ABSTRACT

Approximately 200 organizational resources concerned with postsecondary education and disability are listed and described in this directory. Resources are listed under six broad categories: (1) advocacy, access, and awareness; (2) community integration (in the arts, employment, independent living, recreation, and rehabilitation); (3) disability-specific organizations; (4) funding; (5) legal assistance; and (6) information on the Americans with Disabilities Act. Each listing usually includes the following information: name and address, phone numbers, e-mail address, Web site, and a one-paragraph description. A separate section lists toll-free telephone numbers for most of the organizations. (DB)

HEATH RESOURCE CENTER

National Clearinghouse on Postsecondary Education for Individuals with Disabilities

The HEATH Resource Center is the clearinghouse that operates under congressional legislative mandate to collect and disseminate information nationally about disability issues in postsecondary education. Funding from the U.S. Department of Education enables HEATH to increase the flow of information about educational support services, policies, and procedures related to educating or training people with disabilities after they have left high school.

The HEATH Resource Center is designed to:

- Identify and describe educational and training opportunities.
- Promote accommodations that enable full participation by people with disabilities in regular, as well as specialized, postsecondary programs.
- Recommend strategies that encourage participation in the least restrictive and most productive environment possible for each individual.

To accomplish these goals, HEATH has an extensive publication program, a toll-free telephone service, and a professional staff that participates in a strong network of colleagues across the country.

HEATH resource papers, fact sheets, guides, and directories focus on disability-related issues as they emerge on college campuses or in vocational-technical training schools, adult education programs, independent living centers, and other community-based training programs. Single copies of HEATH publications are available at no cost and may be reproduced. Publications are available in alternate formats (audiocassette and computer disk) and also may be directly downloaded from the HEATH web site at www.heath-resource-center.org.

HEATH's constituency is comprised of postsecondary administrators and campus disability service providers, teachers and instructors, high school and vocational rehabilitation counselors, government officials, librarians, health professionals, and journalists, as well as those with disabilities and their families. The toll-free telephone line is available to encourage direct interaction with HEATH staff.

Participation by HEATH staff in national, regional, and statewide conferences and training workshops has led to the development of a national network of professionals. This network enables staff to suggest speakers, access options, and obtain audiovisual materials and other resources to enhance such meetings.

HEATH staff can be reached Monday through Friday, 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Eastern Time at (800) 544-3284 or, in the Washington, DC, metropolitan area, at (202) 939-9320; both lines are available for voice or TTY calls. HEATH also may be contacted via electronic mail at heath@ace.nche.edu.

Inquiries also may be mailed to HEATH at One Dupont Circle NW, Suite 800, Washington, DC 20036-1193. Inquiries will receive prompt attention.

The HEATH Resource Center is a program of the American Council on Education.

The HEATH National Resource Directory on Postsecondary Education and Disability is a selection of resources in the major areas of interest in the field of postsecondary education and disability, rather than a comprehensive list of such resources. Many of the organizations included can respond to questions about an individual's own situation, and most can provide published materials. In addition, staff may be asked about sources of assistance close to the caller's location.

The Directory's table of contents provides an outline of its organization. The index lists names of organizations described in each section, and the list of toll-free telephone services reproduces only numbers from this Directory. HEATH has resource papers on many of the Directory topics. Publications may be ordered, at no cost, by writing, faxing, e-mailing, or calling HEATH.

Dottie Jones, Editor; Mario Payne, Editorial Advisor; Dan Gardner, Editorial Assistant; and Vickie M. Barr, Director, HEATH Resource Center. June 2001.

The HEATH National Resource Directory on Postsecondary Education and Disability has been prepared under Cooperative Agreement No. H326H980002 with the U.S. Department of Education, awarded to the American Council on Education. The contents do not necessarily reflect the views of the U.S. Government, nor does mention of products or organizations imply endorsement by the U.S. Government. This Directory is free by request to the HEATH Resource Center, One Dupont Circle NW, Suite 800, Washington, DC 20036-1193.

<http://www.entrypoint.org>

<http://www.aaas.org>

The Project on Science, Technology, and Disability was founded in 1975 as a project of AAAS to improve the entry and advancement of people with disabilities in science, math, and engineering. Primarily an information center, the project links people with disabilities, their families, professors, teachers, and counselors with scientists, mathematicians, and engineers who have disabilities and who can share their coping strategies in education and career advancement in technical fields. The project also offers advice on making professional meetings and museum exhibits accessible. A major project, ENTRY POINT!, places students with disabilities in internships in the public and private sectors. AAAS offers several publications including The Resource Directory of Scientists and Engineers with Disabilities (3rd Edition, 1995). Two videotapes, The Problem Solvers: People with Disabilities in Engineering Careers and A Critical Difference: Mentoring Students with Disabilities in Science and Engineering are also available.

MIUSA is a nonprofit organization dedicated to expanding equal opportunities for persons with disabilities in international educational exchange, leadership development, disability rights training, and community service. MIUSA's international educational exchanges last from two to four weeks and are held throughout the year in the United States and abroad. Delegates live with homestay families and participate in leadership training, workshops and seminars, adaptive recreation, language classes, and community service projects. Exchanges have been coordinated in Africa, Asia, Central America, Europe, and South America. Contact MIUSA for membership information, a listing of available publications and videos, as well as information regarding volunteer/intern opportunities.

MIUSA also manages the National Clearinghouse on Disability and Exchange (NCDE), which provides free information and referral to individuals with disabilities regarding volunteer, short-term work, and study and research opportunities abroad. NCDE also advises international exchange organizations on recruiting and accommodating people with disabilities in their programs.

Founded in 1940, the National Federation of the Blind is the largest membership organization of persons who are blind. With 50,000 members, the NFB has affiliates in all 50 states plus Washington, DC, and Puerto Rico, and more than 700 local chapters. As a consumer and advocacy organization, the purpose of the National Federation of the Blind is two-fold: to help persons who are blind achieve self-confidence and self-respect, and to act as a vehicle for collective self-expression by those who are blind. By providing public education about blindness, information and referral services, scholarships, literature and publications about blindness, aids and appliances and other adaptive equipment for those who are blind, advocacy services and protection of civil rights, development and evaluation of technology, and support for persons who are blind and their families, members of the NFB strive to educate the public that those who are blind are normal individuals who can compete on equal terms. NFB has a number of scholarships available for students who are blind in postsecondary education. The Braille Monitor is a monthly publication available without cost to members. NFB also sponsors JOB (Job Opportunities for the Blind), a job listing and referral service.

RFB&D is a national nonprofit organization that loans taped educational books and books on diskette, and provides library services and other educational and professional resources to individuals who cannot read standard print because of a visual, physical, or perceptual disability. RFB&D's 80,000-volume master tape library is continuously augmented by the work of 4,500 volunteers working in 33 recording studios across the country. RFB&D also has established a Customer Projects Group, a fee-based service to help employers place printed workplace information in formats accessible to people who cannot read standard print. RFB&D offers individual memberships at an annual fee of $25 plus a one-time registration fee of $50. Institutional memberships are also offered, with fees dependent on the level of membership and the number of books chosen. RFB&D also offers computer and professional books on disk, and specially adapted tape players and accessories at nominal fees.

The Judge David L. Bazelon Center for Mental Health Law is a national nonprofit advocacy organization formed in 1972; until 1993, it was called the Mental Health Law Project. The center uses litigation and federal policy reform to define and uphold the legal rights of children, adults, and elders with mental disabilities and create approaches to meeting their needs that will assure them choice and dignity. Staff attorneys provide training and other assistance to legal services, protection and advocacy organizations, and other advocates for low-income individuals and families. The center publishes issue papers, booklets, and manuals explaining and interpreting major federal laws and regulations that protect the rights of, and make resources available to, children and adults with disabilities, and maintains a web site listing extensive advocacy resources.
