In 2013, the average score of twelfth-grade students in Michigan was 288. This was not significantly different from the average score of 287 for public school students in the nation.

The percentage of students in Michigan who performed at or above the NAEP Proficient level was 37 percent in 2013. This percentage was not significantly different from the nation (36 percent).

The percentage of students in Michigan who performed at or above the NAEP Basic level was 74 percent in 2013. This percentage was not significantly different from the nation (73 percent).

In 2013, the average score in Michigan (288) was lower than those in 5 states/jurisdictions higher than those in 2 states/jurisdictions not significantly different from those in 5 states/jurisdictions.

In 2013, Black students had an average score that was 31 points lower than White students. This performance gap was not significantly different from the nation (29 points).

In 2013, Hispanic students had an average score that was 18 points lower than White students. This performance gap was not significantly different from the nation (21 points).

In 2013, female students in Michigan had an average score that was higher than male students by 12 points.

NOTE: Statistical comparisons are calculated on the basis of unrounded scale scores or percentages.