This paper describes the Chicago Area Directors of Student Teachers (CADST), formed in 1969 as an outgrowth of the Chicago Consortium, which was designed to initiate cooperation among institutions of higher education in the Chicago area. Members of CADST work together to share ideas and deal with issues relevant to working with preservice teachers. The organization currently involves 24 public, private, and parochial institutions. Membership is open to people at the institution who coordinate or direct field placements. If one of these people leaves their position, the institution may send a new representative. For many participants the crucial piece is having someone or a group who will mentor them through the process. CADST meets six times per year. This paper presents a background on CADST, describes the present organization, explains CADST's collaborative efforts, and discusses its structure and future. It also explains how to develop a coalition of supervisors. Attached are a sample letter for setting a meeting and the requirements for that day; a sample agenda; and a sample of host institutions. Background Information

The Chicago Consortium was formed in the 1960's to initiate cooperation among institutions of higher learning in the Chicago area. The records indicate the following institutions as members: Chicago State, Concordia, DePaul, Loyola, Mundelein, Northern Illinois, Northeastern Illinois, Roosevelt, St. Xavier, and the University of Illinois at Chicago. There were several subgroups that would meet on a regular basis and involved presidents, academic vice-presidents, public relations personnel, and admission coordinators. The agendas were to seek common problems and solutions. The executive director was Dr. John Beck.

The Directors of Student Teachers was an outgrowth of this Consortium. It was formed in November 1969 with five institutions represented. This group of individuals is the one that met and consistently worked together since its inception. They met six to eight times a year, compared to the Chicago Consortium's meetings of twice a year. The members of the initial student teacher's group were: Chicago State - Ray Lane; Concordia Teachers College - Elmer Arnst; DePaul - John Eyman; Loyola - Ernest Proulx; Northeastern Illinois - George Grimes & Richard Poorman; Roosevelt - Bernard Sherman.

The Directors believed that to be effective they needed to include members from the Chicago Board of Education and the Cook County Regional Office. Both of these groups eventually sent representatives to the meetings.

The members of this outgrowth Consortium group formed a cohesive unit in which there was an exceptionally high degree of respect and trust. Initially records indicate they sponsored a two-day workshop at Chicago State on Special Education. It was funded in part by the Chicago Consortium [parent group]. Additionally, they sponsored a summer school student teaching program. This activity, however, is now defunct.

This unique organization, from its onset, worked together to share ideas and deal with issues relative to working with preservice teachers (clinical and student teaching). The organization, at its original meeting dealt with issues that impacted their institutions and its student teaching populations. Its parent organization, the Chicago Consortium, formally disbanded in 1986 but the Directors of Student Teachers continued.
CADST - Present

The organization is today a viable one that involves twenty-four public, private, and parochial institutions. After much discussion consensus was reached to change its name to the Chicago Area Directors of Student Teaching. This name exemplifies the broad range of institutions now encompassing members that stretch from Barat College in northern Illinois to Lewis University at its southern end, not to forget the institutions that have resident supervisors from several downstate institutions. [See attached for membership]

Today, the membership comprises any and all individuals at an institution who are the coordinators or directors of the various field placements. If an individual leaves or resigns for some reason, the institution may send its new representative. The crucial piece to this for many of the coordinators/directors is that they have someone or a group who will MENTOR them through the process. Unless a colleague has been involved in student placement, there is no guidance only the undaunting challenge of paperwork and placements. Oft-times when the former director of an institution leaves there is no one there to assist in providing information about:

- How do I find placements?
- What are the regulations for placing students?
- How do you remunerate your cooperating teachers?
- What are the current state regulations?
- Why and when was a specific regulation passed by the state?
- Could I call on you if I need help answering questions?

These are just a few of the issues that arise. In today’s fast changing educational market it is comforting to know that there are others in the area who can and are willing to assist. CADST members are and have been MENTORS long before the word became a “household” name and a buzzword in educational circles!

CADST conducts meetings as follows: September, October or November, December, January, [February out due to professional meetings], March, and April or May. This amounts to six times a year with one institution volunteering to be the host for a particular month. The membership does NOT pay a dues fee. Each institution takes a turn and hosts a meeting at its institution, provides a simple breakfast and lunch, covers the cost of the month’s agenda mailings, and any documents that are needed for reproduction. Thus no membership fee is charged, and everyone shares in the costs. Meetings are held on Friday mornings from 9:30 - Noon. This was found to be the best to accommodate our varying schedules.

CADST - Collaborative Efforts

The years have brought many changes and ideas to the organization, but it has stayed true to its original intent and philosophy. CADST is a body that:

- works and shares current certification information.
- is proactive and writes to the legislature / State Superintendent relative to issues pertinent to preservice teacher education.
- volunteers and sends representatives to sit on various state committees.
- reports and informs colleagues on current issues and upcoming problems and concerns.
- works toward the sharing of "best practice" in teaching.
- hosts state and local individuals to speak and inform them about the current state of education in Illinois. E.g. Dennis Williams, Illinois State Board relative to Teacher Recertification.
- represents its higher education institution by providing ongoing support to their respective Colleges and students by being proactive on important teaching issues.
- participates in local, state, and national professional organizations thereby being at the forefront of change as teacher educators and advocates.

These are just samples of CADST's joint efforts that have occurred over the past thirty years.

The issues that have become more apparent over the years regard CADST as more proactive, continually sharing ideas, and becoming better prepared to assist each other, the preservice students, their respective colleges, and the school community. These factors have created stronger bonds and provided greater unity of understanding among the institutions.
CADST - Structure and Future

The organization's structure is simple and is once again a shared collaborative effort. Roberts Rules of Order are followed, and the officers vary based on availability and our own by-laws. The following is the simple framework along with responsibilities:

- Chairperson / two year term only - sets agenda and conducts meeting
- Secretary / two year term (then becomes Chairperson) - records minutes and may send letters relative to pertinent professional and educational issues as indicated by the organization
- Membership / two years (may remain indefinitely) - publishes a handbook of addresses

It is important to note that CADST's agenda (see sample) is set by the body. As new issues arise they work together to immediately share. Even though we are in an age of computers and fast communication, one individual cannot keep it all together. Coordinators and Directors have many things on their plates, therefore, having twenty-four heads is definitely better than one. Being able to hear twenty-three opinions is better than hearing only one!

CADST has survived since its inception by the very nature of the individuals and their commitment to quality teacher education. They understand they won't always agree because that is the nature of people and the respective institutions they represent. They are united because they have one just cause – producing excellent teachers for the future. They can only do this if they are willing to share, listen, and compromise. This they do and have been able to do for the past thirty years.

It is CADST's long term goal that it succeed for another thirty years, hence it will continue with its philosophy of advocacy, sharing and learning. The coordinators and directors who follow will hopefully continue CADST's long standing policy of being an advocate for teacher educators and students. They will be aware of what was, what is, and what is yet to come based on who and what we are today!
How Can You Develop Your Coalition of Supervisors?

The development of your organization can begin by simply looking to colleagues within your area or state that have similar goals and needs. The key to all this is being available and making the time. We have provided you with a framework and the simple agendas we utilize. All of this takes time to develop and must be encouraged and nurtured. All you need is one person or one institution to start the ball rolling!

Our recommendations for you to consider as you begin to reflect on what you, your fellow colleagues, or institutions would like to do follow:

- Create a coalition based on common goals.
- Allow for flexibility and accommodations with respect to variances in positions on specific issues.
- Allow for flexibility and accommodation of different levels of sophistication with respect to the influence process and finances within the participating organizations / universities.
- At least one organization / university / individual must be invested in spearheading the formation of the coalition for a minimum of one year until membership commitments have been made.
- Allow time before requiring a commitment to membership.
- Consistent participation of the same representatives is desirable IF a "linkage" between the representatives and the coalition investment is to occur.
- Communication between the coalition representatives and their respective organizations / institutions is of utmost importance. This must be stressed if the participants are to feel linked / connected to the coalition.
- Since state organizations tend to meet infrequently during a year, it is important to have the coalition representatives set up a means of ongoing communication and input with their executive boards (Pultorak, et al, 1999).

This list indicates the possibilities and challenges one has in development of the coalition. The benefits to be reaped cannot be measured in one year, but will take time and commitment by all interested parties. It is worth the effort as one views the challenges in education today. We are in a fast paced educational mode and need the support and expertise of many. The public is looking to us to have answers and we can provide some individually, but collectively we can add the broad base of our experiences and expertise. Utilizing what is already at your disposal as far as colleagues, will make the difference. It will help unite and provide the assistance we all need as teacher educators and for America's future.

The Report of the National Commission on Teaching and America's Future, September 1996, reported that we need to prepare teachers because they are important influences on today's youth. The creation of a collaborative built around this preparation and purpose will help meet the Commission's goals and challenges. The statement that "Within a decade - by the year 2006 - we will provide every student in America with what should be his or her educational birthright: access to competent, caring qualified teaching in schools organized for success" is truly a joint challenge. The organization and collaborative efforts of field supervisors toward the common goal of creating an infrastructure of assistance and sharing is imperative to teachers and teaching!

August, 2000

Dear,

Thank you for hosting the September 18 meeting of CADST. Enclosed you will find:

♦ the agenda; ; and
♦ mailing labels. [Enclosed]

These should be copied, not the labels, and sent to all members along with an invitation from Northern Illinois University, directions, and parking instructions for your campus.

On the day of the meeting you are responsible for the following:

♦ name tags;
♦ coffee / rolls at the beginning of the meeting; and
♦ luncheon arrangements. [Remember that members are willing to contribute to costs of the lunch.]

The general agenda overview is as follows:

♦ Members may begin arriving about 9:30 a.m.;
♦ Meeting begins at 10:00 with a welcome made by the host institution;
♦ Meeting ends at about 11:45 or 12:00; and
♦ Lunch is served following the meeting’s end.

If you have any questions or concerns call me at my office [___________], or E-mail [______________].

Sincerely,

Marianne Murphy, CADST Secretary

Dear ATE Presenter:

Congratulations on being selected as a presenter at the Annual Meeting of the Association of Teacher Educators "Taking Charge of the Future of the Profession" (Dallas, TX, February 13-17, 1998). The ERIC Clearinghouse on Teaching and Teacher Education would like you to contribute to the ERIC database by providing us with a written copy of your paper. Abstracts of documents that are accepted by ERIC appear in the print volume, Resources in Education (RIE), and are available through computer in both on-line and CD/ROM versions. The ERIC database is accessed worldwide and is used by colleagues, researchers, students, policy makers, and others with an interest in education.

Inclusion of your work provides you with a permanent archive, and contributes to the overall development of materials in ERIC. The full text of your contribution will be accessible through the microfiche collections that are housed at libraries around the country and the world and through the ERIC Document Reproduction Service. Documents are accepted for their contribution to education, timeliness, relevance, methodology, effectiveness of presentation, and reproduction quality.

To disseminate your work through ERIC, you need to fill out and sign the reproduction release form on the back of this letter and include it with a letter-quality copy of your paper. You can mail the material to: The ERIC Clearinghouse on Teaching and Teacher Education, AACTE, One Dupont Circle, N.W., Suite 610, Washington, DC 20036-1186. Please feel free to photocopy the release form for future or additional submissions.

Should you have further questions, please contact me at 1-800-822-9229.

Sincerely,

Lois J. Lipson
Acquisitions/Outreach Coordinator
