This bibliography, developed by Project RIMES (Reading Instructional Methods of Efficacy with Students) lists 80 software packages for teaching early reading and spelling to students at risk for reading and spelling failure. The software packages are presented alphabetically by title. Entries usually include a grade level indicator, a brief description, price, type of computer, author, publisher, distributor, phone number and Web site. Each material is also coded with a pictorial icon to identify the material's focus, including assessment, fluency, phonological awareness, sound symbol and spelling, reading and phonics, writing and handwriting, or other resources (professional tools, references, and general education materials). Climbing with Phonics
Grades: all, Pre-K - adult
Multisensory program using Orton Gillingham approach. Each lesson contains 7 activities, with each emphasizing a different sense. Material moves sequentially from structured repetition to automaticity. User watches lips move and hears human sounds as the student tries to identify and associate the sound with a letter. With correct answers, the student progresses with a climb up the mountain. When the user is unable to identify the letter-sound connection, the climb stops and a lesson is provided. Disc 1 covers consonants, consonant digraphs, short and long vowels, and final "e" syllabification skills. Disc 2 covers vowel digraphs, "r" controlled vowels, syllable endings, plus more. Advanced reading skills are included.
Price: $ 125 each disc, or $189 for both CD-ROM

Phonics Mastery

Grades: PreK-5

Phonics mastery is a powerful but fun series based upon proven mastery learning principles. Designed for young emerging readers and older readers still struggling to achieve phonemic awareness, this series ensures mastery of over one hundred phonemes. Mastery is learned through a research driven four-step approach:

- Pretests determine which phonemes need instruction.
- Instruction progresses through sound-to-letter, sound-to-picture, and sound-to-word steps, while providing students with developmentally appropriate voice-based instruction on phonemes identified in the Pretest. - Practice/Evaluation carefully moves the student from errorless practice to increasingly more difficult practice items if mastery is achieved using the same progression used in the Instruction process. - Mastery Games motivate successful readers while reinforcing mastered phonemes through highly graphic and fun activities.

A universal management system allows you to track student progress, customize content, and modify program options based upon the student’s learning needs for all titles in this series.

Simon Spells

When students can’t hold a pencil or crayon to scribble, they have limited experiences with words. Because we learn to spell by writing, students with limited writing experiences are often poor spellers. Students learning to read and write struggle with spelling sight words that compromise a majority of all text. Simon Spells is the spelling tutor that gives students repetitive practice in spelling and teaches them how to correct their errors.
Friendly on-screen tutors, using proven teaching strategies, lead students from assessment to individualized practice and instruction. Moving at their own pace, students receive instruction and positive feedback that motivate them to stick with it until they spell each word correctly. Simon Spells is an excellent tool for students who cannot spell basic words; need motivation to practice spelling; are frustrated and unsuccessful reading and writing basic words; or need extra help to pass spelling standards.

Simon Sounds It Out
Students with disabilities have many barriers to overcome when learning that words and print are related. Students need a way to sound out words to ‘feel’ the sounds and how they blend together. Students need practice and repetition to really master the difference between letters, sounds and words. Simon Spells It Out provides structured phonics instruction and guided practice using classroom tested, effective strategies. On-screen tutors monitor each student’s progress, adjusting to review or move on when sounds are mastered and providing positive support. Helps students learn that letters go together to produce the sounds in words, learn to blend sounds into words, develop phonological awareness, and improve word recognition and spelling skills.
