help Wanted, Job Opportunities, or Employment to find jobs.

NOTE: Many headings are not about jobs. For example, some headings are about renting an apartment: Rentals. Some headings are about things for sale: Sales/Merchandise.

2) How to read want ads:

   - Facilitator explains the handout, How to Understand Want Ad Abbreviations. The short exercises in this handout have some of the most used and important abbreviations participants need to know!
   - Participants get a copy of the Abbreviation Dictionary.
   - Explain how to find information on How to Apply from an ad. See notes on page 1.
   - Explain the ways to apply: call for an appointment, go in person and fill out an application, and fax or send a resume. Have sample applications and resumes to show.
   - Explain that some ads tell about job duties, job requirements and preferred qualifications. (See notes on page 2.)
   - Participants do the first two sheets of exercises on abbreviations. One sheet is about How To Apply and the other is about Requirements, Qualifications, and Duties. Participants should be familiar with these terms even if they have difficulty reading the ads. These terms will also be found on applications and used in interviews.
   - Participants can cut ads from local newspapers or use the third exercise sheet included to take information from an ad. Participants work in pairs to help each other.

Groups of Jobs

Put job titles into these groups. The jobs you put in each group use the same skills or abilities. You may use the same job more than once. You can name any job you know!

Group 1. For these jobs, you have to know how to use a machine: example: sewing machine operator

Group 2. For these jobs, you have to speak well to people: example: receptionist

Group 3. For these jobs, you have to have a strong body: example: warehouse worker

Group 4. For these jobs, you have to work fast: example: housekeeper Group 5. For these jobs, you have to work well with money.
   example: cashier

Group 6. For these jobs, you have to work alone.
   example: truck driver

Group 7. For these jobs, you have to like people.
   example: home health aide

Group 8. For these jobs, you have to work at night.
   example: security guard

Group 9. For these jobs, you have to work outdoors.
   example: gardener

HOW TO UNDERSTAND WANT AD ABBREVIATIONS

Businesses usually use abbreviations in want ads. Want ads cost money and long ads cost more money. An abbreviation is a short way to write a word. These rules will help you read abbreviations. Some people use different abbreviations for the same word: experience = exp. or exper. or expr.

Rule 1. Some abbreviations are the first letters of words.
   eve. = evening
   nec. = necessary

Rule 2. Sometimes people take out letters (especially vowels):
   gd. = good
   bfts. = benefits

Rule 3. Some abbreviations are the first letter of each word. Sometimes these abbreviations have a slash (/).
   p/t = part-time
   hs = high school

Rewrite the ads with the correct words for the abbreviations. Use your Want Ad Abbreviation List.

Example: The ofc. hrs. are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., M-F.

   The office hours are 8 in the morning to 5 in the afternoon, Monday through Friday.

1. Driver, m/f w/a min. of 2 yrs. exp., sal. DOE.

HOW TO UNDERSTAND INFORMATION ABOUT JOB REQUIREMENTS, QUALIFICATIONS, AND DUTIES

Here is some information you can find in want ads:

- The skills, experience, personal qualities, and other things you need to do the job
- Other skills or experience that employers want
- The work you will do at a job

You need to read a want ad very carefully to find out if you can do the job.

Requirements: Skills, experience, personal qualities, and other things you need for the job. For example, drivers need a driver's license and sometimes a car. Dental hygienists need a certificate. When you see must, required (req'd.), necessary (nec.), or minimum (min.), these are job requirements.

Preferred qualifications: Skills, experience, and other things that employers want. You do not need to have these, but they will help you get the job. When you see preferred (pref.), helpful, desired, or a plus (a +), these are preferred qualifications.

Job duties: The work you will do at a job. For example, apartment managers collect rent and fix things. When you see responsible for (respon. for), to help, or duties include (duties incl.), these are job duties.

HOW TO APPLY FOR A JOB

A want ad gives a lot of information in a small space. When you find an ad for a job that you want, you need to read it carefully to find out how to apply for the job. There are three ways to apply for a job:

- Call the company and make an appointment.
- Go to the company and fill out an application.
- Send or fax a resume to the company.

24 ON YOUR OWN

Read the want ads. Find out how you should apply for each job. Write the information.

HOW TO UNDERSTAND OTHER INFORMATION ABOUT THE JOB

In many want ads, you can learn other information about the job. Sometimes you can find out this information:

- The hours
- The salary
- If the job is part-time or full-time
- If the job is temporary (for a short time) or permanent (for a long time)

Unit 4  JOB HUNTING - HOW TO APPLY

OBJECTIVES
Participants will:
- understand and discuss their responsibility for job search activities.
- learn and practice how to inquire about a job and ask for an application
- begin to learn how to fill out job applications

Warm Up: Who’s Responsible
Purpose: To help participants understand what they must do and what other people can do as they look for work. Participants should understand that there is a lot of help for them but that there are responsibilities that belong to them only.

1) Facilitator reads statements to the class and asks if they agree or disagree.
2) Discuss the answers given.

1. Other people can help you get a job. yes no maybe
2. If you are the first person to apply you will get the job. yes no maybe
3. If you are qualified for a job, the company has to hire you. yes no maybe
4. You should learn how to fill out a job application before you look for a job. yes no maybe
5. If you go to a training program, you will get a job. yes no maybe
6. If you go to a job developer, they will find you a job and send you to work. You don’t have to go to interviews or fill out job application. yes no maybe
7. If you go to an employment agency they will look for a job for you. You should just stay home and wait. yes no maybe
2.) Brainstorm: What are some things to do in a job search?

Facilitator writes these on the board.
Some things to do are given below.
Participants use worksheet to put these things to do in a column depending on who they think is responsible for doing them. (One thing can be on both lists.)
3. Activity: Role-Play / Video - Introducing yourself and asking for a job application.

Purpose: To practice asking for an application and showing interest in a job.

Facilitator prepares each person with their own script and shows the beginning of the video You’re Hired until the place where the students ask for applications. After watching people modeling this, participants practice with the facilitator.

1) Ask each person:
   "What job are you looking for?" (If they say they don’t know, then suggest something you think is good for them just for the practice.)
   "Do you have experience for this job?" If yes, ask the person to describe their experience, what they did and for how long. If no, tell the person to NEVER just say ‘no’. Always say, “No, but I can learn the job. If you show me I can do it!” If the person has some related life experience they can talk about that - say, if a woman is looking for a housekeeping job and has been a homemaker for many years.

2) Give the students individual scripts about their experience write these on the board. Participants copy their sentences.

3) Show video You’re Hired. Stop at the place where students ask for an application and practice asking for an application. This exercise repeats and reinforces the beginning of the activity - step 1 above.

   The role play can go something like this:
   - Each participant gets a turn in front of the class.
   - Emphasize good eye contact, clear speech and asking for meaning if they don’t understand something you say.
   - Encourage class to give feedback - “Did he/she do a good job?”

   Participant: “Hello, my name is ___________. I’m looking for a job as a ____________.

   Facilitator: “Hello, nice to meet you. My name is ____________.

   Do you have experience for this job?”

   Participant: “Yes/ No, ____________.”

   Facilitator: “Take this application and fill it out. Return it to me and we will call you for an interview if we need you.” Give out sample applications.
4. Discussion: Applications, Good/ Bad

Purpose: To make it clear how important it is to have a good application. To help participants understand how to fill out an application properly.

1) Have copies of a good application and a bad application.
   - Ask participants which applicant they would call for an interview. Why?
   - Discuss: “Why do you think the way an application looks is important to the employer?”
   - Brainstorm what makes a good impression.

2) Handout - What Managers Look for in Job Applications
   - Facilitator goes through guidelines for good applications.

5. Activity: Practice

Purpose: To break down the application into its sections and practice one section at a time. This exercise will be time consuming and will probably extend to Unit 5. Use the practice sheets provided and when each section is completed have participants copy the information onto the practice application.

The sections are:
1. Personal Information
2. Job Desired
3. Work History
4. Education
5. References - Remind participants to write the names of people to be references only AFTER asking their permission. Read the dialog together to practice. Participants can practice asking the facilitator for a reference.
6. Activity: Rating Applications
Purpose: To encourage participants to help each other. People generally learn what they teach.

Participants should have applications given out in the role-play exercise #2. Participants fill these out and then participants rate each other's applications for:

1. neatness (no cross outs)
2. printing (handwriting to be used only for signature)
3. pen (not pencil)
4. completeness (no empty spaces, use N/A if you cannot answer a question.)
5. information in correct spaces.

</tbody>
</table>

Participants work in pairs and rate each others applications. Participants with totals of 10 are recognized.

7. Take Home Activity: Personal Data Form
Purpose: Participants will practice filling out their information at home on their own. They'll have a completed general application to refer to and copy from. This will help them when they are on their own filling out applications.

Also, the Personal Data Form is something they will take with them as they look for work. They can use it to simply copy their information onto any application.

Forms will be checked carefully for completeness and accuracy when they are returned.

What Managers Look for in Job Applications

- Print or type your application. Use handwriting (script) only when you sign our same (write your signature) at the end of the application. (Laura Jones).

- Use a pen not a pencil.

- Print neatly and carefully.

- Do not cross out words.

- If you make a mistake ask for a new application or use correction fluid and print the information again. (You can make a copy of the application for practice and then copy the information onto the original.)

- Follow instructions carefully. Print the correct information in the correct spaces.

- Answer all of the questions about yourself, your experience, and your education.

- Print N/A (not applicable) in the correct space if you really cannot answer a question. For example, if you do not have a driver’s license you can write N/A on the application instead of a license number.

BE CAREFUL!!

Do not fill out parts of some applications. For example, do not print information in these spaces:

- FOR COMPANY USE ONLY
- FOR OFFICE USE ONLY
- DO NOT WRITE BELOW THIS LINE
- DO NOT FILL OUT SPACE BELOW THIS LINE
- DO NOT WRITE IN SHADED AREAS
Here is the first part of a job application. Fill out information about yourself.

Asking for a Reference

Sophal: Hello?
Yen: Hi, Sophal. This is Yen. How are you?
Sophal: Fine, thanks. And you?
Yen: Pretty good. I'm looking for a job as a hospital orderly, and I'm filling out job applications. Can I ask you a favor?
Sophal: Sure.
Yen: Could I use your name as a reference?
Sophal: I'd be happy to be a personal reference.
Yen: Thank you. Let's see. Could I check the spelling of your last name? Is it P-H/ -O-R-N?
Sophal: That's right.
Yen: And, may I have your address, please?
Sophal: 2830 16th Ave. SW.
Yen: 2830 16th Ave. SW?
Sophal: Right.
Yen: Thanks a lot, Sophal.
Sophal: You're welcome. And good luck!
Yen: Thanks. Good-bye.
Sophal: Good-bye.

APPLICATION FOR EMPLOYMENT
Unit 5 Application Process Continued / Problem Solving

OBJECTIVES
Participants will:
- understand different ways people are hired and relate them to getting a job in their native country.
- continue to practice filling out job applications and rate each others applications.
- fill out a personal information sheet to help with resumes and applications.
- discuss possible problems with the application process and some solutions.
- view last part of You’re Hired and practice phone skills

MATERIALS
Handouts: Getting Hired Employer Statements
What Should I Do Now?
Personal Information Forms
Matching Exercise

Video: You’re Hired
Interview appointment information for phone practice.

Warm Up: Getting Hired: Do job applicants in your country do these things?
Purpose: To help participants understand the similarities as well as differences in looking for a job in the U.S. as compared to their own country. This enables them to build on what they know and understand what it is they need to learn.

Also, repetition of the steps in the process of getting hired helps participants to remember what needs to be done!

1) Read the steps in Getting Hired and ask the question. Participants check yes/no. They may want to talk about how it is different.

2) Facilitator explains that not every job has the same steps to apply. Some jobs don’t even require an application. Some jobs require an application, a resume, a test of your skills and two or three interviews!

Read what employers say in the Employer Statements about applying to their companies. See what participants can understand from the statements alone. Then help them write the steps - write on the board; they can copy and read it together.
1. Activity: Continue with application practice. Filling out a practice application and the Personal Information form could take a couple of classes. Participants who are finished can help others. When each person has a completed an application participants exchange them with each other and rate them with the Application Rating Form (explained in unit 4).

2. Activity: Matching Exercise

   Purpose: To review terms found on applications. This repetition helps clients remember and also prepares them for interview where these terms will be used.

   1) Give participants one form for two people and they find the matching terms together.
   2) Facilitator can put terms and meaning on separate index cards and participants practice matching them on their own.

3. Personal Information Form:

   Ask class for Personal Information Form given for homework. If this was too difficult to do without help participants can fill it out in class.

   Check these carefully. Participants will take these with them when they go to fill out applications.

4. Activity: What Should I Do Now?

   Purpose: To help participants work on possible problems that may come up in their job search. This practice will also help model future support participants can give each other.

   1) Facilitator makes a photocopy of the six conversations in What Should I Do Now? and cut it into strips.
   2) Give one conversation to a group of 2 or 3 participants.
   3) Each person in the group gives advice to the 'Friend'. The group decides on the best advice or a few things the 'Friend' can do.
   4) One person writes these down if possible or reports verbally to the class. (If there are too few readers the facilitator can read the conversations and lead a class discussion of what advice to give.)
   5) Discuss each conversation with the whole class. The group reports their solution and the class gives their suggestions.

5. Video: Finish showing You're Hired. The conclusion of the video is a good preview of interview practice.

   If there is time, stop to practice listening to information on the telephone.
6. Activity: Listening for Information on the Telephone

1) Give each student:
   - the name and address of a company
   - a date and time for an interview
   - the name of a person to ask for Example, "This is Bartell's calling. Are you still interested in the position as a stock clerk? Can you come in for an interview on Thursday, May 14 at 10 a.m.? We are located at 5409 Roxbury Street. The cross street is 107 St. Ask for Mrs. Johnson."

2) Participants sit back-to-back and 'call' each other for an interview appointment. Asking the other person to repeat, slow down, or spell something is an important skill to practice. Also, participants must repeat back all information before hanging up to be sure it is correct.

3) Give the students the English for this:
   "Can you please repeat that?"
   "Can you please speak more slowly?"
   "Could you spell that please?"

2. ____________________________________________

3. ____________________________________________

Employer 2:

“We put a ‘Help Wanted’ sign in the window. Each applicant fills out a job application form. We interview each applicant immediately. Sometimes we hire a person right after the interview. Sometimes we interview many people and then call the person we want to hire.”

2. __________________________

Employer 3:

“We put an ad in the newspaper. Applicants call, and we send them application forms in the mail. When we receive the completed applications, we invite some applicants for an interview. Three days after the interviews, we call the applicant we want to hire.”

WHAT SHOULD I DO NOW?

You have learned a lot about how to find a job. Here are some conversations between you and a friend. In your part of the conversation, give your friend some advice.

Conversation 1:

Your Friend: I'm looking for a job as an electronics assembler, but there are no jobs right now.
You: How do you know?
Your Friend: I didn't see any ads for it in the newspaper.
You:

Conversation 2:

Your Friend: The employment agency didn't call me. I guess they don't have any jobs this week.
You:

Conversation 3:

Your Friend: I went to a job interview. They said, "We'll call you if we need someone." They didn't call me.
You:

Conversation 4:

Your Friend: Two weeks ago I called three companies I want to work for. None of them had any job openings. I'm afraid I'll bother them if I call them again.
You:

Conversation 5:

Your Friend: When I applied for the job, they just took my application. No one interviewed me. I really want to work there. What should I do now?

You:

Conversation 6:

Your Friend: I signed up at the Refugee Help Agency a month ago. They didn't call me yet. That's too long to wait for a job. I'm really mad at them. They don't care if I find a job. What should I do now?

Interview Questions
Resume Guide

Warm Up: Employer Expectations
Purpose: To help participants be realistic about meeting employer expectations.

1. Activity: 1) Brainstorm Employer Expectations
   - Ask participants what they think employers are looking for when they have to hire new workers. Have them imagine that they are the employers. What kind of person would they want for their company?
   - Write these on the board or on newsprint.
     examples: punctuality good attendance
following company rules obeying the boss getting along with co-workers sobriety on the job
a full day's work appropriate dress and behavior honesty
   - Discuss examples of these behaviors.

2) Guest speaker: Invite an employer to come into the workshop to give the class information about how employers select employees.
2. Activity: Brainstorm Do's and Don'ts for Interviews:

Purpose: To talk about the importance of the interview and the ways to prepare for one.

1) Make copies or an overhead transparency of the picture, What are they looking for. Talk about what is right and wrong in A and B.

2) Ask participants what they should and should not do at an interview. Write participants' suggestions on the board or on newsprint. Handout the Job Interview Do's and Don'ts list and go over any that were not mentioned. Participants can add ones that aren't on the list.

3. Discussion: Body Language and Appearance

Purpose: To discuss the non-verbal messages we give by the way we look and act.

Use the information on Non-Verbal Messages to explain to the participants the importance of eye contact, a clear voice, pleasant facial expressions, posture, mannerisms and attitude. Ask if this is true in their native countries.

4. Activity: Acceptable and Unacceptable Behaviors

Purpose: To discuss different behaviors and the words "acceptable" and "unacceptable".

1) Explain:

   Acceptable: When it is OK to do something we say it is acceptable.

   example: It is acceptable to wear shorts at a picnic.

   Unacceptable: When it is not OK to do something, we say it is unacceptable.

   example: It is unacceptable to wear shorts to work in most offices.

2) Give copies of Standards of Politeness and Appearance to participants - one copy for a group of 2 or 3.

   Participants work together to check off what is appropriate in their native country and in the U.S.

   Each group reports to the class what they decided and any differences are discussed.

3) Give copies or make a transparency of Body Language.

   Ask participants to circle [+] if the body language is positive/good or [-] if the body language is negative/not good.

   Ask if this is the same in their country.
5. Activity: Personal Qualities

Purpose: To help participants identify personal qualities that are useful on the job. And to help them give examples that show that they have these qualities. English is important here for interview practice.

1.) Facilitator explains personal qualities on handout Personal Qualities. Using native language help participants understand the meaning of these words.

2) Facilitator gives participants I AM........ worksheet. Participants choose three of these qualities they have. Facilitator helps them to find examples of these from their own lives and experience.

- For example: A woman who has never worked at a paying job but has been a homemaker and mother usually has the qualities - organized, energetic, good problem solver, hard worker, patient. All of these qualities are needed to be a good homemaker and mother.

  The participant could say:

  "I am organized. I have four children and they go to three different schools." or "I am patient. I have three children and I must be patient as I help them learn how to do things."

3) After each participant has the worksheet filled out they share their personal qualities with a partner. This gives them a chance to practice.

   It is important that participants learn to talk about their personal qualities in English so they can say these simple sentences in an interview.
6. Activity: Begin Interview Practice

Purpose: To begin preparing participants for interviews. Start with basic questions and work up to more thoughtful ones.

It's important to try to help participants see reason behind the question. Interviewers ask questions out of fear that they may hire the wrong person. It's the interviewee's task to put the interviewer at ease and answer the questions in such a way that says she/he is the right person for this job!

Interview practice will be in five parts. (See the handouts for each part.)

1) Basic Interview Questions

Start with some basic questions. Practice can be oral or written or both. The handout on Basic Interview Questions is a written exercise but it can be read to the class. For oral practice, participants answer the questions below then practice with a partner:

- What job are you looking for?
- Can you tell me about your experience?
- What days can you work?
- What hours (shift) can you work?
- What salary are you looking for?
- The salary is $___ an hour. Is that OK?
- Do you have a list of references?
- When can you start?
- The job starts on (day) at (time). Are you interested?

2) In-depth Interview Questions

Telling an Interviewer about Yourself
Telling an Interviewer about Your Experience
Telling an Interviewer about Your Future Plans

3) Questions Applicants Can Ask/ Closing the Interview

4) Interview Questions

Use these for practice interviews.
7. Activity: Resume Writing

Purpose: To assist participants write a simple resume. Although not every job requires a resume, having one can be very helpful, especially for participants with very little experience and/or English. By summarizing a person's skills and qualities in a positive way a resume is a quick introduction that helps the employer understand the applicant better.

Resume writing is time consuming. If possible, have participants help each other as you guide them in what to do.

If a participant has special skills be sure to translate those skills carefully, getting help if necessary from someone in the field (ex. skills in construction or 'economics' need to explained in some detail). You can use the List of Occupational Descriptions in the Appendix to help write what job duties are for many different kinds of jobs.

1) Show participants sample resumes and cover letter. Direct them to use their Personal Information Form to write their own resume.

2) Explain that the sample cover letter is a model for when they need to mail their resume to a company. They could use a real want ad that asks for a resume to use for their cover letter practice and address it to the company in the ad.

Non-Verbal Messages

Eye Contact
Looking a person in the eye indicates confidence, openness and honesty. Keep your head up and make occasional eye contact throughout the interview.

Voice
Your voice should be clear and loud enough to hear across a room. Practice speaking clearly, pronouncing words correctly and using proper grammar. Breathing deeply helps. Drinking tea with lemon can clear the throat.

Facial Expressions
A slight smile and open eyes conveys the impression of intelligence, alertness and friendliness. Practice the looking front of the mirror.

Posture
Walk tall, sit forward in your chair, hold your head up, keep your back and shoulders straight. Be aware of how you are sitting and standing, without being rigid.

Mannerisms
Be aware of nervous behavior you may fall into. Avoid tapping your fingers, playing with your hair, wiggling your feet, wringing your hands., etc. Use your hands to emphasize what you are saying, but don't be too wild with your gestures.

Attitude
Your body language "speaks loudly", telling the world how you feel. Watch people. See if you can tell who is angry, sad, happy, etc. just by watching them. Think about what attitude you want to convey and practice using your body language to give this message.
PERSONAL QUALITIES

I am patient. I'm relaxed when work is slow or boring. I can do routine work.

I am careful with details. My work is always correct because I check it carefully.

I am organized. I make household schedules and plans. I can easily find the things I need.

I am reliable. I always come to work on time, and I always finish my work. When I say I will do something I always do it.

I am good with my hands. I can fix things and I like to make furniture for my family and friends.

I am creative. I like to think of new ideas. I can design clothes for my family and friends.

I am fast learner. When my supervisor teaches me something new, I understand and learn quickly.

I am strong. I can lift heavy boxes. I always help my friends when they move to new apartments.

I am a hard worker. I don’t take long breaks. If I don’t finish my work I work overtime.

Basic Interview Questions

Here are some basic interview questions. There are two different ways to answer each question in the box. Write the answers to the questions.

Part 1

I prefer a permanent job, but I'm flexible.
I'd like to work part-time right now, but I can work full-time in August.
I can start immediately.
I prefer to work Monday to Friday, but anytime is OK.
I've heard the usual salary is $6.00 to $8.00 an hour. That's fine for me.
I can start on June 12th.
I'd like permanent work, but temporary work is OK, too.
Full-time is better for me, but I'm happy to accept part-time.
I can work any shift, but I prefer the day shift.
I'm open.

1. When can you start?
   b.

2. Do you want permanent or temporary work?

2. Telling an Interviewer about Your Experience.

Question: Can you tell me about your experience?

Answer: Example: In my last job I was a farmer. I worked with my family and we grew rice and many vegetables. We worked every day for many hours. I am strong and like to work outside. I know how to grow plants. I would like the job as groundskeeper. I can do this work well.

Write your answer here. Make sure you,
- say your past job title
- say the job you want
- give concrete examples of your experience
- talk about your transferable skill if you don't have experience for the job
- are enthusiastic
- are confident
- use good body language

Questions Applicants Can Ask

Question: Do you have any questions?

Answer: Always ask some questions. It shows you care about the job.

- What are the job duties?
- Is this a permanent job?
- When does the job start?
- What are the hours?
- Will I have an opportunity for advancement?

Closing the Interview

When the interviewer thanks you for coming in, you know that this is the end of the interview. You must find out what will happen next and how to follow up after the interview.

You can ask:

- When will you make your decision about the job?
- How long will you keep my application active (or on file)?
- Can I call you to find out about your decision?

Before you say, "Good-bye," you should thank the interviewer and shake hands again. Remember to use good body language. Smile, make eye contact, and be friendly.

WHAT IS A RESUMÉ AND WHO NEEDS ONE?

A resume is a short biographical sketch of your experiences, skills, and goals. It is an essential ingredient of job hunting. A well-prepared resume, summarizing your work, life, and volunteer experience will present you in your most professional, positive, and competent light. No matter what job you are applying for, having a well-crafted resume will put you well ahead of the applicant who has not taken the time to prepare one.

RULES OF THE GAME

* Be honest - don't say you're a rocket scientist if you aren't one.
* Emphasize your strongest qualities.
* Draw from your life experiences. Be sure to include any volunteer work you've done. Often, volunteer experience can be an important factor in getting a first job in the United States.
* Proofread, proofread, proofread. And then ask a friend to proofread for you. A typographical error or misspelling sends a negative message to prospective employers.

WHAT GOES ON A RESUMÉ?

1. Your name, address, and telephone number
2. The Job Objective Statement. This is usually the name of the position for which you are applying.
3. The Main Body detailing:
   * your most important qualifications and skills
   * any experience you've had in the workplace with your most recent job listed first.
   * any volunteer activities.
4. Education and Training Field. List high school attended and date of graduation (or intended date of graduation or month and year of GED attainment), or college(s) attended, degrees earned (if any) and date(s) of graduation. Also be sure to include any continuing education such as ESL or other classes you've taken since you finished your formal education.
5. Optional Information. Optional information on a resume can include membership in particular organizations, especially if you feel it helps define you as an individual: foreign language abilities (always list languages - other than English - of which you are a native speaker); special interests, especially if it supports your job objective. For example, if you're applying for a job as a life guard, it makes sense to include information about your membership on a swim team.
6. References. Indicate that references will be available on request. Have ready the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of at least three individuals who know you and will provide favorable information about you, your work-style, and/or personal characteristics. It is preferable to list current or former supervisors as references but you may include teachers, counselors, or volunteer coordinators. References should not include family members.

COVER LETTERS

If you are mailing your resume to a prospective employer, you will need to send a cover letter along with it. A good cover letter introduces you, tells the reader why you are writing and what you are sending. The letter should be neat and concise, summing up what you have to offer and reflecting your individuality.

The first sentence of your letter (called the topic sentence) should tell the reader why you are writing to him or her (i.e. "I am writing to apply for the position of part-time counter help which was advertised in last Sunday's edition of the Seattle News..."). Tell the reader why you are interested in the position and what contribution you feel you will make to the organization. Close your letter by thanking the reader for considering your qualifications and express a willingness to meet soon at his or her convenience. Be sure to date the letter and include your name, address, and telephone number.

Unit 7: Can you do a good job? Interview Practice Continues

OBJECTIVES
Participants will:
- learn about what makes a good worker.
- understand the American work ethic and compare it with work in their country.
- continue to practice job interviews and give constructive feedback to each other.
- have a practice interview with an outside person.
- learn how to follow-up the interview with a thank you letter or phone call.

MATERIALS
Handouts: A good worker is............
Interview Rating Forms
Follow Up Thank You Note
Follow Up Telephone Call

Warm up: Brainstorm: A good worker is............
Purpose: To focus on good work habits. To repeat vocabulary needed for interviews. To talk about cultural differences in the workplace.

- Ask participants to think about what a good worker is like. Write down their responses.
- Give participants the handout, A good worker .......... Read it together and have participants pronounce the words in parenthesis until they feel comfortable saying them.
- Ask participants if they believe that a good worker in the U.S. is the same as a good worker in their country. How are they different? How are they the same?
- Encourage participants to look for ways to describe themselves with these words and qualities as they talk about themselves to employers. The interview is where the employer is looks for workers with the qualities discussed above.
1. Activity: Interview practice continues with participants going over the questions, helping each other with their answers. You may remind participants of the previous exercise by saying that companies look for workers who are skilled, accurate, responsible, committed, cooperative, hard working and have initiative.

2. Activity: Practice interviews
   Purpose: The participants role-play and observe each other. This gives them a lot of practice with the questions and possible answers in interviews. Also, they learn how to give constructive feedback to each other and sharpen their focus on how to behave in an interview situation.

   1) Participants role play interviews in groups of three, with one person playing the interviewer, one person playing the interviewee and a third student acts as an observer. The observer rates the interviewee using a simple rating form, Interview Rating Form. You will need one form for each student.

   2) When all participants have had a practice interview an outside person can be asked to come and interview the participants in a more formal setting. It is very helpful if the Job Developer can come in to interview the participants.

3. Activity: Interview Follow-up
   Purpose: To explain the next steps after an interview. Often people are shy about contacting an interviewer or don’t know what to say. These activities may be difficult for some participants since they require a higher level of speaking and writing skills.

   1) Give a Follow Up Thank You Note handout to participants. They can use the name and address of the person who did a practice interview with them to write a practice thank you note.

   2) Give a Follow Up Telephone Call handout to participants. Practice making a follow up call. Read it together. Participants can take turns practicing in pairs.
A good worker.............

Warm up: Working Words/Pictures #1 - 7

Purpose: To help participants understand words employment related words listed below.

1) Show participants the pictures. Ask if they know what is happening. Define the terms.

1) hired
2) promoted
3) raise
4) demoted
5) quit
6) laid off
7) fired

2) Ask questions to promote discussion:

   Example: fired

   - How does the employer feel?
   - How does the employee feel?
   - Why do people get fired in your country?
   - Why do people get fired in the United States?
   - Did you ever get fired?

3) Ask participants which words describe happy events and which ones describe sad events. Present the Working Words Dialogs. Participants can practice in pairs.

GENERAL COMMUNICATIONS SKILLS AND PRACTICE:

Purpose:

- Participants will learn about and practice communication techniques. Facilitator explains the technique and the reason for it.
- Participants practice reading dialogs.
- The dialogs can be practiced without reading by demonstrating in an actual conversation with a participant and guiding them to use the proper phrase.
1. Activity: HOW MUCH DO YOU ALREADY KNOW ABOUT U.S. CULTURE?

Begin with an exercise to find out how much participants know.

Facilitator reads the questions. Participants raise hands to respond to true or false. Facilitator records results on board. Give correct answers (1 is true. 2 is false. 3 is true. 4 is true) and discuss. Discussion leads into the following activities.

Answer true or false:

1. If you don't understand what someone says, it's OK to interrupt and ask for an explanation.

2. Most Americans can speak another language besides English. So they understand how hard it is to speak English as a second language.

3. It is OK to repeat what someone says so you can be sure you understood them.

4. Americans are not comfortable with silence in a conversation. They are more verbal than nonverbal.

1. Giving Feedback

Purpose: To practice verbal and nonverbal ways to give feedback.

Activity 1: Discussion - Handout Giving Feedback

Purpose: To talk about problems that happen when a listener does not show they understand by giving feedback. Explain that if Americans don't receive a lot of verbal feedback, they may feel that the other person is not listening, is bored or angry, or that he or she disagrees.

1) Give participants handout. Talk about the picture.
2) Have participants repeat feedback phrases.

Activity 2: Giving Feedback Practice Dialog

The facilitator can read the supervisor's part and the participant can just use feedback techniques, say "OK", or "I understand", etc. If participants can read they can take turns in the dialog.
2. Interrupting
Purpose: To explain when and how to interrupt a speaker. The word “interrupt” usually has a negative meaning in English. A person who interrupts does not let the other speaker finish speaking. Americans often become impatient or angry with someone who interrupts too often. However, in an interaction with someone from another culture, it is sometimes necessary to interrupt politely to ask a question. Most Americans will expect to be asked right away if there is a question about understanding something they have said.

Phrases for Interrupting Politely:

"Excuse me, I don't understand."

"I'm sorry, but I have a question."

"Could I ask a question?"

"Sorry to interrupt, but I didn't understand."

"Could I interrupt for a quick second?"

"Just a quick interruption, if it's okay."

Activity: Interrupting Practice
Purpose: To practice interrupting.

1) Facilitator explains again that interrupting is OK if one must ask a question.

2) Facilitator writes the interrupting phrases on the board. The class practices saying the phrases together.

3) Facilitator asks participants to listen while he/she reads a paragraph (Choose paragraph A for easy or B for more difficult English level.). Participants must ask every time they hear a word or phrase that they don't understand. After the exercise, ask the follow-up questions.

Example: Facilitator: "I am going to talk about how Americans feel about quitting a job."

Participant: "Uh, excuse me, but what does 'quitting' mean?"
I am going to talk about how Americans feel about quitting a job. Sometimes people decide that they do not want to continue working at their present job and they decide to quit. It is important that they understand their contract when they quit. Usually it is necessary to give at least two weeks' notice before quitting. If you belong to a union, they can sometimes help you get better wages or working conditions.

Paragraph A

If you are in a union, you must pay dues each month. This is used by the union to help you. At some workplaces, the dues are deducted from you paycheck; at other, you are responsible for paying your own dues.

One important job unions do is to help workers get good work contracts. The contract describes the working hours, wages, benefits and grievance procedures workers will have.

Questions:
1. Did you give nonverbal signals (a frown, raised hand) that you wanted to interrupt?
2. Did the facilitator notice your signal?
3. Did you have to speak to get the facilitator to stop and let you ask a question?
4. Did you have any difficulty interrupting the facilitator?

Paragraph B
3. Asking for Focused Repetition
Purpose: To explain that when you ask someone to repeat something, it helps to tell them exactly what word or phrase you need to hear again. This is called focused repetition.

Often in cross-cultural communication if a non-native speaker says “I don’t understand” the American will not know what part to repeat and goes through the whole sentence or explanation, sometimes even more quickly!

Ways to ask for Focused Repetition:
1. Use question words: Who What Where When Why How example: “Where do you want me to put it?”

2. Repeat the word(s) that came just before the word you want repeated. Make your voice rise as it would with a question.
   example: A: “Put the boxes near the freight elevator.”
           B: “Put them near the.........?” (The speaker then repeats freight elevator.)

3. If you cannot repeat the words the other person has said, ask the speaker directly.
   example: “Could you say that last part again?”
             “Could you repeat what you said after______?” (Say the part of the sentence that you can say.)

Activity: Asking for Focused Repetition

1) Facilitator explains what focused repetition is and gives examples (above).
2) Participants work with a partner taking turns reading or saying the sentence.

If you are person A, when you see three X’s (XXX) in the sentence, cover your mouth and say the words in parenthesis. Person B should not hear the words clearly.

If you are person B,
1. repeat the word or words before the unclear ones and use a question voice, or
2. use a question word in place of the unclear words.

If you are person A, repeat the words, but clearly this time.

Example: A: “Give me the XXX (chalk).”
           B: “Give you the ......?”
           A: “Chalk.”

Example: A: “My child is feeling XXX (sick).”
           B: “Feeling how?”
           A: “Sick.”
           B: “Oh. That’s too bad.”
4. Asking for Meaning/Checking Information
Purpose: People often ask for repetition when they really need explanation. To ask for meaning or check information requires questions that show an explanation is needed.

Ways to Ask for Meaning:

1. Try to repeat the word or phrase that you didn't understand. Use a question voice.
2. Ask for spelling.
3. Repeat the word or phrase and say, "I don't understand that." or "Excuse me. What does ______ mean?"
4. Check to see if you heard correctly. Say, "I'm sorry, did you say ______?"

Practice Asking for Meaning/Checking Information:

1) Facilitator explains the phrases that ask for meaning (above).

2) Participants work with a partner. Facilitator asks them to tell each other how to do something, for example, how you did your last job or how you cook something.

3) Participants use the language necessary to ask for meaning to ask their partner to explain anything they do not understand.

WORKPLACE COMMUNICATIONS SKILLS AND PRACTICE:

5. Making Mistakes
Purpose: Look at cultural differences about making mistakes. Also, this exercise can give an understanding to the facilitator of what participants already know about the language for apologizing, explaining and helping to correct a situation when a mistake has been made.

Activity 1: OOPS! I GOOFED!
The worksheet can be done orally with facilitator asking the questions and guiding the discussion.

Activity 2, 3, 4: Apologizing and Admitting Mistakes
   Apologizing and Explaining Making Polite Requests
Use these worksheets for additional practice.
6. Explaining Absence From Work

Purpose: To emphasize the importance of attendance and to practice calling in to explain an absence. A leading reason for people being fired from their jobs is too many absences. Only in the case of an emergency or serious illness should a worker stay home. Explain what an emergency is. Also, reliable transportation and child care must be arranged before a person takes a job.

Activity 1: Practice Explaining Absence From Work
Participants will practice the dialog in pairs.

Activity 2: OK and Not OK
Purpose: To discuss good and bad reasons for missing work. The reasons can be read by the facilitator if reading is a problem.

Discussion: Child Care Back-up Plan
Go over Child Care Back-up Plan form with participants. Help them see the importance of having another plan if their baby-sitter or child care plan doesn't work. They may not be able to do this right away and some may claim that there is absolutely no one else they can turn to. Explain that this must be resolved before taking a job. Encourage people in the class to help each other think creatively about the situation. Of course, if there is no immediate solution and if this is true for many, this problem goes on the Barrier to Employment list and on the Parking Lot list!

7. Asking For a Change in Schedule

Purpose: To explain that most new employees especially in entry level jobs do not get a choice about schedule. After an employee has proven him/herself a request can be made to make a schedule change.

Warm Up: Discussion: Ask participants the following questions:

When you are hired you start with a schedule of hours. There are three kinds of shifts: day shift, 8 a.m. - 4 p.m., swing shift, 4 p.m. - midnight, and night shift, 11 p.m. - 7 a.m.
Sometimes you must change your schedule.

1. How do you change your schedule?

2. When do you ask to change your work schedule?

3. Is it difficult for your supervisor to change your schedule? Why?
Activity 1: Asking for a Change in Schedule Dialogs

1) Facilitator reads the dialogs and the class answers the questions. If participants are able they can read the dialogs in pairs.

2) Facilitator reminds the class:

Remember:
These are things to do to change your work schedule:
1. State your needs. Do not demand, but ask.
2. Give a good reason.
4. Give your supervisor as much time as possible to make the change. (Always talk to your employer at a good time, when it's not very busy.)

Activity 2: Practice: Asking for a change in schedule
Participants work in pairs or with the facilitator using the following scenarios on the handout Asking for a Change in Schedule - Problem Solving.
8. How to Report a Problem
Purpose: To help participants understand when, how, and to whom to report a problem.

Warm Up: Dialog
1) Facilitator reads the dialog to participants.
2) Facilitator asks the questions to begin a discussion about speaking up at work.

Mr. Smith: What happened to the windows in back? Only half of them are clean.
Rajan: I couldn't reach the top.
Mr. Smith: Why didn't you ask for a ladder?
Rajan: I'm sorry. I thought you would be angry.
Mr. Smith: Well, I'm angry now. You should have asked.

Questions:
1. Why were some windows dirty? Why didn't Rajan clean them?
2. Why didn't he ask for a ladder? How did he feel?
3. How does Mr. Smith feel? What is he angry about?

Activity 1: Reporting Problems
Purpose: To discuss situations where reporting a problem is important. Also to talk about other people who can help, like a union representative or payroll clerk.

Facilitator - gives participants the Reporting Problems handout.
- reads and explains each situation.
- asks the questions.

Activity 2: How to Report a Problem
Purpose: To give participants sample language to report problems.

1) Facilitator explains that there are three simple parts to reporting a problem.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Polite opener</th>
<th>Stating the problem</th>
<th>Asking for help</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Excuse me.</td>
<td>My machine is broken.</td>
<td>What should I do?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I have a problem.</td>
<td>I need a ladder.</td>
<td>Do you know where it is?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I'm sorry.</td>
<td>I ran out of window cleaner.</td>
<td>Where can I get some?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>May I see you?</td>
<td>I think my paycheck is wrong.</td>
<td>Can you check it for me?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

2) Give participants the worksheet or simply describe the situation for them and they practice asking for help.
9. Discussion: Worker Evaluations: How Am I Doing?
Purpose: To educate participants about how employees are evaluated. Most companies will review a worker's performance at least every six months. It is important for new workers to know this and be able to respond to any corrections in their work.

1) Give participants the handout HOW AM I DOING? Ask what they think is happening. Read to them the conversation and the questions below.

2) To class: To evaluate means to tell how good or how bad something is. When employers evaluate employees, they say how well or how badly an employee does the job. Employers evaluate employees' job skills, but they also evaluate other things.

In the U.S. employers do job performance evaluations regularly. Sometimes they are every six months. Sometimes they are every year. Your supervisor usually does the evaluation.

Evaluations show your strengths and your weaknesses. This helps you to do your job better. Supervisors also use your evaluation to decide to promote you, fire you or give you a raise.

How are employees evaluated in your country?

What do employees evaluate in your country?

2. Activity: Vera's Evaluation (Dialog)
Purpose: To introduce the idea of an employee evaluation. This dialog also introduces some workplace vocabulary that is useful. Participants can read it aloud or two people can role-play the evaluation.

Some questions you may ask are:

- What do you think Eva's job title is?
- What does Eva do well?
- What does Eva need to improve?
- Did Eva get a raise? How much was it?
3. Activity: Practice completing evaluation forms. This is for B-1 or B-2 level English.

   1.) Go over sample evaluation form, Work Performance Evaluation Sheet.

   2.) Give participants Employee Description #1 and an evaluation form and do an evaluation together.

   NOTE: Several descriptions may talk about the same performance area. For example: "types 70 wpm accurately" shows above average or 4 in accuracy.

   "takes 30 minute breaks" when rule is 20 minutes and

   "arrives about 8:10 a.m. 3 out of 5 working day’s" would show poor or 1 in commitment

   3.) Give some participants copies of Employee Descriptions #2 and others Employee Description #3. Participants will work in pairs and must decide together how to rate the employee. After they finish, participants share their results with the class.

"Sad" working words: ________________________________

1. Substitute a "happy" working word in the dialog. Work with a partner and take turns being A and B:

   A: Hi, _______________. How are you?
      (partner's name)

   B: Great! I got _______________ yesterday.
      (working word: ex. a raise)

   A: Really!? That's great! Congratulations!

2. Substitute a "sad" working word in the dialog. Work with a partner and take turns being A and B:

   A: Hi, _______________. How are you?
      (partner's name)

   B: Not so good. I got _______________ yesterday.
      (working word: ex. got fired)

GIVING FEEDBACK

Americans ask for feedback when they say things like:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>&quot;You got that?&quot;</th>
<th>&quot;Do you understand?&quot;</th>

Ways to give feedback:

Verbal:
- "Oh. Sure."
- "Yeah..."
- "Well..."
- "Uh huh."
- "Uhm mmm..."
- "Uh..."
- "Oh. I see."
- "Hmmm?....."
- "All right."
- "Okay."
- "I understand."
- "I don't understand."

Nonverbal:
- Make eye contact with the speaker.
- Smile.
- Nod your head.
- Look confused when you don't understand.
- Look surprised when something surprises you.
GIVING FEEDBACK DIALOG

A supervisor and a worker are in a hotel kitchen. She supervisor is explaining to the worker how to use the dishwasher. One person reads the part of the worker and the other reads the supervisor's part. Every time the worker sees a blank line (__________), he or she will give feedback that means, "I'm listening and I understand."

The worker will use the following phrases:

"Uh huh." "Oh, I see." "Okay." "Uhm hmm." "All right."

Supervisor: "Okay, for this job you need to wear gloves."
Worker: "__________" (Worker finds a pair of gloves and puts them on.)

Supervisor: "All right. Now, first you make sure that this light is off." (The supervisor points to the light.)
Worker: "__________"

Supervisor: "And then you move this part..."
Worker: "__________"

Supervisor: "...like this and open the door carefully and watch out for the steam."
Worker: "__________"

Supervisor: "Wait a few seconds for the dishes to cool down..."
Worker: "__________"

Supervisor: "...and then you can unload everything."
Worker: "__________"

Questions:
1. Did the worker give feedback after every sentence?
2. Did the worker ever give feedback in the middle of the speaker's sentence?
3. In your own language and culture:
   - How often do you give feedback when you are listening? In the middle of the sentence? Only at the end of the sentence? After two or three sentences?
   - Are you completely quiet when you listen?
   - Do you give nonverbal feedback?
(If you are not sure about your answers try reading the dialog with someone from your own culture in your own language. Compare how you give feedback in your own language with the way the worker does it in English.)
ASKING FOR FOCUSED REPETITION

Participant A: Read the sentences. (Facilitator can play person A if reading is a problem.)

Participant B: Ask focused repetition questions.

Take turns being A and B

1. A: “I think my child has the XXX (measles).”
2. A: “We have to come to work tomorrow at XXX (6:30).”
3. A: “There’s a lot of traffic on XXX (Rainier Blvd.).”
4. A: “Give these to Mr. XXX (Baxter).”
5. A: “That box goes XXX (under) the table.”
6. A: “Don’t forget to XXX (fill out) your time card.”

EXPLAINING ABSENCES FROM WORK

It is 7:45 in the morning. Boris has the flu. His fever is 102 degrees. He is calling his supervisor at work:

Secretary: American Building Maintenance. Can I help you?
Boris: Yes, may I speak to Charlie Jones please?
Secretary: Just a minute please.

Boris: Hello. This is Boris Vlasyuk.
Charlie: Hello, Boris. What can I do for you?
Boris: Charlie, I won't be in today?
Charlie: What's the problem?
Boris: I have the flu.
Charlie: That's too bad. Do you think you'll be in tomorrow?
Boris: Sorry. What did you say?
Charlie: Are you coming back tomorrow?
Boris: I hope so.
Charlie: Okay. I hope you feel better.
Boris: Thanks. Good-bye.

Role Play: After participants practice the dialog ask for volunteers to do a role play with you as the supervisor for the following situations. Ask class to give feedback about the conversation.

1. Your child is very sick. She has to stay home for one day. You can't get a babysitter because the child is contagious until tomorrow.

2. Your car broke down on the way to work.

3. You broke your arm last night. Your arm is in a cast but the doctor wants you to rest for two days before going back to work.
OK AND NOT OK

REASONS FOR BEING ABSENT FROM WORK

Read the following reasons for being absent from work. If the reason is acceptable, write OK. If the reason is not acceptable, write Not OK.

_____ 1. You have the flu.

_____ 2. You are too tired.

_____ 3. Your car won't start.

_____ 4. You are moving today. You told your manager two weeks ago.

_____ 5. You broke your leg yesterday.

_____ 6. Your brother just arrived from Thailand and is staying at your house.

_____ 7. Your wife had a baby last night.

_____ 8. You have to go to your grandfather's funeral.

_____ 9. Your children are sick. Yesterday your wife stayed home with the children, but today she is going to work and you have to stay with the children.

_____ 10. You are going to go to a family meeting in another state. You will be gone a week, but you have used all your vacation days for this year.
Child Care Back-Up Plan

It is important to have child care back-up plans so that you will not be absent from work too many days. When your children are sick or your baby-sitter is sick, or there is no school, you must have someone who can be with them. This must be done before you take a job.

Please write down three child care plans you can use if your usual plan doesn't work.

1. __________________________________________

2. __________________________________________

3. __________________________________________

My child care back-up plan is not complete. I will look at these child care back-up plans immediately:

☐ Family members
☐ Friends ☐ Neighbors
☐ Daycare (summer)
☐ Church members
☐ I meet new people at my children's school's PTA, co-op or tenants association.
☐ Trade a work day (if you are absent on Tuesday, then work Saturday.)
☐ I will work an opposite schedule from my spouse and there will always be someone home for the children.
☐ I will take turns staying home with my spouse when the children are sick or on vacation.
☐ I will use my vacation time.
☐ I will arrange to take unpaid time off from my job.
Asking for a Change in Schedule Dialogs

Dialog 1:

Peter: Mr. Walters! I need to talk to you. You have to change my work schedule to the day shift!

Mr. Walters: That's very interesting. I have to change your schedule. And is there a good reason for this - demand?

Peter: Well, I have a new girlfriend! Right now we're on opposite shifts, so there's no time to see her.

Dialog 2:

Phuong: May I speak with you Mrs. Garcia?

Mrs. Garcia: Sure, Phuong, how can I help you?

Phuong: I need to change my work schedule. My class starts tomorrow morning so I need to work the swing shift.

Mrs. Garcia: Well, I'm glad you are studying but I cannot change your schedule so quickly. I'll see what I can do but you may have to wait until next quarter.

Dialog 3:

Mariya: Mr. Black, may I speak to you for a moment? If it is possible, I really need to change my schedule to the evening shift.

Mr. Black: Why do you need to change your schedule?

Mariya: My children are going to be home in the morning, and I need to take care of them.

Mr. Black: Well, Mariya, I understand your problem. But I need some time to make a new schedule. Can you wait for two weeks?

Mariya: Of course, I can wait for two weeks. The children get out of school in three weeks. Would that be long enough for you to make the change?

Questions:

1. Do you think Mr. Walters will agree to change Peter's schedule? Why?

2. Phuong did not get her schedule changed and she has to wait to go to school. What did she do wrong?

3. Do you think Mr. Black will change Mariya's schedule? Why?
ASKING FOR A CHANGE IN SCHEDULE - Problem Solving

Work with a partner. What should they do??

Remember:
These are things to do to change your work schedule:
1. State your needs. Do not demand, but ask.
2. Give a good reason.
4. Give your supervisor as much time as possible to make the change.
(Always talk to your employer at a good time, when it's not very busy.)

1. Dung's car isn't working, and she needs to come to work by bus. She is afraid to travel at night. She wants to work the day shift. How should Dung ask for a change in her work schedule?

State your needs.
Dung:

Give a good reason.
Dung:

Be flexible.
Supervisor: I can work out a change. I need some more time, though. Can you wait until the end of the month?
Dung:

2. Antonia's sister is returning to Mexico and can't take care of her children anymore. Antonia can work only the night shift. That way her husband can take care of the children.

State your needs.
Antonia:

Give a good reason.
Antonia:

Be flexible.
Supervisor: I will speak to the other housekeepers. Can you work the day shift some of the time?
Antonia:
REPORTING PROBLEMS

Work with a partner:

Here are some problems. Do you think you should tell your supervisor about them?

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Problem</th>
<th>Yes</th>
<th>No</th>
<th>Sometimes/Maybe</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. You run out of supplies.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>

<tr>
<td>2. You need to go to the doctor during work.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. You feel sick.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. You can't keep up with the work.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. You don't understand part of the job.</td>
<td></td>

<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11. You make a mistake.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Questions:
1. What will happen if you report each of these problems?
2. Will your supervisor be angry? Will other workers be angry?
3. Will you get in trouble? Will your supervisor be glad? Will your supervisor help you?
4. If you don't tell your boss, who should you tell: nobody, another worker, a union representative, or someone else?
HOW TO REPORT A PROBLEM

To report a problem, use a polite opener, state the problem, ask for help.
Ask participants to add to these lists:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Polite opener</th>
<th>Stating the problem</th>
<th>Asking for help</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Excuse me.</td>
<td>My machine is broken.</td>
<td>What should I do?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I have a problem.</td>
<td>I need a ladder.</td>
<td>Do you know where it is?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I'm sorry.</td>
<td>I ran out of window cleaner.</td>
<td>Where can I get some?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>May I see you?</td>
<td>I think my paycheck is wrong.</td>
<td>Can you check it for me?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Practice:
Work with a partner.
1. Report these problems to someone.
2. Tell who you would ask for help.

1. Your machine isn't working.
   example: Worker: Excuse me. Do you have a minute?
             Supervisor: What’s up?
             Worker: My machine isn’t working. Could you help me with it?

2. You ran out of price tags and you don’t know where to get them.
3. You don’t know how to turn off your machine.
4. Your vacuum cleaner bag is full. You don’t where to find a new one.
5. You feel sick.
6. You can’t remember what to do.
HOW AM I DOING?

Before You Read
(making predictions, relating experiences to reading, establishing prior knowledge)

Look at the pictures.
Talk about the pictures with a partner.
Read the questions.
Write the answers on the lines.

1. What do you see in picture 1?

   In picture 2?

2. How do you think the employee in picture 1 feels?

   How do you think the employee in picture 2 feels?

3. When does your supervisor evaluate you (tell you if you are doing a good job or a bad job)?

from Workskills Book 1, Prentice Hall Regents
VERA'S EVALUATION

Mrs. Nelson, the manager of Thrifty Department Store calls Eva into her office.

Eva: What's a six-month evaluation?

Mrs. Nelson: An evaluation is when I tell you about the things you do well in your job. I also tell about the things you need to improve. All our employees have an annual evaluation. New employees also have a six-month evaluation.

Eva: Oh, now I understand.

Mrs. Nelson: Eva, I like the way you help the customers. You smile and listen to them. You try to answer their questions. You also do a good job putting the stock on the shelves and putting the price signs where the customers can read them.

Eva: Thanks, Mrs. Nelson.

Mrs. Nelson: There are two things I want you to improve. When you hear a cashier call for a price check, go immediately to help. Our customers don't like to wait at the cashier. Also, when there is a problem with the stock, come to me immediately. Don't wait. If I'm not here, write a note and put it on my desk. Keep up the good work. Your next check will have a 50c per hour raise. No please sign your evaluation form.

Eva: OK and thanks, Mrs. Nelson.

improve - do better annual - once a year evaluation - a supervisor's opinion about how well or badly you do a job price check - to ask for the price of something that has no price on it immediately - without waiting; right now stock - the things a store sells raise - an increase in the money you make

Warm up: How much do you take home??
Purpose: To help participants understand the system of deductions from paychecks.
Read with class Understanding Paycheck Deductions.
Answer the questions and discuss whether there are paycheck deductions in their native country.

1. Activity: Reading a Pay Stub
Purpose: To help participants become familiar with pay stubs and learn how to read them. Remind participants to save their pay stubs. They may need them to get Food Stamps, Financial Aid or to figure out pay problems.
- Give participants the handout Understanding Paychecks.
- Explain the Definitions.
- Class does matching column.
2. Activity: Practice with Pay Stubs, Worksheets 1, 2
   Use sample pay stubs and answer questions. Participants work in pairs. It will be helpful to make overheads of these so that you can go over the answers together.

3. Activity: Benefits Dialog
   Read the dialog together. Ask the questions. Discuss what the participants know about benefits.

4. Activity: Understanding Benefits/ Quiz
   1.) Brainstorm with the class all the benefits they can think of. Explain what they are and add any they may have left out. Participants with more English can use the worksheet.
   2.) Quiz the class by reading the sentences and asking them to write True or False. If possible, participants can work in pairs where one person can read and they can work together.

5. Activity: Worker Interview
   Ask participants if they know someone who is working. Tell them to ask their friend if they can ask them about their benefits. Choose three or four questions to ask. If the participant can read give them the interview worksheet.
   OR
   Invite a client to the class who is working now. Have the participants ask that person questions about their benefits or anything else about their job. It is important to have questions ready to ask before the interview.

6. Activity: Reading a Work Schedule
   Use Work Schedule Worksheets #1, #2. (Explain any new words.)
   Participants work in pairs to answer the questions.

7. Activity: Unions
   Purpose: To explain what unions are and how they can help workers. To define some union terms.
   1.) Ask participants if they know what a union is. Explain that a union is an organization of workers who join together to get better salaries, working conditions or solve problems with employers or management.
   2.) Show participants Grievance handout.
   Ask the participants to look at the pictures and ask:
   - Who do you think these people are?
   - What is the problem?
   - How did it get solved?
   Read the story together. Ask if there were worker organizations like this in their native country.
8. Activity: Union Definitions (Handout)
   Purpose: To help participants understand a little more about unions. These terms may not have much meaning if participants have never worked. A brief mention of the terms and especially the workers' right to join a union is important.

9. Activity: Workers' Rights
   Purpose: To explain that there are laws to protect workers in three areas:
   1. Health and Safety
   2. Equal Treatment
   3. Pay and Work Hours
   And to give participants information on where to get help if their rights are not respected

   Workers have the right to a safe and healthy workplace, fair treatment (no discrimination based on gender, race, religion, national origin, age or disability).

   1. Health and Safety
      Facilitator and class read and discuss the handout Health and Safety.

   2. Equal Treatment
      1) Facilitator explains:
         Employers must treat workers equally. Employers must not treat workers differently because of their gender, race, religion national origin, age, or disability. This is discrimination that is illegal.
         Sometimes employers treat workers differently because of their different qualifications: experience, language skills, how much work they do and how well they work. This is not illegal.

         2) English Test Picture:
            Show this picture to the class, either copy or make a transparency.
            Discuss:
            How many applicants are there for this position? Where are they from? Who does the employer give a test to? Why? Is that fair? Is it discrimination?
            This is a case of discrimination. The employer must give the test to ALL applicants or NO applicants.
3) No Raise Pictures #1, #2:
   Show Picture 1.
   Discuss:
   Three Americans and one Chinese person got hired in January. They all had a starting pay of $5 per hour. After six months, the three Americans got raises. The Chinese man did not. Do you think that is discrimination?

   The answer should be, "It depends."

   Discuss:
   The second picture shows why. If the Chinese man did good work, he should have gotten a raise and this may be a case of national origin discrimination. If, however, the quality (or quantity) of his work was low, it was not discrimination.

3. Pay and Work Hours
   Facilitator reads and explains Pay and Work Hours laws.
   Participants work in pairs to decide if laws were broken in Case Studies and if there are similar laws in their countries.
10. Activity: Employment Related Forms

Purpose: To understand and practice filling out a W-4 form.

To understand what papers prove work eligibility for an I-9 form.

1) W-4 Form
   - Describe the purpose of the form.
   - Fill out a practice form.

A W-4 form must be filled out so your employer knows how much federal and state tax to take out of your paycheck. The amount of money the government will take out of the check depends on how much money you make and who you support.

Allowances:
The government gives you allowances or credits for people you support including yourself. The people you support are your dependents, people in your household who do not work. You get extra allowance for people you support who are blind or over 65. For each allowance you have the government will take out less money from your paycheck.

Exemptions:
You can be exempt from paying taxes. This means the government cannot take any money out of your paycheck because you don't make enough money to be taxed. If you work part-time you will probably be exempt.

Fill out the W-4 form. Follow the directions:

1. Print you name and address.
2. Write your social security number
3. Check married or single. If you are separated or divorced, check single.
4. If you are not exempt, write the number of allowances you get at the end of line 4.
5. Skip line 5.
6. If you are exempt: Write the year for which you are exempt.

   Print the word exempt after the black arrow.

   Check boxes 6a and 6b.

   If you are a full time participant, check box 6c.

7. Sign your name and write the date.

Note: DO NOT WRITE IN BOXES 7, 8, AND 9.
2.) I-9 Form Some employers will ask for a green card or other documents when legally the worker has the right to choose which documents to show. It is very important that participants know that they have this choice.

- Facilitator describes the purpose of the form.
- Participants fill out the top portion of the I-9
- Discuss which documents are enough to prove identity and work authorization and locate names of documents on I-9.

1. Purpose: Show class a copy of the I-9 form and explain that when you get a job, the employer needs to make sure you are allowed to work and he/she looks at your documents. The information from your documents goes on the form. You fill out the top and the employer fills out the bottom. The employer needs to keep this form and sometimes someone from the government comes to check the forms. The employer need to check the documents and fill out the I-9 form for all employees.

2. Which Documents: Tell the class that you need
   - either one document from list A, (this is a document that shows both identity and work eligibility such as a Green Card.)
   - or one from both list B (shows identity, such a driver's license) and list C (shows work eligibility, such as a Social Security card.).

3. Ask participants to fill out the top of the I-9 form.

4. Explain that if they show a driver's license or WA State I.D. and a Social Security Card that is enough to prove work eligibility.

See Appendix for information on Document Discrimination/ Workers Can Choose Which Documents to Show and how to report cases where employers demand to see certain documents.
Paychecks and pay stubs: This is a paycheck and a pay stub. Before you cash your check, you should always check your pay stub to make sure that your pay is correct.

Pay periods are not the same at all workplaces. Sometimes workers are paid on the 15th and on the 30th/31st of each month. At some workplaces, workers are paid every other week on the same day, and at others workers are paid every week. Each worker must find out what the pay period is at his workplace.

Study this pay stub and the definitions on the next page. Each numbered arrow points to where that defined term appears on the pay stub.

From Speaking Up at Work, Oxford
1. Susana Espinosa was very happy with her first job in the United States. She was making $5.75 an hour as an assembler.

2. Then she got her first paycheck. She worked 80 hours, so she was expecting a check for $460. ($5.75 \times 80 = $460)

3. Susana looked at her check. It was only for $321.20!

4. Susana showed her check to her friend, Tom.
5. Tom looked at Susana's check stub and explained it to her.

The check stub looked like this:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>460.00</td>
<td>36.80</td>
<td>69.00</td>
<td>33.00</td>
<td>321.20</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

This is what Tom explained to Susana.
"The money taken out of your check is for deductions.
FICA is another name for Social Security. When you are 62, you can apply to get a check every month.
Federal income tax is money that goes to the government of the United States.
State income tax is money that goes to the government of the state you live in."

Discussion:

Do you have these deductions in your country?

- FICA (Social Security): [ ] yes [ ] no
- Federal income tax: [ ] yes [ ] no
- State income tax: [ ] yes [ ] no

Benefits Dialog

Read the dialog below and ask the following questions:

Thuy: This is my last day here.

Loc: How come? Where are you going?

Thuy: I got a job in a restaurant. It pays more.

Loc: Will you get the same benefits?

Thuy: No, but I need the money.

Loc: What about insurance?

Thuy: I'm never sick. And I'll get $1.00 an hour more.

Loc: Money isn't everything.

Thuy: But I need the money to feed my family.

Questions:

1. What is Thuy going to do? Why does he want to quit and change jobs? What does Loc ask him? Will Thuy get insurance in his next job?

2. What are benefits? (Write down participants' responses.) Why does Loc think they are important? Why does Thuy think money is more important?

3. In your country, do workers get benefits? What are they? In your country, what happens if a worker gets sick? Who pays for the hospital? Does the worker get sick leave?

4. What do you think is more important - money in your check or benefits? What can happen if you have no benefits? What can happen if you don't have enough money?

5. Do you think it is good to change jobs for a little more money? What do you think Thuy should do?
UNDERSTANDING BENEFITS

Benefits: When you apply for a job, you need to find out what benefits you will get. Benefits are not the same at all companies. It is also important to remember that part-time workers don't usually get full benefits.

Paid vacation: Workers get a certain number of paid vacation days a year. They usually get longer vacations if they have worked for the company for several years.

Paid holidays: Workers get paid on a certain number of holidays, such as Christmas and Thanksgiving, that they don't work.

Sick days: If workers are sick, they can take a day off and still get paid. The number of sick days workers get a year is depends on the company.

Health insurance: Workers get help from their companies to pay for health insurance for themselves and their families.

Maternity or paternity leave: Companies allow mothers or fathers to stay home and take care of their newborn babies for a few months. Usually workers are not paid for this time.

Unemployment compensation: If workers lose their jobs, if they are laid off, they receive a check that is smaller than their salary until they can find another job. If a worker has only worked at a company for a short time, he/she may not get unemployment compensation.

Workers' compensation: If workers get hurt on the job, they receive money to live on until they can work again.

Retirement pension: Usually when people are about 65 years old, they stop working. This is called retirement. For every year that an employee works, the company saves a certain amount of money for the employee to live on when she/he retires. This money is called a retirement pension. At some companies both the employer and the employee put money in the pension.

Profit Sharing: If the company makes money, all the workers get some of that money.
Benefits Quiz

Write T for true or F for false:

____ 1. Part-time workers usually get full-time benefits.

____ 2. Workers are not paid for holidays.

____ 3. When women take maternity leave, they are usually paid their salary.

____ 4. If workers miss work because they are sick, they will not be paid.

____ 5. Workers who have worked for a company for five years get more paid vacation days than new workers.

____ 6. If workers have health insurance, they will get help with their medical expenses.

____ 7. Some companies help workers pay for health insurance.

____ 8. Workers' compensation pays workers if they are hurt on the job and can't work.

____ 9. A pension is money used by workers when they retire.

____ 10. Unemployment compensation pays a full salary to workers when they lose their jobs.

Grievances

The worker explains the problem to the union representative in her workplace.

The worker and union representative discuss the problem with the employee's supervisor.

The worker and the supervisor come to an agreement and solve the problem.

from Speaking Up at Work, Oxford
Union Definitions

Union: A union is an organization of workers who join together to:
- get better salaries
- get better working conditions
- solve problems with employers/management

Open shop: In some workplaces both union and non-union workers can be hired; you don't have to be in the union to work.

Closed shop: All workers have to join a union.

Dues: Money you pay each month to the union. The union uses the money to help workers. In some workplaces the dues are deducted from your paycheck; at others, you are responsible for paying your own dues.

Contracts: A contract is an agreement between the employer/management and workers/labor. The contract says what working hours, wages and benefits workers will have. It also describes working conditions and grievance procedures (ways to solve problems).

Strike: If management and labor cannot agree on a contract, the workers can stop work or go on strike until their employers agree to give them higher pay or better working conditions. During a strike workers form a picket line to keep non-union workers and customers away from the company. By striking, workers hope to force their employers to sign a fair contract.

During a strike the union helps workers talk to management. They also help workers live during the strike by giving them food and money. When labor and management finally agree and sign a contract, the strike is over, and the workers go back to work.

Grievance: If a worker has a problem that cannot be solved by talking to a supervisor, he/she can ask a union representative for help. The union representative will help both worker and the supervisor find an answer to the problem.

Remember:
1. The law says all workers can join unions, regardless of race, color, creed (religion), sex, or national origin.
2. An employer cannot fire you just because you join a union.
3. If you work for a company that has only union employees, you must join the union.
Health and Safety Laws

Read the laws. Did you have laws like these in your country? Work with a partner and talk about the case studies.

Laws: The employer must provide:
1. Restrooms - The restrooms must be clean. They must work.
2. Heat and Air Conditioning - The temperature must be comfortable.
3. A Place to Rest - There must be an area to take a break and rest. This area must be different from the rest rooms.
4. Safety Equipment - If your job is dangerous, the employer must give you equipment to make it safer. For example, gloves, hard hat.

CASE STUDIES:

1.) Sen works in an electronics company. The employees are working with a new chemical. Every day at work, Sen gets a headache. She thinks the chemical gives her a headache.

Pay and Work Hours Laws

1. Minimum Wage: Every employer who pays wages must pay the minimum wage or more. In Washington State the minimum wage is $5.25.

2. Overtime:
   a. 40 hour work week
      Full time = 40 hours week
      Overtime = more than 40 hr/wk
      Overtime pay = 1 1/2 times regular pay for overtime hours

      example:
      - regular pay: $6.00/hr.
      - 1 1/2 times reg. pay: $9.00/hr.

      42 hours work: $258
      40 X $6 = $240
      2 X $9 = 18
      Total pay: $258

   b. 8-hour work day
      Full time = 8 hours per day
      Overtime = more than 8 hrs/day
      Overtime = 1 1/2 times regular pay for hours 9 to 12
      2 times regular pay for more than 12 hours

      example:
      - regular pay: $6.00/hr.
      - 1 1/2 times reg. pay: $9.00/hr.
      - 2 times regular pay: $12.00/hr.

      13 hours work: $96
      8 X $6 = $48
      4 X $9 = $36
      1 X $12 = $12

   c. days off
      Normal work week at regular pay = 5 to 6 days
      Overtime = more than 6 days in a row
      Overtime pay = 1 1/2 times regular pay for 7th day
      2 times reg. pay for days in a row after 7th day

      example:
      - regular pay = $6

      A worker works 8 days in a row, Monday to Monday. The pay should be:
      - Mon: $6/hr.
      - Tues: $6/hr.
      - Wed: $6/hr.
      - Thurs: $6/hr.
      - Fri: $6/hr.
      - Sat: $6/hr.
      - Sun: $9.00/hr.
      - Mon: $12.00/hr.
3. Lunch Hour
Employees must have at least 1/2 hour for meals for every 8 hours of work. The employer doesn't have to pay for this time.

4. Breaks
Employees must have at least a 10-minute break for every 4 hours of work.

5. Termination Pay
Workers who quit their jobs must get paid within 72 hours (3 days). Workers who are fired or laid off must get paid at the time they stop working.

6. Deductions
The employer must take money from employees' paychecks for state and federal tax, social security and disability insurance.

The employer may take money from employees' checks only with the employees' permission for health benefits and retirement plans.

The employer may not take money from employees' checks for broken equipment, poor work, mistakes, not following directions.

7. Tools
If a worker makes less than two times the minimum wage, the employer must pay for his/her tools. (There may be a deposit.)

If a worker makes more than two times the minimum wage, the employer doesn't have to pay for tools.

Form W-4 (1998)

Purpose. Complete Form W-4 so your employer can withhold the correct Federal income tax from your pay. Because your tax situation may change, you may want to figure your withholding each year.

Exemption from withholding. If you are exempt, complete only lines 1, 2, 5, and 7, sign the form to validate it. Your exemption for 1999 expires February 16, 1999.

Note: You cannot claim exemption from withholding if (1) your income exceeds $700 and includes unearned income (e.g., interest and dividends) and (2) another person can claim you as a dependent on their tax return.

Basic instructions. If you are not exempt, complete the Personal Allowances Worksheet. The worksheets on page 2 adjust your withholding allowances based on itemized deductions, adjustments to income, or two-earner/two-job situations. Complete all worksheets that apply. They will help you figure the number of withholding allowances you are entitled to claim. However, you may claim fewer allowances.

New—Child tax and higher education credits. For details on adjusting withholding for these and other credits, see Pub. 919, Is My Withholding Correct for 1998?

Head of household. Generally, you may claim head of household filing status on your tax return only if you are unmarried and pay more than 50% of the costs of keeping up a home for yourself and your dependent(s) or other qualifying individuals.

Nonwage income. If you have a large amount of nonwage income, such as interest or dividends, you should consider making estimated tax payments using Form 1040-ES. Otherwise, you may owe additional tax.

Two earners/two jobs. If you have a working spouse or more than one job, figure the total number of allowances you are entitled to claim on all jobs using worksheets from only one W-4. Your withholding will usually be most accurate when all allowances are claimed on the W-4 filled for the highest paying job and zero allowances are claimed for the others.

Check your withholding. After your W-4 takes effect, use Pub. 919 to see how the dollar amount you are having withheld compares to your estimated total annual tax. Get Pub. 919 especially if you used the Two-Earner/Two-Job Worksheet and your earnings exceed $150,000 (Single) or $200,000 (Married). To order Pub. 919, call 1-800-829-3976. Check your telephone directory for the IRS assistance number for further help.

Sign this form. Form W-4 is not valid unless you sign it.

Personal Allowances Worksheet

A Enter “1” for yourself if no one else can claim you as a dependent

B Enter “1” if:
   - You are single and have only one job; or
   - You are married, have only one job, and your spouse does not work; or
   - Your wages from a second job or your spouse’s wages (or the total of both) are $1,000 or less.

C Enter “1” for your spouse. But, you may choose to enter “0” if you are married and have either a working spouse or more than one job. (This may help you avoid having too little tax withheld.)

D Enter number of dependents (other than your spouse or yourself) you will claim on your tax return

E Enter “1” if you will file as head of household on your tax return (see conditions under Head of household above)

F Enter “1” if you have at least $1,500 of child or dependent care expenses for which you plan to claim a credit

G New—Child Tax Credit:
   - If your total income will be between $16,500 and $47,000 ($21,000 and $60,000 if married), enter “1” for each eligible child.
   - If your total income will be between $47,000 and $80,000 ($60,000 and $115,000 if married), enter “1” if you have two or three eligible children, or enter “2” if you have four or more.

For accuracy, complete all worksheets that apply.

Job Search Tool Box
Unit 10 Commencement/ Beginning

OBJECTIVES:
Participants will:
- review the steps in a good job search
- state their job objectives clearly
- learn about changing jobs and career ladders
- learn how to document their job search
- receive a certificate of completion

MATERIALS:
Handouts:
- Secrets to a Successful Job Search
- A Clear Goal - Checklists
- Reasons People Change Jobs
- Job Hopping
- Planning for Change
- Career Ladders in a Cafeteria/ Questions
- Job Announcement & Job Search Tool Checklist
- Weekly Calendar
- TANF Work Search Report
- Certificate

Warm Up: Secrets to a Successful Job Search
Purpose: To give participants advice and encouragement as they begin their work search.
Read handout, Secrets to a Successful Job Search together and ask the participants to give examples to check their understanding.
Ask:
- What does 'clear goal' mean?
- What does 'sell yourself' mean?
- How can you 'go around' barriers?
- How can you 'be organized'?
- What does 'give up' mean?
1. Activity: Putting It All Together: A Clear Goal

Purpose: In this activity participants review what they've learned and put together their values, interests, and skills to state a clear job goal. (If a participant cannot clearly state the job they want they need to look at entry level jobs again to find something they would like to do.)

1) Ask participants to identify three jobs they like.
2) Give each participant a Checklist for each job they name.
3) Explain any new word or ideas.
4) Participants answer YES or NO for the job they want. If most answers for a particular job are NO, this is probably not a good job for that person. If there are several NOT SURE answers, they need to learn more about the job. A few NO answers means that there may be problems or barriers with this job. This is the time to review these barriers.
5) Ask participants to share their Checklists with a partner. Then go around the room and have each participant name his or her job search goal.

2. Discussion:

Purpose: The following exercises will help participants see that changing jobs too often will result in a poor work history.

Job changes for reason of mobility, getting a better job with better pay or more benefits are more acceptable. Most participants are going into entry level jobs. It is important that they have an idea of how they can improve their situation and not simply drift from one entry level job to another.

1.) Ask participants: Why have you changed jobs in the past?
   - Why have people they know changed jobs?
   - What jobs did they change from and to?

2.) Make a list of why people change jobs in the U.S. and in your country.
   - Are the reasons the same or different in your country and the U.S.?
   - (Use either the worksheet Reasons Why People Change Jobs with three or four people using one worksheet or use the board to write down the answers from the class.)

3.) There are two kinds of changes:
   - Changes that you plan: You may decide to learn new skills or change careers. You may change jobs to get better benefits or working conditions.
   - Changes that you don't plan: Things happen. You don't plan them but sometimes companies close or move away, workers get laid off, or you need to move where you live.

4.) Look at the lists you made about why people change jobs.
   - Circle the changes you plan.
   - Put an X next to the ones you don't plan.
3. Activity: Job Hopping
   Purpose: To explain what good work histories are and how job hopping can create a bad work history.

   1) Look at the work histories of two people described in Job Hopping handout.
   2) Answer the questions together.

4. Activity: Climbing Career Ladders Dialog and Questions
   Purpose: To give examples of career ladders within an occupation. To encourage participants to look for career ladders from the beginning.

   1) Facilitator explains that a new worker can ask for ways to move up, find out about openings in the company, and get the training needed.

   - Read the story Career Ladder in a Cafeteria together. Explain that each new job Ivan had was a step on a career ladder.
   - Answer the questions at the end.
   - Brainstorm possible career ladders in the occupations participants have chosen.

5. Activity: Planning for Change
   Purpose: To encourage participants to look ahead to prepare for their long term goals once they get their first job.

   Use Planning for Change handout to look at possible ways to get new and better skills.
6. Activity: Get Ready!
Purpose: To give participants the organizational tools to do an organized job search.

The organizational tools are:
- The Job Search Tool Checklist of items needed for each day of job seeking. This ‘tool’ is a checklist of the tools you need to look for work.
- Weekly and Monthly Calendars: These are for recording appointments and for reminders about things to do in the future
  - TANF Work Search Report for recording completed activities.

1) Make copies of calendars for each participant: one each for monthly and several of the weekly sheets. Explain that a job search is a full time job.

2.) Give participants the Job Announcement for Job Seeker. Help them understand that each day they must do at least one activity for their job search. Also, stress how important it is to document or write down what they do each day, record important names and phone numbers, results of contacts and what to do next.

3.) Give participants their ‘tools’ describing each one and how it is used. You could ask if anyone has had an interview or filled out an application before and use that information to show how to enter it on the TANF Work Search Report.
SECRETS TO A SUCCESSFUL JOB SEARCH

★ Work on you job search every day. A job search IS a job.

★ Ask for help. Know where to find help and use these resources often.

Career Ladder in a Cafeteria

Two old friends meet on the street and talk.

Dan: Hey! Tran! I haven't seen you in along time.

Tran: Hello, Dan. I've been working really hard. I'm the manager over at the fast-food cafeteria on Third and Union downtown.

Dan: Manager? That's great. But so soon? Weren't you cutting up vegetables about two years ago?

Tran: That's right. I was a cook's helper. I just peeled and cut up vegetables. When I started, I was a trainee. I was paid very little.

Dan: Then what happened?

Tran: They hired me as prep cook. I also cut the meat. I paid attention and worked hard. I didn't fool around or make mistakes. The boss asked me to learn the cooking. So I became a cook trainee.

Dan: Good for you!

Tran: I was a cook trainee for three months. The pay was the same as before. Then I became a cook, and I got a raise.

Dan: That sounds OK to me.

Tran: I got along with everybody. Sometimes the other cooks had a fight, but they all liked me. Then the head cook got another job and left. I was promoted to head cook.

Dan: You've got all the luck, Tran.

Tran: I guess so! Now I'm the manager of the food service. I don't cook anymore. I plan the budget and order the food. I have to make schedules for the employees and tell them what to do.

Dan: That's a lot of work! How's the pay?

Tran: It's not bad, but is could be better. I work a lot of overtime without extra pay. I'm thinking of quitting this job because I would like to open my own restaurant.

Worker Can Choose Which Documents To Show

Andre, who is from Haiti, applied for a job packing fruit. The employer, Jack, asked to see Andre's work papers. Andre showed Jack his driver's license and social security card. Andre knew that these papers were on the I-9 employment eligibility verification form's list of acceptable identity and work papers. But Jack refused to accept Andre's work papers. He asked Andre to show him a "green card" too.

Andre told Jack that all he had to show was his driver's license and social security card. But Jack told Andre that he would not hire him without seeing a green card.

The next day, Andre called the Office of Special Counsel for help. (This office, also known as "OSC" for short, is a government agency that looks into charges of immigration-related job discrimination. Its toll-free phone number is 1-800-255-7688.)

An OSC staff person called Jack and explained the correct way to complete the I-9 form. She answered all of Jack's questions. Finally Jack understood that it is illegal for an employer to ask to see a worker's "green card." He understood that the worker always must be allowed to choose which documents to show from the I-9's list of acceptable documents.

Then Jack called Andre and told him he was hired.
Workers Have The Right To Choose Which Papers To Show

A law says that employers must make sure that the workers they hire have legal permission to work. But the same law also says that employers may not discriminate against workers who have permission to work.

To obey this law, your employer must fill out a special form for each worker. The form is called the “I-9 Employment Eligibility Verification Form.” To fill out this form, your employer will need to see papers that prove your identity (who you are) and your right to work (legal work papers).

The I-9 form has a list of identity papers and legal work papers on the back. You are allowed to choose which of these papers you want to show your employer. The employer is not allowed to make you show a paper that he wants you to show. The employer must accept any paper from the list that proves your identity and your right to work. But the employer does not have to accept a paper that looks fake.

The list on this page gives the most common legal work papers. It is a list of the papers you are allowed to show your employer to prove your identity and right to work. Show this list to your employer if he does not want to accept the papers you show him.

LIST OF LEGAL WORK PAPERS

GROUP A
IDENTITY AND WORK AUTHORIZATION

You can choose one paper from Group A because it shows both your identity and your right to work.
- U.S. passport
- Unexpired foreign passport with I-551 stamp or with I-94 form with words “Employment Authorized”
- Certificate of U.S. Citizenship (N-560 or N-561)
- Certificate of Naturalization (N-550 or N-570)
- Alien Registration Receipt Card or Resident Alien card with photo (I-551)
- Temporary Resident Card (I-688)
- INS Work Permit (I-688A or I-688B)
- Unexpired Refugee Travel Document (I-571)
- Unexpired Re-entry Permit (I-327)

Or, you can choose two papers: one from Group B that shows who you are and one from Group C that shows your right to work.

GROUP B IDENTITY
- Driver’s license or state I.D. with photo or description
- School I.D. with photo
- U.S. military I.D. or draft card
- Federal, state, or local government I.D. with photo or description
- Native American Tribal I.D.
- Canadian driver’s license
- Voter’s registration card
To show identity for persons under 18 and the handicapped:
- School record, report card
- Medical records
- Day care or nursery school records
- Parent, legal guardian, or rehabilitation agency staff may certify identity

GROUP C
WORK AUTHORIZATION
- Social Security Card (unless stamped “not valid for employment”)
- U.S. birth certificate (including Puerto Rico, Guam & U.S. Territories)
- Certification of Birth Abroad of U.S. Citizen (FS-545 or DS-1350)
- Document from INS with words “Employment Authorized” (for example, I-94)
- U.S. Citizen I.D. (I-197)
- Resident Citizen Card (I-179)
- Native American Tribal I.D.

What should I do if I think an employer discriminated against me?

If you think an employer discriminated against you, get help right away. Most complaints against employers must be filed within 180 days. A government agency in Washington, D.C., also helps workers who think they have been discriminated against. It is called the Office of Special Counsel, or “OSC” for short. The OSC will help you free of charge.

The OSC has a free telephone number you can call

The OSC’s free hotline is 1-800-255-7688. (The TDD number for the hearing impaired is 1-800-237-2515.) The OSC’s address is:
Office of Special Counsel (OSC) U.S. Department of Justice P.O. Box 27728 Washington, D.C. 20038-7728

Garment Workers Make Company Fix Problem

Protect yourself! Try to figure out what risks you face at your workplace. You need to look out for yourself and your coworkers. Maria did. She worked for Magic Shirt Company. Magic Shirt Company's shop windows would not open because six weeks ago company bosses had them nailed shut. Supervisor Emma said that when the windows were open, the wind blew the fabric and thread too much.

But summer weather made it hard to breathe inside the sewing shop. Maria and three other workers got sick. They coughed every day and got bad headaches. The workers asked Emma to fix the windows so they would open. But Emma said the company did not want the windows open.

So Maria and the other workers phoned the state Occupational Safety and Health Administration office, where they talked to Ahmed. Maria explained the problem to Ahmed, but she did not give her name because she was afraid Emma would fire her.

Three weeks later Ahmed visited the sewing shop. He inspected the building and saw that the shop had other safety and health problems besides the windows. Ahmed made the Magic Shirt Company repair the windows and fix the other problems.

The workers were glad to breathe fresh air again. They formed a committee to look for other working conditions they could improve.
Workers' Rights Under the Occupational Safety and Health Act

Who is covered by the federal Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSH Act)?

The OSH Act protects workers by requiring their employers to provide a safe and healthy workplace. The law covers most workers, including undocumented workers, if they work at a place that has at least 11 workers. But the law does not cover independent contractors and federal workers.

State worker safety laws usually provide stronger protection than the federal law. To get the phone number of your local worker safety agency, look in the state government pages at the front of the phone book. Or call your state's department of labor and ask for the number of the local “occupational safety and health agency.”

You have the right to know about workplace hazards

Sometimes unsafe conditions at work are obvious. You can see that machines are missing safety guards, that ventilation is bad, or that toilets or sinks do not work. But sometimes hazards are not obvious. It can be hard to tell if the materials or chemicals you use can harm you.

To find out whether the materials you work with are safe, you can ask your boss for Material Safety Data Sheets. Your boss must show them to you if you ask to see them. The data sheets describe the materials used at your workplace. They describe the harm those materials can cause and say what equipment workers should use to protect themselves. If you have questions about the data sheets, contact a worker safety agency or an occupational health clinic at a local hospital for more information.

What can I do if my workplace is unsafe?

It is best for workers to act together to fix unsafe working conditions. Some employers will listen to suggestions from workers, but others will not.

If your workplace is unsafe, you have the legal right to file a complaint with your local OSH agency. In most cases, you must file a complaint within 6 months of the time your employer broke a safety requirement. Before you file a complaint, it is best to talk to someone at your local legal aid office or your union. You can ask the OSH agency not to tell your employer that you filed the complaint. But your employer still may find out who filed it.

Is it illegal for my employer to fire me if I file a complaint?

Yes, it is illegal for your employer to fire you or discriminate against you for filing a complaint, testifying, or claiming any right that the OSH Act gives you. But be aware that many employers fire workers anyway for filing complaints. That's why it is a good idea to get legal help from a legal aid office or your union.

If you are fired for filing a complaint with your OSH agency, you should file another complaint with the agency. This time your complaint will say that your employer retaliated against you illegally. Federal law gives you 30 days from the time your employer retaliated against you to file a complaint. The deadlines for filing a complaint with a state agency may be different. If you are fired, though, it may be very difficult to get your job back.

How can I get my OSH agency to help?

OSH agencies do not have enough staff to do all the work that needs to be done. But you can help the OSH agency to help you. For example, you can photograph dangerous or unhealthy work conditions and write down what coworkers say about them. You can also keep records of workers' health problems. If you give the OSH agency this kind of detailed information, it will be more likely to get good results for you and your coworkers.

Are there time limits I need to know?

If you find out that your workplace is dangerous or unhealthy, you should act quickly. Call your local worker safety agency right away to find out what the time limits are on filing complaints. Federal and state worker safety laws have strict time limits for filing complaints. Usually, you should file your complaint well before the filing deadline.
